341. bear rule (κρατέουσι). Perhaps read κρατέουσι, 'resound with din of arms'.

(42) Thrice-wretched Italy, thou shalt remain all desolate, unwept. (43) A baleful beast in thy luxuriant land shall destroy thee.

(44) †When the broad heaven above is clear†, (45) men shall hear a crash, as of thunder, even the voice of God. (46) And even the imperishable fires of the sun itself shall be no more, (47) nor shall there be any more the bright moonlight (48) in the last time when God shall reign. (49) All things shall become black and darkness shall be over the earth, (50) (and mortals shall be blind and beasts evil) and trouble. (51) That day shall last long time, so that (52) men will take note of God Himself, the King, the Watcher of all from heaven. (53) Then he shall have no pity for those who are his foes, (54) when they spend themselves in sacrificing herds of lambs and sheep and lowing bulls, (55) of great calves too with gilded horns (56) to lifeless Hermes and gods of stone. (57) But let justice, wisdom, and glory hold sway over the just, (58) lest the Immortal God in anger destroy (59) the whole bloodstained race of men and their shameless kin. (60) We needs must love God the Father, the Wise, the Everlasting.

(61) There shall be at the last time, about the waning of the moon, (62) a world-convulsing war deceitful in guilefulness. (63) And there shall come from the ends of the earth a matricide (64) fleeing and devising sharp-edged plans in his mind. (65) He shall ruin all the earth, and gain all power, (66) and surpass all men in the cunning of his mind. (67) That for which he perished he shall seize at once. (68) And he shall destroy many men and great tyrants, (69) and shall burn all men as none other ever did. (70) And those that were fallen he shall raise up again through contrary zeal. (71) And from the west shall come much war to men, (72) and streams of blood shall flow up to the banks of the deep-eddying rivers. (73) And gall shall distil in the plains of Macedonia† . . . (74) alliance, but to the king from the west destruction†. (75) And then a wintry blast shall blow throughout the earth, (76) and the plain shall be filled again with cruel war. (77) For fire shall rain on mortal men from the fields of heaven, (78) fire and blood, water, meteor, darkness, heaven's night, (79) and consumption in war and a mist over the slain (80) shall destroy at once all kings and the best of men.

(81) Then at last war's piteous ruin shall be stopped (82) and no man shall fight any more with swords or steel, (83) nor with javelins either, for these things shall no more be permitted. (84) But the wise people that are left shall have peace, (85) having had trial of evil that later they might rejoice.

(86) Ye matricides, cease from your shamelessness and wicked boldness. (87) Ye that of old foully furnished boys for abuse, (88) and set in your houses as harlots those who before were pure (89) with wanton violence and punishment and laboured foulness. (90) In thee a mother had incestuous commerce with her child, (91) and a daughter became the bride of her own father. (92) In thee even kings befouled their ill-starred mouth: (93) in thee evil men even found means to lie with beasts. (94) Silence, thou miserable, wicked city, from the revel that thou hadst. (95) For no longer under the roof of thy virgin-loving court shall the virgins tend the divine fire. (97) Quenched from thee was thine house, desired of old, (98) when for the second time I saw thine house hurled (99) headlong down, lapped with fire, by an unholy hand, (400) thine ever flourishing house, the temple that guarded thy god, (401) made with holy hands, (402) and such as men from their soul and body itself trusted would be ever immortal.

(403) Not recklessly do they praise a God of senseless earth, (404) nor did a cunning workman 343. The reading of the MSS. needs some correction. Read ἐξαπολεί σε for ἐξαπολέσθαι.

344. MSS. unintelligible. Read ἔσται δ' ὀπιπταν αἰθριος οὐρανὸς εὐρύς ὑπερθευ.

358-60. Quoted by Lact. De Ira Dei, xxiii. 8.

359. bloodstained (βροτόεν) a conjecture for 'life' (βίονον).

361-85. Wars and disasters preceding the end.

363. The ends of the earth. Either Parthia, or the West conceived of as the scene of the appearance of the Antichrist in the form of Nero. A similar description in Testament of the Lord v.

The passage is referred to in Lact. De Morte Pers. ii. 8.

367. Probably the sovereignty.

370-3. Friedlieb supposes these lines to be an interpolation.

373. A gap after this line. The sense was probably, 'But God shall send from on high to that people help (or alliance)'.

386-402. Outburst of hatred against Rome. For the description cf. iii. 185 ff.

395. No good sense can be obtained from the MSS. A somewhat bold emendation is proposed. Read οὐκέτι γὰρ παρὰ σείο τέγει φιλοπαρθένου ἀλλῆς. The reference is apparently to the burning of the Temple of Vesta in A. D. 64 (or possibly the second burning in A. D. 191).

398. The Sibyl claims to have seen the Temple at Jerusalem twice destroyed, and regards its destruction as the reason for the burning of Vesta's Temple.

401. The indestructibility of Herod's Temple was a dogma deep-rooted in the Jewish mind. Compare the story in Josephus, Bell. Iud. vi. 5.

403. senseless (ἄφρονος) for 'vanished' (ἀφανούς).

among them make a god of stone: (405) no ornament of gold to lead souls astray do they worship. (406) But God, the great Father of all within whom is the breath of God, (407) they were wont to reverence with holy sacrifices and hecatombs. (408) But now an obscure unholy king has gone up (409) and cast it down and left it without inhabitant (10) with a great multitude and with doughty warriors. (11) But he himself perished when he landed on the mainland from the Eternal Land, (12) and no such sign has yet been wrought on men (13) that others should think to lay in ruins the great city.

(14) For there has come from the plains of heaven a blessed man (15) with the sceptre in his hand which God has committed to his clasp: (16) and he has won fair dominion over all, and has restored to all (17) the good the wealth which the former men took. (18) And he has destroyed every city from its foundations with sheets of fire, (19) and burnt up the families of the men who before wrought evil, (20) and the city which God loved he made (21) more radiant than the stars and the sun and the moon; (23) and he set it as the jewel of the world, and made a temple (23) exceeding fair in its fair sanctuary, and fashioned it (24) in size of many furlongs, with a giant tower (25) touching the very clouds and seen of all, (26) so that all the faithful and all the righteous may see (27) the glory of the invisible God, the vision of delight. (28) East and West have hymned forth the glory of God: (29) for no longer are wretched mortals beset with deeds of shame, (30) adulteries and unnatural passions for boys, (31) murder and tumult, but rivalry is fair among all. (32) It is the last time of the saints, when God accomplishes these things, (33) God the sender of thunder, the Creator of the great Temple.

(34) Woe to thee, Babylon, golden-throned and golden-saddled, (35) thou who for many a year wast queen, sole sovereign of the world, (36) of old so great and cosmopolitan, no more shalt thou lie (37) on golden mountains and by Euphrates' streams. (38) Thou shalt be levelled by an earthquake's shock: and the dread Parthians (39) have made thee rattle through and through. Keep thy mouth with the bridle of constraint, (40) thou race of the Chaldees, and ask not nor care (41) how thou mayst rule the Persians or have dominion over the Medes. (42) For because of the empire that thou hadst, †thou shalt send hostages (43) to Rome, even those who were in bondage to Asia†. (44) Therefore thou thyself, thou haughty queen, shalt come to the summons of thine (45) adversaries on whose account thou hast sent ransom, (46) and for thy crooked words thou shalt give a bitter reckoning to thine enemies.

(47) And in the last time the sea shall be dry, (48) and no longer shall ships sail to Italy, (49) and great Asia which produces everything shall be water, (50) and Crete a plain. Cyprus shall have a great sorrow (51) and Paphos shall lament aloud her grievous fate, so that (52) even Salamis the great city shall perceive that she has suffered a great sorrow. (53) Now again the dry land up to the sea-shore shall be barren, (54) and swarms of locusts shall waste the land of Cyprus. (55) Ye ill-starred mortals, ye shall weep when ye look toward Tyre. (56) Phoenicia, grievous wrath awaits thee, till thou fallest (57) with a grievous fall so that the Sirens in very truth should weep.

(58) There shall be a time in the fifth generation, when Egypt's destruction shall cease, (59) when kings ally themselves in shameless marriages. (60) And Pamphylian races shall settle in Egypt, (61) and in Macedonia and in Asia and among the Lycians (62) there shall be a world-convulsing war with streams of blood in the dust, (63) which a king of Rome and western princes shall arrest.

408. The king is Titus.

411. Text uncertain. Titus lingered for some time in Egypt after the capture of Jerusalem, and there was an expectation among the Jews that he would die directly he set foot on Italian soil. Read χέρσῳ ἀπ' ἀθανάτης ἐπιβάς γῆς and understand χέρσῳ of the mainland of Italy.

414-33. The coming of the Messiah, conceived of as already having occurred.

420, 421. Quoted by Lact. Div. Inst. vii. 24. 6.

422. The line is mutilated in the middle. The emendation suggested is καὶ κόσμου καταέθηκεν ἄγαλμα, νεών τ' ἐποίησεν ἐν σηκῷ καλῷ περικαλλέα.

434-46. Woes on Babylon and the Parthians.

435. Cf. Isa. xlvii. 5.

437. The golden mountains are merely a proverbial figure for immense wealth.

439. rattle (κροτεῖν) for MSS. 'rule' (κρατεῖν). In the latter half of the line the MSS. reading has been kept with the single alteration of φιμόν to φιμῶ.

443. The text is again corrupt. Read εἰς Ῥώμην πέμψεις σου καὶ Ἀσιδι θητεύοντας. Augustus, by diplomacy, induced the Parthians to restore the Roman prisoners captured at Carrhae.

444. Reading again uncertain. For εἰς κρίσιν read ἐπὶ κλήσιν.

447-57. Convulsions of nature.

451. lament, αἰξεί. Alexandre's emendation for αἰξεί.

457. For the Sirens as spirits of lamentation cf. 2 Bar. x. 8.

458. War in Egypt. For 'when . . . shall cease' (ὅτε παύσεται) we should, perhaps, read 'when . . . shall come' (ὅτ' ἐλεύσεται).

459. Perhaps a reference to Cleopatra and Caesar.

461. For Lycians Alex. suggests 'Libyans', referring to Octavian's capture of Pelusium and Alexandria.

(64) When a wintry blast distils in form of snow, (65) and a great river and the largest lakes are frozen, (66) straightway a barbarian horde shall make its way to the land of Asia, (67) and shall destroy the race of the dreaded Thracians as though it were but puny. (68) And then mortals in desperation shall devour their own parents (69) in the last stages of famine, and shall consume them greedily as food. (70) And from every house beasts shall devour the table (71) and the very birds shall devour all mortals, (72) and as a result of grievous war the bloodstained ocean shall be filled (73) with the flesh and blood of the insensate men. (74) Then such faintness shall there be throughout the earth (75) that one may tell the number of men and the measure of women. (76) Myriad shall be the lamentations of the wretched generation about the term (77) when the sun sets never to rise again, (78) waiting to be bathed in the waters of ocean. (79) For it has seen the unholy villainies of many men. (80) There shall be a moonless darkness even around the great heaven, (81) and no slight mist shall envelop the folds of earth (82) a second time. But then God's light shall guide (83) all those good men who have raised their hymns to God.

(84) Isis, thou goddess thrice ill-starred, thou shalt remain by the streams of Nile (85) alone, frenzied but speechless by the sands of Acheron, (86) and no memory of thee shall remain throughout the whole earth. (87) And thou, Sarapis, covered with many useless stones, (88) shalt lie a giant corpse in Egypt thrice ill-starred. (89) And all who have brought the precious things of Egypt to thee, (90) shall weep for thee bitterly, bethinking them of the Immortal God. (91) They shall know thee to be nothing, all who have sung hymns to thee as God. (92) And then one of the priests shall say, a linen-clad man, (93) Come, let us set up the fair temple of the true God. (94) Come, let us change the grievous custom we have received from our fathers, (95) whereby, performing processions and rites to gods of stone and earthenware, they had no sense. (97) Let us turn ourselves and hymn the Immortal God, (98) the Father himself who is from everlasting, (99) the Chief of all, the True, the King, (500) the Father, Sustainer of souls, the Great Eternal God. (501) And then in Egypt there shall be a great and holy temple, (502) and to it the people whom God made shall bring sacrifices. (503) To these God shall grant a life without decay.

(504) But when, leaving the shameless tribes of the Triballi, (505) the Ethiopians tarry to till the land of Egypt, (506) they shall begin their evil deeds that all the latter things may come to pass. (507) For they shall destroy the great temple of the land of Egypt. (508) And God shall rain grievous wrath upon them down to earth, (509) so as to destroy all the evil and all the lawless. (10) And there shall be no more any sparing in that land (11) because they did not keep that which God entrusted to them.

(12) I saw the threatening of the gleaming sun among the stars, (13) and the moon's grievous wrath among the lightning flashes. (14) The stars travailed with war: and God suffered them to fight. (15) For instead of the sun long flames rose in revolt, (17) and the two-horned revolution of the moon was changed. (16) Lucifer waged battle, mounted on Leo's back. (18) Capricorn smote the heel of the young Taurus: (19) and Taurus snatched from Capricorn his day of return. (20) Orion removed the Scales so that they remained no more. (21) Virgo changed her sphere with the Twins in Aries. (22) The Pleiad appeared no more: and the Dragon disowned the Belt. (23) Pisces entered into the girdle of Leo. (24) Cancer did not stay, for he feared Orion. (25) Scorpio drew up his tail, because of savage Leo: (26) and the dog-star perished from the sun's flame. (27) The might of doughty Lucifer burned up Aquarius. (28) Heaven itself was stirred till it shook the warriors, (29) and in anger cast them headlong to the earth. (30) And smitten swiftly into the waters of Ocean, (31) they kindled the whole earth: and the sky remained starless.

464-74. A Gaulish invasion. Probably an ancient oracle on the Gaulish inroad into Asia after their repulse at Delphi in 279 B. C.

476-83. A plague of darkness, the righteous only having light.

476. wretched, δειλή, a conjecture for MSS. δεινή.

482. The writer has in mind probably the darkness that reigned in Egypt when only the Israelites had light.

484-503. The conversion of Egypt. Four lines are quoted by Clem. Al. Protr. iv. 50 with slight alterations from the MSS.

487. So Clem. But the MSS. have 'stretched on thy stones thou shalt have many toils', λίθοις ἐπικείμενε πολλὰ μογήσεις.

489. Or perhaps 'whom the spell of Egypt hath brought to thee'. ὅσους δ' Αἰγύπτου πόθος ἤγαγεν εἰς σε (so Rz.).

501. The Temple of Onias at Heliopolis was destroyed by order of Vespasian.

504-11. Destruction of the Temple followed by God's vengeance.

504. The Triballi, properly a rude tribe living on the borders of Thrace, are here used generally for savages.

505. The MSS. tarry is to be kept. But 'the land of Egypt' is Alexandre's emendation (Αἰγύπτου γαῖαν for Αἰγυπτου ἐγν τε).

512-31. The battle of the stars; cf. Lucan, Phars. i. 72. If the stars are taken as representing angelic beings, the scene is parallel to the 'war in heaven' in Apoc. xii. 7. Only here all are finally expelled.

514. war. A necessary emendation for the MSS. reading, which gives no sense.

517. revolution (ρόιζος) for 'trouble' (οιζύς).

525. MSS. uncertain.

THE ASSUMPTION OF MOSES

INTRODUCTION

§ 1. SHORT ACCOUNT OF THE BOOK.

THE Assumption of Moses was in all probability a composite work, and consisted of two originally distinct books, of which the first was the Testament of Moses, and the second the Assumption. The former was written in Hebrew, between A. D. 7 and 29, and possibly also the latter. A Greek version of the entire work appeared in the first century A. D. Of this a few phrases and sentences appear to have been preserved in Acts vii. 36, Jude 9, 16, 18, 2 Baruch, Clement of Alexandria, Origen, and other Greek writers. The Greek version was translated into Latin not later than the fifth century. Of this version a large fragment was discovered by Ceriani in a sixth-century MS. in the Ambrosian library in Milan.

The book was written by a Pharisaic Quietist and was designed by its author as a protest against the growing secularization of the Pharisaic party through its fusion with political ideals and popular Messianic beliefs. Its author sought herein to recall his party to the old paths, which they were fast forsaking, of simple unobtrusive obedience to the law. He glorifies accordingly the old ideals which had been cherished and pursued by the Chasid and Early Pharisaic party, but which the Pharisaism of the first century B. C. had begun to disown in favour of a more active rôle in the life of the nation. And yet he was full of patriotism; for he looked for the return of the Ten Tribes, the establishment of the theocratic kingdom, the triumph of Israel over its foes. But though a patriot he was not a Zealot. The duty of the faithful was not to resort to arms, but simply to keep the law, and prepare, through repentance, for the personal intervention of God in their behalf. Accordingly, though he depicts in all its horrors the persecution under Antiochus, he leaves unmentioned the great achievements of the Maccabean leaders and only once refers to the entire dynasty from 165 to 37 B. C., and that in most disparaging terms. For him the true saints and heroes of the time were not Judas and his great brethren, but an obscure group of martyrs—Elcazar and his seven sons, who unresistingly yielded themselves to death on behalf of God and the law. In setting forth his ideal saints and heroes our author idealized deliberately the facts of history and represented as a single incident two distinct events—a pardonable liberty on the part of an Apocalypticist—not to speak of an unconquerable optimist and idealist. His action in regard to the Maccabean movement was the natural outcome of his conception of religion, and reflected his attitude towards the present dominant form of Pharisaism; for he clearly saw the growing secularization of the religion of his time, and perhaps foresaw the doom to which his country was hurrying under such a shortsighted and unspiritual policy, and laboured with all his power to stay its downward progress. But all in vain. He but played afresh the part of Cassandra. The leavening of Pharisaism with earthly political ideals went on apace, and the movement thus initiated culminated finally in the destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans in 70 A. D.

It adds no little to the interest of the book that it was written during the early life of our Lord, or possibly contemporaneously with His public ministry, and that its conception of spiritual religion as opposed to an alliance of religion with politics generally or with any specific school of politics was essentially one with His.¹

§ 2. THE PRESENT BOOK IN REALITY A TESTAMENT OF MOSES—NOT THE ASSUMPTION, WHICH IS PRESERVED ONLY IN A FEW GREEK QUOTATIONS.

In the lists of Apocryphal books we find mention of a Testament of Moses (Διαθήκη Μωυσέως) followed immediately by an Assumption of Moses (Ἀνάληψις Μωυσέως). In the 'List of Sixty Books' and in the Synopsis of Athanasius the number of stichoi is omitted, but this desideratum is supplied by the Stichometry of Nicephorus, which assigns to them respectively 1,100 and 1,400 stichoi. Schürer conjectured that these designations were titles of two separate divisions of one and the same book, the first of which has been preserved, whereas the quotations in the Fathers almost all belong to the second. The studies of the present writer have led him to accept this suggestion in a modified form. The 'Testament' and 'Assumption' mentioned in the above lists are not to be regarded with Schürer as 'two separate divisions of one and the same work', but as two originally independent works subsequently put together and edited as one.

¹ This section is mainly taken from my edition of the Assumption of Moses, pp. xiii sq.

THE ASSUMPTION OF MOSES

Of the Latin fragment of the Assumption (i. e. the Testament), which consisted originally of 1,100 stichoi, about one-half is preserved.¹ Some writers, as Rönsch (Das Buch der Jubiläen, pp. 480 sq.), have sought to identify this Testament with the Book of Jubilees. But this is impossible; for since 4,300 stichoi are assigned to the Canonical Book of Genesis in the Stichometry of Nicephorus, this Testament, if it were identical with the Book of Jubilees, would have run to 5,000 or 6,000 stichoi and not to 1,100, as it is there stated. Independently of this fact on a variety of grounds this identification is inadmissible.

We shall now give some of the grounds for regarding the Latin version and the Greek fragments in the Fathers as belonging to two originally independent works, which were subsequently edited together.

1°. The book quoted by Jude, Clement of Alexandria, and later Greek writers,² was wholly concerned with the individual destiny of Moses, i. e. his assumption and incidents connected with it. This was the original Assumption of Moses.

2°. The book partially preserved in the Latin version is the 'Testament' which was wholly taken up with the destinies of the chosen people: it was distinct also from the Assumption of Moses; for according to the Latin version (i. e. the 'Testament') Moses was to die an ordinary death. Thus in i. 15 Moses says: 'I am passing away to sleep with my fathers even in the presence of all the people,' and similarly in x. 14. In iii. 13 the Tribes speak of Moses' death. In these three passages the death referred to is obviously an ordinary one, and the same fact was stated in x. 12, before it was interpolated by the editor who joined the 'Testament' and the 'Assumption of Moses' into one book. In x. 12, i. e. 'From my death [assumption] until His advent, there will be CCL times,' this word 'assumption' was introduced by the final editor into the Testament, which knew nothing of Moses' assumption, in order to prepare the reader for the main subject of the added work, 'The Assumption of Moses'.

3°. In the thirteenth section of the Palaea Historica edited by Vassiliev—an O.T. history of events from Adam to Daniel—of the portion which deals with the death of Moses, part seems to be ultimately derived from the 'Testament' and part from the 'Assumption' properly so called. The following lines (pp. 257-58) would form a fitting close to the 'Testament'.

καὶ εἶπεν Μωϋσῆς πρὸς Ἰησοῦν (τὸν) τοῦ Ναυί. Ἀνέλθωμεν ἐν τῷ ὄρει. καὶ ἀνελθόντων αὐτῶν εἶδεν Μωϋσῆς τὴν γῆν τῆς ἐπαγγελίας καὶ εἶπεν πρὸς αὐτόν. κάτελθε πρὸς τὸν λαόν, καὶ ἀνάγγελον αὐτοῖς ὅτι Μωϋσῆς ἐτελεύτησεν. καὶ κατήλθεν Ἰησοῦς πρὸς τὸν λαόν, ὁ δὲ Μωϋσῆς τὰ τέλη τοῦ βίου ἐκτήσατο. Here Moses dismisses Joshua and dies apparently an ordinary death. But according to the Assumption proper (see Clem. Alex. Strom. vi. 15) both Joshua and Caleb were present, when the assumption

¹ It is not improbable that the lost half of the Testament dealt with certain revelations made by Moses, and that it closed with his disappearance in a cloud, so that his death was hid from human sight. We make this conjecture on the ground of the following statement in an old Catena on the Pentateuch (Fabric. Cod. Pseud. VT, ii. 121-2) 'Est quidem in apocrypho mysticoque codice legere, ubi de creatis rebus subtilius agitur, nubem lucidam, quo tempore mortuus est Moses, locum sepulcri complexam oculos circumstantium perstrinxisse ita ut nullus neque morientem legislatorem neque locum videre potuerit ubi cadaver conderetur'. Here there is an extraordinary disappearance of Moses' body as in Deut. xxxiv. 5, 6 but no assumption. If the writer had been acquainted with the original Assumption, in which the details of Moses' ascension to heaven were recorded, he could not have written in these vague terms.

² On pp. 105-10 of my edition I have shown by an examination of the existing Greek fragments of the Assumption proper, that the order of action in it was probably as follows:

1°. Michael was commissioned to bury Moses.

2°. Satan opposed the burial on the ground (a) that he was the lord of matter (ἕλη) and that accordingly the body should be rightfully handed over to him; (b) that Moses was a murderer, having slain the Egyptian.

3°. Michael having rebutted Satan's accusations proceeded to charge Satan with having instigated the serpent to tempt Eve.

4°. Finally, all opposition having been overcome, the assumption took place in the presence of Joshua and Caleb, and in a very peculiar way. A two-fold presentation of Moses appeared: one was Moses in company with angels, the other was the dead body of Moses, being buried in the recesses of the mountains.

The passages in support of 1° will be found in Severus, Patriarch of Antioch (A. D. 512-19). See Cramer, Cat. in Ep. Cathol., p. 160; likewise the two anonymous passages op. cit. on pp. 161, 163; two scholia from Oecumenius (c. 990). In support of 2° Jude 9; Clem. Alex., Adumbrat. in Ep. Judae; Didymus Alex. (309-94); Severus of Antioch; Acta Synodi Nicaen., ii. 20; anonymous passages in Cramer's Cat. in Ep. Cathol., pp. 160, 161, 163 and the scholia of Oecumenius. In support of 3° Origen, De Princ. iii. 2. 1. In support of 4° Clem. Alex., Strom. vi. 15; Origen, In Jos.-Hom. ii. 1; Euodius, Ep. ad August. 258. All these passages are given in full in my edition, pp. 105-10.

INTRODUCTION

of Moses took place. The words that follow on the above in the Palaea Historica are based ultimately on the Assumption proper and deal with the strife of Sammael and Michael over the body of Moses, the real Moses in a spiritual form having been borne off to heaven by angels.

4°. The two books—the 'Testament' and the 'Assumption'—were probably put together in one work in the first century A. D., since Jude draws upon both in his Epistle. See § 10. Josephus (Ant. iv. 8. 48), while holding fast to Deut. xxxiv. 5, 6, shows that he is aware of the new claims made on Moses' behalf in the Assumption: νέφους αἰφνίδιον ὑπὲρ αὐτοῦ στάντος, ἀφανίζεται κατὰ τινος φάραγγος. Γέγραφε δὲ αὐτὸν ἐν τοῖς ἱεραῖς βίβλοις τεθνεῶτα, δείσας μὴ δι' ὑπερβολὴν τῆς περὶ αὐτὸν ἀρετῆς πρὸς τὸ θεῖον αὐτὸν ἀναχωρῆσαι τολμήσωσι εἰπεῖν. Does the account of the Transfiguration point in any respect to popular belief in Moses' assumption?

§ 3. OTHER BOOKS OF MOSES.

i. In Jewish literature.

(a) Midrash Tanchuma Debarim translated by Wünsche into German (1882). Petirath Moshe (פְּטִירַת מֹשֶׁה) ed. by Gaulmyn (Paris 1629) with a Latin translation, which latter was republished by Fabricius in 1714 and Gfrörer in 1840. Two other recensions of this work were printed by Jellinek in his Beth ha-Midrash i. 115-29, 1853; vi. 71-8, 1877.

גְּדוּלוֹת מֹשֶׁה. This Hebrew Apocalypse tells of Moses' transformation into the form of a fiery angel and his ascent through the seven heavens. Since it shows many affinities with 2 Enoch, some of its contents will be found under § 4 of the Introduction to that book.

Another legend dealing with the temporary translation of Moses before his death into heaven is preserved in the Midrash Bereshit Rabbati of R. Moses Ha-Darshan published by Jellinek in his Beth ha-Midrash vi, § 22. When translated into heaven the heavenly Jerusalem and the Temple were revealed to him, and he was told these would descend to earth after God had gathered Israel a second time from the ends of the earth.

On the above legends see Beer, Leben Moses nach Auffassung der jüdischen Sage, 1863; M. Grünbaum, Neue Beiträge zur semitischen Sagenkunde, 183.

(b) In Greek. Philo's Vita Moses; Josephus, Ant. iv. 8. 4, 48.

βίβλος λόγων μυστικῶν Μωυσέως. This book is mentioned in the Acts of the Nicene Council ii. 18. Its contents as there given have their parallels in Rabbinic literature. See Jewish Encyc. ix. 53.

(c) In Arabic and Slavonic. See my edition of The Assumption, p. xvi.

ii. In Christian literature.

Apocalypsis Mosis in Tischendorf's Apocalypses Apocryphae. This book is wrongly named and belongs really to the Adamic literature.

Apocryphum Mosis (Ἀπόκρυφον Μωυσέως). According to Euthalius and others Gal. vi. 16 was borrowed from this book, but there can be little doubt that the borrowing is just the other way.

§ 4. THE LATIN VERSION OF THE ASSUMPTION.

The solitary MS. of this version was discovered in the Ambrosian library in Milan by Ceriani and published by him in his Mon. sacr. et prof. I. i. 55-64 in 1861. This MS. is a palimpsest of the sixth century. It consists of eight folios written on both sides. There is no division of words, and occasionally whole verses are undecipherable. It is not, as scholars have supposed, the actual work of the original Latin translator, but only a fragmentary copy of that version; for our text contains duplicate renderings and attempts at a better translation, which were primarily marginal glosses, but were afterwards introduced by a copyist into the text; cf. v. 6, xi. 13, and probably in vi. 3 and viii. 5.

The Latin belongs in style and orthography to the fifth century. Nearly all its chief characteristics can be paralleled from the fifth-century Bobbio MS. K edited in 1886 by Wordsworth, Sanday and White. A full study of our MS. and its idiosyncrasies and critical worth will be found in my edition, pp. xxx-xxxvi.

§ 5. THE LATIN VERSION—A TRANSLATION FROM THE GREEK.

Of the derivation of our Latin text from the Greek there can be no question.

Thus (1) Greek words are transliterated, as chedrio i. 17 from κέδρω, heremus iii. 11 from ἐρημος, acrobistia viii. 3 from ἀκροβυστία.

(2) Greek forms and idioms survive in the Latin. Thus scene i. 7 = τῇ σκηνῇ: 'usque nos duci captivos' iii. 13 is an imitation of the Greek ἕως τοῦ ἡμᾶς αἰχμαλωτισθῆναι.

THE ASSUMPTION OF MOSES

(3) Not infrequently we must translate not the Latin text, but the Greek which it presupposes but which was misrendered by the translator. Thus nam must not be rendered by 'for' in ii. 4, 5; viii. 2, 4; x. 11, &c. In vii. 7 'ab oriente ad occidentem' is to be rendered not 'from east to west' but 'from sunrise to sunset', i. e. ἀφ' ἡλίου ἀνατέλλοντος μέχρι δυσμέμου. The Greek is susceptible of either meaning.

(4) Fragments of the Greek version are still preserved: see note on i. 14.

§ 6. THE GREEK—A TRANSLATION FROM THE HEBREW.

The view maintained by Hilgenfeld that this book was written originally in Greek has been long universally abandoned. The only question at issue now is as to the original being Hebrew or Aramaic. Schmidt-Merx, Colani, Hausrath, and Carrière decide for the latter, and Rosenthal for the former. Of these scholars only Schmidt-Merx and in a minor degree Rosenthal have treated the question seriously. In the Archiv f. wissenschaftl. Erforschung des A. T. I. ii. 111-52 Schmidt-Merx show how readily the text admits of retranslation into Aramaic; but this proof is wholly inadequate, for the same passages can be just as readily rendered into Hebrew. In two passages, however, they urge that the idiosyncrasies of the Latin text can be explained on the hypothesis of an Aramaic original but not on that of a Hebrew. The first is i. 10 'promitte . . . omnia quae mandata sunt ut facias'. Here the position of 'ut facias' (which = לעשות) after its object is usual in Aramaic כל די אתפקד למעבר. But the same order is found also in Hebrew. See Isa. xlix. 6; 2 Chron. xxviii. 10. The second instance of alleged Aramaic order is that in iii. 2 'sancta vasa omnia' = קדישיא מאניא בלהון. The position of 'omnia' is no doubt conformable to Aramaic, but it is also possible in classical Hebrew, בלי קדש בלם. Cf. 2 Sam. ii. 9; Jer. xiii. 19, xlviii. 31.

Among the positive grounds for a Hebrew original might be enumerated the following:

1°. Hebrew idiomatic phrases survive in the text. 'Circumibo' ii. 7 = אסובב = 'I will protect': cf. Deut. xxxii. 10; Jer. xxxi. 22; Ps. xxxii. 10. 'Dividentur ad veritatem' v. 2 = יקראו על-הכהנים: cf. 1 Kings xvi. 21. 'In sacerdotes vocabuntur' vi. 1 = יקראו על-הכהנים: cf. 1 Chron. xxiii. 14. These are pure Hebraisms, and cannot apparently be explained from Aramaic.

2°. In some cases we must translate, not the Latin, but the Hebrew presupposed by it. Thus in i. 7 'successor' = διάδοχος = משרת, which must here be rendered 'minister'. In i. 13 'non coepit' = οὐκ ἤρξατο = לא הואיל, which must here be rendered 'he was not pleased', 'did not consent'.

3°. Frequently it is only through retranslation that we can understand the source of the corruptions in the text. In iv. 9 we have the impossible text 'x tribus crescent et devenient apud ἵnatos† in tempore tribum'. Here 'tribum' is for 'tribuum' and 'natos' corrupt for 'nationes'. Clemen renders the text thus emended: 'zehn Stämme werden immer mehr zu Heiden werden.' Now, to translate 'devenient apud nationes' by 'become heathens' is highly questionable. But, even if this were possible, 'crescent et devenient' cannot, if the original was Semitic, mean 'will become more and more', and it cannot do so in either Greek or Latin. And finally this idea of the Ten Tribes becoming heathen is contrary to the beliefs expressed in 4 Ezra xiii. 36-48, and in Philo, Leg. ad Caium 31, as to their religious character and their immense numbers in the first century A.D. That our author shares in this view is clear from iii. 5-14, where he represents all the Tribes as joining in a general confession of sin with the Two Tribes, and all the Tribes in iii. 9 as claiming that God had sworn that the seed of Abraham, Isaac, and of Jacob should never fail from the land that He had given them, and from x. 8, where all the Tribes are represented as ultimately triumphant. We conclude, therefore, that iv. 9 speaks favourably of the Ten Tribes. The verb 'crescent' is therefore what we might expect. The corruption, therefore, lies in 'devenient' and 'tribuum'. The former = κατελεύσονται = ירבו, which is obviously corrupt for ירבו. Next in the phrase 'in tempore tribuum' we should have the time defined during which this increase took place. From Philo, Josephus, and 4 Ezra we know that it was while the Ten Tribes were in exile. Hence שבטים (i. e. 'tribuum') is corrupt for שביתם or שבים = 'captivitis suae'. This reconstruction of the original is not possible from an Aramaic background.

In i. 13 'non coepit' = οὐκ ἤρξατο, but the text requires a verb of another meaning. Now οὐκ ἤρξατο = לא הואיל, which can also mean 'was not pleased'.

For other passages see the notes on v. 5, v. 6, vii. 4, xii. 7.

INTRODUCTION

§ 7. THE DATE.

The book was written before A. D. 70; for the temple was to stand till the establishment of the theocratic kingdom, i. 17. It was standing when the book was written; for if it had fallen such an event could not have been passed over in silence. It could not have been passed over in a book, where all the fortunes of the temple, even its temporary profanations by a faithless priesthood, are carefully recorded: see ii. 4, 8, 9; iii. 2; v. 3, 4; vi. 1, 9; viii. 5. When the temple did fall it left an ineffaceable mark on all subsequent literature.

So far for the latest limit of composition, i. e. A. D. 70. Now as to its earliest. This is 3 B. C.; for Herod is already dead, vi. 6, and the War of Varus already past, vi. 9. Thus the limits lie between 3 B. C. and A. D. 70. But there are data for a nearer determination. In vi. 7 the statement, 'And he (Herod) shall beget children, who, succeeding him, shall rule for shorter periods,' is true of Archelaus alone; for Philip and Antipas reigned longer than their father. Hence the book must have been written before A. D. 30. But the limits may be defined still more closely. For the prediction that Herod's sons should rule for shorter periods than their father may be reasonably explained from two considerations: (a) from the general expectation that the sons of such a wicked king could not long preserve their authority; but still more (b) from the actual deposition of Archelaus after a short reign of ten years, 4 B. C.—A. D. 6—an event that would naturally be construed by our author in the light of a divine judgement, and suggest to him the prediction that appears in our text. Hence, however we may interpret the 'four hours' in vii. 1, it may be fairly concluded that part of these had already elapsed when the author wrote, and that the earliest limit of composition was A. D. 7. Thus the book was written between the years A. D. 7–30.

§ 8. THE AUTHOR—A PHARISAIC QUIETIST.

The school to which the writer of our book belonged cannot be mistaken. (1) He was not a Sadducee; for he looks forward to the direct intervention of God on behalf of Israel, and his establishment of the theocratic kingdom on earth. He dwells on the future blessedness of the righteous (x. 10, 11). Finally, he attacks the Sadducean party in the most bitter terms. (2) He was not a Zealot, as Dillmann and Schürer suppose, for his complete silence as to the Maccabean rising forms an emphatic censure of their appeal to arms. This silence is all the more impressive, as the writer was thoroughly acquainted with all the history of the Maccabean movement. Moreover, whilst he evinces clearly his aversion to a militant Judaism, he indicates just as clearly his admirations. He will not trust an arm of flesh. His ideal hero (ch. ix) was not one who flew to arms on behalf of Israel, but one who amid the most bitter persecution in the history of Israel raised no hand in self-defence, but committed his cause to God. Ch. x further is wholly against the idea of a Zealot author. The theocratic kingdom is here introduced, not by the militant acts of the saints, but by the direct intervention of God.

(3) He was not an Essene—a view that has been advocated by Schmidt and Merx. For the entire book is interpenetrated with national hopes and aspirations. The ideal of the Essene was individualistic and ethical, and not national. The greatest interest is taken in all the fortunes of the temple, ii. 4, 8, 9; v. 3, 4; iii. 2; vi. 1. Such an interest would not be natural in an Essene. The author also was much concerned in the character of the temple sacrifices, but the Essene disapproved wholly of animal sacrifices.

(4) From the preceding facts it follows that our author was neither Sadducee, Zealot, nor Essene, but a Pharisaic Quietist. He was a Pharisee of a fast-disappearing type, recalling in all respects the Chasid of the early Maccabean times, and upholding the old traditions of quietude and resignation.

§ 9. THEOLOGY.

Good works. On the doctrine of merit or good works, our author's views are more nearly allied to O.T. conceptions than to the legalism of the rabbinic doctrine of man's righteousness, which bulks so largely in Jewish literature from A. D. 50 onwards, and against which the Pauline dialectic was so vigorously directed. So far was man's righteousness from involving merit over against God, that the greatest hero of Judaism is represented as declaring: 'Not for any virtue or strength of mine, but of His good pleasure have His compassion and long-suffering fallen to my lot' (xii. 7). Similarly the election of the nation was not due to any righteousness of its own: 'For I say unto you, Joshua, it is not on account of the godliness of this people that thou shalt root out the nations' (xii. 8). This call, therefore, alike of the individual as of the nation was a matter of grace, and the covenant relation between God and Israel was based on divine grace and not on human merit. But whilst the divine grace is made the absolute pre-condition of Israel's election and salvation, the necessity of works is no less insisted on and moral responsibility affirmed, xii. 10-12: 'Those, therefore, who do and fulfil the commandments of God shall increase and be prospered; but those who sin and set at nought the commandments shall be without the blessings before mentioned, and they shall be punished with many torments.' There is, however, one passage from which the sense of demerit is wholly absent, i. e. ix. 4 sq.: 'Observe and know that neither did the fathers nor their forefathers tempt God, so as to transgress His commands. And ye know that this is our strength.' These words imply that a faithful remnant existed at all times. But even so they introduce a note of discord into the writer's theology.

THE ASSUMPTION OF MOSES

Quietism. We have touched repeatedly on this characteristic in our author, so that it does not call for further notice here. It was typical of the older Pharisees, and in this respect the tone of the book has its affinities with that of the Sermon on the Mount, which essentially exhibits this temper.

The Messianic kingdom. There is no Messiah. This is probably due to the fact that the conception of the Messiah, as a man of war, was gaining more and more acceptance amongst the Pharisees, and was thus of a nature to promote the growing secularization of Pharisaism. No such Messiah could be acknowledged by our author.

The kingdom was to be ushered in by a day of repentance (i. 17). 1750 years after the death of Moses, between A. D. 75 and 107 (?) God was to intervene on behalf of Israel—of Israel and not merely of Judah and Benjamin. Our author always dwells on the solidarity of the nation. As the tribes suffered vicariously for each other's sins (iii. 5), so the promises were made to the Twelve Tribes collectively (iii. 9), and they were all to be glorified together (x. 8). During their kingdom Israel's national enemies were to be destroyed (x. 8). Finally, Israel was to be exalted to heaven (x. 9), whence they should see their enemies in Gehenna (x. 10).

Moses' unique relation to Judaism. Moses was prepared from the foundation of the world to be the mediator of God's covenant with His people (i. 14; iii. 12). Pre-existence is here ascribed to Moses, but to him uniquely. In Alexandrian Judaism it was conceived to be the prerogative of mankind generally.¹ During his life Moses was Israel's intercessor with God (xi. 11, 17); for forty years he suffered many things at their hands in Egypt, the Red Sea, and the wilderness (iii. 11). When about to die, he chose Joshua in his stead (x. 15), apparently as the prophet promised in Deut. xviii. 15. His death was an ordinary one (i. 15; iii. 13; x. 12, 14), but no single place was worthy to mark the place of his burial; for his sepulchre was from the rising to the setting sun, and from the south to the confines of the north (xi. 8). His relation, moreover, with Israel did not cease with death; he was appointed by God to be their intercessor in the spiritual world (xii. 6).

Israel. Israel was God's own people (i. 12); the world was created in their behalf (i. 12), and Moses prepared, before the foundation of the world, to establish the covenant relation between God and His people (i. 14), and Jerusalem prepared in like manner to be the centre of the worship of Yahweh till the establishment of the theocratic kingdom.

§ 10. INFLUENCE ON THE NEW TESTAMENT.

Jude was unquestionably acquainted with the Testament of Moses and the Assumption of Moses properly so-called. From the latter Jude 9 is derived: ὁ δὲ Μιχαὴλ ὁ ἀρχάγγελος, ὅτε τῷ διαβόλῳ διακρινόμενος διελέγετο περὶ τοῦ Μωυσέως σώματος, οὐκ ἐτόλμησε κρίσιν ἐπενεγκεῖν βλασφημίας, ἀλλ' εἶπεν· Ἐπιτιμήσαι σοι Κύριος.

Jude's acquaintance with the Testament of Moses may be reasonably concluded from the following parallels:

Jude 16 γογγυσταί, μεμψίμοιροι κατὰ τὰς ἐπιθυμίας αὐτῶν πορευόμενοι· καὶ τὸ στόμα αὐτῶν λαλεῖ ὑπέρογκα θαυμάζοντες πρόσωπα, ὠφελείας χάριν.

vii. 7 querulosi
vii. 9 et manus eorum et mentes eorum immunda tractantes, et os eorum loquetur ingentia
v. 5 mirantes personas cupiditatum et accipientes munera.

The ἀσεβεῖς who are mentioned in Jude 4 appear twice in Ass. Moys. vii. 3, 7 (impii). The classes of evildoers are those who shall be 'in the last time', Jude 18, and when 'the times shall be ended', in Ass. Moys. vii. 1.

¹ This belief appears in Wisdom and 2 Enoch as the prerogative of mankind generally. This view is challenged by Dr. Porter ('The Pre-existence of the Soul in The Book of Wisdom and in the Rabbinical Writings' in the American Journal of Theology, Jan., 1908, pp. 53-115), but I cannot agree with him.

INTRODUCTION

2 Peter ii. 13 ἡδονὴν ἡγούμενοι τὴν ἐν ἡμέρᾳ τρυφῆν, ibid. ἐν τρυφῶντες ἐν ταῖς ἀγαπαῖς αὐτῶν συννεωχούμενοι ὑμῖν.

Acts vii. 36 ποιήσας τέρατα καὶ σημεῖα ἐν τῇ Αἰγύπτῳ καὶ ἐν Ἐρυθρᾷ θαλάσῃ καὶ ἐν τῇ ἐρήμῳ ἔτη τεσσαρά-κοντα.

Ass. Moys. vii. 5 omni hora diei amantes convivia.
vii. 8 habebimus discubitiones et luxuriam.

iii. 11 Moyses . . . qui multa passus est in Aegypto et in mari rubro et in heremo annis xl.

For other possible borrowings or parallels see my edition, pp. lxiv. sq.

§ 11. BIBLIOGRAPHY.

(a) CHIEF EDITIONS OF THE TEXT.

Ceriani, Mon. sacr. et prof., I. i. 55-64, 1861.

Hilgenfeld, *Novum Testamentum extra Canonem receptum*², 107-35, 1876; Messias Judaeorum, 435-68, 1869
(retranslated into Greek).

Volkmar, Mose Prophetie und Himmelfahrt, 1867.

Schmidt and Merx, 'Die Assumptio Mosis' (Merx, Archiv für wissenschaftliche Erforschung des Alten Testaments, I. i. 111-52, 1868).

Fritzsche, Libri Apocryphi Vet. Testamenti, 700-30, 1871.

Charles, The Assumption of Moses . . . the unemended Text . . . together with the Text in its . . . critically emended Form, 1897.

Clemen, The Assumption of Moses, 1904.

(b) CHIEF CRITICAL INQUIRIES.

Colani, 'L'Assomption de Moïse' (Revue de Théologie, iv. 65-94, 1868).

Rönsch, ZfWT, xi. 76-108, 466-8; xii. 213-28; xiv. 89-92; xvii. 542-62; xxviii. 102-4.

Rosenthal, Vier apocryphische Bücher, 13-38, 1885.

Baldensperger, Das Selbstbewusstsein Jesu, 25-31, 1888.

Deane, Pseudepigrapha, 95-130, 1891.

De Faye, Les Apocalypses juives, 67-75, 1892.

Charles, op. cit., pp. xiii-lxv.

Clemen in Kautzsch, Apok. u. Pseud., 1899. II. 311-31.

Burkitt, 'The Assumption of Moses' in Hastings' B.D. iii. 448-50, 1900.

(c) EDITIONS OF THE BOOK.

Volkmar, Mose Prophetie und Himmelfahrt . . . zum erstenmale deutsch herausgegeben, 1867.

Charles, The Assumption of Moses translated from the Latin sixth century MS., the unemended Text of which is published herewith, together with the Text in its restored and critically emended Form, 1897.

In this last work (pp. xviii-xxviii) a full bibliography is given; see also Schürer³, Gesch. d. jüd. Volkes, iii. 222 sq.

THE ASSUMPTION OF MOSES

1 1 The Testament of Moses even the things which he commanded in the one hundred and twentieth
 2 year of his life, that is the two thousand five hundredth year from the creation of the world:
 3 [But according to oriental reckoning the two thousand and seven hundredth, and the four hundredth
 4 after the departure from Phoenicia], when the people had gone forth after the Exodus that was made
 5 by Moses to Amman beyond the Jordan, in the prophecy that was made by Moses in the book Deutero-
 6, 7 nomy: and he called to him Joshua the son of Nun, a man approved of the Lord, that he might be 8 the minister of the people and of the tabernacle of the testimony with all its holy things, and that he 9 might bring the people into the land given to their fathers, that it should be given to them according to the covenant and the oath, which He spake in the tabernacle to give (it) by Joshua: saying to Joshua

I. 1. Three lines are wanting. These must not consist of more than forty-eight or forty-nine lines, or less than forty-five as the following lines in the MS. show. Now since, as I have shown elsewhere, this book is the actual διαθήκη Μωσέως or Testamentum Moysi (see p. xlv of my Comm.), and since the Testaments of the Twelve Patriarchs begin always with the title of the Testament (cf. T. Reub. i. 1 ἀντίγραφον διαθήκης Ρουβήμ, ὅσα ἐνετείλατο) so here the text most probably ran:—

‘ Testamentum Moysi
 Quae precepit a^o vi tae eius Cmo et xxmo.’

Here I have put quae and not quod since in every case the Testaments have ἃ or ὅσα in this very same context.

Hilgenfeld restores: ‘ Assumptio Moysis quae facta est anno vitae ejus Cmo et xxmo; Volkmar: Liber profetiae Moysis quem scripsit a^o aetatis centesimo vicesimo; Rönisch: Liber receptionis Moysi factae anno vitae ejus Cmo et xxmo; Clemen: Liber profetiae Moysis, quae facta est anno vitae ejus Cmo et xxmo.’

Schmidt Merx’s restoration (‘ et factum est anno aetatis Moysi centesimo et vigesimo’) will not do here owing to its being too short as well as on other grounds. The need of a title such as Testamentum or Assumptio is against Volkmar’s and Clemen’s restoration: while the fact that the book is not the Assumption but the Testament is against Hilgenfeld’s and Rönisch’s.

2-4. These verses are an interpolation—apparently made by a Greek scribe and in the West. No Hebrew writer would regard himself other than an Oriental, and a Jew is beyond question the author of this book. Hence he could not have written verse 3. Nor could a Jew have described Hebron, from which Jacob set out for Egypt, as being in Phoenicia. Moses, moreover, could not have spoken of Amman as beyond the Jordan: only a dweller in Jerusalem could have so described it.

2. two thousand five hundredth year. Contrast the dates given in Jubilees (2450 A.M.), Josephus, Ant. viii. 3. 1 and xx. 10 (2550), Samaritan Pentateuch (3309), LXX (3859), while the Massoretic chronology (2706) seems unknown to all the others. But cf. the ‘ Oriental reckoning’ of verse 3 (as restored).

3. the two thousand and seven hundredth, and the four hundredth. Text = ‘ numerus . . . mus et . . . mus et . . . mus’. I restore (with Clemen) ‘ numerus MMmus et DCCmus, et CCCCmus’.

four hundredth after the departure from Phoenicia. The number of years varies in different authorities; as some give 400 (cf. Gen. xv. 13), others 430. The terminus a quo of reckoning also varies. The Samaritan reckoning (cf. also LXX, Jubilees, Gal. iii. 17; Josephus, Ant. ii. 15. 2; Ps. Jon. on Exod. xii. 40) embraces in the four hundred and thirty years the sojourn of the patriarchs in Canaan. Exod. xii. 40 (Mass. text) states that Israel sojourned in Egypt four hundred and thirty years, while Gen. xv. 13 may be interpreted either way. See also Acts vii. 6.

4. Amman—in the tribe of Gad, Onom. Sacr., ed. Lag., 88, 31; 92, 2.

5. in the prophecy. profetiae I take as = profetiā. ae occasionally is found for a in fifth-century Latin. Cf. in scenae for in scena, i. 9.

6. called to him . . . Nun. Cf. Deut. xxxi. 7.

the son of Nun. Text = filium Nave, the LXX spelling of the name.

approved of the Lord. Cf. Acts ii. 22; 2 Tim. ii. 15.

7. minister of the people. Text = successor plebi. διάδοχος means the chief minister of the king in LXX of 1 Chron. xviii. 17; 2 Chron. xxvi. 11, xxviii. 7; also in Philo, and Josephus, Ant. xv. 10. In Sirach xlvi. 1 the Hebrew equivalent is מְשָׁרֵף, the special term used in Exod. xxiv. 13, xxxiii. 11; Num. xi. 28; Josh. i. 1 to describe Joshua’s relation to Moses; also in Num. viii. 26, &c., it is used of service in the tabernacle. Cf. Ass. Mos. x. 15 (note).

tabernacle of the testimony, i. e. the tabernacle in its aspect of a witness to God’s presence, with the ark and the tables of testimony. In its aspect of meeting-place it was the spot where God spoke to Moses and Joshua, Deut. xxxi. 14-23.

8. bring . . . into. So Deut. xxxi. 7 (Samaritan text, Syriac and Vulgate versions), against ‘ enter’ (Massoretic, LXX, Targum of Onkelos).

to their fathers = patribus. So I emend text ex tribus.

9. the covenant and the oath. Cf. ii. 7 (restored), iii. 9, xi. 17, xii. 13.

which He spake, Deut. xxxi. 14, 20, 23.

by Joshua. Text = de Iesum, cf. v. 1 de reges.

saying to Joshua, resumes verse 6, ‘ And he called’.

10 these words: '⟨Be strong⟩ and of a good courage so as to do with thy might all that has been com-
 12 manded that thou mayst be blameless unto God.' So saith the Lord of the world. For He hath created 13 the world on behalf of His people. But He was not pleased to manifest this purpose of creation from the foundation of the world, in order that the Gentiles might thereby be convicted, yea to their own 14 humiliation might by (their) arguments convict one another. Accordingly He designed and devised me, and He prepared me before the foundation of the world, that I should be the mediator of His 15 covenant. And now I declare unto thee that the time of the years of my life is fulfilled and I am 16 passing away to sleep with my fathers even in the presence of all the people. And receive thou this 17 writing that thou mayst know how to preserve the books which I shall deliver unto thee: and thou shalt set these in order and anoint them with oil of cedar and put them away in earthen vessels in 18 the place which He made from the beginning of the creation of the world, that His name should be called upon until the day of repentance in the visitation wherewith the Lord will visit them in the consummation of the end of the days.

21 And now they shall go by means of thee into the land which He determined and promised to give to 2 their fathers, in the which thou shalt bless and give to them individually and confirm unto them their

10. ⟨Be strong⟩ and of a good courage. Text = et promitte. Promitte is due to a corruption in the Hebrew מַצַּח for מַצִּח, while the et betrays a word lost after verbum hoc = הַרְבַּר הַזֶּה. Probably הוֹק was omitted after הוֹה. Clemen's suggestion, 'And promise' has no support in the O.T. text. Moses exacted no promise from Joshua, while my restoration is upheld by Deut. xxxi. 7, &c.

that thou mayst be . . . unto God. Text = est ideo, corrupt for sis Deo. Clemen renders 'as is blameless. Therefore thus saith, &c.', putting a full stop after est.

blameless unto God. Cf. Deut. xviii. 13, &c.

11. So saith the Lord. God says these words 'Be strong', &c., directly in Deut. xxxi. 23; by Moses, xxxi. 6, 7.

Lord of the world. Cf. iv. 2 'Lord of all . . . who ruleth the world'. Cf. xi. 17.

12. created the world on behalf of His people. The prevalent Judaistic view from first century A. D. onwards. Cf. 4 Ezra vi. 55, 59, vii. 11; 2 Bar. xiv. 18 (note). The still more narrow view that the world was created for the sake of the righteous in Israel occurs in 2 Bar. xiv. 19, xv. 7, xxi. 24. Cf. Hermas' Shepherd, Vis. i. 1. 6, ii. 4. 1, iv, v (for the Church's sake). The larger view—that it was for the sake of mankind, we find in 2 Bar. xiv. 18; 4 Ezra viii. 1, 44; Hermas, Mand. xii. 4; Justin Mart. Apol. i. 10 and post-apostolic writers generally.

13. was . . . pleased. Text = coepit = לוֹאִי which also means 'was pleased'.

purpose. Text = inceptionem.

13, 14. These verses are strongly predestinarian. The Gentiles are fore-ordained to ignorance and blind conjecture, while Moses is the chosen agent of the true revelation.

14. Quoted by Gelasius of Cyzicum in his Comm. Act. Syn. Nic. ii. 18, 'the prophet Moses being about to depart from life, as is written in the book of the Assumption of Moses, summoned Joshua, the son of Nun, and, speaking with him, said: καὶ προεθέασατό με ὁ Θεὸς πρὸ καταβολῆς κόσμου εἶναί με τῆς διαθήκης αὐτοῦ μεσίτην.'

Moses here is assigned pre-existence as is the Son of Man in 1 En. xliiii. 2 (note). Later Judaism, like the Alexandrian form of first century A. D., held the pre-existence of all souls alike. See 2 En. xxiii. 5.

Note that the Latin has 'ab initio orbis terrarum' = Gelasius' πρὸ καταβολῆς κόσμου.

mediator. Moses is not given this title in the O.T. where indeed the word only occurs once, in Job ix. 33 (LXX), but he obviously exercises mediatorial functions in Exod. xx. 19; Deut. v. 2, 5. The title was commonly assigned to him by the first century A. D. Cf. i. 14, iii. 12; Gal. iii. 18; Philo, Vit. Moys. iii. 19; Talmud (see Levy, Neuhebr. und Chald. Lex. iii. 595, 596). It is implied in Heb. viii. 6, ix. 15, xii. 24.

15. sleep with my fathers. Cf. iii. 13, x. 12, 14; Deut. xxxi. 16; 2 Bar. xlv. 2. Observe there is no reference to Moses' Assumption. Unlike our text, Deut. xxxiv. 5, 6 state that his death was witnessed by no one, while the Greek fragments of the Assumption make Joshua and Caleb alone view it, and not all the people.

16. thou. Supply tu to fill the space in the text. Cf. x. 11, xi. 1.

the books, i. e. the Pentateuch.

17. anoint. Books were thus preserved. Even the heavenly books shown to Enoch, 2 En. xxii. 12, are 'fragrant with myrrh'.

from the beginning of the creation of the world. Cf. verse 14.

the place, i. e. Jerusalem. Zion is said to be the centre of the earth in Ezek. xxxviii. 12; 1 En. xxvi. 1, xc. 26; Jubilees viii; while in Joma 54^b the world is said to be created with Zion as a starting-place.

18. until the day of repentance. This must have been written before A. D. 70, as the existing temple is expected to stand until the Theocratic kingdom is set up.

the day of repentance. A great national repentance was to usher in the new kingdom of God, and was a necessary condition to its coming. 'If Israel practises repentance, it will be redeemed; if not, it will not be redeemed,' Sanh. 97^b. 'Israel will not fulfil the great repentance before Elijah comes,' Pirke R. Eliezer, xliii; cf. Mal. iv. 6, and Luke i. 16, 17; Matt. xvii. 10-12. 'If all Israel together repented for a single day, redemption through the Messiah would follow', Pesikta 163^b.

the visitation, in a good sense. Cf. Luke i. 79; Acts xv. 14. For the bad sense cf. 2 Bar. xx. 1 (note). The time of visitation, Wisd. iii. 7; Luke xix. 44, is the setting up of the kingdom of God.

the consummation, i. e. the time of the kingdom. Cf. 2 Bar. xxvii. 15, xxix. 8. Contrast 2 Bar. xxx. 3.

11. 1. And now. Supply et nunc in lacuna.

2. their inheritance in me. Cf. 'inheritance in the son of Jesse', 2 Sam. xx. 1. Or for 'in me' read in eam, a Hebrew repetition after in qua.

inheritance in me and establish for them the kingdom, and thou shalt appoint them prefectures according to the good pleasure of their Lord in judgement and righteousness. And it shall come to pass five years after they enter into the land, that thereafter they shall be ruled by chiefs and kings for eighteen years, and during nineteen years the ten tribes shall break away. And the twelve tribes shall go down and transfer the tabernacle of the testimony. Then the God of heaven will make the court of His tabernacle and the tower of His sanctuary, and the two holy tribes shall be (there) established: but the ten tribes shall establish kingdoms for themselves according to their own ordinances. And they shall offer sacrifices throughout twenty years: and seven shall entrench the walls, and I will protect nine, but four shall transgress the covenant of the Lord, and profane the oath which the Lord made with them. And they shall sacrifice their sons to strange gods, and they shall set up idols in the sanctuary, to worship them. And in the house of the Lord they shall work impiety and engrave every form of beast, even many abominations.

3 And in those days a king from the east shall come against them and his cavalry shall cover their land. And he shall burn their colony with fire together with the holy temple of the Lord, and he shall carry away all the holy vessels. And he shall cast forth all the people, and he shall take them to the land of his nativity, yea he shall take the two tribes with him. Then the two tribes shall call upon the ten tribes, and shall march as a lioness on the dusty plains, being hungry and thirsty. And they shall cry aloud: 'Righteous and holy is the Lord, for, inasmuch as ye have sinned, we too, in like manner, have been carried away with you, together with our children.' Then the ten tribes shall mourn on hearing the reproaches of the two tribes, and they shall say: 'What have we done unto you, brethren? Has not this tribulation come on all the house of Israel?' And all the tribes shall mourn, appoint. Text = dimittes seems corrupt.

prefectures. Text = magisteria locorum, i. e. τοπαρχίας. Perhaps we should translate 'local magistrates'. Cf. Deut. xvi. 18; 1 Chron. xxiii. 4.

3. it shall come to pass. There is a gap in the text.

five years. I supply 'five'. The conquest of Canaan took five years, Josh. xiv. 10; Josephus, Ant. v. 1. 19.

eighteen years, i. e. the fifteen judges, and the three kings, Saul, David, and Solomon.

nineteen years, the nineteen kings of Israel from Jeroboam to Hoshea. This is an anticipation, as verse 4 returns to the removal of the ark to Jerusalem by David.

tribes shall break away. Text = abrumpens tib. Read 'se abrumpent tribus'.

4. twelve. Text = 'two'. The reference is to David's action in 2 Sam. vi. 1, 2. Cf. 1 Kings viii. 1-4.

tabernacle of the testimony. Text = 'testimony of the tabernacle'.

the God of heaven. Cf. iv. 4, v. 3; Gen. xxiv. 7. After the exile this title became frequent. Cf. Ezra v. 11, vi. 9, &c.; Dan. ii. 18, &c.

court. Text = palam emended to aulam. Cf. Exod. xxvii. 9.

tower. Text = ferrum emended to turrem. Cf. the tower in 1 En. lxxxix. 50, 67, 73. The text is uncertain. For aulam and ferrum Volkmar suggests locum and terram; Haupt portam and forem.

5. A parenthesis.

6. twenty years, the twenty sovereigns (including Athaliah's) of Judah.

7. Apparently the 'seven', 'nine', and 'four' reigns must be taken successively of three periods, of the advance, power, and falling away of Judah.

The 'seven' are Rehoboam, Abijah, Asa, Jehoshaphat, Jehoram, Ahaziah, and Athaliah. The 'nine' are Joash, Amaziah, Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, Hezekiah, Manasseh, Amon, Josiah; while the 'four' are Jehoahaz, Jehoiakim, Jehoiachin, and Zedekiah.

four, inserted to complete the twenty.

transgress. Text = adcedent ad = προσβήσονται corrupt for παραβήσονται. Cf. Ezek. xvi. 59, &c.

the oath. Text = finem = ὄρον corrupt for ὄρκον. Thus the combination of covenant and oath is restored. Cf. Gen. xxvi. 28; also Ass. Mos. i. 9; iii. 9, xi. 17, xii. 13.

8. idols in the sanctuary. Text = idola scenae. For this form of the ablative cf. i. 9 'in scenae'. Rösensch proposes idola obscena, comparing LXX of Jer. xxxii. 34 τὰ μιάσματα αὐτῶν.

9. form. Text = similitudinem omitted in text after omnem through hmt. For 'beast . . . many abominations' cf. Ezek. viii. 10, where there is the same apposition.

III. 1. a king from the east. Nebuchadnezzar, 588-586 B. C.

2. colony. This gives a clue to the date of the Greek or Latin translation as being later than 135 A. D., when Hadrian rebuilt Jerusalem as a Roman colony. Cf. v. 6, vi. 9.

all the holy vessels, 2 Chron. xxxvi. 7. Part had been removed in Jehoiakim's reign, according to Dan. i. 2; Jer. xxvii. 19, 20; while 2 Bar. vi describes the concealment of the vessels by angels, 2 Macc. ii. 4-8 by Jeremiah, to preserve them for the future Messianic kingdom.

4. march. Possibly the text ducent se is wrong, and is due to a corruption of ἀχθήσονται, 'will be indignant,' into ἀχθήσονται. This suits the simile of the lioness better.

hungry and thirsty, 2 Bar. lxxvii. 14. Text adds 'with our children'. I transpose to the end of verse 5.

5. Righteous and holy. 2 Bar. lxxvii. 3, 4.

inasmuch as ye have sinned. Judah suffers for the sins of Israel. 2 Bar. lxxvii. 10; Jer. xi. 17; Dan. ix. 7; 1 Baruch ii. 26 ascribe the captivity to the sins of Judah as well.

7. have we done. Text = 'shall we do'.

this tribulation. The allusion seems to be to some recent calamity.

9 crying unto heaven and saying: 'God of Abraham God of Isaac and God of Jacob, remember Thy 10 covenant which Thou didst make with them, and the oath which Thou didst swear unto them by 11 Thyself, that their seed should never fail from the land which Thou hast given them.' Then they 12 shall remember me, saying, in that day, tribe unto tribe and each man unto his neighbour: 'Is not 13 this that which Moses did then declare unto us in prophecies, who suffered many things in Egypt 14 and in the Red Sea and in the wilderness during forty years: and assuredly called heaven and earth to witness against us, that we should not transgress His commandments, in the which he was 15 a mediator unto us? Behold these things have befallen us after his death according to his declaration, as he declared to us at that time, yea behold these have taken place even to our being carried away 16 captive into the country of the east.' Who shall be also in bondage for about seventy and seven years.
 17 Then there shall enter one who is over them, and he shall spread forth his hands, and kneel upon his 18 knees and pray on their behalf saying: 'Lord of all, King on the lofty throne, who rulest the world, and didst will that this people should be Thine elect people, then (indeed) Thou didst will that Thou shouldst be called their God, according to the covenant which Thou didst make with their fathers.
 19 And yet they have gone in captivity in another land with their wives and their children, and 20 †around† the gates of strange peoples and where there is great vanity. Regard and have compas-21 sion on them, O Lord of heaven.' Then God will remember them on account of the covenant which 22 He made with their fathers, and He will manifest His compassion in those times also. And He will put it into the mind of a king to have compassion on them, and he shall send them off to their land 23 and country. Then some portions of the tribes shall go up and they shall come to their appointed 24 place, and they shall anew surround the place with walls. And the two tribes shall continue in their prescribed faith, sad and lamenting because they will not be able to offer sacrifices to the Lord of their 25 fathers. And the ten tribes shall increase and multiply among the Gentiles during the time of their captivity.
 26 And when the times of chastisement draw nigh and vengeance arises through the kings who share
 27 in their guilt and punish them, they themselves also shall be divided as to the truth. Wherefore

8. heaven, an equivalent for 'God'. Cf. Dan. iv. 23.

9. the oath. Gen. xvii. 8. Cf. Pss. Sol. xvii. 5; Test. xii Patr., Jud. 22.

10-13. These verses are the source of 2 Bar. lxxxiv. 2-5, or else both passages are derived from the same original. Cf. Dan. ix. 11-13.

11. then. Text = cum, which I emend with Schmidt-Merx to tum.

in Egypt . . . years. Cf. Acts vii. 36; 2 Bar. lxxxiv. 3.

12. and assuredly called, &c. So I render et testans (testatus et in text) invocabat . . . testes. Deut. iv. 26, xxx. 19, xxxi. 28; 2 Bar. xix. 1, lxxxiv. 2.

mediator. See i. 14 (note).

13. Behold these. Text = quae corrupt for ecce ea. Cf. 2 Bar. lxxxiv. 5.

after his death, de isto = 'after him'. Cf. Job xxi. 21.

14. seventy and seven years. Perhaps this number is to be taken as implying an indefinite period. Cf. Gen. iv. 24; Matt. xviii. 22. In any case it is a modification of Jeremiah's prophecy of the seventy years' captivity, Jer. xxv. 11, 12, xxix. 10, which Dan. ix. 24 reinterprets as being seventy weeks of years, i. e. 490. Merx suspects a play on עו = 77 and עבירה זרה, 'strange service', i. e. 'idolatry,' which is often denoted by יע.

IV. 1. one, i. e. Daniel; Dan. ix. 4-19.

2. elect people. Cf. Isa. xlii. 1, &c.

3. †around†. Text = circa. Read perhaps 'go about in the gates'.

vanity. Text = maiestas = μεγαλειότης corrupt for ματαιότης, i. e. an idol. Cf. Ps. xxxi. 6; also 2 Kings xvii. 15; Jer. ii. 5, x. 3.

4. Dan. ix. 18, 19; 2 Bar. xlvi. 18.

6. Cyrus. Cf. 2 Chron. xxxvi. 22, 23; Ezra i. 1-4.

8. not be able to offer sacrifices. For the low value set on the worship of the restored temple, cf. 2 Bar. 'not as fully as in the beginning', lxviii. 5, 6 (Hag. ii. 3; Ezra iii. 12). The sacrifices were unacceptable, cf. the 'polluted bread' of Mal. i. 7; 1 En. lxxxix. 73. The objection here indeed is not an Essene one to sacrifice as such, but to the imperfection of the worship of God's people so long as they were subject to heathen powers. God would restore their glory and freedom when they repented, i. 17, but on no other condition, ix.

9. multiply among the Gentiles during the time of their captivity. Text = †'devenient apud natos† in tempore †tribum†.' Devenient cannot refer to a going up to Jerusalem, nor can apud mean anything but 'among' or 'with'. Now devenient = יררו, which is an easy corruption of ירבו = multiplicabuntur and natos is corrupt for nationes. tribum, i. e. tribuum = שבטים, which Rosenthal takes to be corrupt for שבטים = iudiciorum. But I prefer to emend to שביתם or שבבים, captivitatis suae, comparing Josephus, Ant. xi. 5. 2; 4 Ezra xiii. 36-48; Philo, Leg. ad Caium, 31. Clemen's rendering 'werden immer mehr (crescunt et devenient) zu Heiden werden' is quite impossible.

V. 1. through the kings. Text = de reges, cf. de Iesum, i. 9. These kings are the Seleucidae who had encouraged the disuse of the Jewish law and worship, and later, in the person of Antiochus, punished the apostate nation. Cf. 2 Macc. iv. 16.

2. divided as to the truth. Already under the Seleucid domination the enormities of the Sadducean priesthood reacted upon the stricter scribes and led to a religious awakening and the formation of what was later known as the Pharisaic party. See 1 En. xc. 6, 7 (note).

it hath been said: 'They shall turn aside from righteousness and approach iniquity, and they shall defile with pollutions the house of their worship,' and [because] 'they shall go a-whoring after strange gods.' For they shall not follow the truth of God, but some shall pollute the altar with the (very) gifts which they offer to the Lord, who are not priests but slaves, sons of slaves. And many in those times shall have respect unto desirable persons and receive gifts, and pervert judgment [on receiving presents]. And on this account the colony and the borders of their habitation shall be filled with lawless deeds and iniquities: those who wickedly depart from the Lord shall be judges: they shall be ready to judge for money as each may wish.

6 1 Then there shall be raised up unto them kings bearing rule, and they shall call themselves priests of the Most High God: they shall assuredly work iniquity in the holy of holies. And an insolent king shall succeed them, who will not be of the race of the priests, a man bold and shameless, and he shall judge them as they shall deserve. And he shall cut off their chief men with the sword, and shall destroy them in secret places, so that no one may know where their bodies are. He shall slay the old and the young, and he shall not spare. Then the fear of him shall be bitter unto them in their

3. hath been said = fatum fuit emended by Schmidt-Merx from factum fuit.

This saying is pieced together from the O.T., e.g. Ezek. iii. 20, 'turn . . . righteousness'; xlv. 7, 'defile . . . worship.' Cf., too, Pss. Sol. i. 9, viii. 26. 'They will go . . . gods,' Deut. xxxi. 16.

[because]. Text = quia, which may, however = 'that' introducing a new quotation.

3, 4. These verses cannot refer to the Maccabean high-priests. They did not go astray after strange gods. Moreover, they were of true priestly descent (1 Macc. ii. 1-5), and not sons of slaves. They are referred to in vi. 1, and so their mention here would be premature. But the statements suit Jason and Menelaus exactly, the Hellenizing priests who preceded the Maccabees. Cf. 2 Macc. iv. 13, 19, 20, v. 8. A decisive factor in the identification is the statement 'who are not priests but slaves, sons of slaves'. Menelaus was not of the tribe of Levi, but a Benjamite, 2 Macc. iii. 4, iv. 23. Cf. the implication in 1 Macc. vii. 14 that other high-priests had belonged to non-Aaronic families. Moreover they were the nominees and absolute tools of Antiochus, 2 Macc. iv. 7-9, 23-9. Josephus, Ant. xiii. 10. 5 mentions, but only to deny, the slander that Hyrcanus's mother had been a captive under Antiochus. Cf. the Talmud also for the tale.

5. And many. So I emend 'qui enim magistri sunt' = הרבנים, i.e. 'the many' or 'the Rabbis'. Text adds 'doctores eorum', a gloss on the word in the latter meaning.

shall have respect unto desirable persons and receive gifts and pervert. The text reads 'erunt mirantes personas cupiditatum et acceptiones munerum et pervendent', which is un-Semitic. Acceptiones is an easy corruption of accipientes, after which, taken as a noun, munerum could stand. Now leaving for the present cupiditatum let us pass on to the next clause. This runs pervendent iustitias. This phrase does not occur in Jewish literature, but we find, 1 Sam. viii. 3 'acceperunt munera et perverterunt iudicium' = LXX ἐλάμβανον δῶρα καὶ ἐξέκλινον δικαίωματα, וַיִּקְחוּ שֹׁחַד וַיִּטּוּ מִשְׁפָּט. Hence I accept Wieseler's emendation pervertent. We have now 'erunt mirantes personas cupiditatum et accipientes munerum et pervertent iustitias'. Now if we compare Deut. xvi. 19 we find οὐκ ἐκκλινοῦσι κρίσιν οὐδὲ ἐπιγνώσονται πρόσωπον οὐδὲ λήψονται δῶρα, וְלֹא-תִקַּח שֹׁחַד, לֹא תִטּוּ מִשְׁפָּט לֹא תִקַּח מִשְׁפָּט לֹא תִטּוּ מִשְׁפָּט לֹא תִקַּח מִשְׁפָּט, which is exactly what we have arrived at above. The original of our text could be reconstructed from this verse save that instead of הַפִּיר we should use נֶשֶׂא. Cf. 2 Chron. xix. 7 οὐδὲ θαυμάσαι πρόσωπον οὐδὲ λαβεῖν δῶρα (LXX), וְלֹא-תִקַּח שֹׁחַד וְלֹא-תִטּוּ מִשְׁפָּט.

We have still to consider cupiditatum. Clemen compares Dan. ix. 23, x. 11, 19. He might have added Ezek. xxiii. 6, בַּחֲוֹרֵי חֶמֶד. And yet in none of them have we a real parallel. Accipiendo poenas I have bracketed as an explanatory gloss.

6. those who wickedly depart from the Lord shall be judges. There is a curious dittography in the text here: 'a deo ut qui facit erunt impii iudices', 'a domino qui faciunt erunt impii iudices': the first and inferior version was intended to be deleted. For qui faciunt erunt impii read qui faciunt impie erunt and the text is restored = מִיְהוָה הַרְשָׁעִים יְהִיוּ שֹׁפְטִים. Cf. 2 Sam. xxii. 22 Vulg. 'non egi impie a Deo meo,' לֹא רָשַׁעְתִּי מֵאֱלֹהֵי, and Ass. Mos. xi. 17 'si . . . impie fecerunt'.

they shall be ready to judge for money. Text = 'erunt in eam post iudicare', 'inerunt in campo iudicare'. The second version of the doublet gives the right clue. In campo = ἐν ἀγρῷ corrupt for ἐν ἀργύρῳ = בכסף.

VI. 1. kings bearing rule, i.e. the Maccabees like Judas, Jonathan, and Simon, though not technically styled kings. Cf. 'king of the west', vi. 8.

they shall call themselves priests of the Most High God. Jonathan became high-priest in 153 B.C., and the office was declared to be hereditary in the Maccabean family in 141 B.C.

call themselves. Text = in . . . vocabuntur, a Hebraism. Cf. 1 Chron. xxiii. 14 (LXX).

priests of the Most High God. This title was claimed by the Maccabean prince-priests. Cf. Ps. cx, a hymn to Simon. 'Thou art a priest for ever after the order of Melchizedek.'

shall assuredly work iniquity. Text = facient facientes, a Hebraism.

2. an insolent king, Herod the Great, 37-4 B.C. He was only half a Jew, Josephus, Ant. xiv. 15. 2, the son of Antipater of Idumea, though Nicolas of Damascus claimed a Jewish origin for Antipater.

judge them. Herod cut off the Maccabean family, the Sadducean aristocracy, and according to vi. 4, 5 oppressed the nation at large. The Pharisees and the Essenes did not suffer under him.

3. their chief men. Herod on becoming king executed forty-five of the Sadducean nobles (Ant. xv. 1. 2; Bell. Iud. i. 18. 4).

destroy. I read stinguet for singuli corrupt. Hilgenfeld emends into sepeliet, which is weak. I have omitted 'et corpora illorum' before 'ut nemo sciat'.

secret places. These secret murders are mentioned in Ant. xv. 10. 4.

4. young, and he. Perhaps, we should read 'young he', &c. Cf. Deut. xxviii. 50.

5. Cf. 2 Macc. vi. 3 for the phraseology.

6 land. And he shall execute judgements on them as the Egyptians executed upon them, during 7 thirty and four years, and he shall punish them. And he shall beget children, (who) succeeding him
8 shall rule for shorter periods. Into their parts cohorts and a powerful king of the west shall come,
9 who shall conquer them: and he shall take them captive, and burn a part of their temple with fire,
(and) shall crucify some around their colony.

7 1 And when this is done the times shall be ended, in a moment the (second) course shall be (ended),
2, 3 the four hours shall come. They shall be forced. . . . And, in the time of these, destructive and 4 impious men shall rule, saying that they are just. And these shall stir up the poison of their minds, being treacherous men, self-pleasers, dissemblers in all their own affairs and lovers of banquets at 5, 6 every hour of the day, gluttons, gourmands. . . . Devourers of the goods of the (poor) saying that 7 they do so on the ground of their justice, but in reality to destroy them, complainers, deceitful, concealing themselves lest they should be recognized, impious, filled with lawlessness and iniquity

6. thirty and four years. Herod reigned for thirty-four years after Antigonus's death, and thirty-seven after he had been declared king by the Romans.

7. children . . . shorter periods. The text is defective: '(p)roduct natos (qui su)ccedentes sibi breviora tempora donarent' (we must read dominant). Herod's sons are to reign for shorter periods than their father. This is true of Archelaus only, as Antipas reigned forty-three years and Philip thirty-seven. So that this book must be earlier than A.D. 30, i. e. thirty-four years from Herod's death in 4 B.C.; unless we suppose that the author is thinking of Archelaus and Agrippa, who alone had close connexion with Jerusalem.

8. Into their parts cohorts. Text = 'in pares eorum mortis', emended into 'in partes eorum cohortes'.
a powerful king of the west. Varus, governor of Syria, quelled a Jewish rebellion in 4 B.C. (Ant. xvii. 10. 9, 10. 11. 1).

who. Text = quia corrupt for qui.

9. burn a part of their temple. The soldiers of Varus's lieutenant Sabinus did such damage that the repairs were not completed till Nero's reign (Ant. xx. 9. 7).

crucify some. Varus crucified 2,000 (Ant. xvii. 10. 10).

VII. 1. the times shall be ended. We have now arrived at the date at which the author is writing, and so leaves obvious historical allusions for obscure predictions and enigmatical symbols. The text is often doubtful.

(second) . . . (ended). Text defective, '. . . etur cursus a . . .' Merx reads sequetur not finietur, and Hilgenfeld aevi not alter.

2. The text, which defies translation, is: 'Coguntur secund . . . ae . . . pos . . . initiis tribus ad exitus viiii propter initium tres septimae secunda tria in tertia duae h . . . ra . . . tae.' For attempted restorations see my Comm., p. 78.

3-10. The identification of the persons here attacked is much disputed. They cannot be the Herodian princes, as ver. 10 would suit none of them. Nor can they be the Pharisees. Their worst enemies never accused them of open unblushing gluttony and profligacy. Matt. xxiii. 25 mentions only their secret 'extortion and excess'. (Colani ingeniously suggests that the Jewish doctors at Jabne and Usha after A.D. 135 are meant. But he requires too late a date for the book.) Nor yet can verses 3, 4 be assigned to the Sadducees, and 6-10 to the Pharisees. This division is not justified by the text. The Roman procurators, again, are excluded by phrases like 'Do not touch me lest thou shouldst pollute me', and 'concealing themselves lest they should be recognized'. The most probable explanation is that the Sadducees are meant. The play on קדש, the priestly aloofness of ver. 10, and their rule (the Sanhedrim, which was almost entirely Sadducean, was the virtual ruling power under the Romans from A.D. 6 till 70). The close parallels with the attacks on the Sadducees in the Psalms of Solomon seem to clinch the matter.

3. in the time of these. Text = de his = ἐπὶ τούτων (?). Perhaps translate 'some of these' = ἐκ τούτων. destructive. Cf. verse 5.

impious, could not be said of a Pharisee.

shall rule. Cf. ver. 8, also for the Sadducean constitution of the Sanhedrim Pss. Sol. iv. 1 σὺ κάθησαι βέβηλε ἐν συνεδρίῳ.

saying that they are just, a play on צדוקים 'Sadducees' and צדיקים 'just'. saying. I read dicentes for docentes corrupt.

4. poison. Here I take iram animorum suorum = θυμὸν τῶν καρδιῶν αὐτῶν = לִבָּהּ מִמֶּה, where מִמֶּה should have been rendered ión = poison. This gives a good sense, but the change of animorum into amicorum (so Clemen) does not.
treacherous. Pss. Sol. iv. 27 ἀπὸ ἀνθρώπων δολίων καὶ ἀμαρτωλῶν.

self-pleasers. Probably the Hebrew original was misread עצמם, 'of themselves', instead of עצומים, 'of the mighty.' The designation 'pleasers of the mighty' would then be parallel to ἀθροπάρεσκοι, Pss. Sol. iv, used of the Sadducees.

dissemblers. Text = ficti. Cf. Pss. Sol. iv. 7 ἐν ὑποκρίσει.

5. This verse of seven lines is undecipherable, except for omnis.

6. Devourers of the goods of the (poor). Cf. the charge against the Sadducees in Pss. Sol. iv. 11, 13, 15, 23; xii. 2, 4; also the charge in Matt. xxiii. 14; Mark xii. 40; Luke xx. 47.

(poor). Text = (pauper)rum.

justice, misericordiam. The Hebrew קדש is often thus rendered, here mistakenly. The Sadducees were as proverbially severe (Ant. xx. 9. 1) as the Pharisees were merciful in judgement (Ant. xiii. 10. 6). See also Pss. Sol. iv. 2, 3.

7. to destroy them. Text = et exterminatores, corrupt for ut exterminarent.

deceitful. Cf. Pss. Sol. iv. 4, 12, 14.

concealing themselves, &c. Cf. Pss. Sol. iv. 5 ἐν νύκτι καὶ ἐν ἀποκρύφοις ἀμαρτάνει ὡς οὐχ ὀρώμενος. Cf. also i. 7.

impious . . . iniquity. For παράνομοι and ἀμαρτωλοὶ as epithets of the Sadducees see Ryle and James, Psalms of Solomon, Introd. xlv-xlviii.

8 from sunrise to sunset: saying: 'We shall have feastings and luxury, eating and drinking, and we 9 shall esteem ourselves as princes.' And though their hands and their minds touch unclean things, yet 10 their mouth shall speak great things, and they shall say furthermore: 'Do not touch me lest thou shouldst pollute me in the place (where I stand) . . .

8 1 And there shall come upon them a second visitation and wrath, such as has not befallen them from the beginning until that time, in which He will stir up against them the king of the kings of the earth and one that ruleth with great power, who shall crucify those who confess to their circumcision:
2 and those who conceal (it) he shall torture and deliver them up to be bound and led into prison.
3 And their wives shall be given to the gods among the Gentiles, and their young sons shall be operated 4 on by the physicians in order to bring forward their foreskin. And others amongst them shall be punished by tortures and fire and sword, and they shall be forced to bear in public their idols, polluted 5 as they are like those who keep them. And they shall likewise be forced by those who torture them to enter their inmost sanctuary, and they shall be forced by goads to blaspheme with insolence the word, finally after these things the laws and what they had above their altar.

from sunrise to sunset, not 'from East to West' as the phrase in Greek might also mean.

8. shall esteem ourselves. Text = et putabimus nos. Possibly potabimus, 'we shall drink,' but nos is against this.
princes. Text adds 'we shall be'. An intrusion due to the difficulty of nos.

9. though . . . yet. Text = et . . . et. A Hebraism. Cf. 1 Sam. ix. 11.

mouth . . . speak great things. Dan. vii. 8, 20; Jude 16.

9, 10. For this combination of priestly aloofness with an unclean and worldly life, cf. Pss. Sol. i. 8; ii. 14, 15; viii. 13; xvii. 17.

10. Isa. lxxv. 5. Four lines are defective at the end of 10.

VIII-IX. This 'second visitation' is too accurate an account of Antiochus Epiphanes' persecution to refer to any other calamity, or to have been a bare prediction, e.g. of Bar Cochba's suppression in A.D. 136. Strangely enough there is a gap in the history between V and VI of this book, where an account of Antiochus's devastation is required.
It is equally out of place here. Thus we have a clear case of transposition by the final editor. Cf. 1 En. xci-xciii.
V ends with the Hellenizing priests under Antiochus, VI begins with the Maccabean princes. Such a tragic time would not be omitted in a work like this, still less could the greatest desecration of the temple have been overlooked when minor injuries to it are mentioned, e.g. ii. 4, 8, 9; iii. 2; iv. 7, 8; v. 3, 4; vi. 1, 9.

VIII. 1. a second visitation. So ix. 2. The final woes would not be so described. The text has . . . ta (or te) only. Fritzsche restores tanta. I read altera with Merx.

such as has not, &c. Dan. xii. 1; cf. Jer. xxx. 7; 1 Macc. ix. 27; Matt. xxiv. 21; Rev. xvi. 18. 'from the beginning', a saeculo, which is nearer the Syriac (= a diebus saeculorum) of Dan. xii. 1 than the LXX or Theod.
Compare ἀπ' ἀρχῆς κόσμου, Matt. xxiv. 21.

king of the kings of the earth, used of Artaxerxes in Ezra vii. 12, so naturally here of the despot Antiochus IV.

one that ruleth. Text = potestatem. I read potentatem.

crucify . . . circumcision. Cf. 1 Macc. i. 48, 60, 61; 2 Macc. vi. 10, viii. 4. For the crucifying cf. Joseph.
Ant. xii. 5. 4.

2. conceal. Text = necantes. I read celantes. Possibly we should read secantes, 'circumcise', or even negantes, 'refuse to confess'.

3. wives shall be given to the gods, &c. For the cult of Venus see 2 Macc. vi. 4. But diis donabuntur may be corrupt for disdonabuntur (Haupt). Then translate 'will be distributed among the Gentiles'.

their young sons, &c. Cf. 1 Macc. i. 15; Joseph. Ant. xii. 5. 1. Cf. 1 Cor. vii. 18.

4. tortures. Cf. 2 Macc. vi. 28, vii; Joseph. Ant. xii. 5. 4.

fire. 2 Macc. vi. 11.

bear in public their idols. 2 Macc. vi. 7. For the carrying of idols cf. Amos v. 26; Isa. xlvi. 7; Epist. Jer. 4, 26.

polluted, &c. The rendering is uncertain and difficult.

like. Text = pariter = also 'likewise' in the next verse.

5. inmost sanctuary of the heathen temples which the Jews were compelled to build. Cf. 1 Macc. i. 47; Joseph.
Ant. xv. 5. 4. Or it may be the Holy Place.

the word = ὁ λόγος = לִּבְיָהוּ, which in late Hebrew (Jer. Shabb. vii. 10^a, &c.) and Aramaic = 'the person' of God.

the laws and. I read leges et for text et leges.

what . . . above their altar, i. e. the sacrifice upon it, Matt. xxiii. 18. Clemen states that under altarium we are to understand בִּימָה. But this latter word simply means the raised platform in the Synagogue from which prayers were said and the Law read. There is no ground, so far as I am aware, for ever connecting the two ideas. See Religion and Worship of the Synagogue, Box and Oesterley, 309 sqq. = Schürer³, ii. 450. The expression favours our interpreting the inmost sanctuary of the Temple.

IX. The historical references seem to be to 2 Macc. vi. 18 (Eleazar the Scribe) and vii (the seven brothers, sons of the widow), who went to the tortures rather than eat swine's flesh; while in 1 Macc. ii. 29-38 we are told of those who fled to the secret places of the wilderness, to avoid the 'unclean visitation' (Ass. Mos. ix. 2) of Antiochus. For the close parallels with 1 and 2 Maccabees see the notes.

This piecing together of details has a purpose. The author intentionally avoids a reference to Mattathias, and thus by implication censures the Maccabean uprising with its methods and aims. He emphasizes the opposed policy of the Chasids, as evidenced by the passages quoted above, by way of suggesting and urging their stricter and quietistic methods. The ideal is not 'Let us war', but 'Let us die rather than transgress'.

The Chasids' temporary coalition with the Maccabees, 1 Macc. ii. 42, &c., is not mentioned. It soon ended, and the Pharisees returned to their old attitude of non-resistance. But by the close of the first century B.C. Pharisaism, as the Psalms of Solomon show, was being leavened with patriotism and earthly political ideas. Our author must have been in the minority by the time he wrote.

9¹ Then in that day there shall be a man of the tribe of Levi, whose name shall be Taxo, who having 2 seven sons shall speak to them exhorting (them): 'Observe, my sons, behold a second ruthless (and)
 3 unclean visitation has come upon the people, and a punishment merciless and far exceeding the first.
 4 For what nation or what region or what people of those who are impious towards the Lord, who 5 have done many abominations, have suffered as great calamities as have befallen us? Now, there-
 6 fore, my sons, hear me: for observe and know that neither did the fathers nor their forefathers
 7 tempt God, so as to transgress His commands. And ye know that this is our strength, and thus we 8 will do. Let us fast for the space of three days and on the fourth let us go into a cave which is in 9 the field, and let us die rather than transgress the commands of the Lord of Lords, the God of our 10 fathers. For if we do this and die, our blood shall be avenged before the Lord.

0¹ And then His kingdom shall appear throughout all His creation,
 And then Satan shall be no more,
 And sorrow shall depart with him.
 2 Then the hands of the angel shall be filled
 Who has been appointed chief,
 And he shall forthwith avenge them of their enemies.
 3 For the Heavenly One will arise from His royal throne,
 And He will go forth from His holy habitation
 With indignation and wrath on account of His sons.
 4 And the earth shall tremble: to its confines shall it be shaken:
 And the high mountains shall be made low
 And the hills shall be shaken and fall.

1. day there shall be. I read die erit for text dicente.

of the tribe of Levi. Thus the Chasid movement emanated from the priestly tribe. Our author seems to identify the Eleazar here with the Eleazar of 2 Macc. vi. 18, who was one of the chief scribes, and, according to 4 Macc. v. 5, a priest.

Taxo. Professor Burkitt has offered the right interpretation. Taxo is a mistake for Taxoc = Ταξωκ = תַּכְסוּק, which by Gematria = אֵלְעָזָר, Eleazar. Cf. 4 Macc. i. 8. This interpretation strengthens the argument for a dislocation of the text.

seven sons. The widow of 2 Macc. vii (following on the martyrdom of Eleazar in vi. 18-31) and 4 Macc. has seven sons. Mattathias had five, 1 Macc. ii. 1.

shall speak. I read dicet, for text dicens.

2. second . . . unclean visitation, under Antiochus, with its ceremonial defilement and moral abominations. The first was under Nebuchadnezzar. See chapter iii.

far exceeding. I read eminens for eminent, text.

3. Cf. Joseph. Ant. xii. 3. 3.

4. neither did the fathers, &c. Text = 'nunquam temptans deum nec parentes nec proavi eorum'. Clemens restores 'neither did I nor the fathers', supplying ego to agree with temptans, which, however, is corrupt for temptantes. Cf. the consciousness of fulfilling God's law in the Psalms. The sense of sin is markedly absent at times: here with regard to the nation.

6. fast, here a sign not of repentance but of desperate resolution. For fasting cf. Dan. vi. 18, ix. 3; 2 Bar. v. 7, &c.; 4 Ezra v. 20, &c.

let us go into a cave. Cf. 1 Macc. i. 53, ii. 31; Joseph. Ant. xii. 6. 2; Heb. xi. 38; also 2 Macc. vi. 11, x. 6.

let us die rather than transgress. For this typical and earnest motto of those persecuted under Antiochus, cf. 2 Macc. vii. 2; 4 Macc. ix. 1; also for the resolve, 1 Macc. ii. 37; 2 Macc. vi. 19; Ant. xii. 6. 1.

7. avenged. Cf. the seven brethren, 2 Macc. vii. 17, 19, 31, 35-7.

X. 1-10. These verses form a hymn of ten stanzas with three lines each. There are three main divisions, 1-2, 3-6, 7-10. Note that the kingdom and the angel appear in the first division, but God Himself arises in the second.

1. His kingdom. Cf. the 'kingdom of God' in Mark and Luke; Pss. Sol. xvii. 4. There is no mention of a new heaven and a new earth here.

Satan seems to be here the head of the kingdom of evil. But 2^b suggests that he is the adversary of Israel.

sorrow, &c. Cf. Isa. xxxv. 10; Rev. xxi. 4.

2. hands . . . filled. Cf. Exod. xxviii. 41, xxix. 9; Lev. xxi. 10; Test. Levi viii. 10. Here it signifies the delegation of power as warrior not as priest.

the angel. Michael. Cf. Dan. xii. 1. He is Israel's patron angel.

chief. Michael is at the head of the forces of heaven, Rev. xii. 7. Here he avenges Israel, but in ver. 7 God does so. Thus 3-10 (which belong to the text) are inconsistent with 1-2, an insertion, as the felicity of ver. 1, contrasted with the terror of 4-6, also shows.

3-6. Signs to accompany God's coming.

3. the Heavenly One. Cf. ii. 4, iv. 4.

He will go forth, &c. Mic. i. 3; Isa. xxvi. 21; 1 En. i. 3.

from His holy habitation. Deut. xxvi. 15; Isa. lxiii. 15.

4. high mountains . . . made low. Isa. xl. 4; 1 En. i. 6.

and the hills shall be shaken and: I read 'et colles concutientur et' for 'et concutientur et convalles'. The mountains would not be shaken after being made low, nor could the valleys fall. We require a hill after the high mountains. Cf. Isa. xl. 4. It is easy to explain convalles = נַקְעוֹת corrupt for נִבְעוֹת as in LXX of Isa. xl. 12.

THE ASSUMPTION OF MOSES 10. 5-13

- 5 And the horns of the sun shall be broken and he shall be turned into darkness ;
And the moon shall not give her light, and be turned wholly into blood.
And the circle of the stars shall be disturbed.
- 6 And the sea shall retire into the abyss,
And the fountains of waters shall fail,
And the rivers shall dry up.
- 7 For the Most High will arise, the Eternal God alone,
And He will appear to punish the Gentiles,
And He will destroy all their idols.
- 8 Then thou, O Israel, shalt be happy,
And thou shalt †mount upon the necks and wings of the eagle,
And they shall be ended †.
- 9 And God will exalt thee,
And He will cause thee to approach to the heaven of the stars, †In the place of their habitation †.
- 10 And thou shalt look from on high and shalt see thy enemies in Ge(henna),
And thou shalt recognize them and rejoice,
And thou shalt give thanks and confess thy Creator.
- 11, 12 And do thou, Joshua (the son of) Nun, keep these words and this book ; For from my death 13 [assumption] until His advent there shall be CCL times. And this is the course of the times which

5. The MS. has 'sol non dabit lumen et in tenebris convertent se cornua lunae et confringentur et tota convertit se in sanguine'. The order seems wrong. The darkening is always connected with the sun, and only with the moon in conjunction with it. Cf. Joel ii. 10; iii. 15; Eccles. xii. 2. See also Isa. xiii. 10; Matt. xxiv. 29; Mark xiii. 24; Luke xxiii. 45; Acts ii. 20; Rev. vi. 12, ix. 2. Again, 'non dabit lumen' is used only of the moon, Ezek. xxxii. 7; Matt. xxiv. 29; Mark xiii. 24. Thirdly, 'turned into blood' is only used of the moon, Joel ii. 31; Acts ii. 20; Rev. vi. 12. Thus I alter the text to '(Et) cornua solis confringentur et in tenebras convertet se ; Et luna non dabit lumen et tota convertet se in sanguinem.'

circle. Text = orbis.

6. fountains . . . fail. Cf. Pss. Sol. xvii. 21; Test. Levi iv. 1; 4 Ezra vi. 24.

fountains . . . and rivers. Cf. Rev. viii. 10, xvi. 4.

dry up. I read exarescent for MS. expavescent.

7-10. God punishes the Gentiles, destroys their idols, makes Israel triumph over Rome, and exalts them to heaven.

7. Eternal God. Cf. Deut. xxxiii. 27 אלהי קדם. 8^a and probably 8^b are based on verse 29 of that chapter.

alone, i. e. without help of Michael or Messiah. Cf. 4 Ezra v. 26, vi. 6.

destroy . . . idols. Cf. 1 En. xci. 9.

8. Israel to triumph in this world over Rome.

Then thou . . . happy. Deut. xxxiii. 29.

†mount upon the necks. So Deut. xxxiii. 29 in LXX Syr. Vulg. Targ. Onk., Targ. Jon., Jarchi. Modern scholars, however, render 'tread upon their high places'. For 'necks' cf. Baruch iv. 26; also for the idea Josh. x. 24. An older form of the Eagle Vision, that in 4 Ezra xi sqq. may here be in the mind of the writer. Now line 2 is too long and line 3 too short. Formerly I accepted Dr. Cheyne's suggestion that dies luctus tui (cf. Isa. lx. 20) was lost after implebuntur. Clemen suggests dies aquilae; but neither accounts for the irregularity noted, and there is no loss of letters in the MS. Hence I propose that there has been simply a transposition of cervices et alas (i. e. alae) from line 3 to 2. Then et implebuntur = καὶ συντρέψουσθαι, perdentur or delebuntur. Hence:

'And thou shalt go up against the eagle
And its necks and wings shall be destroyed.'

9. Israel to be exalted to heaven.

to approach. Text = haerere, i. e. נגנ.

the heaven of the stars. Cf. Pss. Sol. i. 5 ὑψώθησαν ἕως τῶν ἄστρων, and Jer. li. (xxviii. in LXX) 9. Cf. 'the stars of heaven', Isa. xiv. 13 (LXX), or 'the stars of God' (Heb.), which, however, Targ. Jon. renders 'the people of God'. Here, however, there is no metaphor, but a description of Israel transfigured and glorified after the final judgement. Cf. 1 En. civ. 2, 6.

†In the place of their habitation. † Text = loco habitationis eorum. Eorum suits neither 'stars' nor 'thee'. The parallelism also requires 'and He' to commence the clause. There I read והקים 'and He will establish' for במקום 'in the place', and מושבך 'thy habitation among them' for מושבם 'their habitation', and render:

'And He will establish thy habitation among them.'

Cf. 1 En. civ. 2, 4, 6.

10. shalt look. I read conspicies for conspiges, text.

shalt see. I read videbis for vides, text.

Gehenna. MS. has terram = γῆ, i. e. ארץ or ירדן transliterated as in Josh. xviii. 16 (LXX), &c. Gehenna is called 'the valley' in Jer. ii. 23; iii. 40, and so הנה need not be restored. Clemen thinks 'in terra' can be supported by Isa. lxvi. 24, but the cases are not parallel.

In earlier times (Isa. lxvi. 24; 1 En. xxvii. 2, 3, liv. 1, 2, xc. 26, 27) Gehenna was considered the place of punishment for faithless Jews, who should be tormented there in full view of the righteous. But in N.T. times it had come to be thought of as the future abode of all the wicked. Cf. 4 Ezra vii. 36.

11. this book. Cf. i. 16, xi. 1.

12. [assumption]. The original here told only of Moses' death, not his assumption. Cf. i. 15 and x. 15. The addition is due to the editor, who combined this 'Testament of Moses' with another work, the 'Assumption of Moses'.

15 they shall pursue till they are consummated. And I shall go to sleep with my fathers. Wherefore, Joshua thou (son of) Nun, (be strong and) be of good courage; (for) God hath chosen (thee) to be minister in the same covenant.

1 And when Joshua had heard the words of Moses that were so written in his writing all that he had before said, he rent his clothes and cast himself at Moses' feet. And Moses comforted him and wept with him. And Joshua answered him and said: 'Why dost thou comfort me, (my) lord Moses? And how shall I be comforted in regard to the bitter word which thou hast spoken which has gone forth from thy mouth, which is full of tears and lamentation, in that thou departest from this people? (But now) what place shall receive thee? Or what shall be the sign that marks (thy) sepulchre? Or who shall dare to move thy body from thence as that of a mere man from place to place? For all men when they die have according to their age their sepulchres on earth; but thy sepulchre is from the rising to the setting sun, and from the south to the confines of the north: all the world is thy sepulchre. My lord, thou art departing, and who shall feed this people? Or who is there that shall have compassion on them and who shall be their guide by the way? Or who shall pray for them, not omitting a single day, in order that I may lead them into the land of their forefathers? How therefore am I to foster this people as a father (his) only son, or as a mistress her daughter, a virgin who is being prepared to be given to the husband whom she will revere, while she guards her person from the sun and (takes care) that her feet are not unshod for running upon the ground. (And how) shall I supply them with food and drink according to the pleasure of their will? For of them there shall be 600,000 (men), for these have multiplied to this degree through thy prayers, (my) lord Moses. And what wisdom or understanding have I that I should judge or answer by word in the house (of the Lord)? And the kings of the Amorites also when they hear that we are attacking them, believing that there is no longer among them the sacred spirit who CCL times, i. e. 250 year-weeks, or 1,750 years. Thus from the Creation (2,500 years before Moses' death) to the final judgement will be 4,250 years or 85 jubilees. Cf. Sanh. 97ⁿ, which gives the same date for the Messial's coming.

13. of the times. MS. = '. . . horum' emended to temporum.

14. Moses expects an ordinary death, a sleep with his fathers in Sheol.

15. (be strong and) be of good courage. MS. forma te. I have restored with Schmidt-Merx 'confortare et firma te'. See i. 10 (note). Cf. Deut. xxxi. 6, 7, 23.

(for) . . . (thee). I supply nam te after firma te.

minister. See i. 7 (note). Is Joshua thus the prophet promised in Deut. xviii. 15?

XI. 1. Moses' feet. I emend MS. pedes meos to pedes Monse.

4. comfort me . . . be comforted. I read 'solaris . . . solabor' with Schmidt-Merx for MS. 'celares . . . celabor'; Volkmar emends to 'zelaris . . . zelabor'.

For the mourning at his departure, cf. 2 Bar. xxxiii. 3, lxxvii. 2; 4 Ezra xii. 44.

depart = die, as in 2 Bar. xiv. 19, xv. 1, xliii. 2, &c.

this people. Text = plebe ist (a).

5. (But now) what, &c. Text is defective.

7. Baldensperger thinks this verse is directed against the Christians, as Christ's body was moved from the cross to the sepulchre.

from thence. I restore inde for in e.

that of a (mere) man. I restore hominis for homo.

8. all the world is thy sepulchre. Cf. Thuc. ii. 43 πάσα γῆ τάφος.

9. thou art departing. I restore abis for ab his MS.

11. pray. Cf. xii. 6.

not omitting. Text = nec patiens = οὐδὲ παριείς.

single. MS. = uno corrupt for unum.

forefathers. I restore atavorum for Araborum. Ewald Amorreorum.

12. foster. MS. = potero (hanc plebem) = δυνήσομαι (τὸν λαὸν τοῦτον) = (העם הזה) אוכל where אוכל is corrupt for אוכלל = 'nourish'.

as a mistress her daughter, a virgin. Text = 'tanquam filiam dominam virginem†.' If κυρία (= dominam) can be applied to persons as Volkmar supposes and mean 'legitimate', 'his own', then the difficulty is solved. But the repetition of tanquam is against this view. It seems to require a parallel noun in the nominative such as domina. And was κύριος ever applied in the above sense even to things? Failing this we might with Fritzsche read filiam domina, virginem, or since κυρία alone may be suspicious in this sense domina virginem may = בעלת בתילה corrupt for בעלת הבית, 'mistress of the house'.

to be given. I restore dari for tali MS.

whom. I restore quem for quae.

revere. Cf. Sirach xxvi. 28.

guards her person. Cf. Sirach vii. 24, 25.

13. (And how). I supply et quid to fill the lacuna.

pleasure of their will. I read voluptatem voluntatis for MS. = voluntatem voluntatis. Cf. Epl. i. 5.

14. 600,000. I insert D before C milia, from Exod. xii. 37.

(men). I restore virī in lacuna in MS.

15. (of the Lord). I restore Domini in lacuna after domo in MS.

16. among them. I read secum for semet MS.

sacred spirit . . . manifold. Cf. πνεῦμα . . . ἅγιον . . . πολυμεές, Wisd. vii. 22.

was worthy of the Lord, manifold and incomprehensible, the lord of the word, who was faithful in all things, God's chief prophet throughout the earth, the most perfect teacher in the world, [that he is no longer among them], shall say "Let us go against them. If the enemy have but once wrought impiously against their Lord, they have no advocate to offer prayers on their behalf to the Lord, like Moses the great messenger, who every hour day and night had his knees fixed to the earth, praying and looking for help to Him that ruleth all the world with compassion and righteousness, reminding Him of the covenant of the fathers and propitiating the Lord with the oath." For they shall say: "He is not with them: let us go therefore and destroy them from off the face of the earth." What shall then become of this people, my lord Moses?

12 1, 2 And when Joshua had finished (these) words, he cast himself again at the feet of Moses. And Moses took his hand and raised him into the seat before him, and answered and said unto him: 3, 4 'Joshua, do not despise thyself, but set thy mind at ease, and hearken to my words. All the nations which are in the earth God hath created and us, He hath foreseen them and us from the beginning of the creation of the earth unto the end of the age, and nothing has been neglected by Him even to 5 the least thing, but all things He hath foreseen and caused all to come forth. (Yea) all things which are to be in this earth the Lord hath foreseen and lo! they are brought forward (into the 6 light. . . . The Lord) hath on their behalf appointed me to (pray) for their sins and (make interces- 7 sion) for them. For not for any virtue or strength of mine, but of His good pleasure have His com- 8 passion and longsuffering fallen to my lot. For I say unto you, Joshua: it is not on account of the 9 godliness of this people that thou shalt root out the nations. The lights of the heaven, the founda- 10 tions of the earth have been made and approved by God and are under the signet ring of His right 11 hand. Those, therefore, who do and fulfil the commandments of God shall increase and be prospered: 12 but those who sin and set at nought the commandments shall be without the blessings before men- 13 tioned, and they shall be punished with many torments by the nations. But wholly to root out and destroy them is not permitted. For God will go forth who has foreseen all things for ever, and His covenant has been established and by the oath which . . .

worthy of the Lord. Cf. Wisd. iii. 5.

lord of the word, a unique expression.

faithful in all things. Num. xii. 7; Heb. iii. 2.

God's chief prophet. Text = divinum . . . profetem = נביא האלהים = 'the prophet of God'.

[that he . . . them]. A dittography from above.

17. wrought impiously against. Text = impie fecerunt in = רשעו ב, perhaps corrupt for רשעו מ. Cf. v. 6 (note).

no advocate to offer prayers. This is the function of Jeremiah especially (for Moses cf. ver. 14), e. g. 2 Macc. xv. 14; 4 Baruch ii. 3; 2 Bar. ii. 2 (note).

Moses. MS. wrongly adds 'was'.

looking for help . . . world. MS. = 'intuens homini potentem orbem,' &c. homini is clearly a corruption. Hilgenfeld suggests omnipotentem orbem. But it is better to read omnis and orbis, 'potentem omnis orbis.' Schmidt-Merx suggest 'omni potent(ia tenent)em orbem'.

XII. 2. Cf. Sifre Piska 140 on Num. xxvii. 28. 'Thereupon (Moses) raised him (Joshua) from the ground and placed him beside himself on the chair.'

3. thyself. I restore te for et, MS.

4. A word of comfort against the time of Israel's tribulation. God made Israel and the nations, and foresees the destinies of both. Therefore all that befalls must tend to the same end (Israel's benefit, i. 12).

caused all to come forth. I read 'promovit cuncta' for MS. 'provovit cum eis'; provovit may, however, be corrupt for praenovit = προέγνω = עָרַ, which again may be corrupt for עָרַ, praedestinavit.

6. appointed me to (pray) for their sins. This is a real Jewish idea and not borrowed from Christianity. Cf. Jeremiah (see xi. 17 above); also Enoch, 2 En. lxiv. 5 (MSS. A, B), the righteous forefathers, Philo, De Execr. ix (ii. 436). Contrast 2 En. liii. 1. The text is defective. I supply orarem and implorarem.

7. strength. I read firmitatem for MS. infirmiorem.

of His good pleasure. Text = temperantius = ἐπιεικέστερον. ἐπιεικῶς in both its occurrences in the O.T. = הוֹאִיל, the verb, so that I have rendered it 'of His good pleasure' in the text, though a closer rendering of the Hebrew would be 'He was pleased that His compassion, &c., should fall to my lot'. Cf. for this doctrine of the divine election, Rom. ix. 11, 12, to privilege, and Gal. i. 15, to service. According to the Tanchuma Pikkude 3, God does not determine beforehand whether a man shall be righteous or wicked, but puts this in the power of the man. See 2 En. xxx. 15.

8. not on account of the godliness, &c. Cf. Deut. ix. 4, 5, 6; Ezek. xxxvi. 22, 32. The nation is so evil and needs such frequent chastisement, that its selection by God must be due not to merit but to the Divine purpose. Yet the world was created on behalf of Israel, i. 12; and it is God's foreknowledge, not His purpose, that is dwelt on in xii. 4, 5, 13.

9. lights. Read lumina for text omnia.

foundations. Read fundamenta for text firmamenta.

and approved. I read et probata for ut provata.

signet ring. Read annulo for nullo. Cf. Jer. xxii. 24 ἀποσφράγισμα ἐπὶ τῆς χειρὸς τῆς δεξιᾶς μου, also Sirach xlix. 11.

10. God. Read Dei for ei, MS.

11. shall be without the blessings. Read carebunt bona (nom. plur.) for carere bonam. But Schmidt-Merx may be right, who retain the text and retranslate τοῖς γὰρ ἀμαρτάνουσιν . . . ἐστὶ ὑστερεῖν τῶν ἀγαθῶν.

12. destroy. I read extinguat for relinquat.

THE BOOK OF THE SECRETS OF ENOCH

INTRODUCTION

§ 1. SHORT ACCOUNT OF THE BOOK.

THE Book of the Secrets of Enoch has, so far as is yet known, been preserved only in Slavonic. For the sake of convenience it will in this edition be designated shortly as '2 Enoch', in contradistinction to the older book of Enoch which is designated as '1 Enoch'.

This new fragment of the Enochic literature came to light through certain MSS. which were found in Russia and Servia. My attention was first drawn to this fact when editing the Ethiopic or 1 Enoch by an article by Kozak on Russian Pseudepigraphic Literature in the Jahrb. f. Prot. Theol., pp. 127-158 (1892). As it was stated in this article that there was a Slavonic Version of the Book of Enoch hitherto known through the Ethiopic Version, I applied to the late Professor Morfill for help, who procured printed copies of two of the MSS. in question. When once I had before me Professor Morfill's English translations of these texts, it did not take much study to discover that Kozak's statement was devoid of foundation. The Book of the Secrets of Enoch was, as it soon transpired, a new pseudepigraph, and not in any sense a version of the older and well-known Book of Enoch. In some respects it is of no less value, as we shall see in the sequel.

2 Enoch in its present form was written somewhere about the beginning of the Christian era. Its final editor was an Hellenistic Jew, and the place of its composition was Egypt.

Written at such a date, and in Egypt, it was not to be expected that it should exercise a direct influence on the writers of the New Testament. On the other hand, it occasionally exhibits striking parallelisms in diction and thought, and some of the dark passages of the latter are all but inexplicable without its aid.

Although the very knowledge that such a book ever existed was lost for probably twelve hundred years, it nevertheless was much used both by Christian and heretic in the early centuries. Thus citations appear from it, though without acknowledgement, in the Books of Adam and Eve, the Apocalypses of Moses and Paul (A.D. 400-500), the Sibylline Oracles, the Ascension of Isaiah and the Epistle of Barnabas (A.D. 70-90). It is quoted by name in the later portions of the Testaments of Levi, Daniel, and Naphtali. It was referred to by Origen and probably by Clement of Alexandria, and used by Irenaeus, and a few phrases in the New Testament may be derived from it.

But it was not only on Christian literature that the influence of 2 Enoch is manifest. A Hebrew book entitled 'the Book of Enoch' (ספר חנוך) and twice 'the Book of the Secrets of Enoch' (ספר רזין רחוק) in the Zohar exhibits very close affinities with 2 Enoch. R. Ishmael, a martyr of the Hadrianic persecution, is claimed to be its author, but its composition belongs most probably to a later date. It is, however, possible, that this Hebrew Book of Enoch has preserved in some cases the Hebrew original, from which apparently portions of 2 Enoch are derived. But the influence of 2 Enoch is not confined to this Hebrew Book of Enoch. Traces of it are found also in the apocalyptic fragment published by Jellinek, Beth ha-Midrash vi. 19-30, and also in the Zohar.¹

§ 2. THE TWO SLAVONIC VERSIONS.

The two versions of the Slavonic redaction of the book of Enoch from which the following translations have been made are:

1. The complete version, published by Mr. A. Popóv in the Transactions of the Historical and Archaeological Society of the University of Moscow, vol. iii. (Moscow, University Press, 1880). The MS. is a South Russian recension, dating from the second half of the seventeenth century and belongs to Mr. A. Khludov. It is in many places so corrupt that emendation in the absence of the Greek text is impossible. This version is marked by the letter A in Morfill's translation.²

¹ See Jewish Encyc. i. 677 sqq.

² There is a Bulgarian recension of the above version in a MS. in the public library of Belgrade according to Morfill (Gen. Editor).

THE BOOK OF THE SECRETS OF ENOCH

2. The incomplete version, published by Novaković in the sixteenth volume of the literary magazine Stávine (Agram, 1884). The MS. is a Servian recension dating from the sixteenth century, and is in the Public Library at Belgrade. It is marked B in Morfill's translation. In order to spare biblical students the confusion inseparable from the omission of the division of the paragraphs into verses and from a disposition of the paragraphs themselves in any way different from that to which they are already used, I have adopted that arrangement of paragraphs and verses which both Morfill and Bonwetsch employed in their translations. It must be pointed out, however, that in the complete version (A) there are only sixty-three, while Morfill and Bonwetsch both divide the same quantity of text into sixty-eight paragraphs; that in the incomplete version (B) there is no division into paragraphs; that in neither A nor B is there any division of the paragraphs into verses,¹ and that in neither A nor B² are the titles of the paragraphs in brackets, as indicated in Morfill's translation. (N. FORBES.)

§ 3. THE LANGUAGE AND PLACE OF WRITING.

1. Part of this book—possibly the main part—was written for the first time in Greek. This is shown by such statements, (1) as xxx. 13, 'And I appointed him a name (i.e. Adam) from the four component parts: from East, from West, from South, from North.' Adam's name is here derived from the initial letters of the Greek names of the four quarters, i.e. ἀνατολή, δύσις, ἄρκτος, μεσημβρία. This fancy was first elaborated in Greek, as this derivation is impossible in Semitic languages. (2) Again, the writer follows the chronology of the LXX. Enoch is 165 years old when he begat Methuselah. According to the Hebrew and Samaritan chronologies he was 65. Josephus also (Ant. i. 3. 3), it is true, adopts the LXX chronology. (3) In l. 4 the writer reproduces the LXX text of Deut. xxxii. 35 against the Hebrew. (4) The writer frequently uses Sirach, and often reproduces it almost word for word: cf. xliii. 2, 3—Sirach xxiii. 7; x. 20, 22, 24: also xlvii. 5—Sirach i. 2: also li. 1, 3—Sirach vii. 32; ii. 4: also lxi. 2—Sirach xxxix. 25: also lxxv. 2—Sirach xvii. 3, 5. (5) lxxv. 4 seems to be derived from the Book of Wisdom vii. 17, 18. So far as we can judge, it was the Greek Versions of Sirach and Wisdom that our author used.

Some sections of this book may have been written originally in Hebrew. (See § 4 ad fin.)

2. This book in its present form was written in Egypt, and probably in Alexandria. This is deducible from the following facts. (1) From the variety of speculations which it holds in common with Philo and writings which were Hellenistic in character or circulated largely in Egypt. Thus the existent was created from the non-existent, xxiv. 2; xxv. 1: cf. Philo, de Iustit. 7; souls were created before the foundation of the world, xxiii. 5: cf. Philo, de Somno, i. 22; de Gigantibus 3; Wisdom viii. 19, 20. Again, man had seven natures or powers, xxx. 9: cf. Philo, de Mundi Op. 40. Man could originally see the angels in heaven, xxxi. 2: cf. Philo, Quaest. in Gen. xxxii. There seems to be no resurrection of the body, l. 2; lxxv. 6: so the Book of Wisdom and Philo taught. Finally, swearing is reprobated by both, xlix. 1, 2: cf. Philo, de Spec. Leg. ii. 1. (2) The whole Messianic teaching of the Old Testament does not find a single echo in the work of this Hellenized Israelite of Egypt, although he shows familiarity with almost every book of the Old Testament. (3) The Phoenixes and Chalkydries, xii—monstrous serpents with the heads of crocodiles—are natural products of the Egyptian imagination. (4) The syncretistic character of the account of the creation, xxv–xxvi, undoubtedly betrays Egyptian elements.

§ 4. RELATION OF THE BOOK TO JEWISH AND CHRISTIAN LITERATURE.

In the Book of Adam and Eve of the fifth century we find two passages drawn from our book which are quotations in sense more than in words. Thus in I. vi we read: 'But the wicked Satan . . . set me at naught, and sought the Godhead, so that I hurled him down from heaven.' This is drawn from xxix. 4, 5: 'One from out the order of angels (i.e. Satan, cf. xxxi. 4) . . . conceived an impossible thought, to place his throne higher than the clouds above the earth, that he might become equal in rank to My power. And I threw him from the height.' Again in the Book of Adam and Eve, I. viii: 'When we dwelt in the garden . . . we saw his angels that sang praises in heaven.' This comes from xxxi. 2: 'I made the heavens open to him, that he should see the angels singing the song of victory.' See notes on xxxi. 2 for similar view in Philo and St. Ephrem.

¹ This division into verses was necessarily made by the General Editor when he edited this book in 1896.

² The bracketing of the titles in A was due not to the translator but to the editor, for they have no claim to being original. They are not given in Sokolov's text which was used by Professor Morfill, nor are they found in B. A few titles do appear in B, but with one exception these consist merely of 'Entry of Enoch into the first heaven, Entry of Enoch into the second heaven', &c. (Gen. Editor).

INTRODUCTION

Again in I. xiv of the former book the words: 'The garden, into the abode of light thou longest for, wherein is no darkness,' and I. xi: 'That garden in which was no darkness,' are probably derived from 2 En. xxxi. 2: '... the gloomless light' seen by Adam in Paradise.

Next in the Apocalypse of Moses (ed. Tischend. 1866) p. 19 we have a further development of a statement that appears in our text regarding the sun: see Apoc. Mos. xxxvi. 1-3 under 'The Books of Adam and Eve' in this volume.

In the anonymous writing De montibus Sina et Sion 4, we have most probably another trace of the influence of our text in this century. In this treatise the derivation of Adam's name from the initials of the four quarters of the earth is given at length. This derivation appears probably for the first time in literature in xxx. 13 (see note).

In the fourth century there are undoubted indications of its use in the Apocalypse of Paul (ed. Tischend. 1866). Thus the statement, p. 64, οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ παράδεισος, ἔνθα . . . δένδρον παμμεγέθη (sic) ὠραῖον, ἐν ᾧ ἐπανεπαύετο τὸ πνεῦμα τὸ ἅγιον is beyond the possibility of question a Christian adaptation of 2 Enoch viii. 3: 'And in the midst of the trees that of life, in that place, whereon the Lord rests, when He goes up into Paradise.' Again the words, p. 64, ἐκ τῆς ρίζης αὐτοῦ ἐξήρχετο . . . ὕδωρ, μεριζόμενον εἰς τέσσαρα ὀρύγματα, and p. 52, ποταμοὶ τέσσαρες . . . ῥέοντες μέλι καὶ γάλα καὶ ἔλαιον καὶ οἶνον, are almost verbal reproductions of our text, viii. 5: 'Two springs come out which send forth honey and milk, and their springs send forth oil and wine, and they separate into four parts.' With two characteristic features of hell in this Apocalypse, i.e. οὐκ ἦν ἐκεῖ φῶς and ὁ πύρινος ποταμός (pp. 57, 58) we may compare x. 1 of our text: 'And there is no light there . . . and a fiery river coming forth.'

In the early part of the third and in the second century there is the following evidence of the existence of our text. Thus in the Sibylline Oracles, ii. 75 ὀρφανικοῖς χήραις τ' ἐπιδευομένοις τε παράσχον, and 88 σὴν χεῖρα πενητεύουσιν ὄρεξον are too closely parallel to li. 1, 'Stretch forth your hands to the orphan and to the widow (B),' 'Stretch out your hands to the poor (A),' to be accidental.

In Irenaeus contra Haer. v. 28. 3 we have the Jewish speculation in our text, xxxiii. 1, 2, reproduced to the effect that as the work of creation lasted six days so the world would last 6,000 years, and that there would be 1,000 years of rest corresponding to the first sabbath after creation. See text, xxxiii. 1, 2 (notes).

There is a direct reference in Origen's de Princip. i. 3. 2 'Nam et in eo libello . . . quem Hermas conscripsit, ita refertur: Primo omnium crede, quia unus est Deus, qui omnia creavit atque composuit: qui cum nihil esset prius, esse fecit omnia. . . . Sed et in Enoch libro his similia describuntur.' Now since there is no account of the creation in 1 Enoch, Origen is here referring to 2 Enoch xxiv-xxx.

The fragment of the Apocalypse of Zephaniah preserved in Clement, Strom. v. 11. 77 is likewise to be traced to our text: cf. xviii. 1 (note).

During the years A.D. 50-100 our text seems not to be without witness in the literature of that period. Thus in the Ascension of Isaiah, viii. 16 we read with regard to the angels of the sixth heaven: 'Omnium una species et gloria aequalis,' whereas the difference between the angelic orders in the lower heavens is repeatedly pointed out. Now in our text, xix. 1, it is said of the seven bands of angels present in the sixth heaven that 'there is no difference in their faces or behaviour or manner of dress.'

In 4 Ezra vii. 97 the words 'incipiet vultus eorum fulgere sicut sol' are found in i. 5 'Their faces were shining like the sun'.

With 2 Baruch iv. 3 'I showed it (i.e. Paradise) to Adam before he sinned', compare xxxi. 2.

In the Epistle of Barnabas xv. 4 τί λέγει τό' Συνετέλεσεν ἐν ἑξ ἡμέραις. τοῦτο λέγει ὅτι ἐν ἑξακισχιλίοις ἔτεσιν συντελέσει Κύριος τὰ σύνπαντα. ἡ γὰρ ἡμέρα παρ' αὐτῷ σημαίνει χιλία ἔτη, we have an exposition of the rather confused words in our text, xxxii. 2-xxxiii. In xv. 5-7, however, the writer of this Epistle does not develop logically the thought with regard to the seventh day; for the seventh day on which God rested from His works should in accordance with the same principle of interpretation as in xv. 4 have been taken as a symbol of a thousand years of rest, i.e. the millennium. In xv. 8, however, this writer shows his return to our text by his use of the peculiar phrase 'the eighth day': οὐ τὰ νῦν σάββατα [ἐμοὶ] δεκτά, ἀλλὰ ὁ πεποίηκα, ἐν ᾧ καταπαύσας τὰ πάντα ἀρχὴν ἡμέρας ὀγδόης ποιήσω, ὃ ἐστιν ἄλλου κόσμου ἀρχήν. It may not be amiss here to point out that in the next chapter, in verse 5, 1 Enoch (lxxxix. 56, 66) is quoted as Scripture. The fact, therefore, that Barnabas does not quote our text as Scripture may point to his discrimination between the two books of Enoch to the detriment of the latter. Again in this Epistle, xviii. 1, the words ὁδοὶ δύο εἰσὶν . . . ἡ τε τοῦ φωτὸς καὶ ἡ τοῦ σκοτῶν seem to be derived from our text, xxx. 15, 'I . . . showed him the two ways, the light and the darkness.' Though the Two Ways are often described in early literature (see note on xxx. 15), only in Barnabas are they described in the same terms as in our text.

THE BOOK OF THE SECRETS OF ENOCH

In the New Testament the similarity of thought and diction is sufficiently large to establish a close connexion if not a literary dependence. With St. Matt. v. 9, 'Blessed are the peacemakers,' compare lii. 11, 'Blessed is he who implants peace.' With St. Matt. v. 34, 35, 37, 'Swear not at all: neither by the heaven . . . nor by the earth . . . nor by Jerusalem, . . . but let your speech be, Yea, yea: Nay, nay,' compare xlix. 1, 'I swear not by any oath, neither by heaven, nor by earth, nor by any other creature which God created. . . . If there is no truth in men, let them swear by the words, "yea, yea," or "nay, nay."' (See notes.)

With vii. 20, 'By their fruits ye shall know them,' compare xlii. 14, 'In their works are known those who lie evilly.' The words 'Be of good cheer, be not afraid,' St. Matt. xiv. 27, are of frequent occurrence in our text, i. 8; xx. 2; xxi. 3, &c. With St. Matt. xxv. 34, 'Inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world,' compare ix. 1, 'This place (i.e. Paradise) O Enoch, is prepared for the righteous . . . for eternal inheritance.' Next with John xiv. 2, 'In my Father's house are many mansions,' compare lxi. 2, 'In the great time (to come) . . . are many mansions prepared for men, good for the good, bad for the bad.' With Acts xiv. 15, 'Ye should turn from these vain things unto the living God, who made the heaven and the earth,' compare ii. 2, 'Bow not down to vain gods . . . who made neither heaven nor earth.' In the Pauline Epistles there are several parallels in thought and diction. With Col. i. 16, 'Dominions or principalities or powers,' compare xx. 1, 'Dominions, orders, and governments': with Eph. iv. 25, 'Speak ye truth each one with his neighbour,' compare xlii. 12, 'Blessed is he in whom is truth that he may speak truth to his neighbour.' For other Pauline parallels with our text see my edition, pp. xxxix-xli. With Heb. xi. 3, 'The worlds have been framed by the word of God, so that what is seen hath not been made out of things which do appear,' compare xxv. 1, 'I commanded . . . that visible things should come down from invisible,' and xxiv. 2, 'I tell to thee . . . all that I created from non-being, and visible things from invisible.' With Rev. i. 16, 'His countenance was as the sun shineth,' compare i. 4, 'Their faces were shining like the sun': with ix. 1, 'There was given to him the key of the pit of the abyss,' compare xlii. 1, 'The key-holders and guards of the gates of hell.' With Rev. iv. 6, 'A glassy sea,' compare iii. 3, 'A very great Sea greater than the earthly sea.' This sea in the first heaven, however, may be merely 'the waters which were above the firmament' (Gen. i. 7). With Rev. x. 5, 6, 'And the angel . . . sware . . . that there shall be time no longer,' compare lxxv. 7, 'Then all time shall perish, and the years,' &c.: xxxiii. 2, 'That . . . there should be . . . a time of not-counting, endless, with neither years, nor months,' &c.

Finally, in the T. Lev. iii. 2 we have avenging powers in the third heaven: ἐν αὐτῷ εἰςὶ πάντα τὰ πνεύματα τῶν ἐπαγωγῶν εἰς ἐκδίκησιν τῶν ἀνόμων, . . . οἱ ταχθέντες εἰς ἡμέραν κρίσεως, ποιῆσαι ἐκδίκησιν . . . τοῖς πνεύμασι τῆς πλάνης. With these compare the angels of punishment in the third heaven in x. 3. With the statement from Enoch in T. Dan v. 5, 6 τῶν πνευμάτων τῆς πονηρίας. 'Ανέγνων γὰρ ἐν βίβλῳ 'Ενώχ τοῦ δικαίου, ὅτι ὁ ἄρχων ὑμῶν ὁ Σατανᾶς ἐστίν we might compare xviii. 3, 'These are the Grigori (i.e. 'Εγγρηγοροί) who with their prince Satanail rejected the Lord of light.' In the T. Naph. iv. 1-2 the authority of Enoch is claimed by the writer as follows: 'Ανέγνων ἐν γραφῇ 'Ενώχ, ὅτι καλεγε ὑμεῖς ἀποστήσεσθε ἀπὸ κυρίου, πορευόμενοι κατὰ πᾶσαν ἀνομίαν ἐθνῶν, καὶ ποιήσετε πᾶσαν πονηρίαν Σοδόμων. 2. καὶ ἐπάξει κύριος ὑμῖν αἰχμαλωσίαν . . . ἕως ἀναλώσει κύριος πάντας ὑμᾶς. This may be a loose adaptation to later times of 2 Enoch xxxiv. 2, 3. The quotation in T. Sim. v. 4 is probably derived from the same source, and also that in T. Benj. 9 ὑπονοῶ δὲ καὶ πράξεις οὐ καλὰς ἐν ὑμῖν ἔσεσθαι, ἀπὸ λόγων 'Ενώχ τοῦ δικαίου' πορνεύσετε γὰρ πορνείαν Σοδόμων, καὶ ἀπωλείσθε ἕως βραχύ (so β S¹, and practically c). The words in T. Jud. xviii. 1-2 ἀνέγνων ἐν βίβλοις 'Ενώχ τοῦ δικαίου (so β A S¹, but not a), ὅσα κακὰ ποιήσετε ἐν ταῖς ἐσχάταις ἡμέραις. φυλάξασθε οὖν, τέκνα μου, ἀπὸ τῆς πορνείας may likewise be founded upon it. The loose and inaccurate character of the quotations may in part be accounted for as follows.

Although it is a matter of demonstration that a considerable part of the book was written originally in Greek, it seems no less sure that certain portions of it were founded on Hebrew originals. Such an hypothesis seems necessary owing to the above Enochic quotations which appear in the Testaments of the XII Patriarchs. For the fact that the latter work was written in Hebrew obliges us to conclude that its author or authors drew upon Hebrew originals in the quotations from Enoch. I have not attempted in the present work to discriminate the portions derived from Hebrew originals. For such a task we have not sufficient materials, and what we have, moreover, have not been preserved with sufficient accuracy.

But there is further evidence in this direction. Many of the most notable statements regarding Enoch in 2 Enoch are to be found in later Hebrew writings. Now it is hardly conceivable that these traditions were borrowed from a Greek source. We must assume that their source is native to Judaism, and that 2 Enoch is an outstanding and comparatively early representation of this tradition. This tradition appears in various forms in the 'Book of Enoch' (ספר חנוך), sometimes called the

INTRODUCTION

'Sepher Hekalot' (i.e. the 'Book of the Halls'), the 'Life of Enoch' (חיי חנוך), and the Hekalot Rabbati. We shall deal here only with the first and point out a few of the many points in which this work draws on 2 Enoch or rather upon the Hebrew source behind 2 Enoch.

In this work R. Ishmael (of the time of Hadrian) ascends through the six heavens and is received by the Metatron, i.e. Enoch, at the entrance to the seventh. Enoch tells him how he was translated (iii-v, vii-xvi) in a fiery chariot to heaven in order there to bear witness against his wicked contemporaries: how God transfigured him and made him like one of the archangels (cf. 2 Enoch xxii. 6^b-10): how he had been instructed in the mysteries of creation, in things past and to come (cf. 2 Enoch xxiv-xxxiii. 2): how God abode under the tree of life, when Adam was driven forth from Paradise (cf. 2 Enoch viii. 3): how Adam and his contemporaries saw the heavenly glory till the fall of the angels (cf. 2 Enoch xxxii. 2). In xviii-xxii the seven heavens are described, the courses of the sun, moon, and stars. Even the three heavens mentioned in 2 Enoch xxi. 6-xxii. 1—only in the Arecension as the eighth, ninth, and tenth, i.e. Muzaloth, Kuchavim, Aravoth—are reproduced here, but with a difference: Muzaloth and Kuchavim are placed below the seven heavens and Aravoth above them. This Jewish work was published by Jellinek, B. H. 1873, v. 170-190; and under the title ספר הכלות at Lemberg in 1864 and Warsaw in 1876.¹

Again we find a large amount of material has been borrowed from 2 Enoch by the נרלות משה which is printed in Jellinek's B.H.M., 9 sqq. This work tells of Moses' ascent to heaven, after Metatron has transformed his body into a fiery figure like to that of the angels. In the first heaven Moses sees waters, and also windows by which are let in and out all the things pertaining to human life and its needs. In the second heaven he sees the angels who control the clouds, the winds, and the rain; in the third, the angels placed over vegetation; in the fourth, those over the earth, sun, moon, stars, planets, and spheres. The seventh heaven, we observe, is called 'Arabot'. Moses is also privileged to view hell and Paradise. The angel Gabriel conducts him to hell. 'There he sees the manifold torments and punishments of the different classes of sinners, those who were envious of their fellow men and bore false witness against them; women who exposed their charms to young men; sinners who committed adultery, theft, and murder; those who perjured themselves; those who desecrated the Sabbath, despised the learned, and persecuted orphans; those who committed sodomy and idolatry, or cursed their parents; those who took bribes, put their fellow men to shame, delivered up their brother-Israelite to the Gentile, and denied the oral law; those that ate all kinds of forbidden food; usurers; apostates, and blasphemers; those who wrote the ineffable name of God, and those who ate on Yom Kippur.' In Paradise among other things Moses sees the guardian angel of Paradise sitting under the tree of life; also 'the fountain of life welling forth from beneath the tree of life and dividing itself into four streams, and four rivers flowing under each throne, the first of honey, the second of milk, the third of wine, and the fourth of pure balsam.'¹

§ 5. DATE AND AUTHORSHIP.

The question of the date has to a large extent been determined already. The passages presupposed by the Testaments of the XII Patriarchs must be of a pre-Christian date. These passages may belong to an older form of the Enoch tradition than 2 Enoch. 2 Enoch in its present form was written probably between 30 P.C. and A.D. 70. It was written after 30 B.C., for it makes use of Sirach, 1 Enoch, and the Book of Wisdom (see my edition pp. xxv. sq.), and before A.D. 70; for the temple is still standing. We may, therefore, reasonably assign its composition to the period A.D. 1-50.

The author was a Jew who lived in Egypt, probably in Alexandria. He belonged to the orthodox Hellenistic Judaism of his day. Thus he believed in the value of sacrifices, xlii. 6; lix. 1, 2; lxvi. 2; but he is careful to enforce enlightened views regarding them, xlv. 3, 4; lxi. 4, 5; in the law, lii. 8, 9; and likewise in a blessed immortality, l. 2; lxv. 6, 8-10; in which the righteous shall wear 'the raiment of God's glory', xxii. 8. In questions affecting the origin of the earth, sin, death, &c., he allows himself the most unrestricted freedom and borrows freely from every quarter. Thus, Platonic (xxx. 16, note), Egyptian (xxv. 2 note), and Zend (lviii. 4-6 notes), elements are adopted into his system. The result is naturally syncretistic.

§ 6. SOME OF THE AUTHOR'S VIEWS ON CREATION, ANTHROPOLOGY, AND ETHICS.

God in the beginning created the world out of nothing, xxiv. 2.² (For a detailed account of each day's creations see xxv-xxx.) In this creation He made seven heavens, xxx. 2, 3, and all the angelic hosts—the latter were created on the first day—and all animal and plant life, and finally man on the sixth day. After His work on the six days God rested on the seventh. This six days of work followed by a seventh of rest is at once a history of the past and a forecasting of the future. As the world was made in six days, so its history would be accomplished in 6,000 years, and as the six days of creation were followed by one of rest, so the 6,000 years of the world's history would be followed by a rest of 1,000 years. On its close would begin the eighth eternal day of blessedness when time should be no more, xxxii. 2—xxxiii. 2.

¹ See Jewish Encyc. i. 676-7, whence this account is derived.

² Or else formed it out of pre-existing elements, xxv. 1, where we have an adaptation of the egg theory of the universe.

THE BOOK OF THE SECRETS OF ENOCH

As regards man, all the souls of men were created before the foundation of the world, xxiii. 5, and also a future place of abode in heaven or hell for every individual soul, xlix. 2; lviii. 5; lxi. 2. The age was resolved for man's sake, lxv. 3 (B). When Wisdom made man of seven substances, xxx. 8, at God's command, God gave him the name Adam from the four quarters of the earth—ἀνατολή, δύσις, ἄρκτος, μεσημβρία—xxx. 13. Man's soul was created originally good, and while in the Garden he could see the angels in heaven, xxxi. 2. Free-will was bestowed upon him, and the knowledge of good and evil. He was likewise instructed in the Two Ways of light and darkness, and then left to mould his own destiny, xxx. 15. But the incorporation of the soul in the body with its necessary limitations biased its preferences in the direction of evil, and death came in as the fruit of sin, xxx. 16. Men and angels will be judged and punished for every form of sin¹, xl. 12, 13; xlvi. 3; lxv. 6; but the righteous will escape the last judgement, lxv. 8; lxvi. 7; and will be gathered in eternal life, lxv. 8, and will be seven times brighter than the sun, lxvi. 7, and they will have no labour, nor sickness, nor sorrow, nor anxiety, nor need, and an incorruptible paradise shall be their protection and their eternal habitation, lxv. 9, 10. As for sinners, hell is prepared for them as an eternal inheritance, x. 4, 6. And there is no intercession of departed saints for the living, liii. 1.

In an ethical regard there are many noble sentiments to be found in our author, but generally in a very unliterary form. The Slavonic Version is, no doubt, partially to be blamed here. I will append here an outline of a man's ethical duties with sundry beatitudes according to our author. Every man should work; for blessed is he who beholds the labour of his own hands, but cursed is he who looks to undo the labours of another, lii. 7, 8. And men, likewise, should be impartially just; for blessed is he who executes a just judgement, xlii. 7. And men should also practise charity and beneficence. They should not hide their silver in the earth, but assist the faithful man in his affliction, li. 2, and stretch out their hands to the orphan, the widow and the stranger, li. 1, and give bread to the hungry, and clothe the naked, and raise the fallen, and walk without blame before the face of the Lord, ix. Furthermore, men should not swear either by heaven or earth or by any other creature which God made, but by a word, yea, yea, or nay, nay, xlix. 1; neither should they avenge themselves, l. 4, nor abuse and calumniate their neighbour, lii. 2; but endure every affliction and every evil word and attack for the sake of the Lord, l. 3; li. 3. Moreover, they should shun pride: for God hates the proud, lxiii. 4; and walk in long-suffering, in humility, in faith and truth, in sickness, in abuse, in temptation, in nakedness, in privation, loving one another till they depart from this age of ills, lxvi. 6. Finally, whereas one man is more honourable than another, either on the ground of cunning or of strength, of purity or wisdom, of comeliness or understanding, let it be heard everywhere that none is better than he who fears God, xliii. 2, 3.

§ 7. ON THE VALUE OF THE BOOK IN ELUCIDATING CONTEMPORARY AND LATER RELIGIOUS THOUGHT.

See my edition, pp. xxix–xlvii.

§ 8. BIBLIOGRAPHY.

- Charles and Morfill. The Book of the Secrets of Enoch, translated from the Slavonic by W. R. Morfill, M.A. and edited with Introduction, Notes, and Indices, by R. H. Charles, Oxford, 1896.
- Bonwetsch. Das slawische Henochbuch (Abhandlungen der Göttinger Gesellsch. der Wissensch., philol.-hist. Klasse, Neue Folge, Bd. i, No. 3). Berlin, 1896.
- Harnack. Gesch. der altchristl. Literatur, II, i. 564 sq.
- Charles. Hastings, B. D. i. 708–11.
- Encyc. Bib.* i. 225–8.
- Encyc. Britt.*¹¹
- Littmann. Jewish Encyc. v. 181–2.

¹ Observe that men will be specially punished for ill-treatment of animals, lviii. 4–6.

THE BOOK OF THE SECRETS OF ENOCH

A

Of Enoch's life and dream.

THERE was a wise man, a great artificer, and the Lord conceived love for him and received him, that he should behold the uppermost dwellings and be an eye-witness of the wise and great and inconceivable and immutable realm of God Almighty, of the very wonderful and glorious and bright and many-eyed station of the Lord's servants, and of the inaccessible throne of the Lord, and of the degrees and manifestations of the incorporeal hosts, and of the ineffable ministration of the multitude of the elements, and of the various apparition and inexpressible singing of the host of Cherubim, and of the boundless light.

A

1₁ At that time, he said, when my 165th year was completed, I begat my son Mathusal. After this too I lived two hundred years and completed of all the years of my life three hundred and sixty-
2 five years. On the first day of the first month I was in my house alone and was resting on my 3 couch and slept. And when I was asleep, great distress came up into my heart, and I was weeping with my eyes in sleep, and I could not understand what this distress was, or what would 4 happen to me. And there appeared to me two men, exceeding big, so that I never saw such on 5 earth; their faces were shining like the sun, their eyes too were like a burning light, and from their lips was fire coming forth †with clothing and singing of various kinds† in appearance purple, their wings were brighter than gold, their hands whiter than snow. They were standing at the head of my couch and began to call me by my 6 name. And I arose from my sleep and saw clearly those two men standing in front of me.
7 And I saluted them and was seized with fear and the appearance of my face was changed from 8 terror, and those men said to me: 'Have courage, Enoch, do not fear; the eternal God sent us to

B

Now behold the books of the secret of God, the revelations of Enoch.

At that time when three hundred and sixty- 1 1 five years were fulfilled to me, on a certain day 2 of the second month I was alone in my house.

I was in great trouble, weeping with my eyes, 3 and was resting, asleep on my couch, and there 4 appeared to me two very big men, such as I have never seen on earth—their faces shone like the 5 sun, their eyes were like burning candles, out of their mouths was fire coming forth, their clothes and singing were various, and their arms like golden wings—at the head of my couch, and called upon me by my name.

And I having awoken from my sleep and stood 6 up †at my couch† bowed down to them and 7 covered my face from terror.

And the two men spoke to me: 'Have courage, 8
Enoch, do not fear, the Eternal Lord hath sent

1. 2, 3. Cf. 1 En. lxxxiii. 3, 5.

5. faces . . . sun. Cf. xix. 1; Rev. i. 16; 4 Ezra vii. 97.

eyes, &c. Dan. x. 6: cf. Ezek. i. 13; Rev. i. 14; xix. 12.

fire coming forth. Cf. Rev. ix. 17; xi. 5. The next clause is corrupt.

of various kinds (A). The text has razdayaniya = 'of distribution'. Emend to raz(d)niya = 'of different kinds'.

various (B), i.e. differing from one another.

their wings > B.

whiter than snow. Cf. 1 En. cvi. 2, 10; Apoc. Petri.

7. appearance . . . changed. Dan. v. 6, 9, 10.

8. Have courage. Cf. Matt. xiv. 27. The LXX renders thus the Hebrew 'fear not'.

do not fear. Cf. 2 Kings i. 15; Ezek. ii. 6; 1 En. xv. 1.

A

thee, and lo! thou shalt to-day ascend with us 9 into heaven, and thou shalt tell thy sons and all thy household all that they shall do without thee on earth in thy house, and let no one seek thee 10 till the Lord return thee to them. And I made haste to obey them and went out from my house, and made to the doors, as it was ordered me, and summoned my sons Mathusal and Regim and Gaidad and made known to them all the marvels those men had told me.

The Instruction. How Enoch instructed his sons.

2 1 Listen to me, my children. I know not whither 2 I go, or what will befall me; now therefore, my children, I tell you: turn not from God before the face of the vain, who made not Heaven and earth, for these shall perish and those who 3 worship them, and may the Lord make confident 4 your hearts in the fear of him. And now, my children, let no one think to seek me, until the Lord return me to you.

Of Enoch's assumption; how the angels took him into the first heaven.

3 1 It came to pass, when Enoch had told his sons, that the angels took him on to their wings and bore him up on to the first heaven and placed 2 him on the clouds. And there I looked, and again I looked higher, and saw the ether, and 3 they placed me on the first heaven and showed me a very great Sea, greater than the earthly sea.

Of the Angels ruling the stars.

4 1 They brought before my face the elders and rulers of the stellar orders, and showed me two hundred angels, who rule the stars and their 2 services to the heavens, and fly with their wings and come round all those who sail.

B us to thee, behold to-day thou shalt go up with us on to the heavens.

Tell thy sons and thy household all that they 9 must do in thy house, and let no one seek thee, till the Lord return thee to them.

And I listened and went out, summoned my 10 sons Mefusailom and Regim, and told them all that those two men had spoken to me.

And behold, my children, I know not whither 2
 I go, nor what will befall me, and now, my chil- 2 dren, turn not away from God, walk before the Lord's face and observe his judgements, and bow not down to vain gods, to gods who made neither heaven nor earth, they shall perish.

Keep your hearts true to terror of the Lord, 3 and now, my children, let no one seek me till 4 the Lord return me to you.

Enoch's ascent on to the first heaven.

And it happened when I had spoken to my 3 sons, and the two men summoned me, and took me on to their wings and carried me up on to the first heaven and set me down there, and brought 4

 me before the face of the elder, the ruler of the stellar orders, and he showed me all their courses, and their passages from year to year, and he showed me two hundred angels, and he showed me there a very great sea, greater than the earthly 2 sea, and angels were flying with their wings.

ascend with us. Cf. iii. 1, &c.

9. sons. 1 En. lxxxii. 5, 6; xci. 1 mentions them, but not by name.

10. Regim. See lvii. 2.

Gaidad. Gen. iv. 18 (LXX) gives this as the son of the Enoch who is Cain's grandson. So B rightly omits.

II. 1. know not whither. Cf. vii. 5.

2. turn not from God. 1 Sam. xii. 20.

vain gods . . . who made neither heaven nor earth (B). Cf. Acts xiv. 15; Jer. x. 11; also Ps. xcvi. 5; Isa.
 ii. 18; Jub. xii. 2, 3, 4.

3. make confident, &c. Prov. xiv. 26.

III. 1. In 1 En. xiv. 8 the clouds invite and the winds raise Enoch.

2. the ether = the firmament of Asc. Isa. vii. 9, i. e. the first heaven.

3. a very great Sea. Cf. Rev. iv. 6; xv. 2. In Test. Levi ii. 7 this sea lies between the first and second heavens.

IV. 1. the elders, starêishina = 'elder', i. e. one set in command over.

the rulers of the stellar orders. For another account of these see 1 En. lxxxiii. 9-18, 20. Note the divergence of B, which makes the elder, or special angel, of the stars act as guide to Enoch in the first heaven.

two hundred angels. In 1 En. vi. 5 this is the number of the apostatizing angels.

A

Of how the Angels keep the store-houses of the snow.

5 1 And here I looked down and saw the treasure-houses of the snow, and the angels who keep 2 their terrible store-houses, and the clouds whence they come out and into which they go.

Of the dew and of the olive-oil, and various flowers.

3 1 They showed me the treasure-house of the dew, like oil of the olive, and the appearance of its form, as of all the flowers of the earth; further many angels guarding the treasure-houses of these things, and how they are made to shut and open.

Of how Enoch was taken on to the second heaven.

7 1 And those men took me and led me up on to the second heaven, and showed me darkness, greater than earthly darkness, and there I saw prisoners hanging, watched, awaiting the great
2 and boundless judgement, and these angels were dark-looking, more than earthly darkness, and incessantly making weeping through all hours, and I said to the men who were with me:
3 'Wherefore are these incessantly tortured?' they answered me: 'These are God's apostates, who obeyed not God's commands, but took counsel with their own will, and turned away with their prince, who also is fastened on the fifth heaven.
4 And I felt great pity for them, and they saluted me, and said to me: 'Man of God, pray for us to 5 the Lord'; and I answered to them: 'Who am I, a mortal man, that I should pray for angels? who knoweth whither I go, or what will befall me? or who will pray for me?'

Of the assumption of Enoch to the third heaven.

8 1 And those men took me thence, and led me up on to the third heaven, and placed me there;

B

He showed me the store-house of cloud, whence 5 1 it goes up and goes out, and showed me all the treasure-houses of snow and cold, and terrible angels guarding the treasure-houses, and he 6 1 showed me the treasure-houses of the dew, like olive oil, and angels guarding their treasure-houses, and their clothing like all the flowers of the earth.

Enoch's ascent to the second heaven.

And the two men placed me thence and carried 7 1 me up on to the second heaven, and showed me there prisoners kept of the measureless judgement, and I saw the condemned weeping, and I spoke 2 to the two men who were with me: 'Wherefore are these tormented?' and the two men said to me: 'These are the Lord's apostates, not listen- 3 ing to the Lord's voice, but taking counsel of their own will.'

And I was very sorry for them. And the 4 angels bowed down to me and said to me: 'Man of God, would that thou mightst pray for us to God!'

And I answered them: 'Who am I, a mortal 5 man, that I should pray for angels? who knows whither I go or what will befall me or who pray for me?'

The ascent on to the third heaven.

And the two men placed me thence and carried 8 1 me up on to the third heaven and set me down

V. 1. treasure-houses of the snow. Job xxxviii. 22; cf. 1 En. lx. 17, 18—in the second heaven according to Test. Levi iii. 2.

store-house of cloud (B). Cf. 1 En. lx. 19. A seems corrupt.

VI. 1. treasure-house of the dew. Cf. 1 En. lx. 20.

VII. 1. darkness . . . prisoners . . . watched, awaiting the great and boundless judgement. Cf. 2 Pet. ii. 4; Jude 6, and possibly Test. Levi iii. 2. The angels who sinned with women are imprisoned under the earth in 1 En. x as in 2 En. xviii. 7; those who sinned by ambition are imprisoned in the second heaven. See, however, xviii. 4 (note).

3. took counsel with their own will. Cf. Isa. xlvi. 10.

their prince = Satanail, xviii. 3.

fifth heaven. These angels had originally been in the fifth heaven, see xviii. But it is hard to see why their leader alone should be imprisoned there, when they are reduced to the second. See xxix. 3-5 (notes).

4. The angels ask Enoch to intercede for them, as in 1 En. xiii. 4.

Man of God. Deut. xxxiii. 1.

5. Cf. 1 En. xv. 2.

VIII. 1. Paradise is here in the third heaven, as in 2 Cor. xii. 2, 4.

A

and I looked downwards, and saw the produce of these places, such as has never been known for 2 goodness. And I saw all the sweet-flowering trees and beheld their fruits, which were sweet-smelling, and all the foods borne by them bubbling
 3 with fragrant exhalation. [And in the midst of the trees that of life, in that place whereon the Lord rests, when he goes up into paradise; and this tree is of ineffable goodness and fragrance,
 4 and adorned more than every existing thing; and on all sides it is in form gold-looking and vermilion and fire-like and covers all, and it has produce from all fruits. Its root is in the garden
 5 at the earth's end. (And paradise is between corruptibility and incorruptibility.) And two springs come out which send forth honey and milk, and their springs send forth oil and wine, and they separate into four parts, and go round
 6 with quiet course, and go down into the paradise of Eden, between corruptibility and incorruptibility. And thence they go forth along the earth, and have a revolution to their circle even as other
 7 elements. And here there is no unfruitful tree,
 8 and every place is blessed. And there are three hundred angels very bright, who keep the garden, and with incessant sweet singing and never-silent voices serve the Lord throughout all days and hours. And I said: 'How very sweet is this place,' and those men said to me:

The showing to Enoch of the place of the righteous and compassionate.

9 1 This place, O Enoch, is prepared for the righteous, who endure all manner of offence from those that exasperate their souls, who avert their eyes from iniquity, and make righteous judgement, and give bread to the hungry, and cover the naked with clothing, and raise up the fallen, and help injured orphans, and who walk without fault before the face of the Lord, and serve him in the midst of Paradise, and a place unknown in goodness of appearance.

B

Every tree sweet-flowering, every fruit ripe, all 2 manner of food perpetually bubbling with all pleasant smells, and four rivers flowing by with quiet course, and every growth is good, bearing fruit for food, and the tree of life is at that 3 place, at which God rests when he goes up into Paradise, and that tree is ineffable for the goodness of its sweet scent, and another olive tree 5 alongside was always discharging the oil of its fruit.

And there is no tree there without fruit, and 7 every tree is blessed. And the angels guarding 8 the Paradise are very bright and serve the Lord all days with incessant voice and sweet singing. And I said: 'How very sweet is this place!'

And the two men answered me: 'This place, 9 Enoch, is prepared for the righteous, who suffer offence in their lives and spite in their souls, and avert their eyes from injustice and make righteous judgement, to give bread to the hungry, to clothe the naked and cover them with a garment, to raise the fallen, and help the wronged, who walk before God's face and serve him alone; now unknown in goodness of appearance (B), i. e. the like of which is not known anywhere else.

2. all the sweet-flowering trees, &c. Cf. Gen. ii. 9; 1 En. xxix. 2; Apoc. Mosis xxxviii. 4.

all the foods. Cf. 'twelve manner of fruits', Rev. xxii. 2.

3. in the midst of the trees that of life. For the 'tree of life' see Gen. ii. 9. For this familiar feature in Jewish Apocalypse cf. 1 En. xxv. 4, 5; Rev. ii. 7; xxii. 2, 14; 4 Ezra vii. 53; viii. 52; Test. Levi xviii. 11. See also Iren. i. 5, 2. Epiphanius, Haer. 66, p. 278, bans the doctrine as Manichaeism.

in that place whereon the Lord rests. Cf. Apoc. Pauli (ed. Tisch., p. 64) δένδρον παρμεγέθη ώραίον, ἐν ᾧ ἐπαναπαύετο τὸ πνεῦμα ἅγιον, and Apoc. Mosis xxii. 4 καὶ ὁ θρόνος τοῦ θεοῦ ὅπου ἦν τὸ ξύλον τῆς ζωῆς ἐνετρεπίζετο.

5. between corruptibility and incorruptibility, i. e. at the earth's end. Cf. 'the ends of the earth,' 1 En. xxxiii. 1, to which Enoch proceeds from the garden of righteousness.

four rivers (B). These are taken over into the Apoc. Pauli (ed. Tisch., p. 52), and also into the Koran xlvi, where, however, a river of incorruptible water replaces the river of oil. The writer seems to be bringing into one organic conception what were originally two different conceptions—the earthly and the heavenly Paradise. The former was the older idea: Gen. ii. 8-17; 1 En. xxxii. 3-6; lxxvii. 3. The latter occurs in 1 En. lx. 8, lxi. 12, lxx. 3.

another olive tree (B). Cf. xxii. 8; Evang. Nicod. ii. 3.

IX. 1. prepared for the righteous. Cf. Matt. xxv. 34; also 1 En. lx. 8 (note).

avert their eyes from iniquity. Ps. cxix. 37.

make righteous judgement. Ezek. xviii. 8.

give bread, &c. Ezek. xviii. 7; cf. Tob. iv. 16; 4 Ezra ii. 20; Or. Sibyll. ii. 83; viii. 404-5 and esp. Matt. xxv. 35-9.

help injured orphans. Cf. Isa. i. 17; Jer. xxii. 3, 16.

walk without fault. Luke i. 6.

A

alone, and for them is prepared this place for eternal inheritance.

Here they showed Enoch the terrible place and various tortures.

1 And those two men led me up on to the Northern side, and showed me there a very 2 terrible place, and there were all manner of 3 tortures in that place: cruel darkness and un-4 illuminated gloom, and there is no light there, but 5 murky fire constantly flameth aloft, and there is 6 a fiery river coming forth, and that whole place is everywhere fire, and everywhere there is frost and ice, thirst and shivering, while the bonds are very cruel, and the angels fearful and merciless, bearing angry weapons, merciless torture, and I said: 'Woe, woe, how very terrible is this place,' and those men said to me: This place, O Enoch, is prepared for those who dishonour God, who on earth practise sin against nature, which is child-corruption after the sodomitic fashion, magic-making, enchantments and devilish witch-crafts, and who boast of their wicked deeds, stealing, lies, calumnies, envy, rancour, fornication, murder, and who accursed, steal the souls of men, who, seeing the poor take away their goods and themselves wax rich, injuring them for other men's goods; who being able to satisfy the empty, made the hungering to die; being able to clothe, stripped the naked; and who knew not their creator, and bowed down to soulless (sc. lifeless) Gods, who cannot see nor hear, vain gods, who also built hewn images and bow down to unclean handiwork, for all these is prepared this place amongst these, for eternal inheritance.

B

for these is this place prepared for an eternal inheritance.'

And the two men lifted me up thence, and 10 carried me up to the north of the heaven, and showed me there a very terrible place, all torture and torment; at that place there was darkness and gloom, and there is no light there, but fire and flame, and obscurity comes down at that place and there is cold and ice and dungeons, and 3 cruel relentless angels carrying arms and tormenting without mercy.

And I said: 'How very terrible is this place. 4
And the two men answered me: 'This place, Enoch, is prepared for the dishonest, that work godless things on earth, who make witchcraft and sorcery and boast of their works, who steal 5 men's souls secretly, who sever a binding yoke, who grow rich by doing violence, from the property of the others, who being able to feed, kill the hungering through famine, and being able to clothe the naked, took away their clothes, who recognized not their creator, but bowed down to 6 vain gods: for all these is this place prepared for an eternal inheritance.'

eternal inheritance. Cf. Heb. ix. 15.

X. 1-6. The idea of evil in heaven is foreign to modern thought, but we find Satan presenting himself in heaven in Job i. 7, 8, while Eph. vi. 12 speaks of 'the spiritual hosts of wickedness in the heavenly places'. Rev. xii. 7, 8, 9 represents the end of this state of things. Satan is cast down and henceforth limited to the earth, xii. 12. The older view is found in Test. Isaac 146, 147; Test. Jacob 153, but was later banished from both Christian and Jewish thought.

2. darkness, &c. Cf. Apoc. Petri 12; Apoc. Pauli, pp. 57 and 62.

gloom (B). m'gla can also mean fog.

fiery river. In 1 En. xiv. 19; Dan. vii. 10 this idea is connected with God's holiness, but here it connotes punishment, like the Greek Pyriphlegethon. Cf. Rev. xix. 20; xx. 10, 14, 15; xxi. 8; Or. Sibyll. ii. 196-200, 252-3, 286; iii. 84; viii. 411; Apoc. Petri 8; Apoc. Pauli, p. 57. Clem. Alex. Exc. Theod. 38 combines the two ideas.

fire . . . and frost and ice. Cf. 1 En. xiv. 13, where God's dwelling is described.

3. For angels of destruction, cf. 2 Sam. xxiv. 16; 2 Kings xix. 35; 1 Chron. xxi. 15; and probably Sirach xxxix. 28. In 1 En. liii. 3, 4; lvi. 1; lxii. 11; lxiii. 1, a class of evil angels whose sole function is to punish first appears, and the idea seems already a familiar one. Cf. Rev. ix. 11, 15 (Apollyon); xvi. In Matt. xiii. 49, however, good angels cast the wicked into the furnace of fire. For later occurrences of the view cf. Test. Levi iii. 3; Apoc. Petri 6, 8. Test. Abraham A. xii follows our text closely.

4. prepared, &c. Contrast Matt. xxv. 41.

4, 5. For the sins cf. Rev. xxi. 8; Apoc. Petri 17; Test. Isaac (ed. James, p. 148). One is too gross to appear in the text.

5. souls of men. Cf. Rev. xviii. 13.

6. Cf. Lev. xix. 4; xxvi. 1; Or. Sibyll. v. 77-85; viii. 378-81; 395-8; Fragm. i. 20-2; iii. 21-45.

A

Here they took Enoch up on to the fourth heaven where is the course of sun and moon.

11¹ Those men took me, and led me up on to the fourth heaven, and showed me all the successive goings, and all the rays of the light of sun and moon. And I measured their goings, and compared their light, and saw that the sun's light is greater than the moon's. Its circle and the wheels on which it goes always, like a wind going past with very marvellous speed, and day and night it has no rest. Its passage and return are accompanied by four great stars, and each star has under it a thousand stars, to the right of the sun's wheel, and by four to the left, each having under it a thousand stars, altogether eight thousand, issuing with the sun continually. And by day fifteen myriads of angels attend it, and by night a thousand. And six-winged ones issue with the angels before the sun's wheel into the fiery flames, and a hundred angels kindle the sun and set it alight.

Of the very marvellous elements of the sun.

12¹ And I looked and saw other flying elements of the sun, whose names are Phoenixes and Chalkydri, marvellous and wonderful, with feet and tails in the form of a lion, and a crocodile's head, their appearance is empurpled, like the rainbow; their size is nine hundred measures, their wings are like those of angels, each has twelve, and they attend and accompany the sun, bearing heat and dew, as it is ordered them from God. Thus the sun revolves and goes, and rises under the heaven, and its course goes under the earth with the light of its rays incessantly.

XI. 1. fourth heaven. This, according to Chagiga 12^b, contained the heavenly Jerusalem, the temple, the altar, and Michael who offered daily sacrifice.

the successive goings . . . of sun and moon. Cf. 1 En. lxxii-lxxviii.

2. The sun has sevenfold more light, &c. (B). Cf. 1 En. lxxii. 37.

the wheels ('the chariots', B). Cf. 1 En. lxxii. 5, lxxiii. 2, lxxv. 3, lxxxii. 8. day and night it has no rest. 1 En. xli. 7, lxxii. 37.

3, 4. Not in 1 En.

5. Cf. 1 En. lxxv. 4.

XII. 1. Phoenixes and Chalkydri. This is the only reference to these creatures in literature. The phoenix was always solitary, Tac. Ann. vi. 28. Jewish authorities find a reference to the phoenix in Job xxix. 18, where they render כחול 'as the phoenix' and not 'as the sand'. The fable was believed in by 1 Clem. ad Cor. xxv; Tertullian, de Res. Carn. xiii, &c. The poem De Phoenixe of the pseudo-Lactantius has many apparent references to our text. The phoenix is, e. g. a 'satelles Phoebi' (33, cf. xii. 2 here), it greets the sun at rising (43-50) and claps its wings (51-4). Cf. xv. 1. For the two different legends in the Talmud about the phoenix's origin see Hamburger, R.-E. für den Talmud, 508-9, and on the question generally, Lightfoot, &c., on 1 Clem. ad Cor. xxv.

Chalkydri, seemingly a transliteration of Χαλκύδραι, brazen hydras or serpents. These are classed with the Cherubim in 1 En. xx. 7, and so = the Seraphim of Isa. vi. 2, 6. These then were perhaps conceived as winged dragons, as the analogy of the animal-like forms of the Cherubim in Ezek. i. 5-11 would lead us to suppose. The Serpent as an object of reverence or a symbol of healing occurs in Num. xxi. 8, 9; 2 Kings xviii. 4; Matt. x. 16; John iii. 14; in a physically bad sense in Num. xxi. 6; Deut. viii. 15; Isa. xiv. 29, xxx. 6; and morally as a designation of Satan in Rev. xii. 9. It is significant that neither Cherubim nor Seraphim occur in the N.T.; their characteristics are fused in the four living creatures of Rev. iv. 6-8.

feet and tails . . . of a lion. The Cherubim's feet in Ezek. i. 7 are like calves' feet.

2. each has twelve, i. e. twice as many wings as the angel of xi. 4.

bearing heat and dew. Contrast 1 En. lx. 20.

3. goes under the earth. This seems to conflict with xxx. 3, where the sun's goings would appear to be in the fourth heaven. See xiv. 2 (note).

incessantly. Cf. 'always', xi. 2.

B

Enoch's ascent on to the fourth heaven.

And the two men lifted me up thence, and carried me up on to the fourth heaven, and showed me all the courses and goings and all the rays of the light both of the sun and of the moon, their measurements and their goings, and I saw their goings.

The sun has sevenfold more light than the moon and their circles are the chariots on which each of them rides just as the wind goes, and ever going and returning they have rest neither by day nor by night.

And I saw four great stars on the right of the sun's chariot and four on the left going with the sun always, and angels going before the sun's chariot.

Flying spirits, each having twelve wings, and each of the angels that rolls the chariot has twelve wings, carrying dew and heat, when the Lord commands them to descend on to the earth with the sun's rays.

A

The angels took Enoch and placed him in the east at the sun's gates.

- 3¹ Those men bore me away to the east, and placed me at the sun's gates, where the sun goes forth according to the regulation of the seasons and the circuit of the months of the whole year, and the number of the †hours† day and night.
 2 And I saw six gates open, each gate having sixty-one stadia and a quarter of one stadium, and I measured them truly, and understood their size to be so much, through which the sun goes forth, and goes to the west, and is made even,
 4 and rises throughout all the months, and turns back again from the six gates according to the 5 succession of the seasons; thus the period of the whole year is finished after the returns of the four seasons.

They took Enoch to the West.

- 4¹ And again those men led me away to the western parts, and showed me six great gates open corresponding to the Eastern gates, opposite to where the sun sets, according to the number of the days three hundred and sixty-five and a 2 quarter. Thus again it goes down to the western gates, and draws away its light, the greatness of its brightness, under the earth; for since the crown of its shining is in heaven with the Lord,
 3 and guarded by four hundred angels, while the sun goes round on wheel under the earth, and stands seven great hours in night, and spends half its course under the earth, when it comes to the eastern approach in the eighth hour of the night, it brings its lights, and the crown of shining, and the sun flames forth more than fire.

The elements of the sun, the Phoenixes and Chalkydri broke into song.

- 15¹ Then the elements of the sun, called Phoenixes and Chalkydri break into song, therefore every bird flutters with its wings, rejoicing at the giver of light, and they broke into song at the command of the Lord.
 2 The giver of light comes to give brightness to

B

And the two men carried me to the East of 13¹ the heaven and showed me the gates through which the sun goes up at the appointed seasons and after the completion of every month and after the shortening to the lengthening of the days and nights, six great gates, and the greatness of 2 the proportions of those gates, and I could not comprehend their greatness; and of those through which the sun goes up and goes over to the West 3 through the first gates it goes out forty-two days, through the second gates thirty-five, through the fourth gates thirty-five days, through the fifth thirty-five, through the sixth gates . . . at the going out of the season the years finish at 5 the returns of the seasons.

And the two men carried me up to the West 14¹ of the heaven and showed me six great open gates after the Eastern entrance and opposite it, through which (sc. gates) the sun goes down there after the going up from the Eastern gates and according to the number of days, thus it goes down 2 through the Western gates. When it goes out from the Western gates, four angels take the crown and carry it up to the Lord, and the sun turns its 3 chariot and goes out without light, and they put the crown on it again at the Eastern gates.

XIII. 1. the sun's gates, i.e. the six of the next verse. Cf. 1 En. lxxii. 2-37, which is no doubt the original of this chapter.

2-5. Corrupt.

5. four seasons. Cf. xl. 6. Two of the four are dealt with in 1 En. lxxxii. 15-20.

XIV. 1. three hundred and sixty-five and a quarter. The writer of 1 En. lxxii-lxxxii knew of the solar year, but refused to recognize it from national prejudice.

2. In 1 En. lxxii. 5 the sun returns after sunset through the north to the east to rise again. In our text, however, during the night the sun, which revolves through the fourth heaven xi, xxx. 3, goes under the earth. It is without light at night, as its crown is taken from it, and its own light is under the earth. The sun cannot shine before the Light of the Universe, Apoc. Mosis xxxvi. 3. The crown is the added light bestowed by God.

3. stands. We should expect 'ceases from shining'; B has 'goes without light'.

spends half its course, i.e. apparently the seven hours, which are not hours of fixed duration. But it is hard to see why there should be seven hours.

XV. 1. See xii. 1 (note).

therefore every bird . . . light. A parenthetic reference to the songs of birds at sunrise.

A

the whole world, and the morning guard takes shape, which is the rays of the sun, and the sun of the earth goes out, and receives its brightness
 3 to light up the whole face of the earth, and they showed me this calculation of the sun's going. And the gates which it enters, these are the great gates of the †computation of the hours†
 4 of the year; for this reason the sun is a great creation, whose circuit lasts twenty-eight years, and begins again from the beginning.

They took Enoch and again placed him in the east at the course of the moon.

16 1 Those men showed me the other course, that of the moon, twelve great gates, crowned from west to east, by which the moon goes in and out
 2 of the customary times. It goes in at the first gate to the western places of the sun, by the first gates with thirty-one days exactly, by the second gates with thirty-one days exactly, by the third with thirty days exactly, by the fourth with thirty days exactly, by the fifth with thirty-one days exactly, by the sixth with thirty-one days exactly, by the seventh with thirty days exactly, by the eighth with thirty-one days perfectly, by the ninth with thirty-one days exactly, by the tenth with thirty days perfectly, by the eleventh with thirty-one days exactly, by the twelfth with 3 twenty-eight days exactly. And it goes through the western gates in the order and number of the 4 eastern, and accomplishes the three hundred and sixty-five and a quarter days of the solar year,
 5 while the lunar year has three hundred and fifty-four, and there are wanting to it twelve days of the solar circle, which are the lunar epacts of the whole year. [Thus, too, the great circle con-
 6 tains five hundred and thirty-two years.] The quarter of a day is omitted for three years, the fourth fulfils it exactly. Therefore they are taken outside of heaven for three years and are not added to the number of days, because they

B

The two angels showed me this disposition of 15 the gates by which it goes up and goes out. These gates the Lord made for the taking of time and counting of the years for the sun.

And they showed me the other lunar disposi- 16 tion, all its courses, and the two men pointed out to me all its circuits, and they pointed out to me its gates, twelve eternal gates to the East, through which the moon enters at the usual seasons, thus also through the Western gates 2 after going round and according to the number of the Eastern gates.

Thus it goes down also through the Western 3 gates, and completes the year; therefore it goes 5 in the year with three hundred and sixty-four days complete, and therefore it is called outside heaven, and the years are not reckoned in the 6 number of the days, because the seasons of the year change.

XVI. 1. Twelve great gates. These are the same as the gates of the sun in xiii, xiv.

2. This account cannot possibly apply to the moon, but applies perfectly to the sun, which must therefore be understood as the subject. The numbers when added together = 365, which accords with the statement in verse 4 that a solar year = $365\frac{1}{4}$ days, while in verse 5 we proceed to the lunar year which amounts to 354 days.

5. 364 days complete (B). This seems to be an error for 354 (A).

twelve days. More exactly $11\frac{1}{4}$.

[Thus, too, the great cycle contains five hundred and thirty-two years]. I have bracketed these words as they have no real connexion with the context. They arose obviously from a marginal gloss. The writer in this chapter does not get beyond the Metonic cycle, whereas the great cycle of 532 years is produced by multiplying together the Metonic cycle of 19 years and the Solar cycle of 28 years. This great cycle is called the Dionysian or Great Paschal Period. As it includes all the variations in respect of the new moons and the dominical letters, it is consequently a period in which Easter and all the movable and immovable feasts would occur on the same day of the week and month as in the corresponding year of the preceding cycle. This cycle was first proposed by Victorius of Aquitaine, c. A. D. 457. It is obvious that any reference to such a cycle here is an intrusion.

6. the quarter, &c. Explanation of leap year.

because they† change the time, &c. Hopelessly corrupt.

7. with its light (B). This seems to imply that her light is not borrowed from the sun as is taught in 1 En. lxxiii; 'to the lights' (A) seems meaningless.

A

†change the time of the years to two new months towards completion, to two others towards 7 diminution†. And when the western gates are finished, it returns and goes to the eastern to the lights, and goes thus day and night about the heavenly circles, lower than all circles, swifter than the heavenly winds, and spirits and elements 8 and angels flying; each angel has six wings. It has a sevenfold course in nineteen years.

Of the singings of the angels, which it is impossible to describe.

7 1 In the midst of the heavens I saw armed soldiers, serving the Lord, with tympana and organs, with incessant voice, with sweet voice, with sweet and incessant voice and various singing, which it is impossible to describe, and which astonishes every mind, so wonderful and marvelous is the singing of those angels, and I was delighted listening to it.

Of the taking of Enoch on to the fifth heaven.

3 1 The men took me on to the fifth heaven and placed me, and there I saw many and countless soldiers, called Grigori, of human appearance, and their size was greater than that of great giants

B

And when they †finish the Western 7 gates and it goes towards the Eastern with its light.

Thus their circle goes around like the heaven, and their chariot, on to which the wind mounts in its course, and flying spirits draw along their chariot, six wings to each angel.

This is the lunar disposition.

And in the midst of the heaven I saw armed 17 1 troops serving the Lord on cymbals and organs with incessant voice. And I was delighted listening to them.

Enoch's ascent on to the fifth heaven.

And the men carried me up on to the fifth 18 1 heaven, and I saw there many troops, Egoroi, and their appearance was like the human appearance and their size greater than that of great giants

A

2 and their faces withered, and the silence of their mouths perpetual, and there was no service on the fifth heaven, and I said to the men who were with me: 'Wherefore are these very withered and their faces melancholy, and their mouths silent, and wherefore is there no service on this heaven?' 3 And they said to me: These are the Grigori, who with their prince Satanail rejected the Lord of each angel has six wings. The moon's attendant angels have six wings, as the sun's attendant creatures had twelve (xii. 2).

8. The reference is to the Metonic cycle, which consists of a period of nineteen solar years, after which the new moons happen on the same days of the year once more. As nineteen solar years = 6,939.186 days = 235 lunar months = nineteen lunar years and seven months, the solar and lunar years can be reconciled by intercalating seven lunar months at the close of the 5th, 8th, 11th, 13th, 16th, and 19th years of the cycle.

XVII. armed soldiers. The purpose for which they are armed is given in Test. Levi iii. 3, where, however, they are in the third heaven, not the fourth. They are ταχθέντες εἰς ἡμέραν κρίσεως, ποιῆσαι ἐκδίκησιν ἐν τοῖς πνεύμασι τῆς πλάνης καὶ τοῦ Βελίαρ.

serving the Lord . . . various singing. This is the function assigned by Test. Levi iii. 8 to the inhabitants of the fourth heaven . . . ἐν ᾧ αἰεὶ ὕμνοι τῷ θεῷ προσφέρονται. Note the dittography 'with sweet and incessant (voice)'.

XVIII. 1. fifth heaven. Our text and Test. Levi iii. 7 differ absolutely as to the inhabitants of the fifth heaven. According to the latter the inhabitants are οἱ ἄγγελοι οἱ φέροντες τὰς ἀποκρίσεις τοῖς ἀγγέλοις τοῦ προσώπου κυρίου. This view, however, seems limited to the Test. Levi, whereas we find in Chag. 12^b the same view expressed as here: i.e. in ןעו the fifth heaven are to be found 'hosts of angels praising God by night, but keeping silent by day that God may hear the praises of Israel.' The latter clause is a late Rabbinic idea. Again, in Clem. Alex. Strom. v. 11. 77, we find a fragment of the Apocalypse of Zephaniah which supports, and in all probability is based on, our text: ἀρ' οὐχ ὁμοια ταῦτα τοῖς ὑπὸ σοφονία λεχθεῖσι τοῦ προφήτου; καὶ ἀνέλαβέν με πνεῦμα καὶ ἀνήνεγκέν με εἰς οὐρανὸν πέμπτον καὶ ἐθεώρουν ἀγγέλους καλουμένους κυρίους . . . ὑμνοῦντας θεὸν ἄρρητον ὑψίστον. This Apocalypse is extant in Thebaic in a fragmentary condition, but these fragments do not contain the passage just quoted.

Grigori. These are the Watchers, the Ἐγγήγοροι, or 𐤆𐤇𐤅, of whom we have so full accounts in 1 En. vi-xvi, xix, lxxxvi.

3. The Grigori. These are the angels whose brethren rebelled and were confined in the second heaven. See vi. 3 (note). These Watchers rebelled against God before the angels were tempted to sin with the daughters of men. In other words, we have here the agents of the original revolt in heaven, the Satans; and their leader is naturally named Satanail. These existed as evil agencies before the fall of the angels; for in 1 En. liv. 6 the guilt of the latter consisted in becoming subject to Satan. See 1 En. xl. 7 (note). The myth here, however, varies somewhat from that in 1 En. vi-xvi. The leaders in 1 En. vi-xvi are not Satans, but 'Watchers', like their followers. In 1 En. lxix, however, we have an account which harmonizes with our text. There we see that the superior angels had

A

4 light, and after them are those who are held in great darkness on the second heaven, and three of them went down on to earth from the Lord's throne, to the place Ermon, and broke through their vows on the shoulder of the hill Ermon and saw the daughters of men how good they are, and took
5 to themselves wives, and befouled the earth with their deeds, who in all times of their age made
6 lawlessness and mixing, and giants are born and marvellous big men and great enmity. And therefore God judged them with great judgement, and they weep for their brethren and they will be 7 punished on the Lord's great day. And I said to the Grigori: 'I saw your brethren and their works, and their great torments, and I prayed for them, but the Lord has condemned them to be
8 under earth till heaven and earth shall end for ever.' And I said: 'Wherefore do you wait, brethren, and do not serve before the Lord's face, and have not put your services before the Lord's face, lest you anger your Lord utterly?'

9 And they listened to my admonition, and spoke to the four ranks in heaven, and lo! as I stood with those two men four trumpets trumpeted together with great voice, and the Grigori broke into song with one voice, and their voice went up before the Lord pitifully and affectingly.

A

Of the taking of Enoch on to the sixth heaven.

19 ¹ And thence those men took me and bore me up on to the sixth heaven, and there I saw seven bands of angels, very bright and very glorious, and their faces shining more than the sun's shining, glistening, and there is no difference in
2 their faces, or behaviour, or manner of dress; and these make the orders, and learn the goings of the stars, and the alteration of the moon, or revolution of the sun, and the good government
3 of the world. And when they see evil-doing

B

And the two men took me from thence, they ¹⁹ carried me up on to the sixth heaven, and I saw there seven ranks of angels very bright and glorious, their faces shining like the sun, and there is no difference in their faces, nor in their extent, nor in the composition of their clothes.

These organize and learn the good ordering of ² the world and the goings of the stars, of the sun and of the moon.

Angels, angels, these heavenly angels harmo- ³ rebelled before the creation of Adam; that they had tempted Eve and brought about the fall of the angels in the days of Jared. Thus, in 1 En. lxix and here, the leaders of the angels who fell in Jared's days are Satans. This is practically the view of portions of the Talmud. See Weber, pp. 211, 243, 244.

who with their prince Satanail. Quoted in Test. Dan v. 5, 6 . . . τῶν πνευμάτων τῆς πονηρίας. 'Ανέγων γὰρ ἐν βίβλῳ Ἐνώχ τοῦ δικαίου . . . ὅτι ὁ ἄρχων ὑμῶν ὁ Σατανᾶς ἐστίν (ὑμῶν is corrupt for αὐτῶν). Our text can hardly mean that all the Watchers rebelled, but only that it was from the class of the Watchers that the rebels proceeded. It is indeed possible that the writer's scheme may differ from the conception we have given above, and be as follows. The rebellious Watchers, with their prince Satanail, are confined to the fifth heaven. The subordinate angels ('after them') who followed them (? = 'the order that was under him,' xxix. 4) are imprisoned in the second heaven, whereas the Watchers who went further and descended to earth and sinned with women are imprisoned under the earth. This view is very attractive, but raises more difficulties than the one we have followed. The MSS. reading fifth in vii. 3 does indeed favour it, but for 'prince who' in that verse we must read 'prince and leaders who'. The main objections, however, lie in xviii. 8, 9, and in vii. 3 where the prisoners of the second heaven are clearly identified with the fallen Watchers. In xxix. 4, 5 Satanail with his angels is cast down from heaven, to the air, above the abyss.

4. after them (A), i. e. of the same sort as they.

three. According to 1 En. ix. 6 the leader was Azazel, or vi. 3, ix. 7 Semjaza; Jalkut Schim, Beresch. 44 gives Assael and Semjaza.

Ermon. See 1 En. vi. 2-6.

broke through their vows. Hermon means a place of cursing or vowing. We should expect 'bound themselves by mutual vows' as in 1 En. vi. 5.

5. 1 En. x. 8, vii. 2.

6. 1 En. x. 4-15.

they will be punished. Not those who weep, but the lustful Watchers are punished.

7. There is some confusion in this verse. Enoch has seen in vii the rebellious Watchers in torment in the second heaven, but here he proceeds to refer to the lustful Watchers punished under the earth. We have not had an account of his journey thither.

I prayed for them. See vii. 5 (note).

8, 9. The Watchers are silent out of sympathy for their fallen brethren, and at Enoch's rebuke they resume their worship, but with sadness.

XIX. 1. This account of the sixth heaven disagrees more or less with that of Test. Levi iii. 5, 6, with that of Chag. 12^b, and with the colourless account in Asc. Is.

there is no difference in their faces, &c. Asc. viii. 16 'Omnium una species et gloria aequalis' seems to be derived from our text, as it emphasizes the differences in glory between the angelic orders in each of the first five heavens, and emphasizes no less the equality in glory of all the angels of the sixth heaven. (Cf. Asc. Is. viii. 5-7.)

2. The heavenly bodies are under Uriel in 1 En. lxxii-lxxxii.

A

they make commandments and instruction, and sweet and loud singing, and all songs of praise. These are the archangels who are above angels, 4 measure all life in heaven and on earth, and the angels who are appointed over seasons and years, the angels who are over rivers and sea, and who are over the fruits of the earth, and the angels who are over every grass, giving food to all, to 5 every living thing, and the angels who write all the souls of men, and all their deeds, and their 6 lives before the Lord's face; in their midst are six Phoenixes and six Cherubim and six six-winged ones continually with one voice singing one voice, and it is not possible to describe their singing, and they rejoice †before the Lord† at his footstool.

Hence they took Enoch into the seventh Heaven.

20 1 And those two men lifted me up thence on to the seventh Heaven, and I saw there a very great light, and fiery troops of great archangels, incorporeal forces, and dominions, orders and governments, cherubim and seraphim, thrones and many-eyed ones, nine regiments, the Ioanit stations of light, and I became afraid, and began 2 to tremble with great terror, and those men took me, and led me after them, and said to me: 3 'Have courage, Enoch, do not fear,' and showed me the Lord from afar, sitting on His very high throne. For what is there on the tenth heaven, since the Lord dwells here? On the tenth heaven is God, in the Hebrew tongue he is called Aravat. And all the heavenly troops would nize all the heavenly life, organize the commands, teachings and euphony, and singing and every glorious praise.

B

And those angels that rule over the seasons 4 and the years, and the angels that are over rivers and seas, and the angels that are over the fruit and grass and everything bubbling (sic), and 5 angels who organize all the life of all people and write before the Lord's face.

In their midst seven phoenixes, seven cherubim, 6 and seven six-winged ones, voicing and singing to each other as one, and it is impossible to describe their singing, and the Lord rejoices in his footstool.

Enoch's ascent on to the Seventh Heaven.

And the two men lifted me up thence and 20 1 carried me up on to the seventh heaven. And I saw there a great light and all the fiery troops of incorporeal archangels and the shining station of the Ostanim, and I became afraid and began to tremble.

And the two men put me in the midst of them, 2 saying to me: 'Have courage, Enoch, fear not.'

They showed me from afar the Lord sitting on 3 his throne, and all the heavenly troops in companies stepping on to the steps and they kept bowing down to the Lord, and would then walk 4 away and go to their places in joy and happiness and in immeasurable light;

4. Subordinate spirits are over these natural objects in 1 En. lx. Cf. 1 En. lxxxii. 13; Rev. ix. 14, xvi. 5. bubbling (B.), lit. 'boiling', i. e. 'gushing forth', 'abundant'.

5. Raphael's function in 1 En. xx. 3.

6. six six-winged ones. i. e. Seraphim, cf. xii. 1 (notes). Note that Cherubim and Seraphim are also in the seventh heaven. Chag. 12^b places Seraphim, Ophanim, and Chajjoth, and other angels of service in the seventh heaven. Test. Levi iii. 5 agrees with this verse, and places in the sixth heaven ἀρχάγγελοι οἱ λειτουργοῦντες. one voice. A dittography.

XX. 1. With this description of the heavenly hosts, cf. Isa. vi; Ezek. i; 1 En. xiv. 9-17, lxxi. 7-9; Rev. iv. For Chag. 12^b see xix. 6 (note). But this account can well compare for grandeur with any of the above.

dominions, orders, and governments . . . thrones. So exactly Col. i. 16 εἶτε θρόνοι εἶτε κυριότητες εἶτε ἀρχαὶ εἶτε ἐξουσίαι. Cf. Eph. i. 21 ἀρχῆς καὶ ἐξουσίας καὶ δυνάμεως καὶ κυριότητος: also Rom. viii. 38; Eph. iii. 10, 15; 1 Pet. iii. 22; 1 En. lxi. 10.

many-eyed. Seems to be derived from Ezek. x. 12. These are the Ophanim. Cf. 1 En. lxi. 10, and B here. nine regiments. We must read 'ten', to agree with ver. 3, where there are ten grades corresponding to the ten steps.

Ioanit stations of light. Apparently some reference to the Apocalypse of John.

I became afraid, &c. 1 En. xiv. 14.

2. Have courage, &c. Cf. i. 8.

3. the Lord . . . on His very high throne. Isa. vi. 1; 1 En. xiv. 20; Rev. xix. 4.

tenth heaven. Cf. xxi. 6 (note), xxii. 1.

Aravat. See xxii. 1.

all the heavenly troops . . . on the ten steps according to their rank. These hosts consist of the ten troops mentioned in ver. 1, arranged in the order of their rank. According to Maimonides in the Mishne Thora S. 1; Jesode Thora C. 2, they are: Chajjoth, Ophanim, Arellim, Chashmallim, Seraphim, Mal'achim, Elohim, Bene Elohim, Kerubim, Ishim (Weber, p. 163). In the Berith menucha the list is different: Arellim, Ishim, Bene Elohim, Mal'achim, Chashmallim, Tarshishim, Shina'nim, Kerubim, Ophanim, Seraphim (Eisenmenger, ii. 374). But the nearest parallel is to be found in the nine orders of Dionysius the Areopagite, i. e. Σεραφίμ, Χερουβίμ, Θρόνοι, Κυριότητες, Δυνάμεις, Ἐξουσίαι, Ἀρχαί, Ἀρχάγγελοι, Ἄγγελοι. These are reproduced in Dante, Par. c. xxviii, where the slightly differing arrangement of Gregory the Great (Hom. xxxiv. 7) is censured.

A

come and stand on the ten steps according to their rank, and would bow down to the Lord, and would again go to their places in joy and felicity, singing songs in the boundless light with small and tender voices, gloriously serving him.

Of how the angels here left Enoch, at the end of the seventh Heaven, and went away from him unseen.

21¹ / And the cherubim and seraphim standing about the throne, the six-winged and many-eyed ones do not depart, standing before the Lord's face doing his will, and cover his whole throne, singing with gentle voice before the Lord's face: 'Holy, holy, holy, Lord Ruler of Sabaoth, heavens and earth are full of Thy glory.' When I saw all these things, those men said to me: 'Enoch, thus far is it commanded us to journey with thee,' and those men went away from me, and thereupon I saw them not. And I remained alone at the end of the seventh heaven and became afraid, and fell on my face and said to myself: 'Woe is me, what has befallen me?' And the Lord sent one of his glorious ones, the archangel Gabriel, and he said to me: 'Have courage, Enoch, do not fear, arise before the Lord's face into eternity, arise, come with me,' and I answered him, and said in myself: 'My Lord, my soul is departed from me, from terror and trembling,' and I called to the men who led me up to this place, on them I relied, and with them I go before the Lord's face. And Gabriel caught me up, as a leaf caught up by the wind, and placed me before the Lord's face.

B

and the glorious ones serving him do not leave him by night nor go away by day, standing before the Lord's face, and working his will, and all the troops of cherubim and seraphim about his throne never leaving him, and the six-winged ones cover his throne, singing before the Lord's face.

And when I saw all, the two men went away from me and thenceforward I saw them not. And they left me alone at the end of heaven, and I grew afraid and fell on my face.

And the Lord sent one of his glorious ones Gabriel to me, and he said to me: 'Have courage, Enoch, fear not the troops, come after me, and stand before the Lord's face into eternity.'

And I said to him: 'Woe is me, my Lord, my soul is gone out of me for terror, call up to me the two men who brought me to the place, because I trusted them and with them I go before the Lord's face.'

And Gabriel seized me, just as a leaf seized by the wind, and took me, and put me before the Lord's face.

A

6 And I saw the eighth Heaven, which is called in the Hebrew tongue Muzaloth, changer of the seasons, of drought, and of wet. and of the twelve signs of the zodiac, which are above the seventh Heaven. And I saw the ninth Heaven, which is called in Hebrew Kuchavim, where are the heavenly homes of the twelve signs of the zodiac.

In the tenth Heaven the archangel Michael led Enoch to before the Lord's face.

22¹ On the tenth Heaven, Aravoth, I saw the appearance of the Lord's face, like iron made to glow in fire, and brought out, emitting sparks, and it burns. Thus I saw the Lord's face, but the Lord's face is ineffable, marvellous and very awful, and very, very terrible. And who am I to tell of the Lord's unspeakable being, and of his very wonderful face? and I cannot tell the quantity of his many instructions, and various voices, the Lord's throne very great six-winged . . . Thy glory. Isa. vi. 2, 3.

XXI. 1. do not depart. Cf. 1 En. xiv. 23.

3. Have courage. See i. 8, xx. 2, xxi. 5; 1 En. xv. 1.

5. Cf. ver. 3.

6. This verse is clearly an interpolation. It is not found either in B or Sok. Furthermore, throughout the rest of the book only seven heavens are mentioned or implied. The term Muzaloth is the Hebrew name for the twelve signs of the Zodiac מְזֻלוֹת. Kuchavim is merely a transliteration of כּוֹכָבִים. Some ground for this conception may be found in 1 En. xiv. 17, where the path of the stars is above the throne of God, and as the throne of God according to this book is in the seventh heaven, the signs and stars might be regarded as in the eighth or ninth.

XXII. 1-3. Aravoth a transliteration of עֲרָבוֹת, which according to Chagig. 12^b was really the seventh heaven. The rest of ver. 1, and verses 2, 3, may in some form have belonged to the text. I have with some hesitation rejected them.

A

and not made with hands, nor the quantity of those standing round him, troops of cherubim and seraphim, nor their incessant singing, nor his immutable beauty, and who shall tell of the ineffable greatness of his glory?

A

4 And I fell prone and bowed down to the Lord,
5 and the Lord with his lips said to me: 'Have courage, Enoch, do not fear, arise and stand before my face into eternity.'

6 And the archistratege Michael lifted me up, and led me to before the Lord's face.

And the Lord said to his servants tempting them: 'Let Enoch stand before my face into eternity,' and the glorious ones bowed down to the Lord, and said: 'Let Enoch go according to Thy word.'

8 And the Lord said to Michael: 'Go and take Enoch from out his earthly garments, and anoint him with my sweet ointment, and put him into the garments of My glory.'

9 And Michael did thus, as the Lord told him. He anointed me, and dressed me, and the appearance of that ointment is more than the great light, and his ointment is like sweet dew, and its smell mild, shining like the sun's ray, and I looked at myself, and was like one of his glorious ones.

11 And the Lord summoned one of his archangels by name Pravuil, whose knowledge was quicker in wisdom than the other archangels, who wrote all the deeds of the Lord; and the Lord said to Pravuil: 'Bring out the books from my store-houses, and a reed of quick-writing, and give it to Enoch, and deliver to him the choice and †comforting† books out of thy hand.'

Of Enoch's writing, how he wrote his wonderful journeyings and the heavenly apparitions and himself wrote three hundred and sixty-six books.

13 1 And he was telling me all the works of heaven, earth and sea, and all the elements, their passages and goings, and the thunderings of the thunders, the sun and moon, the goings and changes of the stars, the seasons, years, days, and hours, the risings of the wind, the numbers of the angels, and I fell prone, and could not see the Lord God, 22 4 and I bowed down to the Lord, and the Lord 8 God spake to Michael: 'Take Enoch, and take him out from his earthly (sc. garments), and anoint him with sweet oil, and clothe him in garments of glory.' And Michael took me out from my 9 garments, and anointed me with sweet oil; and the appearance of that oil is better than great light, and its ointment like sweet dew, and its smell like myrrh, and shining like the rays of the sun.

B

And I looked down looking at myself, and 10 I was as one of the glorious ones, and there was no difference. And the terror and trembling went away from me, and the Lord with his mouth 4 summoned me and said: 'Have courage, Enoch, fear not, stand before my face into eternity.'

And the Lord's archistratege Michael brought 6 me before the face of God. The Lord tempted his servants, and said to them: 'Let Enoch step up to stand before my face into eternity.' And 7 the Lord's glorious ones bowed down, and said: 'Let him step up.'

And the Lord summoned Vretil, one of his 11 archangels, who is wise and writes down all the Lord's works.

And the Lord said to Vretil: 'Take the books 12 from the safe places, and give Enoch a reed, and tell him the books.' And Vretil hastened and brought me the books all made sharp with myrrh, and gave me the reed out of his hand.

And he began to tell me all things in heaven 23 1 and earth and sea, the courses and dwellings of all the elements, the seasons of the years, the courses and mutations of the days, and the commandments and teachings.

4. and could not see the Lord God (B). Contrast xxii. 1 (A).

6. Michael. Cf. 1 En. lxxi. 13, 14, where Michael takes charge of Enoch. He is the chief of the archangels in 1 En. xl. 9 also. As the angel set over Israel, 1 En. xx. 5 he is naturally the chief captain.

8. sweet ointment. This is τὸ ἔλαιον τοῦ ἐλέου of Apoc. Mosis ix. 3, xiii. 1. See also viii. 7; Evang. Nicod. ii. 3. In verse 9 here this oil is described and in verse 10 its effects.

garments of My glory. These are the raiment of the blessed. Cf. 1 En. lxii. 15, cviii. 12; 2 Cor. v. 3, 4; Rev. iii. 4, 5, 18; iv. 4; vi. 11; vii. 9, 13, 14; 4 Ezra ii. 39, 45; Herm. Sim. viii. 2; Asc. Is. ix. 9.

11. Pravuil. I cannot find this name anywhere else. B has Vretil.

12. safe places (B), lit. 'store-rooms'.

a reed . . . give it to Enoch. These words are drawn upon in Liber S. Iohannis Apocryphus (Thilo, Cod. Apocr. N.T. vol. i, p. 890): 'Elevavit Henoc super firmamentum . . . et praecepit ei dari calamum . . . et sedens scripsit sexaginta septem libros'.

†comforting†. Read as B suggests 'fragrant with myrrh'.

XXIII. 1. This verse might well describe the Book of the Heavenly Luminaries in 1 En. lxxii-lxxxii.

A

2 and the formation of their songs, and all human things, the tongue of every human song and life, the commandments, instructions, and sweet-voiced singings, and all things that it is fitting to learn. And Pravuil told me: 'All the things
4 that I have told thee, we have written. Sit and write all the souls of mankind, however many of them are born, and the places prepared for them
5 to eternity; for all souls are prepared to eternity, before the formation of the world.' And all
6 double thirty days and thirty nights, and I wrote out all things exactly, and wrote three hundred and sixty-six books.

Of the great secrets of God, which God revealed and told to Enoch, and spoke with him face to face.

24¹ And the Lord summoned me, and said to me: 'Enoch, sit down on my left with Gabriel.' And I bowed down to the Lord, and the Lord spoke
2 to me: Enoch, beloved, all thou seest, all things that are standing finished I tell to thee even before the very beginning, all that I created from non-being, and visible things from invisible.
3 Hear, Enoch, and take in these my words, for not to My angels have I told my secret, and I

B

And Vretil was telling me thirty days and thirty nights, his lips talking unintermittently. And I did not rest thirty days and thirty nights writing all the signs, and when I finished, I had written three hundred and sixty books.

'And the Lord summoned me, and put me on 24 his left near Gabriel. And I bowed down to the Lord.

And he spake to me: All the things thou hast 2 seen, Enoch, standing and walking and completed by me, I will tell thee, before they took shape.

First all the things I created from non-existence into existence, and from invisible to visible.

And to my angels I have not made known my 3 formation of their songs. Possibly we should read 'songs of the armed hosts', see xvii.

5. all souls are prepared . . . before the formation of the world. The Platonic doctrine of the pre-existence of the soul is here taught. We find that it had already made its way into Jewish thought in Egypt; cf. Wisdom of Solomon viii. 19, 20 παῖς δὲ ἤμην εἰφυῆς, ψυχῆς τε ἔλαχον ἀγαθῆς, μᾶλλον δὲ ἀγαθὸς ὢν ἦλθον εἰς σῶμα ἀμίαντον. This doctrine was accepted and further developed by Philo. According to him the whole atmosphere is filled with souls. Among these, those who are nearer the earth and are attracted by the body descend into mortal bodies (τούτων τῶν ψυχῶν αἱ μὲν κατὰσιν ἐνδεθησόμεναι σώμασι θνητοῖς, ὅσαι προσγειώτατοι καὶ φιλοσώματοι, De Somn. i. 22). When they have entered the body they are swept off by it as by a river and swallowed up in its eddies (ἐκείναι δὲ ὡς περ εἰς ποταμὸν τὸ σῶμα καταβάσαι τοτὲ μὲν ὑπὸ συρμοῦ δίνης βιασιότητος ἀρπασθεῖσαι κατεπόθησαν, De Gigant. 3). Only a few escape by obedience to a spiritual philosophy and come to share in the incorporeal and imperishable life that is with God (De Gigant. 3). But there were other souls, called demons in philosophy and angels in Scripture, who dwelling in the higher parts were never entangled by love of the earthly (μηδενὸς μὲν τῶν περιγείων ποτὲ ὀρεχθεῖσαι τὸ παράπαν, De Somn. i. 22), and who reported the commands of the Father to the children, and the needs of the children to the Father (τὰς τοῦ πατρὸς ἐπικελεύσεις τοῖς ἐγγόνου καὶ τὰς τῶν ἐγγόνων χρείας τῷ πατρὶ διαγγέλλουσι, De Somn. i. 22; cf. De Gigant. 4). This doctrine of the pre-existence of the soul was according to Josephus, Bell. Iud. ii. 8. 11, held by the Essenes: καὶ γὰρ ἔρρωται παρ' αὐτοῖς ἦδε ἡ δόξα, φθαρτὰ μὲν εἶναι τὰ σώματα καὶ τὴν ὕλην οὐ μόνιμον αὐτοῖς, τὰς δὲ ψυχὰς ἀθανάτους αἰεὶ διαμένειν, καὶ συμπλέκεσθαι μὲν, ἐκ τοῦ λεπτοτάτου φοιτώσας αἰθέρος, ὡς περ εἰρκταῖς τοῖς σώμασιν ἰσχυρῶς τινι φυσικῇ κατασπώμενας, ἐπειδὴν δὲ ἀνεθῶσι τῶν κατὰ σάρκα δεσμῶν, οἷα δὲ μακρῶς δουλείας ἀπηλλαγμέναις, τότε χαίρειν καὶ μετεώρους φέρεσθαι. It became a prevailing dogma in later Judaism. All souls which were to enter human bodies existed before the creation of the world in the Garden of Eden (Tanchuma, Pikkude 3) or in the seventh heaven (Chagig. 12^b) or in a certain chamber (רצון) (Sifre 143^b) whence God called them forth to enter human bodies. These souls were conceived of as actually living beings. According to Bereshith rabba c. 8, God takes counsel with the souls of the righteous before He creates the earth (cf. Weber, pp. 204, 205, 217-20). See xxx. 16 (note).

6. double thirty days. Cf. lxxviii. 1, 'sixty days.'

XXIV. 2. took shape (B). lit. 'became'.

from non-being. Here creation ex nihilo seems to be taught. In Philo, on the other hand, the world was not created, but only formed from pre-existent chaotic elements. In one passage, however, where the absolute creation of the world is taught, we have an actual and almost verbal agreement with our text—ὡς ἥλιος ἀνατείλας τὰ κεκρυμμένα τῶν σωμάτων ἐπιδείκνυται, οὕτω καὶ ὁ θεὸς τὰ πάντα γεννήσας οὐ μόνον εἰς τὸ ἐμφανὲς ἤγαγεν, ἀλλὰ καὶ ἃ πρότερον οὐκ ἦν ἐποίησεν, οὐ δημιουργὸς μόνον, ἀλλὰ καὶ κτίστης αὐτὸς ὢν (De Somn. i. 13). Probably, however, from non-being is a rendering of ἐκ τῶν μὴ ὄντων. This will harmonize with xxv. 1.

visible things from invisible. Cf. the passage just quoted from Philo; also Heb. xi. 3 'the world has been formed by the word of God, so that what is seen hath not been made out of things which do appear'. These words from Hebrews do not necessarily imply creation, but can naturally be interpreted after Philo's conceptions. In Gen. i. 2 we find the idea of invisible elements introduced by the LXX as it gives ἡ δὲ γῆ ἦν ἀόρατος as a rendering of what we translate by 'the earth was waste'.

3. not to My angels. Cf. xl. 3; 1 Pet. i. 12.

A

have not told them their rise, nor my endless realm, nor have they understood my creating, which I tell thee to-day. For before all things were visible, I alone used to go about in the invisible things, like the sun from east to west, and from west to east. But even the sun has peace in itself, while I found no peace, because I was creating all things, and I conceived the thought of placing foundations, and of creating visible creation.

God relates to Enoch, how out of the very lowest darkness comes down the visible and invisible.

5 I I commanded in the very lowest parts, that visible things should come down from invisible, and Adoil came down very great, and I beheld him, and lo! he had a belly of great light. And I said to him: 'Become undone, Adoil, and let the visible come out of thee.' And he came undone, and a great light came out. And I was in the midst of the great light, and as there is born light from light, there came forth a great age, and showed all creation, which I had thought to create. And I saw that it was good. And I placed for myself a throne, and took my seat on it, and said to the light: 'Go thou up higher and fix thyself high above the throne, and be a foundation to the highest things.' And above the light there is nothing else, and then I bent up and looked up from my throne.

God summons from the very lowest a second time that Archas, heavy and very red, should come forth.

6 I And I summoned the very lowest a second time, and said: 'Let Archas come forth hard.' and he came forth hard from the invisible. And Archas came forth, hard, heavy, and very red. And I said: 'Be opened, Archas, and let there be born from thee,' and he came undone, an age secrets, nor told them the secrets, nor their establishments, nor my endless and incomprehensible thinking out of creation. And I opened up the light. And I rode through the midst of the light, just as one of the invisible, just as the sun rides from east to west; and I conceived the thought to place foundations and to create visible creation.

B

I commanded in the very lowest that the very great Idoil should come forth, having in his belly a very great stone.

And I spoke to him: 'Burst asunder Idoil, and let there be the visible born out of thee.'

And he burst asunder. There came out of him a great stone, and thither bearing (or 'carrying,' sic) all creation, which I had wished to create, and I saw that it was good.

And I put a throne also for myself, and sat down on it. I said to the light: 'Go up higher and make thyself firm and be a foundation for the highest.'

And there is nothing higher than the light, only nothing; and I saw, having bent myself up from my throne.

I summoned a second time in the very lowest, and said that there should come out from the invisible into the firm one thing visible. And Aruchas came out firm and heavy and very black. And I saw that it was well.

their establishments (B). lit. 'the manner in which they were established'.

XXV. 1. Here the formation of the world from pre-existing elements is taught, as in the Book of Wisdom xi. 17 ἐξ ἀμόρφου ὕλης. Cf. also Philo, De Iustitia 7 Μηνύει δὲ ἡ τοῦ Κόσμου γένεσις . . . τὰ γὰρ μὴ ὄντα ἐκάλεσεν εἰς τὸ εἶναι. This is in the main the teaching of the Talmud. See Weber, 193-6.

Adoil. Is this from אֵלֹהִים = 'the hand of God'? The word does not occur elsewhere that I am aware of. In this and the two subsequent verses we have an adaptation of an Egyptian myth.

2. We have here a modification of the egg theory of the universe. See Clem. Recog. x. 17, 30. In Brugsch, Rel. u. Myth. d. alten Aegypten, p. 101, we find a very close parallel. According to the monuments: 'der erste Schöpfungsact begann mit der Bildung eines Eies aus dem Urganwasser, aus dem das Tageslicht, die unmittelbare Ursache des Lebens in dem Bereiche der irdischen Welt, herausbrach.'

3. a great light came out. This exactly agrees with the ancient Egyptian myth as described in preceding note. Cf. also Brugsch, Rel. u. Myth. pp. 160, 161 on 'Die Geburt des Lichtes'.

there came forth a great age. This should refer to the world of the heavens, as the earth is dealt with in the next chapter.

4. I placed for myself a throne. This throne was created before the world according to Bereshith rabba c. 1 as here. This idea may have found support in the LXX of Prov. viii. 27, where wisdom declares that she was with God at the creation when He established His throne upon the winds.

XXVI. 1. Formation, but not creation, of the earth. Archas may be from אֲרָחָה, or possibly from ἀρχή.

very red. So A, but B reads 'very black'; cf. next verse 'very dark'.

the firm (B) = 'the hard', 'fixed'.

A

came forth, very great and very dark, bearing 3 the creation of all lower things, and I saw that it was good and said to him: 'Go thou down below, and make thyself firm, and be for a foundation for the lower things,' and it happened and he went down and fixed himself, and became the foundation for the lower things, and below the darkness there is nothing else.

Of how God founded the water, and surrounded it with light, and established on it seven islands.

27 1 And I commanded that there should be taken
 2 from light and darkness, and I said: 'Be thick,' and it became thus, and I spread it out with the light, and it became water, and I spread it out over the darkness,

B

And I said to him:

'Go below and make thyself firm.' And it became the foundation for the lowest. And under the darkness there is nothing.

Having surrounded some things with light, 27
 I made thick and stretched forth a road of water 2
 over the darkness,

A

3 below the light, and then I made firm the waters, that is to say the bottomless, and I made foundation of light around the water, and created seven circles from inside, and imaged it (sc. the water) like crystal wet and dry, that is to say like glass, and the circumcession of the waters and the other elements, and I showed each one of them its road, and the seven stars each one of them in its 4 heaven, that they go thus, and I saw that it was good. And I separated between light and between darkness, that is to say in the midst of the water hither and thither, and I said to the light, that it should be the day, and to the darkness, that it should be the night, and there was evening and there was morning the first day.

A

The week in which God showed Enoch all his wisdom and power, throughout all the seven days, how he created all the heavenly and earthly forces and all moving things even down to man.

28 1 And then I made firm the heavenly circle, and made that the lower water which is under heaven collect itself together, into one whole, and that the chaos become dry, and it became so.
 2 Out of the waves I created rock hard and big, and from the rock I piled up the dry, and the dry 3 I called earth, and the midst of the earth I called 4 abyss, that is to say the bottomless, I collected the sea in one place and bound it together with a yoke. And I said to the sea: 'Behold I give thee thy eternal limits, and thou shalt not break loose from thy component parts.' Thus I made 5 fast the firmament. This day I called me the first-created.

B

And I made firm great rocks, and commanded 28
 the bottomless waves to dry up on the dry (sc. land), and on the rivers having collected into 4 one place the falling into (sc. the waters that fall into) the bottomless sea and binding them with a yoke, I gave an eternal boundary in the midst of (sc. between) sea and earth, that shall not be broken through by the water. And I made fast the firm, and founded the water over it.

XXVII. The title is very corrupt.

1. there should be taken from light and darkness. Contrast Gen. i. 4. I do not pretend to understand what follows.

3. the seven stars. See xxx. 5.

4. Gen. i. 4, 5.

XXVIII. 1. Gen. i. 9.

2. the dry I called earth, an exact rendering of Gen. i. 10.

3. This may be Sheol, or Tartarus (cf. xxix. 5), or it may be the abysses of the waters. Cf. Gen. vii. 11; viii. 2; 1 En. lxxxix. 7, 8; Jub. ii. 2.

4. Cf. Job xxvi. 10; Ps. civ. 9; Prov. viii. 29; Jer. v. 22.

firmament. Gen. i. 7, 8.

5. This verse should be read immediately after xxix; and together with that chapter should be restored before xxviii. This is clear from the analogy of xxx. 1, 2, 7, 8. It is impossible in its present position.

A

9 1 Then it became evening, and then again morning, and it was the second day.

[Monday is the first day.] The fiery Essence.

And for all the heavenly troops I imaged the image and essence of fire, and my eye looked at the very hard, firm rock, and from the gleam of my eye the lightning received its wonderful nature, which is both fire in water and water in fire, and one does not put out the other, nor does the one dry up the other, therefore the lightning is brighter than the sun, softer than water and firmer than hard rock. And from the rock I cut off a great fire; and from the fire I created the orders of the incorporeal ten troops of angels, and their weapons are fiery and their raiment a burning flame, and I commanded that each one should stand in his order.

B

And for all the heavenly troops I formed the sun out of the great light, and put it in the heavens that it should shine over the earth. 29 1

From the stone I cut a great fire and from the stone I created the incorporeal troops, and all the troops of stars, of Cherubim, Seraphim and Ophannim I cut from the fire. 3

A

Here Satanail with his angels was thrown down from the height.

4 And one from out the order of angels, having turned away with the order that was under him, conceived an impossible thought, to place his throne higher than the clouds above the earth, that he might become equal in rank to my power.

5 And I threw him out from the height with his angels, and he was flying in the air continuously above the bottomless.

A

0 1 And then I created all the heavens, and the third day was.

[Tuesday]. On the third day I commanded the earth to make grow great and fruitful trees,

B

And the earth I commanded to bring forth all kinds of tree and high hills, all kinds of grass and 30 1

XXIX. 1. [Monday is the first day] bracketed as a Christian interpolation as 'Tuesday', 'Wednesday', &c., in xxx. 1, 2, &c. In Jub. ii. 2, and occasionally in patristic tradition, the creation of the angels is assigned to the first day—evidently on the ground of Job xxxviii. 7—but according to Shemoth Rabba 15 and the Targ. Jer. on Gen. i. 26 the angels were created on the second day as in our text.

3. from the fire I created the . . . angels. So Pesikta 3^a: see Weber, L. d. J. 161.

4. one . . . with the order that was under him. This is clearly Satan. The rank below him is probably the Watchers. But however we interpret the text we are beset with difficulties. There are conflicting elements in the text. See xii and xviii with notes; vii; xix; xxxi. 3-7 (notes).

place his throne higher than the clouds. If this is genuine we must take clouds in the sense of heavens. Satan was one of the highest angels before his fall: cf. xviii. 4. Satan and Sammael can not be distinguished in Rabbinic writings. On the attempt of Sammael to found a kingdom see Weber, 244. The following passage from the Book of Adam and Eve I. vi is evidently derived from our text: 'The wicked Satan . . . set me at naught and sought the Godhead, so that I hurled him down from heaven.'

5. he was flying in the air continuously. This view seems to have been generally received amongst the Jews. Cf. Eph. ii. 2 'The prince of the power of the air'; vi. 12; Test. Benj. iii. 4 τοῦ ἀερίου (β-α) πνεύματος τοῦ Βελίαρ: Asc. Is. iv. 2 'Berial angelus magnus res huius mundi . . . descendet e firmamento suo'; vii. 9 'Et ascendimus in firmamentum, ego et ille, et ibi vidi Sammaelem eiusque potestates'; x. 29 'descendit in firmamentum ubi princeps huius mundi habitat'. Tuf. haarez, f. 9. 2 'Under the sphere of the moon, which is the last under all, is a firmament . . . and there the souls of the demons are'. Cf. Eisenmenger, ii. 411. According to the Stoics, on the other hand, the abode of the blessed was under the moon. Cf. Tertull. De An. 54; Lucan, ix. 5 sq. For other authorities see Meyer on Eph. ii. 2; Eisenmenger, ii. 456. It is hard to get a consistent view of the demonology of this book; it seems to be as follows: Satan, one of the archangels (xviii. 4; xxix. 4), seduced the Watchers of the fifth heaven into revolt, in order to establish a counter kingdom to God, xxix. 4. Therefore Satan, or the Satans (for it is the name of a class) (Weber, 244), were cast down from heaven, xxix. 5; xxxi. 4, and given the air for their habitation, xxix. 5. As for his followers, the Watchers of the fifth heaven, they were cast down to the second and there kept imprisoned and tortured, vii. 3; xviii. 4. Some, however, of the Satans or Watchers went down to earth and married the daughters of men, xviii. 4. From these were born giants, xviii. 5. Thereupon these Watchers were imprisoned under the earth, xviii. 6, 7, and the souls of the giants, their children, became subjects of Satan. To return to the Satans, however—when man was created, Satan envied him and wished to make another world, xxxi. 3. Out of envy he tempted Eve to her fall, xxxi. 6.

XXX. 1. Cf. Gen. i. 10, 11.

A

and hills, and seed to sow, and I planted Paradise, and enclosed it, and placed as armed guardians flaming angels, and thus I created renewal.

B

all kinds of seed that are sown, before I created living souls, and prepared food for them.

A

2 Then came evening, and came morning the fourth day.

[Wednesday]. On the fourth day I commanded that there should be great lights on the heavenly circles. On the first uppermost circle I placed the stars, Kruno, and on the second Aphrodit, on the third Aris, on the fifth Zeus, on the sixth Ermis, on the seventh lesser the moon, and adorned it with the lesser stars.

5 And on the lower I placed the sun for the illumination of day, and the moon and stars for the illumination of night. The sun that it should go according to each animal (sc. signs of the zodiac), twelve, and I appointed the succession of the months and their names and lives, their thunderings, and their hour-markings, how they should succeed. Then evening came and morning came the fifth day.

A

[Thursday]. On the fifth day I commanded the sea, that it should bring forth fishes, and feathered birds of many varieties, and all animals creeping over the earth, going forth over the earth on four legs, and soaring in the air, male sex and female, and every soul breathing the spirit of life.

8 And there came evening, and there came morning the sixth day.

B

And the sea I commanded to bring forth and give birth to its fishes, all kinds of reptiles that creep over the earth, and wild beasts and cattle. and all kinds of feathered birds.

And when I had finished all, I told my wisdom to create me man.

A

[Friday]. On the sixth day I commanded my wisdom to create man from seven consistencies: one, hills. This is corrupt. We should have a reference here probably to non-fruit-bearing trees, as in Jub. ii. 7 τὰ ξύλα τὰ κάρπιμά τε καὶ ἄκαρπα.

seed to sow (A): 'all kinds of seed that are sown' (B). This phrase is found in Jub. ii. 7, as one of the third day creations.

Paradise. Also in Jub. ii. 7, among the creations of the third day.

2. heavenly circles. In Philo, De Mundi Op. 38, we find seven circles as here, though with a different meaning: τὸν οὐρανὸν φασὶν ἑπτὰ διεξῶσθαι κύκλοις.

3. Gen. i. 14-19. In the Chronography of Joel, circ. A: D. 1200, p. 34 (ed. Bekker, 1836), the discovery of the signs of the zodiac, the solstices and the seasons, and the naming of the planets, are assigned to Seth; but as such discoveries were anciently assigned to Enoch, and were only in later tradition ascribed to Seth, we may not unreasonably regard the mention in Joel of the five planets, Kronos, Zeus, Ares, Aphrodite, Hermes, as ultimately derived from the Enoch literature. The statement in Joel is, ὁ δὲ Σὴθ πρῶτος ἐξεύρε . . . τὰ σημεῖα τοῦ οὐρανοῦ καὶ τὰς τροπὰς τῶν ἐνιαυτῶν . . . καὶ τοῖς ἡστροῖς ἐπέθηκεν ὀνόματα καὶ τοῖς πέντε πλανήταις εἰς τὸ γνωρίζεσθαι ὑπὸ τῶν ἀνθρώπων . . . καὶ τὸν μὲν πρῶτον πλανήτην ἐκάλεσε Κρόνον, τὸν δὲ δεύτερον Δία, τὸν τρίτον Ἄρεα, τὸν τέταρτον Ἀφροδίτην καὶ τὸν πέμπτον Ἑρμῆν. In the mysteries of Mithras (see Origen, c. Celsum, vi. 22) the five planets and the sun and moon are said to be connected by a heavenly ladder. The previous chapter seems to connect these heavenly bodies with the seven heavens, as in our text. Their order in Origen is Kronos, Aphrodite, Zeus, Hermes, Ares, Selene, Helios. Archimedes' order (Macrob. in Somn. Scip. i. 19. 2) is: Saturn, Jupiter, Mars, the Sun; Venus, Mercury, the Moon, and this is the one generally followed, e. g. Cicero, de Div. ii. 43. Plato refers to the five planets in his Timaeus, but the Epinomis, by a disciple of his, is the first to assign each planet to a god. The five planets were known to Israel in O.T. times: Kronos as כִּיּוֹן, Amos v. 26; Aphrodite as לַלְלִי, Isa. xiv. 12; Ares as לַגְגֵי, 2 Kings xvii. 30; Zeus as גַּז, Isa. lxxv. 11; Hermes as נְבֹו, Isa. xlvi. 1.

5. the sun . . . according to each animal. See xiii-xiv and 1 En. lxxii for the periods corresponding to the signs of the zodiac.

6. the months, &c. See lvi and 1 En. lxxiii-lxxiv.

7. Cf. Gen. i. 20-26. Note that most of the sixth day creations are here assigned to the fifth day.

8. commanded my wisdom. Wisdom is here hypostatized as in Prov. viii. 30 'Then I was by him as a master workman'. In the Book of Wisdom, Wisdom is the assessor on God's throne, ix. 4; was with Him when He made the world, ix. 9; was the instrument by which all things were created, viii. 5; is the ruler and renewer of all things, viii. 1; vii. 27. Cf. Philo's Logos, the instrument by which God created the world. Cf. Leg. All. iii. 31 σκιά θεοῦ δὲ ὁ λόγος αὐτοῦ ἐστίν, ὃ καθάπερ ὄργανῳ προσχρησάμενος ἐκοσμοποιεῖ: also de Cherubim 35.

from seven consistencies. This list of substances seems to have some connexion with Stoic speculation (G. Sext. Math. ix. 81) and Philonic views. Cf. Philo, de Mundi Op. 51; man's body is derived from the earth; his bones have something in common with stones, Leg. All. ii. 7 (ἡ μὲν ἕξις κοινὴ καὶ τῶν ἀψύχων ἐστὶ λίθων καὶ ξύλων, ἦς his flesh from the earth; two, his blood from the dew; three, his eyes from the sun; four, his bones from stone; five, his intelligence from the swiftness of the angels and from cloud; six, his veins and his hair from the grass of the earth; seven, his soul from my breath and from the wind.

A

9 And I gave him seven natures: to the flesh hearing, the eyes for sight, to the soul smell, the veins for touch, the blood for taste, the bones for endurance, to the intelligence sweetness (sc. enjoyment).

10 I conceived a cunning saying to say, I created man from invisible and from visible nature, of both are his death and life and image, †he knows speech like some created thing, small in greatness and again great in smallness†, and I placed him on earth, a second angel, honourable, great and glorious, and I appointed him as ruler to rule on earth and to have my wisdom, and there was none like him of earth of all my existing creatures.

13 And I appointed him a name, from the four component parts, from east, from west, from south, 15 from north, and I appointed for him four special stars, and I called his name Adam, and showed him the two ways, the light and the darkness, and I told him: 'This is good, and that bad,' that μετέχει καὶ τὰ ἐν ἡμῖν εἰκότα λίθοις ὀστέα) and on a higher level again man is allied to plant nature (ἡ δὲ φύσις διατείνει καὶ ἐπὶ τὰ φυτά. καὶ ἐν ἡμῖν δὲ εἰσιν εἰκότα φυτοῖς, ὄνυχές τε καὶ τρίχες), e. g. in respect to his nails and hair. Perhaps for 'veins' we should read 'nails' accordingly in our text. Finally, for the seventh element we may compare De Mundi Op. 46.

Philo's view of man's nature is well summed up in De Mundi Op. 51 πᾶς ἄνθρωπος κατὰ μὲν τὴν διάνοιαν ἀκείωται θεῖω λόγῳ, τῆς μακαρίας φύσεως . . . ἀπαύγασμα γεγονώς, κατὰ δὲ τὴν τοῦ σώματος κατασκευὴν ἅπαντι τῷ κόσμῳ συγκέκριται γὰρ ἐκ τῶν αὐτῶν, γῆς καὶ ὕδατος καὶ ἀέρος καὶ πυρός, ἐκάστου τῶν στοιχείων εἰσενεγκόντος τὸ ἐπιβάλλον μέρος πρὸς ἐκπλήρωσιν αὐταρκεστάτης ὕλης, ἣν ἔδει λαβεῖν τὸν δημιουργόν, ἵνα τεχαιτεύσῃ τὴν ὁρατὴν ταύτην εἰκόνα. For the later Talmudic views cf. Weber, 202-4; Malan's Book of Adam and Eve, pp. 209-15. In the Anglo-Saxon Ritual (circ. 950), to which Dr. Murray has called my attention, man is said to be made out of eight substances: 'Octo pondera de quibus factus est Adam. Pondus limi, inde factus est caro; pondus ignis, inde rubeus est sanguis et calidus; pondus salis, inde sunt salsae lacrimae; pondus roris, inde factus est sudor; pondus floris, inde est varietas oculorum; pondus nubis, inde est instabilitas mentium; pondus venti, inde est anhela frigida; pondus gratiae, inde est sensus hominis.'

9. seven natures. Cf. Philo, De Mundi Op. 40 τῆς ἡμετέρας ψυχῆς τὸ δίχα τοῦ ἡγεμονικοῦ μέρος ἑπταχῆ σχίζεται, πρὸς πέντε αἰσθήσεις καὶ τὸ φωνητήριον ὄργανον καὶ ἐπὶ πᾶσι τὸ γόνιμον. Thus Philo has the vocal organ and the generative power in place of the bones and the intelligence. Plutarch, Plac. iv. 4 agrees with Philo, but adds an eighth, τὸ ἡγεμονικόν, or directive power. See especially Test. Naph. 2 (notes).

10. saying. We should expect a reference to a creative word. This verse is very corrupt, but obviously man's spiritual and material nature is meant.

11. a second angel. According to the Beresh. Rab. fol. 17, Adam, when first created, reached from the earth to the firmament. In the Book of Adam and Eve, I. x, Adam is called a 'bright angel'.

12. Gen. i. 26, 28.

13. This verse may either be the source of or else derived from the Sibyll. Or. iii. 24-6:

αὐτὸς δὲ θεὸς ἐστ' ὁ πλάσας τετραγράμματον Ἀδάμ τὸν πρῶτον πλασθέντα καὶ οὖνομα πληρώσαντα ἀντολίην τε δύσιν τε μεσημβρίην τε καὶ ἄρκτον.

The third line frequently occurs, e.g. in ii. 195, viii. 321, xi. 3, and the order of letters is wrong. In the anonymous treatise De Montibus Sina et Sion, 4, formerly ascribed to Cyprian, we have a long account: 'Nomen accepit a Deo. Hebraicum Adam in Latino interpretat "terra caro facta", eo quod ex quattuor cardinibus orbis terrarum pugno comprehendit, sicut scriptum est: "palmo mensus sum caelum et pugno comprehendi terram et confinxi hominem ex omni limo terrae; ad imaginem Dei feci illum." Oportuit illum ex his quattuor cardinibus orbis terrae nomen in se portare Adam.' At each of the four quarters four stars were set by the Creator, called anatole, dysis, arctus, mesembrion. Take from these stars the first letter of each, and you have the name ἀδάμ. Bede, in Genesis Expositio iv. approves, and adds that 'haec proprietates significat dominaturam Adam in quattuor partibus mundi'. Cf. too the Chronicon of Glycas (circ. 1150) p. 143, and see Jub. iii. 28 (note).

14. four special stars. Cf. De Montibus Sina et Sion quoted under verse 13. 'Stars' may here mean 'angels'. Certain ministering angels were appointed to wait on Adam, Jalkut Rub. fol. 13; Jalkut Schim. fol. 4 (see Book of Adam and Eve, p. 215).

15. The strongest statement of free-will is that in Tanchuma Pikkude 3 (quoted by Weber, p. 208) 'God does not determine beforehand whether a man shall be righteous or wicked, but puts this into the hands of the man only'. In the text free-will is presupposed in man, but this is prejudicially affected by his ignorance (verse 16): cf. Sirach xv. 14, 15 αὐτὸς ἐξ ἀρχῆς ἐποίησεν ἄνθρωπον καὶ ἀφήκεν αὐτὸν ἐν χειρὶ διαβουλίῳ αὐτοῦ. εἴαν θέλῃς, συντηρήσεις ἐντολάς, καὶ πίστιν ποιῆσαι εὐδοκίας. On the question generally see Josephus, Bell. Iud. ii. 8, 14; Ant. xiii. 5, 9; xviii. 1, 3; Psalms of Solomon, ed. by Ryle and James, pp. 95, 96.

the two ways, the light and the darkness. This popular figure of the Two Ways was suggested by Jer. xxi. 8 'Thus saith the Lord: Behold, I set before you the way of life and the way of death'; by Deut. xxx. 15 'I have set before thee this day life and good and death and evil'; Sirach xv. 17 ἐναντι ἀνθρώπων ἡ ζωὴ καὶ ὁ θάνατος, καὶ ὁ εἴαν εὐδοκίῃ δοθῆσεται αὐτῷ: xvii. 6 καὶ ἀγαθὰ καὶ κακὰ ὑπέδειξεν αὐτοῖς. For parallel N.T. expressions cf. Matt. vii. 13, 14; 2 Pet. ii. 2. Of the two great post-apostolic descriptions of the Two Ways, in the Didachè and in the Ep. of Barnabas, that of the latter presents the nearest parallel to our text: chap. xvii. ὁδοὶ δύο εἰσὶν διδαχῆς καὶ ἐξουσίας, ἡ τε τοῦ φωτὸς καὶ ἡ τοῦ σκότους. In the Didachè i. 1 we have ὁδοὶ δύο εἰσὶ, μία τῆς ζωῆς καὶ μία τοῦ θανάτου: cf. Test. Asher i. 3, 4 δύο ὁδοὺς ἔδωκεν ὁ θεὸς τοῖς υἱοῖς τῶν ἀνθρώπων . . . ὁδοὶ γὰρ εἰσι δύο, καλοῦ καὶ κακοῦ: Sibyll. Or. viii. 399, 400 αὐτὸς ὁδοὺς προέθηκα δύο, ζωῆς θανάτου τε καὶ γνώμην προέθηκ' ἀγαθὴν ζωὴν προελίσθαι: cf. also Herm. Mand. vi. 1, 2; Clem. Alex. Strom. v. 5; Apost. Church Order, iv; Apost. Constitutions, vii. 1; Clem. Homilies v. 7.

I told him: 'This is good and that bad,' &c. This does not harmonize with the account in Gen., where the knowledge of good and evil follows on eating the forbidden fruit.

A

I should learn whether he has love towards me, or hatred, that it be clear which in his race love me.

16 For I have seen his nature, but he has not seen his own nature, therefore through not seeing he will sin worse, and I said: 'After sin what is there but death?'

17 And I put sleep into him and he fell asleep. And I took from him a rib, and created him 18 a wife, that death should come to him by his wife, and I took his last word and called her name mother, that is to say, Eva.

God gives over paradise to Adam, and gives him a command to see the heavens opened, and that he should see the angels singing the song of victory.

31 1 Adam has life on earth, and I created a garden in Eden in the east, that he should observe the testament and keep the command.

2 I made the heavens open to him, that he should see the angels singing the song of victory, and the gloomless light.

3 And he was continuously in paradise, and the devil understood that I want to create another world, because Adam was lord on earth, to rule and control it.

4 The devil is the evil spirit of the lower places, †as a fugitive he made, he made Sotona from that I should learn whether he has love towards me or hatred. Deut. xiii. 3 'Your God proveth you to know whether ye love the Lord your God'.
5 the heavens† as his name was Satomail, thus he became different from the angels, but his nature did not change his intelligence as far as his understanding of righteous and sinful things.

16. through not seeing he will sin worse. This ignorance, as we see from the preceding verse, is not first and directly an ignorance of moral distinctions, but of his nature with its good and evil impulses (יצר הטוב and יצר הרע). Ignorance is thus regarded here as an evil in itself. This is probably the result of Platonic thought, which had gained great influence over Hellenistic Judaism, and the idea of the text seems related, however distantly, to that ethical system which may be summed up in the words πᾶς δ' ἄδικος οὐχ ἑκὼν ἄδικος (Plato, Legg. 731 C): οὐδένα ἀνθρώπων ἐκόντα ἑξαμαρτάνειν (Prot. 345 D): κακὸς μὲν γὰρ ἐκὼν οὐδεὶς (Tim. 86 D). See also Legg. 734 B; Rep. ix. 589 C; Hipp. Mai. 296 C. Herein it is taught that no man wilfully chooses evil in preference to good; but in every act of moral judgement the determining motive is to be found in the real or seeming preponderance of good in the course adopted; and that, should this course be the worse one, the error of judgement is due either to physical incapacities or faulty education, or to a combination of both. This view of sin as an involuntary affection of the soul follows logically from another Platonic principle already enunciated by our author (see xxiii. 5, note). This principle is the pre-existence of the soul. The soul, as such, according to Platonic teaching, is wholly good. Evil, therefore, cannot arise from its voluntary preferences, but from its limitations, i.e. from its physical and moral environment, from its relation to the body and from wrong education. In the Book of Wisdom this view is widely diverged from. There the body is not held to be irredeemably evil, but souls are already good and bad on their entrance into this life (viii. 19, 20). In Philo, on the other hand, there is in the main a return to the Platonic and Stoic doctrine. The body is irredeemably evil; it is in fact the tomb of the soul (σῶμα = σῆμα); and only the sensuously-inclined souls are incorporated with bodies (see above, xxiii. 5, note). The views adopted by our author on these and kindred points stand in some degree in a closer relation to the Platonic principles than do those of Philo or the author of the Book of Wisdom. Thus he held: (1) That the soul was created originally good. (2) That it was not predetermined either to good or ill by God, but left to mould its own destiny (see xxx. 15). (3) That its incorporation in a body, however, with its necessary limitations served to bias its preferences in the direction of evil. (4) That faithful souls will hereafter live as blessed incorporeal spirits, or at all events clothed only in God's glory (xxii. 7); for there is no resurrection of the body.

after sin . . . death. So Sirach xxv. 24 ἀπὸ γυναικὸς ἀρχὴ ἁμαρτίας, καὶ δι' αὐτὴν ἀποθνήσκομεν πάντες, for 'men were created exactly like the angels', 1 En. lxix. 11, righteous and immortal, but death came through sin, Book of Wisdom, ii. 23, 24; 1 En. xcvi. 4. The same teaching is found in the Talmud: see Weber, 208, 214, 239. This doctrine of man's conditional immortality and of death entering the world through sin does not belong to O.T. literature; for Gen. ii. 17, when studied in its context, implies nothing more than a premature death; for the law of man's being is enunciated in Gen. iii. 19 'Dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return', and his expulsion from Eden was due first and principally to the need of guarding against his eating of the tree of life and living for ever. Furthermore, even in Sirach, where the idea of death as brought about by sin is first enunciated, the doctrine appears in complete isolation and in open contradiction to the main statements and tendencies of the book; for it elsewhere teaches that man's mortality is the law from everlasting (ἡ γὰρ διαθήκη ἀπ' αἰῶνος, Sirach xiv. 17): and that being formed from earth unto earth must he return, xvii. 1, 2, xl. 11. Nor again is this doctrine a controlling principle in the system of the writers of Wisdom. In N.T. times, however, we find it the current view in the Pauline Epistles, e.g. Rom. v. 12; 1 Cor. xv. 21; 2 Cor. xi. 3. On various views on sin and death and their causes see 1 En. vi-viii; x. 8; xxxii. 6; lxix. 6, 11; xcvi. 4, with notes.

18. death . . . by his wife. Cf. Sirach xxv. 23; 1 Tim. ii. 14. See note on verse 16.

I took his last word. Corrupt.

XXXI. 2. Cf. Book of Adam and Eve, I. viii. According to Ephrem, i. 139, Adam and Eve lost the angelic vision on their fall. For this power of vision cf. Philo, Quaest. xxxii in Gen.

gloomless light. The light in Paradise was continual, Book of Adam and Eve, I. xii, xiii, xiv.

3. On Satan's envy see Wisdom, ii. 24; Josephus, Ant. i. 1. 4.

4. See xviii. 3; xxix. 4 (notes).

A

6 And he understood his condemnation and the sin which he had sinned before, therefore he conceived thought against Adam, in such form he entered and seduced Eva, but did not touch Adam.
7 But I cursed ignorance, but what I had blessed previously, those I did not curse, I cursed not man, 8 nor the earth, nor other creatures, but man's evil fruit, and his works.

After Adam's sin God sends him away into the earth 'whence I took thee', but does not wish to ruin him for all years to come.

2 1 I said to him: 'Earth thou art, and into the earth whence I took thee thou shalt go, and I will not ruin thee, but send thee whence I took thee.

Then I can again take thee at My second coming.'

And I blessed all my creatures visible and invisible. And Adam was five and half hours in 2 paradise. And I blessed the seventh day, which is the Sabbath, on which he rested from all his works.

God shows Enoch the age of this world, its existence of seven thousand years, and the eighth thousand is the end, neither years, nor months, nor weeks, nor days.

3 1 And I appointed the eighth day also, that the eighth day should be the first-created after my 2 work, and that the first seven revolve in the form of the seventh thousand, and that at the beginning of the eighth thousand there should be a time of not-counting, endless, with neither years nor months nor weeks nor days nor hours.

A

3 And now, Enoch, all that I have told thee, all that thou hast understood, all that thou hast seen of heavenly things, all that thou hast seen on earth, and all that I have written in books by my great wisdom, all these things I have devised and created from the uppermost foundation to 4 the lower and to the end, and there is no counsellor nor inheritor to my creations. I am self-

B

And now, Enoch, all the things I have told 33 3 thee and all the things thou hast seen on earth and all the things thou hast written in these books, I invented the creation of all this, having created from the highest to the lowest.

There is no counsellor here. I am eternal and 4 not made with hands, and my thought is counsellor, and my word is deed, and my eyes behold

6. See xxx. 18 (note). Weber, 211, 244.

7. The curse is not on man himself, but on his ignorance and sin.

XXXII. 1. My second coming. God's coming to judge the earth is called the καιρὸς ἐπισκοπῆς and ἡμέρα διαγνώσεως in Wisdom iii. 7, 18. Cf. 2 En. xlii. 5. The first coming was for Adam's sake and to bless all that God had made, lviii. 1.

XXXIII. 1, 2. From the fact that Adam did not live to be 1,000 years old, the author of the Book of Jubilees, iv. 30, concludes that the words of Gen. ii. 17 'In the day thou eatest thereof thou shalt surely die' were actually fulfilled. It is hence obvious that already before the Christian era 1,000 years had come to be regarded as one world-day. To arrive at the conception of a world-week of 7,000 years—6,000 years from the creation to the judgement, followed by 1,000 years, or a millennium of blessedness and rest—it was necessary to proceed but one step further, and this step we find was taken by the author of our text. In Irenaeus, moreover, Contra Haer. v. 28. 3 this reasoning is given explicitly: ὅσαις . . . ἡμέραις ἐγένετο ὁ κόσμος, τσαύταις χιλιοντάσι συντελείται. Καὶ διὰ τοῦτό φησιν ἡ γραφή. Καὶ συνετέλεσεν ὁ θεὸς τῇ ἡμέρᾳ 5' τὰ ἔργα αὐτοῦ ἃ ἐποίησε, καὶ κατέπαυσεν ἐν τῇ ἡμέρᾳ τῇ ζ' ἀπὸ πάντων τῶν ἔργων αὐτοῦ. τοῦτο δ' ἐστὶ τῶν προγεγονότων διήγησις καὶ τῶν ἐσομένων προφητεία· ἡ γὰρ ἡμέρα κυρίου ὡς α ἔτη. ἐν ἑξ ὄν ἡμέραις συντελέσται τὰ γεγονότα. φανερόν οὖν ὅτι ἡ συντέλεια αὐτῶν τὸ 5 ἔτος ἐστὶ. Clemens Alex. Strom. iv. 25 refers to this conception—possibly to our text. It is not improbable that the statements of Cedrenus on this head are drawn from our text. Thus on p. 9 he writes: τοῦτου χάριν ἠλλογήθη καὶ αὕτη (ἡ ἡμέρα) ὑπὸ τοῦ θεοῦ καὶ ἡγιώσθη καὶ σάββατον ὡς καταπάσιμος προσηγορεύθη, καὶ ὡς τύπος τῆς ἐβδόμης χιλιοετηρίδος καὶ τῶν ἀμαρτωλῶν συντελείας, ὡς Ἰώσηπος μαρτυρεῖ καὶ ἡ λεπτὴ Γένεσις ἣν καὶ Μωσέως εἶναι φασὶ τινες ἀποκάλυψιν. It is, we repeat, not improbable that our text is the original source of Cedrenus's statements, inasmuch as nothing of the kind is found either in Josephus or the Book of Jubilees, from which he professes to derive them. Syncellus, on whom Cedrenus is largely dependent, is frequently wrong in his references in the case of Apocalyptic literature. A most interesting expansion and an adaptation of the text to Christian conceptions are to be found in Augustine, De Civ. xxii. 30. 5 'Ipse etiam numerus aetatum, veluti dierum, si secundum eos articulos temporis computetur qui in Scripturis videntur expressi, iste Sabbatismus evidentius apparebit, quoniam septimus invenitur: ut prima aetas tanquam dies primus sit ab Adam usque ad diluvium, secunda inde usque ad Abraham . . . ab Abraham usque ad David una, altera inde usque ad transmigrationem in Babyloniam, tertia inde usque ad Christi carnalem nativitatem. Fiunt itaque omnes quinque. Sexta nunc agitur . . . post hanc tanquam in die septimo requiescet Deus, cum eundem septimum diem, quod nos erimus, in se ipso Deo faciet requiescere. . . . Haec tamen septima erit Sabbatum nostrum, cuius finis non erit vespera, sed dominicus dies velut octavus aeternus. . . . Ecce quod erit in fine sine fine.' For other speculations in reference to the world-week see Evangel. Nicodemi, ii. 12; Book of Adam and Eve, I. iii.

2. a time of not-counting . . . neither years nor months, &c. Sibyll. Or. viii. 424-7 may have been influenced by our text where it speaks of the eternity of blessedness.

3. the creation (B), lit. 'to create'.

A

eternal, not made with hands, and without change. My thought is my counsellor, my wisdom and my word are †made†, and my eyes observe all things how they stand here and tremble with terror. If I turn away my face, then all things will be destroyed.

5 And apply thy mind, Enoch, and know him who is speaking to thee, and take thou the books which thou thyself hast written.

6 And I give thee Samuil and Raguil, who led thee up, and the books, and go down to earth, and tell thy sons all that I have told thee, and all that thou hast seen, from the lower heaven up to my throne, and all the troops.

7 For I created all forces, and there is none that resisteth me or that does not subject himself to me. For all subject themselves to my monarchy, and labour for my sole rule.

8 Give them the books of the handwriting, and they will read them and will know me for the creator of all things, and will understand how there is no other God but me.

9 And let them distribute the books of thy handwriting—children to children, generation to generation, nations to nations.

10 And I will give thee, Enoch, my intercessor, the archistrateges Michael, for the handwritings of thy fathers Adam, Seth, Enos, Cainan, Mahaleleel, and Jared thy father.

God convicts the idolaters and sodomitic fornicators, and therefore brings down a deluge upon them.

34 1 They have rejected my commandments and my yoke, worthless seed has come up, not fearing God, and they would not bow down to me, but have begun to bow down to vain gods, and 2 denied my unity, and have laden the whole earth with untruths, offences, abominable lecheries, all. If I look on all, then it stands (sc. exists), but if I shall turn away, then will all be destroyed.

B

Apply thy mind, Enoch, and know him who 5 speaketh to thee, and take the books that thou hast written.

And I give thee the angel Semil and Rasuil 6 and him who brought thee up to me. And go down on to earth and tell thy sons all the things I have spoken to thee and all the things thou hast seen from the lowest heaven even up to my throne.

All the troops I have created; there is none 7 that opposes me or that submits not to me. All submit to my monarchy and serve my power.

And give them the books of thy handwriting, 8 children to children, kinsmen to kinsmen, race to 10 race, as mediator, Enoch, of my general Michael, because thy handwriting and the handwriting of thy fathers Adam and Seth shall not be destroyed 11 till the end of time, as I have commanded my angels Orioch and Marioch, how that I have put a chart on earth, and ordered the ages that it be preserved, and that the handwriting of thy fathers 12 be preserved, that it perish not in the deluge which I shall make in thy race.

For I know the wickedness of men, that they 34 will not carry the yoke which I have laid upon them, nor sow the seeds which I have given them, but having cast off my yoke, they will take another yoke, and will sow empty seeds and will bow down to vain gods and will reject my oneness,

4. without change. Num. xxiii. 19; 1 Sam. xv. 29; Ezek. xxiv. 14.

my thought is my counsellor. Cf. xxx. 8 (note). Cf. Sir. xlii. 22.

my wisdom and my word are †made†, i. e. are reality. Cf. B and 1 En. xiv. 22 (Greek) πᾶς λόγος αὐτοῦ ἔργον. Cf. Ps. xxxiii. 9; Sir. xlii. 15.

my eyes observe all things. Cf. Sir. xxxix. 19.

If I turn, &c. Ps. civ. 29.

6. Cf. 1 En. lxxxi. 5, 6. Raguil, i. e. Raguel. See 1 En. xx. 4.

9. Cf. xlvi. 2, 3; xlvi. 7-9; liv; lv. 5; 1 En. lxxxii. 1, 2, where, as here, the books are to be transmitted immediately to the generations of the world, whereas in i. 2; xciii. 10; civ. 12 of 1 En. the method and times of the disclosure of the books are different. Though the writings are committed to the keeping of men, they are under the guardianship of special angels until the time for their complete disclosure and understanding has come. Compare verses 11 and 12 (B only).

10. Michael. Cf. xxii. 6 (note).

11. till the end of time (B), lit. 'till the last age'. At last the time for the due understanding of these books will arrive. See verse 9 (note); xxxv. 2, 3; (liv); 1 En. xciii. 10; civ. 12.

Orioch (B), a name found in Gen. xiv. 1, 9; Dan. ii. 14.

ages (B), lit. 'times'.

XXXIV. 1. rejected . . . my yoke. Cf. xlvi. 9; Sir. xxviii. 19, 20; Matt. xi. 29.

sow empty seeds (B), or worthless seeds. Apparently metaphorical, as A shows, and not a reference to Deut. xxii. 9. empty (B), i. e. 'worthless'.

denied my unity. Cf. Deut. vi. 4 together with Joshua xxiv. 27.

2. It is this verse that is referred to in Test. Naph. iv. 1, though there differently applied.

A

namely one with another, and all manner of other unclean wickednesses, which are disgusting to relate.

3 And therefore I will bring down a deluge upon the earth and will destroy all men, and the whole earth will crumble together into great darkness.

God leaves one righteous man of Enoch's tribe with his whole house, who did God's pleasure according to his will.

5 1 Behold from their seed shall arise another generation, much afterwards, but of them many 2 will be very insatiate. He who raises that generation, shall reveal to them the books of thy handwriting, of thy fathers, to them to whom he must point out the guardianship of the world, to the faithful men and workers of my pleasure, who do not acknowledge my name in vain.

3 And they shall tell another generation, and those others having read shall be glorified thereafter, more than the first.

God commanded Enoch to live on earth thirty days, to give instruction to his sons and to his children's children. After thirty days he was again taken on to heaven.

6 1 Now, Enoch, I give thee the term of thirty days to spend in thy house, and tell thy sons and all thy household, that all may hear from my face what is told them by thee, that they may read and understand, how there is no other God but me. And that they may always keep my commandments, and begin to read and take in the books of thy handwriting.

2 And after thirty days I shall send my angel for thee, and he will take thee from earth and from thy sons to me.

Here God summons an angel.

7 1 And the Lord called up one of the older angels, terrible and menacing, and placed him by me, in appearance white as snow, and his hands like ice, having the appearance of great frost, and he froze my face, because I could not endure the terror of the Lord, just as it is not possible to endure a stove's fire and the sun's heat, and the frost of the air.

B

and the whole earth will quake with injustice, 2 wrongs, and fornication and idolatry.

Then also I shall bring a deluge on to the 3 earth, and the earth will crumble together in great chaos.

And I shall leave over one just man with all 35 1 his house, who shall work according to my will (sc. who shall be found to have been working, &c.), and from their seed shall rise another race afterwards, very numerous and insatiable.

Then he who has brought up (sc. founded and 2 formed) that race shall reveal the books of thy handwriting and of thy fathers, through whom the guardians of the earth shall show them to the 3 faithful men and shall tell them to that race, and it shall be glorified thereafter more than before.

And now, Enoch, I give thee a term of waiting 36 1 of thirty days to do (sc. all) in thy house; tell thy sons all that thy heart contains, that they may read and understand, how that there is no God but me, and after thirty days I shall send 2 my angels for thee, and they will take thee from the earth and from thy sons, whatever may be according to my will.

But the Lord summoned one of the angels, 37 1 the eldest (sc. commander) of Tartarus, and put him by me, and the appearance of that angel was as snow, and his hands were as of ice, and he chilled my face, because I could not suffer the great heat (sic) and that terror.

quake (B), lit. 'be shaken' (as though in fever).

3. This verse too is adapted in Test. Naph. iv. 2, which e. g. alters 'deluge' into 'captivity'.

XXXV. 1. just man (B), i. e. Noah.

2. Revelation of these disclosures to the faithful in due time.

3. These disclosures will then usher in a more glorified generation.

XXXVI. 1. The period is one year in 1 En. lxxxii. 6.

of waiting (B), or 'of sojourn'.

contains (B), lit. 'preserves'.

read and understand. Cf. 1 En. lxxxii. 1-3.

2. Cf. 1 En. lxxxii. 6.

XXXVII. This chapter is read after XXXIX in B.

1. Tartarus (B), horror (grozá).

A

2 And the Lord said to me: 'Enoch, if thy face be not frozen here, no man will be able to behold thy face.'

B

And thus spake the Lord to me.

A

Mathusal continued to have hope and to await his father Enoch at his couch day and night.

38 1 And the Lord said to those men who first led me up: 'Let Enoch go down on to earth with you, 2 and await him till the determined day.' And they placed me by night on my couch. 3 And Mathusal expecting my coming, keeping watch by day and by night at my couch, was filled with awe when he heard my coming, and I told him, 'Let all my household come together, that I tell them everything.'

A

Enoch's pitiful admonition to his sons with weeping and great lamentation, as he spoke to them.

B

Enoch's instruction of his sons.

39 1 Oh my children, my beloved ones, hear the admonition of your father, as much as is according to the Lord's will.

2 I have been let come to you to-day, and announce to you, not from my lips, but from the Lord's lips, all that is and was and all that is now, and all that will be till judgement-day.

3 For the Lord has let me come to you, you hear therefore the words of my lips, of a man made big for you, but I am one who has seen the Lord's face, like iron made to glow from fire it sends forth sparks and burns.

4 You look now upon my eyes, the eyes of a man big with meaning for you, but I have seen the Lord's eyes, shining like the sun's rays and filling the eyes of man with awe.

5 You see now, my children, the right hand of a man that helps you, but I have seen the Lord's right hand filling heaven as he helped me.

6 You see the compass of my work like your own, but I have seen the Lord's limitless and perfect compass, which has no end.

7 You hear the words of my lips, as I heard the words of the Lord, like great thunder incessantly with hurling of clouds.

8 And now, my children, hear the discourses of the father of the earth, how fearful and awful it is to come before the face of the ruler of the earth, how much more terrible and awful it is to come before the face of the ruler of heaven, the controller of quick and dead, and of the heavenly troops. Who can endure that endless pain?

For I am sent forth to you to-day from the Lord's mouth to speak to you all things that are and all that will be till judgement-day, and now, my children, not from my own mouth am I to-day informing you, but from the Lord's mouth, for you have heard my words from my mouth, but I have heard the Lord's words like great thunder with incessant hurling of clouds, I have seen the Lord's raiment infinite and incomparable, which has no end.

Now hear my words, telling of an earthly ruler how it is fearful and miserable to stand before the face of an earthly ruler; it is terrible and miserable, because the ruler's will is death, and the ruler's will is life or great heat (sic).

XXXVIII. 1. Cf. xxxvi.

2. Cf. i. 2-4.

3. Cf. I En. xci. 1.

XXXIX. 2. the Lord's lips. Cf. xxii. 5; xxxiii. 6-12.

3. the Lord's face. Cf. xxii. 1.

the Lord's eyes. Cf. xxix. 1.

8. the father of the earth. B gives a better sense—'an earthly ruler.' Perhaps we should put a stop after 'discourses' and read as B from 'telling' up to 'the ruler's will is life', and then return to A 'how much more', &c.

A

Enoch admonishes his children truly of all things from the Lord's lips, how he saw and heard and wrote down.

1 And now, my children, I know all things, for this is from the Lord's lips, and this my eyes have seen, from beginning to end.

B

For, my children, I know all things from the Lord's mouth.

A

2 I know all things, and have written all things into books, the heavens and their end, and their plenitude, and all the armies and their marchings. I have measured and described the stars, the great countless multitude of them.

3 What man has seen their revolutions, and their entrances? For not even the angels see their number, while I have written all their names.

4, 7 And I measured the sun's circle, and measured its rays, counted the hours, I wrote down too all things that go over the earth, I have written the things that are nourished, and all seed sown and unsown, which the earth produces and all plants, and every grass and every flower, and their sweet smells, and their names,

A

8 and the dwelling-places of the clouds, and their composition, and their wings, and how they bear rain and rain-drops.

9 And I investigated all things, and wrote the road of the thunder and of the lightning, and they showed me the keys and their guardians, their rise, the way they go; it is let out in measure (sc. gently) by a chain, lest by a heavy chain and violence it hurl down the angry clouds and destroy all things on earth.

10 I wrote the treasure-houses of the snow, and the store-houses of the cold and the frosty airs, and I observed their season's key-holder, he fills the clouds with them, and does not exhaust their treasure-houses.

11 And I wrote the resting-places of the winds and observed and saw how their key-holders bear weighing-scales and measures; first, they put them in one weighing-scale, then in the other the weights and let them out according to measure cunningly over the whole earth, lest by heavy breathing they make the earth to rock.

12 And I measured out the whole earth, its mountains, and all hills, fields, trees, stones, rivers, all existing things I wrote down, the height from earth to the seventh heaven, and

B

This have my eyes seen from the beginning even to the end, and the dwelling-places of the clouds, both rain-bearing and thunderous. And they showed me the angels that guard them and their keys.

I saw the treasure-houses of snow and of ice, and the going-up, whence they go up in measure they are carried up by a chain and let down by a chain, lest by heavy violence they tear asunder the clouds and destroy what is on earth, both air and frost. I beheld for a time how those who hold fast the keys do fill the clouds full, and the treasure-houses are never exhausted.

I saw the lairs of the winds, how those who keep their keys do carry weighing-scales and measures, and first put them (sc. the winds) in the weighing-scales and then in the measure, and let them out in measure over the whole earth, lest by their heavy breath they make the earth to rock.

Thence I was led to the judgement-place, and

XL. 1. I know all things . . . my eyes have seen, &c. Cf. Clem. Alex. Eclog. Proph. (Dind. iii. 456) ὁ Δαυὶδ λέγει ὁμοδοξῶν τῷ Ἐνώχ τῷ εἰρηκότι 'καὶ εἶδον τὰς ὕλας πάσας', and Origen, de Princ. iv. 35 'dicente Enoch universas materias perspexi'. Cf. too Sibyll. Or. viii. 375.

2. the stars, &c. Cf. 1 En. xliii. 1, 2; xciii. 14.

3. not even the angels. Cf. xxiv. 3.

4. See xiii, xiv (notes).

4-6. There is an addition in Sokolov's text between 'rays' and 'counted'. It deals with the moon and the seasons (see 1 En. lxxxii. 11-20, notes).

8. Cf. 1 En. lx. 19-22.

9. road of the thunder. Cf. 1 En. lix; lx. 13-15.

10. Cf. vi. 1, 2; 1 En. lx. 17, 18.

11. See 1 En. xli. 4.

A

downwards to the very lowest hell, and the judgement-place, and the very great, open and weeping hell. / And I saw how the prisoners are 13 in pain, expecting the limitless judgement. And I wrote down all those being judged by the judge, and all their judgements (sc. sentences) and all their works.

Of how Enoch lamented Adam's sin.

41 1 And I saw all forefathers from all time with Adam and Eva, and I sighed and broke into tears and said of the ruin of their dishonour: 'Woe is me for my infirmity and for that of my forefathers,' and thought in my heart and said:
2 'Blessed is the man who has not been born or who has been born and shall not sin before the Lord's face, that he come not into this place, nor bring the yoke of this place.

Of how Enoch saw the key-holders and guards of the gates of hell standing.

42 1 I saw the key-holders and guards of the gates of hell standing, like great serpents, and their faces like extinguished lamps, and their eyes of fire, their sharp teeth,

B

I saw hell all open and the prisoners and infinite judgement,

And having seen I sighed and wept for the 41 destruction of the impious, and I said in my heart:

'Blessed is he who has not been born, or 2 who having been born has not sinned before God, that he may not be come to this place, nor have borne this yoke.'

and I saw the guardians of the keys 42 of hell standing over against the gates like great serpents, their faces like lamps that are gone out, their eyes like darkened flames, and their teeth naked down to their breasts.

And I spake to their faces: 'I had better not 2 have seen you, and may none of my tribe come to you.'

Enoch's ascent into the paradise of the righteous.

And I saw there a blessed place, and all blessed 3 creatures and all there living in joy and in infinite happiness in eternal life.

12. the very lowest hell. The old Jewish beliefs of an underworld of punishment are too strong to be excluded, and intrude even into our author's scheme which in x locates hell in the third heaven. But see xviii. 7 (note). It is possible further that the author may have had some idea of a series of seven hells, hence the phrase 'lowest hell' here. See Eisenmenger, ii. 302, 328-33 for later Rabbinic tradition.

13. expecting the limitless judgement. These words seem to imply an intermediate place of punishment, i. e. Sheol or Hades. They are used too in vii. 1, of the fallen Watchers.

An ancient Jewish belief: cf. liii. 2; lxiv; Jub. iv. 23; x. 17. From the idea of Enoch as scribe of God's works, as in 1 and 2 Enoch, the transition was easy to the idea of Enoch as scribe of the deeds of men. For later tradition cf. Test. Abraham (ed. James, p. 115) ὁ διδάσκαλος τοῦ οὐρανοῦ καὶ τῆς γῆς καὶ γραμματεὺς τῆς δικαιοσύνης Ἐνώχ ἀπέστειλεν γὰρ κύριος αὐτοὺς ἐνταῦθα, ἵνα ἀπογράψωσιν τὰς ἀμαρτίας καὶ τὰς δικαιοσύνας ἐκάστου.

XLII. In B this chapter occurs after xlii. 1.

XLI. 1. Enoch's forefathers, including Adam and Eve, appear to be in the place of punishment. Contrast 1 En. ix. 8, 23; lxi. 12; lxx. 3, 4 where Paradise is already peopled with the righteous, though in lxxxix. 52; xciii. 8 Enoch and Elijah seem to be its only inhabitants. In 1 En. xxii. 7, however, Abel seems to remain in Hades till the judgement on Cain and his seed is consummated. Cf. the early Christian belief e. g. in Descensus ad Inferos viii-ix.

2. Cf. 4 Ezra iv. 12; 1 En. xxxviii. 2; 2 Bar. x. 6.

XLII. 1. the key-holders. We have a strange application of this idea in Sibyll. Or. viii. 121-2 where the αἰών is κλειδοφύλαξ. For 'keys' cf. Rev. ix. 1; xx. 1.

guards of the gates of hell. Emek hammelech, fol. 144, col. 2, says that each division of hell is under the control of a certain angel (Eisenmenger, ii. 332). Cf. the word τημελοῦχος in Apoc. Pauli.

extinguished lamps. Contrast the heavenly angels' face and eyes, i. 5.

teeth naked down to their breasts (B), i. e. either the teeth reached down to the breasts, or the description of the teeth is incomplete, and the creatures themselves are referred to as naked down to their breasts.

2-13. These verses are omitted by A.

2. Cf. xli. 2.

A

14 and I saw all the Lord's works, how they are right, while the works of man are some good, and others bad, and in their works are known those who lie evilly.

Enoch shows his children how he measured and wrote out God's judgements.

13 I, my children, measured and wrote out every work and every measure and every righteous judgement.

2 As one year is more honourable than another, so is one man more honourable than another, some for great possessions, some for wisdom of heart, some for particular intellect, some for cunning, one for silence of lip, another for cleanliness, one for strength, another for comeliness, one for youth, another for sharp wit, 3 one for shape of body, another for sensibility, let it be heard everywhere, but there is none better than he who fears God, he shall be more glorious in time to come.

Enoch instructs his sons, that they revile not the face of man, small or great.

14 The Lord with his hands having created man, in the likeness of his own face, the Lord made

B

Then I spake: 'My children, and now I speak 6 to you: Blessed is he who fears God and serves him. And you, my children, learn to bring gifts to the Lord, that you may enjoy life. Blessed is 7 he who judges a judgement justly to the widow 9 and orphan, and helps every one that is wronged, clothing the naked with garments, and to the 8 hungry giving bread.

Blessed is he who turns back from the change- 10 able path and walks along the straight path.

Blessed is he who sows the seeds of righteous- 11 ness, for he shall reap sevenfold.

Blessed is he in whom is truth, that he may 12 speak truth to his neighbour.

Blessed is he in whose mouth is mercy and 13 gentleness.

Blessed is he who understands the Lord's 14 works and glorifies the Lord God.

Behold, my children (sc. all) the things that 43 I can be used on earth and the things that have been planned I have written down from the Lord God.

Winter and summer, all have I put together, and of the years I have counted out the hours, and the hours have I all measured out and written down, and found out all the difference (sc. understood all their variety).

One year is more honourable than another, 2 and one day than another, and one hour is more honourable than another.

Likewise one man is more honourable than another, this one for much property, that for mercy of heart, that again for understanding and cunning and for silence of tongue and mouth.

For there is none greater than he who fears 3 God; they shall be glorious into eternity.

The Lord with his hands created man, and 44 I likened him to his own face.

6-14. Nine rather colourless beatitudes.

7. judges a judgement justly. Cf. ix; Ezek. xviii. 8.

8, 9. Cf. ix: also for 9 cf. Ps. x. 18; Isa. i. 17; Jer. xxii. 3, 16; Zech. vii. 9, 10.

10. straight path. Cf. Prov. iv. 11; Sibyll. Or. iii. 9-10; Sib. Or. Fragm. i. 23 sq.

11. Cf. Sirach vii. 3; Job. iv. 8; Prov. xxii. 8; Hos. x. 13.

12. Cf. Lev. xix. 11; Eph. iv. 25; Sibyll. Or. ii. 58, 64.

13. Cf. Prov. xxxi. 26.

14. in their works . . . known, &c. (A). Matt. vii. 16, 20.

XLIII. 2, 3. As one year, &c. We might expect 'as one day', cf. Sir. xxiii. 7. The main thought of this passage is derived from Sir. x. 20, 22, 24, 30: cf. Sibyll. Or. ii. 125.

A

him small and great. Whoever reviles the ruler's face, and abhors the Lord's face, has despised 2 the Lord's face, and he who vents anger on any man without injury, the Lord's great anger will 3 cut him down, he who spits on the face of man reproachfully, will be cut down at the Lord's great judgement.

4 Blessed is the man who does not direct his heart with malice against any man, and helps the injured and condemned, and raises the broken
5 down, and shall do charity to the needy, because on the day of the great judgement every weight, every measure and every makeweight will be as in the market, that is to say they are hung on scales and stand in the market, and every one shall learn his own measure, and according to his measure shall take his reward.

God shows how he does not want from men sacrifices, nor burnt-offerings, but pure and contrite hearts.

45 1 Whoever hastens to make offering before the Lord's face, the Lord for his part will hasten that offering by granting of his work.

2 But whoever increases his lamp before the Lord's face and make not true judgement, the Lord will not increase his treasure in the realm of the highest.

3 When the Lord demands bread, or candles, or flesh (sc. cattle), or any other sacrifice, then that is nothing; but God demands pure hearts, and with all that only tests the heart of man.

B

The Lord God created all things great and small.

He that brings into contempt the face of man, brings the Lord's face into contempt.

The Lord's anger and great judgement are on 2 him who spits in the face of man.

Blessed is he who turns his heart towards such 4 a man, so as to help the condemned and raise the broken.

He who multiplies lights before the Lord's 45 face, the Lord will multiply their storehouses.

The Lord God wants not bread nor candles, 3 meal nor cattle, but by this means tempts the heart of man.

A

Of how an earthly ruler does not accept from man abominable and unclean gifts, then how much more does God abominate unclean gifts, but sends them away with wrath and does not accept his gifts.

46 1 Hear, my people, and take in the words of my lips.

If any one bring any gifts to an earthly ruler, and have disloyal thoughts in his heart, and the ruler know this, will he not be angry with him, and not refuse his gifts, and not give him over to 2 judgement? Or if one man make himself appear good to another by deceit of tongue, but have evil in his heart, then will not the other understand the treachery of his heart, and himself be
3 condemned, since his untruth was plain to all? And when the Lord shall send a great light, then there will be judgement for the just and the unjust, and there no one shall escape notice.

XLIV. 1. Whoever reviles, &c. Cf. James iii. 9.

2. Cf. Matt. v. 22.

4. This beatitude, out of place here, would come in fittingly at the end of xlii.

XLV. 3. Cf. Ps. xl. 6, li. 16; Isa. i. 11; Mic. vi. 6-8; Sir. xxxv. 1-3; Sibyll. Or. viii. 390, 391, also ii. 82; Athenag. Supplic. pro Christo, 13. This is not Essenism. See lix. 1-3. We find the same spiritual appreciation of sacrifices in Sir. xxxv. 1-3, side by side with injunctions to offer them.

candles. Cf. 'lamp' in verse 2.

pure hearts. Ps. li. 10.

tests the heart of man. Deut. viii. 2; 2 Chron. xxxii. 31; Ps. xxvi. 2. tempts (B), or 'proves'.

XLVI. 3. a great light. The reference is not clear, but cf. Isa. ix. 2 or John i. 9, v. 35, viii. 12, and esp. John iii. 19-21.

A

Enoch instructs his sons from God's lips, and hands them the handwriting of this book.

7¹ And now, my children, lay thought on your hearts, mark well the words of your father, which are all come to you from the Lord's lips.

2 Take these books of your father's handwriting and read them.

For the books are many, and in them you will learn all the Lord's works, all that has been from the beginning of creation, and will be till the end of time.

3 And if you will observe my handwriting, you will not sin against the Lord; because there is no other except the Lord, neither in heaven, nor in earth, nor in the very lowest places, nor in the one foundation.

4 The Lord has placed the foundations in the unknown, and has spread forth heavens visible and invisible; he fixed the earth on the waters, and created countless creatures, and who has counted the water and the foundation of the unfixed, or the dust of the earth, or the sand of the sea, or the drops of the rain, or the morning dew, or the wind's breathings? Who has filled earth and sea, and the indissoluble winter?

I cut the stars out of fire, and decorated heaven, and put it in their midst.

Of the sun's passage along the seven circles.

18¹ That the sun go along the seven heavenly circles, which are the appointment of one hundred and eighty-two thrones, that it go down on a short day, and again one hundred and eighty-two, that it go down on a big day, and he has two thrones on which he rests, revolving hither and thither above the thrones of the months, from the seventeenth day of the month Tsivan it goes down to the month Thevan, from the seventeenth of Thevad it goes up.

3 And thus it goes close to the earth, then the earth is glad and makes grow its fruit, and when it goes away, then the earth is sad, and trees and all fruits have no florescence.

4 All this he measured, with good measurement of hours, and fixed a measure by his wisdom, of the visible and the invisible.

5 From the invisible he made all things visible, himself being invisible.

6 Thus I make known to you, my children, and distribute the books to your children, into all your generations, and amongst the nations who shall have the sense to fear God, let them receive them, and may they come to love them more than any food or earthly sweets, and read them and apply themselves to them.

8 And those who understand not the Lord, who fear not God, who accept not, but reject, who do not receive them (sc. the books), a terrible judgement awaits these.

9 Blessed is the man who shall bear their yoke and shall drag them along, for he shall be released on the day of the great judgement.

XLVII. 1. Cf. xxxix. 2.

2. Cf. 1 En. xciii. 10 for this high estimate of the Enochic works.

3. you will not sin. Cf. xxxiii. 9; xlvi. 7-9. For a like claim cf. 1 En. xxxvii. 4; xcii. 1; xciii. 10; c. 6; civ. 12, 13, and contrast Sir. xviii. 3.

no other except the Lord. Cf. Isa. xlv. 5, &c.; Sibyll. Or. iii. 69, 760; viii. 377; Sib. Or. Fragm. i. 7, 15; iii. 3; v. 1.

4. spread forth heavens. Ps. civ. 2; Isa. xl. 22; xlii. 5.

fixed the earth on the waters. 2 Pet. iii. 5.

5. who has counted . . . the sand of the sea, or the drops of the rain. Drawn from Sir. i. 2. Cf. Isa. xl. 12; Job xxxvi. 27 (LXX).

decorated heaven. Cf. Sir. xvi. 27.

XLVIII. 1. The text is faulty and unintelligible. The sun is in the fourth circle of the heavens in xi. 1; xxx. 3, and does not revolve through the seven circles. The twice-mentioned 182 thrones, too, are really, when added, the 364 world-stations of 1 En. lxxv. 2, i.e. the 364 different positions occupied by the sun on the 364 days of the year. As in 1 En. lxxii-lxxxii and Jub. iv the number is not exact (contrast 2 En. xiv. 1). This older Enochic reckoning may be partly due to opposition to heathen systems, and partly to the fact that 364 = 52 weeks of 7 days exactly.

2. Corrupt. Read either 'Sivan . . . Kislev' or 'Tamuz . . . Tebet'. Thevan and Thevad seem to be the same.

5. Cf. xxiv. 2 (note); xlvii. 2 (note).

6. See xxxiii. 9 (note).

7. love them more than any food. Cf. 1 En. lxxxii. 3. Cf. 2 En. xlvii. 2 (note).

8. No such terrible judgement is threatened on the rejecters of Enoch's disclosures in 1 En., but cf. Rev. xxii. 18, 19.

9. No such blessing is offered to the obedient in 1 En. There the righteous elect, or the righteous and the wise, receive Enoch's revelations. Cf. lxxxii. 3; xciii. 10; civ. 12.

A

Enoch instructs his sons not to swear either by heaven or earth, and shows God's promise, even in the mother's womb.

49¹ I swear to you, my children, but I swear not by any oath, neither by heaven nor by earth, nor by any other creature which God created.

The Lord said: 'There is no oath in me, nor injustice, but truth.' If there is no truth in men, let them swear by the words 'yea, yea', or else, 'nay, nay.'

2 And I swear to you, yea, yea, that there has been no man in his mother's womb, but that already before, even to each one there is a place prepared for the repose of that soul, and a measure fixed how much it is intended that a man be tried in this world.

Yea, children, deceive not yourselves, for there has been previously prepared a place for every soul of man.

Of how none born on earth can remain hidden nor his work remain concealed, but he (sc. God) bids us be meek, to endure attack and insult, and not to offend widows and orphans.

50¹ I have put every man's work in writing and none born on earth can remain hidden nor his works remain concealed. I see all things. Now therefore, my children, in patience and meekness spend the number of your days, that you inherit endless life.

3 Endure for the sake of the Lord every wound, every injury, every evil word and attack.

4 If ill-requitals befall you, return them not either to neighbour or enemy, because the Lord will return them for you and be your avenger on the day of great judgement, that there be no avenging here among men.

5 Whoever of you spends gold or silver for his brother's sake, he will receive ample treasure in the world to come.

Injure not widows nor orphans nor strangers, lest God's wrath come upon you.

B

For I swear to you, my children, that before 49 man was, a judgement-place was prepared for him, and a measure and a weighing-scale, in which man will be proved, and they are there already prepared.

And I shall put the work of every man in 50 writing.

And now, my children, spend the number of 2 your days in patience and gentleness, that you inherit the endless age that is to come.

Every wound, every hurt and heat (sic) and 3 wicked word (sc. which) shall befall you, suffer them for the Lord God's sake; and if you are able to requite (sc. ill), do not 4 requite your neighbour (sc. with ill) because the Lord is your requiter, and he (lit. who) will be the avenger on the day of the great judgement.

Lose gold or silver for a brother's sake, that 5 you receive inexhaustible treasure on the judgement-day.

XLIX. 1. I swear not, &c. Cf. Matt. v. 34, 35. See also Philo, De Special. Leg. ii. 1; Leg. All. iii. 72; De Decem Orac. 17; De Sac. Abelis et Caini, 28; De Plant. Noe, 19; Quod Omnis Probus Liber, 12. This appears to be a Jewish commonplace (Conybeare). For Jewish forms of swearing see Eisenmenger, ii. 490 sqq.

2. to each . . . a place prepared for the repose, &c. So Chagiga, fol. 15, col. 1; Torath Adam, fol. 101, col. 3; Avodath hakkodesh, fol. 19, col. 1, where it is said a place is prepared for every man either in paradise or hell. Cf. the number of souls, lviii. 5; 2 Bar. xxi. 23, xxiii. 4, 5; 4 Ezra iv. 36, vii. 85, 95.

L. 1. nor his works remain concealed. 1 En. ix. 5.

2. in patience. Cf. Luke xxi. 19 'in your patience ye shall win your souls'. This book teaches a blessed immortality but not, it seems, the resurrection of the dead.

3. Cf. Sir. ii. 4; 2 Tim. iv. 5; Heb. x. 32; 1 Pet. ii. 19; James i. 12. See 2 En. li. 3.

4. Cf. Sir. xxviii. 1, 2.

avenger . . . day of great judgement. Cf. Deut. xxxii. 35 (LXX). Cf. too Prov. xx. 22; xxiv. 29. Rom. xii. 19; Heb. x. 30 agree partly with Mass. and partly with LXX.

5. Whoever, &c. Cf. Prov. xix. 17; Sir. xxix. 10. See 2 En. li. 2 (note).

Injure not. We expect 'stretch out your hands to' as in ix. Cf. Sibyll. Or. ii. 75.

A

Enoch instructs his sons, that they hide not treasures in the earth, but bids them give alms to the poor.

1 1 Stretch out your hands to the poor according 2 to your strength. Hide not your silver in the earth. Help the faithful man in affliction, and affliction will not find you in the time of your trouble.

3 And every grievous and cruel yoke that come upon you bear all for the sake of the Lord, and thus you will find your reward in the day of judgement.

4 It is good to go morning, midday, and evening into the Lord's dwelling, for the glory of your creator.

5 Because every breathing thing glorifies him, and every creature visible and invisible returns him praise.

God instructs his faithful, how they are to praise his name.

2 1 Blessed is the man who opens his lips in praise of God of Sabaoth and praises the Lord with his heart.

2 Cursed every man who opens his lips for the bringing into contempt and calumny of his neighbour, because he brings God into contempt.

3 Blessed is he who opens his lips blessing and praising God.

4 Cursed is he before the Lord all the days of his life, who opens his lips to curse and abuse.

5 Blessed is he who blesses all the Lord's works.

6 Cursed is he who brings the Lord's creation into contempt.

7 Blessed is he who looks down and raises the fallen.

8 Cursed is he who looks to and is eager for the destruction of what is not his.

9 Blessed is he who keeps the foundations of his fathers made firm from the beginning.

10 Cursed is he who perverts the decrees of his forefathers.

11 Blessed is he who implants peace and love.

B

Stretch forth your hands to the orphan and to 51 the widow, and according to your power help the poor, and thus you shall find your reward on the 3 judgement-day.

In the morning, at midday and in the evening 4 and by day (sic) it is good to go into God's house and to glorify the creator of all.

Blessed is he who opens his heart and mouth 52 1 for the Lord's praise.

Cursed is he who opens his mouth for the 2 humbling of his neighbour.

Blessed is he who glorifies all the Lord's works. 5
Cursed is he who brings a creature of the Lord 6 into contempt.

Blessed is he who beholds the labour of his 7 hands.

Cursed is he who looks to undo the labours of 8 others.

Blessed is he who keeps the foundations of his 9 fathers.

Cursed is he who distorts the decrees and 10 limits of his fathers.

Blessed is he who goes (sc. with others) and 11 brings (sc. others) together in peace.

LI. 1. Sir. vii. 32; Prov. xxxi. 20. Cf. Job vii. 9; Sibyll. Or. ii. 88.

according to your strength. Cf. Sir. xiv. 13; xxix. 20.

2. Hide not, &c. Cf. Sir. xxix. 10.

Help . . . in affliction. Cf. Sir. iv. 4.

3. Sir. ii. 4. Cf. 1 Pet. ii. 19; iii. 14. Cf. 2 En. l. 3.

4. Ps. lv. 17. Cf. Dan. vi. 10. For these three Jewish hours of prayer—the third, sixth, and ninth—cf. Acts ii. 15; iii. 1; x. 9.

the Lord's dwelling, i.e. the temple. Although the writer is a Jew living in Egypt, he writes for Judaism as a whole, and gives here the ideal conduct of a dweller at Jerusalem. In lix. 2, 3 he prescribes the right method of sacrifice, and sacrifices could only be offered in Jerusalem.

5. Cf. Ps. cl. 6.

LII. For these beatitudes cf. xlii. 6–14. They are derived mainly from Sirach.

2. Cf. Wisdom i. 11 ἀπό καταλαλιᾶς φείσασθε γλώσσης.

4. curse and abuse. Cf. Sir. xxiii. 9–12.

5. Cf. Sir. xxxix. 14 εὐλογήσατε κύριον ἐπὶ πάνσι τοῖς ἔργοις αὐτοῦ.

10. Cf. 1 En. xcix. 2, 14; Sir. xvii. 11.

11. Cf. Matt. v. 9.

A

- 12 Cursed is he who disturbs those that love their neighbours.
 13 Blessed is he who speaks with humble tongue and heart to all.
 14 Cursed is he who speaks peace with his tongue, while in his heart there is no peace but a sword.
 15 For all these things will be laid bare in the weighing-scales and in the books, on the day of the great judgement.

[Let us not say: 'Our father is before God, he will stand forward for us on the day of judgement,' for there father cannot help son, nor yet son father.]

- 53 1 And now, my children, do not say: 'Our father is standing before God, and is praying for our sins,' for there is there no helper of any man who has sinned.
 2 You see how I wrote all works of every man, before his creation, all that is done amongst all
 3 men for all time, and none can tell or relate my handwriting, because the Lord sees all the imaginings of man, how they are vain, where they lie in the treasure-houses of the heart.
 4 And now, my children, mark well all the words of your father, that I tell you, lest you regret, saying: 'Why did our father not tell us?'

Enoch instructs his sons, that they should hand the books to others also.

- 54 [At that time, not understanding this] let these books which I have given you be for an inheri-

B

- Cursed is he who disturbs what is in peace. 12
 Blessed is he who speaks peace, and he has 13 peace.

All this will be laid bare in the weighing- 15 scales and on the books on the day of the great judgement.

And now, children, keep your hearts from all 16 unrighteousness, that you may inherit the weighing-scale of the light into eternity.

Say not, my children, that our father is with 53 God, and will pray for us (sc. and obtain absolution) from our sins.

You see, how that I write down all the works 2 of every man.

And none can distort my handwriting, because 3 the Lord seeth all.

And now, my children, mark well all the 4 words of your father's mouth, that they may be 54 for you for an inheritance of peace, and the books

12. Cf. Sir. xxviii. 9, 13.

14. Cf. Ps. xxviii. 3; lv. 21; lxii. 4; Sibyll. Or. ii. 120, 122.

16. unrighteousness (B). See lxi. 1 (note).

LIII. 1. This verse has a duplicate reading in A. The idea that departed saints interceded on behalf of the living has been attributed by some scholars to Isa. lxiii. 16 (see Ewald, Hist. of Israel, i. 296; Cheyne, Prophecies of Isaiah, 107-8; 299-300). If, however, the doctrine of a blessed immortality or of the resurrection was a late development among the Jews, this idea must necessarily have been later still, and accordingly unless we are prepared to bring down considerably the date of Isa. lxiii, we shall have some difficulty in justifying such an interpretation. It seems indeed that this idea among the Jews was comparatively late in origin. The first indubitable evidence in its favour is to be found in 1 En. xxii. 12; xcvi. 3, 5; xcix. 16; and thus we find that it was an accepted Pharisaic belief early in the second century B.C. The next mention of this belief is to be met with in 2 Macc. xv. 14 where Jeremiah, who appears in a vision to Judas Maccabaeus, is described as follows: ὁ φιλάδελφος οὗτός ἐστιν ὁ πολλὰ προσευχόμενος περὶ τοῦ λαοῦ καὶ τῆς ἁγίας πόλεως Ἰερουσαλὴμ ὁ τοῦ θεοῦ προφήτης. This was also the teaching of Philo, de Exsecrat 9: τρισὶ χρησόμενοι παρακλήτοις τῶν πρὸς τὸν πατέρα καταλλαγῶν . . . δευτέρῳ δὲ τῶν ἀρχηγῶν τοῦ ἔθνους ὁσιότητι, ὅτι ταῖς ἀφειμέναις σωματικαῖς ψυχαῖς ἄπλαστον καὶ γυμνὴν ἐπιδεικνυμένας πρὸς τὸν ἄρχοντα θεραπείαν τὰς ὑπὲρ υἱῶν καὶ θυγατέρων ἰκετείας οὐκ ἀτελεῖς εἰώθασιν ποιεῖσθαι, γέρας αὐτοῖς παρέχοντος τοῦ πατρὸς τὸ ἐπήκοον ἐν εὐχαῖς. The same view was obviously held by Josephus, Ant. i. 13. 3, where he describes Abraham as saying to Isaac when on the point of sacrificing him: μετ' εὐχῶν δὲ καὶ ἱερουργίας ἐκείνου τὴν ψυχὴν τὴν σὴν προσδεξιόμενον καὶ παρ' αὐτῷ καθέξοντος ἔση μοι εἰς κηδεμόνα καὶ γηροκόμον. And also in Sibyll. Or. 330-3 τοῖς καὶ ὁ παντοκράτωρ θεὸς ἀφθιτος ἄλλο παρέξει εὐσεβέσσ', ὅπότε ἂν θεὸν ἀφθιτον αἰτίσωνται· ἐκ μαλεροῦ πυρός τε καὶ ἀκαμάτων ἀπὸ βρυγμῶν ἀνθρώπους σώσει δώσει· καὶ τοῦτο ποιήσει. Finally this doctrine is recognized and apparently accepted in certain parts of the N. T.: Matt. xxvii. 47, 49; Luke xvi. 24-31; John viii. 56 (?); Heb. xii. 1?; Rev. vi. 9-11. For the prevalence of this belief in later Judaism, see Eisenmenger ii. 357-9; 361. The idea of intercession may be derived from ancestor-worship, and not from the doctrine of a future life as I have implied above; cf. Cheyne's Introd. to the Book of Isaiah, 352, 353.

2. Enoch is the universal scribe.

3. tell or relate. B has 'distort'. Perhaps read 'tell or gainsay'. Cf. Ps. civ. 11; Sir. xvii. 15, 20. relate = raskazati—possibly a mistake for raskaziti = 'to distort'. Cf. B.

LIV. See xxxiii. 9 (note).

A

tance of your peace. Hand them to all who want them, and instruct them, that they may see the Lord's very great and marvellous works.

Here Enoch shows his sons, telling them with tears: 'My children, the hour has approached for me to go up on to heaven; behold, the angels are standing before me.'

5¹ 'My children, behold, the day of my term and the time have approached.

For the angels who shall go with me are standing before me and urge me to my departure from you; they are standing here on earth, awaiting what has been told them.

2 For to-morrow I shall go up on to heaven, to the uppermost Jerusalem to my eternal inheritance.

3 Therefore I bid you do before the Lord's face all his good pleasure.

Methosalam asks of his father blessing, that he (sc. Methosalam) may make him (sc. Enoch) food to eat.

6¹ Methosalam having answered his father Enoch, said: 'What is agreeable to thy eyes, father, that I may make before thy face, that thou mayst bless our dwellings, and thy sons, and that thy people may be made glorious through thee, and then that thou mayst depart thus, as the Lord said?'

2 Enoch answered to his son Methosalam and said: 'Hear, child, from the time when the Lord anointed me with the ointment of his glory, there has been no food in me, and my soul remembers not earthly enjoyment, neither do I want anything earthly.'

Enoch bade his son Methosalam to summon all his brethren.

7¹ 'My child Methosalam, summon all thy brethren and all your household and the elders of the people, that I may talk to them and depart; as is planned for me.'

2 And Methosalam made haste, and summoned his brethren, Regim, Riman, Uchan, Chermion, Gaidad, and all the elders of the people before the face of his father Enoch; and he blessed them, and said to them:

the Lord's . . . marvellous works. Job xxxvii. 14, 16; Ps. lxxi. 17, &c.

LV. See xxxvi.

2. the highest heaven (B). Cf. lxvii. 2. A's reading, 'to the uppermost Jerusalem,' seems inferior.

LVI. 2. Cf. xxii. 7, 8.

LVII. 1. Cf. xxxvi. 1; 1 En. xci. 1.

2. Riman, Uchan, and Chermion are not mentioned in i. 10.

B

which I have given you from God, hide them not, tell them to all that want, that by word they learn of God's works.

For behold, my children, the day of my term 55¹ has approached, the angels coming from the Lord God urge the appointed time, and stand with me before my face.

And I shall go up to-morrow on to the highest 2 heaven into my eternal inheritance.

Therefore I command you, my children, that 3 you do his good pleasure before the Lord's face.

Mefusailom answered his father Enoch: 'What 56¹ food (sc. meal) is agreeable to thy eyes, father, that we may make before thy face, that thou mayst bless our dwellings and thy sons, and all thy household, and glorify thy people, and thus after that depart?'

Enoch said to his son: 'Hear, my child, from 2 that day when the Lord anointed me with the oil of his glory, from that time there has been no food in me. I do not desire earthly food, but 57¹ summon thy brethren and all our household, and the elders of the people, that I may speak with them and depart.'

And Mefusailom made haste and summoned 2 his brethren Regim and Rim and Azuchan and Chermion, and the elders of the people, and brought all before the face of his father Enoch. And he blessed them, and said to them:

A

Enoch's instruction to his sons.

58 1 ' Listen to me, my children, to-day.

In those days when the Lord came down on to earth for Adam's sake, and visited all his creatures, which he created himself, after all these he created Adam, and the Lord called all the beasts of the earth, all the reptiles, and all the birds that soar in the air, and brought them all before the face of our father Adam.

And Adam gave the names to all things living on earth. And the Lord appointed him ruler over all, and subjected to him all things under his hands, and made them dumb and made them dull (lit. deaf) that they be commanded of man, and be in subjection and obedience to him.

Thus also the Lord created every man lord over all his possessions.

4 The Lord will not judge a single soul of beast for man's sake, but adjudges the souls of men to 5 their beasts in this world ; for men have a special place.

And as every soul of man is according to 6 number, similarly beasts will not perish, nor all

B

' Listen, children, in the days of our father 58 Adam, the Lord God came down (sc. to earth) and visited it and all his creatures, which he 2 created himself, and the Lord God called all the beasts of the earth and all the wild animals and all the quadrupeds, and all the reptiles of the earth, and all the birds that soar, and brought them before the face of our father Adam, and called the names to all things that move over the earth. And God subjected to Adam all things 3 existing into subservience (lit. lessness) and secondly made them all dull (lit. deaf) that they might be in subjection and obedience to man.

For the Lord created man ruler over all his possessions.

In this there will be no judgement of every 4 living soul, but only of man's.

But for the souls of beasts there is in the great 5 age one place and one fold.

For no soul of any animal which the Lord 6 created will be shut up till the great judgement, LVIII. 1. the Lord came down, &c. See xxxii. 1 (note).

5. men have a special place. See xlix. 2 (note).

similarly beasts will not perish. As the Jews believed about the opening of the Christian era that all animals had spoken one language before the fall, and so were rational to some extent (Jub. iii. 28; Josephus, Ant. i. 1. 4) it was natural they should infer a future existence of the animal world. Yet nowhere else except here do we find it, either in O.T. or pre-Christian Jewish works. Their future life is limited and has an ethical motive, not for the brute's own sake, but to accuse man at the final judgement. The Greek view of metempsychosis, and the deification of animals in Egypt show that the idea of animals' future life was conceivable in the ancient world. Plutarch, Plac. v. 20. 4 holds that brutes' souls are rational, but incapable of acting rationally on account of their bodies; according to Xenocrates they possessed a consciousness of God, καθόλου γοῦν τὴν περὶ τοῦ θεοῦ ἔννοιαν Ξενοκράτης . . . οὐκ ἀπελπίζει καὶ ἐν τοῖς ἀλόγοις ζώοις (Clem. Strom. v. 590). Chrysippus ascribed reason to brutes (Chalkid in Tim. p. 148 b); while Sextus Medicus (ix. 127) maintained that the souls of brutes and of men were alike. Hence it was generally believed that the souls of men could pass into brutes, πρῶτον μὲν ἀθάνατον εἶναί φησι τὴν ψυχὴν, εἶτα μεταβάλλουσιν εἰς ἄλλα γένη ζώων (Porph. V. P. 19): while Plato indeed went further and derived the souls of all brutes ultimately from those of men, through a process of deterioration, ὡς γὰρ ποτε ἐξ ἀνδρῶν γυναῖκες καὶ τὰλλα θηρία γενήσονται, ἠπίσταντο οἱ συνιστάντες ἡμᾶς (Tim. 76 D). With regard to individual animals, some thinkers believed that bees contained a divine element (Virg. Georg. iv. 219-21), while Democritus and Pliny placed religion among the moral virtues of elephants (H. N. viii. 1). But the closest parallels are to be found in Zoroastrianism, to which indeed we should probably trace in some measure the ideas of the text. Thus in the Zend-Avesta Vendidad Fargard 13 (Darmesteter) we find an entire chapter dealing with the sacredness of the life of the domesticated dog and the crime of attempting its life—its murderer was to lose his soul to the ninth generation (1-4): with the food that was to be given to it and the penalties entailed by feeding it badly (20-28), which were to range from fifty to two hundred blows with the horse-goad. Nay more, the land, its pastures and crops were to suffer for the unatoned death of the dog, and these plagues were not to be removed till the man who had slain it was slain in turn or had offered sacrifices three days and three nights to the pious soul of the departed dog (54, 55). Finally, the soul of the dog went after death to the source of the waters (51). In the Midrash Koheleth, fol. 329, col. 1, we find the following quaint and slightly analogous thought: 'Rabbi Chama, the son of Gorion, said that wolves and unfruitful trees must give account: just as man must give account, so also must unfruitful trees.' Eisenmenger i. 468. It is noteworthy that the ideas of the text have passed over into the creed of the Mohammedans. Thus, according to Sale's note on the sixth chapter of the Koran, irrational animals will be restored to life at the resurrection that they may be brought to judgement and have vengeance taken on them for the injuries they had inflicted on each other in this life. Then after they have duly retaliated their several wrongs, God will turn them again to dust (Sale's Koran, Prelim. Discourse, Sect. iv), with the exception of Ezra's ass and the dog of the Seven Sleepers which will enjoy eternal life in Paradise (Koran iii; xviii). Are we to interpret in this manner Orac. Sibyll. viii. 415-18?—

καὶ ὕστερον ἐς κρίσιν ἤξω κρίνων εὐσεβέων καὶ δυσσεβέων βίον ἀνδρῶν καὶ κριὸν κριῶ καὶ ποιμένι ποιμένα θήσω καὶ μόσχον μόσχῳ πέλας ἀλλήλων ἐς ἔλεγχον.

Even in Christian times animals were credited with intelligence, conscience, responsibility, as well as with the passions, vices, and virtues of mankind (see Bestie delinquenti, D'Addosio, 1892, from which the following facts are taken). They were accordingly solemnly tried, and advocates were assigned at the public expense to them to plead their cause. Thus moles (A. D. 824), a sow (1324), a cock (1474), snails (1487) were duly tried and condemned. They were souls of beasts which the Lord created, till the great judgement, and they will accuse man, if he feed them ill.

A

Enoch instructs his sons wherefore they may not touch beef because of what comes from it.

- 1) 1 Whoever defiles the soul of beast, defiles his own soul.
 2 For man brings clean animals to make sacrifice for sin, that he may have cure of his soul.

B

and all souls will accuse the man, whoever feeds 59 1

 ill the soul of beast, defiles his own soul.

But he who brings sacrifice of clean beasts, 2 cures his own soul, and he who brings an offering of clean birds, cures his own soul.

A

And if they bring for sacrifice clean animals, and birds, man has cure, he cures his soul.

- 3 All is given you for food, bind it by the four feet, that is to make good the cure, he cures his soul.
 4 But whoever kills beast without wound, kills his own soul and defiles his own flesh.
 5 And he who does any beast any injury whatsoever, in secret, it is evil practice, and he defiles his own soul.

A

- 1) 1 He who does injury to soul of man, does injury to his own soul, and there is no cure for his flesh, nor pardon for all time.

How it is not fitting to kill man neither by weapon nor by tongue.

- 2 He who works the killing of a man's soul, kills his own soul, and kills his own body, and there is no cure for him for all time.
 3 He who puts a man in any snare, shall stick in it himself, and there is no cure for him for all time.
 4 He who puts a man in any vessel, his retribution will not be wanting at the great judgement for all time.
 5 He who works crookedly or speaks evil against any soul, will not make justice for himself for all time.

Enoch instructs his sons to keep themselves from injustice and often to stretch forth hands to the poor, to give a share of their labours.

- 1) 1 And now, my children, keep your hearts from every injustice, which the Lord hates. Just as a man asks (sc. something) for his own

B

He who does injury to the soul of man, in- 60 1 jures his own soul, and there is no cure for him into eternity.

He who puts a man into †paradise†—his 3 judgement shall not be exhausted into eternity.

Now, my children, keep yourselves from every 61 1 thing unrighteous, which the Lord hateth, still more from every living soul.

also occasionally subjected to torture, and their cries were regarded as a confession of guilt (l. c. p. 46). Even as late as 1531 a book was written by Chassauée to discuss the lawfulness of trying animals judicially, and the legitimate methods of procedure (l. c. p. 75).

LIX. 1. Whoever defiles the soul of beast. This refers not to the sin of bestiality, but, as B and 2-4 show, to some unlawful way of sacrificing or slaughtering animals.

2, 3. These verses suggest a date earlier than the destruction of the Temple, A. D. 70.

4. Against strangling beasts.

5. Here bestiality may be meant.

LX. 1. The sin referred to in 1 Thess. iv. 6.

3. Cf. Ps. ix. 15; xxxv. 8; lvii. 6. There is an utter want of proportion between sin and penalty here. †paradise† (B). The text is corrupt but easily emended to give the sense '(crooked) dealing'.

4. vessel = sosud, perhaps a mistake for sud = 'judgement', 'lawsuit'.

5. Cf. Ps. ci. 5.

LXI. 1. injustice which the Lord hates. Cf. Jud. v. 17; Sir. xv. 11, 13; 2 En. lxvi. 1.

injustice. The same word, nepravda, means injustice, untruth, and unrighteousness. Cf. lxvi. 1.

A

2 soul from God, so let him do to every living soul, because I know all things, how in the great time (sc. to come) are many mansions prepared for men, good for the good, and bad for the bad, without number many.

3 Blessed are those who enter the good houses, for in the bad (sc. houses) there is no peace nor return (sc. from them).

A

4 Hear, my children, small and great! When man puts a good thought in his heart, brings gifts from his labours before the Lord's face and his hands made them not, then the Lord will turn away his face from the labour of his hand, and he (sc. man) cannot find the labour of his hands.

5 And if his hands made it, but his heart murmur, and his heart cease not making murmur incessantly, he has not any advantage.

A

Of how it is fitting to bring one's gift with faith, because there is no repentance after death.

62 1 Blessed is the man who in his patience brings his gifts with faith before the Lord's face, because he will find forgiveness of sins.

2 But if he take back his words before the time, there is no repentance for him; and if the time pass and he do not of his own will what is promised, there is no repentance after death.

3 Because every work which man does before the time, is all deceit before men, and sin before God.

Of how not to despise the poor, but to share with them equally, lest thou be murmured against before God.

63 1 When man clothes the naked and fills the hungry, he will find reward from God.

2 But if his heart murmur, he commits a double evil: ruin of himself and of that which he gives; and for him there will be no finding of reward on account of that.

3 And if his own heart is filled with his food and his own flesh (sc. clothed) with his clothing, he commits contempt, and will forfeit all his endurance of poverty, and will not find reward of his good deeds.

4 Every proud and magniloquent man is hateful to the Lord, and every false speech, clothed in untruth; it will be cut with the blade of the sword of death, and thrown into the fire, and shall burn for all time.'

2. many mansions. Cf. 1 En. xxxix. 4, 7, 8; xli. 2; John xiv. 2.

good for the good, &c. Sir. xxxix. 25; Sibyll. Or. Fragm. iii. 18-19.

4. The text seems corrupt, and the idea is: it is good to offer gifts to God; but if a man sacrifices to God what is another man's or ill-gotten, God turns away His face from him. Cf. lxvi. 2, and esp. Sir. xxxi. 21-4, 28.

his hands made them not. Cf. Sibyll. Or. viii. 403, 406.

5. Only willing offerers are blessed. Cf. Exod. xxv. 2; xxxv. 5; Prov. xi. 25.

his heart murmur. Cf. lxiii. 2; Deut. xv. 10; Sir. xxxii. 10.

LXII. 1, 2. There is forgiveness if men keep strictly to their vows. B has quite missed the point in ver. 2.

3. before the time. We might expect also 'or after the time'.

LXIII. 1. See ix (notes).

2. See lxi. 5 (note).

4. proud . . . hateful to the Lord. Ps. xviii. 27; ci. 5; Prov. vi. 16, 17.

B

Just as man asks (sc. something) for his own soul from the Lord, so let him do to every living soul, lest in the great age . . . He has prepared many mansions, very good dwellings, and bad dwellings without number.

Blessed is he who departs into the sweet houses.

B

Blessed is he who in his patience brings a gift before the Lord's face, for he shall find forgiveness of his sins.

When a man gives from his mouth terms of time to bring gifts before the Lord's face, doing thus (sc. fulfilling his promise) he will find repentance of forgiveness (sic). But if the appointed time pass by and he go back on his word he shall receive repentance.

When he covers the naked and gives bread to the hungry, he shall find forgiveness.

But if his heart murmurs, then he makes ruin of his giving of alms.

And if, when he has had his fill, he is contemptuous, then he shall lose all his good deeds, and shall not find (sc. forgiveness), for every contemptuous man is hateful to the Lord.'

A

Of how the Lord calls up Enoch, and people took counsel to go and kiss him at the place called Achuzan.

1 When Enoch had spoken these words to his sons, all people far and near heard how the Lord was calling Enoch. They took counsel together:

2 'Let us go and kiss Enoch,' and two thousand men came together and came to the place Achuzan where Enoch was, and his sons.

3 And the elders of the people, the whole assembly, came and bowed down and began to kiss Enoch and said to him: 'Our father Enoch, be 4 thou blessed of the Lord, the eternal ruler, and now bless thy sons and all the people, that we may be glorified to-day before thy face.

5 For thou shalt be glorified before the Lord's face for all time, since the Lord chose thee, rather than all men on earth, and designated thee writer of all his creation, visible and invisible, and redeemer of the sins of man, and helper of thy household.'

And Enoch answered all his people, saying:

Of Enoch's instruction of his sons.

1 'Hear, my children, before that all creatures were created, the Lord created the visible and invisible things.

2 And as much time as there was and went past, understand that after all that he created man in the likeness of his own form, and put into him eyes to see, and ears to hear, and heart to reflect, and intellect wherewith to deliberate.

3 And the Lord saw all man's works, and created all his creatures, and divided time, from time he fixed the years, and from the years he appointed the months, and from the months he appointed the days, and of days he appointed seven.

4 And in those he appointed the hours, measured them out exactly, that man might reflect on time and count years, months, and hours, their alternation, beginning, and end, and that he might count his own life, from the beginning until death, and reflect on his sin and write his work bad and

5 good; because no work is hidden before the Lord, that every man might know his works and never transgress all his commandments, and keep my handwriting from generation to generation.

6 When all creation visible and invisible, as the Lord created it, shall end, then every man goes

B

And it happened, when Enoch had spoken to 64 1 his sons and to the princes of the people, all the people and all those near him heard how the Lord God was calling Enoch. All took counsel together, saying: 'Come, let us kiss Enoch.'

And these came together up to four thousand 2 men, and they came to the place Achuzan, where Enoch was and his sons.

And the elders of the people began to kiss 3 Enoch, saying: 'Blessed art thou of the Lord, the eternal ruler, and now bless thy people, and 4 glorify us before the Lord's face, for the Lord 5 hath chosen thee, and appointed thee the taker away of our sins.' And Enoch said to all the people:

'Hear, my children, before all creation took 65 1 shape, the Lord appointed the age of things created.

Then he created all his creatures visible and invisible.

And then he put together man in his own 2 image, and put into him eyes to see and ears to hear, the heart to reflect and the mind to deliberate.

Then the Lord resolved the age for the sake 3 of man, and divided up the various seasons and years and months and hours, that man might 4 reflect on the changes and end of the seasons, and the beginning and end of the years and the days and the hours, that he might reckon the death of his life.

And when the creation, which the Lord created, 6 shall end, and every man shall go to the Lord's 7 great judgement, then the seasons shall perish, and thenceforward there will be no more years, nor months, nor days, and there will be no more hours thenceforward, nor will they be reckoned, but there shall begin one endless age. 8

And all the righteous shall be collected together in the great age, and age and age of the LXIV. 5. writer of all his creation. See xl. 13 (note); liii. 2. redeemer. For Enoch as intercessor cf. 1 En. xiii. 4. Contrast 2 En. liii. 1.

LXV. 1. For creation cf. xxiv. 2 (note).

2. created man . . . heart to reflect. Cf. Sir. xvii. 3, 5;

4. count years, &c. Cf. Wisdom vii. 17-18.

5. Cf. xxxiii. 9 (note).

6. The judgement is to close man's existence on earth. At this judgement all men must appear, but there is nothing here to show that there is a resurrection of the body.

A

7 to the great judgement, and then all time shall perish, and the years, and thenceforward there will be neither months nor days nor hours, they will be stuck together and will not be counted.

8 There will be one aeon, and all the righteous who shall escape the Lord's great judgement, shall be collected in the great aeon, for the righteous the great aeon will begin, and they will 9 live eternally, and then too there will be amongst them neither labour, nor sickness, nor humiliation, nor anxiety, nor need, nor violence, nor night, nor darkness, but great light.

10 And they shall have a great indestructible wall, and a paradise bright and incorruptible, for all corruptible things shall pass away, and there will be eternal life.

Enoch instructs his sons and all the elders of the people, how they are to walk with terror and trembling before the Lord, and serve him alone and not bow down to idols, but to God, who created heaven and earth and every creature, and †to† his image.

66 1 And now, my children, keep your souls from all injustice, such as the Lord hates.

B

righteous shall be collected together, and they shall be eternal and incorruptible.

And thenceforward there shall be no labour amongst them, nor sickness nor humiliation, nor anxiety nor need, nor night nor darkness, but great, endless, and indestructible light.

And the great paradise will be their shelter and eternal dwelling-place, and they shall no more bear the injuries (lit. lawlessnesses) of those on earth.

The Lord will send down great destruction on to earth and the earth's whole composition shall perish.

For I know, that this will end in tumult and will perish, only my brother will be preserved on that day, placed in . . . and those of his tribe and the sun.

And now, my children, keep your souls from all unrighteousness, such as the Lord hates.

A

2 Walk before his face with terror and trembling and serve him alone. Bow down to the true God, not to dumb idols, [but bow down to his picture], and bring all just offerings before the Lord's face. The Lord hates what is unjust.

3 For the Lord sees all things; when man takes thought in his heart, then he counsels the intellects, and every thought is always before the Lord, who made firm the earth and put all creatures on it.

4 If you look to heaven, the Lord is there; if you take thought of the sea's deep and all the under-earth, the Lord is there.

5 For the Lord created all things. Bow not down to things made by man, leaving the Lord of all creation, because no work can remain hidden before the Lord's face.

6 Walk, my children, in long-suffering, in meekness, honesty, in provocation, in grief, in faith and in truth, in reliance on promises, in illness, in abuse, in wounds, in temptation, in nakedness, in privation, loving one another, till you go out from this age of ills, that you become inheritors of endless time.

7 Blessed are the just who shall escape the great judgement, for they shall shine forth more than 8 the sun sevenfold, for in this world the seventh part is taken off from all, light, darkness, food, enjoyment, sorrow, paradise, torture, fire, frost, and other things; he put all down in writing, that you might read and understand.'

7. See xxxiii. 2.

8-9. A blessed immortality.

10. wall. Perhaps the wall that divides Paradise (see ix) from the place of punishment (see x).

11. Sir. xiv. 19.

LXVI. 1. injustice . . . the Lord hates. Cf. lxi. 1; Deut. xii. 31; Wisdom xiv. 9. injustice. Cf. lxvi. 1 (note).

Walk . . . terror and trembling. Cf. Phil. ii. 12; also 2 Cor. vii. 13; Eph. vi. 5.

2. all just offerings. See lxi. 4 (note).

3. sees all things . . . thought in his heart, &c. Cf. 1 Chron. xxviii. 9; 2 Chron. vi. 30; Ps. xciv. 11; Prov. xv. 11; Dan. ii. 30.

4. Partly drawn from Ps. cxxxix. 8-12. Mention of Sheol is omitted here, as it is included in the author's conception of the heavens.

5. no work . . . hidden. Cf. Jer. xvi. 17; Sir. xvii. 15.

6. Cf. Rom. viii. 35; 2 Cor. xi. 27; 2 Pet. i. 4.

7. Cf. lxx. 8.

8. enjoyment, &c. 1 En. lxxix. 8.

A

The Lord let out darkness on to earth and covered the people and Enoch, and he was taken up on high, and light came again in the heaven.

6 1 When Enoch had talked to the people, the Lord sent out darkness on to the earth, and there was darkness, and it covered those men 2 standing and talking with Enoch, and they took Enoch up on to the highest heaven, where the Lord is; and he received him and placed him before his face, and the darkness went off from the earth, and light came again.

3 And the people saw and understood not how Enoch had been taken, and glorified God, and found a roll in which was traced: 'the invisible God,' and all went to their homes.

B

When Enoch had talked to the people, the 67 1 Lord sent down murk on to the earth, and there was darkness, it covered all the men standing with Enoch.

And the angels hastened and having taken 2 Enoch, they carried him up on to the highest heaven. And he received him, and put him before his face into eternity. And the darkness went off from the earth, and light came again, and all the people saw, and understood not how 3 Enoch had been taken, and glorified God.

And they came to their homes, those who had seen such things. Glory be to our God into eternity. Amen.

A

5 1 Enoch was born on the sixth day of the month Tsivan, and lived three hundred and sixty-five years.

He was taken up to heaven on the first day of the month Tsivan and remained in heaven sixty 2 days. He wrote all these signs of all creation, which the Lord created, and wrote three hundred 3 and sixty-six books, and handed them over to his sons and remained on earth thirty days, and was again taken up to heaven on the sixth day of the month Tsivan, on the very day and hour when 4 he was born. As every man's nature in this life is dark, so are also his conception, birth, and departure from this life. At what hour he was conceived, at that hour he was born, and at that hour too he died.

5 Methosalain and his brethren, all the sons of Enoch, made haste, and erected an altar at the place called Achuzan, whence and where Enoch had been taken up to heaven.

6 And they took sacrificial oxen and summoned all people and sacrificed the sacrifice before the Lord's face.

7 All people, the elders of the people and the whole assembly came to the feast and brought gifts to the sons of Enoch.

And they made a great feast, rejoicing and making merry three days, praising God, who had given them such a sign through Enoch, who had found favour with him, and that they should hand it on to their sons from generation to generation, from age to age. Amen.

LXVII. 2. highest heaven. Cf. lxv. 2 (B). This is an exceptional privilege, as Paradise in the third heaven is the eternal abode of the righteous, lv. 2. In Asc. Is. ix. 7 the future habitation of the righteous is the seventh heaven.

LXVIII. A short résumé of Enoch's life. Cf. xxiii.

1. sixty days. Cf. xxiii. 6 and xxxvi. 1.

5-7. Cf. the fragment of Melchizedekian literature (appended to my Commentary on 2 Enoch) for Methusalem's sacrifice. The place of sacrifice, and here of Enoch's assumption, is called Achuzan in i. 3, but Aruzan in ii. 17.

7. hand it on, &c. Cf. xxxiii. 10.

II BARUCH

I. THE SYRIAC APOCALYPSE OF BARUCH

INTRODUCTION

§ 1. SHORT ACCOUNT OF THE BOOK.

THE Apocalypse of Baruch, which for the sake of convenience will be designated 2 Baruch in this edition, is a composite work written in the latter half of the first century of the Christian era. Its authors were orthodox Jews and it is a good representative of the Judaism against which the Pauline dialectic was directed.

In this Apocalypse we have almost the last noble utterance of Judaism before it plunged into the dark and oppressive years that followed the destruction of Jerusalem. For ages after that epoch its people seem to have been bereft of their immemorial gifts of song and eloquence, or to have had thought and energy only for the study and expansion of the traditions of the Fathers. But when our book was written, that evil and barren era had not yet set in; breathing thought and burning word had still their home in Palestine, and the hand of the Jewish artist was still master of its ancient cunning.

This beautiful Apocalypse, with the exception of nine chapters towards its close, which under the title 'the Epistle of Baruch' or a similar one, were incorporated in the later Syriac Bible, was lost sight of for quite 1,200 years.

Written originally in Hebrew, it was translated into Greek, and from Greek into Syriac. Of the Hebrew original every line has perished save a few still surviving in rabbinic writings. Of the Greek version, a small fragment has been recovered from the papyri, while many phrases and sentences have been preserved in the Greek Apocalypse of Baruch (i. e. 3 Baruch in this edition) and in the Rest of the Words of Baruch (i. e. 4 Baruch). Happily the Syriac has come down to us in its entirety in a sixth-century MS., the discovery of which is due to Ceriani. Of this MS. Ceriani published a Latin translation in 1866, the Syriac text in 1871, and the photo-lithographic facsimile in 1883. Though there are no adequate grounds for assuming a Latin version, it is demonstrable that our Apocalypse was the foundation of a Latin Apocalypse of Baruch, a fragment of which is preserved in Cyprian.

This Apocalypse is, as has already been stated, composite. The editor has made use of a number of independent writings, belonging to various dates between 50 and 90 A. D. They are thus contemporaneous with the chief New Testament writings, and furnish records of the Jewish doctrines and beliefs of that period, and of the arguments which prevailed in Judaism in the latter half of the first century, and with which its leaders sought to uphold its declining faith and confront the attacks of a growing and aggressive Christianity. Written by Pharisaic Jews as an apology for Judaism, and in part an implicit polemic against Christianity, it gained nevertheless a larger circulation amongst Christians than amongst Jews, and owed its very preservation to the scholarly cares of the Church it assailed. But in the struggle for life its secret animus against Christianity begat an instinctive opposition in Christian circles, and so proved a bar to its popularity. Thus the place it would naturally have filled was taken by the sister work 4 Ezra. This latter work, which forms in fact an unconscious confession of the failure of Judaism to redeem the world, was naturally more acceptable to Christian readers, and thus, in due course, our Apocalypse was elbowed out of recognition by its fitter and sturdier rival.

§ 2. THE VARIOUS BOOKS OF BARUCH.

1° The Book of Baruch in the LXX (i. e. 1 Baruch). On the probability that i. 1-3; iii. 9-iv. 29 of this book are a recast of a lost portion of our Apocalypse, i. e. 'the Letter to the Two and a Half Tribes', see § 8. There is no verbal borrowing between our Apocalypse and 1 Baruch, but in the following passages there is a similarity of diction or of thought or of both:

INTRODUCTION

2 BARUCH.

i. 1.
x. 16.
lix. 7.
lxxvii. 10.
lxxviii. 7.
lxxix. 2.
lxxx. 5.
lxxxiv. 2-5.
lxxxvi. 1, 2.

1 BARUCH.

i. 3.
iv. 10, 14.
iii. 12.
ii. 26.
iv. 36, 37 (v. 6, 7).
i. 17, 18.
ii. 13.
i. 19; ii. 2.
i. 14.

2° 2 Baruch or the present Apocalypse.

3° 3 Baruch or the Greek Apocalypse—a work of the second century, which is dealt with fully in its proper place in this volume. On some points of connexion between this and the preceding work see my Commentary on The Apocalypse of Baruch, pp. xxi. sq.

4° 4 Baruch or the Rest of the Words of Baruch. The book was written in Greek in the second century of our era. It is in part a Jewish work recast. The Greek text was first printed at Venice in 1609, next by Ceriani in 1868 under the title 'Paralipomena Jeremiae' in his Mon. Sacr. v. 11-18, and has been critically edited by Rendel Harris in 1889. This book exists also in the Ethiopic Bible, and was edited from three MSS. by Dillmann in his Chrestomathia aethiopica in 1886. But as these MSS. are inferior, a new edition is needed, which will take account of the Greek MSS. as well as of the Ethiopic—there are eight still uncollated of the latter in the British Museum—and also of the Jewish matter underlying the book.

5° A Gnostic Book of Baruch is drawn upon in Hippolytus' Philosophumena, v. 24-7.

6° A Latin Book of Baruch is quoted in an MS. of Cyprian's Testimonia, iii. 29, which is clearly based on our Apocalypse.

7° Another Book of Baruch is mentioned in the Altercatio Simonis Iudaei et Theophili Christiani, published by Harnack (Texte und Untersuchungen, Bd. I, Heft 3, 1883), but so far as the quotation goes, this book has no connexion with our Apocalypse.

§ 3. THE SYRIAC MSS.

For chapters i-lxxvii we have only one MS. This MS.—designated c in my edition—was found in the library in Milan. It belongs to the sixth century. In 1871 Ceriani edited the Syriac text from the MS. in his Mon. Sacr. et Prof. V. ii. 113-80. Of chapters lxxviii-lxxxvi, which form the Epistle of Baruch, many MSS. were known to exist, and three of them, a, b, d, were collated by Ceriani. In 1871 Fritzsche attempted to form a text on the basis of these four MSS. through the medium of an emended edition of Ceriani's Latin translation in his Libri Apocryphi V. T. Graece, 1871, pp. 690-9.

The present writer edited the Syriac text of these chapters in his edition of the Apocalypse of Baruch, 1896, in which he made use of the following MSS.

- a* Called A in Ceriani. See p. 167 note.
- b* Add. 17105 Brit. Mus., ff. 116^a-121^a. Sixth century.
- c* Milan MS., ff. 265^b-267^b. Sixth century.
- d* Cod. Ambrosianus A 145.
- e* No. 1 Syr. MSS., Bodley, ff. 430-432. A. D. 1627.
- f* Egerton 705, Brit. Mus., ff. 373^a-374^a. Seventeenth century.
- g* Add. 12172 Brit. Mus., ff. 192^b-195^b. Tenth or Twelfth century.
- h* Add. 18715 Brit. Mus., ff. 242^b-244^a. Twelfth century.
- i* No. 2 Syr. MSS., Bodley, ff. 492-493. A. D. 1614.
- k* No. 20 Syr. MSS., Bodley, ff. 37-38.

Of these ten befghik were collated directly by the present writer. In addition to these he found excerpts from the Epistle in l = Add. 12178, Brit. Mus., f. 111^b (ninth or tenth century), in m = 14482 Brit. Mus., ff. 47^b-48^a (eleventh or twelfth century), and in n, 14684 Brit. Mus., f. 24 (twelfth century). Finally the readings of the Walton and Paris Polyglots were taken account of. As a result of a critical study of these authorities I arrived at certain definite results. Thus while c represents one type of text, abdefghiklmn represent another—say a. The latter again fall into two classes abghk (=β) being more trustworthy than defi (=γ). The originals of these three classes, a, β, γ, have been lost, but they are helpful in showing the interrelations of our authorities. The results finally arrived at (see my edition, pp. xxii-xxx) can best be represented in the following table:

II BARUCH

Original Syriac Translation

Here W and P stand for the Walton and Paris Polyglots. It is of no little interest to have traced the sources of the text in the two great polyglots; for, as their editors have given no information on the subject, scholars had hitherto been in the dark in this respect.

§ 4. DATE OF THE SYRIAC VERSION.

Since the MSS. c and b referred to in the preceding section both belong to the sixth century, we find that at that date there existed two distinctly developed types of text, both of which must have been for no brief period in existence owing to the variety of readings already evolved. Further, though b belongs to the sixth century, many of its readings are decidedly later than c, or even than a h. In fact a h represent the text at an earlier stage than b. The common parent a b h therefore, i.e. β , could not be later than the fifth century. Since, therefore, β belongs at latest to the fifth century, the common progenitor of c and a (= the parent of β and γ) can hardly be sought later than the fourth century. It may be as early as the third.

§ 5. THE SYRIAC—A TRANSLATION FROM THE GREEK.—The Oxyrhynchus Greek Fragment, xii–xiv. 3.

The Syriac Version is a translation from the Greek. The conclusion was already arrived at before the discovery of the Greek fragment of Grenfell and Hunt. 1° For it is so stated in c. 2° There are certain corruptions in the text which are only explicable on the hypothesis that the translator misinterpreted the Greek, or found the corruption already existing there. The corrupt readings in iii. 7, xxi. 9, 11, 12; xxiv. 2; lxii. 7 are to be explained on this principle. 3° There are frequent transliterations of Greek words as in vi. 4; x. 17; xvii. 4, &c. 4° The Rest of the Words of Baruch preserves important fragments of the Greek Version.

All the above facts and more (see my edition, p. xlii sq.) were known when Grenfell and Hunt discovered an actual fragment of the Greek Version, which they published in the Oxyrhynchus Papyri, iii. 3–7. The papyrus is part of a leaf from a book, and is written in a large slightly sloping uncial hand—possibly as early as the fourth century, and probably not later than the fifth.

This fragment embraces xii. 1–5, xiii. 1–2, 11–12, xiv. 1–3. I have printed this fragment and an English translation of it in parallel columns with the Syriac. The text is poor and defective. In xiv. 2 it read μαρτυρήσαντες, but this was by a later hand rightly corrected into ἀμαρτήσαντες as we find in the Syriac. Again in xiv. 1 'shall be endured by the Gentiles' is corrupt for 'shall come upon the Gentiles'. Here the papyrus reads ὑπενεχθήσεται which seems corrupt for ἐπενεχθήσεται. At all events the phrase in the Syriac is exactly the same in xiii. 5, 'retribution which is coming upon' and in xiv. 1 'the retribution . . . shall come upon'. In xii. 3 the parallelism which is preserved in the Syriac is wholly lost. 'Condemn' cannot be right, if originally there was any parallelism. The fact that the parallelism is preserved in both Greek and Syriac in xii. 2 is in favour that the Syriac has rightly preserved it in xii. 3.

§ 6. THE GREEK—A TRANSLATION FROM THE HEBREW.

Previous to my edition of Baruch in 1896 an unbroken unanimity prevailed among scholars on the question of a Greek original. Since the discovery of the book by Ceriani not a single serious attempt had been made to grapple with this problem, and yet in nearly every instance scholars spoke with an assurance on the subject that only a personal and thorough study of the subject could have justified. To this strong and unanimous tradition of the learned world I bowed without hesitation at the outset of my studies, but with an awakening distrust and an ever-growing reluctance during the years in which I was engaged in the preparation of the work which was published in 1896. The necessity for postulating a Hebrew original which was first shown in this work was subsequently maintained by Wellhausen (Skizzen und Vorarbeiten, vi. 234), Ryssel (Apok. und Pseudepig. A. T., 1900, ii. 411), and Ginzberg (Jewish Encyc. ii. 555). As regards the grounds for this conclusion, I will here be as brief as possible, and adduce only the following. 1°. What is true of 4 Ezra the sister work, which was written in Hebrew, is true also of our Apocalypse. 2°. The quotations from the Old Testament agree with the Massoretic text except in one case. 3°. There are many paronomasiae which discover themselves on retranslation into Hebrew. 4°. Many passages in the book have been preserved in Talmudic and Rabbinic writings. 5°. Unintelligible expressions in the Syriac can be explained and the text restored by retranslation into Hebrew.

INTRODUCTION

1°. It is now an accepted view that 4 Ezra was written in Hebrew. Since the two books show in nearly every respect the closest affinities it may provisionally be accepted that as the former is derived from a Hebrew original so also is the latter. In my edition of 2 Baruch in 1896 I pointed out (p. lxxii) the necessity of assuming a Hebrew original for 4 Ezra. In the same year Wellhausen (Gött. Gel. Anz., pp. 12-13) insisted on the same necessity, and demonstrated this necessity in his Skizzen u. Vorarbeiten, vi. 234-40, 1899.

2°. See my edition, pp. xlv sq., 169.

3°. In xv. 8 there are two paronomasiae. Thus 'Labour with much trouble' = עמל באון and 'crown with great glory' עטרה בתפארה (see notes in loc.).

But these need not necessarily postulate a Hebrew original; the following cases undoubtedly do. Thus in xxi. 14 (see note for the Hebrew) we have a stanza of three lines, each line of which contains a rhyme within it. The writer is so fond of the last of these that he repeats it exactly in xlvi. 35 and partially in lxxxiii. 12. In xlvi. 35 we have another and still more remarkable instance of paronomasia. In this stanza there are three lines, the first, second, and fourth of which respectively contain this rhyming or alliterative character, but not the third. But even a cursory examination makes it clear that the third line is corrupt. It is against the parallelism and structure of the adjoining three lines. In the notes on the passage the reader will find an attempt to restore the original text, in which a paronomasia is recovered and also a parallelism in sense and structure with the adjoining lines. Again, in lxiii. 3, 4 there were undoubtedly plays in the Hebrew on the names of Hezekiah and Sennacherib. There is probably another instance of this play on words in lxxxiii. 10, certainly in lxxxiii. 14, and possibly in lxxxiv. 2.

The above evidence is of a very convincing character.

4°. Many sections of our book have exact parallels in the Talmudic and Rabbinic writings. Thus in ii. 1-2 Jeremiah is bidden to leave Jerusalem (implicitly) on the ground that it could not be destroyed so long as Jeremiah was in it. This is explicitly stated in Pesikta r. c. 26 (131a ed. Friedmann). On the interpolated passage on the heavenly Temple cf. Sakka 41a, Taanith 5a. The account of the destruction of Jerusalem, vi-viii, is substantiated at times verbally by Pesikta r. (loc. cit.). The poetical incident in x. 18 is recounted as a literal fact in Taanith 29a, Lev. r. xix. 6; Pesikta v. 26. See note in loc. With the marvel of the burning of the bodies of the host of Sennacherib, lxiii. 8, cf. Sanh. 94a, while the legend of the brazen horse, lxiv. 8, is found in Pesikta Rab Kahana, xxv. 162. See Ginzberg in Jew. Encyc. ii. 553.

5°. Unintelligible expressions in the Syriac can be explained and the text restored by retranslation into Hebrew. We have here the clinching evidence of a Hebrew original. First of all in the following five passages xxi. 9, 11, 12; xxiv. 2; lxii. 7 I have been able to explain and restore an unintelligible text by retranslation first into Greek and thence into Hebrew. The Syriac in these verses is the stock rendering of δικαιόσθαι, and this in turn of צדק. Now צדק can mean either δικαιόσθαι or δίκαιος εἶναι. In the five passages above cited the context can admit only of the latter meaning; but the translator, who was probably a Christian and therefore influenced by the Christian doctrine of justification, wrongly adopted the former rendering. Ryssel has accepted without acknowledgement my restoration of these five passages.

Next in vi. 7 'ephod' is undoubtedly corrupt for 'ark' (see note). The corruption can have arisen either in the Hebrew or even in the Syriac, i. e. אֲרֹן corrupted for אֲפֹד, but the former is more likely.

In xxi. 22 the text can be restored by retranslation into Hebrew. See note. In xliv. 12 we arrive at a very interesting restoration, which Ryssel adopts without acknowledgement. In the Syriac the phrase 'on its beginning' is set over against 'to torment' as its antithesis. Here the context requires 'to its blessedness'. Now the Syriac = בראשו, which is obviously a corruption of באשרו = 'to its blessedness'. In lvi. 6 'boasting' is out of place, enumerated as it is along with

II BARUCH

'untimely death', 'grief and anguish', 'pain', 'trouble', and 'Sheol'. The word = καύχημα = חלה, which seems corrupt for מחלה, 'disease'. In lxx. 6 the text reads: 'some . . . shall be hindered.' But the parallelism requires a strong expression. Now 'shall be hindered' = κωλυθήσονται = יכלאו, corrupt for יכלו — 'shall be consumed'. These two verbs are often confused in Hebrew.

Finally, in lxxx. 2, it is said that the sacred vessels of the Temple were hidden 'lest they should be polluted by the enemy'. But this clause can hardly be right; for lxxx is simply a concise reproduction of vi-viii. Now in vi. 8 the real reason for the concealment of these vessels is given, i. e. 'that strangers may not get possession of them'. Furthermore, the vessels were put away with a view to their use in the restored Temple, vi. 7-10. Now if we retranslate the words, 'lest any should be polluted by the enemy', we have פן יהלו מאויבים, which is an easy corruption of פן ינחלום אויבים 'lest the enemy get possession of them'.

§ 7. THE DIFFERENT ELEMENTS IN 2 BARUCH.

The composite nature of this book was first recognized by Kabisch in 1891 and the following year by De Faye, and subsequently by the present writer in 1896 and by Beer in Herzog's *Real-Encyc.*³ art. 'Pseudepigraphen des A. Testaments', p. 250. A short summary of the grounds on which it seems necessary to postulate a diversity of authorship may here be given. If we disregard the letter to the tribes in captivity (lxxviii-lxxxvi), the book falls naturally into seven sections separated by fasts, save in one case (after xxxv) where the text is probably defective. These sections, which are of unequal length, are (1) i-v. 6; (2) v. 7-viii; (3) ix-xii. 4; (4) xii. 5-xx; (5) xxi-xxxv; (6) xxxvi-xlvi; (7) xlvii-lxxvii. These treat of the Messiah and of the Messianic kingdom, the woes of Israel in the past and the destruction of Jerusalem in the present, as well as of theological questions which were debated in the schools, relating to original sin, free-will, works, the number of the saved, the nature of the resurrection body, &c. The views expressed on these subjects are often conflicting. In one class of passages there is everywhere a vigorous optimism as to Israel's ultimate well-being on earth; there is sketched in glowing and sensuous colours the blessedness which awaits the chosen people in the kingdom of the Messiah which is at hand (xxix; xxxix-xl; lxxiii-lxxiv), when healing will descend in dew, and disease and anguish flee away: when strife and hatred shall vanish and gladness march throughout the earth, when childbirth shall entail no pangs, and none shall die untimely, when Israel's enemies shall be destroyed (xxxix-xl; lxx. 7-lxxii) and God's own people enjoy a world-wide empire with its centre at Jerusalem (xl. 2; lxxiii-lxxiv). Over against these passages stand others of a hopelessly pessimistic character, wherein, alike as to Israel's present and future destiny on earth, there is written nothing save 'lamentation and mourning and woe'. The world is a scene of corruption, its evils are irremediable; it is a never-ceasing toil and strife, but its end is at hand; its strength exhausted: the ship is already come to the port and life to its consummation (lxxxv). The advent of the new and spiritual world is at hand (xxi. 19; xlv. 9-15; lxxxv). The first to draw attention to the conflicting elements in our book was, as I have already remarked, Kabisch in the Fahrbücher für protest. Theol., 1891, pp. 66-107. Kabisch shows that we have in Baruch a measureless pessimism and world despair on the one hand, and on the other a vigorous optimism and world-joy. He further points out that the same subjects are treated several times and often without any fresh contribution to the subject at issue. Thus the Messianic kingdom is twice delineated, the advent of the Messiah twice foretold and the Messianic woes as often depicted. On these and other grounds he derives the book from three or four authors. He distinguishes as the groundwork i-xxiv. 1; xxx. 2-xxxiv; xli-lii; lxxv-lxxxvii written subsequently to A. D. 70 and saturated throughout by the pessimistic temper already referred to. But in this groundwork the order of the text was according to Kabisch originally different; i. e. i-xx, xxxi. 1-xxxii. 1, xxxii. 5-xxxiv, xxi. 1-xxiv. 2, xxx. 2-5, xli-lii. 7, lxxv, lxxvii-lxxxvii. In the remaining sections of the book there is a faith in Israel's ultimate triumph here, and an optimism that looks for a Messianic kingdom of sensuous delights. These sections which are prior to A. D. 70 are the work of three writers, i. e. the Vine and Cedar Vision xxxvi-xl, the Cloud Vision liii-lxxiv, which are preserved unmutilated, and the third a fragmentary Apocalypse xxiv. 3-xxix. Finally these different writings were incorporated into one book by a Christian contemporary of Papias, and to this editor are probably due xxviii. 5, xxx. 1, xxxii. 2-4, xxxv, lxxvi. 1.

This analysis of Kabisch is good in regard to the separate visions, but his so-called groundwork is as composite as the whole work is composite. The problem is far more complex than Kabisch conceived it.

¹ See my edition of the Apocalypse of Baruch, pp. liii-lxv.

INTRODUCTION

It is interesting to find that some of Kabisch's conclusions were reached independently at about the same date by a French scholar, De Faye, Les Apocalypses juives, 1892, pp. 25-8, 76-103, 192-204. De Faye like Kabisch distinguishes xxxvi-xl and liii-lxxv as distinct works written before A. D. 70. The rest of his conclusions are less satisfactory. i-xxxii. 6 constitute an Apocalypse of Baruch written after A. D. 70; i-v and vi-xxxii. 6, however, being originally derived from two different authors. Another distinct work was the Assumption of Baruch, i. e. xlviii-lii, xliii. 1-2, lxxvi. 1-4, written after A. D. 70, xxxii. 7-xxxv, xli-xlvii. 2, lxxvi. 5-lxxxvii are for the most part the work of the final editor, but xlv. 9-15, xlvi. 7 was due to a Christian reviser. On the whole this analysis is less convincing than that of Kabisch.

Since the above solutions of the complex problems before us are inadequate, the present writer addressed himself afresh to the task in 1895-6. From the conclusions then arrived at he has seen no good ground for departing save in a few minor points.

With Kabisch and De Faye I recognize the fact that two distinct types of documents are present in our book, the one of an optimistic character as to Israel's future on Earth and the other of a pessimistic character in this respect. To the former type I assign the three Messianic Apocalypses xxvii-xxx. 1; xxxvi-xl; liii-lxxiv, which for convenience' sake I designate A¹, A², A³, and a short original Apocalypse of Baruch B¹. In the remaining sections are B², B³, the contents of which we shall determine presently, the doctrine of a Messianic kingdom is absolutely relinquished.

Different documents behind the Text. Thus A¹, A², A³, B¹ agree in presenting an optimistic view of Israel's future and inculcating the hope of a Messianic kingdom: whereas in B², B³ the hopes of the righteous are directed to the immediate advent of the final judgement and the spiritual world. (For details see my edition pp. 49, 61, 87, 68-69, 119, 140.)

But at this point a difference between A¹, A², A³ and B¹ emerges. The former look for a Messiah at the head of the kingdom, but B¹ for a kingdom without the Messiah.

Their relative dates. As we pursue our study we discover further that: 1° In A¹, A², A³ Jerusalem is still standing—hence they were written before A. D. 70; whereas in B¹, B², B³ it is already destroyed (though in B¹ it is to be restored): 2° In A¹, A², A³, it is only to the actual inhabitants of Palestine that the promise of protection is given in the time of the Messianic woes (see xxix. 2; xl. 2; lxxi. 1)—thus the Jews are still in Palestine; but in B¹, B², B³, they are already in exile. In B¹ they are ultimately to be restored.

Facts confirming the above conclusions. A cursory examination of the books reveals the scheme of the final editor. According to this scheme the book was divided into seven sections separated by six fasts. Each of the last six of these sections thus opens with or is preceded by a fast: cp. v. 7, ix. 2, xii. 5, xxi. 1, (mention of fifth fast which should occur after xxxv is lost), xlvii. 2. In each section a definite movement or order of events is observed. This order briefly is: first a fast, then a divine command or revelation and finally the publication of the command or matter revealed unless accompanied by a prohibition to do so as in xx. 3. In some cases a prayer follows the fast xxi. 3, xlviii. 1, and a lamentation the publication of the divine disclosure x. 6 (see the notes in my edition pp. 1, 9, 13, 36, 61). This being so, it is significant that in the addresses on xxxi. 2-xxxiv, xlvi. 4-6, lxxvii. 1-17 there is not a single reference to the Messianic Apocalypses A¹, A², A³. From this it follows that A¹, A², A³ have no real organic connexion with the rest of the book B¹, B², B³. Their removal serves to restore some cohesion to the text (see my edition xxx. 2 note, xli note, lxxv-lxxvi note).

The relations of A¹, A², A³ to each other. A¹ is of distinct authorship from A² and A³; for whereas in A¹ the Messiah pursues a passive rôle and does not appear till the enemies of Israel are destroyed and the kingdom established, in A², A³ it is the Messiah that destroys the enemies of Israel and establishes the kingdom. A² and A³ though differing in some respects may come from the same author. All three Apocalypses were written before A. D. 70.

The relations of B¹, B², B³ to each other. Since B³ consists of a single chapter we shall deal with it first.

B³ = lxxxv. This chapter agrees with B¹, B² in being written after A. D. 70; but differs from B¹ and agrees with B² in despairing of a national restoration, and in looking only for spiritual blessedness in the world of incorruption. But again it differs from B² also, in that B² was written in Jerusalem or Judaea, whereas B³ was written in Babylon or some other land of the dispersion, lxxxv. 3—in the former most probably; for it was written in Hebrew. Again whereas, according to B², Jeremiah was with the captivity in Babylon, it is here definitely stated that the righteous and the prophets are dead, and that the exiles have none to intercede for them, lxxx. 1, 2. Thus B³ is a fragment written in Hebrew after A. D. 70 by an exile probably in Babylon.

B¹ B²—their extent and characteristics. Even the elimination of the preceding sections does not leave a coherent whole as we have already seen. Thus i-ix. 1, xxxii. 2-4, xliii-xliv. 7, xlv-xlvi, lxxvii-lxxxii, lxxxiv, lxxxvi sq. (= B¹) are optimistic and hopeful as to this world, whereas x-xxv, xxx. 2-xxxii. 1, xxxii. 5-xxxv, xli sq., xlv. 8-15, xlvi-liv, lxxv sq., lxxxiii (= B²) are decidedly of an opposite character. But the differences are not only of a general but of a detailed character. Thus in B¹ the dispersion is to return, lxxvii. 6, lxxviii. 7, but in B² no such restoration is expected. In B¹ the earthly Jerusalem is to be rebuilt, i. 4, vi. 9, xxxii. 2-4, lxxviii. 7 (see notes in my edition), but not in B²: cf. x. 10, xx. 2. In B¹ Baruch is to die an ordinary death, xlv. 2, xlvi. 30, lxxviii. 5, lxxxiv. 1, but to be translated in B² xiii. 3, xxv. 1, lxxvi. 2. In B¹ Jeremiah is not sent to Babylon, lxxvii. 12, but in B² he is sent, x. 2, xxxiii. 2. In B¹ Jerusalem is destroyed by angels lest the enemy should boast, vii. 1, lxxx. 3, but this idea is foreign to A³: cf. lxvii. 6-7, and appears to be so to B² as it was to 4 Ezra iv. 30 and the Ass. Mosis iii. 2. Finally though the Law is valued in B¹, it is extravagantly glorified in B². See note on xv. 5 in my edition.

II BARUCH

The final editor's use of B¹ and B². From B¹ the editor borrowed materials and used them in a straightforward fashion, as will be seen by referring to the preceding paragraph. But this is not the case with B². This source the editor mutilated and transposed in a fashion that appears quite incredible to the ordinary reader. But the serious student cannot ignore the present hopeless order of xiii-xxv. In these chapters the original text has been frequently transposed, the original development of thought arrested and inverted, questions are frequently recorded after their specific answers have already been given in full, and passages torn from their original setting in Baruch's address to the people and inserted in Baruch's prayers to God, where they have no conceivable meaning. On the note on xiii-xxv the question is treated with sufficient fullness for our present contention, and as a result of the facts and deductions there given we might restore provisionally the order of x-xxv as follows: x-xiii. 1-3^a, xx, xxiv. 2-4, xiii. 3^b-12, xxv, xiv-xix, xxi-xxiv. 1.

As regards the remaining sections of B², they appear to have received the same drastic treatment from the editor as the earlier chapters. Thus the gist of xxxi-xxxii. 6, which contains an address of Baruch to the people, consists of three themes. These should of course have been dealt with in a preceding revelation, since the subject on which Baruch addresses the people is to be found in each instance in the previous divine revelation: cf. v. 5, x. 4. But the themes on which Baruch discourses in xxxi-xxxii. 6 are not made the subject of revelation till later. See note on xxxi-xxxv, where it is shown that xlii. 6-8, xlvi. 22-24, 38-41, 49, lii. 3, 8-9, 16 are presupposed by xxxi-xxxii. 6. Again, liv. 16-18 is clearly in its wrong context and likewise xlvi. 48-50, lii. 5-7. These passages seem to belong to an address of Baruch to the people: they form a direct address to the wicked and could not therefore occur in a prayer of Baruch to God. In every case, too, they break the sense of the context. We cannot enter here into the many other dislocations which the original document B² underwent at the hands of the final editor. The reader will find some of these treated in the notes that follow. For a full treatment of the question he can consult my edition pp. lxi sq. and the notes referred to there.

As a result of the above criticism we may provisionally restore the original order of the source B² as follows: x-xiii. 3^a, xx, xxiv. 2-4, xiii. 3^b-12, xxv, xiv-xix, xxi-xxiv. 1, xxx. 2-5, xli. sq., xlvi. 1-47, xlix-liv. 3, lxxv, xxxi-xxxii. 1, 5-6, liv. 17, 18, xlvi. 48-50, lii. 5-7, liv. 16, xlv. 8-15, lxxxiii, xxxii. 7-xxxv, lxxvi.

The solution here offered seems extremely complex, but since the problem is almost incredibly complex, the solution cannot be a simple or obvious one. Further investigation will no doubt modify some of the above conclusions, but I know of no study since my edition in 1896 that gives adequate grounds for any serious departure from the above analysis.

§ 8. THE LOST EPISTLE TO THE TWO AND A HALF TRIBES.

In my edition of 2 Baruch in 1896, pp. lxv-lxvii, I advanced the hypothesis, which is now steadily gaining acceptance, that a portion of the lost Epistle to the Two and a Half Tribes, which is referred to in lxxvii. 12, 17, 19, has been preserved in 1 Baruch i. 1-3, iii. 9-iv. 29. The lost Epistle was addressed to Judah and Benjamin in exile (lxxvii. 12, 17). So was 1 Bar. iii. 9-iv. 29. The lost Epistle was 'an epistle of doctrine and a scroll of good tidings' (lxxvi. 12). So, too, is 1 Bar. iii. 9-iv. 29. The lost Epistle was to hold out the promise of return and was written by Baruch to Babylon. So, too, was 1 Bar. iii. 9-iv. 29. For the enforcement of these and other grounds for the identification of the lost Epistle, see my edition as referred to above.

§ 9. THE RELATIONS OF 2 BARUCH AND 4 EZRA.

The affinities of our Apocrypha and 4 Ezra are so numerous (see my edition of the former, pp. 170-1, for some sixty-six passages with such affinities) that Ewald and Ryle assumed identity of authorship. But their points of divergence are so weighty (op. cit. pp. lxix-lxxi) that this view cannot be sustained. Three conclusions remain open according as we assume the integrity or compositeness of these books. If on the one hand we assume unity of authorship, either 2 Baruch is earlier or later than 4 Ezra. According to Schürer, Bissell, Thomson, Deane, Kabisch, De Faye, Clemen, Wellhausen, 2 Baruch is the earlier, while Langen, Hilgenfeld, Renan, Dillmann, Rosenthal, Gunkel are just as strongly convinced that it is the later. Moreover, the arguments of the one side are just as weighty as the counter arguments of the other, and beyond this impasse it is impossible, in my opinion, for criticism to advance, until it recognizes the composite nature of both books. The subject cannot be discussed here. The reader can consult an attempt to deal with the chronological relations of the various constituents of the two books in my edition of 2 Baruch, pp. lxxii-lxxvi. See also Box's edition of 4 Ezra, which is about to be published, as well as his Introduction to 4 Ezra in the present volume.

INTRODUCTION

§ 10. THEOLOGY.

This book presents a vivid picture of the hopes and beliefs of Judaism during the years A. D. 50-100. As it was written at different dates and by different authors, its composition was thus contemporaneous with that of the New Testament. It is, therefore, of great value to the New Testament student, as it furnishes him with the historical setting and background of many of the New Testament problems.

Original Sin and Free-will. Sin in 2 Baruch is the conscious and deliberate breach of the law, xv. 5-9, xix. 1-2. Man does not fall inevitably into it; for he does not possess a cor malignum as in 4 Ezra. Jeremiah is 'pure from sin', ix. 1.

Sin, then, being a conscious breach of law, it began with Adam's transgression. Adam is the starting-point as in 2 Enoch, whereas in 1 Enoch and Jubilees human depravity is traced mainly to the angels that sinned. When Adam fell, his name became symbolical for the power of darkness opposing the power of light, which is the law, xviii. 1-2.

On the fall of Adam certain consequences followed. (a) First of all, physical death. In B², i.e. xvii. 3, xix. 8, xxiii. 4, Adam's sin brought in physical death, otherwise man would have been immortal. This conditional immortality of man appears also in 1 Enoch lxix. 11, Wisdom i. 13, 14, 2 Enoch xxx. 16, 17, 4 Ezra iii. 7. But in A³, i.e. liv. 15, lvi. 6, Adam is said to have brought in only premature death. (b) Psychical and physical declension. This consequence appears in many passages but most clearly in lvi. 6, where trouble and anguish, disease and death, sensual passion and the begetting of children are traced to it.

'For when he transgressed
Untimely deaths came into being:
Grief was named,
And anguish prepared:
And pain was created,
And trouble consummated:
And disease began to be established,
And Sheol kept demanding that it should be renewed in blood:
And the begetting of children was brought about,
And the passion of parents produced:
And the greatness of humanity was humiliated,
And goodness languished.'

(c) Spiritual evil in that man became a danger to himself, lvi. 10, and to the angels, lvi. 10. In the former passage the text states shortly that man 'became a danger to his own soul'. This fact, therefore, that man henceforth became his own worst enemy, implies that by the Fall a hereditary tendency to evil was established in man. In one passage only does spiritual death appear to be traced to Adam, i.e. in xlvi. 42 sq., but even there it does not follow as an inevitable consequence.

Notwithstanding the above penalties that followed on the Fall, man according to 2 Baruch preserves his free-will, his moral nature remains unimpaired, and the spiritual consequences of Adam's Fall are in the main limited to Adam himself, liv. 15, 19.

'For though Adam first sinned
And brought untimely death upon all,
Yet of those who were born from him
Each one of them has prepared for his own soul torment to come,
And again each one of them has chosen for himself glories to come.
Adam is, therefore, not the cause, save only of his own soul,
But each of us has been the Adam of his own soul.'

II BARUCH

Thus man remained the captain of his own soul and therefore of his destiny. The issues of right and wrong are placed before him and the power of choice remains in his keeping, xix. 1, 3.

“Behold I have placed before you life and death,”
And he called heaven and earth to witness against them . . .
But after his death they sinned and transgressed,
Though they knew they had the Law reproving (them),
And the light in which nothing could err,
Also the spheres which testify, and Me.’

‘The lamp of the eternal law shone on all those who sat in darkness’, lix. 2: even from the Gentiles the needful knowledge was not withheld and their conscience testified to their guilt: only their pride withheld from them a knowledge of the law. Hence the choice of evil on man’s part is deliberate, li. 16.

‘For then they chose (not) for themselves this time,
Which, beyond the reach of anguish, could not pass away:
But they chose for themselves that time,
Whose issues are full of lamentations and evils . . .
So that they shall not come to the honour of which I told thee before.’

Thus in 2 Baruch there is no doctrine of inherited guilt or of total depravity. This differs wholly from the Pauline doctrine. In the latter owing to the Fall man is henceforth dominated by original sin, which makes his fulfilment of the law and therefore his realization of righteousness impossible. He is not, indeed, thereby robbed wholly of free-will, but retains it in a degree just sufficient to justify his condemnation.

The Law. This book is of a strongly Pharisaic character. The writers are assured of their power to fulfil the law, and the self-complacency of Baruch xiii. 3, xxv. 1, xliii. 1 stands out in strong contrast with the self-depreciation that marks 4 Ezra. The importance of the law is emphasized iii. 6, xv. 5. It was the centre round which Jewish thought and life revolved. To a limited extent the Messianic expectation was likewise a centre, and, in proportion the more one is emphasized, the more the other falls into the background. Thus in B¹ where the restoration of Jerusalem is looked for but no Messiah, the law is spoken of as follows: God gave the law to Israel, lxxvii. 3; for transgressing it they were sent into exile, lxxvii. 4, lxxxiv. 2; but let not Israel withdraw from the law, xliv. 23, but obey it, xlvi. 5; let them remember it, lxxxiv. 8; for if they do so, they will see the consolation of Zion, xliv. 7, and a son of the law shall never be wanting, xlvi. 4, nor a lamp nor a shepherd, lxxvii. 16. In B² where there is no Messiah and no expectation of the restoration of Jerusalem, the law is still further glorified. It will protect those who receive it in their hearts, xxxii. 1, xlvi. 24; by it they will be justified, li. 3; in it will be the hope of the righteous, li. 7; the law is with Israel, and so long as they obey it they will not fall, xlvi. 22, 24. They have received one law from One, xlvi. 24. For further treatment of this question see my edition of the Apocalypse of Baruch, pp. lxix, 26-31, 63-4.

Here we have decidedly orthodox Judaism. In 4 Ezra on the other hand man trembles before the law: he needs mercy, not the award of the law; for all have sinned, viii. 35: it has served rather unto condemnation; for only a very few are saved through good works, vii. 77, or the divine compassion, vii. 139.

Works and justification. In our apocalypse the righteous are saved by their works, li. 7, and their righteousness is of the law, lxvii. 6. In the consciousness of their justification by the law, li. 3, they can with confidence approach God, and look to Him for the fulfilment of their prayers because of their works wherein they trust, lxiii. 3, 5; lxxxv. 2, and owing to the same ground of confidence they depart from this world full of hope, xiv. 12. But their works are not limited to themselves in their saving effects. So long as the righteous live, their righteousness is a tower of strength to their people, ii. 2, and after death it remains to their country a lasting ground of merit, xiv. 7, lxxxiv. 10.

The Messiah and the Messianic Kingdom. The hope of a Messiah is entertained only in A¹, A², A³, the hope of the Kingdom without a Messiah in B¹, which sections were written before A. D. 70. Since the chief characteristics of these sections have been dealt with in this respect in § 7, we shall touch only briefly upon them. The kingdom of the Messiah is not like that of the centuries preceding 100 B. C., which was to last for ever. According to this Apocalypse the whole present world belongs to the sphere of corruption. Even so does the Messianic kingdom. It forms the end of the world of corruption, xl. 3, and the beginning of the world of incorruption, lxxiv. 2. Although of temporary duration it is the Golden Age, lxxiii. 1, 2, 7.

INTRODUCTION

1. 'And it shall come to pass when he has brought low everything that is in the world,
And has sat down in peace for the age on the throne of his kingdom,
That joy shall then be revealed
And rest shall appear.
 2. And then healing shall descend in dew,
And disease shall withdraw,
And anxiety and anguish and lamentation pass from amongst men,
And gladness proceed through the whole earth . . .
 7. And women shall no longer then have pain when they bear,
Nor shall they suffer torment when they yield the fruit of the womb.
- lxxiv. 1. And it shall come to pass in those days that the reapers shall not grow weary,
Nor those that build toilworn,
For the works shall of themselves speedily advance
Together with those who do them in much tranquillity.'

At the close of this temporary kingdom the Messiah will return to heaven and the righteous shall rise to a blessed life, xxx. 1. Then shall the righteous receive their promised reward, lix. 2, and enjoy the glories to come, liv. 15, but the unrighteous shall be cast into the torment of fire, liv. 14, lv. 7, lix. 2, 10.

In the other sections, B², B³ written after A.D. 70, no period of earthly blessedness is looked for; the hope of a kingdom of righteousness on earth is abandoned wholly. An extreme note of despair as to this world marks both these sections but especially B³ (i.e. lxxxv), which was written in exile: cp. lxxxv. 2. According to this latter writer (lxxxv. 10):

'The youth of the world is past,
And the strength of the creation already exhausted . . .
And the pitcher is near to the cistern,
And the ship to the port:
And the course of the journey to the city,
And life to (its) consummation.'

Resurrection. In xlix. 2-li a view of the resurrection is expounded, which sets forth first the raising of the dead with their bodies in exactly the same form in which they had been committed to the earth with a view to their recognition by those who knew them, and next their subsequent transformation with a view to a spiritual existence of unending duration. In my edition of this book, pp. 83-4, I have shown that the Pauline teaching in 1 Cor. xv. 35-50 is in many respects not an innovation, but a developed and more spiritual exposition of ideas already current in Judaism. In Judaism the same physical body was resuscitated and transformed: in the Pauline teaching, the two bodies were wholly unconnected except in so far as they were the successive organs of the spirit in the material and spiritual worlds. They were so far from being identical in any respect that it was not till the physical body was destroyed that the spiritual body could be assumed. There is no transformation of dead or resuscitated bodies in the Pauline teaching: only of bodies of the faithful who should be alive at the Parousia.

§ II. RELATION OF THE APOCALYPSE WITH THE NEW TESTAMENT.

The points of contact between this Apocalypse and the New Testament are many in number. The most of these, however, are insufficient to establish a relation of dependence on either side; for the thoughts and expressions in question could be explained from pre-existing literature, or were commonplaces of the time.

NEW TESTAMENT.	PARALLELS IN OUR APOCALYPSE.	PROBABLE SOURCE OF BOTH.
Matt. iii. 16: Lo, the heavens were opened.	xxii. 1: Lo, the heavens were opened.	Ezek. i. 1.
Matt. iii. 17 (xvii. 5; John xii. 28): A voice from heaven.	xiii. 1; xxii. 1: A voice from the height.	Dan. iv. 31.
Matt. iv. 8.	lxxvi. 3.	Deut. xxxiv. 1-4.
Matt. xxiv. 7 (Mark xiii. 8; Luke xxi. 11): Famines and . . . earthquakes.	xxvii. 6, 7.	Commonplaces of Jewish Apocalyptic.
Matt. xxiv. 11, 24: Many false prophets.	xlviii. 34 (see note).	Commonplaces of Jewish Apocalyptic.
Matt. xxiv. 19 (Luke xxiii. 29).	x. 13, 14 (resemblance slight).	Isa. liv. 1.
Matt. xxvi. 24: It had been good for that man, &c.	x. 6: Blessed is he who was not born, &c.	A Jewish commonplace.

II BARUCH

NEW TESTAMENT.	PARALLELS IN OUR APOCALYPSE.	PROBABLE SOURCE OF BOTH.
Matt. xxiv. 27: For as the lightning . . . so shall be the coming of the Son of man.	liii. 9: Now that lightning shone exceedingly so as to illuminate the whole earth. (The lightning here symbolizes the Messiah.)	A coincidence (?).
Luke xx. 36: Equal unto the angels.	li. 10.	I Enoch civ. 4, 6.
Luke xxi. 28 (I Pet. iv. 7): Your redemption draweth nigh.	xxiii. 7: My redemption has drawn nigh.	I Enoch li. 2.
Acts xv. 10 (where the law is spoken of as a 'yoke'; cp. Gal. v. 1).	xli. 3: The yoke of Thy law.	A current expression.
Rom. ii. 14, 15.	xlvi. 40 (see note).	A Jewish commonplace.
Rom. viii. 18 (2 Cor. iv. 17): The sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory, &c.	xv. 8: This world is to them . . . a labour with much trouble . . . and that . . . which is to come, a crown with great glory.	A Jewish commonplace.
I Cor. iv. 5 (Heb. iv. 13).	lxxxiii. 3.	I Enoch ix. 5.
2 Cor. iii. 18: Reflecting as in a mirror the glory of the Lord are transformed into the same image from glory to glory.	li. 10: And they shall be made like unto the angels, . . . and they shall be changed . . . from beauty into loveliness, and from light into the splendour of glory.
2 Cor. iv. 17 (Rom. viii. 18).	xv. 8.	A Jewish commonplace
I Tim. i. 2: Mercy and peace.	lxxviii 2: Mercy and peace.	A coincidence.
2 Pet. iii. 9.	xxi. 20.	A coincidence.
2 Pet. iii. 13 (Matt. xix. 28; Rev. xxi. 1): New heavens and a new earth.	xxxii. 6: Renew His creation.	Isa. lxxv. 17.
Rev. xx. 12: The books were opened.	xxiv. 1: The books shall be opened.	Dan. vii. 10.

In the following passages our text is dependent on the New Testament, or on some lost common source:—

NEW TESTAMENT.	PARALLELS IN OUR APOCALYPSE.
Matt. xvi. 26: For what shall a man be profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and forfeit his soul? or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?	li. 15: For what then have men lost their life and for what have those who were on the earth exchanged their soul?
Luke i. 43: Blessed art thou among women, &c.	liv. 10: Blessed be my mother among those that bear, &c. (probably interpolated).
I Cor. xv. 19: If in this life only we have hoped in Christ, we are of all men most miserable.	xxi. 13: For if there were this life only . . . nothing could be more bitter than this.
I Cor. xv. 35: How are the dead raised? and with what manner of body do they come?	xlix. 2: In what shape will those live who live in Thy day?
James i. 2: Count it all joy when ye fall into manifold temptations.	lii. 6: Rejoice ye in the suffering which ye now suffer.
Rev. iv. 6: In the midst of the throne, and round about the throne, four living creatures.	li. 11: The living creatures that are beneath the throne.

§ 12. BIBLIOGRAPHY.

For a full bibliography see Charles' Apocalypse of Baruch with short criticisms of the various works, and Schürer, in loc.

(a) THE GREEK VERSION. Fragments published in Grenfell and Hunt's Oxyrhynchus Papyri, iii. 3-7, 1903; reprinted in this volume, p. 487 sqq.

THE SYRIAC VERSION. The entire version in Ceriani's Monumenta sacra et profana, V. ii. 113-80, from one MS. c; chapters lxxviii-lxxxvi. 1-2, the Epistle of Baruch, in the London and Paris Polyglots; Lagarde's Libri Vet. Test. Syriace, 88-93, 1861, from one MS.; Charles, Apocalypse of Baruch, 125-67, from ten MSS.

(b) MODERN TRANSLATIONS. Into Latin by Ceriani, op. cit., I. ii. 73-98, 1866; into English by Charles, op. cit.; in German by Ryssel in Kautzsch's Apok. und Pseud. ii. 413-46.

(c) CRITICAL INQUIRIES. Langen, De Apocalypsi Baruch, 1867; Hilgenfeld, Messias Iudaeorum, 63-4, 1869; Kneucker, Das Buch Baruch, 190-6, 1879; Rosenthal, Vier apocryphische Bücher, 72-103, 1885; Kabisch, 'Die Quellen der Apocalypse Baruchs,' Jahrbücher f. protest. Theol., 66-107, 1891; De Faye, Les Apocalypses juives, 25-8, 76-103, 192-204, 1892; Ryle, Smith's Dict. of the Bible, i. 361-2; Ginzberg in the Jewish Encyclopaedia, ii. 554-6, 1902, a very valuable article.

(d) Edition of the book. Charles, Apocalypse of Baruch, 1896.

THE BOOK OF THE APOCALYPSE OF BARUCH THE SON OF NERIAH

[Translated from the Greek into Syriac.]

I—IV. 1. Announcement of the coming Destruction of Jerusalem to Baruch.

1 And it came to pass in the twenty-fifth year of Jeconiah, king of Judah, that the word of the Lord ^{i-ix. 1}
2 came to Baruch, the son of Neriah, and said to him: 'Hast thou seen all that this people are doing = B¹
3 to Me, that the evils which these two tribes which remained have done are greater than (those of) 4 the ten tribes which were carried away captive? For the former tribes were forced by their kings to commit sin, but these two of themselves have been forcing and compelling their kings to commit 5 sin. For this reason, behold I bring evil upon this city, and upon its inhabitants, and it shall be removed from before Me for a time, and I will scatter this people among the Gentiles that they may do good to the Gentiles. And My people shall be chastened, and the time shall come when they will seek for the prosperity of their times.

2 1 For I have said these things to thee that thou mayst bid Jeremiah, and all those that are like you, to retire from this city.

2 For your works are to this city as a firm pillar,
And your prayers as a strong wall.'

THE FIRST SECTION. I-V. 6. The first of the seven sections into which, according to the scheme of the final editor, the book was originally divided by fasts, generally lasting seven days. See v. 7, note; ix, note.

In this section the word of the Lord comes to Baruch announcing the coming, though temporary, destruction of Jerusalem (i); Baruch is to bid Jeremiah to withdraw (ii); Baruch then asks, Will this destruction be final? will chaos return? (iii); God answers that the punishment is temporary (iv. 1). Yet even so, Baruch rejoins, The enemy will boast before their idols over God's own nation (v. 1). Not so, God replies, the heathen will have no cause to glory, as it is not they who will destroy Zion (v. 2, 3). Baruch assembles the people, and delivers the message (v. 5).

1. [Translated from the Greek into Syriac.] These words occur in the Syriac MS., and the statement is supported by (1) transliterations of Greek words; (2) renderings explicable only on the hypothesis that the translator followed the wrong meaning of the Greek word before him.

1. 1. in the twenty-fifth year of Jeconiah. The reckoning is by the years of Jeconiah's life, and not of his reign. He was eighteen years old when he began to reign in 599, and thus his twenty-fifth year would be 592, or two years before Nebuchadrezzar's approach. In vi. 1 only one day, and not two years, elapses between the prediction and its fulfilment. So, too, the siege of Jerusalem is there represented as lasting but one day, whereas it lasted two years. Moreover, Jeconiah was in captivity when the city fell, and Zedekiah was king, as the author was aware (viii. 5). Accuracy of detail is sacrificed to general dramatic effect.

the Lord. This title of God is found in all sections of the book alike.

Baruch, the son of Neriah. Cf. Jer. xxxii. 12; xxxvi. 4; I Baruch i. 1.

2. the ten tribes. Elsewhere in this Apocalypse called 'the nine and a half tribes'. See lxxviii. 1 note.

3. forced by their kings, e.g. Jeroboam, and other kings of Israel.

these two . . . compelling their kings to commit sin. It was the princes of Judah rather than Zedekiah that resisted Jeremiah's teaching and prophecy.

4. for a time. This phrase recurs in iv. 1, vi. 9; xxxii. 3. It is thus peculiar to B¹. Jerusalem has fallen under the Romans, but the writer of these chapters believes its desolation will be but 'for a time'. Its future restoration is implied also in lxxvii. 6, lxxviii. 7, where the return of the ten tribes is foretold. In B², and B³ i.e. lxxxv, no such restoration is looked for; Jerusalem is removed, xx. 2 (see note in loc.) in order to usher in the judgement more speedily; in x. 10 the writer abandons all hope of a restored Jerusalem.

do good to the Gentiles. This seems to mean to make proselytes of the Gentiles. Cf. xlii. 5.

My people shall be chastened. Cf. xiii. 10, &c. Pss. Sol. vii. 3, &c.

the prosperity of their times, a Messianic kingdom or period of blessedness for Israel on earth.

II. 1. According to Jer. xxxviii. 13, 28 Jeremiah was a prisoner in the court of the guard till the capture of Jerusalem.

those that are like you. This phrase recurs in three of the sections of this book. Cf. 4 Ezra iv. 36, &c.

retire from this city. Cf. 4 Baruch ('The Rest of the Words of Baruch') i. 1. 'Jeremiah . . . go forth from this city'. The reason for this command appears in the Talmud. In Taanith 19 we are told a house cannot fall so long as a good man is in it. In Pesikta 115^b (Buber's edition, 1868) it is said 'So long as Jeremiah was in Jerusalem it was not destroyed, but when he went forth from it, it was destroyed'.

2. your works are to this city as a firm pillar, &c. Here Jer. vi. 27 is illegitimately applied, 'I have made thee a tower and a fortress among my people.' Cf., however, Gen. xviii. 23-33.

your works. On the doctrine of works taught in this book see note on xiv. 7. 4 Baruch omits the reference to 'works', as it is of Christian authorship.

3 1 And I said: 'O LORD, my Lord, have I come into the world for this purpose that I might see the 2 evils of my mother? Not (so) my Lord. If I have found grace in Thy sight, first take my spirit
3 that I may go to my fathers and not behold the destruction of my mother. For two things vehemently constrain me: for I cannot resist Thee, and my soul, moreover, cannot behold the evils 4, 5 of my mother. But one thing I will say in Thy presence, O Lord. What, therefore, will there be after these things? for if Thou destroyest Thy city, and deliverest up Thy land to those that hate 6 us, how shall the name of Israel be again remembered? Or how shall one speak of Thy praises?
7 or to whom shall that which is in Thy law be explained? Or shall the world return to its nature (of 8 aforetime), and the age revert to primeval silence? And shall the multitude of souls be taken away, 9 and the nature of man not again be named? And where is all that which Thou didst say to Moses regarding us?'

4 1 And the Lord said unto me:
'This city shall be delivered up for a time,
And the people shall be chastened during a time,
And the world will not be given over to oblivion.

IV. 2-7. The heavenly Jerusalem.

2 [· Dost thou think that this is that city of which I said: "On the palms of My hands have I graven 3 thee"? This building now built in your midst is not that which is revealed with Me, that which was prepared beforehand here from the time when I took counsel to make Paradise, and showed it to Adam before he sinned, but when he transgressed the commandment it was removed from him, as 4 also Paradise. And after these things I showed it to My servant Abraham by night among the 5 portions of the victims. And again also I showed it to Moses on Mount Sinai when I showed to him
6 the likeness of the tabernacle and all its vessels. And now, behold, it is preserved with Me, as also 7 Paradise. Go, therefore, and do as I command thee.']

III. 1. O LORD, my Lord. This title of God is confined, except in one instance (xxxviii. 1), to B² and B¹. It recurs in xiv. 8, 16; xvi. 1; xxiii. 1; xlviii. 4, 5. While used only of God in this work, in 4 Ezra it is applied to an angel six times (see 4 Ezra iv. 38, &c.), as also אֲדֹנָי in Dan. x. 17, 19. The words אֲדֹנָי אֱלֹהֵינוּ are to be rendered 'O LORD, my Lord', as above, and not Dominator Domine, as we find in Ceriani. The suffix is not moribund. The Syriac is a translation either of δέσποτα κύριε μου or κύριε κύριέ μου; and these in turn would point either to אֲדֹנָי אֱלֹהֵינוּ or אֲדֹנָי אֱלֹהֵינוּ.

my mother. Cf. iii. 2, 3, x. 16; 1 Baruch iv. 9-16. This was a very natural term for a Jew to apply to Jerusalem, as Isa. xlix. 21. Cf. Matt. xxiii. 37. The writer here (B¹) uses it as an earthly Jerusalem, as St. Paul in Gal. iv. 26 of the heavenly.

2. take my spirit. Cf. Ps. xxxi. 13; Jer. xv. 15.

4-IV. 1. Baruch asks God if the end of all things will follow on the delivering up of Jerusalem; will Israel's name be lost, and students of the law fail? Will chaos return and men die? In iv. 1 God answers that Jerusalem will again be restored, the chastening of its people soon be accomplished, and chaos will not return.

6. to whom shall that which is in Thy law be explained? Answered by Baruch, xlvi. 4.

7. The Syriac word here translated 'world' really means 'ornament'. Thus the translator followed a wrong sense of κόσμος.

revert to primeval silence. Cf. 4 Ezra vii. 30 for the doctrine of a thousand years' Sabbath, which may be referred to here and in xlv. 9 (B²) and denied in iv. 1.

8. shall . . . be taken away. The MS. reads אֲבָדָה, which Ceriani emends into אֲבָדָה, which I have rendered. Ryssel proposes אֲבָדָה = 'shall be destroyed'.

IV. 2-7. Apparently an interpolation. The earthly Jerusalem is here derided, and contrasted with the one to be revealed. In vi. 9, Jerusalem, though to be delivered up for a time, as in iv. 1, will be again restored, and that for ever. Further in vi. 7-8, the actual vessels of the earthly temple are committed to the earth to be preserved for future use in the restored Jerusalem.

2. 'On the palms of My hands.' Quoted from Isa. xlix. 16, Syriac Version, which alone has 'palms'. This fuller phrase is usual, e. g. 1 Sam. v. 4.

3. This building . . . is not that which is revealed. The growing transcendence and enlargement of the idea of God, combined with the deepened consciousness of sin, and the consequent sense of the unfitness of Jerusalem as God's habitation, led to the evolution of the doctrine of a heavenly Jerusalem complete in all its parts. Of heavenly antitypes of the Tabernacle and its furniture we are told as early as the Priests' Code (Exod. xxv. 9, 40; cf. Heb. viii. 5). The purification or even total renewal of the earthly copies is postulated in Isa. lx; Ezek. xl-xlviii. The first full emergence of the idea of the heavenly city seems to be in 1 En. xc. 28, 29, where the old Jerusalem is removed, and the new is brought and set up by God Himself, though even there no prior existence is assigned to the latter. This would be about 166 B.C. But the purification of Jerusalem seems sufficient in Pss. Sol. xvii. 25 (70-40 B.C.); 1 En. x. 16-19, xxv. 1 (180 B.C.), to prepare for the Messianic kingdom. See my Commentary.

took counsel to make Paradise. Which Paradise is this? It may be, like the heavenly Jerusalem, the Paradise kept in heaven, or it may be the earthly counterpart in which Adam was placed at the first.

4. I showed it to My servant Abraham. We are not told so in Gen. xv. 9-21. But in 4 Ezra iii. 13, 14 Abraham is said to have been shown 'the end of the times', while the Beresh. rabba on Gen. xxviii. 17 tells us that the above vision was accorded to Jacob sleeping at Bethel.

V. Baruch's Complaint and God's Reassurance.

- 5 1 And I answered and said :
 ' So then I am destined to grieve for Zion,
 For Thine enemies will come to this place and pollute Thy sanctuary,
 And lead Thine inheritance into captivity,
 And make themselves masters of those whom Thou hast loved,
 And they will depart again to the place of their idols,
 And will boast before them :
 And what wilt Thou do for Thy great name ?'
 2 And the Lord said unto me :
 ' My name and My glory are unto all eternity ;
 And My judgement shall maintain its right in its own time.
 3 And thou shalt see with thine eyes
 That the enemy will not overthrow Zion,
 Nor shall they burn Jerusalem,
 But be the ministers of the Judge for the time.
 4 But do thou go and do whatsoever I have said unto thee.'
 5 And I went and took Jeremiah, and Adu, and Seriah, and Jabish, and Gedaliah, and all the honourable men of the people, and I led them to the valley of Cedron, and I narrated to them all 6, 7 that had been said to me. And they lifted up their voice, and they all wept. And we sat there and fasted until the evening.

VI-VIII. Invasion of the Chaldeans and their Entrance into the City after the Sacred Vessels were hidden and the City's Walls overthrown by Angels.

- 3 1 And it came to pass on the morrow that, lo ! the army of the Chaldees surrounded the city, and at the time of the evening, I, Baruch, left the people, and I went forth and stood by the 2 oak. And I was grieving over Zion, and lamenting over the captivity which had come upon 3 the people. And lo ! suddenly a strong spirit raised me, and bore me aloft over the wall of 4 Jerusalem. And I beheld, and lo ! four angels standing at the four corners of the city, each of 5 them holding a torch of fire in his hands. And another angel began to descend from heaven, 6 and said unto them : ' Hold your lamps, and do not light them till I tell you. For I am first sent to speak a word to the earth, and to place in it what the Lord the Most High has commanded

V. 1. grieve. MS. reads سوم (= 'guilty') which I have emended into سوم = 'grieve'.

whom Thou hast loved, lxxviii. 3, xxi. 20, 21 ; 4 Ezra iv. 23.

what wilt Thou do. Joshua vii. 9. Cf. 4 Ezra iv. 25.

2. My judgement . . . shall maintain its right. Recurs in a slightly different form in xlvi. 27, and lxxxv. 9.

3. This is carried out in vi. 5 ; vii.

5. Adu. A priest of this name went up with Zerubbabel (Neh. xii. 4). The Mass. gives Iddo, but the Syriac and Vulgate Addo.

Seriah, brother of Baruch and chief chamberlain of Zedekiah with whom he went to Babylon (see Jer. li. 59, 61).

Gedaliah, son of Ahikam (see Jer. xl. 14).

narrated to them, &c. Baruch usually makes known his revelations to his friends and the elders. He is forbidden to do so in the fourth section, i. e. xii. 5-xx.

7. fasted until the evening. The other fasts mentioned are of seven days. Of these there are four (ix. 2 ; xii. 5 ; xxi. 1 ; xlvii. 2). The scheme of the final editor is first a fast, then generally a prayer, then a divine message or revelation, then an announcement of this either to an individual (e. g. v. 5) or to the people (e. g. xxxi. 2-xxxiv), followed occasionally by a lamentation. This scheme is broken through in the fifth section only, i. e. in xxi-xlvi, where another fast is required after xxxv. In 4 Ezra there are four fasts of seven days.

THE SECOND SECTION. VI-VIII. This is a short section. After a day's fast Baruch, while lamenting alone, sees in a vision the sacred vessels committed to the earth for a season and the city destroyed by angels lest the enemy should triumph (vi. 3-vii). The realization of this vision follows.

VI. 1. on the morrow, &c. 4 Baruch (iv. 1) reproduces these words.

by the oak. This oak is outside the city, probably near or in the valley of the Cedron, where Baruch and the others had fasted. It cannot be the oak at Hebron.

It is noteworthy that no mention of this oak occurs in B². In B¹ it is found twice (vi. 1 and lxxvii. 18). A tree is referred to in A³ in lv. 1.

4. Cf. Rev. vii. 1 'I saw four angels standing on the four corners of the earth' ; 4 Baruch iii. 2.

5. Cf. Rev. vii. 2 ; 4 Baruch iii. 4.

6. The office of the angel here is executed by Jeremiah in 4 Baruch iii. 8.

the Lord the Most High. This full title occurs here only in this book ; the 'Most High' is found in xvii. 1, &c., lxxxiii. 1, and 4 Ezra.

- 7 me.' And I saw him descend into the Holy of Holies, and take from thence the veil, and the holy ark, and the mercy-seat, and the two tables, and the holy raiment of the priests, and the altar of incense, and the forty-eight precious stones, wherewith the priest was adorned and all the holy vessels of the tabernacle. And he spake to the earth with a loud voice:
- 8 'Earth, earth, earth, hear the word of the mighty God,
And receive what I commit to thee,
And guard them until the last times,
So that, when thou art ordered, thou mayst restore them,
So that strangers may not get possession of them.
- 9 For the time comes when Jerusalem also will be delivered for a time, Until it is said, that it is again restored for ever.'
- 10 And the earth opened its mouth and swallowed them up.
- 7 1 And after these things I heard that angel saying unto those angels who held the lamps:
'Destroy, therefore, and overthrow its wall to its foundations, lest the enemy should boast and say:
"We have overthrown the wall of Zion,
And we have burnt the place of the mighty God."'
- 2 And ye have seized the place where I had been standing before.
- 8 1 Now the angels did as he had commanded them, and when they had broken up the corners of the walls, a voice was heard from the interior of the temple, after the wall had fallen, saying:
2 'Enter, ye enemies,
And come, ye adversaries;
For he who kept the house has forsaken (it).'
- 3, 4 And I, Baruch, departed. And it came to pass after these things that the army of the Chaldees
5 entered and seized the house, and all that was around it. And they led the people away captive, and slew some of them, and bound Zedekiah the king, and sent him to the king of Babylon.

IX—XII. 4. First Fast of seven Days: Baruch to remain amid the Ruins of Jerusalem and Jeremiah to accompany the Exiles to Babylon. Baruch's Dirge over Jerusalem.

- 9 1 And I, Baruch, came, and Jeremiah, whose heart was found pure from sins, who had not been

7. take from thence, &c. In 2 Macc. ii. 4-8 there is a very similar tradition. Jeremiah is warned of God to hide in the mountain where Moses climbed up 'the tabernacle and the ark and the altar of incense'. This place was to remain unknown till God should gather His people again together.

ark. MS. = אֲרוֹן corrupt for אֲרֹן. The converse corruption of אֲרוֹן into אֲרֹן is found in 1 Sam. xiv. 18. In 2 Macc. ii. 5 the things hidden are these—τὴν σκητὴν καὶ τὴν κιβωτὸν καὶ τὸ θυσιαστήριον τοῦ θυμιάματος.

According to Bammidbar rabba 15, five things were taken away and preserved on the destruction of Solomon's temple: the candlestick, the ark, the fire, the Holy Spirit, and the Cherubim.

the altar of incense. The Syriac implies θυμιατήριον. In the LXX this word = 'censer', but in Philo and Josephus it means not 'censer' but 'altar of incense'. Cf. Heb. ix. 1-5 (?), and 2 Macc. as above (τὸ θυσιαστήριον τοῦ θυμιάματος) which mention the altar but not a censer. See Appendix to my Commentary, p. 168.

forty-eight precious stones. Why forty-eight? There were twelve on the breastplate (Exod. xxviii. 15-21) and two on the ephod (Exod. xxviii. 9).

8. Earth . . . of the mighty God, drawn from Jer. xxii. 29. 'Earth' is repeated three times also in Mass., Syr., Vulg. of that passage; in LXX only twice.

Mighty God. This title recurs in vii. 1, and xiii. 2, 4. Not in 4 Ezra.

guard them until the last times. Cf. 4 Baruch iii. 8, 'Preserve the vessels of worship until the coming of the Beloved.'

9. restored for ever. A Messianic kingdom of indefinite duration is looked forward to with Jerusalem as its centre, and likewise the temple in which the sacred vessels of the former temple will again be used. During this kingdom the dispersion will again return to Palestine (lxxvii. 6; lxxviii. 7, notes).

VII. 2. ye have seized the place. The text is impossible here. Possibly לִּלְלוּ בְּאֵזְבֵּי is corrupt for לִּלְלוּ (אֲבִיבִים) or אֲבִיבִים לְסוֹף 'the spirit brought me to the place.' In vi. 3 a strong spirit carried Baruch aloft over the walls for the vision: now he carries him back to the place beside the oak.

VIII. 2. 4 Baruch iv. 1.

He who kept the house has forsaken it. Cf. Tacitus Hist. v. 13 'Apertae repente delubri fores et audita maior humana vox excedere deos'.

5. The writer knows of Zedekiah and his captivity. See note on i. 1.

IX. 1. heart . . . pure from sins. In Pss. Sol. xvii. 41 the Messiah is said to be καθαρὸς ἀπὸ ἀμαρτίας.

THE THIRD SECTION. IX. 2—XII. 4. After a seven days' fast amid the ruins of Zion, the word of the Lord bids Baruch to tell Jeremiah to go to Babylon, and promises a revelation of what should be in the end. Baruch tells Jeremiah the message, and laments before the temple gates for Zion.

2 captured in the seizure of the city. And we rent our garments, we wept, and mourned, and fasted ^{ix. 2-xxv.} seven days. = B²

1, 2 And it came to pass after seven days, that the word of God came to me, and said unto me: 'Tell 3 Jeremiah to go and support the captivity of the people unto Babylon. But do thou remain here amid the desolation of Zion, and I will show to thee after these days what will befall at the end of 4, 5 days.' And I said to Jeremiah as the Lord commanded me. And he, indeed, departed with the people, but I, Baruch, returned and sat before the gates of the temple, and I lamented with the following lamentation over Zion and said:

6 'Blessed is he who was not born,
Or he, who having been born, has died.

7 But as for us who live, woe unto us,
Because we see the afflictions of Zion,
And what has befallen Jerusalem.

8. I will call the Sirens from the sea,
And ye Lilin, come ye from the desert,
And ye Shedim and dragons from the forests:
Awake and gird up your loins unto mourning,
And take up with me the dirges,
And make lamentation with me.

9 Ye husbandmen, sow not again;
And, O earth, wherefore givest thou thy harvest fruits?
Keep within thee the sweets of thy sustenance.

10 And thou, vine, why further dost thou give thy wine;
For an offering will not again be made therefrom in Zion,
Nor will first-fruits again be offered.

IX. 2. The first fast of seven days.

Fasting was the usual preparation for supernatural communications. Cf. Dan. ix. 3, 20-21; and see note on v. 7.

X. 1. God. This word is found only twice again, i.e. liv. 12; lxxxii. 9. Its use is more frequent in 4 Ezra.

2. We have here a violation of the true historical tradition. According to Jer. xliii. 4-7, both Jeremiah and Baruch were carried down into Egypt. In 1 Baruch i. 1, Baruch appears in Babylon five years after Jerusalem was taken. In 4 Baruch, too, Jeremiah is taken to Babylon, but by force. The references to Jeremiah in connexion with Babylon probably belong to B². In lxxvii. 17-19, &c., Baruch writes to the brethren in Babylon, never to Jeremiah; while in 4 Baruch he directs his letter to Jeremiah. But later Judaism, according to Pesik. R. 26 (131^b ed. Friedmann) held that Jeremiah accompanied the exiles part of the way to Babylon.

support. So I render according to a recognized meaning of the Syriac verb ܣܡܥ. Ryssel thinks that this verb goes back to ܠܗܩܝܢ, and that ܠܒ was to be understood with it. Thus he arrives at his rendering 'care for'. But this is most unlikely; for in xliii. 1 we have the actual Syriac phrase in full which corresponds to the Hebrew לִבְךָ, i.e. ܠܡܥ ܕܠܒ. There we should render as in Hebrew, 'direct thy heart,' &c. Now it is noteworthy that the clause in our text 'go and support' recurs practically in xxxiii. 2, but there ܠܡܥ is used instead of ܠܣܡܥ. ܠܡܥ is a Syriac equivalent of לִבְךָ. Hence there we render 'make ready'. In lxxvii. 12 yet another verb, ܣܘܣ, is used in nearly the same sense as ܠܣܡܥ in x. 2. Returning now to xxxiii. 2 we recognize at once that there is a slight corruption in the text: 'make ready the rest of the brethren †in† Babylon, against whom has gone forth the sentence that they should be led into captivity.' Here the brethren are first of all said to be already 'in Babylon', and then in the next clause to be sentenced to exile to Babylon. Thus 'in Babylon' may be corrupt for 'for Babylon'. It must be confessed, however, that the original standing behind these words is very uncertain.

5. This lament of Baruch prepares for the third fast of xii. 5.

before the gates of the temple. This is the scene of the following lamentation, and also that in xxxv. 1. A passage in the beginning of 3 Baruch seems to be derived from our text: οὕτως ἐκάθητο ἐπὶ τὰς ὀραίας πύλας ὅπου ἔκειτο τὰ τῶν ἁγίων ἄγια. Mount Zion, on the other hand, is the scene where revelations are accorded to him (xiii. 1, &c.).

6. Blessed is he who was not born, &c. Cf. Eccles. iv. 2-3, from which the text may ultimately have been derived. Cf. 4 Ezra: it is said that it were better man had not been born at all than be born to have to face future torment and judgement (e.g. vii. 66, 116, 117). But it is the present woes of Jerusalem that here are said to make the unborn blessed, and those in Sheol (xi. 7) happy in comparison with the living.

8. Sirens. These are said in 1 En. xix. 2 (Greek version) to have been the wives of the angels who went astray. Here they are sea-nymphs, as in Greek legend. The Greek translators of the O.T. used the term for ostriches and jackals.

Lilin, night-demons. Male and female demons named Lil and Lilit belong to Assyrian and Babylonian demonology. The Lilith (לילית) are mentioned in Isa. xxxiv. 14, along with the satyr שָׁעִיר.

Shedim. Male demons, to which various origins were assigned. See my Commentary, in loc.

dragons. So, too, Pesh. renders תַּנִּים in Isa. xiii. 22. But the word may mean 'jackals'.

10. The writer of x. 6-xii. 4 resigns absolutely all hope of the restoration of Jerusalem, as B² does throughout.

- 11 And do ye, O heavens, withhold your dew,
And open not the treasuries of rain :
- 12 And do thou, O sun, withhold the light of thy rays.
And do thou, O moon, extinguish the multitude of thy light ;
For why should light rise again
Where the light of Zion is darkened ?
- 13 And you, ye bridegrooms, enter not in,
And let not the brides adorn themselves with garlands ;
And, ye women, pray not that ye may bear.
- 14 For the barren shall above all rejoice,
And those who have no sons shall be glad,
And those who have sons shall have anguish.
- 15 For why should they bear in pain,
Only to bury in grief ?
- 16 Or why, again, should mankind have sons ?
Or why should the seed of their kind again be named,
Where this mother is desolate,
And her sons are led into captivity ?
- 17 From this time forward speak not of beauty,
And discourse not of gracefulness.
- 18 Moreover, ye priests, take ye the keys of the sanctuary,
And cast them into the height of heaven,
And give them to the Lord and say :
“ Guard Thy house Thyself,
For lo ! we are found false stewards.”
- 19 And you, ye virgins ; who weave fine linen
And silk with gold of Ophir,
Take with haste all (these) things
And cast (them) into the fire,
That it may bear them to Him who made them,
And the flame send them to Him who created them,
Lest the enemy get possession of them.’
- 11 1 Moreover, I, Baruch, say this against thee, Babylon :
‘ If thou hadst prospered,
And Zion had dwelt in her glory,
Yet the grief to us had been great
That thou shouldst be equal to Zion.
- 2 But now, lo ! the grief is infinite,
And the lamentation measureless,
For lo ! thou art prospered
And Zion desolate.
- 3 Who will be judge regarding these things ?
Or to whom shall we complain regarding that which has befallen us ?
O Lord, how hast Thou borne (it) ?

13. brides. Syriac gives virgins, who first rightly occur in verse 19. The references here are to marriage. The text = בתולות, corrupt for כלות in the Hebrew original.

14. Cf. Matt. xxiv. 19 ; Luke xxiii. 29, ‘ Blessed are the barren, &c.’

16. this mother, Jerusalem. See iii. 1 note.

18. The priesthood are found false stewards and resign charge of the temple. Cf. 4 Baruch iv. 3, 4, where Jeremiah casts up the keys ‘ before the sun ’, and the Jalkut Shim. on Isa. xxi, where the flower of the priests cast them up aloft. The same incident is recounted in Taanith 29^a ; Lev. R. xix. 6, in connexion with the destruction of the first temple. In Ab. R. N. vii the incident is recorded in connexion with the destruction of the second temple.

XI. 1. Babylon stands here for Rome, as in Rev. xiv. 8, &c.

3. how hast Thou borne (it). Cf. 4 Ezra iii. 30, ‘ how Thou dost bear with them that sin.’ Also Pss. Sol. ii. 1, and 4 Ezra iii. 8 ; Isa. xiv. 6.

- 4 Our fathers went to rest without grief,
And lo! the righteous sleep in the earth in tranquillity ;
- 5 For they knew not this anguish,
Nor yet had they heard of that which had befallen us.
- 6 Would that thou hadst ears, O earth,
And that thou hadst a heart, O dust :
That ye might go and announce in Sheol,
And say to the dead :
- 7 " Blessed are ye more than we who live. "

OXYRHYNCHUS GREEK FRAGMENT, from Grenfell and Hunt's
Oxyrhynchus Papyri, vol. iii. 3-7, 1903.

Verso.

Verso.

- | | | | |
|---|---|--|--|
| 2¹ But I will say this as I think.
And I will speak against thee, O land, which art prospering. 2 The noonday does not always burn.
Nor do the rays of the sun constantly give light. 3 Do not expect [and hope] that thou wilt always be prosperous and rejoicing.
And be not greatly uplifted and boastful. 4 For assuredly in its own season shall the (divine) wrath awake against thee.
Which now in long-suffering is held in as it were by reins. | (2-5) (6-8) (8-10) | 12. 1. But I will say this as I think,
And speak against thee, the land that is prospering. 2. Not always does the noon-day burn, Nor do the rays of the sun constantly give light. 3. And do not thou expect to rejoice,
Nor †condemn† greatly. 4. For assuredly in its season shall the (divine) wrath be awakened against thee,
Which is now restrained by long-suffering as it were by a rein. | ⟨ 17 letters αλλα τ)ουτο 12 ι οιο(ν) (οιομαι ερω και λαλη)σω προς σε την ⟨ γην την ευοδοουσαν ο)ν 2 παντοτε μεσεμ 5 ⟨ βρια αποκαιει ουδ)ε το διηνεκες αι ακτι
(νες του ηλιου λα)μπουσιν· 3 και συ μη προς ⟨ δοκα χαιρησειν) μηδε επ(ι)πολυ καταδικα ⟨ ζε αληθως γαρ εν) καιρω 4 εξυπνισθησεται ⟨ προς σε η οργη η νυν υπο
τ)ης μακροθυμ(ι) |
|---|---|--|--|

XII. 5-XIII. Second Fast. Revelation as to the coming Judgement on the Heathen.

- | | | | |
|---|----------------|---|---|
| 5 And when I had said these things, I fasted seven days. | (10-16) | 5. And having said these things I fasted seven days. | 10 ⟨ ας ως χαλινω κατεχεται 5
και) ειπων ταυτα |
|---|----------------|---|---|

4. went to rest . . . sleep in the earth. Cf. xxi. 24. Dan. xii. 2, 'sleep in the dust of the earth.'

5-6. In Berakh 18^b there is a long legend narrated, the object of which is to teach that the departed know nothing of what is going on in this world.

6. That ye might go. The Syriac = 'and go ye', a Hebrew idiom, i. e. an imperative used for a jussive : see Driver, Moods and Tenses,³ p. 82.

XII. 3. [and hope]. A duplicate rendering.

be . . . uplifted = תנשם. The Greek 'condemn' = ψηφισθησεται, is against the parallelism.

boastful. I have emended למדם = 'do (not) oppress', into למדם.

THE FOURTH SECTION. XII. 5-XX. After a fast of seven days follows a long revelation to Baruch (xiii. 2-xx. 2). The text is very confused. See next note.

XIII-XXV. The text of these chapters is inexplicable as it stands. The difficulties are due not to corruption, though this exists, but to a recasting of the original text. In this process many passages were torn from their original contexts and placed in settings which are quite unsuitable. It appears impossible to restore the original order; for not only were the chapters broken up and rearranged, but also mutilated and interpolated. It is only occasionally possible to explain the grounds for such dislocations of the text. But that they occur not infrequently is indubitable. We have it on a large scale in 2 Corinthians which is composed of two letters, and where the later in date is placed before the earlier. Other instances which can be consulted by the reader occur in this volume : see 1 Enoch xii-xvi ; where the dislocation and consequent confusion are almost as great as in our text : lxxviii-lxxxii ; xci-xciii.

But let us return and state the chief grounds for regarding this section as disarranged and confused. 1°. In xiii. 4 'those prosperous cities' are represented as speaking without a single note of introduction. Before xiii. 4 probably some reference was made to these cities. 2°. The retribution of the Gentiles referred to in xiii. 4, 5 has not been

13¹ And it came to pass after these things, that I, Baruch, was standing upon Mount Zion, and lo! a voice came from the height and said
 2 unto me: 'Stand upon thy feet, Baruch, and hear the word of the mighty God.'

13. 1. And it came to pass after these things that I, Baruch, was standing upon Mount Zion, and lo! a voice came forth from the height and said unto me:
 2. 'Stand upon thy feet, Baruch, and hear the word of the mighty God.'

⟨ενηστευσα ημε⟩ρας ζ̄ και 13 εγενετο με
 ⟨τα ταυτα οτι εγω⟩ Βαρουχ ιστηκει' επι το ⟨ορος Σιων και ιδου φων⟩η εξηλθεν εξ ῡ ⟨ψους και ειπε μοι ανα⟩στα 2 επι τους πο
 1,5 ⟨δας σου Βαρουχ και ακουε⟩ τον λογον ισχυ
 ρου θεου

3 Because thou hast been astonished at what has befallen Zion, thou shalt therefore be assuredly
 4 preserved to the consummation of the times, that thou mayst be for a testimony. So that, if ever 5 those prosperous cities say: 'Why hath the mighty God brought upon us this retribution?' Say mentioned before, though the text presupposes some such mention. It is intelligible if xxv or xxiv. 4 precedes where Baruch asks what will befall the enemies of Israel. 3°. In xiv. 1 Baruch replies that God has shown him 'the method of the times', whereas in xx. 6 this is not yet done; for the promise is there given that Baruch shall receive directions with regard to them. 4°. In xiv. 1 it is said that God has shown to Baruch the retribution that shall befall the Gentiles. But this is not done by God till xxv. 3. The Gentile cities in xiii. 4 sq. complain of it after it has come upon them. Hence xxv. should precede xiii. 4-xiv. 5°. In xxiv. 4^b Baruch asks what retribution awaits the enemies of Israel and when would the judgement be. Now the answer to the first question has already been given in xiii. 4-12; and the answer to the second question follows in xxv. Hence xxiv. 4 should precede xiii. 3^b-12, xxv. 6°. In xiii. 5 the words 'thou and those like thee who shall have seen this evil' are unexplained in their present context and are in fact inexplicable, unless xxiv. 2 precedes, in which God tells Baruch that he and many with him should see the judgement of God. But if xxiv. 2 'thou shalt see—and the many that are with thee' originally preceded xiii. 3^b-5, then everything is clear. Hence xxiv. 2-4 should precede xiii. 3^b-12. 7°. Again, there is no adequate explanation of the 'therefore' in xx. 1. But if xx is read immediately after xiii. 1-3^a the text would at once become clear.

Thus, provisionally, the text might be restored as follows:—xiii. 1-3^a; xx; xxiv. 2-4; xiii. 3^b-12; xxv.

Now we have to remark regarding these sections that their interest is at once theological and national. To reassure Baruch, who is plunged in grief over Jerusalem (xiii. 3^a), God declares (xx. 1-2) that the days and years will speed more quickly in order to usher in the judgement, which will right all wrongs, and that even Jerusalem has been removed with this end in view. Baruch is then promised that disclosures shall be made on 'the method of the times' (xx. 6) and that 'he and the many that are with him' (xxiv. 2) shall witness God's dealings. Baruch, thereupon, asks two questions (xxiv. 4): (a) What will befall Israel's enemies? (b) when will this judgement be of which God has already spoken (xx. 2)? The answer to (a) is given in xiii. 3^b-12. But the first words of this answer are lost, somewhat to the effect that 'retribution will come upon the prosperous cities of your enemies'. Baruch, moreover, will be preserved until those last days (xiii. 3) in order to testify together with the surviving righteous (xiii. 5, xxiv. 2) the reason of the retribution that had befallen those cities, and to answer the remonstrances of the tormented Gentiles. In answer to Baruch's second question, he is informed (xxv. 1-2) that he shall be preserved till the sign of the last days has come. This sign shall be a stupor that shall seize the inhabitants of the earth (xxv. 3, 4). Baruch, thereupon, acknowledges that God has shown him 'the method of the times', and told him of the retribution coming upon the Gentiles (xiv. 1). This verse closes the questions of theological and national interest in xiii-xxv. In xiv. 2-xix, which follows, we have a section that is of a purely theological and individual interest, as will be seen from the summary at the beginning of these chapters (p. 489).

xxi-xxiv. 1 is mainly of the same theological cast. Their substance, in a word, is that the end cannot come till all souls are born.

Thus the original order of xiii-xxv appears to have been: xiii. 1-3^a, xx, xxiv. 2-4, xiii. 3^b-12, xxv, xiv-xix, xxi-xxiv. 1.

XIII. 1. Mount Zion is the scene of the revelation here; of the prayer in xxi. 4-25; of the revelation in xxii-xxx; of the seven days' fast in xlvi. 2; and of the prayer and revelation following in xlvi-lix.

3. thou shalt therefore be assuredly preserved, &c. This promise recurs twice again in B², i. e. in xxv. 1 and lxxvi. 2. Thus the assumption and preservation of Baruch till the last judgement is the teaching of B². Cf. also xlvi. 30 and xlvi. 7. In B¹, on the other hand, Baruch is to die a natural death (lxxviii. 5; lxxxiv. 1), and go the way of all the earth (xliv. 2). This conflict of accounts is due to the transference of a distinct Enochic function to Baruch in B². For in Jub. iv. 24 it is said: 'Enoch was set as a sign there (in Eden), and that he should testify against all the children of men' (Cf. also x. 17). Enoch's acceptance among Christians was the ground for his rejection by the Jews. Though he was second only to Daniel in Jewish Apocalyptic prior to A. D. 40 his functions and achievements were in subsequent Jewish literature assigned to others, e.g. Moses, Ezra, or Baruch. By observing this tendency of Jewish thought we are enabled in lix. 4-11 to conclude that a document, seen to be on other grounds prior to A. D. 70, is later than the rise of Christianity.

be assuredly preserved. The Syriac reveals a Hebraism; lit. = σωσθεις σωθησει.

4. those prosperous cities. The text preceding these words seems to have been lost; or preferably (see note on xiii-xxv on p. 487) we should read xiii. 3^b-12 after xxiv. 2-4. In any case, xiii. 3^b-12 gives an answer to xxiv. 4. The cities here mentioned are Gentile cities. 'A land' is referred to as prospering in xii. 1, 3.

brought upon us this retribution. Cf. the phrase in regard to Israel in lxxvii. 4. Here the Gentile cities suffer as there Israel does.

thou to them, thou and those like thee who shall have seen this evil: ‘(This is the evil) and retribution which is coming upon you and upon your people in its (destined) time that the nations
 6, 7 may be thoroughly smitten. And then they shall be in anguish. And if they say at that time:
 8 For how long? Thou wilt say to them:
 “Ye who have drunk the strained wine,
 Drink ye also of its dregs,
 The judgement of the Lofty One
 Who has no respect of persons.”
 9 On this account he had aforetime no mercy on His own sons,
 But afflicted them as His enemies, because they sinned,
 10 Then therefore were they chastened
 That they might be sanctified.

OXYRHYNCHUS GREEK FRAGMENT.

	Recto.	Recto.
11	But now, ye peoples and nations, ye are guilty Because ye have always trodden down the earth, And used the creation unrighteously.	11. (Ye) peoples and . . . (Ye) have trodden down the earth And misused the created things in it.
12	For I have always benefited you. And ye have always been ungrateful for the beneficence.	12. For ye were always being benefited But ye were always ungrateful.

· · · · ·
 <
 οπη< 11
 τα εθνη κα< 14 letters
 καταπα
 20 τησαντες την <γην και καταχρησαμενοι τους εν αυτη κτισμ(ασι 12 υμεις γαρ ευερ γετουμενοι αιει ηχα<ριστειτε αιει

XIV-XIX. The Righteousness of the Righteous has profited neither them nor their City; God's Judgements are incomprehensible; the World was made for the Righteous, yet they pass and the World remains (XIV). Answer—Man knows God's Judgements and has sinned willingly. This World is a Weariness to the Righteous but the next is theirs (XV), to be won through Character whether a Man's Time here be long or short (XVI-XVII). Final Weal or Woe—the supreme Question (XVIII-XIX).

4 1	And I answered and said: ‘Lo! Thou hast shown me the method of the times, and that which	14. 1. And I answered and said: ‘Behold, thou hast shown me the methods of the times, and that which shall be.	και απεκριθην και ειπο>ν 14 1 ιδου απεδει ξας μοι καιρων ταξεις' κ<αι το μελλον
-----	--	--	--

5. thou and those like thee who shall have seen this evil. ‘those like thee’, i. e. לך הדמים, are the same as ‘the many (= הרבים corrupt for הרמים) who are with thee’ in xxiv. 2. All previous translations have wrongly rendered אלו as ‘have seen’, whereas the context requires that it should be rendered ‘shall have seen’. The time referred to is in the future—the end of the world: the evil referred to is not the destruction of Jerusalem in the past, but the retribution which should befall the Gentiles in the last days. To this time of the end Baruch was to be preserved (xiii. 3) to testify to the Gentiles that full retribution had at last come upon them.

those like thee. These are the righteous who shall be surviving in the last days, and who shall join with Baruch in his testimony.

5-7. This (is the evil) and retribution, &c. The text in this verse and the next is defective. First of all I have restored with Ryssel ‘this is the evil’, which fell out through hmt., and read ‘retribution’ in the singular, as in v. 4. Next the text reads ‘chastened’. But v. 8 shows that the punishment is not corrective, but vindictive. Text = παιδευθωσιν, which I take to be corrupt, as in 1 Sam. xxvi. 10, for παισθωσιν = יפני. Next, in v. 6, the text reads ‘shall expect’, ‘shall hope’ = επισουσι = יוחילו, corrupt for יחילו = ‘shall be in anguish’. The same confusion is found in Jer. iv. 19, in the Hebrew MSS. Finally, in v. 7, the text reads ‘when’ where we require ‘for how long’, i. e. עד-מתה—not מתה alone.

8. Cf. Ps. lxxv. 7, 8.

the Lofty One. Here only in this book (see 4 Ezra iv. 34; Isa. lvii. 15).

XIV. 1. Baruch has not been shown ‘the method of the times’. Chapter xiii has only told us why the retribution has come on the Gentile cities, and when their punishment will be consummated. Disclosures about the method of the times are promised in xx. 6, and would seem to be given in xxiv. 2-xxv, taken together with xiii, or else in xxvii-xxx.

shall be after these things, and Thou hast said unto me, that the retribution, which has been spoken of by Thee, shall come upon the nations. And now I know that those who have sinned are many, and they have lived in prosperity; and departed from the world, but that few nations will be left in those times, to whom those words shall be said which Thou didst say. For what advantage is there in this, or what (evil), worse than what we have seen befall us, are we to expect to see?

(25-27) And thou hast said unto me that the retribution which was spoken of by thee shall be †endured† by the nations.
 (27-32) 2. And now I know that those who have sinned are many, and they have lived . . . , and departed from the world, but that few nations will be left in those times to whom . . . the words (which) thou didst say.
 (32-33) 3. And what advantage (is there) in this or what worse than (these?) . . .

25 (εσ)εσθαι και ειπες μ(ο)ι· (οτι υπ εθνων υπενεχθησε(ται η υπο σου λεχθεισα πραξις και νυν (οιδα οτι 2 πολλοι εισιν οι αμαρτυρησαν(τες και εξησαν· και επορευθη(σαν εκ κοσμου
 30 ολιγα δε περι(εσται εθνη εν εκεινοις τοις καιροις· ο(ς
 . . . ουσ ειπες λογους· και τι π(λεον εν 3 τουτω η τινα χει ρονα τ(ο)υ τ(ων

4, 5 But again I will speak in Thy presence : What have they profited who had knowledge before Thee, and have not walked in vanity as the rest of the nations, and have not said to the dead : "Give us life," but always feared Thee, and have not left Thy ways? And lo! they have been carried off, nor on their account hast Thou had mercy on Zion. And if others did evil, it was due to Zion, that on account of the works of those who wrought good works she should be forgiven, and should not be overwhelmed on account of the works of those who wrought unrighteousness. But who, O LORD, my Lord, will comprehend Thy judgement, Or who will search out the profoundness of Thy way? Or who will think out the †weight† of Thy path? Or who will be able to think out Thy incomprehensible counsel? Or who of those that are born has ever found The beginning or end of Thy wisdom?
 10, 11 For we have all been made like a breath. For as the breath ascends involuntarily, and again dies, so it is with the nature of men, who depart not according to their own will, and know not what will befall them in the end. For the righteous justly hope for the end, and without fear come upon the nations. This could also be rendered : 'be of service to the nations.' But xiii. 8 is against this rendering.

2. few nations . . . in those times, to whom, &c. Do these words refer back to xiii. 3? In that case Baruch complains that few of the Gentile nations will be alive to whom the words in xiii. 5, 8-11 are to be addressed.

4-19. What has the righteousness of the righteous profited them or their city, though the latter should have profited by it? (4-7). Man cannot understand Thy judgement (8, 9), for he is but a breath, his end is a mystery (10, 11); though for that end the righteous may hope for they have treasures of works in heaven, but for us there is only woe here and hereafter (12-14). What Thou hast done on behalf of Thy servants, Thou knowest, but we cannot discover. Can the world be made for man? We pass away and the world abides (15-19).

5. have not said to the dead. Cf. Isa. viii. 19^b : 'on behalf of the living should they seek unto the dead?'

6. nor on their account hast thou had mercy on Zion. A great difficulty for a Jew. Ten righteous men would have saved Sodom; why did Zion fall? Moreover, the preservation of the world, according to the Talmud (Weber, 208) depends on Israel. See xiv. 18, note.

7. Cf. Gen. xviii. 23-33. Here, however, the works not the persons of the righteous avail for their city. On the question of good works the thought of the writers in this book, i. e. between A. D. 50 and 80 is: (a) the righteous are saved by their works (li. 7), and justified by the law (li. 3; lxvii. 6). (b) They trust in them, and are heard of God, as Hezekiah (lxiii. 3, 5), and the prophets (lxxxv. 2). (c) These works avail as a defence for their unrighteous fellow citizens (ii. 2), and after their death give merit to Zion (xiv. 7, lxxxv. 10). (d) These works go before them to the next world, and are there guarded in God's treasure-chambers, till the final judgement (xxiv. 1); hence the righteous hope for the end, and leave the world without fear (xiv. 12). In 4 Ezra we have no parallels to (b) and (c), and only seeming parallels to (a), as ix. 7, and xiii. 23, where faith is included with works. But to (d) we have good parallels in vii. 77 (Ezra's 'treasury of works laid up with the Most High') and in viii. 33. For the doctrine of justification see note on xxi. 9.

8. weight (or 'burdensomeness'). There is some corruption here. I see no obvious explanation. The text seems in some form to go back to חקר אין חקר = 'Thy unsearchable paths'. In this case we should have to suppose that חקר was corrupted into יקר = 'weight', which led to the omission of אין.

10. Cf. Ps. lxxviii. 39 'a wind that passeth away, and cometh not again'.

11. involuntarily. Literally 'not from the heart'. Cf. Peshitto on Num. xvi. 28 (Schulthess).

depart not according to their own will. Cf. xlvi. 15; 4 Ezra viii. 5.

12. the righteous justly hope, 1 En. cii. 4.

depart from this habitation, because they have with Thee a store of works preserved in treasuries.
 13 On this account also these without fear leave this world, and trusting with joy they hope to 14 receive the world which Thou hast promised them. But as for us—woe to us, who also are 15 now shamefully entreated, and at that time look forward (only) to evils. But Thou knowest
 16 accurately what Thou hast done by means of Thy servants; for we are not able to understand 17 that which is good as Thou art, our Creator. But again I will speak in Thy presence, O LORD, 18 my Lord. When of old there was no world with its inhabitants, Thou didst devise and speak 19 with a word, and forthwith the works of creation stood before Thee. And Thou didst say that Thou wouldst make for Thy world man as the administrator of Thy works, that it might be known that he was by no means made on account of the world, but the world on account of him.
 And now I see that as for the world which was made on account of us, lo! it abides, but we,
 on account of whom it was made, depart.'

5 1 And the Lord answered and said unto me: 'Thou art rightly astonished regarding the departure of 2 man, but thou hast not judged well regarding the evils which befall those who sin. And as regards
 3 what thou hast said, that the righteous are carried off and the impious are prospered, And as 4 regards what thou hast said: "Man knows not Thy judgement"—On this account hear, and I will 5 speak to thee, and hearken, and I will cause thee to hear My words. Man would not rightly have understood My judgement, unless he had accepted the law, and I had instructed him in understand-6 ing. But now, because he transgressed wittingly, yea, just on this ground that he wot (thereof), he shall be tormented.

7 And as regards what thou didst say touching the righteous, that on account of them has this 8 world come, so also again shall that, which is to come, come on their account. For this world is to them a strife and a labour with much trouble; and that accordingly which is to come, a crown with great glory.'

16 1 And I answered and said: 'O LORD, my Lord, lo! the years of this time are few and evil, and who is able in his little time to acquire that which is measureless?'

a store of works, or lit. a 'supply'. Cf. 4 Ezra vii. 77 ('a treasure of works'); Matt. vi. 19, 20; Pss. Sol. ix. 9.

13. the world which Thou hast promised. Clearly the spiritual world, 'which does not die' (li. 3); cf. xliv. 13, 15, xv. 7, 8. B² promises no earthly felicity, but only spiritual blessedness.

14. evils. What these are is given in xliv. 15; lxxxv. 13.

15. what Thou hast done by means of Thy servants, or the Syriac may = 'What Thou hast made out of Thy servants', or, without the diacritic point, 'What Thou hast wrought out of Thy works.' With the rendering in the text, verse 16 comes better before 15, which then runs on naturally to 17 and 18.

17. speak with a word. Cf. Ps. xxxiii. 6; Heb. xi. 3; 4 Ezra vi. 38.

18. Thou wouldst make for Thy world man, &c. Cf. Ps. viii. 6; 4 Ezra vi. 54.

the world on account of him. This view of man's dignity seems to occur first in the first century of the Christian era. Why was the world created? (1) Here and in 4 Ezra viii. 1, 44 we are told 'for man'; (2) 4 Ezra vi. 55, 59, vii. 11; Ass. Mosis i. 12 say 'for Israel'; (3) here in xiv. 19, xv. 7, xxi. 24 'for the righteous in Israel'. The real Jewish view from the Christian era onwards is (2) or (3). 'On Israel stands the world', Shemoth rabba, xxviii.

19. The 'us' and the 'we' are the righteous in Israel, as xv. 7, xxi. 24. In Pesikta 200^b God is said to have created the world on account of Abraham's merit.

XV. 2. See xiv. 6.

3. See xiv. 8, 9.

5. the law. The law and the Messianic expectation were the two centres round which Jewish thought and life revolved. The law predominated at all times, and in B¹ where there is no Messiah, but Jerusalem's restoration is expected, it is supremely exalted (e.g. lxxvii. 15, 16). In B², which does not look forward to restoration or Messiah, the law is further glorified (e.g. xlviii. 24, 27, li. 3, 7), as also in B³ (e.g. lxxxv. 3, 14). On the other hand, in the Messiah Apocalypses A¹ and S we find no mention of the law at all, and only once in A² (xxxviii. 2), though in A³ it rises again into prominence (esp. lxvii. 6, righteousness by the law). Thus the Messianic expectation tends to eclipse the supremacy of the law, and after the Messiah's advent there is no allusion to it (lxx-lxxiv). For fuller treatment and comparison with 4 Ezra see my Commentary.

6. transgressed wittingly. Cf. xix. 3, xlviii. 40 (see note in loc.), lv. 2; 4 Ezra vii. 72; cf. Luke xii. 48.

7. as regards . . . has this world come. See note on xiv. 18. On the parallel in the short hexameron in 4 Ezra vi. 55, see xxix. 4, note.

shall . . . come. Emended according to Ryssel by reading לל instead of ל .

8. this world is to them . . . trouble, &c. Cf. xlviii. 50; li. 14; 4 Ezra vii. 3-14; Ps. xc. 10 'yet is their pride labour and sorrow'; Rom. viii. 18; 2 Cor. iv. 17. B² regards this world as a place of trial, discipline, and sorrow, unlike B¹. There is a still more ascetic tone about 4 Ezra, and above all in 1 Enoch cviii. 7, 'the spirits of the humble and of those who have afflicted their bodies.'

crown with great glory. Cf. 1 Pet. v. 4. In Hebrew we have here a paronomasia, as in Isa. lxii. 3, עטרה בתפארה רבה.

XVI. 1. years . . . few and evil. Gen. xlvii. 9.

in his . . . time. For ל (= 'this') read למנו = 'his time'. Cf. xix. 2. There is no need to add 'time', and render 'this his little time,' with Ryssel. Text = 'in this little'.

17 1 And the Lord answered and said unto me: 'With the Most High account is not taken of much
2 time nor of a few years. For what did it profit Adam that he lived nine hundred and thirty years,
3 and transgressed that which he was commanded? Therefore the multitude of time that he lived 4 did not profit him, but brought death and cut off the years of those who were born from him. Or wherein did Moses suffer loss in that he lived only one hundred and twenty years, and, inasmuch as he was subject to Him who formed him, brought the law to the seed of Jacob, and lighted a lamp for the nation of Israel?'

18 1 And I answered and said: 'He that lighted has taken from the light, and there are but few that 2 have imitated him. But those many whom he has lighted have taken from the darkness of Adam and have not rejoiced in the light of the lamp.'

19 1 And He answered and said unto me: 'Wherefore at that time he appointed for them a covenant and said:

"Behold I have placed before you life and death,"
And he called heaven and earth to witness against them.

2 For he knew that his time was but short,
But that heaven and earth endure always.
3 But after his death they sinned and transgressed,
Though they knew that they had the law reproving (them),
And the light in which nothing could err,
Also the spheres which testify, and Me.

4 Now regarding everything that is, it is I that judge, but do not thou take counsel in thy soul 5 regarding these things, nor afflict thyself because of those which have been. For now it is the consummation of time that should be considered, whether of business, or of prosperity, or of shame, 6 and not the beginning thereof. Because if a man be prospered in his beginnings and shamefully 7 entreated in his old age, he forgets all the prosperity that he had. And again, if a man is shamefully entreated in his beginnings, and at his end is prospered, he remembereth not again his evil 8 entreatment. And again hearken: though each one were prospered all that time—all the time from the day on which death was decreed against those who transgress—and in his end was destroyed, in vain would have been everything.'

XX. Zion has been taken away to hasten the Advent of the Judgement.

20 1 'Therefore, behold! the days come,
And the times shall hasten more than the former,
And the seasons shall speed on more than those that are past,
And the years shall pass more quickly than the present (years).

2 Therefore have I now taken away Zion,
That I may the more speedily visit the world in its season.

XVII. 3. brought death, &c. See xxiii. 4 (note).

4. brought the law. Cf. 4 Ezra iii. 19.

lighted a lamp. Cf. lix. 2 'lamp of the eternal law'; Ps. cxix. 105 'Thy word is a lamp', &c.

XVIII. 1. has taken from the light, i. e. has chosen the light, and not Adam's darkness.

2. The law is light, and Adam is darkness, the primary source of human transgression. This passage agrees with 2 Enoch, and like it does not teach the doctrine of original sin, any more than A³ (i. e. liv. 15, 16). In 1 Enoch and Jubilees human depravity is traced to the angels who sinned with the daughters of men.

XIX. 1, 2. The choice of light or darkness was the choice of life or death. Later times concluded from Deut. xxx. 19, that the law was to last while heaven and earth should be. Cf. verse 2; Matt. v. 18. Contrast Luke xvi. 17;
Mark xiii. 31.

3. the spheres which testify, i. e. heaven, and its unfailing lights. The law is part of the heavenly order.
Cf. 1 Enoch ii. 1-v. 4.

5. Here the end of all things is looked for—not an earthly felicity in a rebuilt Jerusalem.

6-8. We must consider the end of a man or a matter. Cf. Solon's saying in Herodotus i. 32.

8. on which death was decreed. See xxiii. 4 (note).

XX. 1. Therefore. It is not clear that this word follows upon anything in xix. It might follow on xviii, but better on xiii. 3^a. Jerusalem has fallen, and the years intervening before the judgement will therefore be shortened. Cf.
liv. 1; Matt. xxiv. 22.

the times shall hasten. Cf. lxxxiii. 1, 6.

2. The fall of Jerusalem prepares the way for final judgement: there is no hope here of its restoration. See
i. 4 (note).

speedily visit, lit. 'speed and visit', a Hebraism.

visit, in Baruch in a bad sense, of God's penal visitation. Contrast the N. T. associations of joy, Luke i. 68, &c., and usually in O. T.

- 3 Now therefore hold fast in thy heart everything that I command thee,
And seal it in the recesses of thy mind.
- 4 And then I will show thee the judgement of My might,
And My ways which are unsearchable.
- 5 Go therefore and sanctify thyself seven days, and eat no bread, nor drink water, nor speak to 6 anyone. And afterwards come to that place and I will reveal Myself to thee, and speak true things with thee, and I will give thee commandment regarding the method of the times; for they are coming and tarry not.'

XXI. 1-11. Fast of seven Days: Baruch's Prayer: God's Answer.

The Prayer of Baruch the Son of Neriah.

- 1 And I went thence and sat in the valley of Cedron in a cave of the earth, and I sanctified my soul there, and I eat no bread, yet I was not hungry, and I drank no water, yet I thirsted not, and 2 I was there till the seventh day, as He had commanded me. And afterwards I came to that place
3 where He had spoken with me. And it came to pass at sunset that my soul took much thought, 4 and I began to speak in the presence of the Mighty One, and said: 'O Thou that hast made the earth, hear me, that hast fixed the firmament by the word, and hast made firm the height of the heaven by the spirit, that hast called from the beginning of the world that which did not yet exist, and 5 they obey Thee. Thou that hast commanded the air by Thy nod, and hast seen those things which 6 are to be as those things which Thou art doing. Thou that rulest with great thought the hosts that stand before Thee: also the countless holy beings, which Thou didst make from the beginning, of 7 flame and fire, which stand around Thy throne Thou rulest with indignation†. To Thee only 8 does this belong that Thou shouldst do forthwith whatsoever Thou dost wish. Who causeth the drops of rain to rain by number upon the earth, and alone knowest the consummation of the times 9 before they come; have respect unto my prayer. For Thou alone art able to sustain all who are, and those who have passed away, and those who are to be, those who sin, and those who are 10 righteous [as living (and) being past finding out]. For Thou alone dost live immortal and past

4. the judgement of My might. Cf. lxxxiii. 7.

6. that place. See xiii. 1 (note).

method of the times. See xiv. 1 note.

are coming and tarry not. Heb. ii. 3. Cf. xlvi. 39.

THE FIFTH AND SIXTH SECTIONS. XXI-XLVI. The words 'The prayer of Baruch the son of Neriah' are found in the MS. The fifth Section ends with xxxv.

XXI. 1. Cedron. See v. 5.

2. that place. Probably Mount Zion. Cf. xx. 6; or else the temple, x. 5.

3. the Mighty One. This is the first time this title occurs. It is found in B¹, B², B³, but not in A¹, A².

4. by the word = בדבר, emended by Ryssel from בכל (= 'in its fullness'). This emendation is justified and necessitated owing to the parallel 'by the spirit.' The text, as I pointed out in my Commentary, is dependent on Ps. xxxiii. 6 'By the word of the Lord were the heavens made, and all the host of them by the breath of His mouth.'

hast called . . . that which did not yet exist. Cf. xlvi. 8. We seem to have here creation ex nihilo. Cf. Philo, de Iustitia; which contradicts his usual doctrine. For creation by the word, cf. Ps. cxlviii. 5; 2 Pet. iii. 5; Philo, de sacrif. Abel et Cain.

6. hosts that stand before Thee. Cf. xlvi. 10; 4 Ezra viii. 21^a.

countless holy beings. Cf. lix. 11; lvi. 14.

which Thou didst make from the beginning. In Jub. ii. 2 the angels are created on the first day (so Job xxxviii. 7 is interpreted). 2 En. xxix. 1 says the second day. And so Targ. Jer I. on Gen. i. 26.

†with indignation†. Cf. xlvi. 8. באכזר = 'indignation' seems corrupt for באכזר = 'reproof'.

7. Ps. cxv. 3, &c.

8. the drops of rain . . . by number. Cf. lix. 5; Sirach i. 2; 2 En. xlvii. 5 (note).

9. have passed away. Reading with Ryssel בא instead of בא = 'pass away'.

those who sin, and those who are righteous. The Syriac here and in xxiv. 2; xxi. 11, 12; lxii. 7 follows a Greek mistranslation of the original Hebrew verb צדק, which in this context meant 'to be righteous', i. e. δικαιος εἶναι, and not 'to be justified', δικαιωθῆναι, though the LXX rendering is usually the latter. The antithesis in our text is actually found in Job x. 15 and xxxv. 36, 37. Hence in all these passages I have emended the text. Ryssel has accepted this emendation in these five passages, but without acknowledgement.

The doctrine of justification in this Apocalypse differs from that taught in 4 Ezra. (1) In Baruch the law justifies (li. 3; lxvii. 6; lxxi. 7). In Ezra salvation is by works and faith (ix. 7; xiii. 23). (2) Baruch is absolutely sure of salvation (xiii. 3, &c.). Ezra assumes his future woe till assured otherwise in viii. 47-9, 51-4.

For further treatment see Commentary.

[as living . . . out], bracketed as a dittography of the opening clause of the next verse.

11 finding out, and knowest the number of mankind. And if in time many have sinned, yet others not a few have been righteous.

XXI. 12-18. Baruch's Depreciation of this Life.

12 Thou knowest where Thou preservest the end of those who have sinned, or the consummation of 13 those who have been righteous. For if there were this life only, which belongs to all men, nothing could be more bitter than this.

14 For of what profit is strength that turns to sickness,
Or fullness of food that turns to famine,
Or beauty that turns to ugliness.

15, 16 For the nature of man is always changeable. For what we were formerly now we no longer are,
17 and what we now are we shall not afterwards remain. For if a consummation had not been prepared 18 for all, in vain would have been their beginning. But regarding everything that comes from Thee, do Thou inform me, and regarding everything about which I ask Thee, do Thou enlighten me.

XXI. 19-25. Baruch prays to God to hasten the Judgement and fulfil His Promise.

19 How long will that which is corruptible remain, and how long will the time of mortals be prospered, and until what time will those who transgress in the world be polluted with much
20 wickedness? Command therefore in mercy and accomplish all that Thou saidst Thou wouldst
21 bring, that Thy might may be made known to those who think that Thy long-suffering is weakness. And show to those who know not, that everything that has befallen us and our city until now has been according to the long-suffering of Thy power, because on account of Thy name Thou hast called 22, 23 us a beloved people. Bring to an end therefore henceforth mortality. And reprove accordingly the angel of death, and let Thy glory appear, and let the might of Thy beauty be known, and let Sheol be sealed so that from this time forward it may not receive the dead, and let the treasuries of

10. knowest the number of mankind. Gen. xxiii. 4, 5.

11. not a few have been righteous. This optimism contrasts strongly with 4 Ezra's pessimism, e. g. viii. 3 'multi quidem creati sunt, pauci autem salvabuntur'. Cf. too viii. 2.

12-13. The balance of this life needs re-adjustment in another life.

13. Quoted from 1 Cor. xv. 19, or else both come from a common source. Life ever changes for the worse (verses 14, 15) and is mortal (16, 17, 22).

14. We have here a stanza of three lines, in each of which there is either a paronomasia or a rhyme. In the second line the text reads 'food of fullness'. On two grounds I have changed this into 'fullness of food'. First we have שבעת לחם in Ezek. xvi. 49, and next the rhyme requires it. The stanza runs thus:

מה יואיל חיל נהפך לחלי
או שבע מזון נהפך לחסרון
או יופי נהפך לרופי

Instead of לחסרון in the second line we might read לרזון with Ginzberg. As I have shown in my edition of this book, the third line of this stanza recurs in xlvi. 35. See lxxxiii. 11, 12.

19. How long will that which is corruptible remain? The final editors answer this question in xl. 3; B² answers it in xxiii. 7-xxiv. 1. The writers of this book (esp. the writer of B²) are impressed with the corruptibility of this present world, the olam hazzeh. It all belongs to the sphere of corruption. So too does the Messianic kingdom if it falls within the olam hazzeh, as in A¹, A², and A³. In A² it ends corruption, in A³ it ends corruption and begins incorruption (lxxiv. 2). See my Commentary, in loc.

transgress, or 'pass away', as in verse 9.

20. A prayer for the hastening of the final judgement.

21. The fall of Jerusalem was brought about in God's mercy to hasten the judgement.

that . . . has been. So I have emended וסלו (= 'and they have seen') into ויסלו. If the text is correct then it represents a Hebraism, the perfect with strong waw as a continuation of the imperative, and so = 'and let them see'.

22. Bring to an end. Text reads 'everything' = כל which I take to be a corruption of כלל. Schulthess and Ryssel, on the other hand, emend the Syriac כפל into כב = 'restrain', but the next verse supports the emendation in the text.

23. To hasten the final judgement the writer prays to God to end death, to let his glory appear, and the dead rise.

the angel of death. Cf. Rev. vi. 8. Prominent in later Jewish writings. See Testament of Abraham (ed. James).

be sealed. Cf. Isa. v. 14.

treasuries of souls. To these chambers only the righteous were admitted. After his death a righteous man's soul was permitted for seven days to behold the seven ways of the righteous, and a wicked man's the seven ways of the wicked. Then his soul entered these chambers, in Sheol (4 Ezra iv. 35, 41; vii. 101). They were guarded by angels, and were full of rest (1 En. c. 5; 4 Ezra vii. 95). At the judgement they were to restore the souls (2 Bar. xxi. 2, 3, xxx. 2; 4 Ezra vii. 32). There were also treasuries of righteous works (see xxiv. 1). Note that the souls of the wicked are not mentioned here.

24 souls restore those which are enclosed in them. For there have been many years like those that are desolate from the days of Abraham and Isaac and Jacob, and of all those who are like them, who sleep in the earth, on whose account Thou didst say that Thou hadst created the world. And now quickly show Thy glory, and do not defer what has been promised by Thee.' And (when) I had completed the words of this prayer I was greatly weakened.

XXII–XXIII. God's Reply to Baruch's Prayer: He will fulfil His Promise: Time needed for its Accomplishment: Things must be judged in the Light of their Consummation (XXII). Till all Souls are born the End cannot come (XXIII).

21 And it came to pass after these things that lo! the heavens were opened, and I saw, and power was given to me, and a voice was heard from on high, and it said unto me: 'Baruch, Baruch, why art thou troubled? He who travels by a road but does not complete it, or who departs by sea but does not arrive at the port, can he be comforted? Or he who promises to give a present to another, but does not fulfil it, is it not robbery? Or he who sows the earth, but does not reap its fruit in its season, does he not lose everything? Or he who plants a plant unless it grows till the time suitable to it, does he who planted it expect to receive fruit from it? Or a woman who has conceived, if she bring forth untimely, does she not assuredly slay her infant? Or he who builds a house, if he does not roof it and complete it, can it be called a house? Tell Me that first.'

1, 2 And I answered and said: 'Not so, O LORD, my Lord.' And He answered and said unto me: 'Why therefore art thou troubled about that which thou knowest not, and why art thou ill at ease about things in which thou art ignorant? For as thou hast not forgotten the people who now are and those who have passed away, so I remember those who are appointed to come. Because when Adam sinned and death was decreed against those who should be born, then the multitude of those who should be born was numbered, and for that number a place was prepared where the living might dwell and the dead might be guarded. Before therefore the number aforesaid is fulfilled, the creature will not live again [for My spirit is the creator of life], and Sheol will receive the dead. And again it is given to thee to hear what things are to come after these times. For truly My redemption has drawn nigh, and is not far distant as aforesaid.'

24. Read probably after verse 19.

25. what has been promised by Thee, i.e. 'the world which Thou hast promised them' (xiv. 13; cf. lxxxiii. 5).

26. (when). Inserted with Ryssel.

greatly weakened. Cf. xlvi. 25; Dan. x. 17, &c.

XXII. 1. the heavens were opened and I saw. Ezek. i. 1; Matt. iii. 16; John i. 52; Rev. iv. 1, &c.

a voice was heard, i.e. the bath-qôl. Cf. xiii. 1; Matt. iii. 17; Rev. iv. 1.

3–8. In xxii. 3, 5 God replies, 'What is work without the result, and how can it be judged? So this life requires the consummation for its explanation (xxii. 3, 8 answer xxi. 13–17). Again, God replies 'all in due time' to Baruch's plea for haste (xxii. 6, 7 answer xxi. 19, &c.). Moreover, God is bound by His promise (xxii. 4 answers xxi. 25).

7. does . . . assuredly slay. A Hebraism.

XXIII. 1, 2. The future and the end are known only to God, and they alone explain the present. All time is alike to God, and he keeps the due proportion. A reply to xxi.

3. Text reads والذين هم 'who are remembered, and those who are to come', which I have emended into والذين هم = 'who are appointed to come.'

4. when Adam sinned and death was decreed. There are two different views in this work regarding the physical effect of Adam's sin on mankind. (1) In B², i.e. in xvii. 3, xix. 8, xxiii. 4, Adam's sin brought in physical death, otherwise man would have been immortal. Cf. St. Paul. (2) In A³, i.e. liv. 15, lvi. 6, Adam is said to have brought in only premature death.

See my Commentary in loc.

the multitude of those who should be born was numbered. God alone knew this secret (xxi. 10, xlvi. 46). The number was unalterable, and had to be completed before the judgement could come (xxiii. 5; 4 Ezra iv. 33–43).

for that number a place was prepared. Cf. 2 Enoch xlix. 2, lviii. 5. In the Tractate Chagiga, fol. 15, col. 1, it is said a place is prepared for every man either in Paradise or hell.

the dead might be guarded, i.e. the righteous by angels (1 En. c. 5, &c.; the wicked by the guardians of the gates of Hades (2 En. xlii. 1).

5. The resurrection cannot come till mankind's secret number is fulfilled. In Rev. vi. 11; 4 Ezra iv. 36 the consummation comes with the fulfilling of the number of the saints, not of mankind. According to Jebam. 62^a the Messiah is not to come till 'all the souls have gone forth which are in the chambers' of souls. This chamber is here called גופא.

Before. I emend ל (= 'unless' or 'but') into ל.

7. Cf. lxxxii. 2; Luke xxi. 28; 1 Pet. iv. 7.

XXIV. The coming Judgement.

24¹ 'For behold! the days come and the books shall be opened in which are written the sins of all those who have sinned, and again also the treasures in which the righteousness of all those who have
² been righteous in creation is gathered. For it shall come to pass at that time that thou shalt see—and †the many that are with† thee—the long-suffering of the Most High, which has been
³ throughout all generations, who has been long-suffering towards all who are born, (alike) those who sin and (those who) are righteous.' And I answered and said: 'But, behold! O Lord, no one ⁴ knows the number of those things which have passed nor yet of those things which are to come. For I know indeed that which has befallen us, but what will happen to our enemies I know not, and when Thou wilt visit Thy works.'

XXV-XXVI. 1. Sign of the coming Judgement.

25¹ And He answered and said unto me: 'Thou too shalt be preserved till that time till that ² sign which the Most High will work for the inhabitants of the earth in the end of days. This ³ therefore shall be the sign. When a stupor shall seize the inhabitants of the earth, and they ⁴ shall fall into many tribulations, and again when they shall fall into great torments. And it will come to pass when they say in their thoughts by reason of their much tribulation: "The Mighty One doth no longer remember the earth"—yea, it will come to pass when they abandon hope, that the time will then awake.'

26¹ And I answered and said: 'Will that tribulation which is to be continue a long time, and will that necessity embrace many years?'

XXVII-XXX. 1. The Twelve Woes that are to come upon the Earth: the Messiah and the temporary Messianic Kingdom.

27¹ And He answered and said unto me: 'Into twelve parts is that time divided, and each one of ² them is reserved for that which is appointed for it. In the first part there shall be the begin-^{3, 4} ning of commotions. And in the second part (there shall be) slayings of the great ones. And in ^{5, 6} the third part the fall of many by death. And in the fourth part the sending of the sword. And XXIV. 1. the books shall be opened. Dan. vii. 10; 1 En. xc. 20; Rev. xx. 12; 4 Ezra vi. 20. Here the books record the sins of sinners only, as in 1 En. xc and probably Rev. (as cited). 4 Ezra vi. 10 has also 'another book of life'.

the treasures in which. Divine storehouses are a familiar idea in the O.T., e.g. of rain (Deut. xxviii. 12). Again, the idea of laying up spiritual things in store is found in the LXX, Prov. i. 18 θησαυρίζουσιν ἑαυτοῖς κακά (cf. Pss. Sol. ix. 9). One may lay up treasures of works or faith (4 Ezra vii. 77, vi. 5); treasures in heaven (Matt. vi. 19, 20); stores of wrath (Rom. ii. 5). אוצר and θησαυρός may mean the treasure itself, and the place where it is stored.

the righteousness of all, &c. The standard of righteousness was the Law. The legalistic wing of the Pharisees held it consisted first and mainly in fulfilling ceremonial observances. See, e.g. the Book of Jubilees. The prophetic wing, from whom emanated most of the Messianic Apocalypses, understood it primarily as the fulfilling of moral duties.

XXIV. 2-4. Probably followed originally on xx. See note on xiii-xxv.

†the many that are with† thee. See xiii. 5 (note). Read 'those like thee', i.e. the surviving righteous.

3-4. Baruch objects that no man knows when the end may come, and he knows only that Israel is in distress. What will the Gentiles suffer as the penalty (answered xiii. 3^b-12). When will they suffer it? (answered xxv).

4. us. Text reads 'me'.

XXV. Answers the question 'When wilt Thou visit Thy works'.

1. the inhabitants of the earth, always in a bad ethical sense in Baruch. See note on 1 Enoch xxxvii. 5 (also note in my Commentary on 2 Baruch).

3. stupor. Cf. lxxx. 2, and excessus mentis 4 Ezra xiii. 30.

4. At the end of the tribulation and torments the time of the judgement has come (cf. xiii. 8). This leaves no room for the Messianic kingdom in xxix, which precedes the judgement.

XXVI. Added by the final editor in order to introduce xxvii-xxx. 1; xxv was originally followed by xiv-xix.

XXVII-XXX. 1. A fragment of a Messiah Apocalypse, A¹. (1) After terrible tribulation over all the earth, imperilling even the elect, a glorious kingdom of joy and plenty was to be established under the Messiah, who afterwards was to return in glory to heaven. The resurrection was to follow. The outlook is thoroughly optimistic. (2) Palestine was to escape the prevailing woes, and since there is no mention of a restoration of Jerusalem or of the setting up of the New Jerusalem, Jerusalem must still have been standing (Contrast B¹ and 4 Ezra xiii. 36). Thus the events of A. D. 70 could not have happened as yet. (3) In B¹ and B² Jerusalem is destroyed and its people in exile. The law, too, is the centre of interest and expectation in B¹ and B², but the Messiah in A¹, which has no allusion to the law, as B¹ and B² have no allusion to the Messiah.

XXVII. 1. We have twelfefold divisions in A³ (i.e. liii-lxxiv) and 4 Ezra xiv. 11, 12, but there of world-history, here only of the tribulations preceding Messiah's coming. These travail-pains (ὠδίνες Matt. xxiv. 8) in the Gospels precede Christ's second coming, and not His first appearance.

5. the sword. Cf. Jer. xxv. 16, 27.

7 in the fifth part famine and the withholding of rain. And in the sixth part earthquakes and 9 terrors. [Wanting.] And in the eighth part a multitude of spectres and attacks of the Shedim.
 12 And in the ninth part the fall of fire. And in the tenth part rapine and much oppression. And in 13 the eleventh part wickedness and unchastity. And in the twelfth part confusion from the mingling 14 together of all those things aforesaid. For †these parts of that time are reserved, and † shall be 15 mingled one with another and minister one to another. For some shall leave out some of their own, and receive (in its stead) from others, and some complete their own and that of others, so that those may not understand who are upon the earth in those days that this is the consummation of the times.
 1, 2 'Nevertheless, whosoever understandeth shall then be wise. For the measure and reckoning of 3 that time are two parts a week of seven weeks.' And I answered and said: 'It is good for a man to 4 come and behold, but it is better that he should not come lest he fall. [But I will say this also: xxviii. 4-5
 5 Will he who is incorruptible despise those things which are corruptible, and whatever befalls in the = E case of those things which are corruptible, so that he might look only to those things which are not 6 corruptible?] But if, O Lord, those things shall assuredly come to pass which Thou hast foretold 7 to me, so do Thou show this also unto me if indeed I have found grace in Thy sight. Is it in one place or in one of the parts of the earth that those things are come to pass, or will the whole earth experience (them)?'
 1 And He answered and said unto me: 'Whatever will then befall (will befall) the whole earth;
 2 therefore all who live will experience (them). For at that time I will protect only those who are 3 found in those self-same days in this land. And it shall come to pass when all is accomplished that 4 was to come to pass in those parts, that the Messiah shall then begin to be revealed. And Behemoth shall be revealed from his place and Leviathan shall ascend from the sea, those two great monsters which I created on the fifth day of creation, and shall have kept until that time; and then they shall 5 be for food for all that are left. The earth also shall yield its fruit ten thousandfold and on each (?)

6, 7. famine . . . earthquakes, as signs of the end. Cf. lxx, 8; Matt. xxiv. 7, &c.

9. spectres. Or 'portents'. Cf. 4 Ezra vi. 21.

10. the fall of fire. Cf. lxx. 8; 4 Ezra v. 8.

14. As Ryssel has observed, this is corrupt. By reading $\text{oo}\Delta$, instead of oo , and omitting the following o we arrive at the following: 'these parts which till that time had been reserved (?) shall (then) be mingled', &c.

15. leave out. Text reads ولا يترك = 'leave over'. But the context requires the sense of 'omitting', 'leaving out'. The error can be explained, if we suppose that παρλείψουσι, which has both the above meanings, stood before the translator and that he followed the wrong one here.

XXVIII. 1. Cf. Dan. xii. 10: 'the wise shall understand'.

2. Interpretation seems impossible.

3. The difficulty of faithfulness during the woes (cf. xli. 1, lxxv. 5; 4 Ezra xiii. 16-20; Matt. xxiv. 22) and the blessings which await those who endure.

4-5. These verses break the connexion of thought, and no account is taken of them in the context. An answer is given to the question in xliii. 2.

XXIX. 2. I will protect, &c. Here God protects His people who are found in the Holy Land, whereas in A² the Messiah does so (xl. 2), and in A³ the Holy Land itself (lxx. 1). In B² it is the law that protects the faithful, wherever they dwell (xxxii. 1).

found . . . in this land. Cf. last note, and 4 Ezra xiii. 48, 49. A special blessing attached to residence in Palestine. It alone was to escape the woes that should befall all the earth besides. But this thought is found only in the sections of this book written prior to A. D. 70. It first appears in Joel ii. 32 in Apocalyptic literature, though it was before for a time, in the eighth century B. C., the belief of the Jews. For the privileges attached to residence in Palestine see my Commentary in loc.

3. The Messiah's rôle here is passive. Cf. 1 En. xc. 37, 38; 4 Ezra vii. 28, 29. Contrast A² and A³ (e. g. xl) where the Messiah fights, destroys His enemies, and sets up His kingdom.

The phrase 'begin to be revealed' may be corrected to 'the principate of the Messiah will be revealed' (xxxix. 7) or 'Messiah the prince shall be revealed' (Dan. ix. 25).

Whence will Messiah be revealed? Here, and in xxx. 1, it seems from heaven; elsewhere, perhaps, from some place on earth. Cf. John vii. 27: 'When the Christ cometh, no man knoweth whence he is.' Cf., too, 4 Ezra vii. 28, xiii. 32. The Messiah may be already born and yet not know his calling till Elijah comes and anoints him, in Justin's Dial. c. Tryph. 8.

The Talmud states that the Messiah was born at Bethlehem on the day of the destruction of the temple, was named Menahem, and afterwards suddenly carried away by a storm (Jer. Berachoth, p. 5).

4. And Behemoth shall be revealed, &c. For the full form of this myth see 4 Ezra vi. 49-52. The diction is so similar that both must quote from the same source—a lost short hexaemeron, like that in 4 Ezra vi. 38-54. See my Commentary in loc.

Behemoth . . . and Leviathan. See 1 En. lx. 7-9, 24 notes; Targ. Jon. on Gen. i. 21 'And God created great beasts Leviathan and his wife which were prepared for the day of consolation'. Also Targum on Ps. l. 10.

all that are left. An indefinite statement; quibus vis in 4 Ezra vi. 52.

5. We have here another fragment of an old Apocalypse, of which we find a version in Irenaeus, v. 33. Papias is there said to ascribe it to our Lord. Irenaeus preserves a longer and fuller form than our text, and all seeds and fruit-trees share in the miraculous fruitfulness in his quotation. 1 En. x. 19 gives a still more fragmentary quotation.

We have, curiously, three diets provided in our syncretistic text for the members of the Messianic kingdom. In vine there shall be a thousand branches, and each branch shall produce a thousand clusters, and each cluster produce a thousand grapes, and each grape produce a cor of wine. And those who have hungered shall rejoice: moreover, also, they shall behold marvels every day. For winds shall go forth from before Me to bring every morning the fragrance of aromatic fruits, and at the close of the day clouds distilling the dew of health. And it shall come to pass at that self-same time that the treasury of manna shall again descend from on high, and they will eat of it in those years, because these are they who have come to the consummation of time.

30 1 'And it shall come to pass after these things, when the time of the advent of the Messiah is fulfilled, that He shall return in glory.

XXX. 2-5. The Resurrection.

2 Then all who have fallen asleep in hope of Him shall rise again. And it shall come to pass at that time that the treasuries will be opened in which is preserved the number of the souls of the righteous, and they shall come forth, and a multitude of souls shall be seen together in one assemblage of one thought, and the first shall rejoice and the last shall not be grieved. For they know that the time has come of which it is said, that it is the consummation of the times. 4 But the souls of the wicked, when they behold all these things, shall then waste away the more. 5 For they shall know that their torment has come and their perdition has arrived.

XXXI-XXXIII. Baruch exhorts the People to prepare themselves for worse Evils.

31 1 And it came to pass after these things that I went to the people and said unto them: 'Assemble unto me all your elders and I will speak words unto them.' And they all assembled in the valley of the Cedron. And I answered and said unto them:

'Hear, O Israel, and I will speak to thee,
And give ear, O seed of Jacob, and I will instruct thee.

xxix. 4 flesh, in verse 5 vegetable, in verse 8 heavenly food, i. e. manna. The second is a return to Adam's food in Paradise.

As to the ten thousand-fold yield of corn and wine Dr. Rendel Harris gives a probable explanation in a misreading of $\text{כ}^{\text{ל}}$ = 'plenty' in the blessing of Isaac (Gen. xxvii. 28) as $\text{כ}^{\text{ב}}$ = 10,000.

each branch, &c. For 'each' the Syriac gives 'one' three times over, following the idiom in the Hebrew original. a cor, about 120 gallons.

6. rejoice. Cf. 4 Ezra vii. 28, xii. 34.

behold marvels. Cf. 4 Ezra vii. 27, xiii. 50; Matt. xi. 4-6; John vii. 31.

8. the treasury of manna shall again descend. In Sibyll. Or. vii. 149 manna is to be the food of the members of the Messianic kingdom. Cf. Rev. ii. 17 'hidden manna'.

consummation of time, i. e. the Messianic age. Cf. xxvii. 15. In xxx. 3 the phrase has a different meaning, but there we have the work of B².

XXX. 1. when the time of the advent of the Messiah is fulfilled. This seems to mean that after His reign the Messiah will return in glory to heaven. 'Advent' may be rendered 'presence', i. e. visible reign on earth.

return in glory, back to heaven, where He was before His revealing on earth. For His pre-existence see 1 Enoch xlvi. 1, 2, xlvi. 3 (note), &c. In 4 Ezra vii. 29, 30 the Messiah and the righteous die at the close of the Messianic kingdom.

Then all who have fallen asleep . . . shall rise again. The resurrection here follows immediately on the Messiah's return to heaven: but on his death in 4 Ezra vii. 29, 30. The words 'of Him' spoil the sense, and the parallelism to LXX of Ps. xvi. 9 $\epsilon\pi' \epsilon\lambda\pi\acute{\iota}\delta\iota$.

fallen asleep. We are not told the fate of the living, as A¹ is fragmentary.

2. Here we return to B², and resume the text that ended at xxiv. 1.

3. they know. Text reads 'he knows'.

the consummation of the times. Here = the final judgement. Contrast xxix. 8.

4. waste away. Cf. li. 5; 4 Ezra vii. 87.

XXXI-XXXV. Baruch assembles and addresses the elders of the people. He exhorts them not to forget Zion and its anguish; the end of all that is corruptible is coming; the law, if they hold fast to it, will protect them when the whole creation is shaken; they are to grieve for the coming woe more than for the past, when the creation shall be renewed. Thereupon Baruch sends away the people, and when they remonstrate against his forsaking them, he rejoins that he is only going to the Holy Place to seek light from God. There he laments over Zion. (A fast of seven days should follow here.)

The subject of Baruch's address is to be found in each instance in the preceding revelation (as in v. 5, x. 4), but it will be observed that this address, xxxi. 3-xxxii. 6, is out of relation to all that has gone before. The gist of the address is (a) the end of corruption is at hand; (b) the law will save in the coming crisis; (c) the present creation must give place to a new and incorruptible creation. Now these questions are discussed later in the dialogues between Baruch and God. Thus, for (a) see xlii. 6-8; for (b) see xlvi. 22-4, 38-41; for (c) see xlvi. 49; lii. 3, 8-9, 16. Thus originally xxxi-xxxv followed lii. Moreover, xlv. 8-15 really concludes Baruch's address in xxxi, xxxii; i. e. it follows xxxii. 6. Thus xlviii-lii originally preceded xxxi-xxxv.

XXXI. 1. all your elders. See xlv. 1, note.

4 Forget not Zion,
But hold in remembrance the anguish of Jerusalem.

5 For lo! the days come,
When everything that is shall become the prey of corruption
And be as though it had not been.

3 1 'But as for you, if ye prepare your hearts, so as to sow in them the fruits of the law, it shall pro-
2 tect you in that time in which the Mighty One is to shake the whole creation. [Because after a 3 little time the building of Zion will be shaken in order that it may be built again. But that 4 building will not remain, but will again after a time be rooted out, and will remain desolate until 5 the time. And afterwards it must be renewed in glory, and perfected for evermore.] Therefore 6 we should not be distressed so much over the evil which has now come as over that which is 7 still to be. For there will be a greater trial than these two tribulations when the Mighty One will 8 renew His creation. And now do not draw near to me for a few days, nor seek me till I come to 9 you.' And it came to pass when I had spoken to them all these words, that I, Baruch, went my way, and when the people saw me setting out, they lifted up their voice and lamented and said: 'Whither departest thou from us, Baruch, and forsakest us as a father who forsakes his orphan children, and departs from them?'

1 'Are these the commands which thy companion, Jeremiah the prophet, commanded thee, and 2 said unto thee: "Look to this people till I go and make ready the rest of the brethren †in† Babylon, 3 against whom has gone forth the sentence that they should be led into captivity"? And now if thou also forsakest us, it were good for us all to die before thee, and then that thou shouldst withdraw from us.'

XXXIV-XXXV. Lament of Baruch.

4 And I answered and said unto the people: 'Far be it from me to forsake you or to withdraw from you, but I will only go unto the Holy of Holies to inquire of the Mighty One concerning you and concerning Zion, if in some respect I should receive more illumination: and after these things
I will return to you.'

5 1 And I, Baruch, went to the holy place, and sat down upon the ruins and wept, and said:

2 'O that mine eyes were springs,
And mine eyelids a fount of tears.

3 For how shall I lament for Zion,
And how shall I mourn for Jerusalem?

5. shall become the prey of, lit. 'shall be taken to'. See xxi. 19, note.

XXXII. 1. prepare your hearts. An O.T. phrase, and a favourite expression in B¹ and B²; cf. xlvi. 5, lii. 7, &c.
the fruits of the law, i. e. good works. Cf. 4 Ezra iii. 20, ix. 32.

it shall protect. Cf. xlvi. 22-4, xlv. 13, 14.

shake the whole creation, i. e. to prepare for new heavens and a new earth. The thought comes originally from Haggai ii. 6; cf. Heb. xii. 26.

2-4. Here it is said that after a little time Zion will be destroyed. But according to xx. 1-2, xxxi. 4, xxxii. 5, xxxiii.
2-3, xxxv. 1 Jerusalem is already overthrown. These verses also break the connexion of thought between xxxii. 1 and xxxii. 5. The people are to prepare themselves by obedience to the law for the end of all things, xxxii. 1. Compared with this the evils attendant on the fall of Jerusalem are slight. These three verses are closely akin to Tobit xiv. 4-5.
Cf. Ber. R. 2 and Pesikta 145 for a similar hope. These verses are an intrusion here.

2. Zion will be shaken. Apparently 'after a little time' = by Nebuchadnezzar in 588 B. C.

be built again, i. e. by Ezra and Nehemiah.

3. 'again . . . be rooted out, i. e. by the Romans in A. D. 70.

4. On the heavenly Jerusalem, see iv. 3, note.

5. be distressed. I have here followed Bensly's emendation of the Syriac, which has the active form instead of passive.

the evil which has now come = Jerusalem's fall.

6. two tribulations, i. e. those accompanying the destruction of Jerusalem and the renewal of creation. Perhaps 'than these two tribulations' is an addition; the text without them would run 'For the trial will be great when', &c.

renew His creation, i. e. replace the corruptible by the incorruptible world. See further li and lii. It was a current expectation after the captivity (cf. Isa. lxxv. 17; 1 En. xlv. 4, note; 4 Ezra vii. 75; Matt. xix. 28; 2 Pet. iii.
13; Rev. xxi. 1).

7. This verse was originally preceded by xlv. 8-15.

for a few days, i. e. for the seven days' fast, omitted in xxxv. Cf. 4 Ezra v. 18, 19.

XXXIII. 1. 2. See x. 2, note. According to B¹ Jeremiah does not seem to have gone to Babylon. On 'make ready' see note on x. 2. Here the 'in' is decidedly corrupt. See note on x. 2.

3. Cf. 4 Ezra xii. 44, 48.

XXXIV. Holy of Holies. Cf. x. 5, xxxv. 1; the holy place, xxxv. 4, where the altar stood.

XXXV. 2. From Jer. ix. 1; cf. 1 En. xc. 1.

- 4 Because in that place where I am now prostrate,
Of old the high priest offered holy sacrifices,
And placed thereon an incense of fragrant odours.
- 5 But now our glorying has been made into dust,
And the desire of our soul into sand.'

XXXVI-XXXVII. The Vision of the Forest, the Vine, the Fountain and the Cedar.

- 36 1, 2 And when I had said these things I fell asleep there, and I saw a vision in the night. And lo! xxx a forest of trees planted on the plain, and lofty and rugged rocky mountains surrounded it, and that = 3 forest occupied much space. And lo! over against it arose a vine, and from under it there went forth 4 a fountain peacefully. Now that fountain came to the forest and was (stirred) into great waves, and those waves submerged that forest, and suddenly they rooted out the greater part of that forest, and 5 overthrew all the mountains which were round about it. And the height of the forest began to be made low, and the top of the mountains was made low and that fountain prevailed greatly, so that it 6 left nothing of that great forest save one cedar only. Also when it had cast it down and had destroyed and rooted out the greater part of that forest, so that nothing was left of it, nor could its place be recognized, then that vine began to come with the fountain in peace and great tranquillity, and it came to a place which was not far from that cedar, and they brought the cedar which had 7 been cast down to it. And I beheld and lo! that vine opened its mouth and spake and said to that cedar: 'Art thou not that cedar which was left of the forest of wickedness, and by whose means 8 wickedness persisted, and was wrought all those years, and goodness never. And thou didst keep conquering that which was not thine, and to that which was thine thou didst never show compassion, and thou didst keep extending thy power over those who were far from thee, and those who drew 9, 10 nigh thee thou didst hold fast in the toils of thy wickedness, and thou didst uplift thyself always as one that could not be rooted out! But now thy time has sped and thine hour is come. Do thou also therefore depart, O cedar, after the forest, which departed before thee, and become dust with it, 11 and let your ashes be mingled together. And now recline in anguish and rest in torment till thy last time come, in which thou wilt come again, and be tormented still more.'
- 37 And after these things I saw that cedar burning, and the vine growing, itself and all around it, the plain full of unfading flowers. And I indeed awoke and arose.

XXXVIII-XL. Interpretation of the Vision.

- 38 1 And I prayed and said: 'O LORD, my Lord, Thou dost always enlighten those who are led by 2, 3 understanding. Thy law is life, and Thy wisdom is right guidance. Make known to me therefore 4 the interpretation of this vision. For Thou knowest that my soul hath always walked in Thy law, and from my (earliest) days I departed not from Thy wisdom.'

THE SIXTH SECTION. XXXVI-XLVI. We must insert a seven days' fast after xxxv to keep the symmetry of the book as constructed by the final editor. The structure of this section is then as follows: first, the omitted fast, then a Messiah vision and its interpretation (xxxvi-xl) with disclosures as to apostates and proselytes (xli. 2-xlii. 8), and an announcement as to Baruch's coming death (xlili), and finally Baruch's address to the people (xliv-xlvi). This section is very composite. xxxvi-xl is a Messiah Apocalypse earlier than A.D. 70; xliii-xliv. 7, xlv-xlvi. 6 belongs to B¹; the rest mainly to B².

XXXVI-XL. The Second Messiah Apocalypse, A².

(a) Date of A²—before A. D. 70. Unlike B¹ and B² it has no mention of the Roman destruction of Jerusalem; nor has it a restoration of the city for the Messiah's rule, or a return of the dispersion. A² is optimistic as regards this world, unlike B²; and centres its hope on the Messiah, not the law, unlike B¹ and B².

(b) Relation of A² to A¹. In A¹ the Messiah has a passive rôle; here an active one, destroying the wicked and vindicating Israel.

XXXVI. 1. These visions are only found in A² and A³. Elsewhere we have direct revelations.

2. This vision is obviously founded in some respects on Ezek. xvii.

8. rooted out. This word עקר is constantly used in the Talmud with reference to the future fate of Rome.

11. in anguish. See xxx. 5, where the intermediate state involves some degree of happiness or pain.

XXXVII. unfading flowers. Cf. Apoc. Pet.

XXXVIII. 1. God Himself interprets this vision for Baruch: but Ramiel the vision in A³ (see lv. 3).

2. Thy law is life. Cf. xlv. 2; Sir. xlv. 5. Hillel (Aboth. ii. 7): 'The more law the more life . . . he who gains knowledge of the law gains life in the world to come.' Also see John vii. 49.

Thy wisdom is right guidance. This is based on the Massoretic text of Eccles. x. 10, where the versions vary.

4. from my (earliest) days. This is the Hebrew idiom מִיָּמַי, as in 1 Kings i. 6.

9₁ And He answered and said unto me: 'Baruch, this is the interpretation of the vision which thou 2 hast seen. As thou hast seen the great forest which lofty and rugged mountains surrounded, this is 3 the word. Behold! the days come, and this kingdom will be destroyed which once destroyed Zion, 4 and it will be subjected to that which comes after it. Moreover, that also again after a time will be 5 destroyed, and another, a third, will arise, and that also will have dominion for its time, and will be 6 destroyed. And after these things a fourth kingdom will arise, whose power will be harsh and evil
 7 far beyond those which were before it, and it will rule many times as the forests on the plain, and it
 8 will hold fast for times, and will exalt itself more than the cedars of Lebanon. And by it the truth will be hidden, and all those who are polluted with iniquity will flee to it, as evil beasts flee and creep into the forest. And it will come to pass when the time of its consummation that it should fall has approached, then the principate of My Messiah will be revealed, which is like the fountain and the vine, and when it is revealed it will root out the multitude of its host. And as touching that which thou hast seen, the lofty cedar, which was left of that forest, and the fact, that the vine spoke those words with it which thou didst hear, this is the word.

10₁ 'The last leader of that time will be left alive, when the multitude of his hosts will be put to the sword, and he will be bound, and they will take him up to Mount Zion, and My Messiah will convict 2 him of all his impieties, and will gather and set before him all the works of his hosts. And afterwards he will put him to death, and protect the rest of My people which shall be found in the place which 3 I have chosen. And his principate will stand for ever, until the world of corruption is at an end,
 4 and until the times aforesaid are fulfilled. This is thy vision, and this is its interpretation.'

XLI—XLII. The Destiny of the Apostates and of the Proselytes.

11₁ And I answered and said: 'For whom and for how many shall these things be? or who will be xli-xlii
 2 worthy to live at that time? For I will speak before thee everything that I think, and I will ask of = B²
 3 Thee regarding those things which I meditate. For lo! I see many of Thy people who have with-4 drawn from Thy covenant, and cast from them the yoke of Thy law. But others again I have seen 5 who have forsaken their vanity, and fled for refuge beneath Thy wings. What therefore will be to 6 them? or how will the last time receive them? Or perhaps the time of these will assuredly be weighed, and as the beam inclines will they be judged accordingly?'

1, 2 And He answered and said unto me: 'These things also will I show unto thee. As for what thou didst say—"To whom will these things be, and how many (will they be)?"—to those who have believed there shall be the good which was spoken of aforesaid, and to those who despise there shall 3 be the contrary of these things. And as for what thou didst say regarding those who have drawn XXXIX. 3-5. Of the four world-empires here mentioned undoubtedly the first is Babylon (ver. 3), and the fourth Rome (5-7; xxxvi. 5-10). The second and third are probably Persia and the Diadochi. The fourfold division of world-empires is due to Dan. vii, where the fourth kingdom is decidedly different, as 4 Ezra xii. 11-12 admits.

6. the truth will be hidden. Cf. 4 Ezra v. 1, where the same statement is made about Rome.

7. the principate of My Messiah. For אֲרֵמִי = 'beginning', read אֲרֵמִיָּה = 'principate', as in xl. 3, lxxv. 8. See xxix. 3, note.

XL. 1. Who is this last leader? Probably Pompey, as 'his impieties' suggests (cf. Pss. Sol. ii. 24-35).

The Talmud says a single leader, called Armilus, was to unite in himself all hatred and hostility against God's people. See Weber, 365, 366.

My Messiah. In A¹ (i. e. xxvii-xxx. 1) God Himself protects Israel and destroys their enemies, and the Messiah only appears after this (xxix. 3). Here the Messiah takes the active part.

convict of . . . impieties. So Ezra xii. 32; xiii. 37.

2. protect the rest, &c. See xxix. 2, note.

3. for ever, until . . ., or 'for the age'. Cf. lxxiii. 1. The Messianic kingdom belongs to the olam hazzeḥ (see xxi. 19, note).

XLI, XLII. These two chapters belong to B², and originally followed xxx. As in xx, the times are hastened (xlii. 6) in order to usher in the end, the resurrection, and the life of incorruption. The chief topics in these chapters are: (1) the ultimate destiny of the apostates; (2) that of the proselytes.

XLI. 1. Baruch's question goes back to xxx. 2-5; which it originally preceded in B². For the question cf. lxxv. 5.

3. These apostates may be Christians.

yoke of Thy law. 'Yoke' means 'obligation'. Cf. Sirach li. 26. Cf. for this phrase Pss. Sol. vii. 8, xvii. 32; Acts xv. 10; Gal. v. 1. Contrast Matt. vi. 29, 30.

4. The proselytes, i. e. the גֵּרִים. Cf. 4 Ezra vii. 133.

their vanity, i. e. idols (Deut. xxxii. 21).

fled for refuge beneath Thy wings. The writer follows the Hebrew text of Ps. xxxvi. 8, as against the LXX and Syriac. The phrase is used of a proselyte in Ruth ii. 12. Cf. Shabbath 31^a.

5. the last time, described in xxx. 2-5.

XLII. 2. those who have believed. See liv. 5, note; also xxi. 9, note.

4 near and those who have withdrawn this is the word. As for those who were before subject, and afterwards withdrew and mingled themselves with the seed of mingled peoples, the time of these was
 5 the former, and was accounted as something exalted. And as for those who before knew not but afterwards knew life, and mingled (only) with the seed of the people which had separated itself, the 6 time of these (is) the latter, and is accounted as something exalted. And time shall succeed to time and season to season, and one shall receive from another, and then with a view to the consummation shall everything be compared according to the measure of the times and the hours of the seasons.
 7, 8 For corruption shall take those that belong to it, and life those that belong to it. And the dust shall be called, and there shall be said to it: "Give back that which is not thine, and raise up all that thou hast kept until its time".

XLIII. Baruch told of his Death and bidden to give his last Commands to the People.

43₁ 'But, do thou, Baruch, direct thy heart to that which has been said to thee,
 And understand those things which have been shown to thee;
 For there are many eternal consolations for thee.
 2 For thou shalt depart from this place,
 And thou shalt pass from the regions which are now seen by thee,
 And thou shalt forget whatever is corruptible,
 And shalt not again recall those things which happen among mortals.
 3 Go therefore and command thy people, and come to this place, and afterwards fast seven days, and then I will come to thee and speak with thee.'

xlii div.
7=

XLIV. 1-8, XLV-XLVI. Baruch tells the Elders of his impending Death, but encourages them to expect the Consolation of Zion.

44₁ And I, Baruch, went from thence, and came to my people, and I called my first-born son and [the Gedaliahs] my friends, and seven of the elders of the people, and I said unto them:
 'Behold, I go unto my fathers
 According to the way of all the earth.'

4. The apostates have only this world.
mingled peoples. Jer. xxv. 20, 24.

5. of the people. The Syriac reads 'peoples', which does not suit Israel, though it does suit the proselytes.
separated itself, i. e. the legalistic Israel by the 'fence' of the law (cf. xlvi. 23). The 'separatists' are the Pharisees.

the latter. So Kabisch emends. The text reads 'the former'. Thus the proselytes inherit the world to come.

6. Cf. 4 Ezra iv. 37.

8. Give back, &c. Cf. l. 2. The earth gives back the body; Sheol the soul, in virtue of its relation to which the body is conceived as persisting, and even sensitive. Job xiv. 22.

XLIII-XLVI. These chapters belong to B¹, with the exception of xlv. 8-15. They do not belong to B², for in xliii. 2, xlv. 2, lxxviii. 5, lxxxiv. 1, Baruch is to die an ordinary death and forget all the concerns of mortals, whereas in B² he is to be preserved till the last day to testify against the Gentile oppressors of Israel, xliii. 3, xxv. 1, xlvi. 30. Again the people are assured of good tidings in store for them xlv. 6, as in lxxvii. 12, and bidden to look for the restoration of Zion (lxxx. 1, 4 taken with i. 4, vi. 9), whereas in B² there is no consolation of any kind for them in this world.

XLIV. 8-15 belongs to B²; for the present world is hopeless—defiled with evil xlv. 9, and with its corruption about to pass away xlv. 8; it is, moreover, to be given over to oblivion xlv. 9—a statement in flat contradiction with iv. 1. Accordingly all hope is to be directed to the world to come xlv. 15, the promised inheritance xlv. 13, the world of incorruption xlv. 12. The original position of xlv. 8-15 was after xxxii. 6. These verses presuppose xlvi. 1-3, just as xxxi-xxxv presuppose them; see note on xxxi-xxxv.

XLIII. 1. Refers probably to some lost passage of B¹.

2. thou shalt depart. The word and the context indicate ordinary death here. Cf. xlv. 2. whatever is corruptible. Cf. xxi. 19, note.

3. command thy people, i. e. impart to them the disclosures just made to Baruch. As Baruch has just been told of his coming death, the word 'command' (צוה) is here used in the technical Hebrew sense of giving one's last command.
this place. This conflicts with xlvii. 1—to Hebron.

XLIV. 1. son. Elsewhere only in xlv. 1.

[the Gedaliahs]. Possibly this phrase belongs to the text, but has originated in a corrupt transliteration of הגְּדַלְיָהוּ 'the great men'.

seven of the elders. Seven only, as the city is now destroyed. In v. 5, before its fall, he summons them all.
 2. Contrast xliii. 3 (see note).

3 But withdraw ye not from the way of the law,
But guard and admonish the people which remain,
Lest they withdraw from the commandments of the Mighty One.

4 For ye see that He whom we serve is just,
And our Creator is no respecter of persons.

5 And see ye what hath befallen Zion,
And what hath happened to Jerusalem.

6 For the judgement of the Mighty One shall (thereby) be made known,
And His ways, which, though past finding out, are right.

7 For if ye endure and persevere in His fear,
And do not forget His law,
The times shall change over you for good,
And ye shall see the consolation of Zion.

8, 9 Because whatever is now is nothing,
But that which shall be is very great.
For everything that is corruptible shall pass away,
And everything that dies shall depart,
And all the present time shall be forgotten,
Nor shall there be any remembrance of the present time, which is defiled with evils.

xliv. 8-15
= B²

10 For that which runs now runs unto vanity,
And that which prospers shall quickly fall and be humiliated.

11 For that which is to be shall be the object of desire,
And for that which comes afterwards shall we hope;
For it is a time that passes not away,

12 And the hour comes which abides for ever.

And the new world (comes) which does not turn to corruption those who depart to its blessedness,
And has no mercy on those who depart to torment,
And leads not to perdition those who live in it.

13 For these are they who shall inherit that time which has been spoken of,
And theirs is the inheritance of the promised time.

14 These are they who have acquired for themselves treasures of wisdom,
And with them are found stores of understanding,
And from mercy have they not withdrawn,
And the truth of the law have they preserved.

15 For to them shall be given the world to come,
But the dwelling of the rest who are many shall be in the fire.'

15 2 'Do ye therefore so far as ye are able instruct the people, for that labour is ours. For if ye teach them, ye will quicken them.' xlv-xlvi. 6 = B¹

46 1 And my son and the elders of the people answered and said unto me: 'Has the Mighty One humiliated us to such a degree
As to take thee from us quickly?

3. commandments of the Mighty One. Cf. xlviii. 38.

5. These words vividly recall vi-viii. See note on xliii-xlvi above.

6. which, though . . . right. The text = 'which are past finding out and right'.

7. the consolation of Zion, i. e. its restoration. Cf. lxxxii. 1, 4; for the temple was to be rebuilt, according to B¹. (Cf. vi. 9.)

8-15. These verses should be read after xxxii. 6. See note on xliii-xlvi above.

9. corruptible. Cf. xxi. 19, note.

12. the new world. Cf. the new creation (xxxii. 6), and li. 3; lii. 9, 16.

who depart to its blessedness. The text here has 'on its beginning', which gives no parallel to 'to torment' in the next clause, and no sense in itself. A corruption in the original Hebrew easily explains the difficulty and restores the sense, בראשו for באשרו. Ryssel reproduces this emendation without acknowledgement.

14. This verse presupposes li. 3, 7. The treasures in xxiv. 1 are those of righteousness.

15. in the fire. Cf. xlviii. 39, 43, lix. 2, lxiv. 7, lxxxv. 13.

XLV. B¹ reappears here, and the connexion broken at xlv. 7 is resumed.

2. if ye teach, &c. Cf. Ps. cxix. 50, 93. This is the true scribe's work. Cf. xxxviii. 2, xlv. 7.

- 2 And truly we shall be in darkness,
And there shall be no light to the people who are left.
- 3 For where again shall we seek the law,
Or who will distinguish for us between death and life?’
- 4 And I said unto them: ‘The throne of the Mighty One I cannot resist;
Nevertheless, there shall not be wanting to Israel a wise man
Nor a son of the law to the race of Jacob.
- 5 But only prepare ye your hearts, that ye may obey the law,
And be subject to those who in fear are wise and understanding;
And prepare your souls that ye may not depart from them.
- 6 For if ye do these things,
Good tidings shall come unto you.

[Which I before told you of; nor shall ye fall into the torment, of which I testified to you before.’ xlvii. 1-7 7 But with regard to the word that I was to be taken I did not make (it) known to them or to my son.] =

- 47 1 And when I had gone forth and dismissed them, I went thence and said unto them: ‘Behold! xlvii. ii.
2 I go to Hebron: for thither the Mighty One hath sent me.’ And I came to that place where the word had been spoken unto me, and I sat there, and fasted seven days.

XLVIII. 1-47. PRAYER OF BARUCH.

- 48 1 And it came to pass after the seventh day, that I prayed before the Mighty One and said
2 ‘O my Lord, Thou summonest the advent of the times,
And they stand before Thee;
Thou causest the power of the ages to pass away,
And they do not resist Thee;
Thou arrangest the method of the seasons,
And they obey Thee.
- 3 Thou alone knowest the duration of the generations,
And Thou revealest not Thy mysteries to many.
- 4 Thou makest known the multitude of the fire,
And Thou weighest the lightness of the wind.
- 5 Thou explorest the limit of the heights,
And Thou scrutinizest the depths of the darkness.

XLVI. 4. a son of the law = בַּר מִצְוָה, i. e. one bound to observe the Law. An answer to the question put in iii. 6^b. The expression seems to occur here first in existing literature. The verse means: There never should be lacking wise teachers and obedient servants of the Law. The expression has nothing to do with בַּר מִכִּלְאֵן as Ryssel suggests.

5. be subject. Obedience to the Rabbis is here enforced.

6^c-7. This addition was made by the final editor to adapt the fragment of B¹ just given to its new context. Contrast xlvii. 1.

6^c. the torment. This refers to xlv. 12, 15.

7. I was to be taken. Cf. xiii. 3, note, xlviii. 30. The idea of the ascension into heaven of great heroes in Jewish history was a familiar one. See Commentary in loc. Also N.T. (Mark xvi. 19; Acts i. 2, 11, 22; 1 Tim. iii. 16).

THE SEVENTH SECTION. XLVII-LXXVII. First we have Baruch's fast of seven days, followed by his prayer (xlvii. 2-xlviii. 24). Then in the dialogue ensuing various revelations are made to Baruch touching the coming woes and the judgement (xlviii. 26-41), and the resurrection (1-lii). There follows a Messiah Apocalypse (liii-lxxiv = A³). In lxxvi Baruch is told of his coming translation, and in lxxvii he addresses the people.

This section is composite; xlviii-lii is derived from B²; liii-lxxiv from A³; lxxv-lxxvi from B²; and lxxvii from B¹.

XLVII. 1. Why this journey to Hebron? Baruch has received no such command in our text. This verse is probably original to B¹ or B²; it seems, moreover, corrupt. After dismissing the people, Baruch addresses them! The ‘gone forth’ and ‘went thence’ possibly refer to ‘the cavern in the earth’ in xxi. 1. As chapters xxi-xxiv. 1, xxx. 2-5, xli, xlii belong to B², and in some sense form a whole, they may be connected with the cavern as their scene. If so, xlvii. 1 belongs to B².

2. Conflicts with verse 1, and is due, like xliii. 3, to the final editor.

- 6 Thou carest for the number which pass away that they may be preserved,
And Thou preparest an abode for those that are to be.
- 7 Thou rememberest the beginning which Thou hast made,
And the destruction that is to be Thou forgettest not.
- 8 With nods of fear and †indignation† Thou commandest the flames,
And they change into spirits,
And with a word Thou quickenest that which was not,
And with mighty power Thou holdest that which has not yet come.
- 9 Thou instructest created things in the understanding of Thee,
And Thou makest wise the spheres so as to minister in their orders.
- 10 Armies innumerable stand before Thee
And minister in their orders quietly at Thy nod.
- 11 Hear Thy servant
And give ear to my petition.
- 12 For in a little time are we born,
And in a little time do we return.
- 13 But with Thee hours are as a time,
And days as generations.
- 14 Be not therefore wroth with man; for he is nothing 15 And take not account of our works; For what are we?
For lo! by Thy gift do we come into the world,
And we depart not of our own will.
- 16 For we said not to our parents, "Beget us," Nor did we send to Sheol and say, "Receive us."
- 17 What therefore is our strength that we should bear Thy wrath,
Or what are we that we should endure Thy judgement?
- 18 Protect us in Thy compassions,
And in Thy mercy help us.
- 19 Behold the little ones that are subject unto Thee,
And save all that draw nigh unto Thee:
And destroy not the hope of our people,
And cut not short the times of our aid.
- 20 For this is the nation which Thou hast chosen,
And these are the people, to whom Thou findest no equal.
- 21 But I will speak now before Thee,
And I will say as my heart thinketh.
- 22 In Thee do we trust, for lo! Thy law is with us,
And we know that we shall not fall so long as we keep Thy statutes.

XLVIII. 6. See xxiii. 4, note.

Thou carest for. The text here follows a wrong sense of פקד in the Hebrew original, and so gives 'commandest' that they may. Text reads 'and they are'. The Greek translator appears to have rendered אֲנִי מְשַׁמְרֵם wrongly.

8. †indignation†. See note on xxi. 6.

flames . . . spirits. Cf. Ps. civ. 4; Heb. i. 7.

9. the spheres . . . in their orders. Cf. I En. ii. 1; 2 En. xxx. 2, 3; Pss. Sol. xix. 2, 3.

10. in their orders. Jews held there were ten orders; Christians nine.

13. We should expect 'time is as hours', &c.

15. depart not. In xiv. 11 men 'come not of their own will'. In 4 Ezra viii. 5 the two statements are combined.

18. See lxxv. 6.

19. subject unto Thee. Cf. xlii. 4 = Jews.

that draw nigh. Cf. xli. 4, xlii. 3 = proselytes.

20. Cf. xxi. 21; 4 Ezra v. 27.

the nation, a necessary emendation (الامة) for the unmeaning (الخدم). Ceriani proposes 'the servant'.

22. See xv. 5, note.

- 23 [To all time are we blessed at all events in this that we have not mingled with the Gentiles.]
 24 For we are all one celebrated people,
 Who have received one law from One:
 And the law which is amongst us will aid us,
 And the surpassing wisdom which is in us will help us.’
- 25, 26 And when I had prayed and said these things, I was greatly weakened. And He answered and said unto me:
 ‘Thou hast prayed simply, O Baruch,
 And all thy words have been heard.
- 27 But My judgement exacts its own
 And My law exacts its rights.
- 28 For from thy words I will answer thee,
 And from thy prayer I will speak to thee.
- 29 For this is as follows: he that is corrupted is not at all; he has both wrought iniquity so far as he 30 could do anything, and has not remembered My goodness, nor accepted My long-suffering. There-31 fore thou shalt surely be taken up, as I before told thee. For that time shall arise which brings affliction; for it shall come and pass by with quick vehemence, and it shall be turbulent coming in 32 the heat of indignation. And it shall come to pass in those days that all the inhabitants of the earth shall be moved one against another, because they know not that My judgement has drawn nigh.
- 33 For there shall not be found many wise at that time,
 And the intelligent shall be but a few:
 Moreover, even those who know shall most of all be silent.
- 34 And there shall be many rumours and tidings not a few,
 And the doings of phantasmata shall be manifest,
 And promises not a few be recounted.
 Some of them (shall prove) idle,
 And some of them shall be confirmed.
- 35 And honour shall be turned into shame,
 And strength humiliated into contempt,
 †And probity destroyed, †
 And beauty shall become ugliness.
- 36 And many shall say to many at that time:
 “Where hath the multitude of intelligence hidden itself,
 And whither hath the multitude of wisdom removed itself?”

23. This verse is bracketed as a prosaic intrusion.

24. one law from One. lxxxv. 14. This is directed against Christians.

the law . . . will aid us. Cf. xxix. 2, note; and xxxii. 1. Cf., too, De singularitate cler. 15 (Cyprian, Ed. Hartel ii, 190) ‘sicut Esaias ait, legem inquit in adiutorium dedit.’

29. The Syriac text is unintelligible.

31-41. The last woes and the final judgement. Cf. xxvii-xxix. 1; lxx. 2-10.

32. shall be moved. Text reads נאמא (= ‘shall rest’) which I emended in 1896 into נאמא ‘shall be moved’.

33. Cf. lxx. 5. This verse resembles what Cyprian (Testim. iii. 29) quotes as from Baruch: ‘Erit enim sapientia in paucis vigilantibus et taciturnis.’

34. Cyprian again seems to quote ‘alii autem sapientes ad spiritum erroris et pronuntiantes sicut Altissimi et Fortis edicta’. For the many impostors cf. Matt. xxiv. 11, 24.

35. Of the four lines in this stanza three give a series of paronomasiae when retranslated into Hebrew, as in xxi. 14. Thus the first, second, and fourth run:

כבוד יהפך לקלון
 עז יורד אל בוז
 יופי יהיה לדופי

As regards the third it is certainly corrupt. The analogy of the other three leads us to expect a paronomasia here also. The Syriac is נאמא, where the first word may be corrupt for נאמא. The text would then = ‘and understanding would become foolishness.’ This at once gives a good sense and a paronomasia on the Hebrew, i. e. שכל יהיה לבסל.

On the last line cf. xxi. 14; lxxxiii. 12.

36. Cf. 4 Ezra v. 9-11. Does Cyprian refer to this in his quotation (Testim. iii. 29)?—‘Quaeritis me et vos et qui post vos venerint audire verbum sapientiae et intellectus et non inuenietis.’

- 37 And whilst they are meditating these things,
Then envy shall arise in those who had not thought aught of themselves (?)
And passion shall seize him that is peaceful,
And many shall be stirred up in anger to injure many,
And they shall rouse up armies in order to shed blood,
And in the end they shall perish together with them.
- 38 And it shall come to pass at the self-same time,
That a change of times shall manifestly appear to every man,
Because in all those times they polluted themselves
And they practised oppression,
And walked every man in his own works,
And remembered not the law of the Mighty One.
- 39 Therefore a fire shall consume their thoughts,
And in flame shall the meditations of their reins be tried ;
For the Judge shall come and will not tarry.
- 40 Because each of the inhabitants of the earth knew when he was transgressing.
But My Law they knew not by reason of their pride.
- 41 But many shall then assuredly weep,
Yea, over the living more than over the dead.'
- 42 And I answered and said :
'O Adam, what hast thou done to all those who are born from thee ?
And what will be said to the first Eve who hearkened to the serpent ?
- 43 For all this multitude are going to corruption,
Nor is there any numbering of those whom the fire devours.
- 4, 45 But again I will speak in Thy presence. Thou, O LORD, my Lord, knowest what is in Thy 46 creature. For Thou didst of old command the dust to produce Adam, and Thou knowest the number of those who are born from him, and how far they have sinned before Thee, who have 47 existed and not confessed Thee as their Creator. And as regards all these their end shall convict them, and Thy law which they have transgressed shall requite them on Thy day.'

XLVIII. 48-50. Fragment of an Address of Baruch to the People.

- 48 ['But now let us dismiss the wicked and inquire about the righteous.
49 And I will recount their blessedness
And not be silent in celebrating their glory, which is reserved for them.
50 For assuredly as in a little time in this transitory world in which ye live, ye have endured much labour,
So in that world to which there is no end, ye shall receive great light.']

37. Cf. lxx. 6.

38. walked every man, &c. Cf. 4 Ezra iii. 8.

the law of the Mighty One. Cf. xliv. 3, 7.

40. knew when he was transgressing. Cf. Ep. Barn. v. 4, and see xv. 6 note, where Israel is referred to as knowing the law. Here all men know when they do wrong. Cf. Rom. ii. 14, 15.

My Law they knew not by reason of their pride. The Talmud says the Gentiles rejected the law, which was designed for all nations. See, too, 4 Ezra vii. 72, 73.

41. The load of sin increases with time, and so will its penalty.

42-50. What havoc Adam and Eve have wrought by the spiritual death and torments they brought upon their posterity ! Yet God, as Creator, knows what is in man ; the number of men that are to be, and their sins (42-6). The law and the judgement will give all their due, so let us inquire rather about the blessedness to come for the righteous who now awhile endure labour.

42. The mention of fire shows that spiritual death is here traced to Adam and Eve, whereas in xvii. 3, &c., it is only physical death that is so traced. In 4 Ezra both are always traced to Adam (e. g. iii. 21, 22). But this spiritual death is not due to the incapacity of man for righteousness after the fall, but to his following of his own choice in the steps of Adam.

46. command the dust to produce Adam. 4 Ezra iii. 4, 5 ; vii. 116.

the number . . . born. See xxiii. 5, note.

48-50. A fragment of an address delivered by Baruch to the people, as verse 50 shows, and not to God. Another fragment of this same address, originally preceding 48-50 here, is given in liv. 16-18, and yet another, following 48-50, in lii. 5-7.

49. be silent in celebrating. A Hebrew idiom.

50. Cf. xv. 8.

XLIX–LII. The Nature of the Resurrection Body: the final Destinies of the Righteous and the Wicked.

- 49 1 ‘Nevertheless, I will again ask from Thee, O Mighty One, yea, I will ask mercy from Him who made all things.
 2 “In what shape will those live who live in Thy day?
 Or how will the splendour of those who (are) after that time continue?
 3 Will they then resume this form of the present,
 And put on these entrammelling members,
 Which are now involved in evils,
 And in which evils are consummated,
 Or wilt Thou perchance change these things which have been in the world
 As also the world?”’
- 50 1 And He answered and said unto me: ‘Hear, Baruch, this word,
 And write in the remembrance of thy heart all that thou shalt learn.
 2 For the earth shall then assuredly restore the dead,
 [Which it now receives, in order to preserve them].
 It shall make no change in their form,
 But as it has received, so shall it restore them,
 And as I delivered them unto it, so also shall it raise them.
 3 For then it will be necessary to show to the living that the dead have come to life again, and that 4 those who had departed have returned (again). And it shall come to pass, when they have severally recognized those whom they now know, then judgement shall grow strong, and those things which before were spoken of shall come.
- 51 1 ‘And it shall come to pass, when that appointed day has gone by, that then shall the aspect of those 2 who are condemned be afterwards changed, and the glory of those who are justified. For the aspect of those who now act wickedly shall become worse than it is, as they shall suffer torment.
 3 Also (as for) the glory of those who have now been justified in My law, who have had understanding in their life, and who have planted in their heart the root of wisdom, then their splendour shall be glorified in changes, and the form of their face shall be turned into the light of their beauty, that they may be able to acquire and receive the world which does not die, which is then promised to 4 them. For over this above all shall those who come then lament, that they rejected My law, and stopped 5 their ears that they might not hear wisdom or receive understanding. When therefore they see those, over whom they are now exalted, (but) who shall then be exalted and glorified more than they, they shall respectively be transformed, the latter into the splendour of angels, and the former shall yet 6 more waste away in wonder at the visions and in the beholding of the forms. For they shall first behold and afterwards depart to be tormented.

XLIX. 2. In what shape, &c. Cf. 1 Cor. xv. 35 ‘How are the dead raised up? and with what manner of body do they come?’

splendour, or perhaps ‘appearance’; also in li. 3, 5.

3. entrammelling members, lit. ‘members of bonds’.

L–LI. The nature of the resurrection body. The world in its renewal becomes undying (li. 3), incorruptible (lxxiv. 2) and invisible to mortal vision (li. 8). This conception of transformation, which is as old as Isa. lxxv. 17–lxxvi, was applied in due course to those who were to live in the renewed world. This is done partially in Isa. lxxv. 17–25, but fully in Dan. xii. 2. Also in 1 Enoch civ. 4, 6, &c. Thus the spiritual transformation was a familiar idea to the Pharisees before the writers of Baruch lived; while 1 Cor. xv. 35–50 is in one of its aspects the logical sequel of Isa. liv. 17. Paul was not altogether an innovator, but an able and advanced expositor of some current Jewish views.

Opposed to this spiritual view of the future life lay the materialistic one prevalent among people and Rabbis alike, which said the blessed should beget children, and eat the flesh of Leviathan. (Weber 383, 384.)

L. 2. See notes on xi. 4; xlii. 8; 1 Enoch li. 1. The resurrection united soul (from Sheol, its abode, xxi. 23) and body (resting in the earth, xlii. 8). Note that here the earth preserves the body intact, as committed to it.

4. The object for which the dead are raised is for common recognition. So also Beresh. rab. 95 and the later Judaism. Contrast the silence of the N.T.

LI. 1. This transformation of the living also is mentioned in 1 Cor. xv. 51.

aspect. So Ceriani emends the text.

3. justified in My law. See xv. 5, note.

root of wisdom. lix. 7; Sir. i. 6, 20; Wisdom iii. 15.

their splendour. Their bodies gradually are assimilated to their new environment.

4. rejected, i. e. wicked Gentiles as well as Israelites.

stopped their ears, follows Hebrew of Zech. vii. 11; not LXX.

5. waste away, not ‘be annihilated’. Cf. 4 Ezra vii. 87.

- 7 But those who have been saved by their works,
And to whom the law has been now a hope,
And understanding an expectation,
And wisdom a confidence,
Shall wonders appear in their time.
- 8 For they shall behold the world which is now invisible to them,
And they shall behold the time which is now hidden from them :
9 And time shall no longer age them.
- 10 For in the heights of that world shall they dwell,
And they shall be made like unto the angels,
And be made equal to the stars,
And they shall be changed into every form they desire,
From beauty into loveliness,
And from light into the splendour of glory.
- 11 For there shall be spread before them the extents of Paradise, and there shall be shown to them the beauty of the majesty of the living creatures which are beneath the throne, and all the armies of the angels, who [are now held fast by My word, lest they should appear, and] are held fast by a 12 command, that they may stand in their places till their advent comes. Moreover, there shall then be 13 excellency in the righteous surpassing that in the angels. For the first shall receive the last, those whom they were expecting, and the last those of whom they used to hear that they had passed away.
- 14 For they have been delivered from this world of tribulation,
And laid down the burthen of anguish.
- 15 For what then have men lost their life,
And for what have those who were on the earth exchanged their soul ?
- 16 For then they chose (not) for themselves this time,
Which, beyond the reach of anguish, could not pass away :
But they chose for themselves that time,
Whose issues are full of lamentations and evils,
And they denied the world which ages not those who come to it,
And they rejected the time of glory,
So that they shall not come to the honour of which I told thee before.'
- 2 1 And I answered and said :
'How can we forget those for whom woe is then reserved ?
2 And why therefore do we again mourn for those who die ?
Or why do we weep for those who depart to Sheol ?
3 Let lamentations be reserved for the beginning of that coming torment,
And let tears be laid up for the advent of the destruction of that time.
4 [But even in the face of these things will I speak.
And as for the righteous, what will they do now ?
5 Rejoice ye in the suffering which ye now suffer :
6 For why do ye look for the decline of your enemies ?
7 Make ready your soul for that which is reserved for you,
And prepare your souls for the reward which is laid up for you.']

9. After this verse read probably verses 13 and 14, then 10, 11, and 12 as climax.

10. Note spiritual conception. The risen righteous live in the heights of the invisible world (8, 10), and their glory is more than that of the angels (12).

equal to the stars. 4 Ezra vii. 97, 125.

11. living creatures . . . beneath the throne. Rev. iv. 6.

armies of the angels. Cf. 2 Enoch xvii; Test. Lev. iii. 3. The brackets indicate a gloss or dittograph.

13. Cf. 4 Ezra v. 42; also Matt. xix. 30.

15. Cf. Matt. xvi. 26.

16. I have added a negative in the first clause, as the sense requires it—an addition accepted by Ryssel. So too in lvi. 14, where Ceriani also inserts it.

of glory. So Ryssel has emended text which reads 'and glory'.

LII. 1. we. Text reads 'I' which Ryssel has emended.

2, 3. We should weep rather for those destined to torments than those who depart to Sheol.

5-7. See note on xlvi. 48-50.

6. Cf. lxxxviii. 6; James i. 2. The sentiment looks Christian.

LIII-LXXIV. THE MESSIAH APOCALYPSE.

LIII. The Vision of the Cloud with black and white Waters.

53₁ And when I had said these things I fell asleep there, and I saw a vision, and lo! a cloud was ascending from a very great sea, and I kept gazing upon it, and lo! it was full of waters white and black, and there were many colours in those self-same waters, and as it were the likeness of great lightning was seen at its summit. And I saw the cloud passing swiftly in quick courses, and it covered all the earth. And it came to pass after these things that that cloud began to pour upon the earth the waters that were in it. And I saw that there was not one and the same likeness in the waters which descended from it. For in the first beginning they were black and many for a time, and afterwards I saw that the waters became bright, but they were not many, and after these things again I saw black (waters), and after these things again bright, and again black and again bright. Now this was done twelve times, but the black were always more numerous than the bright. And it came to pass at the end of the cloud, that lo! it rained black waters, and they were darker than had been all those waters that were before, and fire was mingled with them, and where those waters descended, they wrought devastation and destruction. And after these things I saw how that lightning which I had seen on the summit of the cloud, seized hold of it and hurled it to the earth. Now that lightning shone exceedingly, so as to illuminate the whole earth, and it healed those regions where the last waters had descended and wrought devastation. And it took hold of the whole earth, and had dominion over it. And I saw after these things, and lo! twelve rivers were ascending from the sea, and they began to surround that lightning and to become subject to it. And by reason of my fear I awoke.

LIV-LV. Baruch's Prayer for an Interpretation of the Vision: Ramiel's advent for this Purpose.

54₁ And I besought the Mighty One, and said:
 'Thou alone, O Lord, knowest of aforetime the deep things of the world,
 And the things which befall in their times Thou bringest about by Thy word,
 And against the works of the inhabitants of the earth Thou dost hasten the beginnings of the times,
 And the end of the seasons Thou alone knowest.
 2 <Thou> for whom nothing is too hard,
 But who dost everything easily by a nod:
 3 <Thou> to whom the depths †come† as the heights,
 And whose word the beginnings of the ages serve:

LIII-LXXIV. The third Messiah Apocalypse, or A³. In date it seems to be prior to A. D. 70 (lxviii. 5-6), and subsequent to A. D. 50. If this is the date of this section, it is distinct from B¹ and B², which were composed subsequently to the fall of the Temple. In B¹ and B² there is no expectation of the Messiah, whereas in A³ the Messiah is the centre of interest. Again, it appears to be distinct from A¹; for in A¹ the Messiah does not appear till the enemies of Israel are destroyed, whereas in A³ the Messiah is the agent of their destruction. The relations of A³ to A² are doubtful. They could come from the same hand. The warlike character of the Messiah in this section is noteworthy.

LIII. In this vision a cloud rises from the sea with its summit crowned with lightning. After six successions of black and bright waters, comes the blackest shower of all. Then the lightning flashes forth and heals the earth.

1. a very great sea. Cf. Dan. vii. 2.

5. and many. Here, as the words in the next line 'not many' show, we expect 'and many'. Hence with Ryssel I emend  into .

6. For the twelvefold division of history see 4 Ezra xiv. 11, 12.

7. These black waters are interpreted in lxix, lxx. They symbolize the travail pains of the Messiah.

8. The lightning on the cloud symbolizes the Messiah. The imagery is derived from Dan. vii. 13.

9. lightning shone . . . whole earth. Cf. Matt. xxiv. 27 'as the lightning . . . so shall be the coming of the Son of man'.

12. Are these twelve rivers the Gentiles submitting to the Messiah, or the twelve tribes of Israel?

LIV. 1. Before this chapter the MS. inserts the words 'The Prayer of Baruch'.

2. I have with Ryssel restored 'Thou' at the beginning of verses 2, 3, 4. The context requires this restoration.

for whom nothing is too hard. This is a rendering of the phrase found in Gen. xviii. 14; Jer. xxxii. 17, 27.

- 4 <Thou> who revealest to those who fear Thee what is prepared for them,
That thenceforth they may be comforted.
- 5 Thou showest great acts to those who know not ;
Thou breakest up the enclosure of those who are ignorant,
And lightest up what is dark,
And revealest what is hidden to the pure,
[Who in faith have submitted themselves to Thee and Thy law.]
- 6 Thou hast shown to Thy servant this vision ;
Reveal to me also its interpretation.
- 7 For I know that as regards those things wherein I besought Thee, I have received a response,
And as regards what I besought, Thou didst reveal to me with what voice I should praise Thee,
And from what members I should cause praises and hallelujahs to ascend to Thee.
- 8 For if my members were mouths,
And the hairs of my head voices,
Even so I could not give Thee the meed of praise,
Nor laud thee as is befitting,
Nor could I recount Thy praise,
Nor tell the glory of Thy beauty.
- 9 For what am I amongst men,
Or why am I reckoned amongst those who are more excellent than I,
That I have heard all these marvellous things from the Most High,
And numberless promises from Him who created me ?
- 10 Blessed be my mother among those that bear,
And praised among women be she that bare me.
- 11 For I will not be silent in praising the Mighty One,
And with the voice of praise I will recount His marvellous deeds.
- 12 For who doeth like unto Thy marvellous deeds, O God,
Or who comprehendeth Thy deep thought †of life†.
- 13 For with Thy counsel Thou dost govern all the creatures which Thy right hand has created,
And Thou hast established every fountain of light beside Thee,
And the treasures of wisdom beneath Thy throne hast Thou prepared.
- 14 And justly do they perish who have not loved Thy law,
And the torment of judgement shall await those who have not submitted themselves to Thy power.
- 15 For though Adam first sinned
And brought untimely death upon all,
Yet of those who were born from him
Each one of them has prepared for his own soul torment to come,
And again each one of them has chosen for himself glories to come.
- 16 [For assuredly he who believeth will receive reward.
- 17 But now, as for you, ye wicked that now are, turn ye to destruction, because ye shall speedily be visited, in that formerly ye rejected the understanding of the Most High.
- 18 For His works have not taught you,
Nor has the skill of His creation which is at all times persuaded you.]

4. Thee. So I emend text = 'Him'.

5. in faith. See note on liv. 21. I have bracketed this line as a later addition.

10. An interpolation? it breaks the connexion. Cf. Luke xi. 27.

14. Cf. xlviii. 40.

15-19. The two doctrines of fate and free-will, though seen to be mutually exclusive, were accepted theoretically as equally imperative by the Pharisees. St. Paul alone develops them into naked antagonism. The general tendency was to insist on free-will as here, and in the Talmud (Weber, Jüd. Theol. 224 sq.). See my Commentary, in loc.

15. The effect of Adam's sin is limited to physical results—the premature death of his descendants. Contrast the pessimism of 4 Ezra.

untimely. See xxiii. 4, note.

16-18. See xlviii. 48-50, note. These verses break the context and are out of place here. They properly precede xlviii. 48-50. A direct address to the wicked could not occur in a prayer to God.

18. God's law can be learnt in nature. Cf. Rom. i. 20. This argument is as old as the Psalter, Job, and Isaiah (e. g. Ps. xix. 1).

- 19 Adam is therefore not the cause, save only of his own soul,
But each of us has been the Adam of his own soul.
- 20 But do Thou, O Lord, expound to me regarding those things which Thou hast revealed to me,
And inform me regarding that which I besought Thee.
- 21 For at the consummation of the world vengeance shall be taken upon those who have done wickedness according to their wickedness,
And Thou wilt glorify the faithful according to their faithfulness.
- 22 For those who are amongst Thine own Thou rulest,
And those who sin Thou blottest out from amongst Thine own.'
- 55 1 And it came to pass when I had finished speaking the words of this prayer, that I sat there under 2 a tree, that I might rest in the shade of the branches. And I wondered and was astonished, and pondered in my thoughts regarding the multitude of goodness which sinners who are upon the earth have rejected, and regarding the great torment which they have despised, though they knew that 3 they should be tormented because of the sin they had committed. And when I was pondering on these things and the like, lo! the angel Ramiel who presides over true visions was sent to me, and he said unto me :
4 ' Why does thy heart trouble thee, Baruch, and why does thy thought disturb thee ?
5 For if owing to the report which thou hast only heard of judgement thou art so moved,
What (wilt thou be) when thou shalt see it manifestly with thine eyes ?
6 And if with the expectation wherewith thou dost expect the day of the Mighty One thou art so overcome,
What (wilt thou be) when thou shalt come to its advent ?
7 And, if at the word of the announcement of the torment of those who have done foolishly thou art so wholly distraught,
How much more when the event will reveal marvellous things ?
8 And if thou hast heard tidings of the good and evil things which are then coming and art grieved,
What (wilt thou be) when thou shalt behold what the majesty will reveal,
Which shall convict these and cause those to rejoice.'

LVI-LXXIV. Interpretation of the Vision. The black and bright Waters symbolize the World's History from Adam to the Advent of the Messiah.

- 56 1 ' Nevertheless, because thou hast besought the Most High to reveal to thee the interpretation 2 of the vision which thou hast seen, I have been sent to tell thee. And the Mighty One hath assuredly made known to thee the methods of the times that have passed, and of those that are destined to pass in His world from the beginning of its creation even unto its consummation, 3 of those things which (are) deceit and of those which (are) in truth. For as thou didst see a great cloud which ascended from the sea, and went and covered the earth, this is the duration of the world (= aión) which the Mighty One made when he took counsel to make the world.
4 And it came to pass when the word had gone forth from His presence, that the duration of the world had come into being in a small degree, and was established according to the multitude of 5 the intelligence of Him who sent it. And as thou didst previously see on the summit of the cloud black waters which descended previously on the earth, this is the transgression wherewith Adam the first man transgressed.

19. See verse 15, note. Man's guilt and sin are due to his own action, and are not derived from Adam. The evil impulse is not sin unless obeyed. It is placed in man, say the Talmudists, to be overcome (Weber, 217 sq.).

21. the faithful according to their faithfulness. Here 'faithfulness' is contrasted with 'wickedness', so it = 'righteousness' or 'fidelity to the law'; but elsewhere in this work 'faith' = 'belief'. Cf. 4 Ezra vi. 5 for the former sense.

LV. 3. Ramiel. Cf. lxiii. 6; 1 En. xx. 7 (Greek); 4 Ezra iv. 36 (Syriac); Sibyll. Or. ii. 215-17. In 4 Ezra Ramiel answers a question, as here. Elsewhere he has charge of souls for judgement.

5. owing . . . which. The text is defective. I have added  after  and ? before . Ceriani adds  after . With the latter reading we should render 'if when thou hast only heard a rumour of His judgement'.

LVI. 3. a great cloud . . . this is the duration of the world. The twelve alternate black and bright waters, and the last black water, symbolize the thirteen periods of the world's history prior to the Messiah's kingdom, which is foreshadowed by the lightning that shone on the cloud's summit.

4. was established. So Ceriani has emended.

6 For [since] when he transgressed Untimely death came into being,
 Grief was named
 And anguish was prepared,
 And pain was created,
 And trouble consummated,
 And disease began to be established,
 And Sheol kept demanding that it should be renewed in blood,
 And the begetting of children was brought about,
 And the passion of parents produced,
 And the greatness of humanity was humiliated,
 And goodness languished.

7, 8 What therefore can be blacker or darker than these things? This is the beginning of the black 9 waters which thou hast seen. And from these black (waters) again were black derived, and the 10 darkness of darkness was produced. For he became a danger to his own soul: even to the angels 11 became he a danger. For, moreover, at that time when he was created, they enjoyed liberty. And 12 some of them descended, and mingled with the women. And then those who did so were tormented 13 in chains. But the rest of the multitude of the angels, of which there is (no) number, restrained
 14 themselves. And those who dwelt on the earth perished together (with them) through the waters 15 of the deluge. These are the black first waters.

7 1 'And after these (waters) thou didst see bright waters: this is the fount of Abraham, also his 2 generations and advent of his son, and of his son's son, and of those like them. Because at that time the unwritten law was named amongst them,
 And the works of the commandments were then fulfilled,
 And belief in the coming judgement was then generated,
 And hope of the world that was to be renewed was then built up,
 And the promise of the life that should come hereafter was implanted.

3 These are the bright waters, which thou hast seen.
 8 1 'And the black third waters which thou hast seen, these are the mingling of all sins, which the nations afterwards wrought after the death of those righteous men, and the wickedness of the land of 2 Egypt, wherein they did wickedly in the service wherewith they made their sons to serve. Nevertheless, these also perished at last.

9 1 'And the bright fourth waters which thou hast seen are the advent of Moses and Aaron and 2 Miriam and Joshua the son of Nun and Caleb and of all those like them. For at that time the lamp of the eternal law shone on all those who sat in darkness, which announced to them that believe the 3 promise of their reward, and to them that deny, the torment of fire which is reserved for them. But also the heavens at that time were shaken from their place, and those who were under the throne of 4 the Mighty One were perturbed, when He was taking Moses unto Himself. For He showed him many admonitions together with the principles of the law and the consummation of the times, as also to thee, and likewise the pattern of Zion and its measures, in the pattern of which the

6. disease. Text = 'boasting' = תהלה, corrupt for מחלה = 'disease', or ἰσοδοα = 'boasting' is corrupt for ἰσοδοα = 'disease', as in lxxiii. 2. 'Disease' comes with the Fall, but it disappears on the advent of the kingdom, lxxiii. 2.

Sheol . . . demanding. For Sheol's hunger, cf. Prov. xxvii. 20; Isa. v. 14.

10. Man's physical nature became a danger to his spiritual; because of it the angels fell through lust, and in it resided the evil impulse.

11. they enjoyed liberty, i. e. the angels. Cf. I En. vi. 2, note.

14. (no) number. Ceriani restored the negative.

LVII. The first bright period is from Abraham to Jacob.

2. This tendency to trace the observance of the law to the patriarchs had already reached its most extreme expression in the Book of Jubilees.

the world . . . to be renewed. In A¹ and A² at the close of the Messianic kingdom, which in A³ ends this world and begins the next (lxxiv. 2).

LVIII. 1. the service . . . serve. The text follows the Hebrew of Exod. i. 4, not the LXX.

LIX. 2. the lamp . . . darkness. A Rabbinic application of Isa. ix. 2.

the eternal law. Cf. xvii. 6; xv. 5, note.

torment of fire, i. e. a material fire to torment the wicked after the resurrection. Cf. xlv. 15, &c.

4. law . . . times. Text reads 'laws . . . time'.

the pattern of Zion. Cf. Exod. xxv. 40, &c.

in the pattern of which . . . made. So by a change of a single letter I have emended the text, which read 'which was to be made in the pattern of the sanctuary', &c. This emendation is followed by Ryssel.

- 5 sanctuary of the present time was to be made. But then also He showed to him the measures of 6 the fire, also the depths of the abyss, and the weight of the winds, and the number of the drops of 7 rain: And the suppression of anger, and the multitude of long-suffering, and the truth of judgement:
 8 And the root of wisdom, and the riches of understanding, and the fount of knowledge: And the 9 height of the air, and the greatness of Paradise, and the consummation of the ages, and the beginning
 10 of the day of judgement: And the number of the offerings, and the earths which have not yet come:
 11 And the mouth of Gehenna, and the station of vengeance, and the place of faith, and the region of 12 hope: And the likeness of future torment, and the multitude of innumerable angels, and the flaming hosts, and the splendour of the lightnings, and the voice of the thunders, and the orders of the chiefs of the angels, and the treasures of light, and the changes of the times, and the investigations of the law. These are the bright fourth waters which thou hast seen.
- 60 1 'And the black fifth waters which thou hast seen raining are the works which the Amorites wrought, and the spells of their incantations which they wrought, and the wickedness of their 2 mysteries, and the mingling of their pollution. But even Israel was then polluted by sins in the days of the judges, though they saw many signs which were from Him who made them.
- 61 1 'And the bright sixth waters which thou didst see, this is the time in which David and Solomon were born.
- 2 And there was at that time the building of Zion,
 And the dedication of the sanctuary,
 And the shedding of much blood of the nations that sinned then,
 And many offerings which were offered then in the dedication of the sanctuary.
- 3 And peace and tranquillity existed at that time,
 4 And wisdom was heard in the assembly:
 And the riches of understanding were magnified in the congregations,
 5 And the holy festivals were fulfilled in blessedness and in much joy.
- 6 And the judgement of the rulers was then seen to be without guile,
 And the righteousness of the precepts of the Mighty One was accomplished with truth.
- 7 And the land [which] was then beloved by the Lord,
 And because its inhabitants sinned not, it was glorified beyond all lands,
 And the city Zion ruled then over all lands and regions.
- 8 These are the bright waters which thou hast seen.
- 62 1 'And the black seventh waters which thou hast seen, this is the perversion (brought about) by the 2 counsel of Jeroboam, who took counsel to make two calves of gold: And all the iniquities which 3 kings who were after him iniquitously wrought. And the curse of Jezebel and the worship of idols
 4 which Israel practised at that time. And the withholding of rain, and the famines which occurred
 5 until women eat the fruit of their wombs. And the time of their captivity which came upon the nine 6 tribes and a half, because they were in many sins. And Salmanasar king of Assyria came and led

5-11. Here one of Enoch's functions is for the first time transferred to Moses. Cf. another such transference to Ezra in 4 Ezra xiv. 50. Enoch, like the LXX, was much appealed to by Christians, and like it, therefore, fell into disuse by the Jews. This aggressive attitude of Judaism cannot be earlier than 50 A. D., and therefore places this writing (A³) after that date. It is prior to A. D. 70 (lxviii. 5).

5. the depths of the abyss. 1 Enoch xviii. 11; xxi. 7-10, &c; 2 Enoch xxviii. 3.

the weight of the winds. 2 Enoch xl. 11. Cf. 1 Enoch xli. 4.

8. the greatness of Paradise. The measures of Paradise are taken by the angels for Enoch. Cf. 1 Enoch lxi. 1-4; lxx. 3, 4.

the beginning of the day of judgement. A definite reckoning is given in 2 Enoch xxxii. 2-xxxiii. 2; lxxv. 7-10; and indefinite measures in 1 Enoch lxxxiii-xc; xci-civ.

10. the mouth of Gehenna. Cf. lxxxv. 13; 1 Enoch xxvii. 2, 3, &c.

the station of vengeance. Many places of vengeance are described in the two books of Enoch: 1 Enoch xviii. 12-16; xix; xxi; xxii. 10-13; liv. 1-6; xc. 24-7; 2 Enoch x; xl. 2.

the place of faith, and the region of hope. These seem to be the places of intermediate bliss. Cf. 1 Enoch xxii. 5-9.

11. the likeness of future torment. 2 Enoch xl. 12.

lightnings . . . thunders. 1 Enoch xli. 3, &c.

the orders of the chiefs of the angels. The Syriac has 'chief' (sing.). Cf. xlvi. 10; 2 Enoch xx. 1, 3.

LX. 1. mingling of their pollution. Cf. Pss. Sol. ii. 15 ἐν φουρμῶ ἀναμιξέως.

2. of the judges. The Syriac has 'judgement'.

LXI. 7. by the Lord. The text = ἐν ἐκείνῳ τῷ καιρῷ, where I take καιρῷ to be corrupt for Κυρίῳ, and ἐκείνῳ to be a later addition. I have bracketed the 'which'.

LXII. 4. Cf. 2 Kings vi. 28, 29.

6. i. e. Shalmaneser, 2 Kings xvii. 3, 6. Cf. 4 Ezra xiii. 40.

7 them away captive. But regarding the Gentiles it were tedious to tell how they always wrought
8 impiety and wickedness, and never wrought righteousness. These are the black seventh waters which thou hast seen.

3 1 'And the bright eighth waters which thou hast seen, this is the rectitude and uprightness of 2 Hezekiah king of Judah and the grace (of God) which came upon him. †For when Sennacherib was 3 stirred up in order that he might perish, and his wrath troubled him in order that he might thereby 4 perish, for the multitude also of the nations which were with him.† When, moreover, Hezekiah the king heard those things which the king of Assyria was devising, (i.e.) to come and seize him and destroy his people, the two and a half tribes which remained: nay, more he wished to overthrow Zion also: then Hezekiah trusted in his works, and had hope in his righteousness, and spake with 4 the Mighty One and said: "Behold, for lo! Sennacherib is prepared to destroy us, and he will be boastful and uplifted when he has destroyed Zion."

5 And the Mighty One heard him, for Hezekiah was wise,
And He had respect unto his prayer, because he was righteous.

6, 7 And thereupon the Mighty One commanded Ramiel His angel who speaks with thee. And I went forth and destroyed their multitude, the number of whose chiefs only was a hundred and 8 eighty-five thousand, and each one of them had an equal number (at his command). And at that time I burned their bodies within, but their raiment and arms I preserved outwardly, in order that the still more wonderful deeds of the Mighty One might appear, and that thereby His name might 9 be spoken of throughout the whole earth. And Zion was saved and Jerusalem delivered: Israel also 10 was freed from tribulation. And all those who were in the holy land rejoiced, and the name of the 11 Mighty One was glorified so that it was spoken of. These are the bright waters which thou hast seen.

4 1 'And the black ninth waters which thou hast seen, this is all the wickedness which was in the days 2 of Manasseh the son of Hezekiah. For he wrought much impiety, and he slew the righteous, and he wrested judgement, and he shed the blood of the innocent, and wedded women he violently 3 polluted, and he overturned the altars, and destroyed their offerings, and drove forth their priests lest they should minister in the sanctuary. And he made an image with five faces: four of them 4 looked to the four winds, and the fifth on the summit of the image as an adversary of the zeal of the Mighty One. And then wrath went forth from the presence of the Mighty One to the intent that 5 Zion should be rooted out, as also it befell in your days. But also against the two tribes and a half 6 went forth a decree that they should also be led away captive, as thou hast now seen. And to such a degree did the impiety of Manasseh increase, that it removed the praise of the Most High from 7 the sanctuary. On this account Manasseh was at that time named "the impious", and finally his 8 abode was in the fire. For though his prayer was heard with the Most High, finally, when he was cast into the brazen horse and the brazen horse was melted, it served as a sign unto him for the 9 hour. For he had not lived perfectly, for he was not worthy—but that thenceforward he might 10 know by whom finally he should be tormented. For he who is able to benefit is also able to torment.

5 1 'Thus, moreover, did Manasseh act impiously, and thought that in his time the Mighty One would 2 not inquire into these things. These are the black ninth waters which thou hast seen.

LXIII. 1. the grace. The MS. originally read 'bounty'. I have with Ryssel added 'of God'. Ryssel emends and reads 'the benignity of God'.

2. This verse is very corrupt.

3. Hezekiah trusted in his works. See xiv. 7, note. There is a play on Hezekiah's name in the words when retranslated into Hebrew חזקיה התחזק על. Cf. Sirach xlvi. 22, and 17.

4. There is a play again on 'Sennacherib' and 'destroy' in Hebrew סנחריב עתיד להחרב.

7. In 2 Kings xix. 35; Isa. xxxvii. 36, 185,000 is the complete number of the slain. In 2 Chron. xxxii. 21, only the slaughter of the chiefs is mentioned. The text combines the two accounts.

8. Cf. Sanh. 94^a, where it is said that the souls were burnt up but the bodies preserved.

LXIV. 3. he made an image with five faces: four of, &c. 2 Chron. xxxiii. 7 says 'he set the graven image of the idol'. The Syriac version, however, gives 'and he set the four-fronted image'. Cf. the Arabic, and also the 'Talmud, Sanh. 103^b 'at first he made for it one face, and in the end he made for it four faces that the Shechinah might see and be provoked'.

6. removed the praise. Sanh. 103^b says Manasseh erased the divine name and overturned the altar.

7. 2 Chron. xxxiii. 11-19, on the other hand, implies that Manasseh was really forgiven on his repentance.

8. his prayer. 2 Chron. xxxiii. 19; The Prayer of Manasseh in the Apocrypha.

the brazen horse. Cf. the Targum of Chronicles on 2 Chron. xxxiii. 11. Also Apost. Const. ii. 22; Anastasius on Ps. vi; Suidas (under Μανασσης).

9. Text corrupt.

LXV. The writer holds thus that Manasseh, though he prayed, did not really repent. Cf. Sanh. 101, and Sanh. 10, and contrast Debarim rabba 2, where Manasseh is to be saved at the last.

66 1 'And the bright tenth waters which thou hast seen: this is the purity of the generations of Josiah
 2 king of Judah, who was the only one at the time who submitted himself to the Mighty One with all his heart and with all his soul. And he cleansed the land from idols, and hallowed all the vessels which had been polluted, and restored the offerings to the altar, and raised the horn of the holy, and exalted the righteous, and honoured all that were wise in understanding, and brought back the priests 3 to their ministry, and destroyed and removed the magicians and enchanters and necromancers from the land. And not only did he slay the impious that were living, but they also took from the 4 sepulchres the bones of the dead and burned them with fire. [And the festivals and the sabbaths he established in their sanctity], and their polluted ones he burnt in the fire, and the lying prophets which deceived the people, these also he burnt in the fire, and the people who listened to them when 5 they were living, he cast them into the brook Cedron, and heaped stones upon them. And he was zealous with zeal for the Mighty One with all his soul, and he alone was firm in the law at that time, so that he left none that was uncircumcised, or that wrought impiety in all the land, all the days of 6 his life. Therefore he shall receive an eternal reward, and he shall be glorified with the Mighty One 7 beyond many at a later time. For on his account and on account of those who are like him were 8 the honourable glories, of which thou wast told before, created and prepared. These are the bright waters which thou hast seen.

67 1 'And the black eleventh waters which thou hast seen: this is the calamity which is now befalling Zion.

2 Dost thou think that there is no anguish to the angels in the presence of the Mighty One,
 That Zion was so delivered up,
 And that lo! the Gentiles boast in their hearts,
 And assemble before their idols and say,
 "She is trodden down who oftentimes trod down,
 And she has been reduced to servitude who reduced (others)"?
 3 Dost thou think that in these things the Most High rejoices,
 Or that His name is glorified?
 4 [But how will it serve towards His righteous judgement?]
 5 Yet after these things shall the dispersed among the Gentiles be taken hold of by tribulation,
 And in shame shall they dwell in every place.
 6 Because so far as Zion is delivered up
 And Jerusalem laid waste,
 Shall idols prosper in the cities of the Gentiles,
 And the vapour of the smoke of the incense of the righteousness which is by the law is extinguished in Zion,
 And in the region of Zion in every place lo! there is the smoke of impiety.
 7 But the king of Babylon will arise who has now destroyed Zion,
 And he will boast over the people,
 And he will speak great things in his heart in the presence of the Most High.
 8 But he also shall fall at last. These are the black waters.

68 1, 2 'And the bright twelfth waters which thou hast seen: this is the word. For after these things a time will come when thy people shall fall into distress, so that they shall all run the risk of 3 perishing together. Nevertheless, they will be saved, and their enemies will fall in their presence.

LXVI. 2. necromancers, i. e. ܢܝܢ. Cf. 2 Kings xxi. 6.

4. The words bracketed might come after 'to their ministry' in verse 2.

6. Therefore. Here I have emended ? ܐܘܢ? ܐܘܢ (= 'now', to wit, 'he who') into ܐܘܢ = 'therefore'. But the original is doubtful.

7. Cf. xiv. 18.

LXVII. 2. assemble. The Syriac reads ܩܒܠܐ (= 'crowds') corrupt for ܩܒܠܐ (= 'assemble').

6-7. With Jerusalem's destruction godlessness is everywhere triumphant. A³ is unaware of the divine interposition to save the sacred vessels and destroy Zion by angels which B¹ narrates (vi. 4-10; lxxx. 1-3). Here in A³, too, the Gentiles (lxvii. 2) and the King of Babylon (lxvii. 7) boast over the fall of Zion. Contrast the ideas of B¹ in vii. 1 and lxxx. 3, where such boasting is provided against.

6. righteousness which is by the law. See xv. 5, note.

LXVIII. 2, 3. The danger of the Jews according to the book of Esther and their deliverance. This is the second earliest allusion to this O.T. book. The first is in 2 Macc. xv. 36.

- 4, 5 And they will have in (due) time much joy. And at that time after a little interval Zion will again be builded, and its offerings will again be restored, and the priests will return to their ministry, and 5, 7 also the Gentiles will come to glorify it. Nevertheless, not fully as in the beginning. But it will 8 come to pass after these things that there will be the fall of many nations. These are the bright waters which thou hast seen.
- 9 1 'For the last waters which thou hast seen which were darker than all that were before them, those 2 which were after the twelfth number, which were collected together, belong to the whole world. For 3 the Most High made division from the beginning, because He alone knows what will befall. For as 4 to the enormities and the impieties which should be wrought before Him, He foresaw six kinds of 4 them. And of the good works of the righteous which should be accomplished before Him, He foresaw six kinds of them, beyond those which He should work at the consummation of the age.
 5 On his account there were not black waters with black, nor bright with bright; for it is the consummation.
- 0 1 'Hear therefore the interpretation of the last black waters which are to come [after the black]: this 2 is the word. Behold! the days come, and it shall be when the time of the age has ripened,
 And the harvest of its evil and good seeds has come,
 That the Mighty One will bring upon the earth and its inhabitants and upon its rulers Perturbation of spirit and stupor of heart.
- 3 And they shall hate one another,
 And provoke one another to fight,
 And the mean shall rule over the honourable,
 And those of low degree shall be extolled above the famous.
- 4 And the many shall be delivered into the hands of the few,
 And those who were nothing shall rule over the strong,
 And the poor shall have abundance beyond the rich,
 And the impious shall exalt themselves above the heroic.
- 5 And the wise shall be silent,
 And the foolish shall speak,
 Neither shall the thought of men be then confirmed,
 Nor the counsel of the mighty,
 Nor shall the hope of those who hope be confirmed.
- 6 And when those things which were predicted have come to pass,
 Then shall confusion fall upon all men,
 And some of them shall fall in battle,
 And some of them shall perish in anguish,
- 7 And some of them shall be destroyed by their own. Then the Most High will reveal those peoples whom He has prepared before,
 And they shall come and make war with the leaders that shall then be left.
- 8 And it shall come to pass that whosoever gets safe out of the war shall die in the earthquake,
 And whosoever gets safe out of the earthquake shall be burned by the fire,
 And whosoever gets safe out of the fire shall be destroyed by famine.

6. The second temple was less esteemed. See Mal. i-ii; 1 En. lxxxix. 73, 74; Ass. Mos. iv. 8. This temple then was standing when liii-lxxiv was written.

LXIX. 1. last. Syriac = 'other'.

the last waters, &c. See liii. 7.

2-4. This division recalls Sirach xlii. 24.

3. and. So I emend the Syriac (= 'of') with Ryssel.

kinds: or 'methods'.

4. beyond those which. The travail-pains of the Messiah are developed in lxx-lxxii.

LXX. 1. The words bracketed spoil the scheme of the writer. In lxxviii the last black waters come after the bright twelfth waters.

2. harvest . . . spirit. In both cases in the plural in the MS.

3-10. For these last woes cf. xxv. 2-4; xxvii; xlvi. 31-9; 4 Ezra v. 1-12; vi. 20-4; ix. 1-9; xiii. 29-31.

3, 5. Cf. xlvi. 37, 36.

5. the mighty. I have here changed the singular into the plural; in lxx. 2 the plural into the singular.

6. destroyed by their own. Cf. Mic. vii. 6; Matt. x. 35, 36. The Syriac 'hindered' is due to a corruption in the original Hebrew, יְבִלְאוּ for יְבִלְאוּ.

7. whom He has prepared before. Are these the hosts of Gog and Magog?

8. the earthquake . . . fire. Cf. xxvii. 7, 10; 4 Ezra ix. 3 and v. 8.

shall be destroyed. So Ceriani emends text, which = 'shall add'.

famine. Cf. xxvii. 6.

9 [And it shall come to pass that whosoever of the victors and the vanquished gets safe out of and 10 escapes all these things aforesaid will be delivered into the hands of My servant Messiah.] For all the earth shall devour its inhabitants.

71 1 'And the holy land shall have mercy on its own,
And it shall protect its inhabitors at that time.

2, 3 This is the vision which thou hast seen, and this is the interpretation. For I have come to tell 72 1 thee these things, because thy prayer has been heard with the Most High.

2 'Hear now also regarding the bright lightning which is to come at the consummation after these black (waters): this is the word. After the signs have come, of which thou wast told before, when the nations become turbulent, and the time of My Messiah is come, he shall both summon all the 3 nations, and some of them he shall spare, and some of them he shall slay. These things therefore 4 shall come upon the nations which are to be spared by Him. Every nation, which knows not Israel
5 and has not trodden down the seed of Jacob, shall indeed be spared. And this because some out of 6 every nation shall be subjected to thy people. But all those who have ruled over you, or have known you, shall be given up to the sword.

73 1 'And it shall come to pass, when He has brought low everything that is in the world,
And has sat down in peace for the age on the throne of His kingdom,
That joy shall then be revealed,
And rest shall appear.

2 And then healing shall descend in dew,
And disease shall withdraw,
And anxiety and anguish and lamentation pass from amongst men,
And gladness proceed through the whole earth.

3 And no one shall again die untimely,
Nor shall any adversity suddenly befall.

4 And judgements, and revilings, and contentions, and revenges,
And blood, and passions, and envy, and hatred,
And whatsoever things are like these shall go into condemnation when they are removed.

5 For it is these very things which have filled this world with evils,
And on account of these the life of man has been greatly troubled.

6 And wild beasts shall come from the forest and minister unto men,
And asps and dragons shall come forth from their holes to submit themselves to a little child.

7 And women shall no longer then have pain when they bear,
Nor shall they suffer torment when they yield the fruit of the womb.

74 1 'And it shall come to pass in those days that the reapers shall not grow weary,
Nor those that build be toilworn;

For the works shall of themselves speedily advance
Together with those who do them in much tranquillity.

2 For that time is the consummation of that which is corruptible,
And the beginning of that which is not corruptible.

3 Therefore those things which were predicted shall belong to it:
Therefore it is far away from evils, and near to those things which die not.

4 This is the bright lightning which came after the last dark waters.'

9. An interpolation? Verse 10 is the natural sequel to verse 8. The appearance of the Messiah and the extermination of the Gentiles are at least anticipated if not premature here.

LXXI. See xxix. 2, note.

3. Cf. liv. 1.

LXXII. 1. the bright lightning. The Syriac has 'the bright waters', which contradicts the vision in liii. 7-11. The same emendation is necessary in lxxiv. 4. The verb must be read in the sing. to agree with its subject.

4-6. The Messiah was to extend his dominion over the Gentiles (Ps. lxxii. 11, 17; Isa. xiv. 2; lxvi. 12, 19-21; Zech. xiv; 1 En. xc. 20; Pss. Sol. xvii. 32). A harsher view grew up in the first century B.C. In 1 Enoch xxxvii-lxx and Assumpt. Mos. x the Gentiles are to be annihilated; so in 4 Ezra xiii. 37, 38, 49, and later Judaism. The Messiah here, as in xxxix. 7-xl; 4 Ezra xii. 32, is a warrior who slays Israel's enemies with his own hand. Cf. Isa. xi. 4. Contrast His passive rôle in xxix. 2 of this book.

LXXIII. 1. Cf. 1 Cor. xv. 24, 25.

6. Cf. Isa. xi. 6-9; lxxv. 25; Sibyll. Or. iii. 620-3, 743-50.

LXXV. Baruch's Hymn on the Unsearchableness of God's Ways and on His Mercies through which the Faithful shall attain to a blessed Consummation.

lxxvlxxvi =
B².

- 5 1 And I answered and said :
 ' Who can understand, O Lord, Thy goodness ?
 For it is incomprehensible.
 2 Or who can search into thy compassions,
 Which are infinite ?
 3 Or who can comprehend Thy intelligence ?
 4 Or who is able to recount the thoughts of Thy mind ?
 5 Or who of those who are born can hope to come to those things,
 Unless he is one to whom Thou art merciful and gracious ?
 6 Because, if assuredly Thou didst not have compassion on man,
 Those who are under Thy right hand,
 They could not come to those things,
 But those who are in the numbers named can be called.
 7 But if, indeed, we who exist know wherefore we have come,
 And submit ourselves to Him who brought us out of Egypt,
 We shall come again and remember those things which have passed,
 And shall rejoice regarding that which has been.
 8 But if now we know not wherefore we have come,
 And recognize not the principate of Him who brought us up out of Egypt,
 We shall come again and seek after those things which have been now,
 And be grieved with pain because of those things which have befallen.'

LXXVI. Baruch bidden to instruct the People for forty days and then to hold himself ready for his Assumption on the Advent of the Messiah.

- 6 1 And He answered and said unto me : [' Inasmuch as the revelation of this vision has been interpreted to thee as thou besoughtest], hear the word of the Most High that thou mayst know what 2 is to befall thee after these things. For thou shalt surely depart from this earth, nevertheless not 3 unto death, but thou shalt be preserved unto the consummation of the times. Go up therefore to the top of that mountain, and there shall pass before thee all the regions of that land, and the figure of the inhabited world, and the top(s) of the mountains, and the depth(s) of the valleys, and the depths of the seas, and the number of the rivers, that thou mayst see what thou art leaving, and 4 whither thou art going. Now this shall befall after forty days. Go now therefore during these days and instruct the people so far as thou art able, that they may learn so as not to die at the last time, but may learn in order that they may live at the last times.'

LXXV-LXXVI. Here B² returns. Baruch addresses God and not Ramiel, who in lv. 4-lxxiv. has been explaining the vision in liii.

LXXV. 1. understand. Syriac reads ܠܘܢܝܢܐ = 'be likened to', which I have emended into ܠܘܢܝܢܐ = 'understand', omitting the following ܐ.

2. The mercies of God are not much dwelt on in this book. The righteous are fully conscious of their own merit (cf. xiv. 7). But cf. lxxxi. 4; lxxv. 5, 6.

6. who are under Thy right hand. Cf. Ps. lxxx. 17.

7, 8. We shall come again, i.e. we shall rise and meet with our fate according as we are obedient and righteous or not.

LXXVI. 1. The words bracketed are inserted by the final editor.

hear the word of the Most High. Cf. xiii. 2; xxv. 1.

2. thou shalt be preserved until the consummation of the times. The Syriac here has 'unto the preservation of the times'. From xxv. 1 we see we must read 'thou shalt be preserved unto the times', or rather the fuller form we find in xiii. 3 'thou shalt be preserved unto the consummation of the times'. Ryssel has adopted this suggestion.

3. Cf. Deut. xxxiv. 1-3; Matt. iv. 8.

4. forty days. Cf. Exod. xxiv. 18, and 4 Ezra xiv. 23, 42-5.

LXXVII. Baruch's Admonition to the People and his writing of two Letters—one to the nine and a half tribes in Assyria and the other to the two and a half in Babylon.

- 77 1 And I, Baruch, went thence and came to the people, and assembled them together from the 2 greatest to the least, and said unto them: 'Hear, ye children of Israel, behold how many ye are who 3 remain of the twelve tribes of Israel. For to you and to your fathers the Lord gave a law more 4 excellent than to all peoples. And because your brethren transgressed the commandments of the Most High,
 He brought vengeance upon you and upon them,
 And He spared not the former,
 And the latter also He gave into captivity:
 And He left not a residue of them,
 5 But behold! ye are here with me.
 6 If, therefore, ye direct your ways aright,
 Ye also shall not depart as your brethren departed,
 But they shall come to you.
 7 For He is merciful whom ye worship,
 And He is gracious in whom ye hope,
 And He is true, so that He shall do good and not evil.
 8 Have ye not seen here what has befallen Zion?
 9 Or do ye perchance think that the place had sinned,
 And that on this account it was overthrown?
 Or that the land had wrought foolishness,
 And that therefore it was delivered up?
 10 And know ye not that on account of you who did sin,
 That which sinned not was overthrown,
 And, on account of those who wrought wickedly,
 That which wrought not foolishness was delivered up to (its) enemies?'
 11 And the whole people answered and said unto me: 'So far as we can recall the good things which the Mighty One has done unto us, we do recall them; and those things which we do not remember 12 He in His mercy knows. Nevertheless, do this for us thy people: write also to our brethren in Babylon an epistle of doctrine and a scroll of hope, that thou mayst confirm them also before thou dost depart from us.
 13 For the shepherds of Israel have perished,
 And the lamps which gave light are extinguished,
 And the fountains have withheld their stream whence we used to drink.

LXXVII-LXXXVI. These chapters belong to B¹ with the exception of lxxxiii and lxxxv. The chief differences between B¹ and B² are: in B¹ an earthly felicity is looked for, the dispersion is to return, and the earthly Jerusalem to be rebuilt; in B² none of these things are expected. In B¹ Baruch is to die, in B² to be translated; in B¹ Jeremiah is not sent to Babylon, in B² he is.

LXXVII. 1. from the greatest to the least. This order belongs to the later books; cf. 2 Chron. xxxiv. 30; Esther i. 5, 20. Contrast Gen. xix. 11; 1 Sam. v. 9; Jer. vi. 13, &c.

4. upon you, i. e. the two and a half tribes = 'the former' in the next line.

upon them, i. e. the nine and a half tribes = 'the latter'.

left not a residue. This denies the Samaritan claim.

5. here with me. Cf. 4 Ezra xiv. 33. Ryssel misunderstands and tries to emend.

6. they shall come to you. Seems to include the nine and a half tribes. Cf. lxxviii. 7.

7. do good and not evil. Cf. Jer. xxi. 10; Amos ix. 4.

9. The place itself had not sinned, therefore the angels, instead of the king of Babylon, had destroyed it. Cf. v-viii; lxxx.

10. Note that Jerusalem's fall is attributed here not only to the sins of the two and a half tribes, but also of the nine and a half. Cf. Jer. xi. 17; 1 Bar. ii. 26; Ass. Mos. iii. 5.

12. to our brethren in Babylon, i. e. the two and a half tribes. Cf. verse 19. In 4 Baruch the letter is addressed to Jeremiah; not so here. See x. 2, note. This letter is lost.

depart, i. e. die (xl. 2, note).

14 And we are left in the darkness,
And amid the †trees of the forest†,
And the thirst of the wilderness.'

15 And I answered and said unto them :
'Shepherds and lamps and fountains come from the law :
And though we depart, yet the law abideth.

16 If therefore ye have respect to the law,
And are intent upon wisdom,
A lamp will not be wanting,
And a shepherd will not fail,
And a fountain will not dry up.

17 Nevertheless, as ye said unto me, I will write also unto your brethren in Babylon, and I will send by means of men, and I will write in like manner to the nine tribes and a half, and send by means of 18 a bird.' And it came to pass on the one and twentieth day in the eighth month that I, Baruch, came and sat down under the oak under the shadow of the branches, and no man was with me, but 19 I was alone. And I wrote these two epistles : one I sent by an eagle to the nine and a half tribes ;
20 and the other I sent to those that were at Babylon by means of three men. And I called the eagle 21 and spake these words unto it : 'The Most High hath made thee that thou shouldst be higher than 22 all birds. And now go and tarry not in (any) place, nor enter a nest, nor settle upon any tree, till thou hast passed over the breadth of the many waters of the river Euphrates, and hast gone to the 23 people that dwell there, and cast down to them this epistle. Remember, moreover, that, at the time of the deluge, Noah received from a dove the fruit of the olive, when he sent it forth from the ark.
25 Yea, also the ravens ministered to Elijah, bearing him food, as they had been commanded. Solomon also, in the time of his kingdom, whithersoever he wished to send or seek for anything, 26 commanded a bird (to go thither), and it obeyed him as he commanded it. And now let it not weary thee, and turn not to the right hand nor the left, but fly and go by a direct way, that thou mayst preserve the command of the Mighty One, according as I said unto thee.'

LXXVIII-LXXXVI. THE EPISTLE OF BARUCH THE SON OF NERIAH WHICH HE WROTE TO THE NINE AND A HALF TRIBES.

8 1 These are the words of that epistle which Baruch the son of Neriah sent to the nine and a half
2 tribes, which were across the river Euphrates, in which these things were written. Thus saith Baruch 3 the son of Neriah to the brethren carried into captivity : 'Mercy and peace.' I bear in mind, my brethren, the love of Him who created us, who loved us from of old, and never hated us, but above 4 all educated us. And truly I know that behold all we the twelve tribes are bound by one bond, 5 inasmuch as we are born from one father. Wherefore I have been the more careful to leave you the words of this epistle before I die, that ye may be comforted regarding the evils which have come upon you, and that ye may be grieved also regarding the evil that has befallen your brethren ; and again, also, that ye may justify His judgement which He has decreed against you that ye should be

14. left in the darkness: xlvi. 2 ; 4 Ezra xiv. 20.

†trees = עֵצִים, possibly corrupt for עֲצָבִים = 'toils'. But whether this is so or not, the general sense is clear. In verse 13 three things have been lost : shepherds to guide the people, lamps to give light to them, and fountains to satisfy their thirst. Now, owing to the loss of the lamps, the people are 'left in darkness', owing to the loss of the fountains they suffer from the 'thirst of the wilderness'. Hence the second line must deal with the evils that followed on the loss of the shepherds, and its restoration must satisfy this requirement. Accordingly I offer the following suggestion : that בְּחֶסֶד וְחַסְדָּא is corrupt for בְּחֶסֶד וְחַסְדָּא = 'without pasture', or 'without a shepherd'.

16. shepherd. So Ceriani emends בְּחֶסֶד וְחַסְדָּא = 'mind', into בְּחֶסֶד וְחַסְדָּא.

17. by means of men. In 4 Baruch an eagle carries Baruch's letter to Jeremiah at Babylon.

21. Cf. 4 Baruch vii. 3 : 'Elect above all the birds of heaven.'

23. Cf. Gen. viii. 11 ; 4 Baruch vii. 10.

LXXVIII. 1. The nine and a half tribes. In this book the tribes of Israel carried away by the king of Assyria are always so designated, except in i. 2. Cf. John Malalas 158. In 4 Ezra xiii. 40 they are called 'the ten tribes' in the Latin version, 'the nine and a half tribes' in the Syriac and Arabic versions, and 'the nine tribes' in the Ethiopic version.

2. Mercy and peace + 'unto you' c. Cf. 1 Tim. i. 2.

3. In the genuine parts of B¹ Baruch speaks frequently in the first person singular, but not in the interpolated portions.

5. justify. See xxi. 9, note. Cf. Ps. li. 4.

carried away captive—for what ye have suffered is disproportioned to what ye have done—in order that, at the last times, ye may be found worthy of your fathers. Therefore, if ye consider that ye have now suffered those things for your good, that ye may not finally be condemned and tormented, then ye will receive eternal hope; if above all ye destroy from your heart vain error, on account of which ye departed hence. For if ye so do these things, He will continually remember you, He who always promised on our behalf to those who were more excellent than we, that He will never forget or forsake us, but with much mercy will gather together again those who were dispersed.

79 ¹ Now, my brethren, learn first what befell Zion: how that Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came ² up against us. For we have sinned against Him who made us, and we have not kept the commandments which he commanded us, yet he hath not chastened us as we deserved. For what befell you we also suffer in a pre-eminent degree, for it befell us also.

80 ¹ And now, my brethren, I make known unto you that when the enemy had surrounded the city, the angels of the Most High were sent, and they overthrew the fortifications of the strong wall, and ² they destroyed the firm iron corners, which could not be rooted out. Nevertheless, they hid all ³ the vessels of the sanctuary, lest the enemy should get possession of them. And when they had done these things, they delivered thereupon to the enemy the overthrown wall, and the plundered house, and the burnt temple, and the people who were overcome because they were delivered up, lest the enemy should boast and say: 'Thus by force have we been able to lay waste even the house of the ⁴ Most High in war.' Your brethren also have they bound and led away to Babylon, and have caused ^{5, 6} them to dwell there. But we have been left here, being very few. This is the tribulation about ⁷ which I wrote to you. For assuredly I know that (the consolation of) the inhabitants of Zion consoleth you: so far as ye knew that it was prospered (your consolation) was greater than the tribulation which ye endured in having to depart from it.

81 ^{1, 2} But regarding consolation, hear ye the word. For I was mourning regarding Zion, and I prayed for mercy from the Most High, and I said:

³ 'How long will these things endure for us?
And will these evils come upon us always?'

⁴ And the Mighty One did according to the multitude of His mercies,
And the Most High according to the greatness of His compassion,
And He revealed unto me the word, that I might receive consolation,
And He showed me visions that I should not again endure anguish,
And He made known to me the mystery of the times.
And the advent of the hours he showed me.

82 ¹ Therefore, my brethren, I have written to you, that ye may comfort yourselves regarding the ² multitude of your tribulations. For know ye that our Maker will assuredly avenge us on all our enemies, according to all that they have done to us, also that the consummation which the Most High will make is very nigh, and His mercy that is coming, and the consummation of His judgement, is by no means far off.

5. the last times, i. e. the Return, verse 7.

7. those who were more excellent. The patriarchs.

with much mercy. In 4 Ezra xiv. 34, 35, after death the righteous obtain mercy. Here Israel obtains it in their Return.

gather together . . . dispersed. Cf. lxxvii. 6; lxxxiv. 2, 8, 1c. For the Return spoken of in the O.T. and elsewhere, see my Commentary, in loc. The return in B¹ accords well with the rebuilding of Jerusalem expected in B¹. See i. 4; vi. 9, notes.

LXXIX. 2. chastened. Cf. i. 5; xiii. 10.

LXXX. This chapter resembles and implies vi-viii, but conflicts with lxvii.

2. all the vessels. Syr. 'the vessels of the vessels' = כלים מכלי, corrupt for כל כלי.

lest the enemy should get possession of them. Syr. reads 'lest they should be polluted by the enemy' = פן יחלו מאויבים, corrupt for פן ינחלום אויבים, as in vi. 8.

4. Jeremiah not mentioned. See x. 2, note.

5. Jer. xlii. 2.

7. (the consolation of) the inhabitants of Zion consoleth, &c. صحا requires a subject. In lxxvii. 12 the people ask Baruch to send to their brethren in Babylon 'a scroll of hope'. Hence some such word is needed here, i. e. صحا = 'consolation' as in lxxxi. 1, 4. Ryssel proposes most extraordinarily to insert 'tribulation' where I have added 'consolation'. The tribulation of the Jews in Zion is to comfort the exiles in Babylon!

LXXXI. As in lxxx. 7 the nine and a half tribes were consoled when Jerusalem prospered and were grieved at its downfall, Baruch has now a word of consolation for them touching Zion; for God has comforted him by a revelation regarding it.

1. consolation, i. e. Zion's restoration. Cf. xlv. 7.

4. mystery. ch read 'mysteries.'

LXXXII. I am doubtful whether lxxxii. 2-9 belongs to B¹ or B²; perhaps the latter.

3 For lo! we see now the multitude of the prosperity of the Gentiles,
Though they act impiously,
But they shall be like a vapour :

4 And we behold the multitude of their power,
Though they do wickedly,
But they shall be 'made like unto a drop :

5 And we see the firmness of their might.
Though they resist the Mighty One every hour,
But they shall be accounted as spittle.

6 And we consider the glory of their greatness,
Though they do not keep the statutes of the Most High,
But as smoke shall they pass away.

7 And we meditate on the beauty of their gracefulness,
Though they have to do with pollutions,
But as grass that withers shall they fade away.

8 And we consider the strength of their cruelty,
Though they remember not the end (thereof),
But as a wave that passes shall they be broken.

9 And we remark the boastfulness of their might,
Though they deny the beneficence of God, who gave (it) to them,
But they shall pass away as a passing cloud.

13 1 [For the Most High will assuredly hasten His times,
And He will assuredly bring on His hours.

lxxxiii =
B²

2 And He will assuredly judge those who are in His world,
And will visit in truth all things by means of all their hidden works.

3 And He will assuredly examine the secret thoughts,
And that which is laid up in the secret chambers of all the members of man.
And will make (them) manifest in the presence of all with reproof.

4 Let none therefore of these present things ascend into your hearts, but above all let us be expectant, because that which is promised to us shall come. And let us not now look unto the delights of the Gentiles in the present, but let us remember what has been promised to us in the end. For the ends of the times and of the seasons and whatsoever is with them shall assuredly pass by together. The consummation, moreover, of the age shall then show the great might of its ruler, when all things come to judgement. Do ye therefore prepare your hearts for that which before ye believed, lest ye come to be in bondage in both worlds, so that ye be led away captive here and be tormented there. For that which exists now or which has passed away, or which is to come, in all these things, neither is the evil fully evil, nor again the good fully good.

10 For all healthinesses of this time are turning into diseases,

11 And all might of this time is turning into weakness,
And all the force of this time is turning into impotence,

12 And every energy of youth is turning into old age and consummation.

3, 4. a vapour . . . a drop. Cf. 4 Ezra vii. 61, vi. 56 (Isa. xl. 15).

5. accounted as spittle. The text here and in 4 Ezra vi. 56 agrees with LXX against the Hebrew.

LXXXIII. This chapter seems to belong to B². The times are to be hastened (lxxxiii. 1, 6) and everything brought to judgement (2, 3, 7); let them attend not to the present but to the end and its joys (4, 5), and hold to their old faith, to avoid torment in the world to come (8), for this world is passing away with its strength, its virtues and its lusts (9-23). There is a close connexion between lxxxiii and xx. This chapter seems to have formed originally part of Baruch's address to the people, and to have followed on xlv. 8-15.

3. See 4 Ezra xvi. 65. Cf. 1 Cor. iv. 5; also Heb. iv. 12.

4. Let none therefore, &c. Cf. Col. iii. 2 τὰ ἄνω φρονεῖτε. promised. See xiv. 13, note.

8. prepare your hearts. See xxxii. 1, note.

that which before ye believed, refers to apostates, i. e. Christians who had left Judaism. Cf. xli. 3.

10. Probably we have here a play on words כל-מרפא מעתה יהפך למרפא.

11, 12, 13. might . . . beauty . . . dominion. xxi. 14; xlviii. 35.

And every beauty of gracefulness of this time is turning faded and hateful, 13 And every proud dominion of the present is turning into humiliation and shame,
 14 And every praise of the glory of this time is turning into the shame of silence,
 And every vain splendour and insolence of this time is turning into voiceless ruin.
 15 And every delight and joy of this time is turning to worms and corruption, 16 And every clamour of the pride of this time is turning into dust and stillness.
 17 And every possession of riches of this time is being turned into Sheol alone, 18 And all the rapine of passion of this time is turning into involuntary death,
 And every passion of the lusts of this time is turning into a judgement of torment.
 19 And every artifice and craftiness of this time is turning into a proof of the truth,
 20 And every sweetness of unguents of this time is turning into judgement and condemnation, 21 And every love of lying is turning to contumely through truth.
 22 Since therefore all these things are done now, does anyone think that they will not be avenged?
 But the consummation of all things will come to the truth.]

84 1 Behold! I have therefore made known unto you (these things) whilst I live: for I have said (it) ^{lxxx} that ye should learn the things that are excellent; for the Mighty One hath commanded me to ^{B¹} instruct you: and I will set before you some of the commandments of His judgement before I die.
 2 Remember that formerly Moses assuredly called heaven and earth to witness against you and said:
 3 'If ye transgress the law ye shall be dispersed, but if ye keep it ye shall be kept.' And other 4 things also he used to say unto you when ye the twelve tribes were together in the desert. And after his death ye cast them away from you: on this account there came upon you what had been 5 predicted. And now Moses used to tell you before they befell you, and lo! they have befallen you:
 6 for ye have forsaken the law. Lo! I also say unto you after ye have suffered, that if ye obey those things which have been said unto you, ye will receive from the Mighty One whatever has been laid 7 up and reserved for you. Moreover, let this epistle be for a testimony between me and you, that ye may remember the commandments of the Mighty One, and that also there may be to me a defence 8 in the presence of Him who sent me. And remember ye the law and Zion, and the holy land and 9 your brethren, and the covenant of your fathers, and forget not the festivals and the sabbaths. And deliver ye this epistle and the traditions of the law to your sons after you, as also your fathers 10 delivered (them) to you. And at all times make request perseveringly and pray diligently with your whole heart that the Mighty One may be reconciled to you, and that He may not reckon the 11 multitude of your sins, but remember the rectitude of your fathers. For if He judge us not according to the multitude of His mercies, woe unto all us who are born.

85 1 [Know ye, moreover, that ^{lxxx}
 In former times and in the generations of old our fathers had helpers, ^{B³} Righteous men and holy prophets:
 2 Nay more, we were in our own land
 [And they helped us when we sinned],

12. beauty . . . hateful. Cf. xlvi. 35.

14. glory . . . shame. Again a play on words in the Hebrew כבוד . . . קלון.

LXXXIV. 1. learn . . . instruct you. So bdghilWP. c reads 'above all things learn the commandments of the Mighty One wherein I should instruct you'.

2. See xix. 2, note. In this verse we get several traces of the Hebrew original: the idiom הער העיר; the play on 'keep' and 'kept'; and perhaps a paronomasia in 'transgress' and 'be dispersed' תסורו and תזורו.

be kept. So all MSS. but c which reads 'be planted'.

6. The nine and a half tribes must endure chastisement before they could attain to the promised happiness. This chastisement was for their well-being (lxxviii. 6); was less than they deserved (lxxix. 2), and was intended to make them worthy of their fathers in the last days (lxxviii. 5).

10. that the Mighty One may be reconciled to you. Cf. 4 Ezra x. 24. The return to Palestine is to follow the reconciliation (lxxviii. 7).

the rectitude of your fathers. For their merit see xiv. 7, note; and contrast this next verse.

LXXXV. An interpolation, B³. The restored Jerusalem and the return expected in B¹ is here implicitly denied, as in B². This world is lost, and only spiritual blessedness is looked for in the world of incorruption. B³ is more individualistic than B², and moreover was written outside Palestine (lxxxv. 2, 3), whereas B² seems to have been written in Jerusalem. B³ is the most pessimistic part of this book.

1-3. In these verses we have a strophe of five lines and an antistrophe. I have bracketed two clauses in verse 2 as interpolations.

1. Jeremiah's generation seems far in the past.

2. The writer is among the Dispersion.

they helped us. Cf. 4 Baruch ii. 3.

And they interceded for us with Him who made us,
 [Because they trusted in their works],
 And the Mighty One heard their prayer and forgave us.

3 But now the righteous have been gathered
 And the prophets have fallen asleep,
 And we also have gone forth from the land,
 And Zion has been taken from us,
 And we have nothing now save the Mighty One and His law.

4 If therefore we direct and dispose our hearts,
 We shall receive everything that we lost,
 And much better things than we lost by many times.

5 For what we have lost was subject to corruption,
 And what we shall receive shall not be corruptible.

6 [Moreover, also, I have written thus to our brethren to Babylon, that to them also I may attest these very things.]

7 And let all those things aforesaid be always before your eyes,
 Because we are still in the spirit and the power of our liberty.

8 Again, moreover, the Most High also is long-suffering towards us here,
 And He hath shown to us that which is to be,
 And hath not concealed from us what will befall in the end.

9 Before therefore judgement exact its own,
 And truth that which is its due,
 Let us prepare our soul
 That we may possess, and not be taken possession of,
 And that we may hope and not be put to shame,
 And that we may rest with our fathers, and not be tormented with our enemies.

10 For the youth of the world is past,
 And the strength of the creation already exhausted,
 And the advent of the times is very short,
 Yea, they have passed by ;
 And the pitcher is near to the cistern,
 And the ship to the port,
 And the course of the journey to the city,
 And life to (its) consummation.

11 And again prepare your souls, so that when ye sail and ascend from the ship ye may have rest 12 and not be condemned when ye depart. For lo! when the Most High will bring to pass all these things,

There shall not there be again [a place of repentance, nor] a limit to the times,
 Nor a duration for the hours,
 Nor a change of ways,
 Nor place for prayer,
 Nor sending of petitions,
 Nor receiving of knowledge,
 Nor giving of love, trusted in their works. The dead righteous avail not, only the living. See xiv. 7, note; lxiii. 3.

3. we have nothing now save the Mighty One and His law. The law was Israel's everlasting and unconditional possession. Cf. Josephus, c. Apion. ii. 38. The land, the sanctuary, and the kingdom of David were conditional (Mechilta, 68^b). Cf. xlvi. 22. With the law Israel could not fall.

6. This verse is due to the final editor.

7. the power of our liberty, i. e. enjoy free-will. Cf. 4 Ezra ix. 11; 1 Cor. vii. 37; Acts i. 7; v. 4; Pss. Sol. ix. 7. On the doctrine see liv. 15, note.

8. hath shown to us. In B¹ Baruch does not use the plural 'we' and 'us' in this connexion. See lxxviii. 3 note.

9. that we may possess, &c. Probably corrupt.

rest with our fathers. Cf. xi. 4.

10. the youth of the world is past. Cf. 4 Ezra xiv. 10, 16; v. 50-66.

12. [a place of repentance nor]. This phrase is a dittograph of what follows later. The idea is here in its wrong context, whereas it is in its right context later. Finally it is against the parallelism.

Nor place of repentance for the soul,
 Nor supplication for offences,
 Nor intercession of the fathers,
 Nor prayer of the prophets,
 Nor help of the righteous.

13 There there is the sentence of corruption,
 The way of fire,
 And the path which bringeth to Gehenna.

14 On this account there is one law by one,
 One age and an end for all who are in it.

15 Then He will preserve those whom He can forgive,
 And at the same time destroy those who are polluted with sins.]

86^{1, 2} When therefore ye receive this my epistle, read it in your congregations with care. And meditate ³ thereon, above all on the days of your fasts. And bear me in mind by means of this epistle, as I also bear you in mind in it, and always. Fare ye well.

LXXXVII. The Dispatch of the Letter to the Nine and a Half Tribes.

87¹ And it came to pass when I had ended all the words of this epistle, and had written it sedulously to its close, that I folded it, and sealed it carefully, and bound it to the neck of the eagle, and dismissed and sent it.

HERE ENDS THE BOOK OF BARUCH THE SON OF NERIAH.

nor place of repentance. ⁴ Ezra ix. 12. This is the universal teaching in the Books of Enoch and 4 Ezra.

intercession of the fathers. Cf. 4 Ezra vii. 102-15; 2 Enoch liii. 1.

14. one law by one. Moses is meant; in the Ass. Mos. iii. 12, he is called the mediator of the law. Thus this verse is directed against Christians. It seems out of place.

LXXXVI. 3. Fare ye well (a b d e f g h i W P). > c.

LXXXVII. This chapter is found only in c, but it belongs to the book. Cf. lxxvii. 17, 20-6.

bound it to the neck of the eagle. ⁴ Baruch vii. 8.

THE GREEK APOCALYPSE OF BARUCH OR III BARUCH

INTRODUCTION

§ 1. SHORT ACCOUNT OF THE BOOK.

UNTIL the end of the last century this apocalypse was unknown. Its existence was surmised from a passage in Origen (de Princip. ii. 3. 6), 'Denique etiam Baruch prophetae librum in assertionis huius testimonium vocant, quod ibi de septem mundis vel caelis evidentius indicatur.' About 1896 the Rev. E. C. Butler, O.S.B., drew the attention of Dr. M. R. James to a manuscript in the British Museum of a Greek apocalypse which answered in part to Origen's description. It contains an account not of seven heavens but of five, but the conclusion is evidently incomplete, and the existence of other heavens is implied. This text was edited and published by Dr. James in 1897. A Slavonic version of the book had been known previously, and was published in the Starinc, vol. xviii, pp. 205-9, by Novakovic in 1886. This version, however, is less complete than the Greek, and mentions only two heavens.

Neither the Greek nor the Slavonic represents more than a condensation of the original.

In its present form the work is a composite production, belonging to the second century A. D. The Jewish original has been worked over by a Christian redactor, whose purpose it is to sound a note of stern warning to the unconverted Jews, and also to instil into the minds of Christians the need of patience and forbearance in dealing with them (see § 8 below).

§ 2. THE TITLE.

There are two superscriptions to the book. The first begins Διήγησις καὶ ἀποκάλυψις Βαρούχ κτλ.; the second Ἀποκάλυψις Βαρούχ κτλ. Dr. James names it Apocalypsis Baruchi Tertia Graece, and it is referred to as 3 Baruch in this edition.

§ 3. THE MSS.

The only known Greek manuscript of this apocalypse is that numbered Add. 10073 in the British Museum, which contains in addition several other works and fragments. It is a minuscule MS. on Italian paper, of the beginning of the sixteenth century. The Slavonic text published by Novakovic was found in a manuscript which possibly dates from the sixteenth century. This version is more abridged than the Greek. The main points of contact and difference between the two versions are indicated in the notes.

§ 4. RELATION TO OTHER BARUCH LITERATURE.

1. The apocryphal book of Baruch (1 Baruch). There is no point of contact between this book and 3 Baruch save that both raise the problem of the sufferings of Israel (cf. 1 Bar. iii. 1-8 and 3 Bar. i).

2. The Syriac Apocalypse of Baruch (2 Baruch). There are several similarities of expression in this apocalypse and our text. They are indicated in the notes. The parallelisms are not so close as to imply the necessary dependence of our apocalypse upon the Syriac. In 2 Baruch lxxvi. 3, Baruch is promised certain cosmical revelations, but the book contains no record that the promise was fulfilled. It has been contended that 3 Baruch was written to supply the deficiency in 2 Baruch. Ginzberg (Jewish Encyclopaedia) holds it to be questionable whether the author of 3 Baruch used 2 Baruch, and thinks that 2 Bar. lxxvi. 3 makes against rather than for such a supposition. 'The assumption is untenable that the Gk. apoc. was written to show the actual fulfilment of the promise. The critical point in the Syr. apoc. lies in this chapter, when Baruch before leaving the earth obtains a full survey of it, that he may see what he is leaving, and whither he is going. This idea is based upon an opinion held by Akiba b. Joseph (Sifre Num. 136) and others, that God allowed not only

III BARUCH

Moses, but other favoured pious men, to behold before their death the whole world and all the mysteries of nature. Now if the Gk. apoc. was complementary to the Syriac, the author of the former would not have failed to join his story of Baruch's passage through the heavens to that of his last act on earth.'

3. The Rest of the Words of Baruch (4 Baruch). In the Christian interpolation as to the vine in 3 Bar. iv occurs τὸ πικρὸν τούτου μεταβληθήσεται εἰς γλυκύ, which recalls τὰ γλυκέα ὕδατα ἀλμυρὰ γενήσονται in 4 Bar. ix. 16. But this cannot be held to be a very close parallelism. In ch. xi of our apocalypse Michael is called ὁ κλειδοῦχος τῆς βασιλείας τῶν οὐρανῶν and in 4 Bar. ix. 5 (Aeth.) he is described as the archangel who holds open the gates of righteousness until the righteous enter in. The closest references to 4 Baruch in 3 Baruch are in the superscription, in which mention is made of the long sleep of Abimelech in the Garden of Agrippa (cf. 4 Bar. iii. 9-v. 30). But it is impossible to avoid the suspicion that the superscription is a later addition, especially as it is in the third person, whereas ch. i is in the first.

§ 5. RELATION TO OTHER APOCALYPTIC LITERATURE.

1. Slavonic Enoch. There is a very close connexion between 2 Enoch xi-xv and 3 Bar. vi-ix. In each case there is a reference to the chariot of the sun and of the moon, the attendant angels, the renewing of the sun's crown. 2 En. contains the only reference in literature to the existence of more than one phoenix at a time, and associates with them other birds called chalkydri. In 3 Baruch there is only one phoenix, and it, in language like that of the birds in 2 En. xv. 1 f., sings 'Light-giver, give to the world radiance.'

2. Apoc. Pauli. The reference to the defilement of the sun by the unrighteousness of men (3 Bar. viii) finds a parallel in Apoc. Pauli 4 'Multum etenim sol quidem, luminare magnum, interpellavit dominum dicens: Domine deus omnipotens, ego prospicio super impietates et iniusticias hominum: permitte me et faciam eis (quae) sunt virtutes meae, ut cognoscant quia tu es solus deus. Et facta est uox ad eum dicens: Haec omnia noui; oculus enim meus uidit et auris audit, sed paciencia mea sustinet eos, dum ad usque conuertentes peniteantur. Sin uero non reuertuntur ad me omnes ego iudicabo.'

Chs. xii and xiii of our apoc. find a close parallel in chs. 7-10 of Apoc. Pauli (see note below under ch. xii). James thinks it likely that Apoc. Pauli is a pasticcio of a rather late date. The relation of the two books to each other is not clear. It is not likely that 3 Baruch has been altered to bring it into conformity with Apoc. Pauli, for as we shall endeavour to show (see § 8 below), the three classes of angels with their respectively full, half-full, and empty baskets were essential to the purpose of the Christian redactor. It is not improbable that the motive which induced him to work over this apocalypse to give it a Christian form is to be found in the didactic use he could make of this incident. Either then the passage in Apoc. Pauli is derived from 3 Baruch, or both are taken from a common source.

3. A few points of contact with the Story of Zosimas (Apoc. Anecdota 1) are indicated in the notes. They are not such as to imply necessary dependence.

§ 6. COMPOSITE NATURE OF THE TEXT.

The framework of this apocalypse is characteristically Jewish. The story that the vine was the forbidden tree, the cosmic revelations, showing kinship with the Enoch literature, and the angelology—all mark it out as a work of Jewish origin. The hand of a Christian redactor can be traced in certain interpolations. In ch. iv a long passage is introduced to reconcile the story that the vine was the forbidden tree with the use of wine in the Eucharist. This section is full of Christian phrases (see notes). The Editor's influence is most evident in the concluding chapters (xi-xvii). The original conclusion is missing from our text, and these chapters probably represent a somewhat drastic treatment of the groundwork. It is probable that we have to deal here not merely with interpolations, but with a partial reconstruction of the text. So far as possible the influence of the redactor is indicated in the notes.

James attributes the lists of sins in chs. iv, viii, xiii to Christian influence, and compares them with Matt. xv. 19 and Gal. v. 21 (cf. also Rom. i. 29-31). It may of course be so, but it is not a necessary assumption. The lists are by no means the same. Our apocalypse does not reproduce the order of either Matt. or Paul, and it omits some of the sins enumerated by them. It must be admitted, however, that all included in the lists of 3 Baruch occur in some form in the Pauline Epistles (except μαντεία). But on the other hand it must be remembered that such lists were part of the stock-in-trade of the Jewish, and indeed of other ancient writers. The Tests of the Twelve Patri- archs speak of spirits of πορνείας, ἀπληστείας γαστρούς, μάχης, ἀρεσκείας καὶ μαγγανείας, ὑπερηφανείας, ψεύδους, ἀδικίας (T. Reub. iii. 3-6); τοῦ ζήλου καὶ τῆς ἀλαζονείας (T. Dan. i. 6); τῆς πλάνης καὶ τοῦ φθόνου (T. Sim. iii. 1); τοῦ θυμοῦ (T. Dan. ii. 4); ἐπιθυμίας, πυρώσεως, ἀσωτίας, ἀσχροκερδίας (T. Jud. xvi. 1). There are also similar lists in Wisd. xiv. 25 f. αἷμα καὶ φόνος, κλοπή· καὶ δόλος, φθορά, ἀπιστία, τάραχος, ἐπιorkία . . . μοιχεία καὶ ἀσέλγεια; and in 2 En. x. 4, sodomy, witchcraft, enchantments, devilish magic, stealing, lying, calumnies, envy, evil thoughts, fornication, and murder.

INTRODUCTION

Deissman (Light from the Ancient East, pp. 320 ff.) contends that the Primitive Christian lists of virtues and vices were based on Jewish and pagan series. He refers to counters used in an ancient game, which have been discovered, upon which are inscribed a large number of popular names of vices and virtues. 'Although we have not yet recovered all the counters necessary for the game . . . the parallels with St. Paul strike us immediately. Take for instance the list of vices in 1 Cor. vi. 9, 10. With the exception of "covetous", which is rather colourless, and "idolaters", which is not to be expected in a pagan list, all these will be found substantially word for word on the counters.' He also points to some striking parallels between the lists in St. Paul and Plautus.

§ 7. THE AUTHOR.

Ginzberg (Jewish Encyc.) is of opinion that the author was a Jewish Gnostic of the beginning of the second century, 'when gnosis was at its height both among Jews and Christians'. He bases his view upon the mediatorial functions ascribed to Michael and his angels, and upon the traces of Greek and Oriental mythology found in the Apocalypse. But it is difficult to discern Gnostic influences in the teaching as to mediation, since it shows little advance on Tobit and T. Levi (see § 10 below, and note on ch. xii). But if there is not sufficient evidence to show that the author was a Gnostic, it is clear that his Judaism was tempered by a Hellenic-Oriental syncretism.

§ 8. THE CHRISTIAN REDACTOR.

Apart from the interpolation as to the vine, the hand of the Christian redactor is most evident in the concluding chapters. It is said of the men committed to the charge of the angels who bring empty baskets, that they will not enter the Church, nor among spiritual fathers (ch. xiii); they are to be 'provoked against a people that is no people, a people that has no understanding'; they are 'despisers of God's commandments, and insolent towards the priests who proclaim God's words to them' (ch. xvi). The Slavonic says: 'They do not gather together in the church of God for the sake of prayer, and instead of prayer they bring cursings.' It is difficult to avoid the suspicion that in each case the reference is to the Jews. Their provocation 'against a people that is no people' when read in the light of Rom. x. 19 can only refer to the anger of the Jews against the Gentile Christians. To whom is the phrase 'instead of prayer they bring cursings' so applicable as to the Jews?

4 Baruch like 3 Baruch seems to be in part at any rate a Jewish work recast by a Christian editor. According to Dr. Rendel Harris the former was issued in its present form soon after A. D. 136 as an eirenicon to the synagogue after Hadrian's edict banishing the Jews from Jerusalem. It was in effect an invitation to the Jews to evade that edict by submitting to baptism and joining the church, since the edict did not apply to Christians. According to Dr. Harris the book reflects a conflict between the old school of Jews and the Gentile Christians for the possession of the intermediate party, the Judaeo-Christians of various types. 'What makes one a little more confident in this interpretation that it was an appeal on the part of the Gentile Christians, or at least of the Gentilizing Christians to the more conservative, half-convinced among their Jewish brethren, is that we find from the account that some undecided people in the middle ground came part way to Jerusalem, and then returned; and that on their returning to Babylon they were received with an intimation that as they had secretly departed from them, they would not be received again: Babylon would have none of them. This, according to the story, leads to the formation of a new colony which is derisively called Samaria. Now this is not difficult of interpretation, if we imagine that there were those who had gone so far from Judaism as to provoke an edict against their being received again into ecclesiastical fellowship, and yet had not come so near to Christianity as to be able to pass the baptismal standards. In this case, then, one result of the Hadrian edict is the formation of a new Ebionite movement in Palestine. This exactly agrees with the statements of Epiphanius and Jerome as to the origin of Ebionism; they attempted to be both Jews and Christians, and ended by being neither' (Rest of the Words of Baruch, p. 15).

There were therefore three parties in the writer's mind, the Jews who stubbornly resisted the Gospel, the middle party of waverers, and the Christians. It seems to me that the same parties are reflected in 3 Baruch. The angels with the full baskets represent the Christians (ch. xii); those with the half-full baskets the half-converted Jews (ch. xii); and those with the empty baskets the Jews who stubbornly resisted and opposed the Gospel (chs. xiii, xvi). Ch. xvi (especially in the Slavonic) exhorts the angels to be patient with Israel, and at the same time announces terrible judgements against the people if they continue unrepentant. The purpose of the Christian redactor was therefore to appeal to the church for patience and long-suffering in their endeavour to convert the Jews, and also to utter a note of stern warning to the Jews themselves.

III BARUCH

§ 9. THE DATE.

The limits within which our Apocalypse must have been written are, on the one hand, 2 Enoch (A.D. 1-50), of whose influence it bears traces, and, on the other hand, Origen, who describes it. If the reference to Abimelech's long sleep, in the superscription, occurred in the original, then it must be dated subsequent to 4 Baruch (A.D. 136). But as we have seen, it is possible that the superscription is a later addition. We shall probably not err in dating the original 3 Baruch near the beginning of the second century, especially as its syncretism harmonizes with the tendency of that age.

The data for determining the date of the Christian redaction are even fewer, for as the Apocalypse which Origen saw contained an account of seven heavens, the passage in de Princip. does not fix a terminus ad quem for our form of the text. But since (as shown in § 7 above), like 4 Baruch, its motive seems to be the conversion of Jews and Ebionites, it is probable that the same circumstances called it forth, and that it was written soon after A.D. 136. The suggestion may be hazarded that the superscription referring to Abimelech was added by the Christian redactor as a result of his acquaintance with 4 Baruch.

On the other hand, it must be admitted that πνευματικούς πατέρας and ιερείς, as applied to a Christian minister, are undoubtedly later expressions, but it is possible that a later editor or scribe is responsible for them.

§ 10. THEOLOGY OF THE BOOK.

1. The Seven Heavens. Traces of the belief in a plurality of heavens are to be found in the O.T. (Deut. x. 14, 1 Kings viii. 27, Ps. cxlviii. 4), and more clearly in the N.T. (2 Cor. xii. 2, Eph. i. 3, 20, ii. 6, iii. 10, vi. 12; Heb. iv. 14, vii. 26). The conception is found in Babylonian, Parsee, and Greek thought, as well as in apocalyptic and Rabbinic literature. It also appears in early Christian writings. The subject is treated at length in its relation to Greek, Oriental, Jewish, and Christian literature in Charles's Book of the Secrets of Enoch (pp. xxx-xlvii), and by Salmond in Hastings' D. B. (ii. 321-3). It will suffice here to indicate the teaching of apocalyptic and Rabbinic literature on the subject.

The Testaments of the Twelve Patriarchs. The account is found in T. Levi ii. 7-iii. 8, which contains several redactions of the original text. Charles is of opinion that the original description of three heavens has been transformed into a description of the seven.

The First Heaven. The waters above the firmament, and the treasuries of fire, ice, and snow. It is a gloomy place and contains the instruments for the punishment of wicked men (a).

The Second Heaven. Characterized by brightness. Abode of the angels who are to destroy the hosts of Belial (a). Treasuries of fire, snow, and ice (A a, β, A β, S¹).

The Third Heaven. Angelic armies who are to destroy the hosts of Belial (β, A β, S¹).

The Fourth Heaven. 'Thrones and dominions' who sing praise to God.

The Fifth Heaven. Angels who carry up men's prayers to the angels of the presence.

The Sixth Heaven. Archangels who make propitiation to God for the sins of men.

The Seventh Heaven. The abode of God.

2 Enoch.

The First Heaven. Great sea. Rulers of the stars. Treasuries of snow, ice, clouds, and dew and their guardians (iii-vi).

The Second Heaven. Darkness. Imprisoned angels awaiting judgement (vii).

The Third Heaven. Paradise prepared for the righteous; and, on the north, Hell for the wicked (viii-x). Cf. 2 Cor. xii. 2-4.

The Fourth Heaven. Sun, moon, and attendant angels; phoenixes and chalkidri. An armed host of angels praising God (xi-xvii).

The Fifth Heaven. The Watchers whose brethren are imprisoned in the Second Heaven (A). Great hosts (B).

The Sixth Heaven. Seven bands of angels, set over the works of creation, and the souls of men (xix).

INTRODUCTION

The Seventh Heaven. Abode of God and the archangels (xx).

Ascension of Isaiah. Sammael and his angels are located in the firmament. Then follow six heavens, each with a throne and angels increasing in glory with each successive heaven. Isaiah is transfigured as he ascends from heaven to heaven. The seventh heaven is the abode of God and all the righteous. Here too are stored the garments of the saints (vii-xi; cf. iv. 14 ff.).

3 Baruch.

The First Heaven. A plain. The builders of the Tower of Babel.

The Second Heaven. A plain. The designers of the Tower of Babel.

The Third Heaven. A great serpent. Hades. Sun, moon, and attendant angels. The Phoenix.

The Fourth Heaven. Plain. A pool. Birds (= souls of the righteous) singing praise to God.

The Fifth Heaven. Michael receives men's prayers from the angels. There is a suggestion of other heavens beyond.

Chagigah 12. The Seven Heavens are enumerated according to name.

Vilon serves no purpose whatever, save that it enters in the morning and goes forth in the evening, and renews every day the work of creation.

Rakia is that in which are set sun and moon, stars and constellations.

Shechakim is that in which the millstones stand, which grind manna for the righteous.

Zbul contains the heavenly Jerusalem and the Temple. The altar is built there, and Michael offers sacrifice upon it.

Makhon contains the treasures of hail, the high dwelling-place of harmful dews, the chamber of the whirlwind and of the storm, and the retreat of noisome vapour. And their doors are made of fire.

Araboth is that in which are righteousness, judgement, and grace; the treasures of life and peace and blessing; the souls of the righteous; the spirits and souls which are about to be created; and the dew with which the Holy One is about to quicken mortals. There are also celestials and seraphs, and holy beings and ministering angels, and the throne of glory and the King, the Living God.

2. Doctrine of the Mediation of Angels. Perhaps the most characteristic doctrinal feature of this Apoc. is its teaching as to the mediation of Angels (xi-xvii). There are traces of this doctrine in the O.T. (Gen. xvi. 7 ff., xxi. 17 ff., xxviii. 12). There was a great development in Israel's angelology in post-exilic days (Is. lxiii. 9, Dan. x. 13, 21, xii. 1). This was due to three causes: (a) Advancing ideas of the Divine transcendence, and a growing feeling against anthropomorphic conceptions of God. (b) 'A tendency to personify abstract conceptions such as the "spirit" of a nation, and a further tendency to locate these personified forces in the supersensible world, from whence they ruled the destinies of men' (Davidson). (c) The stimulus of contact with Persian thought. The seven archangels, e.g., are connected with the Zoroastrian Amesha Spentas. It is important to notice, however, that there is only one clear instance in the O.T. of angels interceding on behalf of men (Zech. i. 12). They are the messengers of God to man, not of man to God.

But the belief in the mediation of angels was not by any means universally accepted in post-exilic times. P never mentions angels, nor do they play a prominent part in the Apocrypha. Tobit, a book which bears evident marks of Persian influence, refers to the intercession of Raphael (iii. 16 f., xii. 12, 15). The mediation of a supernatural being is referred to in 2 Macc. xv. 12-15, but he is not called an angel. There is a marked dearth of references to angels in the other apocryphal books. In 4 Ezra (vii. 102 ff.) mediation of any kind is explicitly denied. It is only when we turn to the Pseudepigrapha that we find a highly developed doctrine of angels. Among the passages which explicitly teach angelic mediation are Eth. En. ix. 3 ff., xv. 2, xl. 6, xlvii. 2, xcix. 2, 16, civ. 1; T. Levi iii. 5; Test. Abraham xiv. The subject is treated at length in Oesterley, Jewish Doctrines of Mediation, pp. 37-44. See, too, notes below on chs. i, ii, xi, xii.

According to A. xxxiii. 8 the Sadducees denied the existence of angels. It is difficult to know how this is to be interpreted, since they received the written Scriptures. It may be, as Davidson suggests, that 'they interpreted the angelophanies of the written Scriptures received by them in a rational way as personified natural forces.' The Essenes held exaggerated doctrines on the subject. The Pharisees appear to have held a middle position, but it must be remembered that Pharisaism is a wide term, and that in all probability Eth. En. (in part), and the Tests. of the Twelve Patriarchs emanated from Pharisaic circles.

The N.T. reflects the current angelology, but its whole tendency is opposed to the conception of the mediation of angels. This idea occurs, however, in Rev. viii. 3. Swete is of opinion that the reference is the same in Heb. i. 14.

The only advance in our Apocalypse is in the introduction of the three classes of angels, who intercede for three classes of men. In other respects its doctrine does not differ from that of 1 Enoch, Tobit, and Test. Levi, and it cannot therefore be said that it marks an advance in the direction of Gnosticism. It is true that underlying 3 Baruch there is an advanced conception of the divine transcendence. At no point in the narrative is the veil that hides God lifted, and we are not permitted to behold even Michael's communion with Him. In 1 Macc. God is even more remote, for His transcendence is modified by no angelic mediation. Doctrines of the mediation of angels owed their origin in part to a feeling that such teaching was one-sided, and closed the door to communion with God. Gnosticism was an elaborate attempt to bring a transcendent God into some sort of touch with the world, through a hierarchy of mediators. But such teaching as appears in 3 Baruch does not go beyond beliefs that were current in some Jewish circles.

III BARUCH

3. The Fall. The forbidden tree was the vine, which the angel Sammael planted (see notes below on ch. iv). As in Wisd. (ii. 24) and 2 En. (xxxii. 3) Adam's disobedience is due to the Devil, who is prompted by envy. Too much must not be deduced from a writer's silence, but it may be noted that 3 Baruch does not enumerate inherited depravity and death among the consequences of the Fall. Adam 'obtained condemnation, and was divested of the glory of God'. His descendants suffer in so far as they are participators in the same sin, and those which spring from it, 'the men who now drink insatiably . . . transgress worse than Adam, and are far from the glory of God, and are surrendering themselves to the eternal fire.' This is not unlike the teaching of 2 Baruch, 'Adam is therefore not the cause save only of his own soul, but each one of us has been the Adam of his own soul' (liv. 19).

§ II. BIBLIOGRAPHY.

The Greek text is edited (with an introduction) by Dr. M. R. James in Cambridge Texts and Studies, vol. v, No. 1, Apocrypha Anecdota, iii, 1897. A German translation, with introduction and notes by Ryssel, is included in Kautzsch, Die Apok. und Pseudep. des A. T. ii. 446-57, 1900. The Slavonic version was published in the Starine, vol. xviii, pp. 205-9, 1886, and a German translation (with introduction) by Prof. Bonwetsch appeared in 1896 in the Nachrichten der K. Gesellschaft der Wissenschaften zu Göttingen, Heft i. An English translation of this version, by Mr. Morfill, appears in Cambridge Texts and Studies, v. 1.

The article of Ginzberg on this Apocalypse in the Jewish Encyclopaedia, and that of Zenos in Hastings' D. C. and G. (i. 86 f.), should be read.

THE GREEK APOCALYPSE OF BARUCH

OR III BARUCH

Prologue.

1 A narrative and revelation of Baruch, concerning those ineffable things which he saw by command of God. Bless Thou, O Lord.

2 A revelation of Baruch, who stood upon the river † Gel † weeping over the captivity of 3 Jerusalem, when also Abimelech was preserved by the hand of God, at the farm of Agrippa. And he was sitting thus at the beautiful gates, where the Holy of holies lay.

1 Verily I Baruch was weeping in my mind and sorrowing on account of the people, and that
2 Nebuchadnezzar the king was permitted by God to destroy His city, saying: Lord, why didst Thou set on fire Thy vineyard, and lay it waste? Why didst Thou do this? And why, Lord, didst Thou not requite us with another chastisement, but didst deliver us to nations such as these, so that they
3 reproach us and say, Where is their God? And behold as I was weeping and saying such things, I saw an angel of the Lord coming and saying to me: Understand, O man, greatly beloved, and trouble not thyself so greatly concerning the salvation of Jerusalem, for thus saith the Lord God,
4 the Almighty. For He sent me before thee, to make known and to show to thee all (the things)
5 of God. For thy prayer was heard before Him, and entered into the ears of the Lord God. And when he had said these things to me, I was silent. And the angel said to me: Cease to provoke
7 God, and I will show thee other mysteries, greater than these. And I Baruch said, As the Lord God liveth, if thou wilt show me, and I hear a word of thine, I will not continue to speak any longer.
8 God shall add to my judgement in the day of judgement, if I speak hereafter. And the angel of the powers said to me, Come, and I will show thee the mysteries of God.

PROLOGUE. 2. Gel. James suggests that Kedron is meant. 'Part of the word has gone and ΚΕΔ- has passed into ΓΕΑ-.' Cf. 2 Bar. v. 5; xxi. 1; xxxi. 2.

Abimelech was preserved. See 4 Bar. iii. 9-v. 30, where it is recorded that Abimelech fell asleep in the garden of Agrippa at the time of the destruction of Jerusalem, and did not awake for sixty-six years.

the farm of Agrippa. Rendel Harris (Rest of the Words of Baruch, p. 12) identifies this with the fertile valley below Solomon's Pools, known as Solomon's Gardens. See Josephus, Ant. viii. 7. 3, 'There was a certain place about fifty furlongs distant from Jerusalem, which is called Etham, very pleasant it is in fine gardens, and abounding in rivulets of water; thither did he (Solomon) use to go out in the morning.' Cf. Eccles. ii. 5 f.

3. the beautiful gates. Cf. 2 Bar. x. 5; also Josephus, B. J. v. 5. 3, 'There was one gate that was without [the inward court of] the holy house, which was of Corinthian brass, and greatly excelled those that were only covered with silver and gold.' Cf. Acts iii. 2.

where the Holy of holies lay. James holds that the words ὅπου ἔκειτο τὰ τῶν ἁγίων ἅγια allude to the hiding of the sacred vessels (2 Macc. ii. 1-8; 2 Bar. vi. 7-10; 4 Bar. iii. 7 f.). It is better, however, to translate it as above. Cf. 2 Bar. xxxiv 'I will . . . go unto the Holy of Holies to enquire of the Mighty One concerning you, and concerning Zion, if in some respect I should receive more illumination.'

1. 1. sorrowing. Ryssel (in Kautzsch) reads πενθῶν for ἔχων. Cf. 2 Bar. vi. 2; x. 5; xxxv. 1.

2. Thy vineyard. Cf. Isa. v. 1; 4 Ezra v. 23.

For similar laments cf. 1 Bar. iii. 1-8; Pss. Sol. vii. 1-3; 2 Bar. iii. 5 f.; v. 1; xiv. 5 f.; 4 Ezra iii. 28 f.; v. 28 f.

3. O man, greatly beloved, ἄνερ ἐπιθυμῶν. The phrase occurs in Dan. x. 11 f. (Theodot.).

6. other mysteries. Either some previous revelations have dropped out, or, as James suggests, the phrase is an assimilation to the words of the angel in chapters ii and v.

7. I will not continue to speak. The Slavonic forbids Baruch to add a word to the revelation, but the context makes it clear that προσθήσω is here to be translated as above.

the day of judgement. ἡ ἡμέρα τῆς κρίσεως is not necessarily a Christian phrase. It occurs in T. Levi iii. 3; Pss. Sol. xv. 13; 1 Enoch (Giz. Gk.) x. 6; xxii. 11. See too Jub. iv. 19; 2 Enoch xxxix. 1; 4 Ezra vii. 102, 113; xii. 34 (dies iudicii). Ginzberg (JE) says that יְהִי הַיּוֹם is an expression which occurs more frequently in Rabbinic literature than in the N.T.

8. angel of the powers. This phrase occurs in 1 En. (G⁸¹) xx. 1; cf. 1 En. lxi. 10. Michael is called ἀρχιστράτηγος τῶν ἄνω δυνάμεων in Test. Abraham xiv. In 2 Thess. i. 7 we find ἀγγέλων δυνάμεως, which is taken by some to refer to the angels set over the cosmic forces. There is a striking passage in Philo which seems to throw light on the subject. 'There is only one God, but this one God has about Him innumerable powers as helpers and saviours of all created existences. Among them are punitive powers. . . . By these powers the incorporeal intelligible world was built. . . . There is, moreover, in the air a high and holy choir of incorporeal souls in attendance upon the heavenly powers—angels as the prophetic Scriptures are accustomed to call them. . . . The King communes with His powers, and uses them as His servants, for the performance of such duties as are not appropriate to God Himself' (De Confus. ling. xxxiv). The six highest powers are Divine Logos, Creative Power, Sovereign Power, Mercy, Legislation, and Punitive Power (De profugis, xviii. See Pfeiderer, Prim. Christianity, iii. 41 f.). As Philo identifies

The First Heaven.

2¹ And he took me and led me where the firmament has been set fast, and where there was a river
 2 which no one can cross, nor any strange breeze of all those which God created. [And he took me and led me to the first heaven, and showed me a door of great size. And he said to me, Let us enter 3 through it, and we entered as though borne on wings, a distance of about thirty days' journey? [And he showed me within the heaven a plain; and there were men dwelling thereon, with the faces of 4 oxen, and the horns of stags, and the feet of goats, and the haunches of lambs. And I Baruch asked the angel, Make known to me, I pray thee, what is the thickness of the heaven in which we journeyed, 5 or what is its extent, or what is the plain, in order that I may also tell the sons of men? And the angel whose name is †Phamael† said to me: This door which thou seest is the door of heaven, and as great as is the distance from earth to heaven, so great also is its thickness; and again as great as is the distance (from North to South, so great) is the length of the plain which thou didst see.
 And again the angel of the powers said to me, Come, and I will show thee greater mysteries. But 6, 7 I said, I pray thee show me what are these men. And he said to me, These are they who built the tower of strife against God, and the Lord banished them.

The Second Heaven.

3¹ And the angel of the Lord took me and led me to a second heaven. And he showed me there
 2 also a door like the first and said, Let us enter through it. And we entered, being borne on wings
 3 a distance of about sixty days' journey. [And he showed me there also a plain, and it was full of 4 men, whose appearance was like that of dogs, and whose feet were like those of stags. And I asked
 5 the angel: I pray thee, Lord, say to me who are these. And he said, These are they who gave Michael and the Logos (Quis rer. div. haeres, xlii), it is probable that the Philonic powers correspond with the archangels.

Pfleiderer (op. cit., p. 43) thinks that the six Philonic powers are ultimately derived from 'the six Amesha Spentas which surround the throne of Ahura Mazda, among whom the three chief are Vohu Mano, the Divine Logos; Asha Vahista, the Highest Righteousness; and Kshathra Vairya, the kingdom of Good-will—representatives, that is, of creative intelligence, power, and goodness, just as the highest Powers of Philo are.'

II. 1. where the firmament has been set fast. Cf. 1 En. xviii. 5; xxxiii. 2.

a river. According to James this river is the Ocean (Apoc. Pauli xxi; xxxi; Test. Abr. B viii; 1 En. xvii. 5 f.).

But Ginzberg (JE) holds that it is מִיִּם הַלְּעֵלְיִן (the upper waters), and quotes in support Gen. R. iv. 3 and Chag. 15 a.

no one can cross. Cf. Zos. ii οὐ δύνασται διελθεῖν δι' ἐμοῦ· οὐ γὰρ δύναται ὁ ἄνθρωπος τὰ ὕδατά μου διακόψαι . . . καὶ εἶπεν ἡ νεφέλη· Ζώσιμε . . . δι' ἐμοῦ οὐ διέρχεται πετεινὸν ἐκ τοῦ κόσμου τούτου, οὐδὲ πνοὴ ἀνέμου οὐδὲ αὐτὸς ὁ ἥλιος, οὐδὲ ὁ πειράζων ἐν τῷ κόσμῳ τούτῳ δύναται διελθεῖν δι' ἐμοῦ.

breeze. The above passage from Zos. makes it likely that πνοή is to be translated 'breeze' here, and not 'living creature' as in ch. viii, and in Ps. cl. 6 (LXX).

2. the first heaven. See Introd. § 10 (1).

a door. Cf. Ps. lxxviii. 23; Rev. iv. 1. In 2 En. xiii. 8 the gates through which the sun goes forth are mentioned.

as though borne on wings. Cf. Zos. ii; 1 En. xiv. 8.

3. a plain. Cf. Zos. iii.

men . . . lambs. Ginzberg (JE) says this means they were transformed into demons (Sanh. 109 a). For this reason they are not in the place of torment, which is in the third heaven, but at the entrance to heaven (Chag. 16 a).

5. Phamael. This is corrupt. The Slavonic preserves the true reading 'Phaniel'. According to 1 En. xl, he is one of the four angels of the presence who stand on the four sides of the Lord of Spirits, Michael, Raphael, Gabriel, and Phaniel. He is 'set over the repentance and hope of those who inherit eternal life'. But in 1 En. (Giz. Gk.) ix. 1 Uriel is mentioned in place of Phaniel. James thinks there is the bare possibility that he is to be identified with Ramiel, who appears in 1 En. (Giz. Gk.) xx. 7, and in 2 Bar. lv. 3 is described as presiding over true visions, which agrees with the description of Baruch's angel in 3 Bar. xi, as 'the interpreter of the revelations, to those who pass through life virtuously'. Ramiel is also mentioned in 4 Ezra iv. 36 (Lat. Hieremihel); and in Sib. Or. ii. 215-17 he is said to be one of the five angels who know all the evils that men have wrought, and 'shall from dark gloom then lead to judgement all the souls of men, before the judgement-seat of the great God immortal'. Ryssel points out that the form Eremiel appears in the Apoc. of Sophonias.

the distance from earth to heaven. Cf. Chag. 'And is not from the earth to the firmament a journey of five hundred years, and so too the interspace of the firmaments?'

(from . . . great). James supplies ἀπὸ βορρᾶ ἕως νότου, τοσοῦτον.

length of the plain. Cf. Apoc. Pauli 32.

7. James points out a parallel to this story in the Book of Jashar (Migne, Dict. des Apocryphes, ii. 1107 f.). There were three classes of builders. One said, 'Let us ascend and fight against heaven'; these were dispersed. The second said, 'Let us go up and set our gods in heaven'; these were changed into monkeys and baboons. The third said, 'Let us go up and smite heaven with our bows and arrows'; these slew each other.

III. 1. a second heaven. See Introd. § 10 (1).

5. gave counsel. Cf. Mark iii. 6, where συμβούλιον δίδομαι = 'to take counsel'.

counsel to build the tower, for they whom thou seest drove forth multitudes of both men and women, to make bricks; among whom, a woman making bricks was not allowed to be released in the hour of child-birth, but brought forth while she was making bricks, and carried her child in her apron, and continued to make bricks. And the Lord appeared to them and confused their speech, when they had built the tower to the height of four hundred and sixty-three cubits. And they took a gimlet, and sought to pierce the heaven, saying, Let us see (whether) the heaven is made of clay, or of brass, or of iron. When God saw this He did not permit them, but smote them with blindness and confusion of speech, and rendered them as thou seest.

The Third Heaven.

1 And I Baruch said, Behold, Lord, Thou didst show me great and wonderful things; and now
2 show me all things for the sake of the Lord. And the angel said to me, Come, let us proceed.
(And I proceeded) with the angel from that place about one hundred and eighty-five days'
3 journey. And he showed me a plain and a serpent, which appeared to be two hundred plethra
4 in length. And he showed me Hades, and its appearance was dark and abominable. And I said, 5 Who is this dragon, and who is this monster around him? And the angel said, The dragon is he 6 who eats the bodies of those who spend their life wickedly, and he is nourished by them. And 7 this is Hades, which itself also closely resembles him, in that it also drinks about a cubit from 8 the sea, which does not sink at all. Baruch said, And how (does this happen)? And the angel said, Hearken, the Lord God made three hundred and sixty rivers, of which the chief of all are Alphias, Abyrus, and the Gericus; and because of these the sea does not sink. And I said, I pray thee show me which is the tree which led Adam astray. And the angel said to me, It is the vine, which the angel Sammael planted, whereat the Lord God was angry, and He cursed him and his plant, while also on this account He did not permit Adam to touch it, and therefore a woman . . . child-birth. Ginzberg (JE) refers to a similar Rabbinic legend about a woman in Egypt (Pirke R. El. xlviij).

IV. 2. let us proceed. There is no mention here of entry into a third heaven, and when the next heaven is entered in ch. x, the scribe has changed its number from fourth to third, as is evident from the fact that in ch. xi the fifth heaven is mentioned. At what point in the narrative is the entry made into the third heaven? In ch. vii the angel says to Baruch, 'All that I showed thee is in the first and second heaven, and in the third heaven the sun passes through, and gives light to the world.' It would harmonize with this to place the entry into the third heaven at the commencement of ch. vi. But against this is the fact that Hades (ch. iv) is usually located in the third heaven (cf. 2 En.). It seems best therefore to follow James in placing the transition here. It should be noted that the Slavonic account of the third heaven shows fewer signs of mutilation than the Greek.

3. a serpent. The relation of the dragon to Hades is not clear. Here they seem to be separate, but in ch. v they are united. The closest parallel is to be found in the Pistis Sophia, p. 319, which says 'caligo externa magnus δράκων est, cuius cauda in suo ore est extra κόσμον totum, et circumdat κόσμον totum'. There are said to be within this dragon twelve places of chastisement, where souls are tormented (James, p. lxi). The Slavonic reads 'So the angel took me to the light, a journey of thirty-two days, and showed me a great field; the mind of man could not comprehend it; and in that field there was a very great mountain, and on it lay a serpent as from the East to the West, and it bent down, drinking from the sea every day a cubit, and ate the earth like grass. And I Baruch said to the angel: My Lord, why does this serpent drink from the sea a cubit during the day, and how is it that the sea does not become scanty? And the angel said to me: Listen, Baruch, God made three hundred three and thirty great rivers . . . There are many other great rivers, and they all go into the sea, and the sea is filled. On account of this God made this serpent, and ordered it to drink of the sea a cubit a day, so that the sea should not increase nor diminish'.

4. this monster around him. τίς ὁ περὶ αὐτὸν ἀπηνής; James thinks this may be corrupt and that the dragon encircled Hades, and not vice versa.

5. Cf. Greek goblin Eurynomus.

6. which does not sink at all. Lit. 'and nothing is lacking from it'.

7. the Gericus. James suggests that Gericus = γυρικός = the Ocean; but this is hardly likely in view of the fact that it is mentioned as one of the rivers which supply the sea. The Slavonic speaks of three hundred and thirty-three rivers, and mentions Aphia, Avaria, Agorenik, Dunav, Ephrat, Asavat, Zietnust, Ineus, Tigris.

8. the tree which led Adam astray. The transition is sudden, but there may be a hiatus in the narrative. Baruch is still in the third heaven where Paradise was placed, and by now the angel may have shown him it. In the Slavonic the story of the vine does not break into the description of the dragon, but comes after it.

the vine. For the conception of the vine as the forbidden tree cf. Sanh. 70a; Gen. Rabb. xix. 8. (See art. 'Vine', JE.) It is related of Shamdon (Asmodeus) that at the planting of the first vine by Noah, he helped with the work and said to Noah: 'I want to join in your labour and share with you; but take heed that I take not of your portion, lest I do you harm' (Gen. R. xxxvi. 3; see art. 'Demonology', JE). The story does not occur elsewhere in the exact form of that of the text.

the angel Sammael (i.e. שָׂמַאֵל). Greek Σαμουήλ. Slavonic reads 'Satanil' (cf. 2 En. xviii. 3, xxix. 4f., xxxi. 4). For Sammael cf. Asc. of Isa. i. 8 et passim. He was originally one of the chief archangels, but tempted Eve with a view to making the earth his kingdom. Thenceforth he is the chief of the Satans, the angel of death, and Israel's special foe (v. Charles' Asc. of Isa. p. 6. Cf. also Deut. Rabb. xi and Pirk. R. El. xiii, quoted in JE).

whereat. For ὅτι in text read ὅτι.

9 the devil being envious deceived him through his vine. [And I Baruch said, Since also the vine has been the cause of such great evil, and is under judgement of the curse of God, and was the 10 destruction of the first created, how is it now so useful? And the angel said, Thou askest aright. When God caused the deluge upon earth, and destroyed all flesh, and four hundred and nine thousand giants, and the water rose fifteen cubits above the highest mountains, then the water entered into paradise and destroyed every flower; but it removed wholly without the bounds the shoot
 11 of the vine and cast it outside. And when the earth appeared out of the water, and Noah came out 12 of the ark, he began to plant of the plants which he found. But he found also the shoot of the vine; and he took it, and was reasoning in himself, What then is it? And I came and spake to 13 him the things concerning it. And he said, Shall I plant it, or what shall I do? Since Adam was destroyed because of it, let me not also meet with the anger of God because of it. And saying 14 these things he prayed that God would reveal to him what he should do concerning it. And when he had completed the prayer which lasted forty days, and having besought many things and wept, 15 he said: Lord, I entreat thee to reveal to me what I shall do concerning this plant. But God sent his angel Sarasael, and said to him, Arise, Noah, and plant the shoot of the vine, for thus saith the Lord: Its bitterness shall be changed into sweetness, and its curse shall become a blessing, and that which is produced from it shall become the blood of God; and as through it the human race obtained condemnation, so again through Jesus Christ the Immanuel will they receive in Him the 16 upward calling, and the entry into paradise]. Know therefore, O Baruch, that as Adam through this very tree obtained condemnation, and was divested of the glory of God, so also the men who now drink insatiably the wine which is begotten of it, transgress worse than Adam, and are far from the 17 glory of God, and are surrendering themselves to the eternal fire. For (no) good comes through it. For those who drink it to surfeit do these things: neither does a brother pity his brother, nor a father his son, nor children their parents, but from the drinking of wine come all evils, such as murders, adulteries, fornications, perjuries, thefts, and such like. And nothing good is established by it.

5 1, 2 And I Baruch said to the angel, Let me ask thee one thing, Lord. Since thou didst say to me
 3 that the dragon drinks one cubit out of the sea, say to me also, how great is his belly? And the angel said, His belly is Hades; and as far as a plummet is thrown (by) three hundred men, so great is his belly. Come, then, that I may show thee also greater works than these.

6 1 And he took me and led me where the sun goes forth; and he showed me a chariot and four,
 2 under which burnt a fire, and in the chariot was sitting a man, wearing a crown of fire, (and) the chariot (was) drawn by forty angels. And behold a bird circling before the sun, about nine 3 cubits away. And I said to the angel, What is this bird? And he said to me, This is the the devil being envious. Cf. Wisd. ii. 24; 2 En. xxxi. 3.

9-15. The passage in brackets is clearly an interpolation by the Christian redactor, who felt it necessary to modify the condemnation of wine, on account of its use in the Eucharist.

15. Sarasael. Perhaps to be identified with Saraqael, 'one of the holy angels, who is set over the spirits who sin in the spirit' (1 En. xx. 6).

bitterness . . . sweetness. Cf. 4 Bar. ix. 16 τὰ γλυκία ὕδατα ἀλμυρὰ γενήσονται.

the blood of God. Cf. Acts xx. 28.

the upward calling. Cf. Phil. iii. 14.

16. drink. Text reads δρῶντες. The emendation χρῶντες will not do, as χρώμενοι is required. It is perhaps best (with Ryssel) to read πίνοντες.

are surrendering themselves. προξενούσιν.

17. (no). οὐ, which the sense clearly requires, has dropped out of the text.

drinking. For πτώσεως in text read πόσεως (James).

murders, &c. Cf. Introd. § 6. See Matt. xv. 19; Gal. v. 21; Apoc. Pauli 6; Did. iii and v.

V. 3. His belly is Hades. Slavonic reads 'As great as is the bottom of hell, so great is his belly'.

(by). James translates 'a plummet of 300 men', but it seems best, with Ryssel, to insert ὑπό. The meaning is then, as far as a plummet can be thrown by the strength of 300 men.

VI. 1. where the sun goes forth. The courses of the sun and moon are placed in the fourth heaven in 2 En.

a chariot and four. Slavonic says that the horses were winged angels.

a crown of fire. This conception prevailed among the Greeks, as may be seen from the monuments. It occurs in Rabbinic lit. Cf. Pirk. R. El. vi; Num. R. xii. 4 (Ginzberg, JE).

drawn by forty angels. Cf. 2 En. xi. 4f.

2. about nine cubits away. Text reads ὡς ὄρει ἐννέα. James reads ὄρη for ὄρει, but that leaves the meaning obscure. It is possible that the original reading was ὡς ὀρεύων, where ὀρεύω is to be translated 'guard'. But there is very little support for the use of the word in this sense; LS only mentions Hesychius. Dr. J. H. Moulton has drawn my attention to the fact that in Petrie Papyri i, p. 78 ἕκαστος τῶν ὀρῶν is taken to be 'each of the watchers' by Mahaffy on Bury's suggestion, with the admission that the word exists nowhere else, except in its compounds. Perhaps it is best to adopt ὡς ἀπὸ πηχῶν ἐννέα from the Disputation of the Panagiote, a very late document which is clearly based on our text (James, p. lxxv). I am indebted to Dr. Moulton for this suggestion.

4, 5 guardian of the earth. And I said, Lord, how is he the guardian of the earth? Teach me. And the angel said to me, This bird flies alongside of the sun, and expanding his wings receives its fiery 6 rays. For if he were not receiving them, the human race would not be preserved, nor any other 7 living creature. But God appointed this bird thereto. And he expanded his wings, and I saw on his right wing very large letters, as large as the space of a threshing-floor, the size of about four 8 thousand modii; and the letters were of gold. And the angel said to me, Read them. And I read, 9 and they ran thus: Neither earth nor heaven bring me forth, but wings of fire bring me forth. And 10 I said, Lord, what is this bird, and what is his name? And the angel said to me, His name is called 11 Phoenix. (And I said), And what does he eat? And he said to me, The manna of heaven and 12 the dew of earth. And I said, Does the bird excrete? And he said to me, He excretes a worm, and the excrement of the worm is cinnamon, which kings and princes use. But wait and thou shalt 13 see the glory of God. And while he was conversing with me, there was as a thunder-clap, and the place was shaken on which we were standing. And I asked the angel, My Lord, what is this sound? And the angel said to me, Even now the angels are opening the three hundred and sixty-five gates 14 of heaven, and the light is being separated from the darkness. And a voice came which said, Light-giver, give to the world radiance. And when I heard the noise of the bird, I said, Lord, what is this 15 noise? And he said, This is the bird who awakens from slumber the cocks upon earth. For as 16 men do through the mouth, so also does the cock signify to those in the world, in his own speech. For the sun is made ready by the angels, and the cock crows.

1, 2 And I said, And where does the sun begin its labours, after the cock crows? And the angel said to me, Listen, Baruch: All things whatsoever I showed thee are in the first and second heaven, and in the third heaven the sun passes through and gives light to the world. But wait, and thou 3 shalt see the glory of God. And while I was conversing with him, I saw the bird, and he appeared

4. this bird. Cf. 2 En. xii, xv, which speaks of several phoenixes. According to Jewish authorities, the Phoenix is referred to in Job xxix. 18. Charles (2 En. p. 12) mentions the following references to this bird among the Greeks and Romans: Herod. ii. 73; Tac. Ann. vi. 28; Ovid, Met. xv. 392; Mart. Epigr. v. 7, 1; Stat. Sylv. ii. 4, 37; Plin. N. H. x. 2. There are also several references in patristic writers. According to Pliny (N. H. x. 2) there is only one phoenix at a time, who, at the close of his long life, builds himself a nest with twigs of cassia and frankincense on which he dies. From his corpse is generated a worm, which grows into a young phoenix. Pliny says that the young bird buries his father on the altar in the City of the Sun, but Tacitus (Ann. vi. 28) has it that he burns him there. There are traces of a similar tradition both in Egyptian and in Indian literature. A writer in the Encyc. Brit. thinks that the prototype of the phoenix is a bird called bennu, mentioned in the 'Book of the Dead', and other Egyptian texts. This bird was one of the sacred symbols of the worship of Heliopolis, and according to Wiedemann (Ztsch. f. Aeg. Sprache, xvi, p. 89f.) was a symbol of the rising sun, and is called 'self-generating', 'the soul of Ra', and 'the heart of the renewed sun'. Further, this writer points out that it is significant that both 'bennu' and φοίνιξ mean 'palm-tree'. James mentions a parallel in Indian literature—the bird Gadura, who carried Aruna on his back, and placed him in front of the sun, where he acted as charioteer and screened the world from the sun's consuming rays (Mahabarata Adi Parva xvi-xxxiv, especially xxiv). In none of these references is the phoenix represented as the sun's daily companion. That tradition appears only in 2 En. text A (there is no reference to the phoenix in B), in 3 Bar., and in the Disputation of the Panagiote.

7. modii. A modius = 200 ὀργυιαί (ὀργυια = the length of the outstretched arms, usually estimated at about 6 ft.).

8. wings of fire. Slavonic reads 'son of the Father', which is evidently due to Christian influence.

12. a worm, &c. In other accounts the worm develops into a new phoenix.

13. the place was shaken. Cf. Acts iv. 31; 4 Ezra vi. 29.

the three hundred and sixty-five gates. This is evidently intended to correspond with the number of days in the year. 2 En. speaks of twelve gates, six on the east and six on the west (chs. xiii, xiv). 1 En. says that there are twelve portals with twelve windows each to the right and left of each of them (ch. lxxii. 3, 7).

14. Light-giver . . . radiance. Cf. 2 En. xv. 1 f. 'Then the elements of the sun called Phoenixes and Chalkidri break into song, therefore every bird flutters with its wings, rejoicing at the giver of light, and they broke into song at the command of the Lord. The giver of light comes to give brightness to the whole world.'

15. the bird who awakens from slumber the cocks upon earth. It is doubtful whether there is not here a confusion between the tradition of the phoenix and that of the heavenly cock. As a sun-bird the Greeks made the cock attend on Helios and Apollo. According to an Armenian tradition the heavenly cock first crows, and the angelic choirs begin their hymns of praise. These are heard by the cock on earth, who then awakens mankind, and himself lauds the Creator (Hastings, Dic. R. & E. iii. 694 ff.). Dr. J. H. Moulton has kindly drawn my attention to a passage in the Vendidad, Farg. xviii (S. B. E. iv, p. 193), where Sraosha, the angel who sets the world in motion, is likened to 'the bird named Parôdas [fore-seer] which ill-speaking people call Kahrkatâs, the bird that lifts up his voice against the holy dawn', and calls men to worship and firelighting, lest Bûshyasta, the long-handed demon of procrastination, come upon them.

16. as men do through the mouth. ὡς γὰρ τὰ δίστομα is difficult and probably corrupt. James conjectures that the meaning is 'For as articulate-speaking beings do, &c.', but admits there is no such usage of δίστομος elsewhere. I have adopted Ryssel's emendation τὰ διὰ στόματος, the τὰ being taken to represent οἱ ἄνθρωποι or something similar.

the cock. Cf. Ber. 60 b. 'Blessed be He Who has given the cock intelligence [to distinguish between day and night]. In the Fragments of the Apoc. of Adam (Apoc. Anec. i. 144) it is said that the cock crows when the seraphim clap their wings.

VII. 1. begin its labours. ἀποσχολεῖται.

4 in. front, and grew less and less, and at length returned to his full size. And behind him I saw the shining sun, and the angels which draw it, and a crown upon its head, the sight of which we were 5 not able to gaze upon, and behold. And as soon as the sun shone, the Phoenix also stretched out his wings. But I, when I beheld such great glory, was brought low with great fear, and I fled and 6 hid in the wings of the angel. And the angel said to me, Fear not, Baruch, but wait and thou shalt also see their setting.

8 1 And he took me and led me towards the west; and when the time of the setting came, I saw again the bird coming before it, and as soon as he came I saw the angels, and they lifted the crown 2, 3 from its head. But the bird stood exhausted and with wings contracted. And beholding these things, I said, Lord, wherefore did they lift the crown from the head of the sun, and wherefore is 4 the bird so exhausted? And the angel said to me, The crown of the sun, when it has run through the day—four angels take it, and bear it up to heaven, and renew it, because it and its rays have been defiled upon earth; moreover it is so renewed each day. And I Baruch said, Lord, and where- 5 fore are its beams defiled upon earth? And the angel said to me, Because it beholds the lawlessness and unrighteousness of men, namely fornications, adulteries, thefts, extortions, idolatries, drunkenness, murders, strife, jealousies, evil-speakings, murmurings, whisperings, divinations, and such like, which are not well-pleasing to God. On account of these things is it defiled, and therefore is it renewed. 6 But thou askest concerning the bird, how it is exhausted. Because by restraining the rays of the 7 sun through the fire and burning heat of the whole day, it is exhausted thereby. For, as we said before, unless his wings were screening the rays of the sun, no living creature would be preserved.

9 1 And they having retired, the night also fell, and at the same time came the chariot of the 2 moon, along with the stars. And I Baruch said, Lord, show me it also, I beseech of thee, how 3 it goes forth, where it departs, and in what form it moves along. And the angel said, Wait and thou shalt see it also shortly. [And on the morrow I also saw it in the form of a woman, and sitting on a wheeled chariot.] And there were before it oxen and lambs in the chariot, and a multitude of 4 angels in like manner. And I said, Lord, what are the oxen and the lambs? And he said to me, 5 They also are angels. And again I asked, Why is it that it at one time increases, but at another 6 time decreases? And (he said to me), Listen, O Baruch: This which thou seest had been written 7 by God beautiful as no other. And at the transgression of the first Adam, it was near to Sammael when he took the serpent as a garment. And it did not hide itself but increased, and God was 8 angry with it, and afflicted it, and shortened its days. And I said, And how does it not also shine always, but only in the night? And the angel said, Listen: as in the presence of a king, the courtiers cannot speak freely, so the moon and the stars cannot shine in the presence of the sun; for the stars are always suspended, but they are screened by the sun, and the moon, although it is uninjured, is consumed by the heat of the sun.

3. grew less and less. The bird Gadura in Mahabharata Adi Parva (xxiv) diminishes its size.

4. which draw it. Lit. 'bearing along with it'.

6. their setting. i. e. of the sun and the Phoenix.

VIII. 1. before it. i. e. the sun.

2. exhausted. This is the meaning which the context demands for τεταπεινωμένον.

4. Cf. 2 En. xiv. 2 (B) 'When it goes out from the Western gates, four angels take the crown and carry it up to the Lord, and the sun turns its chariot, and goes out without light. And they put the crown on it again at the Eastern gates.' See also Eliyahu R. ii (Ginzberg, JE).

5. because it beholds. T. Levi iii. 1 says that the lowest heaven is dark because it beholds 'all the unrighteous deeds of men'. Cf. Lat. Apoc. Pauli 4 'Multum etenim sol quidem, luminare magnum, interpellavit dominum, dicens: Domine deus omnipotens, ego prospicio super impietates et iniusticias hominum'.

fornications, &c. Cf. Introductio, § 6.

7. unless . . . no living creature would be preserved. The language is similar to that of Matt. xxiv. 22 and Mark xiii. 20, but that does not necessarily imply dependence. The writer has chosen the most natural form of words to express his idea.

IX. 1. they. The sun and the phoenix.

along with the stars. Text reads καὶ ἅμα ταύτῃ καὶ μετὰ τῆς σελήνης καὶ με<τὰ> τῶν ἀστέρων. I have adopted Ryssel's emendation καὶ ἅμα ταύτῃ, τὸ ἄρμα (οἱ ἢ ἅμαξα) τῆς σελήνης κτλ.

3. Slavonic reads 'the moon is like a woman sitting on a chariot, and [like] oxen drawing her chariot are forty angels'. The idea of the chariot drawn by oxen and lambs is Greek.

7. shortened its days. The Slavonic attributes the fall of the moon to the fact that it laughed at the fall of Adam and Eve. R. Simeon b. Pazzi declared that at the time of the creation the moon was of the same size as the sun. The moon then objected that it would not be decorous for two kings to use one crown, whereupon God diminished her size (Hul. 60 b; see art. 'Moon', JE). For other versions of the story see Shebuot 9 a, and Gen. R. vi. 3 (Ginzberg JE).

8. shine . . . only in the night. Cf. Apoc. Mosis xxxvi.

The Fourth Heaven.

1) 1 And when I had learnt all these things from the archangel, he took and led me into a fourth
 2 3 heaven. (And I saw a monotonous plain, and in the middle of it a pool of water. And there were 4 in it multitudes of birds of all kinds, but not like those here on earth. But I saw a crane as great as 5 great oxen; and all the birds were great beyond those in the world. And I asked the angel, What 6 is the plain, and what the pool, and what the multitudes of birds around it? And the angel said, 7 Listen, Baruch: The plain which contains in it the pool and other wonders is the place where the 8 souls of the righteous come, when they hold converse, living together in choirs. But the water is 9 that which the clouds receive, and rain upon the earth, and the fruits increase. And I said again to 10 the angel of the Lord, But (what) are these birds? And he said to me, They are those which continually sing praise to the Lord. And I said, Lord, and how do men say that the water which descends in rain is from the sea? And the angel said, The water which descends in rain—this also is from the sea, and from the waters upon earth; but that which stimulates the fruits is (only) from the latter source. Know therefore henceforth that from this source is what is called the dew of heaven.

The Fifth Heaven.

1, 2 And the angel took me and led me thence to a fifth heaven. And the gate was closed. And I said, Lord, is not this gate-way open that we may enter? And the angel said to me, We cannot enter until Michael comes, who holds the keys of the Kingdom of Heaven; but wait and thou shalt see 3 the glory of God. And there was a great sound, as thunder. And I said, Lord, what is this sound?
 4 And he said to me, Even now Michael, the commander of the angels, comes down to receive the 5 prayers of men. And behold a voice came, Let the gates be opened. And they opened them, and 6 there was a roar as of thunder. And Michael came, and the angel who was with me came face to 7 face with him and said, Hail, my commander, and that of all our order. And the commander Michael 8 said, Hail thou also, our brother, and the interpreter of the revelations to those who pass through life virtuously. And having saluted one another thus, they stood still. And I saw the commander

X. 1. a fourth heaven. Text reads τρίτον. See note on ch. iv.

2. a pool of water. As James indicates, this is probably the Ἀχέρουσα λίμνη referred to in Apoc. Mosis xxxvii and Apoc. Pauli 22.

3-5. For the idea that the souls of the righteous are transformed into birds, see Sanh. 92 b, 'And the soul may say: The body has sinned; for since I am separated from it, I fly in the air like a bird.'

7. said again to. λέγω is used here and in ch. xv with an acc. without a prep., in the sense of the dative of the person addressed.

8. how do men say, &c. Slavonic reads: 'How do men say that the clouds go out of the sea and rain on the earth? And the angel said to me: The race of man is deceived knowing nothing. All the water of the sea is salt, for if the rain came from the sea, no fruit would grow on the earth.' The meaning of the Greek seems to be that while the rain is derived in part from the sea, those elements which are responsible for the dew and for the growth of fruit are derived from the other waters upon earth.

XI. 2. Michael. Michael, one of the archangels, was commonly regarded as Israel's special protector. See Dan. x. 13, 21, xii. 1; 1 En. xx. 5; 2 En. xxii. 6, xxxiii. 10. In Ass. Moses x. 2, it is said that he will avenge Israel on its enemies at the end of the world. In T. Levi v. 6 f., he is the angel 'who intercedeth for the nation of Israel, and for all the righteous', and in T. Dan vi. 2 he is 'a mediator between God and man', specially concerned for 'the peace of Israel'. He is mentioned in N. T. in Jude 9, Rev. xii. 7-9, and according to Charles (Hastings D. B. iii. 362 b) he is referred to in Acts vii. 38. In Targ. Cant. viii. 9, he is called 'Israel's chief'. In Yalkut Shimeoni, Bereshith 132, he is described as the prince over all the angels, and as Israel's representative and portion in the presence of God. In Chag. 12 b, he is called 'the Advocate of the Jews' (Oesterley, Jewish Doctrines of Mediation, p. 84). In Test. Abraham xiv, Michael appears as intercessor on behalf of Abraham, and the combined intercession of Michael and Abraham wins a sinner's entry into paradise.

who holds the keys of the Kingdom of Heaven. In 4 Bar. ix. 5, Michael is called the archangel of righteousness who leads the righteous to heaven; and in the Ethiopic version it is added that he holds open the gates of righteousness, until the righteous enter in.

the Kingdom of Heaven. This phrase is not necessarily a Christian interpolation. Cf. Ps. ciii. 19; Dan. iv. 34; Test. Ben. ix. 1 (ἡ βασιλεία κυρίου), Ass. Moses x. 1 ('And then His kingdom will appear throughout all His creation'), Sib. Or. iii. 47 f. (τότε δὴ βασιλεία μεγίστη ἀθανάτου βασιλῆος ἐπ' ἀνθρώποισι φανείται).

4. Michael comes down. According to Chag. 12 b the altar upon which Michael offers up sacrifice stands in the fourth heaven.

5. the gates. Slavonic says that the names of those men who may enter the gates are written on them (cf. Apoc. Pauli 19).

opened. The idea that the gates of heaven are opened at a fixed time to receive the prayers of men is found in the fragments of the Apoc. of Adam, where it is stated that at the tenth hour 'the gate of heaven opens in order to let in the prayers of every living thing. . . . At this hour all that a man asks of God is granted him' (Apoc. Anecdota, i. 143).

Michael, holding an exceedingly great vessel ; its depth was as great as the distance from heaven to earth, and its breadth as great as the distance from north to south. And I said, Lord, what is that which Michael the archangel is holding ? And he said to me, This is where the merits of the righteous enter, and such good works as they do, which are escorted before the heavenly God.

12 ¹ And as I was conversing with them, behold angels came bearing baskets full of flowers. And ² they gave them to Michael. And I asked the angel, Lord, who are these, and what are the things ³ brought hither from beside them ? And he said to me, These are angels (who) are over the ^{4, 5} righteous. And the archangel took the baskets, and cast them into the vessel. And the angel ⁶ said to me, These flowers are the merits of the righteous. And I saw other angels bearing baskets which were (neither) empty nor full. And they began to lament, and did not venture to draw near, ⁷ because they had not the prizes complete. And Michael cried and said, Come hither, also, ye ⁸ angels, bring what ye have brought. And Michael was exceedingly grieved, and the angel who was with me, because they did not fill the vessel.

13 ¹ And then came in like manner other angels weeping and bewailing, and saying with fear, Behold how we are overclouded, O Lord, for we were delivered to evil men, and we wish to depart from ² them. And Michael said, Ye cannot depart from them, in order that the enemy may not prevail to ³ the end ; but say to me what ye ask. And they said, We pray thee, Michael our commander, transfer us from them, for we cannot abide with wicked and foolish men, for there is nothing good ⁴ in them, but every kind of unrighteousness and greed. For we do not behold them entering [into Church at all, nor among spiritual fathers, nor] into any good work. But where there is murder, there also are they in the midst, and where are fornications, adulteries, thefts, slanders, perjuries, jealousies, drunkenness, strife, envy, murmurings, whispering, idolatry, divination, and such like, ⁵ then are they workers of such works, and of others worse. Wherefore we entreat that we may depart from them. And Michael said to the angels, Wait till I learn from the Lord what shall come to pass.

14 ¹ And in that very hour Michael departed, and the doors were closed. And there was a sound as ² thunder. And I asked the angel, What is the sound ? And he said to me, Michael is even now presenting the merits of men to God.

15 ^{1, 2} And in that very hour Michael descended, and the gate was opened ; and he brought oil. And as for the angels which brought the baskets which were full, he filled them with oil, saying, Take

8. an exceedingly great vessel. Cf. Rev. v. 8, 'Golden bowls of incense which are the prayers of the saints' (cf. viii. 3). The cabalistic work Zohar (thirteenth century A.D.) says that the angel Sundelfon forms of the prayers a crown for the Almighty.

XII. 1. angels. The function of presenting the prayers of men to God is not limited to Michael in Jewish literature. Tob. xii. 5 reads 'I am Raphael, one of the seven holy angels, which present the prayers of the saints, and go in before the glory of the Holy One'. T. Levi iii. 5 ff. reads 'In [the heaven next to] it, are the archangels, who minister and make propitiation to the Lord, for all the sins of ignorance of the righteous: offering to the Lord a sweet-smelling savour, a reasonable and bloodless offering'. Then follows a reference to the subordinate angels mentioned in our text, 'And [in the heaven below this] are the angels who bear answers to the angels of the presence.' Apoc. Pauli in the Greek mentions the coming of three classes of angels, two joyful and the third dejected, 'The first are the guardians of the godly, the second of the ascetics, and the third of the worldly. The last class desire to be relieved of their charge, but their request is not granted. The first of these classes is omitted in Latin and Syriac. For the significance of the three classes of angels in our text, see Introd. § 8.

baskets, τὰ κανίσκια. This form, which occurs three times in our Apoc., is regular. But ὁ κάμισκος and ἡ κάμισκος (xv) do not appear to occur elsewhere.

flowers. The Spanish text of 4 Ezra adds to a list of names in i. 40 'et angelos duodecim cum floribus' (Cambridge Texts and Studies, iii. 2, p. 85).

3. who are over the righteous. Text reads οἱ ἐπὶ τῶν ἐξουσιῶν, which hardly harmonizes with the context. As Slavonic reads 'These are they who wait upon righteous men', it is perhaps best to follow Ryssel and read δικαίων for ἐξουσιῶν.

6. (neither) empty nor full. Text reads κενὰ οὐ γέμοντα. From the context it is evident that the baskets were partly filled. It is therefore necessary to read (οὔτε) κενὰ οὔ(τε) γέμοντι.

the prizes. Cf. Phil. iii. 14 ; 1 Cor. ix. 24.

XIII. 4. entering [into Church . . . nor], εἰσελθεῖν [ἐν ἐκκλησία ποτέ, οὐδὲ εἰς πνευματικούς πατέρας οὐδὲ] εἰς ἀγαθὸν ἔν. The clause in brackets is a Christian interpolation. The construction εἰσελθεῖν ἐν is clumsy, the original sequence being evidently εἰς. The expression πνευματικοὶ πατέρες is distinctively Christian. It is possible that εἰς πατέρας stood in the original, as the official title 'father' was in use among the Scribes (Matt. xxiii. 8 ff.). If the whole phrase is an interpolation it is later than the Christian redactor. At the martyrdom of Polycarp the mob shouted, 'This is the Christians' father' (Mart. Polyc. 12), but there is no evidence that at this time Christians themselves applied the term to their bishops. In the West, in Cyprian's time, the bishop was known as papa. It is not till the fourth century that we find teachers of a past generation described as 'fathers' (Ath. Ep. ad Afros 6). See Swete, Patristic Study, p. 5.

fornications, &c. See Introd. § 6.

XV. 2. which were full, πλήρης. Ryssel reads πλήρη, but it is more probable that πλήρης is used indeclinably (cf. Moulton, Prolegomena, p. 50).

filled them. i. e. the baskets.

it away, reward our friends an hundredfold, and those who have laboriously wrought good works.
 3 For those who sowed virtuously, also reap virtuously. And he said also to those bringing the half-empty baskets, Come hither ye also; take away the reward according as ye brought, and 4 deliver it to the sons of men. [Then he said also to those who brought the full and to those who brought the half-empty baskets: Go and bless our friends, and say to them that thus saith the Lord, Ye are faithful over a few things, I will set you over many things; enter into the joy of your Lord.]

1 And turning he said also to those who brought nothing: Thus saith the Lord, Be not sad of 2 countenance, and weep not, nor let the sons of men alone. But since they angered me in their works, go and make them envious and angry and provoked against a people that is no people, a 3 people that has no understanding. Further, besides these, send forth the caterpillar and the unwinged locust, and the mildew, and the common locust (and) hail with lightnings and anger, and 4 punish them severely with the sword and with death, and their children with demons. For they did not hearken to my voice, nor did they observe my commandments, nor do them, but were despisers of my commandments, and insolent towards the priests who proclaimed my words to them.

7, 2 And while he yet spake, the door was closed, and we withdrew. And the angel took me and 3 restored me to the place where I was at the beginning. And having come to myself, I gave glory
 4 to God, who counted me worthy of such honour. Wherefore do ye also, brethren, who obtained such a revelation, yourselves also glorify God, so that He also may glorify you, now and ever, and to all eternity. Amen.

3. he said also to. λέγω is used with the simple accusative of the person addressed.

half-empty. Text reads ἀποκένους. The context makes it clear that the angels referred to are those bearing the baskets which were neither full nor empty. We must therefore read ὑποκένους, somewhat empty.

4. The words in brackets are a Christian interpolation, as is evident not only from the quotation from Matt., but also from the fact that the re-enumeration of the first two classes of angels destroys the symmetry of the passage.

half-empty. For ἀπόκενα read ὑπόκενα.

over a few things. Text reads ἐπὶ ὀλίγη. It should probably read ἐπὶ ὀλίγα. Cf. Matt. xxv. 20.

I will set you. For καταστήσει in text read καταστήσω (Ryssel).

XVI. 1. Slavonic reads 'But Michael said: Listen, ye angels of God; it is not ordered that you should depart from sinful men, but you are ordered to labour for them till they repent and return. I will judge them, saith the Lord. And again there was a voice from the heavens: Attend upon the sinners till they repent; for if they do not repent, then ye shall inflict upon them a cruel disease and sudden death, and locusts and caterpillars, frost and thunder and hail and demons and the destruction of cities; and ye shall strangle their children, because God is not feared [among them] and they do not gather together in the Church of God for the sake of prayer, and instead of prayer they bring cursings'.
 Cf. Apoc. Pauli 10.

2. Cf. Deut. xxxii. 21; Rom. x. 19.

3. punish them severely, διχοτομήσατε. Cf. Matt. xxiv. 51.

4. The Greek text has nothing to say as to the future destiny of the righteous and of the wicked, but the Slavonic reads 'The angel said to me: Look, servant of God, and see the resting-place of the righteous, and their glory and joy and delight: and again see the resting-place of the wicked, their tears and sobs and worms that never sleep. The sinners call to heaven: O just judge, have pity upon us. And I Baruch said to the angel: Who are these, my Lord?
 And he said to me: These are the sinners. And I said to the angel: Bid me, my Lord, that I may weep with them so that the Lord may hear my voice and pity them. A voice came from heaven saying: Take Baruch to the earth, that he may tell to the sons of men all the secrets of God, which he has seen and heard.' The absence of any parallel to this passage is further evidence of the free treatment of the concluding sections of the original by the editor of the Greek text in its present form.

the priests who proclaimed my words to them. The term ἱερεῖς does not seem to have been applied to the Christian ministry till the end of the second century.

XVII. 2. restored . . . beginning. See 2 Bar. vii. 2 (note).

3. Cf. 2 Bar. liv. 8 f.

IV EZRA

GENERAL INTRODUCTION

§ 1. SHORT ACCOUNT OF THE BOOK.

THE Fourth Book of Ezra (or 2 Esdras) is extant in a number of translations, all of which have been made, apparently, from a lost Greek version; and this, there is reason to believe, was itself made in the first instance from a Hebrew original. The extant translations are in the following languages: Latin, Syriac, Ethiopic, Arabic (two independent versions), and Armenian. The most important of the versions is the Latin; and it is through this version, incorporated in many important Latin Biblical MSS., that the book has passed first into the Latin Bible (the Vulgate), as an appendix; and thence into our Bibles as one of the Deutero-canonical books, or official Apocrypha. The Ezra-Apocalypse proper corresponds to chapters 3-14 of the 2 Esdras of our Apocrypha (or the Fourth Book of Ezra of the Vulgate). Chapters 1 and 2 and 15 and 16 belong only to the Latin form of the book: the Oriental versions recognize only chapters 3-14. The chief conclusions reached by the present Editor regarding the Ezra-Apocalypse are the following: (a) The work is of composite character. In its present form it is a compilation made by an Editor or Redactor (R), and was published by him about the year A. D. 120, in the early part of the reign of Hadrian. The sources utilized by R were—

(1) a Salathiel-Apocalypse (S) which was originally published in Hebrew in the year A. D. 100, and is almost wholly embodied in our book. It is contained in chapters 3-10 mainly (= the first four visions), together with a certain amount of interpolated material.

(2) To this have been appended three independent pieces, extracts from other apocalypses, viz. the Eagle-Vision (= ch. 11-12), denominated A (= Adlergesicht), the Son of Man Vision (= ch. 13), denominated M (= Menschensohn), and the Ezra-legend (= ch. 14 mainly), denominated E².

(3) Extracts from another source have also been utilized by R and interpolated in S. These are from an old Ezra-Apocalypse (denominated E), and detail the signs which precede the End of the world (iv. 52-v. 13 a and vi. 11-29). This source may also have been utilized by R in his compilation of the passages vii. 26-44 and viii. 63-ix. 12.

The whole has been compiled in its present form by R, the different material being welded together by redactional links and adjustments. But the distinctive features of the sources have not been seriously affected. The purpose of the compilation appears to have been to commend the apocalyptic literature to certain Rabbinical circles which were hostile, and to secure for it a permanent place within orthodox Judaism. With this end in view the Redactor invested the whole composite work with the name of Ezra—a name specially honoured in the Rabbinical Schools—and took care to select material in which the cruder elements of the older apocalyptic had been largely refined away. The compilation thus represents a fusion, to some extent, of the Rabbinical and Apocalyptic types of thought of a novel kind. Its importance for the history of Rabbinical doctrine and for the elucidation of the earlier (pre-Talmudic) phases of Judaism is very great. Together with the twin-Apocalypse 2 Baruch, which may have been edited in its final form somewhat later, it may be regarded as the product of a school of writers; in the one case—4 Ezra—we have a writing which reflects the influence of the School of Shammai; in the other—2 Baruch—one that reflects the work of a school of writers under the influence of Aqiba.

§ 2. TITLE OF THE BOOK.

In most of the Latin MSS. the additional chapters (1-2 and 15-16) are distinguished from the Apocalypse proper by a separate enumeration, and are marked off as separate books. A common arrangement is the following:

- 1 Esdras = Ezra-Nehemiah of the Canon.
- 2 Esdras = 4 Ezra, chapters 1-2 (2 Esdras i-ii of our Apocrypha).
- 3 Esdras = 1 Esdras of our Apocrypha (3 Esdras of the Vulgate).
- 4 Esdras = 4 Ezra, chapters 3-14 (our Apocalypse).

IV EZRA

5 Esdras = 4 Ezra, chapters 15-16 (2 Esdras xv-xvi of our Apocrypha).

According to this enumeration :

2 Esdras = chapters 1-2.

4 Esdras = „ 3-14 (our Apocalypse).

and 5 Esdras = „ 15-16.

This is adopted by James (BZ, p. xxvii).¹

The prevailing usage of the Latin MSS. (including the important codices SA) is to designate chapters 3-14 (= our Apocalypse) as the Fourth Book of Ezra (4 Ezra). (See also Vol. I, pp. 2-3 of this work on this question.—Gen. Edit.)

The Oriental versions are also inconsistent in the titles they employ. In Ar.¹ and Ethiop. the Apocalypse (= chapters 3-14) is called The First Book of Ezra. The Syr. and Ar.² attach no number to the title. It seems probable that the title prefixed to the lost Greek version was Ἑσδρας ὁ προφήτης, as Clement of Alexandria quotes from our Apocalypse as from Ἑσδρας ὁ προφήτης (cf. Clem. Alex., Stromateis, iii. 16), while St. Ambrose also uses the name propheta Ezra (cf. also the opening words of 4 Ezra i liber Esrae prophetae secundus). Another possible form (suggested by Westcott) is Ἀποκάλυψις Ἑσδρα.

§ 3. THE ANCIENT VERSIONS.

(a) THE LATIN. The text of the Old Latin version reproduced in the Vulgate rests upon late MS. authority, and is full of corruptions and inaccuracies. The first serious contribution towards the formation of a critical text was made by Sabatier in the eighteenth century, who noted the variants of the Codex Sangermanensis (Codex S) in his great corpus of the Latin texts of the Bible.² A further advance was made by Volkmar in 1863, who published a Latin text, adding the variants of a Zürich MS. (Codex Turicensis, thirteenth century), in his edition of our Apocalypse.³ A few years later Hilgenfeld in his Messias Iudaeorum (Leipzig, 1869), and Fritzsche (Libri Vet. Test. pseudepigraphi selecti, Leipzig, 1871) published critical editions of the Latin text embodying readings from other MSS. But all previous work in this direction was dwarfed into insignificance when Bensly in 1875 published his epoch-making contribution to the critical study of 4 Ezra.—The missing fragment of the Latin translation of the Fourth Book of Ezra (Cambridge). Up to this time all known MSS. of the Latin text yielded a defective text of chapter 7: a long passage (some 70 verses) was missing between verses 35 and 36 of this chapter, as was shown clearly by the Oriental versions which attest the missing verses. In 1875 Bensly had the good fortune to discover the Latin text of the missing fragment in a ninth-century MS. which was then in the possession of the communal library of Amiens. The discovery was without delay communicated to the world in a splendid edition of the text of the fragment, enriched with a valuable introduction and commentary. Bensly's Missing Fragment (MF) is valuable not only for the text of the fragment itself, but for the textual study of the whole book. It abounds with notes, remarks, and accurate information which make it indispensable for the serious student of the Latin Bible. The curious lacuna in chapter 7 which characterizes all known Latin MSS. (except the few enumerated below) is due to the mutilation of the great Codex S (preserved in the Bibliothèque Nationale of Paris).⁴ In 1856 Prof. Gildermeister, in collating this MS., discovered that a leaf (which had originally contained the missing fragment) had been (no doubt purposely) cut out in early times. 'From this and other indications he drew the indisputable and highly important conclusion that all MSS. of 4 Esdras which do not contain that passage were ultimately derived from the Codex Sangermanensis. . . . Codex S is the oldest known manuscript of 4 Esdras and is the parent of the vast majority of extant copies.'⁵

Besides (1) Codex S the following are among the most important MSS. for text-critical purposes :

(2) Codex A (i. e. Codex Ambianensis). This is the MS. in which Prof. Bensly discovered the missing fragment. It was apparently written in the ninth century, and, though closely related to S, has an independent value by the side of it.

(3) Codex C (Codex Complutensis, formerly at Complutum) known as the Bible of Alcalá. It is now in the Library of the Central University at Madrid. The text is independent of S and A; date ninth to tenth century. This MS. contains the missing fragment, and curiously enough the text of the latter had been transcribed by Prof. Palmer in 1826, but never published by him. After the publication of MF in 1875 this transcript was found among Prof. Palmer's papers, and was printed in the Journal of Philology in 1877 (vii. 264).

¹ The Latin MSS. vary considerably in the enumeration: see for further details the present writer's Ezra-Apocalypse, p. iv; Bensly, MF, pp. 85-86; and BJ, pp. xxvi foll.

² Bibliorum sacrorum latinae versiones antiquae, tom. iii (Rheims, 1749). The date of Codex S is 822.

³ Das vierte Buch Esra (Tübingen, 1863), pp. 3-213.

⁴ Fonds latins, 11505.

⁵ BJ, p. xiii.

INTRODUCTION

(4) Codex M (Codex Mazarinaeus): in the Bibliothèque Mazarine at Paris. The existence of this MS. was made known by M. Berger in 1885. Its text (which includes the missing fragment) is of the same type as that of C (eleventh century).

To these—the principal MS. authorities—must now be added:

(5) Codex V (= Codex Abulensis) now in the Biblioteca Nacional at Madrid. It is known as the Bible of Avila. Its text is unmutilated, and appears to be a copy of Codex C (early thirteenth century). It was discovered by M. Berger.

(6) Codex L (Codex Legionensis) in the Library of San Isidro de Leon at Leon. This Codex (in 3 vols.) contains a remarkable text of 4 Ezra, which diverges from that of all other authorities. According to Violet these peculiarities are largely due to deliberate revision by a late transcriber. Its date, according to the same scholar, is probably about 1300. See further Violet, pp. xxii–xxiv.

(7) The latest discovered unmutilated text is a MS. which is denoted N (Codex N) by Violet. It is preserved at Brussels, and its existence was first made known in October, 1906 (by D. Donatien de Bryne, O.S.B.). It is part of a Bible in 4 vols.; the writing is of the twelfth century. According to Violet its text is closely related to that of M (hence the choice of the symbol N).

For the special MS. evidence that exists for chap. viii. 20–36 (the so-called Confessio Esdrae) see the introductory section to that passage in the present writer's edition of the book (EA, p. 176); and cf. further the introductions of BJ and Violet for this point, and for the MS. evidence generally: also Bensly MF.

The critical edition of the text of the whole book, which Bensly was prevented from completing by death, was finally edited and published, with a valuable introduction, by Dr. M. R. James, in 1895.¹ A splendid critical edition of the Latin text, with a full apparatus criticus, and with German translations of the Oriental versions (also provided with an apparatus criticus) in parallel columns has been edited by Dr. Bruno Violet for the Royal Prussian Academy of Science, and recently published.²

Both Bensly (with James) and Violet agree in the conclusion that broadly the MSS. yield two types of text: the one, represented by the group SA, may be styled the French recension (= Violet's ϕ); the other, the Spanish recension, represented by the group CMNVL (= Violet's ψ). On the whole the former group (ϕ) yields a decidedly superior text to that of the latter (ψ).

See further on this point Violet, § 12. Violet also (p. xxvi) calls attention to the existence of a number of Latin MSS. containing the unmutilated text of our book, which are in existence at various libraries, but have not as yet been utilized for the criticism of the text.

The Latin translation of the book, which, like the Oriental versions, was made from the lost Greek version, is undoubtedly very early. It was well known to Ambrose of Milan, who cites freely from it (see BJ, pp. xxxii–xxxiv). Possible but doubtful citations are made by Tertullian (4 Ezra viii. 20) and Cyprian (4 Ezra v. 54, 55). It has also been supposed that Commodian the Christian poet of the third century, cites 4 Ezra xiii. 40 f. It is interesting to note in this connexion that it seems fairly probable that in the time of Ambrose the Latin text of the additional chapters 15–16 was already current 'in the version in which we possess them and . . . that they were also attached to chapters 3–14'.³ The Latin version as a whole is singularly faithful and literal, and it is not difficult to arrive at the Greek text underlying it. It has itself suffered a certain amount of internal corruption in transmission; but this, with the aid partly of new MS. evidence, and partly of the other versions, can often be corrected successfully. From every point of view it is the most valuable of the versions that have come down to us.

Of the Oriental versions the most valuable is (b) THE SYRIAC. This is far more faithful and less paraphrastic than the other Oriental versions. The Syriac text of the book is unfortunately only known to us in a single MS. authority—the great Ambrosian (sixth century) Bible-Codex at Milan, which has been made available for scholars by the Italian scholar A. Ceriani. In this Codex 4 Ezra follows the Baruch-Apocalypse, and precedes the canonical books of Ezra and Nehemiah (here reckoned as one book: viz. the second Book of Ezra): 4 Ezra has no number attached to it. A printed edition of the Syriac text has been published by Ceriani in his Monumenta sacra et profana (vol. v, fasc. i, 1868); and it is also included in the photo-lithographic reproduction of the Ambrosian Codex. Ceriani's Latin translation of the Syriac text of 4 Ezra is reprinted, with some improve-

¹ The Fourth Book of Ezra in Texts and Studies (vol. iii, no. 2): Cambridge.

² Die Esra-Apocalypse (4 Ezra): Erster Teil: Die Ueberlieferung. Leipzig, 1910. (A second volume is to follow.)

³ BJ, p. xliii. For the whole subject of the ancient quotations of 4 Ezra cf. the full discussion (with the passages set out in full) in BJ, pp. xxvii f.

IV EZRA

ments, in Hilgenfeld's Messias Iudaeorum, pp. 212 ff. Like all the Oriental versions the Apocalypse in the Syriac text consists of chapters 3-14 of the Latin only. A translation (in German) with critical notes is printed in Violet, vol. i.

(c) THE ETHIOPIC. This version was first published in 1820 by the famous Orientalist Richard Laurence (afterwards Archbishop of Cashel; editor of 1 Enoch and of The Ascension of Isaiah). Laurence's Latin translation of the Ethiopic text, revised by Praetorius, is printed in Hilgenfeld's Messias Iudaeorum (pp. 262 ff.). A critical text of this version, based upon the collation of several MSS., was prepared by Dillmann and published after his death.¹ A French translation, based upon Dillmann's critical text, was published by Basset in 1899. The Ethiopic version is not so valuable as the Syriac. It is much more paraphrastic and free in its handling of the text, but it sometimes attests interesting and important readings, and is important for the criticism of the Greek text underlying it. A German translation, based upon Dillmann, is printed in Violet, vol. i (with critical notes).

(d) THE ARABIC VERSIONS. Two independent Arabic versions of the book are in existence which (following Gunkel) we may designate Ar.¹ and Ar.². Of the first Arabic version (Ar.¹) two MSS. are known to be in existence—the original MS. in the Bodleian Library at Oxford (part of the Laudian collection), and a transcript of this preserved at the Vatican. An English translation was made by Simon Ockley from the Oxford MS., and appeared in William Whiston's Primitive Christianity reviv'd (vol. iv, 1711), and a Latin version, made from Ockley's English, and corrected by Steiner from the Arabic text, is given in Hilgenfeld (op. cit. pp. 323 ff.). The Arabic text was first published by Ewald in Abhandlungen d. Königl. Gesellsch. d. Wissenschaften zu Göttingen.²

In this MS. our book appears as 1 Ezra; then follows Ezra-Nehemiah as 2 Ezra, succeeded by the Book of Tobit. A curious fact concerning the Oxford MS. is that there is a lacuna in the text of one page, which is supplied by the Vatican transcript. There are two other lacunae common to both MSS. In 1898 Violet, however, found in the Oxford MS. itself (but displaced) the missing page, which is given in the Vatican transcript in its right place (see further Violet, pp. xxxi-xxxvi). This version, which is exceedingly free, was also made from a Greek text; whether it—or the Greek text underlying it—has been revised is uncertain. A German translation, with critical notes, is given in Violet.

The Second Arabic Version (Ar.²) is an independent version made directly from the Greek. It exists in a complete form in a Vatican MS. (Arab. 462) which has been edited and published, with a Latin translation, by Gildemeister (Esdrae liber quartus arabice e cod. Vat., Bonn 1877). Extracts from this version are contained in an Oxford (Bodleian) MS. 260; and a fragment containing ch. vii. 75-91 has been found in a Paris MS. by Violet.

This version contains some interesting and valuable readings which have led Gunkel to postulate the existence of a second Greek version, made from the Hebrew original, which he supposes to have been the basis of this version.

Gunkel supports this view by citing chap. viii. 23 where Ar.², alone among the versions, renders ceaseless (eternal) = Heb. לְעֹלָם: the other versions imply for a witness (= לְעֵד). Evidently there were two Greek readings, representing two renderings of a single Hebrew text. One has been followed by Ar.²; the other by the other versions. Again, in xiv. 3 Ar.² has Sinai (= סִינַי) where the other versions have bush (= סִנְה)—phenomena which point to different readings in the Greek, due to a difference of reading the Hebrew. But it is not necessary to infer from such instances (which, in any case, are few) that two different recensions of the Greek existed. The readings more probably represent marginal variants or corrections in the Greek exemplar used. In any case, as Violet has shown, both Ar.¹ and Ar.² go back to one recension of the Greek, which is characterized by a lacuna in the text, viii. 50-ix. 1 being omitted. It is probable that different MSS. of this Greek recension (if it may be so called) were used by the translators of Ar.¹ and Ar.².

Thus Ar.², though it is very free and paraphrastic on the whole, is often an important textual witness, and must never be neglected.

It is interesting to notice that Ar.² agrees with the Syr. in omitting the first half of xi. 30 (= et vidi quomodo complexa est), and again with the Syr. in attesting (in xi. 43) a clause which has fallen out in all the other versions (= that thou shouldst forsake us also).

Two further fragments of an Arabic version independent of Ar.¹ and Ar.² are also known; but these seem to be of secondary importance, depending, as they not improbably do, on the Latin

¹ Veteris Testamenti Aethiopici tomus v (Berlin, 1894, pp. 152-93).

² 1863, vol. xi (also reprinted separately).

INTRODUCTION

version. [See further Violet, xxxi-xxxix: Violet gives a German translation of both Ar.¹ and Ar.² with critical notes.]

(e) THE ARMENIAN. This version was first printed in the Armenian Bible of 1805 (Venice), and again in the Armenian edition of the Apocrypha of the Old Testament (Venice, 1896). A Latin translation (by J. H. Petermann) is given in Hilgenfeld (op. cit. pp. 378 ff.), and a German one by Violet. The version is exceedingly free, and possesses little or no value for the criticism of the text. It may have been made from the Syriac.

(f) FRAGMENTS AND TRACES OF OTHER VERSIONS. An important discovery of some fragments of a Sahidic version of our book was made known in 1904.¹ The fragment in question covers chap. xiii. 29-46; but the leaf containing it is unfortunately much damaged. The recovery of other parts of this version, which is not impossible, would probably afford valuable help in reconstructing the underlying Greek text, if, as is likely, the Sahidic was made directly from the Greek. The Sahidic translation would certainly embody many of the original Greek words as loan-words.

Traces also exist of an old Georgian version of our book. [See further Violet, pp. xl ff.]

§ 4. THE LOST GREEK VERSION.

The dependence of all the versions (with the possible exception of the Armenian) upon a lost Greek version hardly needs any detailed proof. The differences between the versions can constantly be explained by corruptions of a Greek text underlying them.

To select a few instances out of many: in v. 28 the Latin has praeparasti (= ητοιμασας) unam radicem super alias; but the Oriental versions rightly render 'thou hast dishonoured (= ητιμασας) the one root', &c. Again in vii. 26 the Latin has et apparebit sponsa [et] apparescens civitas = 'and the bride shall appear even the city appearing' (so Syr. substantially); but the true text, represented by the Ethiopic and Armenian runs: then shall the city that now is invisible appear = και φανησεται η νυν μη φαινομενη πολις which was misread by the Latin και φανησεται η νυμφη φαινομενη πολις. In x. 28, again, the true text represented by the Latin and the Oriental versions, with the exception of the Ethiopic, runs: for he it is who has caused me to fall into this great bewilderment (εκστασις); but the Ethiopic has search for bewilderment, misreading εκστασις as εξετασις.

Further, the internal evidence of the versions singly often clearly demonstrates dependence upon a Greek underlying text. Thus the Latin sometimes reproduces Greek constructions (e. g. the genitive absolute, v. 55), and Greek genders unknown to Latin (e. g. x. 23 signaculum Sion . . . resignata est: 'seal' being treated as fem. as in Greek = η σφραγίς). See further on these points MF, pp. 17 f.; EA, pp. xi, xviii (see also Index V of the latter work under Greek constructions and Greek words).

Positive evidence of the existence of such a Greek version as is desiderated by the evidence of the secondary versions is afforded by actual citations in the early patristic literature, as well as by the existence of Greek works which have been based upon, or imitated from, the lost Greek version. The most certain of the citations are the citation of v. 35 in Clement of Alexandria, Stromateis, iii. 16; and of viii. 23 in Const. Apost. viii. 7; while Const. Apost. ii. 14 contains a passage, the language of which is strongly reminiscent of vii. 103 (fathers for sons, sons for parents, brothers for brothers, kinsfolk for their nearest, friends for their dearest). The passage in question runs as follows:—

Εἰ δὲ πατέρες ὑπὲρ τέκνων οὐ τιμωροῦνται, οὔτε υἱοὶ ὑπὲρ πατέρων, δῆλον ὡς οὔτε γυναῖκες ὑπὲρ ἀνδρῶν, οὔτε οἰκέται ὑπὲρ δεσποτῶν, οὔτε συγγενεῖς ὑπὲρ συγγενῶν, οὔτε φίλοι ὑπὲρ φίλων, οὔτε δίκαιοι (v. l. δίκαιος) ὑπὲρ ἀδίκων. ἀλλ' ἕκαστος ὑπὲρ τοῦ οἰκείου ἔργου τὸν λόγον ἀπαιτηθήσεται.

A knowledge of the Greek 4 Ezra appears to be presupposed, also in the Hippolytean fragment περὶ τοῦ παντός.² The alleged citations in our book of the Epistle of Barnabas are, however, more than doubtful (see the notes on v. 9 below). For a full discussion of these points reference must be made to BZ, pp. xxvii-xxx; cf. also EA, p. xii. For later Greek works which have imitated the Greek 4 Ezra (viz. the Apocalypses of Esdras and Sedrach), see Violet, pp. l-lix.

The reconstruction of the lost Greek text from the Latin version of our book has been carried out with a considerable amount of success by Hilgenfeld (with the assistance of Lagarde and Hermann Rönsch). It is printed in Messias Iudaeorum (pp. 36-113), and is a most valuable piece of work. Volkmar, also, in his edition of our book (Das vierte Buch Esra, 1863) has constantly suggested Greek renderings which are often important for this purpose; while in Gunkel's commentary some useful notes of a similar character by Wilamowitz are occasionally cited. An elaborate reconstruction is promised by Violet.

¹ In the Zeitschrift für ägyptische Sprache und Altertumskunde (Band 41, Heft 2, pp. 138-40).

² Also cited sometimes as 'Hippolytus Against Plato'.

A specimen of the Greek translation of part of the additional chapters, which do not strictly belong to the Ezra-Apocalypse, viz. 4 Ezra xv. 57-59, has been discovered (1909) among the Oxyrhynchus papyri, and been published with other papyri in the collection of Grenfell and Hunt. This important find encourages the hope that parts, or even the whole, of the lost Greek version of the Apocalypse proper may yet come to light.

Gunkel (ap. Kautzsch) has propounded a theory that two independent Greek translations of a Hebrew original were made; while the Lat., Syr., Ethiop., Ar.¹ (and possibly the Armenian) rest upon one of these, Ar.², he thinks, rests upon a mixed Greek text, made up of the edition used by the other versions, and a second made independently and later. The evidence adduced for this view is, however, very slight, and has already been dealt with above in § 3*d* (in connexion with Ar.²). The textual phenomena are susceptible of an alternative and simpler explanation, viz. that Ar.² has embodied marginal variants occasionally; while, in other respects, it has handled its Greek text rather freely, omitting considerable portions. [For Volkmar's theory of a second Greek recension see EA, p. xiii.]

§ 5. THE ORIGINAL HEBREW TEXT.

The most recent investigators of the textual problems of our book are agreed in postulating a Hebrew text as the original form in which 4 Ezra was composed. These scholars include Wellhausen, Charles, Gunkel, and Violet.¹ The opposite view (of a Greek original) has been championed by Lücke, Volkmar, and Hilgenfeld.

The fullest discussion of the grounds for assuming a Hebrew original is that of Wellhausen.² It may be said, without qualification, that judged by any of the properly applicable tests, the phenomena point to a Semitic original. THE SYNTAX REFLECTS CHARACTERISTICALLY HEBREW FEATURES. Thus the sentences are co-ordinated with rather than subordinated to each other, and in consequence it is sometimes difficult to determine exactly where the protasis of a hypothetical sentence ends, and the apodosis begins.

Cp. e.g. iii. 12 (et factum est cum coepissent multiplicari . . . et multiplicaverunt filios . . . et coeperunt . . . impietatem facere, &c.); iii. 17 f. (et factum est cum educeres semen eius ex Aegypto et adduxisti eos . . . Et transiit gloria tua, &c.); iii. 29 f.; v. 4 ff.; v. 31; vi. 18 f. In some of these cases the punctuation of the editors is not certainly correct—the sentences should, perhaps, be run on.

Note also turns of expression as et factum est et and et erit et, which are essentially Hebrew modes of expression, as also are et ecce (very frequent in chapters 10 and 11), and et vidi et ecce (iv. 48, xi. 1 f.) or et audivi et ecce (vi. 18). All these, as Wellhausen points out, are characteristically Hebrew, and not Greek.

THE FOLLOWING ARE EXAMPLES OF STRONGLY MARKED HEBRAISMS: the complement of the relative by a demonstrative pronoun, e.g. de quibus si mihi renunciaveris ex his (iv. 4), de quo me interrogas de eo (iv. 28), in quo stas super eum (vi. 14), super quem stabam super eum (vi. 29), qui per semet ipsum liberabit creaturam suam (xiii. 26).

The last instance cited is an excellent example of the ambiguity which may arise from the misunderstanding of the Hebrew relative and its complement (the Heb. relative particle אֲשֶׁר does not distinctly express either number or case). Similar instances of misunderstanding also occur in ix. 20 (propter cogitationes quae in eo advenerunt should be p. c. eorum qui in eo, &c.); and in xiii. 40 (quem captivum duxit Salmanassar should be quas or quos captivos duxit, &c.).

The construction of the Hebrew infinitive absolute with the finite verb is of extraordinarily frequent occurrence. It is usually rendered by a particle or by an abstract substantive.

The following are illustrative of numerous examples: excedens excessit cor tuum (iv. 2); festinans festinat saeculum pertransire (iv. 26); mensura mensuravit tempora et numero numeravit tempora (iv. 37); odiens odisti populum tuum (v. 30). The number of these examples might be somewhat increased if the instances could be added where the Syr. attests the same construction without the support of the Latin.

One of the characteristic features of Hebrew, which it shares with other old Semitic languages, is the paucity of its adverbs. The language, consequently, is forced to adopt other modes of speech in order to express the adverbial idea. The infinitive absolute often does duty in this way (expressing intensity or iteration: = surely, much, often, &c.). But sometimes other methods are resorted to. Thus repeated action (= again) is expressed in Hebrew by such phrases as to add to do (הוסיף + another verb). This usage is reflected in our text by such un-Greek expressions as adiciam (dicere)

¹ Among earlier scholars Ewald (Hist. of Israel, vol. 7) held this view; earlier still Jo. Morinus.

² Skizzen, vi, pp. 234-9 (1899).

INTRODUCTION

coram te (v. 32); superdixerunt (vii. 23); noli ergo adicere inquirendo (viii. 55); adiciam dolorem (ix. 41); adposui adhuc loqui (x. 19).

The usage of prepositions is often Hebrew rather than Greek (see the examples cited in EA, p. xv f.). The characteristic features of Hebrew style are marked throughout all sections of the book. Thus in the dialogue between the seer and the angel the expression he answered (I answered) and said constantly recurs; cf. also ask . . . and say, v. 46, 50. Before the oratio recta saying (= לומר) is constantly prefixed, dixit dicens even occurring (xi. 37, xii. 40). Such diffuseness is a well-known feature in Hebrew composition. Another characteristic feature in the dialogue is the self-designation of the human speaker as thy servant, while the angel is addressed as domine (cf. v. 45-56, vi. 12, vii. 75, 102, viii. 6, 24, x. 37, xii. 8, xiii. 14); in the case of a woman thine handmaid (ix. 43, 45).

The title of address O dominator domine (O Lord that bearest rule, R.V.) which occurs several times is properly applicable only to God = Δέσποτα κύριέ μου (Heb. יהוה אדני or אדני יהוה).

Characteristically Hebrew, again, is the artless simplicity with which sentences (esp. imperative forms of speech) are constantly expanded by the use of redundant expressions.

The following examples are cited by Wellhausen: vade pondera mihi (iv. 5); venite et eamus (iv. 14); venite ascendentes debellemus (iv. 15); vade et interroga (iv. 40), &c. The materializing of the action is detailed by the side of the description of the action itself: e. g. Respexi oculis meis et vidi (ix. 38); apertum est os meum et inchoavi dicere (ix. 28). Especially frequent is the somewhat similar use of incipere (= Heb. הווייל): cf. vi. 8, 19, 32; vii. 75, 88, 97, 122, 126, &c. (cf. the similar use of ἀρχεσθαι in the Gospels). The following are also examples of expanded descriptions of simple actions, which are characteristically Hebrew: surge super pedes tuos (v. 15; vi. 13, 17; x. 30; xi. 7); capax est tibi visus oculorum videre (x. 55); torquent me renes mei (v. 31); cogitationes meae ascenderunt super cor meum (iii. 1); conturbatus est sensus cordis tui (x. 31); ne expavescat cor tuum (x. 55); vultus tuus tristis (v. 16); amara animo (ix. 41); figmentum manuum tuarum (iii. 5; viii. 7); plantavit dextera tua (iii. 6). The bare mention of the person who is the instrument or object of an action is not sufficient; the organ through which the action is performed must also be mentioned. Thus the writer says thy right hand has planted for thou hast planted, thy countenance is sad for thou art sad, &c.

Further examples of genuine Hebraisms are the following: dixi in corde meo (iii. 28); accepisti in corde tuo (vii. 16); reddere animam suam (vii. 75); non dirigentur viae eorum (εὐδοῦσθαι v. 12); dare vocem suam (= נתן קולו v. 5, 7); nomen uni vocasti (vi. 49); nomen tuum invocatum est super nos (iv. 25, x. 22); fiebat species coruscus (x. 25); factus est in uno casus eorum (iii. 10); factus est Iacob in multitudine magna (iii. 16); factus est in vano (iv. 16); concupiscentia gustus multiformis (vi. 44).

A number of words are used also in a sense that can only be explained by Hebrew usage: cf. e. g. confractio (vii. 108 and note), cor maris (iv. 7), flumen (= the River sc. Euphrates, xiii. 40), lignum = tree (iv. 13; v. 5 = Heb. עץ = both wood and tree), multus for magnus (Heb. רב, x. 38, &c.), nationes (= דורות or חולדות iii. 7 and note), nomina (names = individuals, persons, iii. 36), opus (= Heb. בעלה reward vii. 35, cf. iii. 33 note n), proximus = ? Heb. קרוב (v. 11 interrogabit regio proximam suam), radix used in a technical sense (v. 28, in another technical sense viii. 53 note t), a saeculo (= מעולם ix. 7, 18), sermo = דבר (vii. 101 ut videant qui predicti sunt sermones), cf. also x. 5, spiritus intellectus (v. 22), unicus (= יחיד v. 28), vas bellicosum (= כלי מלחמה xiii. 9, 28), via (= Heb. דרך mode or kind; cf. vii. 80, iv. 3 and often: see note v, p. 145); among verbs the following, which reflect Hebrew usage, may be noted: vincere and vinci (= Heb. זכה and תוב, iii. 21, vi. 28, vii. 115, 128), confortare (= חזק v. 15, &c.), congregari (= נאסף vii. 33), inquirere iustitiam ab (= ריש מן vi. 19 and note), spernere used absolutely, like καταφρονεῖν (= בנר vii. 76, 79, &c.).

It would, no doubt, be possible to explain isolated examples in the lists given above without recourse to the hypothesis of a Hebrew original; but the cumulative effect of the whole evidence creates a presumption which amounts to a certainty that the Greek text which underlies the extant versions was itself a translation from a Hebrew original. The whole book is coloured by Hebrew diction, Hebrew modes of thought and characteristic modes of expression.

This conclusion is in no way weakened by the fact that Graecisms are of not infrequent occurrence. As Wellhausen remarks, Graecisms occur in the LXX. Attention has already been called to the fact of the occurrence of Greek usages and constructions in the Latin text.¹ These merely reflect the Greek text on which the Latin translator worked. Of Graecisms proper in the Greek translation itself a good instance is in eo quod misereatur (vii. 132) = ἐν τῷ οἰκτεῖρειν, several examples of which occur (ἐν τῷ + infin.). Occasional word-plays in the Greek may also be explained as due to the translator.²

¹ For a full and detailed list see Volkmar, pp. 313 ff.

² A good example of this occurs in xii. 24-5.

IV EZRA

One other criterion exists by which the hypothesis of a Hebrew original may be tested: viz. whether the hypothesis will explain, or is compatible with, the variations that exist in the versions. A certain number of these are due to internal corruptions in the versions themselves.¹ But a large number of cases remains where divergent readings of the Greek can best be explained by the hypothesis of corruption in the original Hebrew text (for examples see the notes in the following commentary).

Again ex hypothesi it ought to be possible throughout to arrive at an approximation to the underlying Hebrew text. This has been constantly borne in mind by the present editor, and it can confidently be asserted that, all through, the textual phenomena are compatible with a Hebrew original.

An apparent exception to this rule occurs in vi. 56 where the LXX of Isa. xl. 15 (like unto spittle) is followed against the Masoretic Hebrew text. But this can be explained without violence to the hypothesis of a Hebrew original (cf. notes ad loc.). The word-play in the Greek of xii. 24-25 has already been referred to.

In the previous discussion it has been assumed throughout that a Hebrew original is postulated. The textual phenomena certainly point to this rather than Aramaic. The constant use of such expressions as et factum est, et erit, et ecce, and, above all, the recurring use of the infinitive absolute, point to a Hebrew rather than an Aramaic original.

It remains to add a word on the relation of the Hebrew original to the versions. The extant versions are, as has already been pointed out, translations directly from the lost Greek version (with the possible exception of the Armenian, which may have been made from the Syriac). The original Greek version was itself a translation of the Hebrew text which embraced the Apocalypse proper (i. e. chapters iii-xiv of 2 Esdras in the Vulgate form). To this original Greek version were appended (in the third century) the additional chapters (i-ii and xv-xvi of the Vulgate and our own official Apocrypha). They were composed in Greek and are of Christian origin. In the time of Ambrose apparently the Latin version of chapters xv-xvi was already current, and it is probable that these chapters were already attached to chapters iii-xiv (see further BZ, p. xliii; and for the whole subject of this section EA, pp. xiii-xix).

§ 6. THE COMPOSITE CHARACTER OF THE TEXT.

Is the present form of 4 Ezra a compilation, made by an editor from different sources? Or is it, on the whole, a uniform composition which in a real sense goes back to a single author? The latter alternative is accepted by (among modern scholars) Gunkel² and F. C. Porter³; the former is upheld by Kabisch and Dr. Charles.

At the outset we are confronted with a datum that strongly suggests the use by an editor of an independent source. In the very first verse we read: I Salathiel who am also Ezra (iii. 1). This strange identification of Salathiel with Ezra cannot be justified historically, nor can it be explained as due to defective historical knowledge on the part of the original writer of this section of the book. The only adequate explanation is that an editor or compiler is using an independent writing in which the seer who is the recipient of the revelations that follow, spoke in the name of Salathiel, and that the compiler who utilized this written source was anxious, for some reason, to connect it with the name of Ezra; accordingly he inserted the words who am also Ezra.

What other explanation is possible? If it be assumed that the author wrote the words, then we must suppose that he thought of himself sometimes as Ezra, sometimes as Salathiel. But such an assumption is surely far-fetched, and in the highest degree unnatural. If the author had wished to speak throughout in the name of Ezra it would have been perfectly easy for him to do so. The importation of Salathiel would in that case be perfectly gratuitous. On the other hand, if the identification be due to a compiler who is using sources, all is explained.

We may assume, then, that the present form of our book reveals unmistakably the hand of a Compiler or Redactor (R) who has used as a source an originally independent Salathiel-apocalypse (S). It remains to determine what are the limits of S, so far as it is embodied in our own book, and what are its relations to other parts of the book.⁴

§ 7. THE SOURCES OF THE BOOK.

No question arises in connexion with regard to chapters 3-10 which, apart from the eschatological passages, may be assigned as a whole to S. The Redactor (R) will, of course, be in evidence

¹ A good example of internal corruption in the Latin is vii. 4 (altum for latum).

² In Kautzsch.

³ The Messages of the Apocalyptic Writers (1909), p. 336.

⁴ See further the discussion of this point in EA, p. xxi f.

INTRODUCTION

occasionally ; but there will be little difficulty in assigning limits to his work after the more important question as to what other main sources, if any, are embodied in our own book has been discussed.

This resolves itself into the question whether the author of S can have embodied in his work the 5th, 6th and 7th visions of the book (chapters xi–xiv), or whether these are to be regarded in the light of appendices, drawn from independent sources, and inserted in their present position by R.

The famous Eagle-vision (chapters xi–xii) has all the appearance of an independent writing. It has a style and form of its own. But the all-important fact about it is that it reveals eschatological conceptions which are radically opposed to those of S. The latter holds strongly to a dualistic and transcendental view. There are two ages ; one the present corruptible age, and the other the glorious incorruptible age that is to succeed the present one, after the Final Judgement. The hopes of S are fixed on the latter ; he gives up the present as hopeless (see further § 10 (1)). On the other hand, in the Eagle-vision a strongly political view is held. The writer's hopes are fixed on the annihilation of the Eagle (i. e. the Roman Empire). It is this that will mark the decisive moment ; the Day of Judgement will dawn, according to this writer's conception, when the Roman Empire is annihilated by the Messiah, and the Rule of God becomes a reality upon the earth. The two conceptions are difficult to harmonize. Doubtless the compiler (R) did try to harmonize them by combining them in thought ; he doubtless anticipated that the world, even after the victory of the Messiah over Rome, would still come to its predestined end which would usher in the final Day of Judgement. But can such a conception be attributed to S ? If anything is certain about this writer it is that he wrestles with real difficulties, and strives to reach a real solution. He is not a mere collector of opposed opinions. The conviction that dominates the whole thought of S is that the evil which reigns in the present order is so deep-rooted that nothing less than the dissolution of the present world and the ushering in of the future and better world (or age) will suffice to eliminate the wrongs and unrighteousness that now exist.¹ Is it conceivable that S can at the same time have held the view that the annihilation of the oppressive world-power by the Messiah will usher in a new age in the present world, which will bring felicity to those who live on into it, and justify the ways of God by making the divine rule a reality upon the earth ? No. This older view was doubtless well known to S, and had failed to satisfy him. In his agonizing struggle for fresh light he implicitly repudiates the older eschatology, with its political hopes and somewhat materialistic aspirations, and takes refuge in a transcendental view. Consequently we are justified in treating the Eagle-vision (A) as an independent source which owes its position in the book to R.² The general theme of the Son of Man vision (ch. xiii)—viz. the annihilation of hostile powers and the setting up of the Messianic kingdom—is identical with that of the Eagle-vision. For the reasons already advanced it cannot, therefore, belong to S. Its eschatology also is different from that of the Eagle-vision, as will be shown later. Consequently it must be regarded as an independent writing. Though in tone and in some of its characteristic conceptions the final chapter (xiv) of our Apocalypse is much more akin to S than the two independent sources already referred to, it yet cannot be regarded as belonging to the Salathiel-apocalypse. The situation presupposed throughout this chapter (with the exception of some interpolations due to R) is that of the historical Ezra, living in the fifth century B.C. ; it cannot, therefore, be brought into accordancè with the situation of Salathiel (who lived a century earlier) as this is implied in S.³

Thus, as a result of our discussion, so far, we have reached the conclusion that the Salathiel-apocalypse (S) is contained within chapters iii–x of our book ; while outside of and independent of this at least three other independent sources have been used, viz. the Eagle-vision (chapters xi–xii = A), the Son of Man vision (ch. xiii = M), and an Ezra-piece (ch. xiv = E²).

The combination of these elements into the present whole of the Ezra-apocalypse will have been the work of the compiler (R). In the process of redaction the hand of R will naturally be evident especially in fitting together the diverse material, and in the work of harmonization. It becomes important, therefore, to determine the extent and limits of R's work.

But before this is attempted the question of the possible existence of another source within our book remains to be discussed. Within the chapters which contain S there are four eschatological passages, marked by special features, the relation of which to S it is important to determine. These passages are the following : (1) iv. 52–v. 13 a, (2) vi. 11–29, (3) vii. 26–44, and (4) viii. 63–ix. 12. In general they contain eschatological descriptions, of a well-known traditional type, which set forth the 'signs' that are to precede the end of the world, and usher in the Final Judgement.

Thus (1) describes the 'signs' that precede the End as follows : it will be a time of commotions, and the general break up of moral and religious forces (v. 1–2) ; the heathen world-power (= Rome) will be destroyed

¹ Cf. especially iv. 26–43 (which should be carefully read).

² See further the discussion in EA, pp. 246 ff.

³ Cf. further EA, pp. 306–7.

IV EZRA

(v. 3); there will be portents in nature, general chaos in society, monstrous and untimely births, the failure of the means of subsistence, and internecine strife (v. 4-8, cf. vi. 21-22), and wisdom and understanding will have perished from the earth (v. 10-12). In (2) the description of the signs that precede the End is taken up again and interwoven with another which has for its subject the End of the world itself. It also contains a description of the felicity of those who survive the Messianic 'woes' (vi. 13-28). In (3) a description is given of the sudden revelation of the Messiah, his 400 years' reign on the earth and death, and finally a vivid delineation of the dissolution of the world interwoven with a description of the Judgement itself (vii. 26-44). In (4) the signs of the End are again reviewed (viii. 63-ix. 12).

Are these passages integral parts of S? Or can S have been responsible for their insertion in their present contexts? The traditional character of the passages as a whole is generally conceded; they belong to a type which has many parallels elsewhere. Is it conceivable, then, that S took up this widely current traditional material, and embodied it in his own work? An examination of the first of the passages (iv. 56-v. 12) mentioned discloses unmistakable marks of interpolation. Its awkward insertion in its present context cannot be due to S; it was doubtless interpolated by R. The second passage is parallel to and depends upon the first. If (1) is an interpolation, it follows that (2) must be also. The source from which R excerpted them was, Kabisch thinks, an old Ezra-apocalypse, containing eschatological descriptions of the 'signs' preceding the End, and of the End itself. It may be denominated E (= Ezra-apocalypse; so Kabisch). For similar reasons the third and fourth passages (vii. 26-44 and viii. 63-ix. 12) cannot belong to S or have been inserted in their present contexts by S. Kabisch believes that both these passages have been drawn from E. The present writer, however, thinks that in their extant form both are the work of R, who may have drawn upon E, but has also utilized other material. They are in fact a compilation of diverse elements (cf. the discussion in EA, pp. 108 ff. and 199 ff.).

The results thus reached may be stated as follows: the present form of our apocalypse is due to a Redactor (R) who used the following sources:

(1) S, A SALATHIEL-APOCALYPSE which (so far as it has been utilized) is embodied in iii. 1-31, iv. 1-51, v. 13 b-vi. 10, vi. 30-vii. 25, vii. 45-viii. 62, and ix. 15-x. 57; in addition the two sections xii. 40-48 and xlv. 28-35 are probably misplaced pieces which belong to S (see the introductory sections ad loc.).

(2) E, AN EZRA-APOCALYPSE, from which iv. 52-v. 13 a and vi. 13-29 are extracts. Their present position is due to R, who has also drawn upon this source in vii. 26-44 and viii. 63-ix. 12.

(3) A, THE EAGLE-VISION, contained (with revision by R) in chapters xi-xii.

(4) M, A SON OF MAN VISION, contained (with much revision and insertions by R) in chapter xiii.

(5) E², AN EZRA-PIECE, contained in xiv. 1-17 a, 18-27, 36-47.

(6) R is responsible for the compilation of the book as a whole. By means of redactional links and adjustments he has fitted the different elements of the book together; the following passages (redactional links) are due to his hand: iv. 52 (as for the signs concerning which thou askest me, I may tell thee of them in part but) introducing the extract from E which follows: (v. 1-13 a), vi. 11-12 (introducing the second extract from E which follows in vi. 13-28), vi. 29, x. 58-9 (transition to the Fifth vision), xii. 49-51 (transition to the Sixth vision), xiv. 49-50 (conclusion of the book). In the process of adjustment R has also, apparently, misplaced certain sections of S. Besides the two sections already mentioned (xii. 40-8 and xiv. 28-35) the following also fall under this category: v. 14-15 and xiii. 57-8. The following are the longer insertions which were probably compiled in their present form, as well as inserted by R: iii. 32-6, vii. 26-44, viii. 63-ix. 12, and xiii. 13 b-24: R is also responsible for a certain amount of revision in the fourth and following visions (especially in the interpretation): x. 45 (in eo altered in the original Heb. to in ea) and x. 46 (David altered into Solomon), xi. 12 (on the right side), xi. 20 (upon the right side), xii. 8 (completely), xii. 9, xii. 14, xii. 15 (the twelve), xii. 26 b-28, xii. 32 (partly), xii. 34, xii. 39, xiii. 26 b, xiii. 29-32, xiii. 36, xiii. 48, xiii. 52 (or those that are with him). For minor adjustments made by R reference must be made to EA, p. xxvii.

The above analysis agrees, in the main, with the results of Kabisch's masterly discussion in his essay on our book.¹ The present editor, however, differs from Kabisch in assigning rather more to R—in particular the sections vii. 26-44 and viii. 63-ix. 12 which appear to be compilations by him.

Thus the book as a whole is a compilation from different sources. In the case of EA and M we have only extracts from larger works (see further EA, p. 244 f., 285 f.). In the case of E² we have also a piece which was extracted from a larger source (cf. EA, pp. 301). Only in the case of S, which forms the groundwork of the whole book, have we a source which is substantially preserved in its entirety—though even here there are some curtailments. With S the compiler interwove extracts from other (Ezra) apocalypses, and then invested the whole with the name of Ezra (cf. the case of 1 Enoch, which is a compilation of extracts from a number of Enochic apocalypses interwoven with fragments of a Noah-apocalypse).¹

¹ Das vierte Buch Esra auf seine Quellen untersucht (1889).

INTRODUCTION

§ 8. THE DATE OF THE SOURCES AND OF THE FINAL REDACTION.

Fortunately in the opening verse of the book we have a precise statement which points definitely to an exact date for the original appearance of the Salathiel-apocalypse (S). It is stated in iii. 1 that it was in the thirtieth year of the downfall of the city that Salathiel was in Babylon and underwent the experiences detailed in the visions that follow; and this statement is confirmed in iii. 29 (these thirty years). This date, which probably is intended to refer to the original publication of S, points to the year A. D. 100 (i. e. thirty years after the destruction of Jerusalem in A. D. 70) as the time when S originally appeared or was completed as an independent work. For reasons supporting this view reference must be made to EA, p. xxviii f. The place of composition of S was probably Palestine, and not Rome as Kabisch supposes (ibid.).

With regard to the dates of the other sources embodied in our book, E is marked by traditional features which suggest that it was current long before it was utilized by R, who has handled it with considerable freedom.² From the absence of any clear indication that the horrors of the struggle which culminated in A. D. 70 have coloured the delineation of the Messianic 'woes' in these passages it may be inferred that E had assumed literary form some time before A. D. 70.³ Kabisch suggests as a possible date about 30 B. C.

The date of the original composition of the Eagle-vision (A) may be more definitely determined. The one usually favoured is some time in the reign of Domitian (A. D. 81-96); but a date in the reign of Vespasian (A. D. 69-79) is quite possible, and not improbable (see the point fully discussed EA, p. 249).

In the case of the Son of Man vision (M) the interpretation of the vision presupposes a time for its composition before A. D. 70 (cf. EA, p. 286). As the Christology of M is more advanced than that of E it is probable that it was reduced to written form at a later date than the latter, though it must be remembered that the actual vision in M (4 Ezra xiii. 1-13 a) embodies traditional elements that are much older.

On the other hand, E² (ch. xiv) clearly implies a date subsequent to A. D. 70. The emphasis laid upon the representation of Ezra as the restorer of the Law that has been burnt (xiv. 21) points unmistakably to this. Kabisch regards this source as of contemporaneous origin with S, and this is quite possible; in tone it occasionally resembles S. But all that can be said with certainty is that it must have been composed some time between A. D. 70 and the time of the Redactor (? c. A. D. 120); it is probable that some considerable time elapsed between the Fall of Jerusalem and the time of its composition; consequently a date at or about A. D. 100 is not improbable.

The limits within which the final redaction of our book must have taken place may be fixed as A. D. 100-135. It is clear that the book cannot have been published in its present form before the former date in view of the explicit reference in iii. 1 to the thirtieth year after the downfall of the city; and on the other hand, it would have been impossible for a Jewish book of this kind to have found its way into Christian circles after the Bar-Kokba revolt, when Church and Synagogue had become hopelessly alienated. Sufficient time must be allowed before A. D. 132-135 for the Hebrew original to have been translated into Greek, and for the Greek version to have won its way into Christian circles. The date of the original publication cannot, therefore, be placed much after A. D. 120. Can it be placed any earlier?

We have already seen reason to believe that the explicit time-determination given in iii. 1 marks the date of the publication of S—not that of the whole book. If that be so, sufficient time must be allowed for S to have become well known in the circles to which R belonged, and for the work of compilation to have taken place. A number of indications suggest that at the time when the Redactor compiled the work feeling towards Rome on the part of Jewish circles in Palestine had become embittered.⁴ This was the case after the suppression of the Jewish rebellions in A. D. 116-117;

¹ For later apocalyptic literature circulating under Ezra's name cf. pp. 470 seq. of this vol.; BJ, pp. lxxxvi ff.

² We have extracts from E, probably in v. 1-12, vi. 12-28; while it has, apparently, been utilized by R in vii. 26-44 and viii. 63-ix. 12.

³ The reference to the humiliation of Sion in vi. 19^b is probably a later interpolation; see EA, p. xxx.

⁴ The insertion of the Eagle-vision by R is evidence of this.

IV EZRA

and though with the accession of Hadrian a better feeling manifested itself, this was of short duration, and the old spirit of hostility soon re-asserted itself. These various indications point to a date about A. D. 120 as the time when the Redactor wrote and completed his work. It may have been somewhat later.

A similar date (between A. D. 120-130) is suggested by Charles as the time when 2 Baruch was edited in its final form (in Hebrew and then translated into Greek).

§ 9. THE RELATION OF 4 EZRA TO 2 BARUCH.

It is evident from a comparison of parallel passages¹ that a relation exists between 4 Ezra and 2 Baruch of the closest and most intimate description. To determine the exact details of this relationship is not possible here in view of the complex critical problems involved by the composite character of the text of each book. All that can be attempted is to set forth some of the data that will serve to indicate the lines of a solution.

The composite character of 4 Ezra has already been indicated in the former part of this Introduction (see above §§ 6 and 7). In the case of 2 Baruch also the editor (Dr. Charles) finds it necessary to analyse the book into a number of sources, which are denominated A¹, A², A³ (i. e. the three Messianic apocalypses, which look for a personal Messiah, being chapters xxvii-xxxii, xxxvi-xl, and liii-lxxiv); as in these sections Jerusalem is represented, according to Dr. Charles, as still standing it may be concluded that they assumed literary form before A. D. 70: another set of passages, denominated B¹ (= i-ix. 1, xxxii. 2-4, xliii-xliv. 7, xlv-xlvi, lxxvii-lxxxii, lxxxiv, lxxxvi f.), which are optimistic as to the future of the present world-order, but do not expect the advent of a personal Messiah, may be grouped partly with A¹, A², A³; but the date of composition of B¹ must be subsequent to A. D. 70 as the destruction of Jerusalem and the exile are presupposed. Dr. Charles also distinguishes two other sources, viz. B² (= x-xxv, xxx. 2-xxxii. 1, xxxii. 5-xxxv, xli-xlii, xlv. 8-15, xlvii-lii, lxxv sq., lxxxiii) and B³ (= lxxxv): both B² and B³ are pessimistic in their view of the present world-order, and do not look for a Messianic kingdom; their hopes are fixed on the advent of the final judgement and the spiritual world; they also presuppose the destruction of Jerusalem and the exile, and therefore assumed literary form subsequent to A. D. 70.

The broad results of this critical analysis suggest that 2 Baruch is a compilation from diverse elements similar, in many respects, to 4 Ezra. In both cases older documents, containing the national eschatology, have been combined with later elements which reveal a fundamentally different outlook. The elements B², B³ in 2 Baruch are comparable with S in 4 Ezra, while A¹ has affinities with the E source of 4 Ezra, and the date of its composition may be much the same. As to the date of composition of A² and A³ the present writer must confess to some doubts. The former of these, A², i. e. the fountain and cedar vision, is a vision of the fall of the Roman power, and may be compared with the Eagle-vision (A) of 4 Ezra. Like the latter it is a dream-vision, and may very well be of much the same date (some time in the reign of Vespasian or Domitian). May it not have formed one of the collection of dream-visions from which the Eagle-vision of 4 Ezra was excerpted? The possibility must of course always be allowed for that the actual material of the vision is older than its interpretation. In A² (the cloud and water vision) there is apparently a fusion of early and later elements. It has several points of contact with E² of 4 Ezra, and in its present form may well be of much the same date as regards literary composition (some time between A. D. 70 and 100, or even later); its reflective and theological tone harmonizes with this view. The material of the vision is probably one of the older elements, as also is the eschatological scheme of the Messianic 'woes' in ch. lxx.

The numerous points of contact between B¹, B² in 2 Baruch and S in 4 Ezra may be seen from the list of parallel passages in Dr. Charles's edition of 2 Baruch (pp. 170-1; cf. also pp. lxix-lxx in EA). It looks sometimes as if one were actually citing the other.

In each book we apparently have the work of a school of apocalyptists. The schools are, it would seem, rival schools. One is answering the other. The present writer believes that 4 Ezra represents the work of a somewhat earlier school of apocalyptists who were under the influence of Shammaite teachers (such as Eliezer b. Hyrkanos); while 2 Baruch embodies the work of a rather younger school, who were under the influence of Aqiba. The latter work answers the former; and, on the whole, it gives answers decidedly more in accordance with what later became orthodox Judaism. Thus whereas in 4 Ezra vii. 119 (O thou Adam, what hast thou done! For though it was thou that sinned, the fall was not thine alone, but ours also who are thy descendants!) a passage belonging to S) Adam is charged with being the cause of the perdition of the whole race, this teaching is expressly refuted in 2 Baruch (cf. liv. 19: Adam is therefore not the cause, save only of his own soul, but each one of us has been the Adam of his own soul, a passage which belongs to A³ according to Dr. Charles's analysis).

¹ See the list printed in Charles's edition of 2 Baruch, pp. 170-1.

INTRODUCTION

It seems probable that 2 Baruch in its final form was edited and put forth soon after the appearance of 4 Ezra in its present form; i. e. some time between A. D. 120 and 135, perhaps very soon after A. D. 120. Like 4 Ezra it was originally written in Hebrew, and soon after its appearance in this language was translated into Greek.

§ 10. THE THEOLOGY AND ESCHATOLOGY OF THE BOOK.¹

The book as a whole presents, as Gunkel has pointed out, two kinds of material: '(1) properly apocalyptical and especially eschatological mysteries; this material is to be compared with Dan. vii. ff. or Revelation iv ff.; (2) religious problems and speculations which relate to eschatology and find in it either their answer or their occasion; this material is comparable with the speculations of the Pauline letters. The author put these problems in general before the mysteries, as being of greater importance, an order which can be compared with that of Revelation.'² In the light of the critical analysis given in §§ 6 and 7 above by 'author' here we must understand, for the purposes of our discussion, Redactor. The latter, in compiling our book, must have placed the discussion of the religious problems, which is embodied in S, first, because this discussion was felt to be concerned with one of the burning subjects of the day—the religious significance of the Fall of Jerusalem. The appendices to S (chapters xi–xiv) were intended to supplement the Salathiel-apocalypse by setting forth some classical expressions of the older eschatology. As will be seen, the eschatology of S, both explicit and implicit, is in many respects of a fundamentally different character.

(1) The theology and eschatology of S. The author of S appears to have been in close touch with the circles of the Teachers of the Law, and may have actually been a member of the scribal class (cf. viii. 29). Like many Pharisees of the time he valued and practised an ascetic mode of life (cf. vi. 32, and the frequent references to fasting in the first four visions). As a Jew he postulates the fundamental beliefs of Judaism. He insists on God's unity and uniqueness; God and God alone, without the intervention of any mediatorial agency, is responsible for creation, and God alone will exercise the functions of Judge at the final judgement (vi. 1–6). Israel is God's elect people (v. 27; cf. the whole passage v. 23–30; vi. 58; viii. 16, &c.), with whom God entered into a special covenant-relation (iii. 14 f.), and for whose sake the world was made (vi. 55, vii. 11). The Law is a special divine gift to Israel (iii. 19 f., ix. 31 f.). It had indeed been offered to the other nations of the world but deliberately rejected by them (cf. vii. 23, 24, vii. 72); Israel, on the other hand, had accepted it, and had thereby acknowledged the divine sovereignty. In consequence Israel is the true representative of humanity before God—the other nations are 'nothing'; by rejecting the divine gift they have put themselves outside the pale (vi. 56, vii. 23 f.). The apocalyptist glorifies the Law (cf. esp. ix. 29–37), but is perplexed by the problems presented by it in its relation to Israel. These problems are debated in the first part of the book. Why is the chosen people given up as a prey to the heathen? Because of its sins? But the sins of the godless heathen far outweigh those of Israel; why, then, should the former be allowed to lord it over and oppress the latter? (cf. v. 29, iii. 28). To these questions no satisfactory answer can be found in the Law alone. The Law is impotent to redeem and save the sinner (ix. 36; cf. Rom. iii. 20). To a race doomed to sin the promises of the Law are a mockery (vii. 116–31). The utmost that the seer can hope from the Law is that while the many are born to perish, but few shall be saved. The answers to the problem of the nation to which the apocalyptist struggles in the debate are the following:

(a) God's ways are inscrutable. Man cannot understand or fathom the most ordinary elements of the material world: how, then, can he hope to comprehend the things of the incorruptible world? (iv. 7–11; cf. v. 35 f.).

(b) Human intelligence is finite and limited. The angel enforces the point that the human intelligence must keep within its own prescribed bounds by a parable taken from the sea and the forest (iv. 12–21). The seer protests that he has no desire to explore heavenly secrets, but that his perplexities are occasioned by the daily experiences of earth, and is told that the New Age which is about to dawn will solve all difficulties (iv. 22–32).

(c) The course and duration of the present world has been pre-determined. Evil must run its course; the harvest of evil must first be gathered before the good can take its place (iv. 28–31); but everything has been pre-determined—the number of the righteous elect, and the duration of the present age—and things as they are will not be moved nor stirred till the measure appointed be fulfilled. But when the predestined moment shall have come nothing will be able to delay its consummation (iv. 33-43). That moment, it is hinted, will soon arrive (iv. 44-50).

¹ For a fuller discussion cf. EA, pp. xxxiv–lvii.

² Cited by F. C. Porter, op. cit., p. 338.

IV EZRA

(d) In spite of all appearances to the contrary God loves Israel now and always. The apocalypticist never wavers in his conviction that God's love for Israel exceeds all other, and finds in this thought a source of supreme consolation (v. 31-40; cf. viii. 47).

The one positive result reached in the discussion so far is an eschatological one. The future age will solve all difficulties. This is a fundamental conviction of our apocalypticist. The present age, in his view, is hopelessly involved in evil: it is full of impotence and sorrow. The contrast between the two ages—the present and the future—is emphasized in the strongest possible manner throughout. The corruptible world, and all that is mortal, will dissolve and be succeeded by the incorruptible world and immortality. It will thus be seen that the apocalypticist's view of the present world-order is extremely pessimistic. He gives up the old hope of a renovation and purification of the present world, and fixes his gaze and his hopes on the future world or age—the age of true life and immortality wherein *corruption is passed away, weakness is abolished,

infidelity is cut off,
while righteousness is grown,
and faithfulness is sprung up* (vii. 114).

But having won his way to this position the apocalypticist still finds himself baffled and perplexed with sore difficulties.

In answer to the difficulty that the coming age shall bring delight to few, but torment unto many (vii. 47) the angel can only say that the few are precious and the many worthless (vii. 49-61). This naturally fails to satisfy the seer, who protests that man had better not have been created at all (cf. vii. 62-9) or at least been restrained from sinning (vii. 116-26). Against the logical result of pure legalism the seer confidently appeals to the divine compassion (vii. 132-40). Moreover, he is answered by the angel that his love for creation comes far short of the divine love.

It will have become apparent from the previous discussion that the author of S realizes the inherent weakness of the Law as a redemptive power. He thus approaches to the attitude of mind of St. Paul (cf. Rom. viii. 3 f.); and it is clear that this attitude of mind was by no means so rare and isolated a phenomenon in contemporary Judaism as is sometimes supposed. This becomes even more apparent when we examine the doctrine of sin as it emerges in our Apocalypse together with the related doctrine of salvation by faith and works.

It is important to remember that in the theology of S it is the acceptance of the Law that is the standard by which men must be judged at the last, not the observance of it. True, the Law, once given, ought to have been observed. But so far is this from being the case that very few, if any, even in Israel have lived up to the divine requirements as set forth in the Law:

*For in truth
There is none of the earth-born that has not dealt wickedly,
And among those that exist who has not sinned* (viii. 35).

So conscious is the apocalypticist of this that he reckons himself among the sinners (cf. vii. 48, vii. 64, vii. 118, 126, viii. 17, viii. 31). Thus, according to S, sin is conceived as consisting essentially in unfaithfulness to the Law (cf. ix. 36: we who have received the Law and sinned must perish). The result has been alienation and estrangement from God (vii. 48); and this result is due, in some way, to the sin of Adam which has involved the fall of the entire human race (cf. vii. 118). Man's infirmity is to be traced to the evil heart (cor malignum) which was developed in Adam and transmitted to his descendants (cf. iii. 20-2 and iii. 25-6). The effect of the Law was nullified because of the evil germ (root iii. 22) or grain of evil seed (granum seminis mali) which was sown in the heart of Adam from the beginning (iv. 30). This evil root or grain of evil seed doubtless corresponds to the evil impulse (yeşer hā-ra') of Rabbinic theology. Adam clothed himself with the cor malignum by yielding to the suggestions of the evil impulse. The evil heart, thus developed, inevitably led to sin and death. The evil seed sown in the heart of Adam was transmitted to his descendants (iv. 30) with the result that the infirmity became inveterate (iii. 22). All men have fallen into sin (viii. 35), and, as a consequence, this age [the present world-order] is full of sorrow and impotence (iv. 27); the ways of this world have become narrow and sorrowful and painful (vii. 12). The evil heart has estranged from God and brought into destruction . . . not a few only, but wellnigh all that have been created (vii. 48); for all the earth-born are defiled with iniquities, full of sins, laden with offences. At the most, judged by the standard of the Law, only a few can hope to be saved (vii. 45).

INTRODUCTION

Exactly how the fall of Adam and the universal state of sin are connected is nowhere explicitly stated. That the two things are connected is certainly implied in vii. 118. It is true Adam's descendants share his responsibility for what has happened in that they have deliberately followed his example in clothing themselves with the evil heart (iii. 26); the moral responsibility of each individual member of the race is not denied. Probably at the back of the apocalypticist's thought lies the idea that Adam by his transgression lost much of his power of resisting the evil impulse or thought, and transmitted this weakness to his descendants. It is noteworthy that the fall of man is nowhere in our apocalypse attributed to external agency (demonic incitement).

The corruption of the human race is regarded as due to a development of something inherent in man's nature (yeşer hā-ra' of Rabbinic theology); but by representing the Law as powerless to prevent the evil element in man's nature from gaining the entire mastery (iii. 22), our apocalypticist directly contradicts the orthodox Rabbinic view, according to which the evil yeşer could be—and as a matter of fact has been by the pious in Israel generally—successfully resisted by the study of the Law and the practice of good works. In S also the entry of physical death into the world is directly connected with the Fall. Thus, according to this teaching, both physical and spiritual death are a legacy from Adam. For a comparison of these positions with that of St. Paul see EA, p. xlii.

In fact the doctrine of our apocalypticist ultimately resolves itself into a pure and lofty individualism. His view of sin as universal, owing to its root in the evil heart which is also universal, leads him to manifest a certain compassion for and sympathy with the perishing masses of mankind:

*But what is man that thou shouldst be wroth with him?
Or what is a corruptible race that thou canst be so bitter towards it?
For in truth
There is none of the earth-born who has not dealt wickedly,
And among those that exist who has not sinned* (viii. 34, 35).

Where all are involved in a state of unrighteousness before God there is little room for self-gratulation. One of the most striking features in S is the absence of the note of self-confidence, based upon Israel's possession of the Law, which is so prominent in 2 Baruch.¹ The Law in S rather brings terror by its condemnation than hope of salvation. The universal need is mercy rather than the award of the Law; and so the apocalypticist is driven to appeal, against the Law, to the divine attributes of compassion and forgiveness (cf. vii. 132–viii. 3, viii. 36).

Nowhere is the individual note more clearly sounded than in what may be described as our apocalypticist's eschatology of the individual. This is set forth, with great wealth of detail, in vii. 75–101, which gives a long description of the state of the soul after death and before the judgement. It is further stated (vii. 102–15) that no intercession will be allowed on the Day of Judgement:

The Day of Judgement is decisive, and displays unto all the seal of truth . . . none shall pray for another on that Day, neither shall one lay a burden on another; for then every one shall bear his own righteousness or unrighteousness (vii. 104–5).

While the theology of S recognizes the Day of Judgement and an intermediate state for the soul between death and judgement, it knows of no resurrection of the body. In the description of the state of the soul after death it is made clear that the soul enters at once into a state of blessedness or the reverse, according as it is righteous or wicked. The souls of the righteous are guarded in chambers, and there, in great tranquillity and happiness, await the final judgement; the souls of the wicked, on the other hand, move about restlessly in torment. These conditions—though they will be intensified—are not to be essentially altered on the Day of Judgement itself. This practically means that judgement sets in immediately after death, and that a man's fate is virtually determined by the present life—which is the doctrine of the Book of Wisdom and of Hellenistic Judaism.²

It has already been pointed out that the writer of S discards, implicitly, the older eschatology of the nation. He does not look forward to a restoration of the Jewish State, or a rebuilding of Jerusalem; nor to a renewed and purified earth under the conditions of the present world-order. His hopes are fixed on the advent of the new and better world which is to follow the collapse of the present world. Consequently he anticipates merely the catastrophic end of the present world-order—his theology does not allow of any intermediate Messianic Age. The new Jerusalem which is to come will be the Heavenly City, which is shown to Salathiel in his final vision (x. 25 f.), and which belongs to the future incorruptible age. As to the precise time when the end of the present order is to come the apocalyptist has no definite knowledge; but he is made to understand that the decisive moment is not far distant (cf. iv. 41, iv. 44–50); the appointed time has been pre-determined by God (iv. 36 f.), as well as the number of the righteous elect, and till this number shall have been completed the promised salvation cannot come (iv. 36). God's purpose is fixed, but it is beyond the power of the human mind to fathom it (cf. v. 34–40, vi. 6, vii. 11, vii. 20). There is thus a strong element of determinism in S; but the freedom of the human will is also emphatically asserted—the two truths are set side by side.

¹ In this book (especially in the section written after A. D. 70) 'the Law is everything; it protects the righteous (xxxii. 1), justifies them (li. 3), is their hope (li. 7), and so long as it is with Israel, Israel cannot fall (xlviii. 22, 24)'. (Charles's note on Ap. Bar. xv. 5, p. 31.)

² For a fuller discussion of the position of S regarding the resurrection-belief see EA, p. xlviif.

IV EZRA

The theology of S is essentially other-worldly. The writer's dualism is emphatic and pronounced. The present age and the future, above and below, are in fundamental opposition. The same violent contrast characterizes the material and the spiritual (cf. iv. 11). The body, regarded as the prison-house of the soul, is described as this corruptible vessel (vii. 88). It is significant that in S there is no resurrection of the body; what is anticipated is practically a pure immortality of the soul. According to S the human heart, which has received the Law, is essentially a corruptible vessel, which belongs to the present order and will perish (ix. 36). In contrast to the present world-order, which is full of sorrow and impotence (iv. 27), and the ways of which, owing to man's sin, have become narrow and sorrowful and painful (vii. 12), the ways of the future world are broad and safe, and yield the fruit of immortality (vii. 13). In the future age, which is already prepared:

*The (evil) root is sealed up from you,
Infirmity from your path extinguished;
And Death is hidden,
Hades fled away;
Corruption forgotten,
Sorrows passed away;*

And in the end the treasures of immortality are made manifest (viii. 53, 54).

The pessimistic view of the present world-order which is characteristic of S naturally harmonizes with the ascetic tendencies to which reference has already been made. Taken together all these various tendencies—which are also marked in other apocalyptic literature—suggest, perhaps, the influence of Alexandrine rather than specifically Palestinian thought. But it must not be forgotten that Palestine was saturated with Hellenistic influence at this period, and that Palestinian Judaism was profoundly affected by it. The partial elimination of Greek elements, and the hardening and crystallization of the Rabbinic type of thought, was only effected later. The religious significance of S has been well set forth by Dr. Maldwyn Hughes in a sentence. Our apocalyptist, he says, 'despairs of a life of absolute obedience to the Law, even by Israel, not to speak of the world. The unconscious and unexpressed cry of the book is for a moral dynamic, which legalism could not supply.'¹

(2) The theology and eschatology of the other original sources. Of the remaining original sources of our Apocalypse apparently the oldest is E. The contents of this source, so far as it is embodied in our book, are purely eschatological in character. The themes with which it deals are (1) the Messianic 'woes', i. e. the signs and portents that are to usher in the End of the world (iv. 56–v. 13 a, vi. 21–2); (2) the End of the world (this is announced by the Voice of God, but not actually described: vi. 13–20, 23–4); (3) the felicity of those who survive the Messianic 'woes' and live on into the Messianic Age (vi. 25–8). It seems probable that E in its original form regarded the age of felicity, that was to follow the judgement, as a Messianic kingdom, of indefinite duration, set up on a purified earth; but, apparently, there was no Messiah, though certain heralds of the Messianic Age were to appear—the men who have not tasted death from their birth—whose task it was to convert the surviving members of the human race to a different spirit (vi. 26–8). This eschatological scheme is of the older type, common in the prophetic books of the Old Testament and in the older apocalypses (e. g. 1 Enoch i–xxxvi). As has been pointed out in a former chapter, E has probably been utilized by R in vii. 26–44 and viii. 63–ix. 12, and, in any case, only appears in our book in fragments. This fact makes it difficult to determine its theological positions precisely. It is possible that one of the missing portions contained an account of the resurrection, the place of which has been taken in R's compilation by vii. 31. The description of the Messianic 'woes' has many traditional features which find close parallels in similar descriptions elsewhere (cf. EA, p. 41).

¹ The Ethics of Jewish Apocryphal Literature, p. 240.

INTRODUCTION

In the case of the Eagle-vision (ch. xi–xii) the dominating eschatological conception is a political one. Wickedness is concentrated in godless imperial Rome¹ and the judgement will be effected when Rome is destroyed by the Lion of Judah, i. e. the Messiah . . . who shall spring from the seed of David (xii. 32). The overthrow of the Roman Empire is to be followed by the setting up on earth of the theocratic kingdom under the direct rule of God. The author was apparently a zealot (see these points fully discussed in EA, pp. 246 f.). The Messiah appears in a very active rôle here as the instrument for overthrowing the Roman Empire.

Very different eschatological conceptions emerge in the Son of Man vision (M = ch. xiii). These have been fully discussed in EA (pp. 282–6), to which the reader must be referred. One feature, however, that comes out in the interpretation of the vision calls for special mention here. This is the emphasis that is laid on the Law. The heavenly Messiah destroys his enemies without labour by the Law (xiii. 38). Further, in the legend of the Ten Tribes, which is given in the same context, their deliverance and ultimate return are represented as due to a return on their part to the observance of the Law. In order to do this they leave their heathen surroundings and migrate to a land further distant, where the human race had never dwelt, there at least to keep the statutes which they had not kept in their own land (xiii. 41 f.). In other words, to the author of this apocalyptic piece the Law is the standard of piety, and he can only conceive of the restoration of the lost Tribes as due to a whole-hearted acceptance of the 'yoke of the Law'.

In the last of the original sources embodied in our book, viz. E² (i. e. the Ezra-legend given in ch. xiv) the most outstanding doctrinal feature is the conception of the Messiah (God's Son) as pre-existing in heaven, surrounded by a community of elect ones. This agrees with the representation of the heavenly Son of Man of the Parables of 1 Enoch (xxxvii–lxxi). Just as in the Parables Enoch is removed to heaven to dwell with the Son of Man (1 Enoch lxx. 1 f.), so here Ezra's assumption to remain henceforth with God's Son, in company with other elect ones, until the times be ended, is described (cf. 4 Ezra xiv. 9). So too, as in the Parables, the heavenly Messiah is not to appear until the End and the coming of the Judgement (cf. xiv. 9, 10 and notes). The world history is divided into twelve parts, nine and a half of which have already passed in the time of the historical Ezra (i. e. the middle of the fifth century B. C.). This suggests that the apocalyptist conceives the world to have already entered upon the last period of tribulation (the last three and a half years of woe of Dan. ix. 27), and regards the approach of the final consummation as imminent (cf. xiv. 11, 12 and notes). Another feature of E² is its pessimistic outlook on the present world-order. It also assigns a high place to the Law and the other Scriptures, but by the side of the apocalyptic books (cf. EA, pp. 304–7).

(3) The theology and eschatology of the Redactor (R). The Redactor who is responsible for the present form of our Apocalypse has impressed a certain unity on the book, which, though it involves the combination of conceptions essentially disparate, yet serves to reveal a whole which he contrived to combine (by the insertion of connecting links and supplementary matter at different points) into one system in his own thought.

The groundwork of his compilation is the Salathiel-apocalypse. But evidently he felt it necessary to supplement this with extracts from other apocalypses which represent very different points of view. From the position and bulk of S in R's compilation it may be inferred that he was specially interested in its main theme—a discussion of the religious problems involved in the fall and destruction of Jerusalem. The element in S which is concerned with the eschatology of the individual, involving, as it does, the discussion of the problem of the origin and prevalence of sin, to which the misery of the world is due, would doubtless have appealed to R with special force. On the other hand, R was not prepared to discard the older hope of the coming of Messianic redemption for the nation, and so found it necessary to append the Eagle and Son of Man visions (ch. xi–xiii). The combination of these elements results in the following eschatological scheme, which was adopted by R:

(1) The period of 'woes' preceding the advent of the Messiah (iv. 56–v. 13 a, vi. 11–28) will first occur.

(2) The Messiah and his immortal companions (Enoch, Elijah, &c.) will then suddenly be 'revealed', the new Jerusalem will appear and a temporary Messianic kingdom, lasting 400 years, set up in which those who have survived the Messianic 'woes' are destined to enjoy a period of felicity (vii. 26–8 R). In ch. xii. (M) the active work of the Messiah is described more fully. There, a principal part of his mission is to destroy the assembled enemies of the divine rule (= 'the wars of Gog and Magog'), and gather together the lost Ten Tribes who are to be brought back to the Holy Land. Apparently the destruction of the hostile forces is conceived as closing the period of 'woes'.

¹ Cf. the 'Beast' of the Johannine Apocalypse.

IV EZRA

After the annihilation of the last enemies has been effected, the 'survivors', who are defined as those that are found within my holy border (xiii. 48) shall be defended by the Messiah (xiii. 49, cf. xiii. 26 b), and see very many wonders. Presumably the rule of the Messiah here indicated was conceived by R to synchronize with the 400 years' reign referred to in vii. 28, though this was not its significance in the original vision.

(3) The temporary Messianic kingdom and the rule of the Messiah will terminate in his death and that of all human beings, and creation will revert to primaeval silence for seven days (vii. 29-30).

(4) This will be followed by the Resurrection and the Final Judgement (vii. 31-44).

It should be noted that the Eagle-vision (ch. xi-xii), which depicts the destruction of the Roman Empire by the Lion of Judah (i. e. the Messiah), has no logical place in this scheme. The eschatological drama, as outlined above, was inherited by R from tradition, which was too firmly rooted to be ignored. But in the Eagle-vision we ought probably to see an expression of the real hopes which animated our compiler. Living at a time when Israel had suffered—and was still suffering—so much at the hands of Rome his hopes for the Messianic deliverance were naturally concentrated on the prospect of the annihilation of the oppressive world-power, and the incarnation of all wickedness.

Such is the scheme of the national eschatology as it was combined in the mind of R. How essentially incompatible the diverse elements of which it is composed really are needs no further demonstration.

In combination with and supplementing this our compiler accepted the eschatology of the individual as set forth in S. In contrast with S, R has much greater confidence in the Law as such as a protective power to the Jew (cf. iii. 26-36, and see further EA, pp. lv-lvii).

§ II. RELATION OF THE APOCALYPSE WITH THE NEW TESTAMENT.¹

A number of resemblances in thought, and (occasionally) of diction, with the New Testament occur in 4 Ezra; but nothing which suggests direct dependence.

Gunkel, it is true, thinks that 4 Ezra xii. 42 (For of all the prophets thou alone art left to us . . . as a lamp in a dark place) is cited in 2 Pet. i. 19 (And we have the word of prophecy more sure; whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a lamp shining in a dark place). But the common use of such a figure may be explained as due to its currency, possibly in apocalyptic circles, before the writing of 4 Ezra and 2 Peter.

In 4 Ezra iv. 28 the idea of sowing, reaping, and harvest is applied metaphorically to evil, and it is stated that the harvest of evil must first be reaped before the good can take its place; the thought here is parallel with that of the parable of the Sower (Matt. xiii); cf. in particular Matt. xiii. 39: the enemy that sowed . . . is the devil, and the harvest is the end of the world, and the reapers are the angels.

In 4 Ezra iv. 36 the seer is reminded by the angel that he cannot know the duration of the time that must elapse before the End (though elsewhere it has been revealed to him that the End is imminent); in other words the exact moment cannot be fixed—it is known to God alone. The passage runs:

Number me the days that are not yet come (the implication being—you cannot); cf. Mark xiii. 32 and parallels: But of that day or that hour knoweth no one, not even the angels in heaven, neither the Son, but the Father.

There is a certain amount of literary contact between the Johannine Apocalypse and 4 Ezra, which, however, does not amount to direct literary dependence, but, probably, points to a common source or sources; thus 4 Ezra ix. 35 and Rev. vi. 9-11 seem to be related in this way²; so in 4 Ezra iv. 41 the underworld (infernum = Sheol) is used as in Rev. i. 18, &c., as the place where the wicked dead remain in the intermediate state.

An abundance of resemblances in thought or diction has been pointed out in the notes on the text.³ One or two examples may be given here: in 4 Ezra vii. 88 the body is called this corruptible vessel; cf. 1 Cor. xv. 53 this corruptible; in 4 Ezra ix. 37 the Law, it is said, perishes not but abides in its glory (i. e. the Law is heavenly and divine); cf. Rom. vii. 14 (the Law is spiritual), 2 Cor. iii. 7 f., &c., &c.

The close parallels in thought as to the origin and prevalence of sin between S and St. Paul have already been pointed out in § 10 (1).

¹ For the affinities of the Book with other early literature cf. EA, pp. lxx-lxxiv.

² Cf. Bousset, Offenbarung Johannis, pp. 272 f.

³ The passages cited in this connexion in the writer's larger work are registered in Index IV of EA, pp. 375-8.

INTRODUCTION

§ 12. BIBLIOGRAPHY.

Besides the works already referred to in this Introduction, the following are also important for the study of 4 Ezra:—

(a) EDITIONS OF TEXT.

Syr. (Cer.) = The Syriac Text of 4 Ezra, printed in Ceriani's Monumenta sacra et profana, Tom. v (pp. 41–111).

(b) TRANSLATIONS WITH NOTES, ETC.

Gunkel = Das vierte Buch Esra; edited by Prof. Gunkel in Kautzsch's Die Apokryphen und Pseudepigraphen des Alten Testaments, vol. ii (Tübingen, 1900), (contains a valuable introduction, critical translation, and notes).
Ball = critical notes on 2 Esdras in The Variorum Apocrypha, by C. J. Ball.

(c) ESSAYS, DISCUSSIONS, ETC.

Rosenthal = Vier Apokryphische Bücher, aus der Zeit und Schule R. Akibas, von Dr. F. Rosenthal (Leipzig, 1885).

Kabisch = Das vierte Buch Esra auf seine Quellen untersucht, von Richard Kabisch (Göttingen, 1889).

Vaganay = Le Problème eschatologique dans le IV^e livre d'Esdras, par Léon Vaganay (Paris, 1906).

Wellhausen = Skizzen und Vorarbeiten, von J. Wellhausen; sechstes Heft (Berlin, 1899).

F. C. Porter = The Messages of the Apocalyptic Writers, by F. C. Porter (London, 1909).

[Cf. also Charles's discussion in the introduction to his edition of The (Syriac) Apocalypse of Baruch; also articles in the Bible Dictionaries (DB and EB) and in JE.]

(d) OTHER WORKS REFERRED TO.

Bousset, *RJ*² = Die Religion des Judentums im neutestamentlichen Zeitalter (2nd ed.), von D. Wilhelm Bousset (Berlin, 1906).

Charles, Eschatology = A Critical History of the Doctrine of a Future Life, by R. H. Charles (London, 1899).

Derenbourg = Essai sur l'histoire et la géographie de la Palestine, par J. Derenbourg (Paris, 1867).

Drummond, JM = The Jewish Messiah, by James Drummond (London, 1877).

Köhler = Grundriss einer systematischen Theologie des Judentums auf geschichtlicher Grundlage (Leipzig, 1910).

Köberle = Sünde und Gnade im religiösen Leben des Volkes Israel bis auf Christum (München, 1905).

RWS = The Religion and Worship of the Synagogue, by W. O. E. Oesterley and G. H. Box (2nd ed., 1911).

Schechter, Aspects = Some Aspects of Rabbinic Theology, by S. Schechter (London, 1909).

Volz = Jüdische Eschatologie von Daniel bis Akiba, von Paul Volz (Tübingen und Leipzig, 1903).

Weber = Jüdische Theologie, von F. Weber; 2nd ed. (Leipzig, 1897).

Also the following editions of ancient works:—

Ps. Sol. = The Psalms of the Pharisees (or Psalms of Solomon), edited and translated by Ryle and James (Cambridge, 1891).

Mekilta = the early Jewish Midrash so called (on Exodus); Hebrew text edited by Friedmann.

Sifra, Sifre = the early Jewish Midrashim so called (on Leviticus, Numbers, and Deuteronomy).

ABBREVIATIONS EMPLOYED.

EB = Encyclopaedia Biblica (4 vols.).

DB = Dictionary of the Bible.

DCG = Dictionary of Christ and the Gospels (ed. Hastings, 2 vols.).

JE = Jewish Encyclopaedia (12 vols.).

JQR = Jewish Quarterly Review (vols. i–xx).

TB = Talmud of Babylon.

TJ = Talmud of Jerusalem.

OL = Old Latin.

PBH = Post Biblical Hebrew.

Bensly, MF = The Missing Fragment of the Latin Translation of the Fourth Book of Ezra, discovered and Edited with an Introduction and Notes, by Robert L. Bensly, M.A. (Cambridge, 1875).

BJ (= Bensly and James) = The fourth Book of Ezra: the Latin version edited from the MSS. by the late Robert L. Bensly, M.A., with an introduction by Montague Rhodes James, Litt.D. (Texts and Studies, vol. iii, no. 2, Cambridge, 1895).

Hilg. = Messias Iudaeorum (containing the Latin text and Latin translations of the Syriac, Ethiopic, Arabic, and Armenian texts, and a reconstruction of the lost Greek text underlying them, with critical notes), Leipzig, 1869.

Violet = Die Esra-Apokalyptose (IV. Esra), Erster Teil: Die Überlieferung, herausg. von Lic. Dr. Bruno Violet (contains a critical edition of the Latin text, and carefully edited German translations of the Oriental Versions and valuable critical notes), Leipzig, 1910.

Volkmar = Das vierte Buch Esra (being Part II of the Handbuch der Einleitung in die Apokryphen), herausg. von Dr. Gustav Volkmar (contains Latin text, commentary, German translation and elaborate Introduction; the critical notes are often useful), Tübingen, 1863.

Gunkel = Das vierte Buch Esra in Kautzsch's Die Apokryphen und Pseudepigraphen des Alten Testaments, vol. ii (Tübingen, 1900).

Kabisch = Das vierte Buch Esra auf seine Quellen untersucht (Göttingen, 1889).

EA = The Ezra-Apocalypse (critical translation with Commentary and Introduction), edited by G. H. Box (London, 1912).

IV EZRA

THE FIRST VISION.

(iii. 1-v. 19.)

(I. iii. 1-3) INTRODUCTION (S).

¶ In the thirtieth year after the downfall of the City I, Salathiel—[who am also Ezra]—was in Babylon,

THE FIRST VISION (iii. 1-v. 19).

(1) CONTENTS. In the person of Salathiel (Ezra) the writer, bewailing, some thirty years after the event, the desolation of Sion and the continued prosperity of Babylon, gives vent to his grief and despair on account of the ruin which has befallen Jerusalem at the hands of her Roman conquerors in A.D. 70. He finds it difficult to understand the meaning of this appalling catastrophe. How can it be reconciled with God's providence and justice? It is true the human race is corrupt and steeped in sin; but the reason why all men have sinned is that sin goes back to Adam, and Adam sinned because the root of sin was inherent in his nature (cf. iii. 20 f.). God had chosen Israel and given them His Law, but so long as the evil germ remained in man's nature, the Law was powerless to produce righteousness (cf. iii. 19, 20). Hence perfect righteousness could not justly be expected even from Israel. On the other hand, nations far more godless and faithless than Israel are allowed to remain in prosperity, and trample underfoot the chosen people.

The seer's protests are answered by the angel Uriel. The most serious part of the charge levelled by the seer against the justice of God's providence had been the implication that God, as Creator, was ultimately responsible for the inherent evil of man's nature, and hence cannot justly punish men for sin. To this indictment the angel replies (cf. Job xxviii) that the seer cannot understand the simplest things that are bound up with his daily life; how, then, can he hope to understand the ways of the Most High? God's ways are inscrutable (iv. 1-11). The seer rejoins despairingly: 'It would have been better that we had never been created, than having come [into the world] to live in sins and suffer, and not know why we suffer.' The angel replies that it is foolish and senseless to seek to know what is beyond nature. Man belongs to the earth; his vision is bounded by the finite; therefore it is vain for him to seek to comprehend what is heavenly and infinite (iv. 12-21). The seer, disclaiming any desire to be curious about the ways above, protests that what perplexes him most of all is a fact of daily experience, viz. that Israel, God's chosen people, should be given up as a prey to the godless heathen. This is answered as follows: the present age is hastening fast to its close; the new age that is about to dawn will solve all difficulties. God's remedy for the present state of things will not be consummated within the present order, but will be realized in the future world. The present state of things must go on for a time. The harvest of evil must first be reaped before something better can take its place (iv. 22-32). If the solution lies in the future the question naturally arises at this point, how soon will it come? This question is asked impatiently by the seer. The answer is: till the predestined number of the righteous has been completed the judgement cannot come; but when the moment has arrived nothing (not even men's sins) can delay its consummation (iv. 33-43). The seer again inquires more particularly as to the time of the End. Is the present age more than half gone? He is shown, by a vision, that by far the greater part of the present age has run its course (iv. 44-50). In reply to a further question the angel states that he cannot tell whether the End will come within the seer's own lifetime (iv. 51-52). An interpolated passage (from E) narrates the signs of the near approach of the End (v. 1-13). The first vision thus falls into the following divisions:

i. Introduction (iii. 1-3) (S).

ii. The first questions (the seer's difficulties stated) (iii. 4-36) (mainly S).

iii. The divine reply (iv. 1-v. 13):

(a) iv. 1-11; (b) iv. 12-21; (c) iv. 22-32; (d) iv. 33-43; (e) iv. 44-50; (f) iv. 51-v. 13 (S) (E).

iv. Conclusion of the Vision (v. 14-19) (S).

(2) THE MISSING INTRODUCTION TO THE VISION. As Kabisch has pointed out, a number of indications suggest that in the original form of S the present vision was preceded by an introductory piece, explaining the preparation of the seer for what follows. It is probable that a command to fast seven days preceded the first vision in its original form (cf. vi. 35, where the 'three weeks' of fasting mentioned implies this). It may, therefore, be concluded that before the prayer of Salathiel (iii. 4 f.) there stood originally an introductory section detailing the appearance of the angel Uriel, the command to the seer to fast seven days, and the fulfilment of this command. Then followed a dream-vision the conclusion of which has been misplaced by R, and now stands in v. 14-15. This again was probably followed by some such statement as: 'So I fasted seven days, mourning and weeping as the angel commanded me. And it came to pass after seven days' (cf. v. 20). Here followed the words 'my mind was preoccupied with my thoughts', &c. (iii. 1 ff.). The whole of this introductory section has been cut out by R, apparently, as unimportant (see further EA, pp. 4-6).

1. In the thirtieth year. The thirtieth year after the destruction of Jerusalem by Nebuchadnezzar is primarily meant, i.e. 556 B.C. But typically this was designed, doubtless, to suggest the thirtieth year after the destruction of Jerusalem by Titus in A.D. 70, i.e. A.D. 100; this probably fixes the date of the publication of S (see Introduction, § 8). For the opening of the book in this way cf. Ezek. i. 1.

Salathiel. The Hebrew form of the name is Shē'alti'el. Shealtiel is mentioned as the father of Zerubbabel in Ezra iii. 2, v. 2; Neh. xii. 1; but in 1 Chron. iii. 17 as his uncle.

[who am also Ezra]. The identification of Ezra and Salathiel is, of course, impossible chronologically. Ezra appears first in history a century later (459-458 B.C.) than the date here presupposed (556 B.C.). The words are doubtless a gloss due to R (see Introduction, §§ 6 and 7).

S and as I lay upon my bed I was disquieted. ^a ^a and my mind was preoccupied with my thoughts; because I saw Sion's desolation on the one hand (matched) with the abundant wealth of Babylon's 3 inhabitants on the other. And my spirit was stirred profoundly, and in my agitation I began to address the Most High.

II. iii. 4-36. THE FIRST QUESTIONS: WHENCE ARISE THE SIN AND MISERY OF THE WORLD?
 HOW CAN ISRAEL'S CONTINUED AFFLICTION BE RECONCILED WITH THE DIVINE JUSTICE?

4 And I said: ^b O Lord my Lord, ^b was it not thou who in the beginning, when ^c thou didst form the 5 earth—and that thyself alone—didst speak and commandedst the dust, so that it gave thee Adam ^c, a lifeless body? But yet it was both itself the formation of thy hands and thou breathedst into 6 him the breath of life, so that he was made living before thee. And thou leddest him into Paradise,
 7 which thy right hand did plant before ever the earth came forward; and to him thou commandedst
^d one only observance of thine ^d, but he transgressed it. Forthwith thou appointedst death for him ^e and for his generations ^e, and from him were born nations and tribes, peoples and clans innumerable.
 8 And every nation walked after their own will, and behaved wickedly before thee, and were ungodly
 9—but thou didst not hinder them. Nevertheless again in (due) time thou broughtest the Flood
 10 ^f upon the earth and ^f upon the inhabitants of the world, and destroyedst them. And ^g their fate ^g 11 was one and the same; as death (overtook) Adam, so the Flood (overwhelmed) these. Nevertheless one of them thou didst spare—Noah with his household (and with him) all the righteous his 12 descendants. And it came to pass that when the inhabitants upon the earth began to multiply, and ^h there were born ^h children also and peoples and nations many, that they began to practise 13 ungodliness more than former (generations). And it came to pass that when they practised
 14 ungodliness before thee, thou didst choose thee one from among them whose name was Abraham: him 15 thou didst love, and unto him only didst thou reveal ⁱ the end of the times ⁱ secretly by night; and with him thou didst make an everlasting covenant, and didst promise him that thou wouldst never 16 forsake his seed. And thou gavest him Isaac, and to Isaac thou gavest Jacob and Esau. And thou 17 didst set apart Jacob for thyself, but Esau thou didst hate; and Jacob became a great host. And it came to pass that when thou leddest forth his seed out of Egypt, and didst bring them to the Mount Sinai,
 18 Thou didst bow down the heavens, didst make the earth quake

^{a-a} For the lacuna here see the discussion on the previous page. ^{b-b} ℒ: O dominator Domine (R.V.

O Lord that bearest rule) = Δεσποτα κυριε (Hilg.): = ארני יהוה ^{c-c} reading plasmasti terram . . . et imperasti pulveri et dedit tibi Adam with BJ and Violet: so ℒ (cf. Ethiop. Ar.¹): Lat. MSS. plantasti terram . . . et imperasti populo (so SA: orbi CM) tuo et dedisti Adam (so SA: cf. the rendering of A.V.) ^{d-d} ℒ diligentiam unam tuam: the Oriental Versions render commandment (for this sense of diligentia cf. Bensly, 'Missing Fragment', p. 56) ^{e-e} so ℒ (cf. other Oriental Versions): ℒ et in nationibus eius ^{f-f} so ℒ and Ethiop.; ℒ Ar.¹ > ^{g-g} ℒ casus eorum:
 ℒ their destruction (cf. Ethiop.) ^{h-h} so Ethiop.: ℒ multiplicaverunt (so ℒ) ⁱ⁻ⁱ reading temporum finem with C

4. in the beginning. Cf. Gen. ii. 7 f. In accordance with the wide philosophic outlook of the apocalyptists the writer begins his survey with Creation. On the other hand, the prophets characteristically begin with the Exodus from Egypt, which marked the birthday of Israel as a nation. Cf. Jer. ii. 2; Hos. xi. 1.

6. before ever the earth came forward. According to one view current in later Jewish circles Paradise (= the Garden of Eden) was one of seven things created before the world (viz. Torah, Repentance, the Garden of Eden, Gehenna, the Throne of Glory, the Temple, and the Messiah; cf. Pesah 54 a, Nedur. 39 b, Ber. rab. xx). For this view, as regards Paradise, our text here is the earliest literary evidence. It was deduced from Gen. ii. 8 (where the Hebr. word miqqedem, understood as = 'from the beginning' [not 'eastward'] was interpreted to mean 'before' the creation of the world¹). According to the earlier view the Garden of Eden was one of the things created on the third day: cf. Book of Jubilees, ii. 7, and Charles's note on the passage. Paradise has varying meanings in apocalyptic literature. The conception of an earthly and heavenly paradise is also to be noted. Here Eden as man's primitive home of blessedness is meant. See further the discussion in EA, pp. 195 ff.

10. And their fate was one and the same. A like fate overtook both Adam and the generation of the deluge.
 Note that the survey begins with Adam; contrast 2 Pet. ii. 4.

13. thou didst choose thee one, &c. Cf. Gen. xii. 1.

14. unto him only didst thou reveal the end of the times secretly by night. The vision described in Gen. xv. 9 f.
 was later invested with an extended significance; it was supposed to give an intimation of Israel's later captivity and subjection to the four oppressive world-powers of the Book of Daniel, which are interpreted to be Babylon, Media, Greece, and Rome (cf. Targums ad loc.).

16. Jacob became a great host. Cf. Gen. xxxii. 10 f.

18. Thou didst bow down the heavens, &c. The whole description is of a theophany, and may be compared with Ps. lxxviii. 7 ff. The particular theophany referred to is described in Exod. xix. 16 f.

¹ So the Targums (cf. also the Syriac and Latin versions, and Aquila, Symmachus, and Theodotion). According another view, however, the expression means 'before the creation of man': cf. Gen. rab. xv.

- and convulsedst the world—
 Thou didst cause the deeps to tremble and didst alarm the spheres.
- 19 And thy glory went through the four gates of fire, earthquake, wind, and cold,
 To give Law to Jacob's seed and Commandment to the generation of Israel.
- 20 And yet thou didst not take away from them the evil heart, that thy Law might bring forth fruit 21 in them. For the first Adam, clothing himself with the evil heart, transgressed and was overcome;
 22 and likewise also all who were born of him. Thus the infirmity became inveterate; the Law indeed was in the heart of the people, but (in conjunction) with the evil germ; so what was good departed, 23 and the evil remained. So the times passed away and the years came to an end; and (then) thou 24 didst raise up for thyself a servant whose name was David; and thou commandedst him to build the 25 City (which is called) after thy name^j, and to offer thee^k oblations therein of thine own^k. And after 26 this had been done many years, the inhabitants of the City committed sin, in all things doing even as Adam and all his generations had done: for they also^l had clothed themselves with^l the evil 28 heart: and so thou gavest thy city over into the hands of thine enemies. Then I said in my heart:
 29 Are their deeds any better^m than inhabit Babylon? Has he for thisⁿ rejectedⁿ Sion? It came to 30 pass when I came hither and saw ungodly deeds innumerable, and myself saw many sinners^o these thirty years^o, that my heart^p was perturbed^p: for I have seen how thou dost suffer the sinners and dost spare the ungodly, how thou hast destroyed thy people and preserved thine enemies;
- 31 and hast not made known at all unto any how this course of thine shall be abandoned. Have the 32 deeds of Babylon been better than those of Sion? [Has any other nation known thee beside Israel?
 33 Or what tribes have so believed thy covenants as those of Jacob?—whose reward (nevertheless) hath not appeared nor their labour borne fruit! For I have gone hither and thither through the nations 34 and seen them in prosperity, although unmindful of thy commandments. Now, therefore, weigh thou our iniquities, and those of the inhabitants of the world, in the balance and so shall be found

(S A >): cf. § Ethiop. J S+ and a house ^{k-k} reading in ea de tuis oblationes so CM = S: cf. Ar.^{1,2} (thus et oblationes, cf. A.V. and Vulg., is a corruption) ^{l-1} so § Ethiop.: ℒ utebantur (emend to induebantur with Hilg.) ^m Ethiop. + than ours (cf. Ar.¹) ⁿ⁻ⁿ so § Ar.¹: ℒ corrupt: dominabit SA (? read damnavit with Violet, or abominavit with Gunkel) ^{o-o} so Ar.¹ (Ethiop.): ℒ hoc tricesimo anno (a misrendering of original Hebrew) P-P ℒ excessit (= εξέστη)

19. thy glory went through the four gates of fire, earthquake, wind, and cold. The writer, in accordance with the developed Jewish conceptions of Jahveh's majesty and transcendence, pictures God as appearing in theophany on earth (at Sinai) in a gradual descent from His throne in the highest of the heavens through the lower heavens by their successive 'gates'. The idea of a plurality of heavens is implied. In the earlier form of this doctrine there were three, in the later form (which was already current in the first century A.D.; cf. 2 Enoch) there were seven heavens. The 'gates' alluded to in our text are apparently those of the four lowest heavens. See further EA, p. 14.

20. the evil heart, Lat. cor malignum. In this and the following verses (21-22, 25-26) the subject of Adam's transgression and the hereditary tendency to sin (created by his lapse) in all his descendants is introduced. It is pursued in iv. 30-31, and in vii. 118 Adam is charged with being the cause of the perdition of the human race ('O thou Adam, what hast thou done? For though it was thou that sinned the fall was not thine alone but ours also who are thy descendants'). The inherent infirmity of human nature is a dominating idea in the apocalyptic writer's mind, and a characteristic note of his pessimism. In the stress he lays on Adam's sin he reminds us of St. Paul (cf. Rom. v. 12 f.). The cor malignum is regarded as the result of Adam's yielding to the evil impulse (the yesser ha-ra' of Rabbinic theology, called the 'grain of evil seed' [granum seminis mali] in iv. 30. In vii. 92 it is called 'the evil thought (cogitamentum malum) which was fashioned with them').

that thy Law might bring forth fruit in them. Cf. Rom. vii. 5; v. 20.

21. clothing himself with the evil heart. Adam 'clothed himself' with the cor malignum by yielding to the suggestions of 'the evil impulse'. The 'evil heart' thus developed inevitably led to sin and death.

22. the Law indeed was in the heart of the people. Cf. the conflict described in Rom. vii. 7 f., and especially vii. 20 f.

what was good departed. i.e. the good tendency (the yesser ha-tob) was entirely overcome. The Law was powerless to prevent the evil element in man's nature from gaining the entire mastery. This is clean contrary to Rabbinic theology, which emphasizes the power of the Law to keep the evil tendency in check and overcome it: cf. the dictum: 'The Law wears away the evil yesser as water wears away stone' (T. B. Suk. 52 b).

24. thou commandedst him to build. David is regarded as the founder of the Holy City; cf. x. 46.

oblations therein of thine own. The supreme glory and unique distinction of the divine city consists in its being the place where sacrifice and oblation were properly and regularly offered to God.

31. how this course of thine (lit. this way) shall be abandoned. God's course of action is meant. S renders: 'how thy way may be comprehended.'

32-36. For the reasons for assigning these verses to R see EA, p. 6 f.

R 35^a which way the turn of the scale inclines^a. Or when was it that the inhabitants of the earth did 36 not sin before thee? Or what nation hath so kept thy precepts? ^r Individual men of note^r indeed thou mayst find to have kept thy precepts; but nations thou shalt not find.]

III. THE DIVINE REPLY; GOD'S WAYS ARE INSCRUTABLE.

(iv. 1—v. 19.)

(a) iv. 1—11. The human spirit can only hope to understand dimly and in part (S).

S 4^{1,2} Thereupon the angel answered me who had been sent to me, [and whose name was Uriel]; and he said to me: Thy heart hath utterly failed thee regarding this world; and thinkest thou to comprehend the way of the Most High?

3 Then said I: Yes, my Lord.

And he answered me, and said: Three ways have I been sent to show thee, and three similitudes
4 to set before thee: if thou canst declare me one of these I also will show thee the way thou desirest to see, and teach thee^s whence comes^s the evil heart.

5 And I said: Speak on, my Lord.

Then he said unto me:

Come, weigh me the weight of the fire;

Or measure me^t the measure^t of the wind,

Or recall me the day that is past.

6 Then answered I and said: Who of the^u earth-born^u could^v do so^v that thou shouldst ask me about such matters?

7 And he said to me: Had I asked thee

How many dwellings are in the heart of the sea?

Or^w how many springs^w in the source of the deep?

Or how many^x ways^x above the firmament?

^y Or where are the portals of Hades^y?

Or where the paths of Paradise?

^{q-a} \mathfrak{L} momentum (inferior MSS. nomen tuum) puncti ubi declinet ¹⁻¹ \mathfrak{L} homines per nomina ⁸⁻⁸ read- ing unde sit (with one Codex); quare sit S A C M = \mathfrak{S} Ethiop. Ar.¹ ^{t-t} reading satum = \mathfrak{S} (cf. Ethiop.
*Ar.*¹) for flatum S C M ^{u-u} \mathfrak{L} natorum ^v reading hoc facere (A* *); *cf. S Ethiop. Ar.*¹ Arm.; other Latin MSS. > hoc ^{w-w} *so Ar.*¹ Ethiop. \mathfrak{L} quantae venae ^{x-x} emending venae of \mathfrak{L} to viae (cf. S Ethiop. Arm.) ^{y-y} so S and other Oriental VSS. \mathfrak{L} > (by homoioteleuton; cf. next clause) ^{z-z} so Oriental

36. Individual men of note. Such as Job, regarded as a non-Israelite of conspicuous piety: cf. St. Paul's treatment of the theme of the law-abiding Gentile in Rom. ii. 26 f.

(a) iv. 1—11. The angel (or rather archangel; cf. iv. 36) Uriel is sent to the seer, and propounds three problems to him which he is unable to answer. If these are beyond his capacity, how can he presume to challenge the inscrutable ways of God? The general character of the passage is similar to parts of Job (cf. especially Job xxviii). For the dialogue between the angel and Salathiel cf. e.g. Zech. i—vi, Dan. x, &c.

1. Uriel. Uriel (= ? 'the fire of God', Heb. 'ûr-'êl) is mentioned again in verse 36, v. 20, and x. 38 (not again in the Bible). He was one of the four chief angels (Michael, Gabriel, Raphael, and Uriel), of whom Michael was the highest (cf. Lueken, Michael, p. 32 f.). According to 1 En. xx. 2 Uriel was 'the angel over the world and over Tartarus'.¹ In 1 En. x. 1 (Greek) he is the divine messenger who is sent to warn the son of Lamech. So here. The problems he propounds to Ezra accord with the character assigned to him and his name. The first ('weigh me the weight of the fire') is suggested by the meaning of the name Uriel—'Fire of God'. The others are concerned with the waters of the deep (têhôm), and with the underworld. Uriel is thus designated, therefore, as being 'the archangel of fire and of Gehenna, where flame is the chief element' (cf. JE, xii. 383). Later he became (mistakenly) associated with light (Heb. 'ôr), and was regarded as the enlightener ('he who brings light to Israel', Num. rabb. ii. 10). In 1 En. xl, Fanuel, one of the four 'presences' (Michael, Rufael, Gabriel, Fanuel), is, apparently, Uriel under another aspect. For Uriel as propounder and answerer of questions as here, cf. 1 En. xxi. 5, 9; xxvii. 2; xxxiii. 3, 4.

2. Thy heart hath utterly failed thee, &c. For the sentiment cf. John iii. 12.

5. fire . . . wind. For the conjunction of 'fire' and 'wind' cf. iii. 19, viii. 22, Wisd. xiii. 2. The four winds were regarded as having their dwelling-places in the four corners of the earth. Here they were detained in 'treasuries' and issued forth from time to time through 'portals' (cf. 1 En. xxxv f., where the portals which open into heaven from the ends of the earth are spoken of; cf. also 4 Ezra vi. 1). According to Rev. vii. 1 the four storehouses of the winds are guarded by four angels. As their dwelling-place was fixed at the extremities of the earth the winds would be under the supreme rule of Uriel, 'the angel over the world and over Tartarus'. To the ancients the wind was a supremely mysterious agent (cf. Eccles. xi. 5, 'as thou knowest not the way of the wind', and John iii. 8).

measure me the measure of the wind. Cf. Job xxviii. 22 for the similar idea of 'weighing' the wind; and for the whole verse, 2 Bar. lix. 5 (cf. also 1 En. xli. 4, 2 En. xl. 11).

7. How many dwellings are in the heart of the sea. Cf. Job xxviii. 16—17.

paths of Paradise, i. e. leading to Paradise; the heavenly Paradise is meant.

¹ 'Over thunder and earthquake', according to the Eth. text; the Greek gives as above. [Probably the clause 'and whose name was Uriel' was added by R.]

8 Perchance thou wouldst have said to me :
 Into the deep I have not descended, nor as yet ^z gone down ^z into Hades ;
 Neither to heaven have I ever ascended,
^a nor entered Paradise ^a.

9 But now I have only asked thee of the fire, the wind, and the day ^b that is past ^b,—things without which thou canst not be ; and yet thou hast vouchsafed me no answer about them !

10 He said moreover unto me : ^c What belongs to thee ^c—the things that have intermingled with thy 11 growth—thou art incapable of understanding ; how then should thy vessel be able to comprehend the way of the Most High ? ^d For the way of the Most High has been formed without measure ^d, ^e how, then, should it be possible for a mortal in a corruptible world to understand the ways of the Incorruptible ^e ?

(b) iv. 12-21. The dialogue continued : it is foolish and senseless to demand what is against nature (S).

12 ^f [And when I heard these things I fell upon my face] ^f and said unto him : It would have been better ^g that we had never been created ^g than having come [into the world] to live in sins and suffer, and not ^h to know ^h why we suffer.

13 And he answered me and said : ⁱ Once upon a time the woods of the trees of the field went forth, ⁱ
 14 and took counsel, and said : Come, let us go and make war against the sea, that it may retire before 15 us, and we will make us ^j more woods ^j. In like manner also the waves of the sea took counsel, and 16 said : Come, let us go up and wage war against the wood of the field, that there also we may win us
 17 more territory. The counsel of the wood was in vain, for the fire came and consumed it ; likewise, 18 also, the counsel of the waves of the sea, for the sand ^k stood up ^k and stopped them. If thou, now, 19 hadst been judge between them whom wouldst thou have justified or whom condemned ? I answered and said : Both have taken a foolish counsel ; for to the wood the land has been assigned, and ^l to the sea a place ^l to bear its waves.

20 Then he answered me and said : Thou hast judged aright ; but why hast thou not given judgement 21 in thine own case ? For just as the earth has been assigned to the wood, and ^m the place of the sea to bear its waves ^m ; even so the dwellers upon earth can understand only what is upon the earth, ⁿ and they who are above the heavens ⁿ that which is above the heavenly height.

(c) iv. 22-32. The dialogue continued : The seer protests that his perplexities are occasioned by the daily experiences of earth. He is told that the new age which is about to dawn will solve all difficulties (S).

22 Then answered I and said : I beseech thee, O Lord, wherefore have I been endowed with an

VSS. $\mathbb{L} >$ ^{a-a} so Ethiop. Arm. (cf. Ar.²) ; $\mathbb{L} \mathbb{S} >$ ^{b-b} so Ethiop. (cf. Ar.¹) : \mathbb{L} per quae (= \mathbb{S} ; v. l. quem) transisti ^{c-c} \mathbb{L} quae tua sunt : \mathbb{S} Ethiop. (one reading) Arm. > ^{d-d} so \mathbb{S} Ethiop. (cf. Ar. Arm.) : $\mathbb{L} >$ (by homoioteleuton) ^{e-e} so \mathbb{S} substantially (nor is it possible, &c.) : cf. Ethiop. Ar.¹ : \mathbb{L} et iam exteritus corrupto saeculo intellegere incorruptionem ? ^{f-f} so Oriental Versions : \mathbb{L} corrupt ^{g-g} so Ethiop. : \mathbb{L} nos non adesse ^{h-h} reading intellegere (= \mathbb{S} Ar.¹ Arm.) : for intellexi (S A C) ⁱ⁻ⁱ so \mathbb{S} (cf. Ethiop.) : \mathbb{L} is corrupt ^{j-j} \mathbb{L} alias silvas : \mathbb{S} Ethiop. a new wood ^{k-k} so \mathbb{L} stetit (= εσθη) = \mathbb{S} Ar.¹ ; but Ethiop. and Arm. stayed (= εσθησε) ^{l-l} reading mari locus (C, &c.) ; but S A maris locus = \mathbb{S} ^{m-m} so \mathbb{S} : \mathbb{L} et mare fluctibus suis ⁿ⁻ⁿ \mathbb{L} qui super coelos : Ar.² Arm. interpret as plural (they who are above the heavens) : \mathbb{S} as sing. (he who is above, &c.)

9. things without which thou canst not be. Man cannot live apart from wind, warmth, and the passing day ; cf. for the thought Wisd. ix. 16.

10. What belongs to thee—the things . . . thy growth. The 'things' referred to include fire and wind, two of the four primal elements (fire, wind, earth, and water) ; for these cf. Wisd. vii. 17, xiii. 1, xix. 18 (τὰ στοιχία). There may be an allusion, as Gunkel suggests, to man's living organism (the microcosm) being compounded of the elements (cf. viii. 8). This view is of Oriental origin.

thy vessel. The body is the 'vessel' of the soul or understanding.

(b) iv. 12-21. In answer to Salathiel's despairing interjection the archangel further enforces the point of the preceding paragraph by a parable, taken from the sea and the forest. The idea of the sea being held in check and kept within prescribed bounds by the divine power is an ancient one, and forms the motive of some early mythological Creation myths (cf. Job. vii. 12, xxxviii. 8 f.). The application of the idea to the wood seems to be original to the apocalypticist (so Gunkel).

12. It would have been better that we had never been created, &c. The seer here takes the pessimistic view of the school of Shammai on the question whether it would have been better for man never to have been created. According to T. B. Erub. 13 b the controversy lasted two and a half years.

17. the sand stood up and stopped them. Cf. Jer. v. 22.

(c) iv. 22-32. Disclaiming any desire 'to be curious about the ways above', the seer protests that his difficulties are very real and rooted in daily experience. He is above measure perplexed because the chosen race—the people that bear God's sacred name of Israel—should be given up as a prey to the godless heathen (vv. 22-25). He is assured in

- S 23 understanding to discern? For I meant not to ask ^o about the ways above ^o but of those things we daily experience;
 Why is Israel to the heathen given over for reproach, thy beloved people to godless tribes given up?
 The Law of our fathers ^p has been brought to destruction ^p, the written covenants exist no more; 24 We vanish from the world as locusts, our life is ^q as a breath ^q.
 25 We indeed are not worthy to obtain mercy; but what will he do for his own name whereby we are called? It is about these things that I have asked.

The Answer.

- 26 Then he answered me and said: ^r If thou survive ^r thou shalt see, and if thou livest long thou shalt marvel; for the age is hastening fast to its end.
 27 Because it is unable to bear the things promised ^s in their season ^s to the righteous; for this age is full of sorrow and impotence.
 28 For the evil ^t concerning which ^t thou askest me is sown, but ^u the ingathering of it ^u is not yet
 29 come. Unless, therefore, that which is sown be reaped, and unless the place where the evil is sown
 30 shall have passed away, the field where the good is sown cannot come. For a grain of evil seed was sown in the heart of Adam from the beginning, and how much fruit of ungodliness has it produced unto this time, and shall yet produce until the threshing-floor come!
 31 Reckon up, now, in thine own mind: ^v if ^v a grain of evil seed has produced so much fruit of 32 ungodliness, when once the ears ^w of the good seed ^w shall have been sown without number, how great a floor shall they be destined to fill?

(d) iv. 33-43. The dialogue continued. In reply to his question, When shall these things be? the seer receives the answer—When the number of the righteous is complete (S).

- 33 Then I answered and said: ^x How long and when ^x shall these things (be coming to pass)? ^y For ^y our years are few and evil.
 34 And he answered me and said: Thy haste may not exceed that of the Most High; for thou art hastening ^z for thine own self ^z, but the Exalted One on behalf of many.

^{o-o} reading de superioribus viis (C) = § Ethiop. Ar.²: de superioribus tuis S A ^{v-p} reading in interitum (S A);
 C M in inritum (so BJ) ^{q-q} reading ut vapor = § Ethiop.: ut pavor S A M ^{r-r} so Ethiop. (= εαν μεν ης): ℒ si fueris (= εαν μεν ης) ^{s-s} ℒ in temporibus: § Ethiop. > ^{t-t} reading de quo . . . de eo (cf. § Ethiop.): de quibus S A ^{u-u} reading destructio ipsius (S A*): v. l. destructio ^{v-v} so Ethiop.: ℒ § > ^{w-w} so § Ethiop.: ℒ > ^{x-x} reading usquequo et quando (= § Ethiop. Arm.): quo (for usquequo) S A ^{y-y} so § Ethiop.: ℒ quare ^{z-z} reading propter temetipsum = § Ethiop. ℒ corrupt. ^{a-a} so § Ethiop.: ℒ usquequo spero sic reply that the present age is hastening to its close, and that the new age which is about to dawn will solve all difficulties (v. 26). It is further explained to him why the present state of things must go on for a time. The harvest of evil must first be reaped before something better can take its place (vv. 27-32). Cf. the reference in a similar connexion to the harvest of good and bad seed in 2 Baruch lxx. 2.

23. the written covenants. The expression is a synonym for the Law (Scriptures). In T. B. Berak 48 b the Law (Torah) is said to have been given 'by three covenants', viz. those with Israel at Sinai, at Gerizim, and in the plains of Moab; cf. Rom. ix. 4, and Sir. xlv. 11, Wisd. xviii. 22. For the destruction of the Law cf. xiv. 21 f.

25. what will he do for his own name. Cf. Isa. lxiii. 19; 2 Baruch v. 1; also 4 Ezra x. 22.

whereby we are called. lit. 'which is called upon us'. The expression implies ownership. Cf. Isa. xliii. 7; 2 Chron. vii. 14; James ii. 7. Israel's election is appealed to.

27. this age is full of sorrow and impotence. It is characteristic of the apocalyptic writer's pessimism that he gives up the present age entirely. It must be destroyed absolutely, and an entirely new order take its place. The older view that the present world should be renewed in a purified form is abandoned.

28. the ingathering of it. For the idea of sowing, reaping, and harvest applied metaphorically to evil, cf. the parable of the Sower (Matt. xiii), and in particular Matt. xiii. 39.

32. be destined to fill. The harvest of good, when once it has been sown (immediately after the end of the present evil age), will in the golden future far surpass the previous harvest of evil. The argument a minori ad maius is characteristically Jewish.

(d) iv. 33-43. The seer's impatient question—'How long? when shall these good things come to pass?'—is rebuked. Everything has been predetermined. Till the predestined number of the righteous has been completed the judgement cannot come. But when the moment has arrived nothing can delay its consummation. The point is further enforced by a similitude. On the whole passage cf. Charles, Eschatology, p. 293 f.

34. Thy haste may not exceed that of the Most High. The seer is rebuked for selfish impatience. The Most High is no less ready to 'haste' than himself, but determines His action in accordance with the interests of all (many); cf. v. 33. As Gunkel remarks, such admonitions to be patient are a standing feature of apocalyptic writings. Acquiescence in the divine will was the highest virtue in a time when even the most pious sighed for the end of the present world.

- 35 Were not these questions of thine asked by the souls of the righteous in their chambers?
^a How long are we (to remain) here? ^a When cometh the fruit upon the threshing-floor of our reward?'
 36 And to them the archangel Jeremiel made reply, and said: Even when the number ^b of those like yourself ^b is fulfilled!
 For he has weighed the age in the balance,
 37 And with measure has measured the ^c times ^c,
 And by number has numbered the ^c seasons ^c:
 Neither will he move nor stir things, till the measure ^d appointed ^d be fulfilled.
 39 Then I answered and said: O Lord my Lord, ^e but behold ^e we are all full of ungodliness. ^f Is it, perchance, ^f on our account that ^g the threshing-floor of the righteous is kept back ^g—on account of the sins of the dwellers upon earth?
 40 So he answered me and said: Go and ask the woman who is pregnant, when she has completed her nine months, if her womb can keep the birth any longer within her?
 41 Then said I: No, Lord, it cannot. And he said to me: ^h The underworld and the chambers of

^{b-b} reading similium vobis = § Ethiop. Ar.²: seminum S A C M (corrupt) ^{c-c} (c c) ¶ tempora . . . tempora: § times . . . hours (changing expression, prob. rightly) ^{d-d} ¶ praedicta ^{e-e} so Ethiop. (and § by an easy emendation): ¶ sed et (? read ecce for et) ^{f-f} so Ethiop.: ¶ et ne forte (? read num forte) ^{g-g} reading prohibeatur iustorum area (C M) = Ethiop. (cf. §): v. l. impleatur (S A), non impleantur (iustorum areae) ^{h-h} so § Ethiop. (hence Violet emends ¶ infernum et promptuaria animarum): ¶ (MSS.) in inferno promptuaria animarum

35. by . . . the righteous. i. e. the righteous dead.
 in their chambers. Lat. in promptuariis suis = ἐν τοῖς ταμείοις αὐτῶν. The word promptuaria recurs in iv. 41, vii. 32, 95 (cf. v. 9, 27, vi. 22); also in Ps. cxliv. 13, and apparently not again in the Vulgate. These 'chambers' are the 'treasuries of souls' referred to sometimes in apocalyptic books (cf. 2 Bar. xxi. 23, 'And let the treasuries of souls restore those which are enclosed in them'; 1 En. xxii. 3 f.). These 'treasuries' or 'habitations' (habacula, 4 Ezra vii. 80) were reserved for the righteous only (vii. 80), who entered them at death, and there enjoying 'great quietness' and 'guarded by angels', they awaited the final judgement (vii. 95). Then the 'chambers' were to restore the souls committed to them (vii. 32, cf. iv. 42; 2 Bar. xxi. 3, xxx. 2). According to the Talmud (T. B. Shabbath 152b) the souls of the righteous dead are beneath the throne of God (cf. Rev. vi. 9 f., where the souls of the righteous who have suffered martyrdom are represented as being 'beneath the [heavenly] altar'). In a few passages in the Rabbinical literature the word treasury (Heb. 'ōsār) is used in this connexion: cf. e. g. Midr. rab. on Qoheleth (iii. 21), where the souls of the righteous are said to be 'placed in the treasury', which is located in the heavenly 'height'. According to 4 Ezra vii. 41, however, these 'treasuries' or 'chambers' are placed in Sheol (the lower world). But the alternative reading is better (see ad loc.).

36. Jeremiel. Gk. Ἱερεμὴλ (= Heb. יְרֵמְיָהוּ). This archangel may confidently be identified with Περμεύηλ (note that the Syr. of our verse actually reads Ramiel), who appears in the Greek (Gizeh) text of 1 En. xx. as the seventh of the seven archangels (1, Uriel; 2, Raphael; 3, Raguel; 4, Michael; 5, Sariel [= Eth. Saraqâêl]; 6, Gabriel; 7, Remiel [= Jeremiel]). In the Ethiop. text the first six only are mentioned; but, doubtless, the Greek is right in enumerating seven. The last (= Jeremiel) is described as 'one of the holy angels whom God appointed to be over those who rise [from the dead]' (ἐπὶ τῶν ἀνισταμένων). This agrees admirably with the rôle assigned to him here as the archangel who has charge of the souls of the righteous who are guarded in the 'treasuries', and await the final judgement and resurrection. [Only two of the seven archangels are mentioned in 4 Ezra, viz. Uriel and Jeremiel.]

those like yourself is fulfilled. The end of the age and the 'regeneration' can only take place when the number of the saints has been completed. This is also the view represented in Rev. vi. 11 ('until their fellow-servants . . . should be fulfilled'); Swete, ad loc., aptly cites from the Anglican Burial Service, 'that it may please thee . . . shortly to accomplish the number of thine elect, and to hasten thy kingdom.' According to Rev. vii. 4 the number of the 'sealed', i. e. the elect, is 144,000. In 2 Bar. xxiii. 5 the number that is to be fulfilled is of mankind as a whole (all who should be born)—a view which is referred to in Rabbinical literature (see the references cited by Charles on Ap. Bar., loc. cit.). This number was a secret known only to God Himself (2 Bar. xxi. 10, xlvi. 46).

36-37. weighed . . . measured . . . numbered. The times and periods of the course of the world's history have been predetermined by God. The numbers of the years have been exactly fixed. This was a fundamental postulate of the apocalyptists, who devoted much of their energy to calculations, based upon a close study of prophecy, as to the exact period when history should reach its consummation. One scheme especially favoured divided history into a world-week of seven millenniums, corresponding to the week of Creation (cf. vii. 30, 43; according to 2 Pet. iii. 8 [cf. Ps. xc. 4] a day = 1,000 years). Here, however, as in the case of the number of the righteous (elect), no definite number is mentioned. The categories of 'weight', 'measure', and 'rule' (or 'number') are also applied to Creation generally; cf. Test. Twelve Patr. Naph. ii. 3; Wisd. xi. 20 ('by measure, number, and weight thou didst order all things') Philo, Soum. ii. 29 ('God . . . measures, weighs, and numbers all things, and circumscribes them with bounds and limits'). In the O. T. similar expressions are occasionally met with; thus in Job xxviii. 25 the winds are said to be 'weighed' and the waters 'measured'; in Isa. xl. 12 the mountains and hills; cf. 1 En. xliii. 2 (the stars); also 4 Ezra iv. 5. The underlying idea is predestinarian (cf. Charles on 1 En. xlvi. 3).

41. the underworld and the chambers of souls. For the text cf. crit. note. The treasury of the souls of the righteous dead is, no doubt, meant. Gunkel, indeed, and some other scholars take the 'chambers of souls' here to refer to unborn souls, not to those of the righteous dead. In this case an antithesis is intended between promptuaria animarum and infernum; the latter (= Sheol) is the place where all the dead are received, the abode of all departed souls; the former the abode of souls yet unborn (cf. 2 Bar. xxiii. 5 [same antithesis between abode of unborn and

S 42 souls^h are like the womb: for just as she who is in travail makes haste to escape the anguish of the 43 travail; even so do these places hasten to deliver what has been entrusted to them from the beginning. Then to thee it shall be showed concerning those things that thou desirest to see.

(e) iv. 44-50. The dialogue continued. In reply to a further question, the seer is shown by a similitude that the End will come soon (S).

44 Then I answered and said: If I have found favour in thy sight, and if it be possible, and if I be 45 sufficient, show me this also: whether there be more to come than is past, or whether the more part 46 is already gone by us? For what is gone by I know, but what is to come I know not.

47 And he said to me: Stand to the right, and I will explain the meaning of a similitude unto thee.

48 So I stood, and saw, and lo! a blazing furnace passed by before me; and it happened that when the flame had gone by I looked and lo! the smoke remained still.

49 Thereupon there passed by before me a cloud full of water, and sent down much rain with a storm; and when the rain-storm was past the drops remained therein still.

50 Then said he unto me: Consider for thyself; for as the rain is more than the drops, and as the fire is greater than the smoke, so has the measure of what is past exceeded by far; but there are still left over—the drops and the smoke!

(f) iv. 51-v. 13. The signs which precede the End (E) (R).

51 Then I made supplication, and said: Thinkest thou that I shall live until those days? ⁱWhoⁱ shall be (live) in those days?

52 He answered me, and said: [As for the signs concerning which thou askest me, I may tell thee departed spirits]; xlvi. 16, lii. 6, lvi. 6). But in v. 35 the promptuaria are undoubtedly the chambers containing the souls of the righteous dead. It would be strange if a few verses later the same expression were used, without any limiting phrase, to denote something else. In this case the infernium (underworld, Sheol) will be a general term for the abode of the souls of the wicked dead, where they await the final judgement. This is the meaning of Sheol (Hades), apparently, in the Johannine Apocalypse, where Hades and Death are always combined, and (like the wicked) are consigned to the lake of fire (cf. Rev. i. 18; vi. 8; xx. 13, 14; and see Charles, Eschatology, p. 352).

(so Bf) ⁱ⁻ⁱ \mathbb{L} vel quis; so \mathbb{S} : but Ethiop. Ar.¹ Ar.² What [shall happen in those days] ^{j-j} reading in excessu

(e) iv. 44-50. The seer now asks, but in a more subdued and less impatient manner, whether more of the drama remains to be enacted than what is already past. He is shown a vision of fire and storm, of which nothing remains, after they have gone by, but the smoke and the rain-drops, and is told that in a like manner the greater part of the world's history that precedes the End is already past.

47. Stand to the right. The Arabic renders: 'Turn thyself towards the right side and look'; but the expression may mean upon the right side of the speaker. The seer is bidden to stand upon the right side of the angel in order that both (now facing one way) may watch the spectacle as it passes; presumably before this they had been standing face to face.

(f) iv. 51-v. 13. In reply to a further question as to whether he shall live to see 'those days' and as to what will then happen, the seer is given a description of the signs of the End. These are set forth in detail (v. 1-12). It will be a time of commotions and the general break up of moral and religious forces (vv. 1-2); the heathen world-power (= Rome) will be destroyed (v. 3); there will be portents in nature, general chaos in society, monstrous and untimely births, the failure of the means of subsistence, and internecine strife (vv. 4-9, vi. 21-22); wisdom and understanding will have perished from the earth (vv. 10-12). There is a further reference to these 'signs' in ix. 3 f.

A close examination of the passage makes it clear that the section detailing the 'signs' (v. 1-12) cannot belong to S. In iv. 51 the seer asks: 'Thinkest thou that I shall live in those days? Or who (v. l. what) shall be in those days?'—the 'days' = the time of the End. The answer that follows (in the present form of the text) is: ['As for the signs concerning which thou askest me, I may tell thee of them in part, but] concerning thy life I have not been sent to speak to thee, nor have I any knowledge thereof.' Only the latter part of this verse (the words outside the brackets) is an answer to Salathiel's question. He had not said a word about the 'signs'. The attempt to evade this difficulty in some of the versions (Ethiop. and Arab., cf. Vulg.) by substituting 'what' for 'who' (against the Latin and Syriac) in the second half of the question only complicates matters by introducing another (and totally different) question. It is no answer to Salathiel to tell him some of the signs that shall precede the End. He desires to know whether he himself shall live to see the End. Moreover, the description of the 'signs' that follows (v. 1-12) is in tone and style alien to S. It is in any case much older, and bears marks of being traditional. Of course it is conceivable that S may have used such older material; but if he had done so he would have invested it with some of the marks of his own style. He cannot have been responsible for its awkward introduction here. No doubt the passage has been inserted by R from E. The original sequence of S here (the inserted passage being ignored) will have been as follows: 'Then I made supplication and said: Thinkest thou that I shall live until those days? Or who shall be in those days? He answered me, and said: Concerning thy life I have not been sent to speak to thee, nor have I any knowledge thereof. If, however, thou wilt pray again, and weep as now, and fast [again] seven days, thou shalt hear yet greater things than these' (iv. 51, 52, v. 13 b).

The passage is really a descriptive list of the Messianic 'woes', and bears a general likeness to other eschatological descriptions of the signs that precede the End. See further EA, p. 41, and the literature there cited.

52. the signs concerning which thou askest me. To the instructed the events which were to precede and herald the End were a 'sign'; cf. ix. 1 f. (Matt. xxiv. 15; Mark xiii. 14).

)S of them in part; but] concerning thy life I have not been sent to speak to thee, nor have I any knowledge (thereof).

5¹ Concerning the signs, however:

Behold, the days come when the inhabitants of earth shall be seized^j with great panic^j,

And the way of truth shall be hidden,
and the land be barren of faith.

2 And iniquity shall be increased above that which thou thyself now seest or that thou hast heard of 3 long ago. And the land that thou seest now to bear rule^k shall be a pathless waste^k; and men
4 shall see it forsaken: if the Most High grant thee to live, thou shalt see it after^l the third (period) in confusion^l.

Then shall the sun suddenly shine forth by night and the moon by day:

5 And blood shall trickle forth from wood, and the stone utter its voice:

The peoples shall be in commotion,
^m the outgoings (?) (of the stars) ^m shall change.

6 And one whom the dwellers upon earth do not look for shall wield sovereignty, and the birds shall take to general flight,

7 andⁿ the seaⁿ shall cast forth its fish.

And one^o whom^o the many do not know will make his voice heard by night; and all shall hear his voice.

multo = § (cf. Ethiop.); Lat. MSS. incensu multo ^{k-k} reading erit incomposita [et sine] vestigio with BJ (bracketed words not in Lat. MSS.): Violet reads et erit incomposito vestigio, 'in unordentlichen Trümmern': § unstable and untrodden ^{l-1} reading post tertiam turbatam (C) [tubam A] ^{m-m} § gressus (egressos S): § = ἀέρες (so *Ar.*¹ *Ar.*²): Ethiop. = ἀστéρες ⁿ⁻ⁿ § mare Sodomiticum (corrected text): so Oriental VSS.; but Sodomiticum prob. to be deleted ^{o-o} reading quem for quam in part. The description here is supplemented in vi. 11–28.

v. 3. the land, &c. The Roman Empire is, of course, meant.

shall be a pathless waste. Lit. 'shall be disordered and pathless' (corrected text; see crit. note).

4. after the third (period) in confusion. For the text cf. crit. note (probably ἡμέραν has fallen out). Some noun of time must be supplied (Ethiop., 'after the third month'; but Arm., 'after the third vision'). Gunkel (Schöpfung, pp. 268, 269, notes) has shown how significant a rôle the number 3½ plays in the eschatological tradition. The mystic number has been applied to periods, years, months, and days (in Daniel the 3½ years are variously reckoned as 1150, 1290, and 1335 days; cf. Dan. viii. 14, xii. 11, and xii. 12; in Rev. xi. 3, xii. 6 as 1260 days). In 4 Ezra xiv. 11 f. according to one form of the text 2½ world-periods remain (9½ of the 12 parts having passed already); and there, as in our passage, the number (2½) denotes part of the period that is to elapse before the final destruction of the evil and oppressive world-power, i.e. Rome. So here 'after the third [day, i.e. period]' means more exactly towards the end of the 3½ 'days' which remain before Rome's dominion comes to an end. [Hilg. and others understand the land after the third (cf. Syr.), i.e. the fourth kingdom of Daniel (cf. 4 Ezra xii. 11, where 'the fourth kingdom that appeared in vision to thy brother Daniel' is identified with Rome). The Arab. interprets: 'thou shalt afterwards see these three signs,' i.e. those of the sun and moon, the blood, and the stones that follow.]

sun . . . shine forth by night, &c. Cf. 1 Enoch lxxx. 4, 5 for emended text.

5. blood shall trickle forth from wood, and the stone utter its voice. Cited in Ep. Barnabas xii. 1 as from a prophetic writing (probably not 4 Ezra): see further EA, p. 44.

the outgoings (?) (of the stars) shall change. For text see crit. note. The textual evidence suggests that the Oriental Versions read 'stars', or something like it, in their Greek text (ἀήρ, ἀέρες, confused with ἀστήρ, ἀστéρες), while the Lat. simply represents some word like ξήσοδοι. Possibly a combination of these readings may produce an approximation to the original text; such as, 'the outgoings of the stars are changed' or 'the stars change their outgoings' [ימירו מוצאי הכוכבים]. Cf. Ps. lxxv. 8 (9): 'Thou makest the "outgoings" of the morning and evening to rejoice.' These 'outgoings' or 'exits' (cf. exitus, vi. 1) were the portals through which the stars proceeded and the winds blew; cf. 1 En. xxxiv–xxxvi. See further EA, p. 45.

6. one whom . . . shall wield sovereignty. i.e. the Antichrist (the wicked tyrant of the last days).

and the birds . . . flight. Birds, possibly as creatures which soar aloft, were regarded in antiquity as possessing supernatural knowledge. They could foresee impending events.

7. and the sea shall cast forth its fish. So Wellhausen (Skizzen, vii. 246) and Charles. The Lat. and all the versions have 'sea of Sodom'. If this be right the portent will consist in the Dead Sea casting out fish, as no fish can live there; cf. Ezek. xlvii. 8 f., where the bitter waters of the Dead Sea are pictured as sweetened and made full of life by the stream issuing from the Temple. Local features are, however, out of harmony with the context, which depicts a convulsion of nature on the largest scale. Hence 'of Sodom' is probably to be deleted as an incorrect gloss, which was already present in the original Heb. text (suggested by 'salt waters . . . in the sweet' in v. 9?). ['Sea of Sodom' is one of the names given to the Dead Sea in the Talmud.] For the general conception cf. Isa. 1. 3.

And one whom the many do not know will make his voice heard by night; and all shall hear his voice: et dabit vocem noctu quem [emended from quam] non noverunt multi, omnes autem audient vocem eius: so Wellhausen, Charles. The Latin erroneously refers the relative (אשר) to voice, thereby depriving the sentence of a subject. With this emendation the clause non noverunt multi becomes more intelligible. A mysterious personage is indicated by a voice which all can hear: cf. Josephus' account of the mysterious voice heard in the Temple saying 'Let us

- E 8 ^p And the earth o'er wide regions shall open,^p and fire burst forth for a long period:
The wild beasts shall desert their haunts,^a and women bear monsters^a.
- vi. 21 (And one-year-old children shall speak with their voices; pregnant women shall bring forth 22 untimely births at three or four months, and these shall live and ^rdance^r. And suddenly shall the sown places appear unsown, and the full storehouses shall suddenly be found empty.)
- v. 9 Salt waters shall be found in the sweet; friends shall attack one another ^ssuddenly^s.
- 10 Then shall intelligence hide itself, and wisdom withdraw to its chamber—by many shall be sought and not found.
- 11 And unrighteousness and incontinency shall be multiplied upon the earth. One land shall also ask another and say: Is Righteousness—that doeth the right—passed through thee? And it shall answer, No.
- 12 And it shall be
In that time men shall hope and not obtain, shall labour and not prosper.
- 13 Such are the signs I am permitted to tell thee; but if thou wilt pray again, and weep as now, and fast seven days, thou shalt hear again greater things than these.

IV. v. 14-19. CONCLUSION OF THE VISION (S).

- S 14 [Then I awoke, and my body trembled greatly; my soul also was wearied even unto fainting.
15 But the angel who came and spake with me took hold of me, strengthened me, and set me up upon my feet.]
- 16 And in the second night Phaltiel, the captain of the people, came unto me, and said: Where hast 17 thou been? And why is thy countenance sad? Or knowest thou not that Israel has been entrusted 18 unto thee in the land of their exile? Rouse thyself, then, and eat a morsel of bread, and do not desert us as a shepherd does (who leaves) his flock in the power of noxious wolves!
- 19 Then said I unto him: Depart from me, and come not nigh me for seven days; then thou mayst come unto me ^tand I will explain matters unto thee^t. And when he heard what I said he left me.

^{p-p} = § (χασμα or χασματα for chaos): ℒ et chaus fiet per loca multa ^{a-a} so § (cf. Ethiop.): ℒ et mulieres parient menstruatae monstra (menstruatae = a corrupt doublet of monstra) ^{r-r} reading scirtiabuntur (C) ^{s-s} so § Ethiop.; ℒ omnes ^{t-t} so § (cf. Ethiop.): ℒ > depart hence', which he relates as a portent (Jewish War, vi. 5. 3 [299]; in the same context he relates other similar 'portents').

8. The earth o'er wide regions shall open, lit. 'a fissure (reading χασμα for chaos: see crit. note) shall arise over wide regions'; cf. Zech. xiv. 4. The Armenian also supports this reading. The fissure starts and spreads over a widening area (per loca multa).

vi. 21-22. And one-year-old children, &c. These verses, which are obviously out of harmony with their present context in chapter vi, find an appropriate place here. For the feature referred to cf. Matt. xxiv. 19.

v. 9. friends shall attack one another suddenly. Cf. vi. 24.

13. fast seven days. Cf. 2 Bar. xx. 5, 6; and Charles's note on 2 Bar. v. 2. In 4 Ezra four fasts of seven days' duration, followed by a revelation, are referred to (v. 20, vi. 35, ix. 26, 27, xii. 51), and probably one preceded the first vision (cf. iii. 1 and notes).

v. 14-19. CONCLUSION OF THE VISION. In their present position the opening verses of this section (v. 14-15)—which clearly form the conclusion of a dream-vision—are misplaced. They have, presumably, been transferred from their proper position (at the conclusion of the lacuna in iii. 1) to their present place by R, so as to form the conclusion of the first vision.

The following verses (v. 16-19) in narrative form belong to the original framework of S, and imply an earlier passage (in the missing introduction after iii. 1), giving the command to the seer to repair to a certain spot in the neighbourhood of Babylon, and there by a seven days' fast prepare for the reception of further direct revelations. The section should be compared with the parallel passage, xii. 30-48 (also from the framework of S).

14. I awoke, viz. from sleep. Clearly this is the sequel of a dream-vision.

16. Phaltiel. Lat. Phalthiel, Gk. φαλτιήλ = Heb. פלטיאל. [This name occurs in 2 Sam. iii. 15 as that of Michal's husband; in Numb. xxxiv. 26 of a prince of Issachar; cf. Piltai in the list Neh. xii. 17 (a representative of a priestly house in the time of Zerubbabel). Violet suggests that the Phaltiel of our text may originally have been the Pelathiah (= פלטיה) who is mentioned as one of the 'heads of the people' in the time of Nehemiah, in the list Neh. x. 22 (= the Pelathiah of 1 Chron. vi. 21). This would suit the time of Ezra but not Salathiel. The historical reference must remain uncertain.] The variants in the Lat. Codd. include Salathiel (so Vulg., A. V.), Psalthiel, Spalthiel; the Ethiop. has Pheltheyāl; Syr. Psaltiel; Arm. Phanuel.

17. that Israel has been entrusted unto thee. Salathiel is the last of the prophets left to the exiles in Babylon, cf. xii. 42.

18. as a shepherd, &c. For the image cf. Matt. x. 15.

THE SECOND VISION.

(v. 20-vi. 34.)

I. v. 20-22. INTRODUCTION.

21 So I fasted seven days, mourning and weeping, even as the angel Uriel commanded me. And 22 after the seven days the thoughts of my heart began to oppress me again grievously; then my soul recovered the spirit of understanding, and I began once more to address the Most High.

II. v. 23-40. THE PRAYER AND ITS ANSWER.

(a) The prayer (v. 23-30.)

23 And I said: O Lord my Lord, "out of all the woods" of the earth and all the trees thereof thou 24 hast chosen "thee" one "vine"; out of all the lands of the world thou hast chosen thee one 25 planting-ground; out of all the flowers of the world thou hast chosen thee one lily; out of all the depths of the sea thou hast replenished for thyself one river; out of all the cities that have been built 26 thou hast sanctified Sion unto thyself; out of all birds that have been created thou hast called for thyself one dove; out of all the cattle that have been formed thou hast provided thee one sheep; 27 and out of all the peoples who have become so numerous thou hast gotten thee one people: and the law^x which thou didst approve out of all (laws)^x thou hast bestowed upon the people whom thou didst desire.

28 And now, O Lord, why hast thou delivered up the one unto the many, and dishonoured the one root above the rest, and scattered thine only one among the multitude?

29 And (why) have^y they who denied thy promises been allowed to tread under foot those that have 30 believed thy covenants^y? If thou didst so much hate thy people they ought to have been punished with thine own hands.

^{u-u} so \mathfrak{L} (cf. Ar.¹): \mathfrak{L} ex omni silva (= Ethiop.) ^{v-v} so Oriental VSS.: \mathfrak{L} > ^{w-w} so Oriental VSS.: \mathfrak{L} vineam (vineyard) ^{x-x} so Ethiop.: \mathfrak{L} ab omnibus probatam legem ^{y-y} reading conculcaverunt qui contradicebant sponsonibus tuis eos qui tuis testamentis credebant (Lat. MSS. have quique for eos qui): so Oriental VSS. (see BJ)

THE SECOND VISION (v. 20-vi. 34). After a further fast of seven days the seer (Salathiel) again makes complaint to God. Why has God's chosen and beloved people Israel been given up to oppressors? (v. 20-30). The angel answers, as before, by showing that man is unable to comprehend the things nearest to himself; how then can he hope to fathom the judgements of God, or compass God's love? (v. 31-40). The dialogue is continued by the seer asking what the lot of those shall be who have died before the End comes, and is told that their lot will not be worse or better than that of those who survive. The place of successive generations in the divine plan of the world is set forth in a series of striking analogies. The feebleness of age is, the angel declares, manifested in Mother Earth (v. 41-55). In the section that follows (v. 56-vi. 6) the prophet is assured that the End of the present age and the inauguration of the new order shall come by the agency of God alone. The present age of heathen (Roman) oppressors shall be succeeded by the glorious incorruptible age (vi. 7-10). A long passage detailing the signs of the last time and the End follows (vi. 11-28) and the vision concludes (vi. 30-34).

The vision thus falls into the following divisions—

- i. Introduction (v. 20-22) (S).
- ii. The seer's prayer and its answer (v. 23-40), viz. (a) The prayer (v. 23-30) and (b) the answer (v. 31-40) (S).
- iii. The place of successive generations in the divine plan of the world (v. 41-55).
- iv. The End of the age shall come by God alone (v. 56-vi. 6).
- v. The parting asunder of the times (vi. 7-10) (S).
- vi. The signs of the last time and the coming of the End (vi. 11-28 (29)) (E).
- vii. Conclusion of the vision (vi. 30-34).

v. 23-40. This section falls into two parts, viz. (a) the prayer of Salathiel (Ezra) (v. 23-30); and (b) the answer conveyed in a dialogue by the archangel Uriel (v. 31-40).

(a) v. 23-30. THE PRAYER OF SALATHIEL (Ezra). Following on a carefully constructed exordium, which emphasizes in a variety of well-chosen figures Israel's unique position as the chosen people of God, Salathiel (Ezra) appeals to God once more with the question, Why has the beloved people been given up to heathen oppressors? Why has it been allowed to go into exile and be scattered?

23. out of all the woods, &c. The figures illustrating Israel's choice that follow have largely been drawn from the Old Testament. For the vine cf. Isa. v. 7, Ps. lxxx. 9 (10); for the lily cf. Canticles ii. 2 (interpreted allegorically of Israel), and Hos. xiv. 5; for the stream, Isa. viii. 6, Canticles iv. 15; for the dove, Ps. lxxiv. 19, Canticles ii. 14; for the sheep, Isa. liii. 7, Ps. lxxix. 13 ('sheep of thy pasture'), cf. Ps. xxiii and lxxx. 1 (2); and for the root, 1 En. xciii. 8 ('race of the elect root'); cf. also Rom. xi. 17 f. It is well known that the allegorical interpretation of Canticles is very old; in fact the book was only admitted into the Canon on this interpretation. Gunkel aptly notes that our passage already implies such an interpretation of the book.

25. thou hast sanctified Sion. Cf. e.g. Ps. cxxxii. 13.

26. one dove. The dove is a favourite emblem of Israel, especially of Israel unjustly persecuted (cf. Midrash rabba to Canticles i. 15, iv. 1); so here.

27. out of all (laws). For the idea of the superiority of the Mosaic Law above the laws of other nations cf. Deut. iv. 8 (cf. also Rom. i. 32, ii. 16).

30. with thine own hands, i.e. by famine, pestilence, or earthquake (cf. 2 Sam. xxiv. 13), but not by the hand of foreign foes.

(b) The answer: in spite of all God loves Israel now and always (v. 31-40).

- S 31 Now when I had spoken these words the angel who had before come to me on the previous night 32 was sent unto me: and he said to me:
 Hear me, and I will instruct thee:
 Attend unto me, and I will speak again before thee.
 33 And I said: Speak on, my lord. And he said: Art thou in sore perplexity of mind touching Israel? Lovest thou him better than he that made him?
 34 And I said: No, lord: but of very grief have I spoken; for every hour I suffer agonies of soul in striving to comprehend the way of the Most High, and to seek out ^z the decree of his judgement ^z.
 35 And he said unto me: Thou canst not. And I said: Wherefore, Lord? Why then was I born?
 Wherefore did not my mother's womb become my grave that I might have been spared the sight of Jacob's misery, and the distressful toil of the stock of Israel?
 36 And he said unto me:
 Number me ^a the days that are not yet come ^a, gather me the rain-drops that are scattered,
 make me the withered flowers bloom again;
 37 Open me the chambers that are closed and bring me forth ^b the spirits ^b shut up in them;
 [^c Show me the image of faces thou hast never seen ^c] or show me the image of a voice; and then I will display to thee ^d the objective ^d thou askest to see.
 38 And I said: O Lord my Lord, why who is able to understand such matters save he who has not his dwelling among men?
 39 As for me, I am unwise ^e and powerless ^e: how then should I essay to speak of these things of which thou questionest me?
 40 Then said he unto me: Just as thou art unable to do even one of these things that have been mentioned, even so thou art powerless to discover my judgement or the goal of the love that I have declared unto my people.

III. THE PLACE OF SUCCESSIVE GENERATIONS IN THE DIVINE PLAN OF THE WORLD (v. 41-55).

(a) v. 41-49. *The succession of generations accords with the Divine plan;
 God's judgement reaches all alike.*

- 41 And I said: But lo, O Lord, ^f thou art ready to meet (with blessing) ^f those who survive in the end; but what shall our predecessors do, or we ourselves or our posterity?

Ethiop. Ar.): 𐤀 > ^{f-f} reading praees = προφθαιweis (דקרה): 𐤀 thou hast promised (cf. Ethiop.): Violet emends ^{z-z} 𐤀 partem iudicii eius: cf. viii. 18. ^{a-a} so *Ethiop. Ar.*¹: 𐤀 qui necdum venerunt (those who are not yet come) (cf. 𐤀): prob. τας ημερας had fallen out of the text rendered by 𐤀 ^{b-b} so *Ethiop. Ar.*¹: 𐤀 flatos (= 𐤀) ^{e-e} so 𐤀 (supported by *Ethiop. Ar.*¹): 𐤀 > ^{d-d} 𐤀 laborem (= κοπον: *prob. a mistake for σκοπον: cf. Ar.*²: so Hilg.) ^{e-e} so 𐤀 (cf.

(b) v. 31-40. THE ANSWER TO THE PRAYER. The archangel Uriel is again sent to reason with him in answer to his complaint. As in iv. 1-11, Uriel, by a series of hard questions, demonstrates to the seer his inability to fathom God's judgements or comprehend the 'goal' of the divine love for the chosen people. The dialogue form is here resumed.

33. Lovest thou him better, &c. The apocalypticist never doubts that God's love for His people exceeds all other, and finds in this thought a source of supreme consolation; cf. viii. 47.

35. Wherefore did not my mother's womb, &c. Cited in Clem. Alex. Stromateis, iii. 16; cf. Job iii. 11; x. 18, 19; Jer. xiv. 17.

36. the days that are not yet come. For text see crit. note. The apocalypticist is reminded that he cannot know whether the days that remain to the present order shall be few or many.

37. the spirits shut up in them. Or 'winds' (see crit. note). If winds are meant the reference will be to store-houses where the winds are shut up, and only let loose by angelic agency; cf. 1 En. xli. 4, lxxvii, and Rev. vii. 1.

v. 41-55. The dialogue is continued. The seer suggests that it would be better to be alive with the final generation when the End comes. Or why could not God have made all generations of men to live at once upon the earth, so that all might share under equal conditions in the great vindication? In answer he is shown by some striking analogies drawn from life that the succession of generations is according to the divine plan: 'So have I disposed the world which I created' (v. 41-49). The seer proceeds to ask whether our Mother Earth is still young. Are the last-born

- 42 And he said unto me: I will liken my judgement to a ring; just as there is no retardation of them that are last, even so there is no hastening of those that are first.
- 43 Thereupon I answered and said: Couldst thou not have created them all at once—those who have been, those who (now) exist, and those who are to be—that thou mightst display thy judgement the sooner?
- 44 He answered me and said: The creation may not proceed faster than the Creator; nor could the world hold all at once those created in it.
- 45 And I said: How then is it that thou hast (just now) said to thy servant that ^gthou wilt verily quicken^g all at once the creation created by thee? ^hIf, then, they (i. e. all of the created) shall indeed be alive all at once,^h and ⁱcreationⁱ shall be able to sustain them, it might even now support them (all) present at once.
- 46 And he said unto me: Ask the womb of a woman, and say unto it: If thou bringest forth ten children, why (dost thou bring them forth) each in its own time? Demand, therefore, that it produce ten all at once.
- 47 And I said: It cannot possibly, but (only each) in its own time.
- 48 Then said he unto me: ^jThus have I also made the earth the womb for those ^j^k who, in their own
- 49 time, are conceived by it^k. For just as the young child does not bring forth, nor she that is aged any more, so have ^lI also^l disposed the world which I have created^m by defined periods of time^m.

(b) v. 50-55. The Earth has grown old and its offspring degenerate.

- 50 Thereupon I asked ⁿhimⁿ and said: Seeing thou hast now showed me the way, I would fain speak (further) before thee. ^oIs our mother,^o of whom thou hast told me, still young? Or does she now approach old age?
- 51, 52 He answered me and said: Ask a woman who has borne (children), and let her tell thee; say to her: Why are (the children) whom thou hast lately brought forth not like the first, but inferior ^pin
- 53 stature^p? And she also shall answer thee: Those that are born in vigorous youth are of one
- 54 fashion, and those born in old age, when the womb fails, are otherwise. Consider, therefore, thou
- 55 also that ye are inferior in stature in comparison with your predecessors; and so, also, (will be) your posterity than yourselves: even as creation is already grown old, and is already past the strength of youth.

to promittis ^{g-g} reading vivificans vivificabis (so § Ethiop. Ar.¹): vivificans vivificabit S A ^{h-h} restoring si ergo viventes vivent in unum = § : > S A C M (by homoioteleuton) ⁱ⁻ⁱ so ℒ: Ethiop. the world ^{j-j} so §: ℒ et ego dedi matricem terrae his ^{k-k} ℒ qui seminati sunt super eam per tempus ^{l-l} so § Ethiop. (= κατω): ℒ ego ^{m-m} so Ethiop. (Ar.¹): ℒ § > ⁿ⁻ⁿ so Oriental VSS.: ℒ > ^{o-o} reading num mater nostra (num for nam) = § ^{p-p} so ℒ: Ethiop. in strength: Ar.¹ in stature and strength (so v. 54): § = ℒ generations inferior to those who were born in their mother's youth? In reply he is told that the Earth is now grown old—'past the strength of youth'—and that there is a corresponding degeneracy in the latest-born generations (v. 49-55). The eagerness of the seer that the End of the present world should be hastened is a striking feature.

41. thou art ready to meet, viz. with blessing and salvation.

those who survive in the end. Cf. Ps. Sol. xviii. 7; Luke ii. 29 f. The old view, which is reflected in the older literature of the Bible, that the 'community' as a whole was to be the subject of salvation would naturally give rise to such questions as this. With the rise of the doctrine of a future life, and the growing recognition of the religious claims and position of the individual, this view was modified. Not merely the generation that happened to live on into the Messianic (or, as here, the future) Age, but all the pious individuals of previous generations who had died should (by means of a resurrection) participate in the blessedness of the final age. A similar problem (viz. how the righteous dead could share in the felicity that comes to the final generation of the living) is dealt with in 1 Thess. iv. 13 f. It is not clear, however, that the writer of S believed in a resurrection of dead bodies. See further EA, p. 121, and p. xlviif.

42. just as there is no retardation, &c., i. e. just as in the case of a ring or circle there is neither beginning nor end, so God's judgement will reach all generations at one and the same time; cf. 2 Bar. li. 13.

45. How then is it that thou hast (just now) said, i. e. how is the statement in the previous verse (44) to be reconciled with that made earlier (in v. 42) to the effect that all generations will be quickened simultaneously to receive the judgement? Lat. quomodo dixisti = πῶς εἶπες;

46. unto it, sc. the womb.

49. disposed the world . . . by defined periods of time. The earth in its earliest stage (as a child) brought forth no human inhabitants, neither will it do so in extreme old age; but only in the vigour and decline of youth.

55. even as creation is already grown old. The thought of the world's growing old is not uncommon in literature; cf. in this book, iv. 44 f., xiv. 10, 16; also 2 Bar. lxxxv. 10; Lucretius ii. 1150 f. The representation of the latest generation as inferior in 'stature and strength' to the ancients (cf. Gen. vi. 4) comes to expression in Philo (cf. de Mund. Opif., § 49). The feeling that they were standing at the end of the age is characteristic of the apocalypists.

IV. THE END OF THE AGE SHALL COME BY THE AGENCY OF GOD ALONE.

(v. 56—vi. 6).

- S 56 Then said I: O Lord, I beseech thee, if I have found favour in thy sight, show thy servant ^a by whom ^a thou wilt visit thy creation.
- 6 1 And he said unto me: ^r In the beginning of the terrestrial world^r before ever ^s the heavenward portals^{s t} were standing^t, or ever the ^u wind-blasts^u blew; 2 before the rumblings of thunderings did sound, or ever the lightning-flashes did shine;
 When
 the foundations of paradise were not yet laid,
 3 nor ^v the beauty of its flowers^v yet seen;
 Before ever ^w the motive powers (of heaven)^w were established, or the numberless armies of angels were gathered;
 4 Before ever the heights of the air were uplifted, ere the spaces of the firmaments were named;
 ere the footstool of Sion ^x was appointed^x.
 5 Before the years of the present^y were reckoned^y, ^z ere the counsels of present-day sinners were spurned^z, or the gatherers of the treasures of faith were sealed—

^{a-a} so \mathfrak{L} (per quem) = \mathfrak{S} and Ethiop. (one reading): but Ethiop. (one reading) *Ar.*¹ on account of whom ^{r-r} \mathfrak{L} initium (v. l. initio) terreni orbis: Oriental VSS. vary: \mathfrak{S} the beginning by the Son of Man, but the end by myself alone (for as before, &c.); cf. *Ethiop. Ar.*¹ ^{s-s} \mathfrak{L} exitus saeculi ^{t-t} \mathfrak{L} (S A C) starent = Oriental VSS.; v. l. statuerentur (M) ^{u-u} \mathfrak{L} conventiones (Gunkel emends to convectiones) ventorum ^{v-v} so \mathfrak{S} Ethiop.: \mathfrak{L} decore flores ^{w-w} \mathfrak{L} motus virtutes (so BJ read); or motuum virtutes = \mathfrak{S} Ethiop. (so Violet) ^{x-x} \mathfrak{L} (S A) aestimaretur (corrupt): \mathfrak{S} was established (= firmaretur): Hilg. suggests aedificaretur, Gunkel destinaretur ^{y-y} \mathfrak{L} investigarentur ^{z-z} \mathfrak{L} et antequam abalienarentur eorum qui nunc peccant adinventiones: \mathfrak{S} before the follies of sinners

v. 56—vi. 6. In this section God is directly addressed, and God is the speaker. In response to the prophet's question, Through whom shall the End come? the answer is given, Through the God of Israel alone. A polemical aim is clearly to be detected in the passage. The apocalypticist will not allow any of the essentially divine attributes or functions to be assumed by any intermediate agency, therein agreeing with the view of orthodox Rabbinic Judaism. The polemic is directed against views which were held by early Christians, but which were probably not confined to Christian circles. At the same time it is possible that what the apocalyptic writer has in mind here is the Christian doctrine of the return of Christ in glory to judge the world. The burden of the passage is that just as Creation was brought into being at the beginning by God alone (without any intermediate agency), so the End of Creation will be brought about by God alone. It may be described as a splendid development of the theme expressed in Ps. xc. 2. The description of the works of Creation is one of great power and imaginative force. The conceptions of Creation underlying it are traditional and of great antiquity (cf. especially the Babylonian Creation-myths and see Gunkel, Schöpfung, p. 401 n. and especially p. 419). It should be compared with the parallel passage in Prov. viii. 24—9. [Cf. also the description of the Day of Judgement in vii. 39 ff.]

vi. 1. In the beginning of the terrestrial world. For the alterations introduced into the text of the Oriental Versions here under Christian influence see crit. note.

the heavenward portals, i. e. the portals open to heaven; cf. 1 En. xxxiv.

3. the beauty of its flowers. The flowers are those of the heavenly Paradise (originally the stars).

the motive powers (of heaven). The powers meant are probably the same as 'the powers of heaven' of Matt. xxiv. 29, i. e. angelic powers who move the heavens and the stars. Others, however, prefer to adopt the reading motuum virtutes (see crit. note) = 'powers of movements', i. e. earthquakes.

4. the spaces of the firmaments, lit. 'the measures (i. e. measured or defined spaces) of the firmaments': the divisions into which the heavens were separated (cf. 2 En. iii f. for a description of the different heavens).

were named. The names of the seven heavens are enumerated in T. B. Hag. 12 b.

5. or the gatherers of the treasures of faith were sealed. It should be noted that it is the persons of the faithful that are here 'sealed', exactly as in Rev. vii. 4 (the 144,000 'who were sealed'); cf. Rev. ix. 4, xiv. 1, xxii. 4. (In Rev. xiii. 16, xiv. 9, xx. 4 a mark of the opposite kind is mentioned.) [Some of the best Lat. codices make the 'sealing' in our text apply to 'the merits' of those 'who have gathered faith for a treasure'; thus C M have consignarentur eorum merita qui (with partial support from S and A but against the versions). Thus 'merits' here would balance 'abominations' (or 'machinations') in the preceding clause.] 'Faith' in this passage seems to mean the righteousness which comes from fidelity to the Law (or 'fidelity to the O. T. religion'). So in v. 1, vi. 28. It plays a conspicuous rôle in eschatological doctrine, and in such passages it is not always easy to be sure of the exact shade of meaning intended. Where the Law is valued and emphasized it will mean (as here prob.) the righteousness which results from fidelity to the Law (cf. 2 Bar. liv. 21). In vii. 34 it = fidelity to the Law, just as its opposite incredulitas = disloyalty in vii. 114. In ix. 7, 8, xiii. 23 'faith' and 'works' are combined (as complementary). But the Law as such is not always necessarily the object of 'faith' (cf. 2 Bar. lvii. 2, faith is prophecy of coming judgement). (Cf. Sanday-Headlam, Romans, pp. 31—4.)

6 Even then had I these things in mind ; and through me alone and none other were they created ; as also the End (shall come) through me alone and none other.

V. THE PARTING ASUNDER OF THE TIMES.

(vi. 7-10) (S).

7 Then answered I and said : What shall mark the parting asunder of the times ? When shall the End of the first (age) and the beginning of the second be ?

8 And he said unto me : ^aFrom Abraham to Abraham.^a ^bFor from him sprang Jacob and Esau,^b
9 ^cbut Jacob's hand held the heel of Esau from the beginning.^c ^dThe heel of the first age is Esau ;
10 the hand of the second is Jacob.^d ^eThe beginning of a man is his hand, and the end of a man is his heel.^e Between heel and hand seek naught else ; Ezra !

VI. THE SIGNS OF THE LAST TIME AND THE END.

(vi. 11-28) (E) (R).

(a) vi. 11-12. Redactional Introduction.

1, 12 [I answered and said : O Lord my Lord, if I have found favour in thy sight, ^f(I beseech thee) that thou show ^fthy servant the last of thy signs of which thou didst show me a part in the night that is past.]

(b) Description of the End (vi. 13-20, 23, 24) together with some misplaced verses describing the signs that precede the End (vi. 21-22).

13 And he answered and said unto me : Stand up upon thy feet, and thou shalt hear a voice exceeding were yet invented ^{a-a} reading ab Abraham usque ad Abraham (SA) = § Ethiop. (Ar.¹) : v. l. usque ad Isaac (CM) = Ar.² (also v. l. in Ethiop.) ^{b-b} so ¶ = Ethiop. (cf. Ar.²) : § from Abraham was born Isaac and from Isaac was born Jacob and Esau (= Ar.¹) ^{c-c} so ¶ = § : but Ethiop. Ar.¹ > ^{d-d} so § : ¶ finis enim huius saeculi Esau, et principium sequentis Iacob (= Ar.¹ cf. Ethiop.) ^{e-e} so § = Ar.¹ (cf. Ethiop.) : ¶ defective ^{f-f} ¶ ut demonstrat

6. had I these things in mind. Creation, Gunkel remarks, regarded as predetermined by and the outcome of thought, is a loftier conception than that of creation through the Word. The truth of this statement depends upon the conceptual content of the Word.

as also the End . . . through me alone, &c. This clause is omitted by the Oriental Versions for dogmatic reasons.

vi. 7-10. In allegorical language, probably derived from current tradition, the apocalypticist indicates that the present corrupt age (symbolized by Esau) will be succeeded immediately, without a break, by the glorious future age of incorruption (symbolized by Jacob). The connexion in thought with what precedes seems to be : just as there is no room in the divine acts of creation and judgement for a mediatorial Messiah, so in the transition from the present to the future age, there is no room for a Messianic interim—the temporary Messianic kingdom which precedes the dissolution of the present world. This interpretation harmonizes with the thought of S. See further EA, p. 68.

8. From Abraham to Abraham. For text see crit. note. The meaning is, the interval between the old age and the new is no longer than that between Abraham and his immediate descendants : i.e. 'it will be a case of immediate succession' (Ball). The new age will follow the old without a break. This answers the first question in v. 7 ; the answer to the second is given in vv. 8 b-10.

10. Between heel and hand, &c., i.e. do not look for any interval between the two ages.

vi. 11-28. The passage as a whole is parallel to iv. 56-v. 13 a, and embodies material taken from the same older source (E). The theme of the earlier passage is the signs that precede the End. Here, however, the description of these signs is interwoven with another which has for its subject the End of the world itself. The text appears to be in some confusion. The subject of vv. 13-20 and 23 is the End of the world ; in vv. 21, 22 the description of the signs that precede the End is continued from iv. 56-v. 13 a, and probably belongs to that passage in its original form, while vv. 25-28 describe the felicity of those who survive the Messianic woes ; vv. 11-12 and 29 appear to be redactional additions, designed to adapt the older material here embodied to its present context (so Kabisch).

The section will thus fall into the following divisions :—

(a) Redactional introduction (vv. 11-12) ;

(b) Announcement of the End of the world, the speaker being the Divine Voice [of God] (vv. 13-20, 23, 24), together with some inserted [misplaced] verses describing the signs preceding the End (vv. 21, 22) ;

(c) Description of the felicity of those who survive the Messianic woes (vv. 25-28).

See further EA, p. 71.

(a) vi. 11-12. The redactional character of these introductory verses is evident. They show clearly that R intended all that follows (vv. 13-29) to be understood as descriptive of the signs preliminary to the End ; v. 11 seems to have been imitated from v. 56 a.

(b) vi. 13-20, 23-24 (vv. 20-21 belong to ch. v, between vv. 8 and 9 ; see ad loc.). In its present form the eschatological material embodied in this passage is in a fragmentary condition. But it is all probably derived from one source (E).

13. And he answered. 'He', i.e. the angel.

Stand up upon thy feet. Cf. Ezek. ii. 1 ; Dan. vii. 4, viii. 18.

E 14, 15 loud; and it shall be if the place whereon thou standest, ^g be greatly shaken ^h, ^h when it (i. e. the voice) speaks ^h ⁱ with thee ⁱ be not thou terrified; for the word is of the End, and the foundations of the earth ^j shall understand ^j that the speech is concerning themselves. They shall tremble and be shaken, for they know that their end is to be changed.

17 And it happened that when I had heard it I stood up upon my feet, and hearkened: and lo! a voice spake, and the sound of it was as the sound of mighty waters.

18 And it said:

Behold the days come, and it shall be,
When I am about to draw nigh to visit the dwellers upon earth,

19 And when I require from the doers of iniquity
(^k the penalty of) their iniquity ^k;

[¹ And when the humiliation of Sion shall be complete,¹]

R

E 20 And when the Age which is about to pass away shall be sealed

then [will I show these signs]: the books shall be opened before the face of the firmament, and all see ^m together.

vv. 21-22 misplaced.

21 (And one-year-old children shall speak with their voices; pregnant women shall bring forth 22 untimely births at three or four months, and these shall live and dance. And suddenly shall the 23 sown places appear unsown, and the full storehouses shall suddenly be found empty;) And the
(E) R trumpet shall sound aloud, at which all men, when they hear it, shall be struck with sudden fear.
24 And at that time [friends shall war against friends like enemies], the earth shall be stricken with fear [together with the dwellers thereon], and the springs of the fountains shall stand still so that for three ⁿ hours ⁿ they shall not run.

(c) vi. 25-28 (29). The felicity of those who survive the Messianic Woes.

25 And it shall be whosoever shall have survived all these things that I have foretold unto thee, he 26 shall be saved and shall see my salvation and the end of my world. And the men who have been taken up, who have not tasted death from their birth, shall appear. Then shall the heart of the inhabitants ^o (of the world) ^o be changed, and be converted to a different spirit.

g-g reading commotione commovebitur (C M) h-b ℒ in eo cum loquitur (= εν τω λαλειν) 1-1 so Oriental VSS.: ℒ > J-j so § (cf. Ar.¹): ℒ intellegetur k-k so Ethiop. (= την αδικιαν αυτων): ℒ iniustitia sua (= την αδικια αυτων) 1-1 this clause is prob. due to R; cf. EA, p. xxx. m § + my judgement n-n so ℒ &c.
Ar.² years o-o so § (cf. other Oriental VSS.): ℒ > p-p so ℒ, &c.: Ar.¹ the evil heart q-q so ℒ (tantis

17. the sound of it . . . mighty waters. Cf. Ezek. i. 24; Rev. i. 15, xiv. 2, xix. 6. The divine voice is meant.

18. Behold the days come. A common O.T. phrase, especially in the prophetic literature; cf. Amos viii. 11, ix. 12; often in Jeremiah.

19. [And when the humiliation of Sion shall be complete]. The fall of Jerusalem is regarded as marking a definite step towards the speedy advent of the divine judgement; cf. 2 Bar. xx. 2. The clause is probably due to R (see EA, p. xxx).

20. [will I show these signs]. These words are probably due to R, who desired to invest the substance of the section (which is concerned with the final judgement) with the character of a description of the signs preceding the End.

the books shall be opened, i.e. the celestial books in which are recorded the deeds of the righteous and wicked. See 1 En. xlvii. 3 and notes.

23. the trumpet, i.e. the trumpet, the blowing of which ushers in the last Judgement. See further EA, p. 75.

24. [friends shall war against friends like enemies]. This clause, which belongs logically to a description of the signs preceding the End (cf. v. 9), has probably been added by R.

and the springs of the fountains . . . not run. Cf. Ps. Sol. xvii. 21; Ass. Mos. x. 6.

for three hours. The number 'three' in such connexions seems to be a favourite one in apocalyptic tradition.

(c) vi. 25-28 (29).

26. the men who have been taken up, who have not tasted death from their birth. Men who were removed from the earth without dying are meant. In this connexion figure especially Enoch and Elijah (cf. Wisd. iv. 10 f. [? Enoch], Jub. iv. 23, 1 En. xxxix. 3 f., lxx. 1-3, 2 En. xxxvi. 2, all of Enoch; 1 En. lxxxix. 52 of Elijah). Such men were expected to return with the Messiah in order to inaugurate a period of felicity and salvation (cf. 4 Ezra vii. 28, xiii. 52). Elijah is especially prominent in this connexion in Rabbinic literature (his rôle was, as high priest, to anoint the Messiah, to promote Israel's repentance and reunion, and to bring about the resurrection of the dead) (cf. Volz, p. 192 f.). Moses and Elijah sometimes appear together in their capacity of forerunners of the Messiah (cf. Midr. Deb. rab. x. 1; and in the Gospels the account of the Transfiguration, Mark ix. 2 f., Matt. xvii. 1-8, Luke ix. 28-36). The mysterious two witnesses of Rev. xi are also perhaps Elijah and Moses, though in the antichrist tradition they are Elijah and Enoch; cf. Bousset, Antichrist, ch. xiv. In 4 Ezra xiv. 9 ('thou shalt be taken away from men, and from

- 27 For ^p evil ^p shall be blotted out, and deceit extinguished ;
28 Faithfulness shall flourish, and corruption be vanquished ;
And truth, which ^a for so long a time ^a has been without fruit, shall be made manifest.
29 [And it came to pass while he spake to me, ^r behold, by little and little (?) the place whereon
I stood rocked to and fro ^r.]

VII. CONCLUSION OF THE VISION.

(vi. 30-34) (S).

- 31 And he said unto me: These things came I to show thee ^s this night ^s. If therefore thou wilt petition yet again, and fast seven days more, I will tell thee yet again greater things than these ^t.
32 For thy voice has surely been heard before the Most High; for the Mighty One has seen thy rectitude, and marked also thy chastity which thou hast had ever since thy youth.
33 Therefore has he sent me to show thee all these things, and to say unto thee: Be of good cheer, and fear not!
34 ^u Be not over-solicitous ^u in the case of former times to indulge idle thoughts, ^v lest solicitude overtake thee ^v in the last times.

THE THIRD VISION.

(vi. 35-ix. 25.)

I. INTRODUCTION.

(vi. 35-37) (S).

- 35 And it came to pass after this that I wept again, and fasted seven days in like manner, that temporibus): § for many years (so Ethiop. [some MSS.]; cf. *Ar.*¹ Arm.) ^{r-r} reading ecce paulatim movebatur locus super quem stabam super eum = § Ethiop. (cf. Ar. Arm.); Lat. MSS. corrupt ^{s-s} so §: ¶ et ventura nocte (see further EA, p. 80) ^t ¶ + per diem: other VSS. (with possible exception of *Ar.*¹) > ^{u-u} ¶ et noli festinare ^{v-v} ¶ ut non properes henceforth thou shalt remain with my Son'), Ezra is assigned a place among the immortal companions, as also is the case with Baruch (cf. 2 Bar. lxxvi. 2). Jeremiah also appears in this rôle in 2 Macc. ii. 1 f., xv. 13; cf. Matt. xvi. 14, and see further EA, p. 78.

Then shall the heart . . . be changed, viz. by the preaching of the witnesses. This function was particularly associated with Elijah; cf. Mal. iv. 6 (= iii. 24 Hebr.).

29. And it came to pass, &c. On this verse see EA, p. 79.

vi. 30-34 (S). Here the speaker is again the archangel Uriel, and vi. 30 forms the immediate continuation of vi. 10. The usual direction to fast seven days is given, together with a promise of yet greater disclosures. The seer is assured that his prayer for fuller revelation has been heard especially because of his 'righteous dealing' and 'chastity' practised since youth.

31. greater things than these. Lat. adds here per diem. This is not represented in the Oriental Versions with the possible exception of the Arab.¹ Hilg. emends to pridem and takes with the following verse (pridem iam auditu audita est vox tua; cf. with this Arab.¹ nam nunc precatio tua audita est, &c.). In any case per diem probably represents something which belongs to the opening words of v. 32.

32. thy chastity. Lat. puclitiam = τὴν σεμνότητα. Heb. צניעותך (post-Biblical). Notice this ascetic touch. Chastity, like fasting (cf. 1 Macc. iii. 47, 2 Macc. xiii. 12), is here apparently regarded as intensifying the power of prayer: like fasting also a state of chastity was regarded in certain circles (especially Essene) as a necessary preliminary for the reception of higher revelation.

34. Be not over-solicitous, &c. The general sense is: 'Do not by your over-curious questioning and speculation trifle with your chances of eternal happiness at the last.'

vi. 35-ix. 25. THE THIRD VISION. The long vision that follows forms the climax of the three visions with which the Apocalypse opens, and is preceded by a seven days' fast (in preparation for the revelation) which completes a cycle of three weeks' fasting. The general sequence of the thought will appear from the headings of the following divisions, into which the vision naturally falls. For a more detailed account of the argument reference must be made to the introductions to the several sections that follow:—

- i. Introduction (vi. 35-37).
- ii. The problem propounded in its final form: If the world was created for Israel's sake, why is Israel deprived of its inheritance? (vi. 38-59) (S).
- iii. The debate renewed: The corruption of the present world makes the path to the future world of felicity narrow and difficult (vii. 1-25) (S).
- iv. The temporary Messianic Kingdom and the End of the world (vii. 26-44) (R).
- v. The debate continued (from vii. 25): Israel's election and the problem of righteousness (vii. 45-ix. 22) (with the exception of viii. 63-ix. 12, which belongs to R, all this section is to be assigned to S).
- vi. Conclusion of the vision (ix. 23-25) (S).

S 36 I might fulfil the three weeks that had been commanded me. And in the eighth night my heart 37 was troubled within me again, and I began to address the Most High. For my spirit was greatly inflamed, and my soul was in distress.

II. THE PROBLEM PROPOUNDED IN ITS FINAL FORM: IF THE WORLD WAS CREATED FOR ISRAEL'S SAKE WHY IS ISRAEL DEPRIVED OF ITS INHERITANCE?

(vi. 38-59) (S).

38 And I said: O Lord, of a truth thou didst speak at the beginning of the creation upon the first 39 day, saying: Let heaven and earth be made! and thy word perfected the work. Then was the spirit hovering; darkness and ^wsilence^w were on every side; the sound of man's voice was not yet 40 before thee. Then thou didst command ^xa ray of light^x to be brought forth out of thy treasuries, that then thy works might become visible.

41 Upon the second day again thou didst create the spirit of the firmament, and didst command it ^{xx}to make a division between (the waters and) the waters^{xx} that the one part might go up, the other remain beneath.

42 On the third day thou didst command the waters to be gathered together in the seventh part of the earth; six parts thou didst dry up and preserve, ^yin order that (issuing) from them there might serve before thee those who both plough and sow^y.

43 But as soon as thy word went forth the work was done.

^{w-w} so \mathfrak{L} : \mathfrak{S} = silentium soni ^{x-x} \mathfrak{L} (best reading) lumen aliquod luminis: v. l. lumen luminosum:
 \mathfrak{S} radiance of light ^{xx-xx} so \mathfrak{S} : \mathfrak{L} = ut divideret et divisionem faceret inter aquas ^{y-y} so partly \mathfrak{S} : see further EA, p. 86 ^{z-z} following \mathfrak{S} : \mathfrak{L} et concupiscentia gustus multiformis ^{a-a} so \mathfrak{S}

vi. 35-37.

35. the three weeks that had been commanded me. So far only two fasts of seven days have been mentioned, viz. one before the second vision and another here before the third. The author evidently is thinking of another before Vision I, which in the present form of the text is not mentioned, but doubtless was there originally. The three successive weeks of fasting culminate in the most important and the longest of the three visions. Cf. Dan. x. 2, which has served as a model for this passage: 'In those days I, Daniel, was mourning three weeks' (then follows a description of the fasting). This long fast preceded the vision which was highest in the scale of importance (Dan. x. 4 f.).

vi. 38-59. Salathiel first enumerates the works of Creation in their order, and then proceeds to ask how it is that the chosen race, for whose sake the world has been created, are dispossessed of their inheritance. The problem, which has already formed the theme of the first and second visions, is here propounded in its final form. In the first vision the question assumed the form: How will the Divine Name be vindicated when the only people that bears it (viz. Israel) is prostrate before the heathen? In the second vision the seer asks: Why, if the people that has been chosen above all others must be punished, has it been handed over to be oppressed and down-trodden by those who scorn the divine covenants? Why did not God Himself undertake the task of disciplining His elect? Here, in the third vision, the question is: If the present world is in such evil case (cf. iv. 26 f.) why is it not subjected to Israel, for whose sake the world has been created? The discussion of the question is taken up at the point reached in the previous vision (vi. 8-10). Why is this world Esau's, and only the future world Israel's, if it is indeed the case that this world was created for Israel's sake? In the account of Creation which is here given the original writer betrays his acquaintance with the haggadic exegesis of the Rabbis. See further EA, p. 83. For the various works of Creation that follow on different days cf. Gen. i, Jub. ii, &c.

38. thy word perfected the work. Cf. 2 Bar. xiv. 17; also Ps. xxxiii. 6, 2 Pet. iii. 5, Heb. xi. 3.

40. that . . . thy works might become visible. According to Rabbinic tradition (cf. T. B. Hag. 12 a), though the luminaries did not shine till the fourth day (cf. v. 45 of this chapter) light was created on the first day: 'the light which the Holy One, blessed be he, created on the first day, Adam observed, and saw by its means from one end of the world to the other.' This light was afterwards withdrawn and reserved by God for the righteous in the world to come (ibid.). The heavenly light from which the light that shone on the first day emanated was older than Creation, and belonged to God's essence. The luminaries receive their light from the spark of this heavenly light, which is immeasurably more intense than the light visible on earth. This is the light which the righteous shall enjoy in the future world (cf. Hag. ibid.; Isa. lx. 19; Rev. xxi. 23). In 2 En. xxv. 1-3 there is a mystical account of the emergence of the heavenly light above God's throne.

41. Upon the second day again thou didst create the spirit of the firmament. This passage is cited by Ambrose (De Spiritu Sancto, ii. 7): 'Esdras nos docuit dicens in tertio (vulgo quarto) libro: Et in die secundo iterum creasti spiritum coelorum.' As Gunkel remarks, 'spirit' here = 'angel' (as often in the Book of Enoch). This is apparently a midrashic amplification of the Biblical text in Gen. i. 6. The divine command, 'Let there be a firmament,' must, it was assumed, have been addressed to an animated being, here = 'the spirit of the firmament' (cf. the pagan 'God of heaven' = Anu, Baal shamayim, &c.).

42. seventh part of the earth; six parts. This is clearly the reflex of old tradition: see the note ad loc. in EA, p. 86.

in order that . . . there might serve before thee those who both plough and sow. The sentiment that the Creator produced the land with the essential purpose of seeing its cultivation associated with the sanctions of religion is a natural one from the agricultural point of view, and is often implied or expressed in Jewish literature. See further EA, p. 86. Gunkel discovers a reference to the creation of Paradise here: see op. cit. ibid.

44 For immediately there came forth
Fruits in endless abundance,
 ^z in pleasure of taste exquisitely varied ^z,
Flowers of inimitable colour
 ^a (trees infinitely varied in form) ^a, and odours of scent ^b indefinable ^b.

This was done the third day.

45 But on the fourth day thou didst command that there should come into being the brightness of 46 the sun, the light of the moon and the order of the stars; and didst command them that they should 47 do service unto man, ^e who was about to be formed ^e. Upon the fifth day thou didst bid the seventh part, where the water was gathered together, to bring forth living creatures, birds, and fishes; and 48 so it came to pass. The dumb and lifeless water produced living creatures that for this the nations 49 might declare thy wondrous works ^d. Then didst thou preserve ^e two living creatures ^e; the name of 50 the one thou didst call ^f Behemoth ^f and the name of the other thou didst call Leviathan. And thou didst separate the one from the other; for the seventh part ^g, where the water was gathered 51 together, was unable to hold them (both). And thou didst give Behemoth one of the parts which 52 had been dried up on the third day to dwell in, (that namely) where are a thousand hills: but unto Leviathan thou gavest the seventh part, namely the moist: and thou hast reserved them to be devoured by whom thou wilt and when.

53 But upon the sixth day thou didst command the earth that it should bring forth before thee cattle 54 beasts, and creeping things; and over these Adam, whom thou didst ordain lord over all the works, that ^h thou didst create before him ^h: of him we are all sprung, whom thou hast chosen (to be)
(thy) people.

55 All this have I spoken before thee, O Lord, because thou hast said that for our sakes thou hast 56 created ⁱ this world ⁱ. But as for the other nations, which are descended from Adam, thou hast said that they are nothing, and that they are like unto spittle; and thou hast likened the abundance of 57 them to a drop on a bucket. And now, O Lord, behold these nations which are reputed as nothing 58 ^j lord it over us ^j and ^k crush ^k us. But we, thy people whom thou hast called thy first-born, thy 59 only-begotten, ^l thy beloved [most dear] ^l, are given up into their hands. If the world has indeed been created for our sakes ^m why do we not enter into possession of our world ^m? How long shall this endure?

(cf. *Ethiop. Ar.*¹): \mathbb{L} Arm. > ^{b-b} \mathbb{L} investigabiles ^{e-e} \mathbb{L} futuro plasmato ^d \mathbb{L} + quod ei iubebatur: but all other VSS. > ^{e-o} reading duo animalia (= \mathbb{S} , &c.): Lat. MSS. duo animas (S A C M) ^{f-f} reading Behemoth (so \mathbb{S} Ethiop.): Enoch (S A) ^g \mathbb{S} + the moist ^{h-h} so \mathbb{S} Ethiop.: \mathbb{L} fecisti ⁱ⁻ⁱ so \mathbb{S} :
 \mathbb{L} primogenitum saeculum ^{j-j} reading dominantur nostri (S dominari: A quaerunt dominari) ^{k-k} so Oriental VSS.: \mathbb{L} devorant ^{l-l} \mathbb{L} aemulatorem carissimum (? a double rendering of $\tau\omicron\nu\ \alpha\gamma\alpha\pi\eta\tau\omicron\nu\ \sigma\omicron\nu$): see further EA, p. 96 ^{m-m} reading quare non haereditatem possidemus nostrum saeculum

46. . . . do service unto man. The apocalyptic writer here especially emphasizes the thought that the stars are man's servants, because by all the rest of the world they were regarded as gods.

49. two living creatures, i.e. the two primaeval monsters, Behemoth and Leviathan. For the myth see EA, pp. 90-92, and cf. 1 En. lxix. 7 f., and notes.

51. where are a thousand hills. The haggadic interpretation of Ps. l. 10 made Behemoth (there rendered 'cattle' in PBV) identical with the primaeval monster of our text—Behemoth being pictured as lying 'upon a thousand hills' and feeding upon them.

52. to be devoured by whom thou wilt and when. By whom they are to be devoured is only vaguely indicated in our text. In the parallel passage in 2 Bar. xxix. 4 it is explicitly stated that the monsters will provide food for all who survive into the Messianic time (the Messianic banquet). This is, doubtless, the original form of the haggada, which has been purposely modified here by S because the Messianic hope was to him no longer clear.

55. for our sakes thou hast created this world. For the doctrine that the world was created for the sake of Israel cf. vii. 11, Ass. Mos. i. 12, 2 Bar. xv. 7, xxi. 24, xiv. 18 (and notes); and see further EA, p. 94.

56. the other nations . . . are nothing. Cf. Isa. xl. 17.

like unto spittle. Cf. Isa. xl. 15 (LXX), $\omega\varsigma\ \sigma\acute{\iota}\epsilon\lambda\omicron\varsigma\ \lambda\omicron\gamma\iota\sigma\theta\acute{\eta}\sigma\omicron\nu\tau\alpha\iota$. The Hebrew text has $\mathfrak{D}\mathfrak{L}$, 'small dust', which LXX misread $\mathfrak{D}\mathfrak{L}$, sputum. Apparently the Greek translator here made a similar mistake (perhaps under the influence of the LXX). The Syriac has 'thou hast likened' here for 'they are like'.

58. thy first-born, thy only-begotten. The only direct parallel where the epithet 'only-begotten' is applied to Israel appears to be Ps. Sol. xviii. 4 (cf. xiii. 8); but, as Volkmar points out, the application of $\mu\omicron\nu\omicron\gamma\epsilon\nu\acute{\eta}\varsigma$ to God's Son in Christian writings (cf. John i. 18; Justin Martyr, Dial. c. Trypho. c, cv) confirms the inference that Jewish exegesis had already deduced this epithet as applicable to the people of Israel. See further EA, p. 96. For the general idea of v. 57-58, cf. 2 Bar. v. 1, 4 Ezra iv. 23.

III. THE DEBATE RENEWED: THE CORRUPTION OF THE PRESENT WORLD MAKES THE PATH TO THE FUTURE WORLD OF FELICITY NARROW AND DIFFICULT

(vii. 1-25) (S).

(a) vv. 1-16.

S 7¹ And when I had finished speaking these words, there was sent unto me the angel who had been 2 sent unto me ^a on the former nights ⁿ. And he said unto me: Up, Ezra, and hear the words that 3 I have come to speak unto thee. And I said: Speak on, my lord. And he said unto me: There
 4 is a sea lying in a wide expanse so that it is ^o broad ^o and vast; but the entrance thereto ^p lies ^p 5 in a narrow space so as to be like a river. He, then, that really desireth to go upon the sea to behold it or to ^a navigate it ^a, if he pass not through the narrow part, how shall he be able to come into 6 the broad? Again, ^r another (illustration) ^r. (There is a builded city which lies on level ground, 7 and it is full of all good things; but its entrance is narrow and lies ^s on a steep ^s, having fire on the 8 right hand and deep water on the left; and there is one only path lying between them both, that is between the fire and the water, (and so small) is this path, that it can contain only one man's 9 footstep at once. If, now, this city be given to a man for an inheritance, unless the heir pass 10 through the danger set before him, how shall he receive his inheritance? And I said: It is so, lord!
 11 Then said he unto me: Even so, also, is Israel's portion; for it was for their sakes I made the world; but when Adam transgressed my statutes, ^t then that which had been made was judged ^t, 12 and then ^u the ways ^u of this world became narrow and sorrowful and painful ^v [few and evil], ^v

^{a-u} \mathfrak{L} primis noctibus = \mathfrak{S} : Ethiop. before on the night that was past: Ar.¹ > ^{o-o} reading latum for altum
^{p-p} so \mathfrak{S} (cf. Ethiop.) \mathfrak{L} erit . . . positus (= $\epsilon\sigma\tau\alpha\iota$ [for $\epsilon\sigma\tau\iota$] . . . $\kappa\epsilon\iota\mu\epsilon\upsilon\eta$) ^{q-q} \mathfrak{L} dominari eius = \mathfrak{S} : (Ethiop. to attain it): prob., as Gunkel suggests, the original Hebr. לרדת = to go down on, i.e. to navigate, was misread לרדת
^{r-r} \mathfrak{L} aliud (cf. Hebr. phrase אָהַר דְּבָרָא) ^{s-s} \mathfrak{L} in praecipiti: \mathfrak{S} in the height ^{t-t} \mathfrak{L} iudicatum est quod factum
 est ^{u-u} so Ethiop. (also in v. 13) = $\alpha\iota$ \omicron δοι: \mathfrak{L} introitus (so \mathfrak{S}) = $\alpha\iota$ $\epsilon\iota\sigma\omicron$ δοι ^{v-v} prob. a gloss (see EA, p. 102)

vii. 1-25. The archangel Uriel now intervenes for the third time, and in this and the following sections of the third vision, which belong to S, sets forth the definitive solution of the problem, the answer to which had only been given in a partial and incomplete form in the earlier part of the Apocalypse (cf. iv. 1-21, iv. 26 f., v. 31 f.).

Uriel begins by comparing the present world to the narrow entrance which leads to a wide and open sea. Only through the narrow is it possible to come into the broad. Or, again, to a narrow and dangerous road, flanked by fire on one side and deep water on the other, which is the only means of entrance to a splendid city 'full of good things' and set in a spacious plain.

The present world is the narrow and difficult way along which the righteous must pass in order to gain the spacious freedom of the future world of happiness (cf. v. 14). The present world was originally created for Israel, but through Adam's transgression has become the vale of misery and suffering for the righteous which they now endure. It will be seen that the following results are implicit in this answer: (1) Israel has no part or lot in the present world; its inheritance of light and felicity will only be attained after the thornful path of the present world has been traversed; (2) the heathen enjoy and possess the present fleeting and corruptible world (so far as they actually do so) in accordance with God's will; they at the same time are being used by God as instruments for the discipline of the chosen people (cf. v. 30); this will continue till the present world comes to its predestined end, and meanwhile Israel has necessarily to endure the present evil with its consequences of mortality and death; (3) the future world is for Israel alone. The promises made to God's people can only be fulfilled by the extinction of the present evil, i.e. by the destruction of the present world. When this has been accomplished the future world will ipso facto have come into view.

In v. 17 f. a new question is propounded by the apocalypticist. Are 'these things' (i.e. the felicity of the future world) destined for Israel as such, or only for the righteous members of the nation? Salathiel's question can only refer to Israel. And since, even in the case of Israel, the cor malignum militated against any personal claim to justifying righteousness, the answer to the question should be that Israel, the people which owes its choice by God purely to an act of divine grace, and not to any merit of its own, is destined to participate in the future blessings. This, in fact, seems to be the significance of the answer given in v. 19 f. Here the angel, it would appear, replies to Salathiel's question only indirectly. He ignores the distinction between righteous and transgressors within Israel—all Israel, judged by the strict requirements of the divine Law, are transgressors—and proceeds to emphasize the heinous sin of the heathen world in openly despising and scorning the divine Law (v. 20 f.). Israel, however imperfect in obedience and performance, had at least recognized the obligation of accepting the divine Law, and acknowledging the supremacy of the Divine giver of the Law; it had not been guilty of open blasphemy.

There is a well-defined break at v. 16, where the author, having demonstrated the reality and significance of the future world, turns to consider the theme: Who will be found worthy of inheriting it? To mark this division the section is divided into (a) vv. 1-16 and (b) vv. 17-25.

5. to navigate it, lit. 'to go down upon it' (see crit. note); for the phrase cf. Ps. cvii. 23.

7. having fire, &c. The simile of the city with one entrance occurs in the Shepherd of Hermas, Simil. ix. 12. 5; cf. also, for the figure of the difficult way, Matt. vii. 13, 14.

10. Even so . . . is Israel's portion. It is clear from this verse that Israel's portion is identified with the future world.

11. then that which had been made was judged. The thought of the apocalypticist is that the world, after Adam's sin, was no longer the good world as it had been originally created by the hand of God.

12. the ways (so also v. 13). So the Ethiop. (rightly). The Latin and Syriac have 'entrances'; but this confuses the representation. It is not so much the entrances of this world that are narrow and difficult, as this world itself considered as the way that has to be traversed in order to enter the next world.

IV EZRA 7. 13-25

13 and full of perils coupled with great toils. But the ways ^w of the future world ^w are broad and safe, 14 and yield the fruit of immortality. If, then, the living shall not have surely entered into these 15 narrow and vain things, they will not be able to receive what has been reserved for them. But now Why disquietest thou thyself that thou art corruptible?
 Why art thou moved because thou art mortal?
 16 Why hast thou not considered what is to come, rather than what is now present?

(b) vv. 17-25.

17 Then answered I and said: O Lord my Lord, lo, thou hast ordained in thy Law that the righteous 18 shall inherit these things, but that the ungodly shall perish. The righteous, therefore, can endure the narrow things because they hope for the wide; those, however, who have done wickedly endure 19 the narrow things, but yet ^x shall not see ^x the wide. And he said unto me:
^y Thou art not ^y a judge above God
 Nor wise above the Most High.
 20 Yea, rather, ^z let the many that now are perish ^z than that the law of God which is set before them 21 be despised! For God did surely command them that came (into the world), when they came, what 22 they should do to live, and what they should observe to avoid punishment. Nevertheless they were disobedient, and spake against him;
 They devised for themselves vain thoughts,
 they proposed to themselves ^a wicked treacheries ^a; 23 They even affirmed the Most High exists not,
 and ^b ignored ^b his ways!
 24 His law they did despise, and his covenants they denied;
 In his statutes they have put no faith,
^c and have set at naught his commandments ^c:
 25 Therefore, O Ezra,
 For the empty, empty things,
 And for the full, full things!

^{w-w} so § (cf. Ethiop.): ℥ maioris saeculi ^{x-x} reading non videbunt (M) = § Ethiop.: non viderunt (S A C) ^{y-y} reading non es (C*) = Oriental VSS.: non est (A C M) ^{z-z} reading pereant . . . neglegatur (so S C): § shall perish ^{a-a} ℥ circumventiones delictorum ^{b-b} ℥ non cognoverunt ^{c-c} so *Ar.*¹: § have set at naught his works = Ethiop.: ℥ et opera eius non perfecerunt

15. that thou art corruptible? . . . because thou art mortal? The seer is bidden not to brood over death and mortality, because, though inevitable, they but mark a necessary stage in the transition to something higher and better. For different views regarding the connexion between death and sin see 2 Bar. xxiii. 4, notes.

16. what is to come, rather than what is now present. With these words, as Gunkel points out, the author passes from the consideration of the present age and its difficulties to a new problem. It has been made clear that a new age is destined to come, when a great transformation will be effected. Then present sorrow will be turned to joy, all riddles be solved, all sin wiped out. But the question arises: Who shall be found worthy to participate in the new age? With the discussion of this question, and the problems that arise in connexion with it, the book is now mainly concerned.

17. in thy law. Cf. Deut. viii. 1.

20. Yea, rather, let the many that now are perish, &c. The angelic reply seems to contemplate, in its reference to sinners, the heathen world, or world outside the chosen people, exclusively (see introduction to the section above). The idea that the Tôrah was not originally designed to be the exclusive possession of Israel, but was offered by God to the Gentiles and deliberately refused by them, is insisted upon in Rabbinic literature (cf. Schechter, Aspects, p. 131 f., and see EA, p. 105 f.).

23. They even affirmed the Most High exists not. Cf. 4 Ezra viii. 59; Ps. xiv. 1, liii. 2.

24. His law they did despise . . . set at naught his commandments. The heathen in these verses are charged with open and deliberate defiance of the divine requirements. This is expressed in unbelief and contempt of fundamental moral laws, which are openly spurned. It is a favourite theme in Rabbinical literature that Israel's election was primarily due to faith in God and God's Law; while the heathen spurned the Tôrah as unfit. (Cf. Schechter, Aspects, p. 59 f.)

25. For the empty, empty things, &c. Those who are destitute of the elements of goodness shall lack the good things of eternity, &c.; cf. Matt. xiii. 12.

IV. THE TEMPORARY MESSIANIC KINGDOM AND THE END OF THE WORLD.

(vii. 26-44) (R) (E).

(a) vii. 26-30. The sudden revelation of the Messiah: his 400 years' reign and death: the End of the Age (R).

R 26 For behold the days come, and it shall be when the signs which I have foretold unto thee shall come to pass,

[^d Then shall the city that now is invisible appear^d, and the land ^e which is now concealed ^e be seen;]

27, 28 And whosoever is delivered from the predicted evils, the same shall see my wonders. For ^f my Son the Messiah ^f shall be revealed, together with those who are with him, and ^g shall rejoice ^g the survivors ^h four hundred years^h. And it shall be, after these years, that ⁱ my Son ⁱ the Messiah 30 shall die, and all ^j in whom there is human breath^j. Then shall the world be turned into the primaeval silence seven days, like as at the first beginnings; so that no man is left.

(b) vii. 31-44. The General Resurrection and Final Judgement; the Day of Judgement described (R).

31 And it shall be after seven days that the Age which is not yet awake shall be roused, and ^k that which is corruptible ^k shall perish.

^{d-d} so Arm.: Ar.¹ and the city which was not shall appear: Ethioph. (misplacing negative) and the city which now appears shall be hidden: \mathfrak{L} (misreading η νου μη φαινομενη πολις as η νυμφη φαινομενη πολις) et apparebit sponsa [et] apparens (so C M; S apparens) civitas = \mathfrak{S} ^{e-o} \mathfrak{L} quae nunc subducitur ^{f-f} so \mathfrak{S} Ar.¹: Ethioph. my Messiah: Ar.² the Messiah; Arm. the Messiah of God; \mathfrak{L} filius meus Iesus ^{g-g} reading iocundabit (S) = Oriental VSS.; iocundabuntur (A C M N) ^{h-b} so \mathfrak{L} Ar.¹; \mathfrak{S} thirty; Ar.² one thousand; Ethioph. Arm. > ⁱ⁻ⁱ so \mathfrak{L} \mathfrak{S} ; Ethioph. my servant ^{j-j} reading qui spiramentum habent hominis (S homines) ^{k-k} \mathfrak{L} corruptum (sc. saeculum) ^{l-l} so \mathfrak{S} : \mathfrak{L} and other VSS. > ^{m-m} so \mathfrak{S} (cf. Ethioph.): \mathfrak{L} >

vii. 26-44. The eschatological description which was broken off at vi. 28 is here resumed. The present section, however, seems to be partly the work of R, who has utilized older material. For a full discussion of the reasons for this view reference must be made to EA, pp. 108-112. The section falls into two subdivisions, (a) vii. 26-30 and (b) vii. 31-44.

(a) vii. 26-30. This subsection, as we have seen, may be assigned to R, who, however, depends upon an independent Rabbinical tradition, which he here summarizes. But in v. 26 b R has introduced a feature which is here incongruous—the appearance of the ‘heavenly’ Jerusalem and Paradise. These belong to the future age; whereas the temporary Messianic kingdom belongs to the present age and terminates with it. A similar confusion—probably also due to an interpolation by R—occurs in ch. xiii, where v. 36 does not harmonize with the context. The confusion might easily arise at a time when the earthly Jerusalem lay in ruins and when it would be natural to seek consolation in directing the thoughts to the more glorious city in heaven. The purification of the ‘earthly’ city would be the natural preparation for a ‘temporary’ Messianic age; but as the city had been destroyed this had been made impossible. Hence the necessity of introducing the heavenly Jerusalem—for a Messianic age without Jerusalem as a centre would have been inconceivable. In face of conflicting views as to whether Jerusalem was to be restored or no, R takes a mediating view. The End is not yet—a temporary Messianic age is to dawn; but the earthly city is not to be restored; instead, the heavenly city is to appear. Primaeval chaos and the End will only follow after this interlude.

The redactor has thus woven together two sets of mutually irreconcilable ideas. This is equally true of his representation of the Messiah himself. The Messiah is to be ‘revealed’—suddenly, as it seems—‘together with those who are with him’. As the latter must be the immortal companions ‘who have never tasted death’ it is clear that a heavenly pre-existence for the Messiah himself is implied, as in fact appears in other passages (cf. 4 Ezra xii. 32, xiv. 9; 2 Bar. xxx, &c.). At the close of his reign, therefore, the Messiah ought to return in glory to heaven, as he is made to do in 2 Bar. xxx. But according to R he and his immortal companions share the common fate with the righteous, and die with all men! See further EA, pp. 112-13.

26. the city that now is invisible, i. e. the heavenly Jerusalem (for text see crit. note).

the land which is now concealed, i. e. the heavenly Paradise. For the juxtaposition cf. viii. 52.

28. those who are with him, i. e. the Messiah's immortal companions; cf. vi. 28 note.

the survivors. Only the surviving righteous share in the joys of the Messianic reign; cf. Ps. Sol. xvii. 50.

four hundred years. The versions are not consistent as to this number (see crit. note). In Rabbinic tradition various numbers were deduced for the length of the temporary Messianic kingdom (see the passages cited in EA, p. 115 f.); the number 400 is associated in one passage with R. Dosa, but elsewhere with the name of R. Eliezer b. Hyrkanos. The number was deduced by combining Gen. xv. 13 and Ps. xc. 15. It should be noted that the conception of a temporary Messianic kingdom which belongs to the present age, and terminates with it, is also met with in 2 Baruch (cf. xl. 3); cf. also Rev. xx. 3. It is a compromise between the older prophetic view which looked for a final consummation of felicity on the present earth, and the later transcendental view which transferred it to a future age, after the destruction of the present order.

30. Then shall the world be turned into the primaeval silence seven days. Urzeit = Endzeit (Gunkel).

(b) vii. 31-44. Here again R is summarizing different traditions. These are not always easy to reconcile; thus, e. g., it is difficult to harmonize the ‘week’ of years (seven years) in v. 43 with the seven ‘days’ of primaeval silence mentioned in v. 30. An important point to note is that the judgement, which is final and universal, and which, therefore, is preceded by a ‘general’ resurrection, is depicted as forensic in character. This is implied by the

- 32 And the earth shall restore those that sleep in her,
and the dust those that are at rest therein,
[and the chambers shall restore those that were committed unto them].
- 33 And the Most High shall be revealed upon the throne of judgement:
¹(and then cometh the End)¹
and compassion shall pass away, ^m(and pity be far off,)^m and longsuffering ⁿ withdrawn ⁿ;
- 34 But ^o judgement ^o alone shall remain,
truth shall stand,
and faithfulness triumph.
- 35 And ^p recompense ^p shall follow, and the reward be made manifest;
^q Deeds of righteousness ^q shall awake, and deeds of iniquity shall not sleep.
- 36 And then shall ^r the pit of torment ^r appear,
^s and over against it the place of refreshment ^s;
The furnace of Gehenna shall be made manifest, and over against it the Paradise of delight.
- 37 And then shall the Most High say to the nations that have been raised [from the dead]:
Look now and consider whom ye have denied, whom ye have not served, whose commandments ye have despised.
- 38 ^t Look, now, before [you] ^t: here delight and refreshment,
there fire and torments!
Thus ^u shall he speak ^u unto them in the Day of Judgement,
- 39 ^v For thus shall the Day of Judgement be ^v:
^w [A day] whereon is neither sun ^w, nor moon, nor stars;
40 neither clouds, ^x nor thunder, nor lightning ^x;
neither wind, nor rain-storm, nor ^y cloud-rack ^y;
neither darkness, nor evening, nor morning;

ⁿ⁻ⁿ ℒ congregabitur ^{o-o} so ℒ Ethiop.: ℒ my judgement ^{p-p} ℒ opus (= ℒ; cf. Ethiop.) = Heb. פְעֻלָה ^{q-q} ℒ iustitiae ^{r-r} reading lacus tormenti = ℒ (emended) Ethiop. (cf. Ar.) ^{s-s} reading et contra illum erit locus requitionis (for requisitionis) = ℒ Ar. ^{t-t} = βλέπετε ουν κατεναντιον (so Oriental VSS. + you): ℒ videte contra et in contra (dittography) ^{u-u} so Oriental VSS.: ℒ shalt thou speak ^{v-v} reading dies enim iudicii talis qui [neque solem habet]; cf. ℒ (for that day of Judgement is thus; cf. Ethiop.): ℒ haec talis quae (this is such a day as) ^{w-w} cf. ℒ there is no sun in it: ℒ quae neque solem habet (? pointing to a text η ουκ ηλιος εσται εν αυτη = אשר לא יהיה שמש בו) ^{x-x} so ℒ (cf. Ar.): but ℒ Ethiop. invert the order ^{y-y} ℒ aerem = αηρ = קרש representation in v. 33, according to which the Most High is revealed 'upon (i. e. seated upon) the throne of judgement'; cf. Dan. vii. 9, 1 En. xc. 20, xxv. 3; and in the similitudes (of the Elect One), 1 En. xlv. 3, lv. 4, lxi. 8, lxix. 27. In all these passages the Divine Judge is spoken of as seated on the judgement throne (sedes iudicii, 4 Ezra vii. 33), i. e. to judge in a forensic sense. When, on the other hand, the Heavenly One is said to 'arise from his royal throne' (Ass. Mos. x. 3), this is the formula for the execution of retributive judgement (cf. Volz, p. 261). According to T. B. Pesah. 54 a and Ned. 39 b, this throne was one of the seven things created before the world.

Both in this section and the preceding, clauses which R seems to have derived directly from S have been enclosed in square brackets. The long fragment which is missing from most of the Latin codices, and which was recovered by Bensly, begins after v. 35; it finds its place between vv. 35 and 36 of the ordinary Vulgate text. These additional verses are numbered consecutively in the following translation (as in R.V.), and form vv. 36-105. The remaining verses (Vulg. 36-70) now appear as 106-140.

31. that which is corruptible, i. e. the present corruptible and mortal world; with the appearance of the new order this vanishes. Cf. 1 Cor. xv. 26.

32. the earth shall restore . . . and the chambers the souls, &c., i. e. the earth shall restore the bodies of the dead, and the chambers their souls. At the resurrection the soul would return to and revive the body. This is the orthodox Rabbinic doctrine. See further EA, p. 119 f.

33. (and then cometh the End). See crit. note. Cf. 1 Cor. xv. 24.
compassion . . . (pity) . . . longsuffering, viz. of the Divine Judge (Ethiop. renders 'his compassion', &c.). The final judgement is pictured as conducted in accordance with the strict requirements of perfect equity and justice.

35. Deeds of righteousness. In Rabbinic language this term would denote definite acts of charity such as those enumerated in Matt. xxv. 35-46 (cf. James ii. 14 f.), and more particularly almsgiving. Such acts, and the performance of religious duties generally, constituted 'the treasure of good works laid up with the Most High' (cf. vii. 77).

36. the pit of torment. Cf. Rev. ix. 2.

37. the nations . . . raised [from the dead]. Cf. Matt. xxv. 31 f. For the idea cf. EA, p. 124.

R 41 ^z neither summer, nor autumn, nor winter ;
 neither heat, nor frost, nor cold ^z ;
 neither hail, nor rain, nor dew ;
 42 neither noon, nor night, nor ^a dawn ^a ;
 neither shining, nor brightness, nor light, save only the splendour of the brightness of the Most High, whereby all shall be destined to see 43, 44 what has been determined (for them). And its duration shall be as it were a week of years. Such is my Judgement and ^b its prescribed order ^b: to thee only have I showed these things.

V. THE DEBATE CONTINUED (from vii. 25): ISRAEL'S ELECTION AND THE PROBLEM OF RIGHTEOUSNESS.

(vii. 45-ix. 22.)

(I) vii. 45-74. THE FEWNESS OF THE SAVED JUSTIFIED: THIS FOLLOWED BY A LAMENT OVER MAN'S EVIL CASE (S).

(a) vii. 45-61. The fewness of the saved.

S 45 And I answered and said: O Lord, I said even then and say now: Blessed are ^c they who come (into the world) ^c and keep ^d thy commandments ^d.

^{z-z} so substantially S; L neque aestatem neque verem neque aestum neque hiemem neque gelum neque frigus
^{a-a} L ante lucem (? for an original antelucium: so Bensly) ^{b-b} L constitutio eius (= ? η συνταξις αυτου = ἡθῶν):
 S its law ^{c-c} cf. S (all they who come): L qui praesentes ^{d-d} L quae a te constituta sunt (? τα σου διατε-

41. neither summer . . . cold. The order adopted in the text is substantially that of S; the first line contains the names of three seasons, the second those of three temperatures. The verse is an expansion of Gen. viii. 22 b c. For the equivalents (Latin, Greek, Hebrew) of the terms used cf. EA, p. 126.

42. whereby all shall be destined to see, &c. The meaning is that the uncreated light of the Divine Presence will serve to reveal what is prepared for the judgement. For the representation cf. Is. lx. 19f., Rev. xxi. 23. Gunkel remarks that the verses breathe the spirit of the mystic before which all that hides the vision of God disappears.

43. a week of years. Cf. the seven days of silence in v. 30; but here each day = one year. For a week (or weeks) of years cf. Dan. ix. 24f. (the seventy weeks = seventy weeks of years).

vii. 45-ix. 22. The rest of this long vision, which, with the exception of one section (viii. 63-ix. 12), belongs to S, is mainly occupied with the problem which has already been touched upon in vii. 17f.: if, as the Law itself proclaims, piety—that is, the pious fulfilment of the duties and obligations entailed by the observance of the Law—is the necessary condition for enjoying the future blessedness, what of the godless who do not fulfil these conditions? The heathen, it is true, have not fulfilled the obligations of the divine Law, but who has? Who among mortals has not transgressed the divine precepts (vii. 46f., cf. viii. 35)? This feeling of human unworthiness, which leads the apocalypticist sometimes almost to doubt whether any can be saved at all, and, in the conviction of his own personal unworthiness, to identify himself with the transgressors, and even to give noble expression to pity for the fate of the multitudes of mankind who are doomed to final perdition, is only set at rest with the assurance that a real difference exists between Israel and the heathen world. The election of the chosen people is not for nothing. They at least are the guardians of the divine Law, and as a whole strive to observe it, whereas the other nations of the world have deliberately rejected and spurned it (cf. vii. 72 and vii. 23f.). The sin that dooms is rejection of the Law—salvation consists in accepting it. Judged by this standard Israel, on the one side, is accepted, and the heathen world, on the other, is condemned. Individual doubts as to personal unworthiness are resolved by a feeling for the solidarity of the nation. From this point of view the merits of the righteous in Israel may be pleaded on behalf of those members of the chosen race who have not kept the Law and are sinners (cf. the prayer in viii. 26f., but note the answer, viii. 37-40). The whole of this part of the book forms a vivid and profoundly moving picture of the doubts and questions that must have agitated the minds of many pious Jews at the end of the first century. These doubts are calmed, perhaps, but hardly removed by the solution. The only consolation the apocalypticist receives is to be bidden to avert his gaze from the awful results of human frailty and sin, and contemplate rather the joys reserved for the righteous. The world to come is reserved for few. The whole section may be subdivided as follows:—

(1) vii. 45-74. The fewness of the saved justified: this followed by a lament over man's evil case (S).

(2) vii. 75-101. The state of the soul after death and before the judgement (S).

(3) vii. 102-115. No intercession on the day of judgement (S).

(4) vii. 116-131. What avails the promise to man who is born to sin? Yet, though tragic, the sinner's doom is deserved (S).

(5) vii. 132-viii. 62. Doubts as to how the perdition of so many can be justified from the point of view of God's character and attributes: the divine reply (S).

(6) viii. 63-ix. 12. The signs of the End reviewed and applied to the author's own times (R).

(7) ix. 13-22. The divine reply concluded: final justification of the fewness of the saved (S).

(1) vii. 45-74. The apocalypticist resumes the debate which was broken off at vii. 25. He had raised the question (vii. 17f.) regarding the justice of the punishment meted out to the ungodly. To this subject he now returns. The righteous indeed are to be blessed, but what is to be said of those who have transgressed the divine covenant? The doom of disobedience lies not upon a few only, but upon well nigh all who have been created! True, the angel replies: the just are comparatively few, and for them the future felicity is reserved. But this is only in accordance with the

- 46 But concerning those for whom my prayer (was offered): who is there of those who have come (into the world) that has not sinned? Or who of the earth-born is there that has not transgressed thy covenant? And now I see that the coming Age shall bring delight to few, but torment unto many. For the evil heart has grown up in us which has estranged us from God, and brought us into destruction; And has made known to us the ways of death, and showed us the paths of perdition, and removed us far from life; and that not a few only, but well nigh all that have been created!
- 49 And he answered me and said: Hear me, and I will instruct thee, and a second time will admonish thee:
- 51 For this cause the Most High has made not one Age but two. And whereas thou hast said that the righteous are not many but few, while the ungodly abound—hear (the answer) to this: Suppose thou have choice stones, in number exceeding few; wilt thou set (place) with them lead and clay?
- 53 And I said: Lord, how should it be possible?
- 54 And he said unto me: Not only so, but Ask the earth, and she shall tell thee; Speak to her, and she shall declare it unto thee.
- 56 Say to her: Thou bringest forth gold and silver and brass—and also iron and lead and clay: but silver is more abundant than gold, and brass than silver, and iron than brass, lead than iron, and clay than lead. Do thou, then, consider which things are precious and to be desired: that which is abundant or that which is rare?
- 58 And I said: O Lord my Lord, that which is plentiful is of less worth, but that which is more rare is precious.
- 59 And he answered me and said: Weigh within thyself what thou hast thought! For he that has what is rare rejoices beyond him that has what is plentiful.
- 60 So also shall be my promised judgement; I will rejoice over the few that shall be saved, inasmuch as they it is that make my glory prevail now already and through them my name is now already named (with praise).
- 61 And I will not grieve over the multitude of them that perish: for they it is who now are made like vapour, ταγμα) ^{o-o} so \mathfrak{L} Ar.¹: \mathfrak{S} commandment; Ethiop. statute (? different readings in Greek, διαθηκην, διαταγην)

^{f-f} \mathfrak{L} ab his (sc commandments) = \mathfrak{S} Ethiop.: perhaps, as Violet suggests, in original Hebrew "מִן־הַאֱלֹהִים (i. e. מִן־הַאֱלֹהִים) was misunderstood ^{ff-ff} so \mathfrak{S} Ar.¹: \mathfrak{L} > ^g \mathfrak{S} + Ezra ^{h-h} so \mathfrak{L} (cf. Ar.¹ Ar.² Arm.): \mathfrak{S} > ⁱ⁻ⁱ \mathfrak{L} audi ad haec = \mathfrak{S} ^{j-j} so Ar.¹ (cf. \mathfrak{S}): \mathfrak{L} si habueris paucos valde, ad numerum compones eos tibi . . . plumbum autem et fictile habundat (prob. plumbum et fictile have fallen out in dotted space: then the last clause will be a gloss: see further EA, p. 123) ^{k-k} so \mathfrak{S} Ethiop.: \mathfrak{L} adulare ei ^{l-l} so \mathfrak{S} (cf. Ethiop. Ar.¹): \mathfrak{L} corrupt ^{m-m} so \mathfrak{S} Ar.¹ (cf. Ethiop. Ar.²): \mathfrak{L} quod difficile est ⁿ⁻ⁿ so substantially Oriental VSS.; \mathfrak{L} sic et a me repromissa creatura (confusion of κρισις with κτισις) ^{o-o} so \mathfrak{S} (cf. Ethiop. Ar.²): \mathfrak{L} qui gloriam meam nunc dominationem (l. dominationem) fecerunt rule that the most precious things are the rarest. Therefore the few that are to be saved, inasmuch as they have made the divine glory to prevail, shall be a cause for rejoicing, and the multitude of the lost is not a subject for grief (vv. 45-61). If so, the apocalypticist replies, man's lot is indeed a terrible one: it had been better for him to have been like the beasts that perish. 'For it is far better with them than with us; they look not for judgement, neither do they know of torments or of salvation promised to them after death.' We perish conscious of the doom awaiting us! The angel answers: Man brings the doom upon himself—he has deliberately transgressed the divine commandments; and, moreover, the Most High has been very longsuffering (vvi. 62-74).

The section falls into two subdivisions, (a) vii. 45-61 and (b) vii. 62-74.

52. Suppose thou have choice stones . . . wilt thou set (place) with them lead and clay. 'The comparison implies that the number of the elect (to borrow the epithet used in the Latin) cannot be increased by the addition of baser elements' (Bensly).

54. Not only so, but. The connexion is: one does not add inferior things to precious, in order to increase the number of the latter. There is a real distinction, which one recognizes between them. But further, the earth also teaches the same lesson that what is rare is precious. It would appear, as Gunkel remarks, that the author, from the emphasis he lays on the statement that what is rare is precious, is conscious that there is something novel in the idea to his readers.

55. Say to her. For the representation (asking the earth) cf. viii. 2, Job xvi. 18, &c.

56. but silver . . . lead. This, according to Ewald, is to be regarded as the answer of the earth.

61. are made like vapour. For the figure cf. Ps. cxliv. 4, James iv. 14; also 2 Bar. lxxxii. 3 f.

S ^p counted as smoke,
are comparable unto the flame ^p :
They are fired, burn hotly, are extinguished !

(b) vii. 62-74: The apocalypticist's lament over man's evil case.

- 62 And I answered and said : O thou Earth, what hast thou brought forth, if the mind is sprung 63 from the dust as every other created thing ! It had been better if the dust itself had even been unborn, that the mind might not have come into being from it.
64 But, as it is, the mind grows with us, and on this account we are tormented, because we perish and know it.
65 Let the human race ^a lament ^a, but the beasts of the field be glad !
Let all the earth-born ^a mourn ^a,
but let the cattle and flocks rejoice !
66 For it is far better with them than with us ; for they have no judgement to look for, neither do they know of any torture or of any salvation promised to them after death.
67 For what doth it profit us that ^r we shall be preserved alive ^r, but yet suffer great torment ?
68 For all the earth-born
^s are defiled with iniquities ^s, full of sins,
laden with offences.
69 And if after death we were not to come into judgement, it might, perchance, ^t have been ^t far better for us !
70 And he answered me and said : When the Most High made the world, and Adam, and all that came ^u of him ^u, he first prepared the Judgement, and the things that pertain unto the Judgement.
71 But, now, from thine own words understand : for thou hast said that the mind grows with us.
72 For this reason, therefore, shall the sojourners in the earth suffer torture, because having understanding they yet wrought iniquity, and receiving precepts they yet kept them not, and having obtained the Law ^v they set at naught ^v that which they received.
73 What, then, will they have to say in the Judgement, or how shall they answer in the last times ?
74 For how long a time hath the Most High been longsuffering with the inhabitants of the world—not for their sakes, indeed, but for the sake of the times which he has ordained !

^{p-p} so S : \mathbb{L} et flammae ac fumo adaequati sunt (= Ethiop.) ^{a-a} (a-a) so S (using two different verbs) :
 \mathbb{L} lugeat . . . lugeant ^{r-r} \mathbb{L} salvati salvabimur : S = viventes vivimus (= Hebr. נחיה נחיה : see EA, p. 138)
^{s-s} so S : \mathbb{L} commixti sunt iniquitatibus (= συμπεφυρμένοι εισιν ανομiais) ^{t-t} so Oriental VSS. (= fuisset) :
 \mathbb{L} venisset ^{u-u} so Oriental VSS. and CMV (= ex eo) : A cum eo ^{v-v} so S : \mathbb{L} fraudaverunt (A) fraudati sunt are comparable unto the flame. The flame which, as it were, consumes itself, is here a figure, apparently for evanescence.

62. if the mind is sprung from the dust. This materialistic view, though evidently familiar to S, is not shared by him ; it is contrary to his theology, according to which the soul (with the mind) is the higher immortal element which enters into the body (regarded as the lower element) at birth.

64. we perish and know it. The possession of mind and reasoning powers only intensifies human sufferings at the last, because they must be endured with full knowledge and consciousness of their terrible nature ; inevitable and unceasing.

65. the cattle and flocks. As Gunkel remarks, the statement expressed in this verse is, from the point of view of the ancients, startling and revolutionary. It represents a phase of doubt which threatened to subvert the whole outlook of the ancient world, which regarded man as lord of creation, and as raised to a pinnacle of superiority over all below him. Cf. Gen. i, Ps. viii.

70. he first prepared the Judgement, &c. It is a fundamental dogma of S that the whole course of the world's history has been predestinated by God : the End, which includes the Day of Judgement, comes when the predetermined number of the elect shall have been fulfilled (cf. iv. 35 f.). Paradise and Gehenna, the places essentially associated with the Judgement, were among the seven things created before the world, according to Rabbinic theology (cf. T. B. Pesah. 54 a, &c.) ; cf. also viii. 52, and Pirge Aboth iii. 16 (ed. Taylor).

72. because having understanding they yet wrought iniquity. Cf. 2 Bar. xv. 5, 6, and xix. 3, xlvi. 40 ; cf. also Ep. Barn. v. 4 : 'A man shall utterly perish, who, having the knowledge of the way of righteousness, forceth himself into the way of darkness.' For the idea that the Gentiles had been offered and had rejected the Law, cf. Weber, pp. 57 ff.

73. What, then, will they have to say, &c. The representation is forensic. The questions addressed by God to those who appear at the bar of judgement at the last great assize are referred to in several passages both in apocalyptic and Rabbinical literature (cf. T. B. Yoma 35 b ; and see further Volz, p. 246 f., EA, p. 140).

(2) vii. 75-101. THE STATE OF THE SOUL AFTER DEATH AND BEFORE THE JUDGEMENT (S).

- 75 And I answered and said: If I have found favour in thy sight, "O Lord", show this also to thy servant: whether after death, even now when every one of us must give back his soul, we shall be kept in rest until those times come in which thou shalt renew the creation, or shall we suffer torture * forthwith * ?
- 76 And he answered me, and said: I will show this also unto thee; but do not thou mingle thyself with them that have scorned, nor number thyself with those that suffer torment.
- 77 For thou hast a treasure of works laid up with the Most High, but it shall not be showed thee until the last times.
- 78 And concerning death the teaching is: When ^y the decisive decree ^y has gone forth from the Most High that the man should die, as ^z the soul ^z from the body departs
^a that it may return ^a to him who gave it,
- 79 to adore the glory of the Most High, first of all: if it be one of those that have scorned

(C M V): l. ? frustraverunt ^{w-w} so \mathbb{L} , &c.: \mathbb{S} O Lord my Lord ^{x-x} \mathbb{L} amodo = $\alpha\pi'$ $\alpha\pi\tau\iota$ ^{y-y} \mathbb{L} terminus sententiae (= חק המשפט) ^{z-z} \mathbb{L} inspiratione ^{a-a} so *Ethiop. Ar.*¹: \mathbb{L} ut dimittatur (cf. \mathbb{S})

(2) vii. 75-101. The following section describes the state of the soul immediately after death. It is introduced between parts of the Apocalypse which have for their theme different aspects of the last Judgement. It is, therefore, in the nature of a digression: but the subject is one that logically arises from previous allusions, and comes in at this point quite naturally.

In answer to the apocalyptist's inquiry he is told that the spirit, after leaving the body, first of all adores the glory of the Most High and then enters into a state of misery or bliss, corresponding to its ultimate destiny, according as it belongs to the ungodly or righteous. The spirits of the wicked are destined to a wandering existence in torment, in seven degrees: (a) They shall be consumed with remorse; (b) they will recognize that the past is irrevocable; (c) they shall see the reward laid up for the righteous; (d) they shall catch a glimpse of the torment reserved for them after the last Judgement; (e) 'they shall see the dwelling-places of the others guarded by angels with great quietness'; (f) they shall see the torment henceforth reserved for them; (g) in the light of the vision of God they shall be consumed with agonizing remorse, confusion, and shame (vii. 78-87).

On the other hand, the spirits of the righteous 'shall be filled with joy (a) because they have striven to overcome the cogitamentum malum; (b) because they see the perplexity and punishment of the ungodly; (c) because they see the divine witness to their righteousness; (d) because they understand the rest and quiet of their intermediate state, and the glory that awaits them in the final Judgement; (e) because they realize the painful corruption from which they have been delivered, and cherish the hope of immortality; (f) because of the incorruptible radiance and glory that await them; (g) "because they shall rejoice with confidence, and be bold without confusion, and shall be glad without fear, for they hasten to behold the face of him whom in their lifetime they served, and from whom they shall receive their reward in glory"' (vii. 88-98).¹

These descriptions, which are psychological in character, apparently portray the emotional experiences of the soul, through which it passes during the entire period of the intermediate state. In its subtle delineation of the soul-life the whole section is remarkable, and by the elevation and refinement of its conceptions affords a striking contrast to similar descriptions in other parts of the apocalyptic literature (e.g. 1 En. xxii). No such detailed description of the state of the soul occurs in the Baruch-Apocalypse.

At the end of the section (vii. 100-101) one other detail is added. The souls shall be free for seven days immediately after death that they may realize the things which have been described, after which they enter into their habitations. Apparently this only applies to the souls of the righteous, as it is explicitly stated in v. 80 that the souls of the wicked do not enter into habitations at all, but wander to and fro in torment. How the souls pass from the states here described to the final Judgement is not told. In 2 Bar. xxx this is accomplished by means of the resurrection, which is there described in detail. See further Volz, p. 135 f.; Charles, Eschatology, p. 294 f.

75. thou shalt renew the creation. For the expression cf. καὴν κτίσις (= ברירה הרשה), Gal. vi. 15, 2 Cor. vi. 17, and for the idea of the renovation of the world, Matt. xix. 28, 'in the regeneration' (ἐν τῇ παλιγγενεσίᾳ); 2 Pet. ii. 13; Rev. xxi. 1. The same phrase occurs in 2 Bar. xxxii. 6, 'when the Mighty One shall renew his creation' (cf. xlv. 12, lvii. 2). The incorruptible world which is to succeed the present order at the final Judgement is meant. Cf. v. 45.

77. a treasure of works. The idea of works being stored up in treasuries (in heaven) occurs also in 2 Bar. xiv. 12. Cf. 4 Ezra viii. 33 (contrast viii. 36). But much greater stress is laid on good works in 2 Baruch than in 4 Ezra. According to the latter very few indeed have, by their strict performance of the requirements of the Law, been able to claim any such accumulation of merit. It is faith in the Law (i.e. open acknowledgement of its divine character and obligation) which will save most of those who are destined to be saved: cf. ix. 7, 'every one that shall be saved, and shall be able to escape on account of his works or his faith', xiii. 23 and vi. 5 ('treasuries of faith'). The most esteemed way in which such treasure in heaven could be gathered, according to the accepted Jewish standard of ethics, was by the practice of benevolence (Hebr. gēmîlûth hāsādîm), especially by almsgiving (cf. in the N.T. Matt. vi. 20, Luke xii. 33, 1 Tim. vi. 17 f., and illustrate from Pe'a i. 1, where it is said that gēmîlûth hāsādîm, the promotion of peace between man and man, and the study of the Law, are 'the things whose fruits are enjoyed in this life, while their capital remains [invested] for the life to come').

it shall not be showed thee until the last times. The treasuries would not be opened till the last Judgement. Cf. 2 Bar. xxiv. 1.

78. that it may return to him who gave it. Cf. Eccles. xii. 7.

to adore the glory of the Most High, &c. This sentence, as Gunkel points out, is epexegetical to the previous line ('that it may return to him who gave it'). The citation from Eccles. xii. 7 is understood by the author in the

¹ The above excellent summary is derived from Maldwyn Hughes's Ethics of Jewish Apocryphal Lit., p. 305 f.

- and have not kept ^b the ways ^b of the Most High, ^c that have despised his law,^c and that hate those who fear God—
- 80 Such souls shall not enter into habitations, but shall wander about henceforth in torture, ever grieving and sad, in seven ways.
- 81, 82 The first way (is) that ^d they have scorned ^d the Law of the Most High; the second way, that they 83 are now unable ^e to make a good repentance for life ^e; the third way (is): they shall see the 84 reward laid up for those who have believed ^f the covenants of the Most High ^f; the fourth way, 85 that they shall regard the torture laid up for themselves in the last days ^g; the fifth way, that they 86 shall see how the habitations ^h of the other souls ^h are guarded by angels in profound quietness; the 87 sixth way, that they shall see ⁱ how from now henceforth they must pass over into torture ⁱ. The seventh way, which exceeds all the aforesaid ways, (is) :
 that they shall pine away for shame,
 and be consumed ^j with confusion ^j,
 and withered ^k with fear ^k, in that they see the glory of the Most High, before whom they have sinned in life, and before whom they are destined to be judged in the last times.
- 88 Of those, however, who have kept the ways of the Most High this is ^l the order ^l, when they shall be separated from this vessel of mortality.
- 89 ^m What time they dwelt therein ^m they painfully served the Most High, and were in jeopardy every hour, that they might observe the Law of the lawgiver perfectly.
- 90, 91 Wherefore the matter as it relates to them is as follows: First of all they shall see with great joy 92 the glory of him who receives them; and they shall rest ⁿ in seven orders ⁿ. The first order (is): that they have striven much and painfully to overcome ^o the innate evil thought ^o, that it might not 93 lead them astray ^p from life ^p unto death. The second order (is): that they see ^q the round ^q in 94 which the souls of the ungodly wander, and ^r the punishment that awaits them ^r. The third order (is): they see the witness which their Fashioner attests concerning them, that while they were alive 95 ^s they faithfully observed the Law which was given to them ^s. The fourth order (is): they understand the rest which they now, being gathered in their chambers, enjoy in profound quietness

^{b-b} so § *Ethiop. Ar.*¹: ℒ viam ^{c-c} so ℒ Ethiop.: § > ^{d-d} so ℒ (= ηθετησαν): § they have resisted (= ηπειθησαν):
 see EA, p. 145 ^{e-e} ℒ reversionem bonam facere ut vivant: § = επιστρεφειν και αγαθοποιειν (Bensly adopts) ^{f-f} so ℒ (Ethiop. Ar.): § > ^g here § adds a verse which is not original: see EA, p. 146 ^{h-h} so § *Ar.*¹ (cf. Ethiop.): ℒ aliorum ⁱ⁻ⁱ reading quam amodo pertransient in cruciamentum (see EA, p. 146) ^{j-j} so § *Ethiop. Ar.*¹: ℒ in honoribus (= εν τιμαιοις [for ατιμαιοι]): ^{k-k} so § Ethiop.: ℒ in timoribus ^{l-l} ℒ ordo (= η ταξις): § way ^{m-m} so §: ℒ in eo tempore commemoratae ⁿ⁻ⁿ ℒ per septem ordines: ℒ here and in following verses uses ordo consistently; so *Ethiop. Ar.*¹: but § *Ar.*² Arm. use way (= odos) throughout ^{o-o} ℒ cum eis plasmatum cogitamentum ^{p-p} so ℒ § *Ar.*¹; but Ethiop. in their present life ^{q-q} ℒ complicationem (= συμπλοκη: Hebr.
 הצפירה; see EA, p. 149) ^{r-r} reading quae eis (for in eis) manet punitio ^{s-s} ℒ servaverunt quae per fidem sense that the soul of man after death appears before God for a certain limited time only, and for a certain purpose. This follows from his belief as to the intermediate state.

80. Such souls. For inspiraciones = here disembodied souls, cf. v. 78 above (recedente inspiratione). נשמה is used of the disembodied soul in Rabbinic Hebrew: cf. e. g. T. B. Shabb. 152 b של צדיקים נשמות, 'the souls of the righteous' (in reference to the souls being deposited beneath the throne of glory). For the theological controversies regarding inspiratio in this connexion cf. Bensly, MF, p. 64.

but shall wander about henceforth in torture. In T. B. Shabb. 152 b the souls of the wicked are said to be given no place of rest until the Judgement, while the souls of the righteous are given their resting-place (מנוחה) soon after death.

in seven ways, i. e. seven modes or kinds (= Hebr. derek). The arrangement of the sufferings and joys in seven kinds would appear somewhat artificial to us. According to Gunkel, it is derived from the old Babylonian tradition (which passed over to Judaism) of the existence of seven heavens and seven hells (this tradition appears in late Jewish literature; cf. Eisenmenger, ii, p. 328, for a description of the seven היכלות of Hell). Our passage may be a refinement of this idea. See further EA, p. 145.

81. The first way, i. e. the first kind (of torture); a Hebraism (derek, 'way' = kind, manner): this meaning, rare in Biblical Hebrew, is common in PBH.

88. from this vessel of mortality, lit. 'from this corruptible vessel'; Lat. a vaso corruptibili. The Greek equivalent for 'corruptible vessel' would be τὸ φθαρτὸν σκεῦος = Hebr. (?) כלי כליין. Cf. τὸ φθαρτὸν τούτο, 'this corruptible' (that which is liable to corruption), 1 Cor. xv. 53. Notice in our passage the implied view of the body as the prison-house of the soul. [On the form vaso cf. Bensly, MF, p. 66 f.]

91. in seven orders, i. e. orders or dispositions of mind (or emotion)—here of joys; for text see crit. note. A good Hebrew equivalent for τάξις would be מערכה or תכונה, which is used (in late Hebrew) in the same way of a disposition of the mind.

92. The first order. Gunkel correctly interprets this as = 'the first joy'.

93. the round (or circuit). The word might well be used of wild erratic motion (of the ungodly souls).

96 guarded by angels, and the glory which awaits them ^t at their latter end ^t. The fifth order (is): they rejoice that they have now escaped what is corruptible, and that they shall inherit that which is to come; and moreover that they see the straitness and ^u 'painfulness' ^v from which ^v they have been delivered, and the spacious liberty which they are destined ^w to receive with enjoyment and im-

97 mortality ^w. The sixth order: ^x that ^x it is shown unto them how their face is destined to shine as the sun, and how they are destined to be made like the light of the stars, ^y henceforth ^y incorruptible.

98 The seventh order, which exceeds all the aforesaid, (is): that They shall rejoice with boldness, be confident without confusion,

be glad ^z without fear ^z, for they are hastening to behold the face of him whom in life they served, and from whom they are destined to receive their reward in glory.

99 This is the order of the souls of the righteous as from now henceforward ^a is announced ^a, (^b and) the aforesaid ways of torture (are) those which they suffer henceforth who ^b ^c would not give heed ^c.

100 And I answered and said: Shall time, therefore, be given unto the souls, after they are separated from the bodies, that they may see what thou hast described to me?

101 And he said to me: Seven days they have freedom, that during these seven days they may see ^d the things aforesaid ^d, afterwards they shall be gathered together in their habitations.

(3) vii. 102-115. NO INTERCESSION ON THE DAY OF JUDGEMENT (S).

102 And I answered and said: If I have found favour in thy sight, show me, thy servant, this also: whether in the Day of Judgement the righteous shall be able to intercede for the ungodly, or to data est lex (per fidem may have been intended to qualify observed in original) ^{1-t} \mathbb{L} in novissimis eorum ^{u-u} reading labore plenum (MSS. plenum only); cf. \mathbb{S} (the much toil) Ethiop. ^{v-v} reading a quo (M) = \mathbb{S} : quoniam (A C V) ^{w-w} \mathbb{L} recipere fruniscentes et immortales ^{x-x} so Ethiop. (= ori): \mathbb{L} quando (= ori); so S ^{y-y} reading amodo (for quomodo); cf. \mathbb{S} Ethiop. ^{z-z} reading non reverentes (for revertentes): Oriental VSS.

either omit or obscure the clause ^{a-a} reading adnuntiatur (for annuntientur) ^{b-b} reading (et) praedictae viae (sunt) cruciatus quas (so A) patiuntur amodo qui (the bracketed words being supplied) ^{c-c} \mathbb{L} neglexerint
^{d-d} \mathbb{L} qui praedicti sunt sermones

96. escaped what is corruptible. Gunkel points out that the implied idea is that what is mortal and corruptible is an alien element in man's essential being.

97. their face . . . as the sun . . . like the light of the stars. The language is based on Dan. xii. 3, and is similarly applied to the righteous (in an eschatological connexion) in Matt. xiii. 43; cf. also 2 Bar. li. 3 (of the transformation of the righteous at the resurrection), li. 10; cf. 1 En. xxxix. 7 ('resplendent as lights of fire' = 'shine as the stars' [Charles]), li. 5, civ. 2 ('soon ye shall shine as the stars of heaven'); cf. also 4 Ezra vii. 125. In 1 Cor. xv. 41 the spiritual body of the resurrection is compared to the stars ('one star differeth from another star in glory'); the righteous in the resurrection are compared with the angels in Matt. xxii. 30; cf. 1 En. li. 4 ('they shall become angels in heaven'), civ. 6, and 2 Bar. li. 10 (cited above). Gunkel points out that in the earlier circle of religious ideas from which the higher religion received the first impulse towards the development of the doctrine of the resurrection stars and angels are equivalent conceptions. In this earlier religion the stars were regarded as gods. 'To be made like the stars,' therefore, survived as a figure for immortality in the phraseology of spiritual religion.

98. with boldness. Cf. Wisd. v. 1, and see Volz, p. 264.

to behold the face, &c. Cf. Matt. v. 8.

100. the souls. Here and in the following verse the souls of the righteous only are, apparently, meant. These souls enter into the chambers reserved for them; the souls of the wicked do not (cf. v. 80).

101. Seven days . . . freedom. According to the dictum of R. Hisda, cited in T. B. Shabb. 152 a, the soul of a man mourns for him the first seven days after death. It is also said in the same context (152 b) that the souls of the righteous are given their resting-place soon. The origin of the idea of seven days' freedom being given to the soul immediately after death is obscure. It probably depends upon some primitive tradition. See further EA, p. 153.

habitations, i. e. in the intermediate state.

(3) vii. 102-115. The previous section (vii. 75-101) opened with the question whether after death the soul was permitted to rest until the Judgement, or whether it entered immediately into torment. The seer was evidently thinking of the souls of the unrighteous, with whom he identified himself. The question was answered in the negative—no peace is allowed for the souls of the lost. Still full of pity for the awful fate that awaits lost souls, Ezra-Salathiel asks whether there is any possibility of escape for the wicked in the Day of Judgement. Will intercession by the righteous for the ungodly be permitted? Again the answer is, No. Father will not be permitted to intercede for son, or son for father, or brother for brother, or friend for friend. This will be just as impossible as for one to take the place of another in illness, or in sleeping or eating: 'every one' in that day 'must bear his own righteousness or unrighteousness'.

The seer again pleads the many examples of intercession that are recorded in the Scriptures (Abraham prayed for the people of Sodom, &c.), and is told that while the present (temporary) order endures such intercession is possible. But the Day of Judgement means the closing of all accounts. 'So shall no man then be able to have mercy on him who is condemned in the Judgement, nor overwhelm him who is victorious.'

The view, met with in Rabbinical literature, that the merits of sons will avail to save the fathers in the Day of Judgement (cf. e. g. Eccles. rabb. on Qoh. iv. 1) is thus implicitly condemned: indeed, the whole doctrine of imputed righteousness seems to be emphatically repudiated.

The apocalyptic writer thus here reaches the height of a pure and strenuous individualism. National limitations,

S 103 intreat the Most High in their behalf: fathers for sons, sons for parents, brothers for brothers, kins-104 folk for their nearest, friends for their dearest. And he answered me and said: Since thou hast found favour in my sight, I will show this also unto thee. The Day of Judgement is ^{dd} decisive ^{dd}, and displays unto all the seal of truth. Even as now a father may not send a son, or a son his father, or a master his slave, or a friend his dearest, that in his stead ^e he may be ill ^e, or sleep, or eat, or be 105 healed; so shall ^f none then ^f pray for another ^g on that Day, neither shall one lay a burden on 106 another ^g; for then every one shall bear his own righteousness or unrighteousness. And I answered and said: How is it that we now find that first Abraham prayed for the people of Sodom, and 107 Moses for our fathers who sinned in the wilderness; and Joshua after him for Israel in the days ^h of 108 Achar ^h; and Samuel ⁱ in the days of Saul ⁱ, and David ^j for the plague ^j, and Solomon ^k for those 109 that (should worship) in the sanctuary ^k; and Elijah for those who received the rain, and for the 110 dead, that he might live; and Hezekiah for the people in the days of Sennacherib, and (others) many 111 for many? If, therefore, now when corruption is grown up, and unrighteousness increased, the righteous have prayed for the ungodly, why shall it not be so then also?
 112 And he answered me and said: The present age ^l is not the End ^l; ^m the glory of God abides not 113 therein continuously ^m: therefore have the strong prayed for the weak. But the Day of Judgement shall be the end of this age and the beginning of the eternal age that is to come; wherein 114 corruption is passed away, ⁿ weakness ⁿ is abolished,
 infidelity is cut off;
 while righteousness is grown,
 and faithfulness is sprung up.
 115 So shall no man then be able to have mercy on him who is condemned in the Judgement, nor ^o overwhelm ^o him who is victorious.

dd-dd so S (= ? συντομος): Ethiop. suddenly (= ? συντομως): ℒ audax (= ? ευτολμος a corruption of συντομος) e-e so S Ethiop. Arm. (= wa uosη): ℒ intellegat (= wa uosη) ^{f-f} so S (cf. Ar.¹) = ουδε ποτε: ℒ nunquam (= ουδεποτε) ^{g-g} so S (cf. Ethiop.): ℒ > ^{h-h} so ℒ (M N A) = S: Achaz (S) ⁱ⁻¹ so S Ethiop. Ar.¹: ℒ (S A C M) > ^{j-j} ℒ pro confractione ^{k-k} ℒ pro eis qui in sanctificationem (= υπερ των εν τω ιερω): S Ethiop. for the sanctuary (= υπερ του ιερου) ^{l-1} so ℒ (non est finis): cf. Ethiop.; S has an end
^{m-m} so S Ethiop.: ℒ gloria in eo (supply non) frequens manet ⁿ⁻ⁿ so Ethiop. (= η ασθενεια): ℒ intemperantia (= ? η ασελγεια: cf. S) ^{o-o} ℒ demergere (= καταποντιζειν) ^{p-p} ℒ coercere (= κατεχειν): S instructed (= κατηdistinctions between race and race, are left behind: the individual soul comes to view, and the personal responsibility of each individual soul is asserted with the utmost emphasis. Between God and the departing soul no mediatorial or mitigating agency is allowed to stand. Here we may detect the influence of Alexandrine theology which tended to lay all stress upon the present life as determining the eternal fate of every man (cf. Bousset, *RJ*², p. 337 f.).

It is apparently against some such conceptions as have been described above that our passage is directed. It definitely excludes the entire cycle of such ideas. Probably at the time when our Apocalypse was written these ideas had assumed an exaggerated form in certain circles. It is curious to note that this passage of 4 Ezra gave offence to Christian theologians. Its citation as scriptural proof against the efficacy of intercessions for the dead evoked a severe reproof from Jerome (Tu . . . proponis mihi librum apocryphum, qui sub nomine Esdrae a te et similibus tuis legitur; ubi scriptum est, quod post mortem nullus pro aliis audeat deprecari: quem ego librum nunquam legi: [contra Vigilant. c. vii]). This objection doubtless accounts for the disappearance of the section from the Latin Cod. S, and nearly all later copies—the lacuna only being made good by the discovery of the missing Fragment by Bensly.

[See, on the section, Volz, pp. 92, 136; Köberle, p. 662 f.; Bousset, p. 339 f.; and cf. EA, pp. 153-6.]

104. the seal of truth, i.e. the seal of the Judge which attests the truth and justice of the sentence (Gunkel). The representation is again forensic; the sealing of the document recording the sentence being the final act of the Judge.

105. neither shall one lay a burden, &c. The whole passage is a development of Ezek. xviii. 20.

106. first. Of the following series.

Abraham. The reference is to Gen. xviii. 23.

Moses . . . in the wilderness. See Exod. xxxii. 11.

107. Achar. See Joshua vii.

108. in the days of Saul. See 1 Sam. vii. 9, 12, 23.

for the plague. The reference is to 2 Sam. xxiv. 15 f.

for those that (should worship) in the sanctuary. See 1 Kings viii. 22 f., 30 f.

109. Elijah . . . the rain. See 1 Kings xviii. 42.

for the dead . . . live. See 1 Kings xvii. 20 f.

110. Hezekiah . . . Sennacherib. See 2 Kings xix. 15 f.

112. the glory of God abides not therein continuously. For the various causes (idolatry, blasphemy, pride) which cause the removal of the Shekinah (= the divine presence and glory) from the earth, according to Rabbinic theology, see Schechter, Aspects, p. 223 et al. Here the idea is that the divine glory cannot permanently remain with what is essentially transitory.

(4) vii. 116-131. WHAT AVAILS THE PROMISE TO MAN WHO IS BORN TO SIN?
YET, THOUGH TRAGIC, THE SINNER'S DOOM IS DESERVED (S).

116 And I answered and said: This is my first and last word; better had it been that the earth had not produced Adam, or else, having once produced him, (for thee)^p to have restrained^p him from 117 sinning. For how does it profit us all that in the present we must live in grief and after death look 118 for punishment? O thou Adam, what hast thou done! For though it was thou that sinned, ^athe 119 fall was not thine alone, but ours also^a who are thy descendants! For how does it profit us that 120 the eternal age is promised to us, whereas we have done the works that bring death? And that there is foretold to us ^r'an imperishable hope', whereas we so miserably are brought to futility?
122 And that there are reserved habitations of health and safety, whereas we have lived wickedly? And that the glory of the Most High is to defend them who have led a pure life, whereas we have walked 123 in ways most wicked? And that Paradise whose fruit endures incorruptible, wherein is delight and 124 healing, shall be made manifest, but we cannot enter it because we have passed our lives ^ain unseemly
125 manners^s? And that the faces of such as have practised abstinence shall shine above the stars, 126 whereas our faces shall be blacker than darkness? For, while we lived and committed iniquity we considered not what we were destined to suffer after death!

127 And he answered me and said: This is ^t'the condition^t of the contest which (every) man who is 128 born upon earth must wage; that, if he be overcome, he shall suffer as thou hast said: but if he be 129 victorious, he shall receive what I have said. For this is the way of which Moses, while he was 130 alive, spoke unto the people, saying: Choose thee life, that thou mayst live! Nevertheless they 131 believed not him, nor the prophets after him, no nor yet me who have spoken unto them. ^u'Therefore^u shall there not be such grief at their perdition, as there shall be joy over the salvation of those who have believed.

(5) DOUBTS AS TO HOW THE PERDITION OF SO MANY CAN BE JUSTIFIED FROM THE POINT OF VIEW OF GOD'S CHARACTER AND ATTRIBUTES: THE DIVINE REPLY (S).

(vii. 132—viii. 62.)

(a) vii. 132—viii. 3. Will God—so merciful and compassionate—suffer so many to perish? (S.)

132 And I answered and said: I know, Lord, that the Most High is now called compassionate in that $\chi\epsilon\iota\nu$ (= Ethiop.) ^{a-a} reading non est factum solius tuus casus sed et nostrum (cf. S) ^{1-r} \mathbb{L} perennis spes

^{s-s} cf. Ethiop.: \mathbb{L} ingratis locis (confusing τροποις and τοποις): so S ^{t-t} \mathbb{L} cogitamentum = ο διαλογισμος = ρπ
(law, condition) ^{u-u} so S: \mathbb{L} quoniam

(4) vii. 116-131. It thus having been demonstrated that no possibility of escape from eternal punishment exists for the doomed race of sinners, the seer now bursts forth into a passionate lamentation over the fate of the mass of humanity. It would have been better if Adam had not been created with freedom of will to sin, than that his descendants should be born only to be doomed. To promise them happiness and immortality on conditions which they must almost inevitably fail to keep is but to mock their misery. To this the archangel can only reply that such are the conditions of the fight; there will be more joy in heaven over those who attain salvation than sorrow over the many who perish.

116. that the earth had not produced. Cf. iii. 5.

or else . . . to have restrained him from sinning. Cf., for the thought, vii. 63.

118. the fall was not thine alone, but ours also. Adam is here charged with being the cause of the perdition of the human race; cf. vii. 20f., iv. 30-31, and contrast 2 Bar. liv. 19.

122. is to defend. For the idea of the divine glory (= the Shekinah) being a protection to the righteous, cf. the Rabbinic phrase 'to take refuge under the wings of the Shekinah' (T. B. Shabb. 31 a, &c., of one acknowledging God). Moses when dead lay in its pinions (Sifre, 355).

123. Paradise, i.e. the heavenly Paradise.

wherein (i.e. in which fruit) is delight and healing. For the representation cf. Ezek. xlvii. 12 (Rev. xxii. 2).

125. of such as have practised abstinence. The ascetic note here is discernible. For ascetic tendencies in Rabbinic theology cf. Schechter, Aspects, pp. 277-8.

shall shine above the stars. Cf. Dan. xii. 3 and Matt. xii. 43.

whereas our faces shall be blacker than darkness. The conception at the background of the clause is that of sinners being banished to night and darkness (cf. the phrase in the Gospels, 'to be cast forth into the outer darkness,' Matt. viii. 12, &c.). The conception of hell as a place of fire is a distinct and more developed one.

129. Choose thee life, that thou mayst live. Cf. Deut. xxx. 19. Such words are interpreted in later Judaism in a deeper sense: 'life' = eternal life, the blessed life in heaven. In the original context 'life' = natural life (regarded as the highest of boons). Cf. Gunkel, ad loc.

(5) vii. 132-viii. 62. The seer's doubts still remain. In a fine passage he acknowledges (and implicitly appeals to) the divine mercy and compassion, which are displayed in manifold ways in the present order. This suggests a question which is not directly expressed: Is it possible to reconcile the final perdition of so many with the divine mercy? In reply he is told that the present world is for the many, the future world for the few (vii. 132-viii. 3). Again he asks: Is it possible that God's creature, who has been fashioned with such infinite care and skill, can have been created only to perish? With this question the seer gives up the problem of the race, and turns to his own people (viii. 4-19). For

S 133 he compassionates those who have not yet come into the world ; and gracious, in that he is gracious 134 towards those ^v who return to his law ^v : and longsuffering, because he shows longsuffering to sinners 135, 136 ^w as his creatures ^w ; and ^x bountiful ^x, since he is ready to bestow favour rather than exact ; and of great mercy, because he multiplies mercies so greatly to those who are in existence, and who have 137 passed away, and who are to come:—for if he did not multiply ^y mercy ^y the world with its 138 inhabitants could not attain unto life—^z and good (?), for if in his goodness he were not gracious ^z, so that evil-doers might be eased of their iniquities, the ten thousandth part of mankind could not attain 139 unto life ; and ^a forgiving, for if he did not pardon ^a those that were created by his word, and blot 140 out the multitude ^b of their iniquities ^b, there would, perchance, be very few left of an innumerable multitude.

8 1 And he answered me and said : This age the Most High has made for many, but the age to come 2 for few. I will tell thee, now, a similitude, Ezra: as, when thou askest the earth, it shall say unto thee that it produces much more mould from which earthen vessels are made, but little dust from 3 which gold comes ; so also is ^c the course ^c of the present age. Many have been created, but few shall be saved !

^{v-v} so § Ethiop. ℥ [illis] qui faciunt conversionem in lege eius ^{w-w} ℥ quasi suis operibus
^{x-x} reading munificus: § (cf. Ethiop.) giver ^{y-y} so § (cf. Ethiop.) ℥ > ^{z-z} reading et donator quoniam si non donaverit (see EA, p. 167 f.) ^{a-a} ℥ et iudex (quoniam) si non ignoverit: Simonsen reads:
 and the righteous judge who hath no respect of persons, but who, if he did not pardon (see EA, p. 169) ^{b-b} ℥ contemptum = τῶν ἀδικημάτων: § of their sins (= τῶν ἀδικημάτων) ^{c-c} ℥ actus (= πράξις:

them and for himself he utters a beautiful prayer, appealing to God to have compassion on those who are destitute of good works (viii. 20–36). The angel briefly replies (viii. 37–40), and proceeds to compare man on the earth to seed. As the husbandman sows much seed, but only part comes up, so out of the multitude of created men only a part shall be saved. The seer answers that much seed perishes for lack or because of excess of rain, and once again appeals to the divine compassion (viii. 41–45). The divine reply that follows (viii. 46–62) constitutes a general answer to what precedes. The seer is told that his love falls far below God's for God's creature ; his (the seer's) humility is, however, commended, and he is assured of felicity with the righteous. He is bidden to ask no more questions regarding the fate of the lost, who have brought their doom upon themselves.

(a) vii. 132–viii. 3. The seer, in his fine appeal to the divine attributes of compassion and forgiveness, obviously has in mind the passage of Scripture which has become classical in this connexion, Exod. xxxiv. 6–7 ('Jahveh . . . a God compassionate and gracious, longsuffering and of great mercy and faithfulness ; keeping mercy for thousands, forgiving iniquity and transgression and sin'). This had already become a stereotyped formula of address to or description of God when the later books of the O. T. were written, and many reminiscences of the language used occur (cf. e. g. Neh. ix. 17, Joel ii. 13, Jonah iv. 2, Ps. lxxxvi. 15, &c. ; also Sirach ii. 11 and Wisd. xv. 1). The passage is doubtless based upon, or interweaves, a Midrash on Exod. xxxiv. 6–7, as Prof. Simonsen holds ; see further EA, pp. 164–165.

132. those who have not yet come into the world. God, in spite of His foreknowledge which enables Him to foresee man's future sins before he is born, is yet tender and compassionate towards him, treating him as righteous and free from sin until he actually commits sin ; cf. Midr. rabb. to Gen. xxi. 17, where God says 'I judge man' (as to whether he is righteous or wicked) 'according to his time' (i.e. as he is at the time, without taking into account his future sins). In the passage Ishmael (not yet having sinned) is counted as pious.

133. who return to his law. God compassionates man both before he sins (v. 132), and also after he has sinned and made his repentance.

135. he is ready to bestow favour rather than exact. Cf. the following (from Seder Eliahu, p. 135) : 'God bestows gifts on those who know him and on those who know him not and do not deserve his gifts.' Simonsen understands the clause to mean : God is ready to forgive guilt rather than exact punishment.

137. could not attain unto life, i.e. the future (eternal) 'life'. This agrees with the doctrine of the school of Shammai, according to which the truly pious passed at once, after death, to bliss ; the very wicked went at once to Gehenna ; while the intermediate class (which comprised the vast majority) were only consigned to Gehenna for a time, God's goodness and kindness being shown in allowing their release therefrom, so that they ultimately passed to eternal life (so Simonsen).

138. and good (?), for if in his goodness, &c. On the textual phenomena of this verse cf. EA, p. 167.

139. forgiving. The Lat. has iudex, judge ; so the other versions. This has usually been supposed to be based on an erroneous reading in the original Hebrew text (שופט for שומט). For a brilliant alternative solution (by Simonsen) see crit. note.

140. very few. Simonsen's suggestion is to read the text of vv. 139–140 : 'and the righteous Judge who hath no respect of persons, but who, if he did not pardon,' &c. (Heb. וישפט בצדקה אשר לא ישא פנים ונו). This affords a fine paraphrase of Exod. xxxiv. 7 ('forgiving iniquity and transgression and sin'). God's attributes of mercy are pleaded all through the passage, and the conclusion reached is that if God did not possess these attributes nearly all created would be involved in perdition. This accords with one of the traditional interpretations of the words which follow the second clause of Exod. xxxiv. 7 cited above, viz. ונקח לא ינקה ; i.e. (according to the interpretation referred to) 'He will not utterly extinguish'.

The seer thus, as Moses himself (Num. xiv. 17–18), pleads the revelation of God's attributes made in Exod. xxxiv. 6–7 in mitigation of the severity of the divine judgement. He does so, however, in a paraphrastic form which suggests a midrashic influence.

viii. 3. Many . . . created . . . few . . . saved. Cf. Matt. xxii. 14. The illustration in vv. 1–3 is parallel both in thought and expression with vii. 49–61.

(b) viii. 4-19. Can God's creature, who has been fashioned with such infinite skill and labour, perish finally? (S.)

And I answered and said :

^dO my soul, drink thy fill of understanding ^d,
And, ^eO heart ^e, ^ffeed on wisdom ^f!

^gInvoluntarily thou camest (into the world), and when thou wilt not departest ^g:

^hfor ^hpermission ^h has been given to thee only to live a brief time. ⁱO Lord above us ⁱ, if thou wouldst but suffer thy servant to pray before thee; and wouldst give unto us the seed of a new heart and culture to our understanding, whence fruit may come, whereby every corruptible one may be able to live, who bears ^jthe form of man ^j! For one art thou ^kand we are all one fashioning, the work of thine hands ^k, as thou hast said. ^lAnd when ^l thou quickenest ^mthe body which thou fashionest in the womb ^m, and endowest it with members, thy creature is preserved in fire and water, and nine months does that which thou hast fashioned (i. e. the womb) bear thy creature ⁿ which thou hast created within it ⁿ. But ^othat which keeps and that which is kept ^o are both kept ^p by thy keeping ^p. And when the womb gives up again ^q what has been created in it ^q, thou hast commanded that out of the members themselves, ^r that is out of the breasts ^r, milk, the fruit of the breasts, should be provided, that what has been fashioned may be nourished for a time.

And afterwards thou sustainest it in thy mercy and nourishest it in thy righteousness;
Thou disciplinest it through thy law,
and reprovest it in thy wisdom.

Thou wilt kill it—as (it is) thy creature, and quicken it—as (it is) thy work!

If, then, ^swith a light word ^s thou shalt destroy him who with such infinite labour has been fashioned by thy command, ^tto what purpose was he made ^t? But now I will say: Concerning man in general, ^uthou knowest best ^u, but concerning Heb. 777) ^{d-d} so S = absorbe anima mea sensum : Lat. MSS. absolve ^{e-o} cf. S my heart : Ethiop. = το ους (? for τον νοον) : S > ^{f-f} S devoret quod sapit (Greek ? καταφαγε το φρονουν) ^{g-g} so S : S (misreading ακουσα as ακουσαι) convenisti enim obaudire et profecta es nolens ^{h-h} S spatium (= ? συγχωρησις (cf. S power) ⁱ⁻¹ S O

Domine super nos (so v. 45) : S O Lord my Lord (so v. 45) ^{j-j} so S : S locum hominis (confusing τοπον and τυπον)
^{k-k} so S : S et una plasmatio nos sumus manuum tuarum ^{l-1} S et quoniam (= και οτι : for οτε) ^{m-m} S nunc in matrice plasmatum corpus (= prob. שאתה יוצר בבטן הנבשר—the two middle words being misread שעתה יוצר) ⁿ⁻ⁿ so S : S quae in eo creata est ^{o-o} reading ipsum [quod servat et] quod servatur (C) = S A C > words in brackets ^{p-p} reading servatione tua = S Ethiop. ^{q-q} reading quae in ea creata fuerint ^{r-r} S [membris] hoc est mamillis : S > [clause may be a gloss] ^{s-s} S facili ordine (= κουφη ταξει : Heb. ? ברבר קל [Gunkel]) :
S suddenly and quickly ^{t-t} S et ut quid (= ινα τι και : Heb. ולמה) : so Oriental VSS. ^{u-u} S tu magis scis
(= συ μαλλον οιδας)

(b) viii. 4-19.

4. O my soul . . . feed on wisdom. The sentiment expressed in this verse serves to reveal the seer's despair of being able to solve the problem by intellectual means. As the discussion proceeds it seems to become ever more unfathomable.

5. Involuntarily thou camest . . . departest. Cf. 2 Bar. xlvi. 14 f.; also xiv. 11. only to live a brief time. Cf. 2 Bar. xlvi. 12.

6. the seed of a new heart and culture to our understanding. S renders: 'the seed and culture of a new heart.' Possibly 'seed of a new heart' is right. In this case the seer asks for that 'transformation by the renewing of the mind' (τη ανακαινώσει του νοός), of which St. Paul speaks (Rom. xii. 2; cf. Eph. iv. 23), and which amounts to αναγεννήσις. The cor malignum is to be replaced by a cor novum, and the granum seminis mali (iv. 30) by the semen cordis novi. The epithet 'new' is only found in the Syr.

whereby . . . may . . . live, who bears the form of man. The meaning of the whole verse is well paraphrased by Volkmar: 'O that thou wouldst grant unto thy human children not merely physical life, but also the seed of spiritual life and understanding to be cultivated (by them), so that thereby they might attain true life!'

7. as thou hast said. Isa. xlv. 11, lx. 21; cf. lxv. 14 f. The combination of the assertion of God's uniqueness and unity (solus enim es) and of His Fatherhood as the one Creator of all is notable; cf. vi. 1-6.

8. thy creature is preserved in fire and water. There is here a clear allusion to the Oriental doctrine that man's living organism is compounded of the primal elements ('the things that have intermingled with thy growth', iv. 10, cf. note there). Cf. Philo, de Mundi Op. 51, where the human body is spoken of as compounded from earth, water, air, and fire: for Rabbinic views on the same subject cf. Weber, p. 210 f.

and nine months . . . bear thy creature which thou hast created within it, i. e. within the womb.

13. Thou wilt kill it . . . quicken it . . . thy work. Volkmar paraphrases: 'Thou wilt indeed bring man to death, as he is a creature of thine: but thou wilt—such is my hope—summon him also to renewed life, because thou hast once given him (physical) life.' Cf. for a somewhat similar sentiment 1 Sam. ii. 6 ('J. kills and makes alive: he brings down to Sheol and brings up'). The reference will then be to the future life: 'quicken' may, however, mean only 'to preserve alive' (God kills, or allows 'His creature' to live, as He will, viz. in this life). Cf. also 2 Kings v. 7; Deut. xxxii. 39.

14. him who with such infinite labour has been fashioned. Cf. Ps. cxxxix. 14 f.

- S 16 Thy people, on whose account I grieve, and thine inheritance for which I mourn,
And Israel for whom I am sad, and Jacob's seed for whom I am dismayed—
17 ^v Therefore I would fain pray before thee for myself and for them! For I see ^w the falls ^w of us
18 that dwell in the land, ^x and now also ^x have heard ^y the decree of judgement ^y that is to come!
19 Therefore hear my voice, and ^z consider my words ^z,
and let me speak before thee!

(c) viii. (19 b) 20-40. The seer's prayer for compassion on his people, and the divine reply (S).

(i.)

The Prayer.

- 19 ^a [The beginning ^b of the words of the Prayer ^b of Ezra before he was taken up. And he said :] ^a 20 O Lord ^c that dwellest eternally ^c, ^d whose are the highest heavens ^d, whose chambers are in the air, 21 Whose throne is beyond imagination, whose glory inconceivable;

^v S for behold ^{w-w} L lapsos (= lapsus : ? τα πτωματα) ^{x-x} so S : L sed ^{y-y} so S : L celeritatem iudicii (= αποτομιαν κρισεως : Heb. יָגֵר גֵּר : cf. partem iudicii, v. 34) ^{z-z} L intellege sermonum meorum (Greek construction) : S accept the words of my prayer ^{a-a} This superscription is no part of the original text of the book; but it must have come into the text very early, as it is attested by S and Ethiop. Its presence shows clearly that the passage was early singled out for separate use for liturgical or devotional purposes ^{b-b} so S
(cf. Ethiop.) : L (b) verbi orationis (a) verborum ^{c-c} so S : L qui inhabitas (b habitas) saeculum ^{d-d} so L
(b) cuius altissimi celi (= caeli) sunt : cf. S whose heights (= heavens) are exalted : L (a) cuius oculi elati

16. thine inheritance. Cf. v. 45; Ps. xxviii. 9.

Jacob's seed. Cf. iii. 19.

(c) viii. (19 b) 20-40. The beautiful prayer which follows (viii. 20-36) opens with an invocation to God as the eternal, exalted, and omnipotent One, who is appealed to as the Creator to listen to the petition of one who is His creature (vv. 20-25); a prayer that God will have compassion on His people and regard those who have been loyal to His Law rather than its transgressors follows (vv. 26-30); finally an appeal is made to the fact that God has in the past been so longsuffering towards the sinners of His people (here the intermingling of appeal and confession is noticeable, vv. 31-36). Here as elsewhere in the Apocalypse the seer identifies himself with the sinners (cf. v. 32). The first part of the divine reply that follows (vv. 37-40), while apparently favourable to the seer's petition, really ignores or even negatives it. God will indeed, says the angel, have regard rather to the righteous than to the sinners. He will rejoice over the salvation of the former rather than grieve over, or even think of, the destruction of the latter! The issue is not squarely faced. For a similar indirect reply to the same issue expressed in another form cf. vii. 17 f.; cf. also vii. 64 compared with vii. 71 f.

The apocalyptic writer is still baffled by the problem of the lost. He is still struggling to arrive at a satisfactory solution from the point of view of the Law. One motive of the prayer seems to be to suggest the possibility that the merits of the righteous might avail for the salvation of sinners in Israel—the sinners intended being, it would seem, those mainly who repudiate the divine Law with a high hand and live as the very heathen (cf. vv. 27-30). But the divine reply makes it clear that no such hope can be entertained. Thus the problem of the lost, even when restricted to Israel, remains unsolved. The beauty of the prayer itself has led to its being excerpted and used for liturgical and devotional purposes. As a consequence the Latin manuscript authorities for this particular passage are more numerous than for the text of the rest of the book. It occurs in a separate form in a number of MSS. of the Latin Bible, and also in MSS. of the Mozarabic Liturgy, some of which are earlier than Codices A and S (cf. Bensly, MF, p. 34). The title often prefixed to the passage is Confessio Esdrae.

Another curious and important fact to notice is that the Latin authorities yield two distinct recensions of the text : i. e. two distinct and more or less independent Latin translations of the Greek text of the passage appear to have been made at different times : but, strangely enough, neither recension seems to be represented in a pure form in any extant MS. The two recensions have been reconstructed (with the aid of fresh manuscript evidence) by Violet; and these are referred to below as text a (= the normal text of the liturgical MSS. and of S A C) and text b (= the divergent text especially represented in M). Both recensions attest good Greek readings, and it is impossible to say which is the older. See further the detailed discussion in BJ ('The Two Texts of the Confessio Esdrae'), pp. lxxx-lxxxvi; also Violet, Introduction, § 13 (pp. xxvi-xxix). There is a prayer in 2 Baruch which similarly has a separate title ('Prayer of Baruch'), ch. xlvi. The prayer in Constit. Apost. viii. 7 should also be compared.

20. whose are the highest heavens. For the general thought cf. Ps. ciii. 11; Deut. x. 14.

whose chambers are in the air. The figure is derived from an older conception according to which the world was thought of as a house consisting of two stories, in the upper of which God had His dwelling, while the lower formed the world as we see it (Gunkel). Here, however, transcendental ideas are dominant. Perhaps the heavenly Paradise was in the writer's mind.

21. throne is beyond imagination. The mystery of God's throne is the theme of Ezek. i ('the chariot').

whose glory inconceivable. God's glory would suggest to the Jewish mind the ineffable light of the divine presence which pervades heaven; cf. Rev. xxi. 23, xxii. 5.

- ° before whom (heaven's) hosts stand trembling °,
 ° and at thy word change to wind and fire °;
 22 whose word is sure,
 and behest constant,
 23 whose commandment is strong and enactment terrible;
 whose look drieth up the depths,
 whose indignation melteth the mountains;
 whose faithfulness ^g standeth eternal ^g—24 Hear ^h the voice ^h of thy servant, give ear to ⁱ thy creature's petition ⁱ,
 and attend to my words!
 25 For so long as I live must I speak, and while I possess understanding, answer—26 O look not on the sins of thy people, but on them that have served thee in truth;
 27 Regard not the deeds of the godless, but (rather) them that have kept thy covenants in tortures;
 28 ^j Think not ^j upon those that have walked in devious ways before thee, but remember them that have willingly recognized thy fear;
 29 Will not to destroy those that have lived like cattle, but regard them that have gloriously taught thy Law;
 30 Be not wroth with those that are deemed worse than the beasts, but love them that have always put their trust in thy glory—

°-° \mathbb{L} (a) cui adstat exercitus angelorum cum tremore: (b) cui adsunt (v. l. assistant) milicie (militiae) cum pavore f-f \mathbb{L} (b) et dicto tuo in ventum et ignem convertuntur (= \mathbb{S} ; cf. Ethioph.): \mathbb{L} (a) quorum servatio in vento et igni convertitur ^{g-g} so *Ar.*² (rightly): \mathbb{L} testificatur = \mathbb{S} (cf. Ethioph.): The Greek translator wrongly rendered the
Heb. עמדת לער (which = standeth for ever) as standeth as a witness (misreading ער לער as ער לער): apparently the *mistake was corrected in the Codex used by Ar.*² ^{b-h} so \mathbb{L} (b) = \mathbb{S} *Ethioph. Ar.*¹: \mathbb{L} (a) and *Ar.*² prayer ⁱ⁻ⁱ so \mathbb{L} (a): \mathbb{L} (b) deprecationi meae tui plasmati = other VSS. ^{j-j} \mathbb{L} neque cogites (= μηδε λογιζου): so \mathbb{S} : Ethioph.
 be not angry (= μη οργιζου): so *Ar.*¹ and at thy word change to wind and fire. The meaning is that the angelic watchers serve before God by changing at His word into wind and fire. Cf. for the representation Ps. ciii. (Heb. civ.) 4 in the LXX, which renders: 'who makes his angels winds (πνεύματα) and his ministers a flaming fire'. The Heb. text of the passage can be rendered in this way, though it is not usually so rendered (cf. Driver, *Heb. Tenses*², p. 262 f.); our passage, therefore, is an interesting addition to the ancient authorities (LXX, Targ. substantially) for so understanding it. The reference here to angelic agency must not, however, be unduly pressed. One of the most remarkable features of 4 Ezra (and especially of S) is its practical ignoring of angelic and demonic agencies. Our present passage is in a poetical context and implies little more than that behind physical phenomena there is to be seen the activity of agents in the service of God. Of the crude popular angelology, with its distinct orders and personal names, there is here no trace.

22. constant. Lat. text a, perseverantia; text b, permanens = (?) διαμένει. The Heb. equivalent would be יציב: cf. Ps. cxix. (LXX, cxviii.) 89, where permanet (Vulg.) = διαμίνει (LXX) = Heb. יציב and the subject is God's 'word' ('thy word is fixed in heaven'). There seems to be a clear allusion here to one of the oldest prayers in the synagogue liturgy, the benediction which follows the Shēma and is known as gē'ulla (Redemption). This piece begins with the two words used in our passage, viz. 'sure (or 'true') and constant' (Heb. אמת ויציב), and is so referred to in the oldest Rabbinical sources (cf. e.g. Mishna, Tamūd v. 1); and the subject of the opening part of the benediction is God's word: 'True and constant, established and enduring . . . is this thy word (i. e. the preceding Shēma) unto us for ever,' &c. (cf. Singer, Authorized Daily Prayer Book (Heb.-English), p. 42 f.).

23. whose look drieth up . . . eternal. The whole of this clause appears in the Const. Apost. viii. 7 οὐ τὸ βλέμμα ξηραίνει ἄβυσσον καὶ ἡ ἀπειλή τήκει ὄρη καὶ ἡ ἀλήθεια μένει εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα. The seer here appeals to the wonders of creation (according to an older tradition) as attesting God's power. Cf. in Deutero-Isaiah a similar passage (l. 2) introduced with a similar motive and reference ('Behold with my rebuke I parch the sea'); cf. also li. 10 and the introductions to the sections in the present writer's Isaiah.

melteth the mountains. An eschatological feature derived from the representation of the destruction of the world by fire; cf. Mic. i. 4; Sir. xvi. 18 f.

27. them that have kept thy covenants in tortures. Such witnesses for the faith as the famous seven Maccabean martyrs are probably referred to.

28. thy fear, i. e. the fear of Thee. 'The fear of Jahveh' is a well-known term for religion, or the Law as revered (cf. Ps. xix. 10).

29. those that have lived like cattle. Probably Jews who live like heathen are in the author's mind. See EA, p. 181.

that have gloriously taught thy Law, i. e. the orthodox scribes. For the expression cf. Dan. xii. 3, Matt. v. 14-15.

30. those that are deemed worse than the beasts, i. e. live worse than the heathen (a class of Jews even worse than those described in the previous verse). Is there an allusion here to Jewish informers who betray their own countrymen to heathen officials?

- S 31 For we and our fathers ^k have passed our lives in ways that bring death ^k: but thou, because of 32 us sinners, art called compassionate. For if thou hast a desire to compassionate us who have no 33 works of righteousness, then shalt thou be called 'the gracious One'. For the righteous, who have many works laid up with thee, shall out of their own deeds receive their reward—34 But what is man that thou shouldst be wroth with him?
 Or what is a corruptible race that thou canst be so bitter towards it?
 35 For in truth
 There is none of the earth-born who has not dealt wickedly, and ¹ among those that exist ¹ who has not sinned.
 36 For in this, O Lord, shall thy righteousness and goodness be declared, if thou wilt compassionate them that have no wealth of good works.

(ii.)

The Divine Reply.

- 37 Then he answered me and said: Some things thou hast spoken aright, and according to thy 38 words so shall it come to pass. For indeed I will not concern myself about the creation of those 39 who have sinned, or their death, judgement, or perdition; but I will rejoice (rather) ^m over the creation 40 of the righteous, (over) their pilgrimage also and their salvation and their recompense ^m. ⁿ As thou hast spoken ⁿ, then, so shall it be!

(d) viii. 41-45. Mankind is like the seed sown by the husbandman (S).[The speaker here is still the angel.]

- 41 For just as the husbandman sows much seed ^o upon the ground ^o and plants a multitude of plants, and yet not all which were sown shall be saved in due season, nor shall all that were planted take 42 root; so also they that are sown in the world shall not all be saved. And I answered and said: If 43 I have found favour before thee, let me speak ^p. ^q The husbandman's seed, if it come not up—because it has not received thy rain in due season ^r—or if it be ruined by too much rain, ^s perishes; 44 but the son of man ^s who has been fashioned with thine own hands, ^t and is made like thine own image ^t, for whose sake thou hast fashioned all things—^u hast thou likened him to the seed of the husbandman ^u?
 45 ^v Nay, Lord God! ^v but spare thy people, compassionate thine inheritance,
 for thou compassionatest thine own creation!

^{k-k} reading (L text a) mortalibus moribus egimus (L (b) corruptum locum egimus = φθαρτον τροπον [for τροπον] διηχθημεν): see further EA, p. 182 ¹⁻¹ L (a) de confitentibus (read confientibus = συνεστηκωτων): see further EA, p. 184) ^{m-m} L super iustorum figmentum peregrinationis quoque et salvationis et mercedis receptionis (for explanation of wrong construction see EA, p. 185) ⁿ⁻ⁿ so Ethiop.: L and other VSS. as I have said ^{o-o} so L = Ar.; S Ethiop. > ^p S + before thee (cf. Ethiop.) ^q L pr. quoniam (= οτι introducing direct speech, and therefore not to be translated: R.V. wrongly forasmuch) ^{r-r} so L: S will then the husbandman's seed, if it does not receive thy rain in its season, live? ^{s-s} reading (with Gunkel) sic patitur; et filius homo (L corrupt: M sic pat et filius: S A C hic pater et filius: see further EA, p. 187) ^{t-t} L et tuae imagini [nominatus quoniam] similatus est: the bracketed words are to be omitted with S (cf. Ethiop. Ar.¹): see further EA, p. 187 ^{u-u} to be taken as a question: so Oriental VSS. ^{v-v} reading non Domine super nos

33. shall . . . receive their reward. Cf. 2 Bar. xiv. 12.

34. that thou canst be so bitter towards it. The whole verse recalls the bitter parody in Job vii. 17 f.; cf. Ps. viii. 4.

37. according to thy words . . . shall it come to pass. The angel refers to the form the seer's petition had taken: that God would regard not the sinners but the righteous. This part of the petition shall be granted, but in a totally different sense from that intended in the prayer. God will ignore the destruction of the godless, and think only of the achievements of the righteous! For a similar turning of expressions in the dialogue cf. vii. 64, 71 f.

39. over the creation . . . recompense. The three words, 'pilgrimage', 'salvation', 'recompense', form contrasted expressions to 'death', 'judgement', and 'perdition' in the previous verse: so 'pilgrimage' (= αποδημια) must mean departure from this life to a better, a return home to God; cf. 2 Cor. v. 6 f. for the idea. 'Salvation' here may mean the state of safety, security, and peace of the righteous dead in the intermediate state.

(d) viii. 41-45.

44. hast thou likened him . . . husbandman? To be taken as a question (against R.V.); so the Oriental Versions rightly. The seer warmly protests against the comparison of mankind to seed sown in the fields; contrast the parable of the Sower in the Gospels. For the image cf. also 4 Ezra iv. 28 f.

45. for thou compassionatest thine own creation, i.e. for (in doing so) thou compassionatest (or wilt compassionate); the creature appeals to the Creator. Note the passionate, almost despairing note of entreaty. The seer is all but overwhelmed with anguish in the face of the problem that confronts him.

(e) viii. 46-62. The final divine reply: The seer is assured that his lot is with the blessed, and is bidden to contemplate their felicity, and not to think of the fate of sinners (S).

- 46 And he answered me and said:
 Things present (match) them of the present,
 Things future them of the future!
- 47 For thou comest far short of being able to love my creation more than I!
 Thou, however, hast many times ^w ranged thyself with ^w the ungodly. ^x This must not be! ^x
- 8, 49 But even on this account thou shalt be honourable before the Most High; because thou hast humbled thyself, as it becomes thee, ^y and hast not assigned thyself a place ^y among the righteous; 50 and so thou shalt receive the greater glory. ^z For ^z with many afflictions shall they be afflicted that 51 inhabit the world in the last times, because they have walked in great pride. But do thou (rather) ^a think of thine own case ^a, and of them who are like thyself search out the glory.
- 52 For for you
 is opened Paradise, planted the Tree of life;
 the future Age prepared,
 plenteousness made ready;

^{w-w} \mathbb{L} te et ipsum proximasti [iniustis] ^{x-x} so \mathbb{S} (= μη ουτως): \mathbb{L} numquam (= μηποτε) ^{y-y} \mathbb{L} et non iudicasti te ^{z-z} so \mathbb{S} (= οτι): \mathbb{L} propter quod (= διοτι) ^{a-a} \mathbb{L} pro te intellege

(e) viii. 46-62. In the reply that follows the angel lightly brushes aside the seer's objection to the comparison of mankind to seed sown in the field, by reminding him that the simile suits the present corruptible order; with the future it will be different. Moreover, God's love of His creatures far exceeds that of any other being. A remarkable passage follows in which the seer's self-identification with sinners is partly rebuked and partly commended. He is told not to range himself with the ungodly, but his humility in doing so is commended. Many shall be brought to ruin in the last times by the sin of pride. But let the seer contemplate the glory that awaits him with other righteous—the delights of Paradise, and the abolition of evil, death, and corruption. Let no more questions be asked as to the lost, who have deserved their fate, because they have defied the Most High, and scorned the benefits prepared for them. The conclusion of this section, which follows in ix. 13-22, sets forth the almost total corruption of the world as due to man's sin. Only a remnant of the sinful mass has been rescued with difficulty and by the grace of God.

Here we have the apologia of orthodox Judaism as S conceived it. It is the best answer that can be furnished, from the orthodox standpoint, to meet the objections and difficulties that have been raised; and with it the seer has, perforce to be content. But, at the best, his doubts and perplexities can only have been stilled, they cannot have been really satisfied, by such a reply.

46. Things present . . . future. Gunkel renders crisply: 'Heute den heutigen, einst den Einstigen!' For the form of the sentence cf. vii. 25 (vacua vacuis et plena plenis). Hilg. renders: τὰ παρόντα τοῖς παροῦσι καὶ τὰ μέλλοντα τοῖς μέλλουσι; i.e. present things are like present people, &c. The angel brushes aside the seer's objection (raised in v. 44) to the comparison of mankind to seed sown in the fields, by reminding him that both the comparison and the thing compared belonged to the present order; the future (and all that belongs to it) has standards of its own. Here, again, the dualism of present and future is marked. Cf. vii. 16.

47. to love my creation. Cf. v. 33, note.

50. in the last times. It should be remembered, however, that the conceptions of S and E regarding 'the last times' are very different. While S thinks of this period as an evil time, when a generation lives that is distinguished by overweening arrogance and pride, and upon which judgement will descend suddenly, according to E the last period is to be a time of felicity for a righteous generation (cf. vi. 26-28), while according to R the final period is the (temporary) Messianic one of 400 years (vii. 28-29).

because they have walked in great pride. The emphasis laid by the author on the virtue of humility and the sin of pride is remarkable. The latter was a conspicuous and besetting fault of a section of the Pharisaic party in the first half of the first century (cf. Mark xii. 38 f., Matt. xxiii. 5 f.; cf. also for a more general reference Luke xiv. 7-11); and the present passage seems to be directed by the author against some of his contemporaries (end of first century A.D.).

51. of them who are like thyself, i.e. those whose destiny is like thine own—the righteous dead who in the intermediate state enjoy righteousness and peace, and who are to enjoy even greater glory after the Judgement. Here Salathiel is the subject. Contrast xiv. 9, where Ezra is the subject.

52. for you is opened Paradise. In vv. 52-54 the 'glory' spoken of in v. 51 is unfolded in a series of explicit references detailing the happy accompaniments of the future life of the righteous in heaven. In accordance with a mode of representation common in apocalyptic literature these various sources of happiness and delight are declared to be already in existence, prepared beforehand and held in reserve for the future delectation of the righteous. The contemplation of these future joys is regarded as a source of perennial consolation to the faithful in their trials and tribulations on earth: cf. in the N.T. such passages as 1 Pet. i. 4 ('an inheritance incorruptible and undefiled, that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for you,' &c.); Heb. xi. 16, &c. See further Volz, p. 124 f.

By 'Paradise' here is meant the heavenly Paradise, which was shut up on account of Adam's sin, and which will be opened after the last Judgement to receive the righteous and elect. See, further, the additional note in EA, p. 195.

planted the Tree of life. The idealized 'Tree of Life' is one of the striking features of the heavenly Paradise on which the apocalypists love to dwell. Cf. vii. 123; Rev. ii. 7, xxii. 2; 1 En. xxiv f.

- S a City builded, a Rest appointed;
^b Good works established ^b,
^c wisdom preconstituted ^c;
 53 The (evil) root is sealed up from you,
 infirmity from your path extinguished;
 And Death is hidden,
^d Hades fled away ^d; ^e Corruption forgotten ^e,
 sorrows passed away;
 54 and in the end ^f the treasures of immortality ^f are made manifest.
 55, 56 Therefore ask no more concerning the multitude of them that perish; for having received liberty they despised the Most High;
 scorned his Law,
 and ^g forsook ^g his ways:
 57, 58 Moreover ^h his saints ^h they have trodden under foot; and have said in their heart that there
 59 is no God—yea, though knowing full well that they must die. ⁱ Therefore as ⁱ the things aforesaid
^j abide for you ^j, so thirst and anguish ^k await them ^k. For the Most High willed not that men 60 should come to destruction; but they—his creatures—have themselves defiled the Name of him that made them, and have proved themselves ungrateful to him who prepared ^l life for them ^l.
 61, 62 Therefore my judgement is now nigh at hand; and this I have not made known unto all men, but only unto thee and to a few like thee.

(6) THE SIGNS OF THE END REVIEWED AND APPLIED TO THE AUTHOR'S OWN TIMES (R) (E).

(viii. 63-ix. 12.)

- R 63 Then I answered and said: Behold, O Lord, thou hast already shown me a great number of the signs which thou art about to do in the last times, but at what time thou hast not shown me.

^{b-b} perfecta est bonitas ^{c-c} ℒ ante perfecta sapientia ^{d-d} ℒ infernum fugit ^{e-e} so ℒ: ℒ et corruptio in oblivionem, which joined with the previous clause infernum fugit has led to the rendering 'hell and corruption are fled into forgetfulness' (R. V.) ^{f-f} so ℒ: ℒ thesaurus immortalitatis ^{g-g} so ℒ Ethiop. (= κατελιπον): ℒ they made to cease (= κατελυον) ^{h-h} so ℒ (= τους οσιους αυτου): ℒ iustus eius (= τους δικαιους αυτου): so Ethiop. ⁱ⁻ⁱ so ℒ (cf. Ethiop.): ℒ sicut enim ^{j-j} so ℒ: ℒ vos suscipient ^{k-k} ℒ quae parata sunt which prob. disguises a verb (= ? μελλει Heb. עתיר)

a City builded, i. e. the heavenly Jerusalem which will more than compensate for the loss of the earthly city.
 Apparently S did not contemplate a restoration or rebuilding of the earthly Jerusalem. See further, EA, p. 198 f.

a Rest appointed. The 'rest of God' is the final sabbath-rest (σαββατισμός, Heb. iv. 9) which awaits the people of God.

Good works established (founded). Cf. Eph. ii. 10.

wisdom preconstituted. Cf. 1 Cor. ii. 7.

53. The (evil) root is sealed up from you. Cf. iii. 22.

Death is hidden. For the abolition of death cf. Isa. xxv. 8; 2 En. lxx. 10; Rev. xxi. 14.

Hades fled away. Cf. 2 Bar. xxi. 3; notice the personification of Hades, as in Rev. vi. 8. For the juxtaposition of Death and Hades cf. Isa. xxviii. 15; Rev. i. 18, xx. 12, 14.

54. and in the end the treasures of immortality are made manifest. The sequence of thought in vv. 53-54 is noticeable; first the sources of sin are abolished, then its consequences (death, Hades, corruption, sorrows), and lastly the positive boons of the future life are revealed (the treasures of immortality).

59. thirst and anguish. For the representation cf. Luke xvi. 24.

62. to a few like thee, i. e. prophets (apocalyptists) like Salathiel or Ezra.

(6) viii. 63-ix. 12. At this point the divine reply in the dialogue (of S) is interrupted by a section which has obvious affinities with the eschatological sections describing the signs of the approaching End, derived from the older source E (iv. 56-v. 13a, vi. 11-28). It has been inserted in its present position by R, who, as in vii. 26-44, has embodied other material summarized partly from S. The composite character of the section as thus described will appear from an examination of its contents.

The seer begins by asking to be informed something as to the time of the End. He is told in reply to note carefully that when a certain number of the predicted signs are past, that is the very time when the Most High will visit the world (ix. 2). A short enumeration of the Messianic 'woes' follows—describing a time of physical, social, and political convulsions (ix. 3). This is particularly interesting here as it seems clear that R intends this description to apply to the times in which he himself is living (ix. 4-6). All who are able to escape by works or by faith shall see God's salvation (i. e. the Messianic Age that precedes the End of the world) within the borders of the Holy Land, which has been sanctified from the beginning (ix. 7, 8). The verses that follow (ix. 9-12) recall the tone of S, and have probably been derived in some way from that source by R. They describe the punishment and pains of those who have defied the Law and been unbelieving. Their punishment comes immediately after death, in accordance

1 And he answered me and said: Measure (the matter) carefully in thy mind, and when thou seest
 2 that ^m a certain part ^m of the predicted signs are past, then shalt thou understand that it is the very 3 time when the Most High is about to visit the world which he has made. When in the world there shall appear

ⁿ quakings of places ⁿ, tumult of peoples,
^o schemings of nations ^o, ^p confusion of leaders ^p, disquietude of princes,

4 then shalt thou understand that it is of these things the Most High has spoken since the days that 5 were aforetime from the beginning. For just as ^a with respect to all that has happened in the world ^a 6 ^r the beginning is obscure (?), but the end (issue) manifest ^r, so also are the times of the Most High:
 the beginnings ^s are [visible] ^s ^t in portents and secret signs ^t, and the end ^u in effects and marvels ^u.
 7 And every one that shall (then) be saved, and shall be able to escape on account of his works or his 8 faith ^v by which he has believed ^v, ^w such shall survive ^w from the perils aforesaid, and shall see my 9 salvation in my land, and within my borders which I have sanctified for myself eternally. Then shall they be amazed that now have abused my ways; they shall abide in the torments which they 10 have spurned and despised. For ^x all who ^x failed to recognize me in their lifetime, ^y although 11 I dealt bountifully with them ^y; and all who have defied my Law, while they yet had liberty, and,
 12 while place of repentance was still open to them, gave no heed but scorned (it); these must be brought to know after death by torment.

1-1 \mathbb{L} eis nunc vitam ^{m-m} reading pars quaedam (so \mathbb{S} Ethiop.) ⁿ⁻ⁿ \mathbb{L} motio locorum (= κινήσις τόπων)
 0-0 \mathbb{L} gentium cogitationes (? read cogitationes) ^{p-p} \mathbb{L} ducum inconstantia (= ηγεμονων ακαταστασια) ^{q-q} \mathbb{L} omne quod factum est in saeculo (casus pendens) ^{r-r} \mathbb{L} corrupt: \mathbb{S} the beginning is known and the end manifest:
 perhaps Greek had εν αφανει . . . εν εμφανει: see further EA, p. 202 ^{s-s} \mathbb{L} manifesta: so \mathbb{S} ^{t-t} \mathbb{L} in prodigiis et virtutibus = εν τερασι και δυναμει (δυναμις = תעלותה Job xi. 6 LXX: see further EA, p. 203) ^{u-u} so Ethiop.:
 \mathbb{L} in actu et in signis (reading σημασις for θαυμασις) ^{v-v} reading in qua credidit ^{w-w} reading is relinquetur
^{x-x} \mathbb{L} quotquot (= οσοι) ^{y-y} so \mathbb{S} : \mathbb{L} beneficia consecuti with the theology of S, whereas the older view is that punishment only comes completely after the resurrection; while it is partly effected by the destruction of the ungodly in the wars and tumults which precede the Messianic Age, and which the righteous survive.

The inconsistency of the section, as a whole, with S can easily be shown (see EA, p. 200). The whole section is a compilation from the hand of R, who has drawn partly upon E (ix. 3, 7, 8), and partly upon S (ix. 9, 12). It thus exhibits phenomena essentially the same as vii. 26-44.

63. at what time. Contrast Acts i. 7.

ix. 3. tumult of peoples. Cf. Isa. xvii. 13.

4. then shalt thou understand . . . these things . . . from the beginning. The author is conscious that the tradition he is citing is extremely old. The antiquity of one element in the eschatological tradition will, perhaps, account for its association with such names as Adam, Seth, Enoch, Noah—the heroic figures of the primaeval age. See RWS (ed. 2), p. 36.

5-6. For just as . . . marvels. For text see crit. notes. The point of the saying seems to be that the portents of the last times can be detected and read beforehand by the initiated, though their true significance is missed by the world at large; just as the real significance of the obscure beginnings of things that develop into great events or issues in human life and history generally is only grasped at first by the discerning.

6. in effects and marvels. Gunkel renders v. 6: 'so also are the times of the Most High: their beginning is in word (i. e. the prophetic word revealed to the apocalyptists referred to in v. 4) and portents, but their end in deeds and marvels' (αἱ ἀρχαὶ ἐν φωναῖς καὶ ἐν σημείοις, καὶ ἡ συντέλεια ἐν ἐνεργείᾳ καὶ δυνάμει). He compares Justin Martyr, Apol. i. 12, where it is remarked that it is God's property to announce beforehand what is to occur, and then to bring it to pass. For the text adopted by Gunkel cf. EA, p. 203.

7. on account of his works or his faith, &c. R here combines the statements of S regarding faith and works. Cf. vi. 5, vii. 77.

8. my salvation, i. e. the Messianic salvation.

which I have sanctified for myself eternally. The Holy Land as sacrosanct—chosen by God—will be the scene of the Messianic salvation. Cf. xii. 13, 34, xiii. 48, 49; 2 Bar. xxix. 2, xl. 2. The idea of the specially privileged and sacrosanct character of the Holy Land lived on in various forms, even after the destruction of Jerusalem. Cf. Volz, p. 308 f., and see Charles's note on 2 Bar. xxix. 2.

12. while place of repentance was still open to them. For the phrase 'place of repentance' cf. Wisd. vii. 10, 20; Heb. xii. 17.

after death by torment. Verses 9-12 represent the point of view of S, and refer to the state of the wicked immediately after death; this representation is essentially inconsistent with the previous verses, which refer to Messianic blessedness.

(7) THE DIVINE REPLY CONCLUDED: FINAL JUSTIFICATION OF THE FEWNESS OF THE SAVED (S).

(ix. 13-22.)

- S 13 So, then, be thou no longer curious as to how the ungodly shall be punished, but inquire (rather) how the righteous ^z shall be saved ^z—they to whom the world (belongs) and for whose sakes, also, the
- 14, 15 world has come into existence ^a. And I answered and said: I have already said, and say now, and
- 16 shall say (it) again: There are more who perish than shall be saved, even as the flood is greater than a drop!
- 17 And he answered me and said:
- As is the ground, so the sowings;
- as are the flowers, so are the colours;
- As is ^b the workman ^b, so is the work;
- as is the husbandman, so is the threshing-floor—
- 18 ^c For there was (a time) in the eternal ages when I prepared for those who now exist—before they had come into being—a world wherein they might dwell ^c; and then none gainsaid me—for none
- 19 existed. But now they that have been created in this world—(a world) made ready with both an unfailing table and an unexplorable pasture—have become corrupt in their manners.
- 20 Then I considered my world, and lo! it was destroyed;
- and my earth, and lo! ^d it was in peril ^d—
- on account of ^e the tumults ^e ^f of those who are (living) in it ^f.
- 21 And I saw, and spared (some) ^g with very great difficulty ^g, and saved me a grape out of a cluster,
- 22 and a plant ^h out of a great forest ^h. Perish, then, the multitude which has been born in vain; but let my grape be preserved, and my plant, which with much labour I have perfected!

^{z-a} so \mathbb{L} Ar.¹: but \mathbb{S} Ethiop. live (as often elsewhere) ^a \mathbb{L} +et quando: but other VSS. > ^{b-b} \mathbb{L} opera (= $\epsilon\rho\gamma\alpha\sigma\iota\alpha$: Heb. עֲבוֹדָה: the latter = workman or work) ^{c-c} so \mathbb{S} ; cf. Ethiop.: \mathbb{L} quoniam tempus erat saeculi et tunc cum essem parans eis qui nunc, antequam fieret illis saeculum in quo inhabitarent ^{d-d} \mathbb{L} erat pericuculi ^{e-e} reading coagitationes (for cogitationes); cf. \mathbb{S} ^{f-f} cf. Ethiop.: \mathbb{L} quae in eo advenerunt
^{g-g} \mathbb{L} vix valde (= πανυ μογυς) ^{h-h} so \mathbb{S} Ethiop. (cf. Ar.¹) = αφ υλης πολλης: \mathbb{L} de tribu multa (φυλης for αφυλης)

(7) ix. 13-22. The first verse of this section forms the immediate continuation of viii. 62. The seer had been assured that the Judgement was near at hand, and had been revealed only to him and a few like him. Now he is once again told not to concern himself with the fate of the ungodly, but to fix his attention, rather, on the salvation which the righteous attain (cf. viii. 55). This declaration is not, as Volkmar and, later, Gunkel have supposed, the enunciation of a new subject for discussion in the visions that follow, but merely a recapitulation of what has already been discussed in the former part of the present vision. The seer's reply is also a repetition of former complaints about the large number of those who perish (ix. 15-16). The final form of the divine reply follows (vv. 17-22). The evil of the present world is due to man's sin. There was a time—before the generation of men had been created—when none defied the Most High; but now those who have been placed in the world, which has been provided and furnished for their needs, have degenerated and become corrupt. In order that the purpose of Creation shall not be entirely frustrated a few have been spared—'a grape out of a cluster, a plant out of a great forest': 'Perish, then, the multitude which has been born in vain: but let my grape be preserved, and my plant, which with much labour I have perfected.'

It should be noted that the preservation of a small remnant from the corrupt mass is due entirely to special efforts on God's part. In other words, it must be attributed entirely to the divine grace.

13. be thou no longer curious . . . the righteous shall be saved. Cf. 2 Bar. xlvi. 48.

15. more who perish than shall be saved. Cf. vii. 47.

16. as the flood is greater than a drop. Cf. iv. 48-50.

17. as are the flowers, so are the colours. Brilliant colouring betokens a beautiful flower.

18. For there was (a time) in the eternal ages . . . they might dwell. So \mathbb{S} (cf. crit. note). The Latin (apparently misreading the Greek, see EA, p. 207) renders: quoniam tempus erat saeculi et tunc cum essem parans eis qui nunc, antequam fieret illis saeculum in quo inhabitarent = 'For there was a time in the world, even then when I was preparing for them that now live, before the world was made for them to dwell in; [and then,] &c.]; R.V. The Latin misses and obscures the point. To say that there was a time in the history of the world—which had been created for man's sake—when sin and rebellion did not exist, viz. before man had appeared on the scene, adds point to the divine indictment of the human race that follows: but to say (as the Latin text says) that before the world was made man did not exist, and therefore could not sin, is banal. The Ethiop. agrees essentially with the Syr. (cf. Violet); but the original Greek text appears to have been in some disorder in the MSS. used by the Latin and Ethiop.

19. (a world) made ready with both an unfailing table and an unexplorable pasture. The reference is to Paradise and its marvellous fruits ('an unfailing table') which its trees bear without cessation. The banquet which the righteous are to enjoy in the future world is often referred to (sometimes also in Messianic passages): cf. Rev. ii. 7 ('hidden manna') and see Bousset, *RJ*², p. 327: the Greek of the phrase 'an unexplorable (= mysterious) pasture' = (εις) νομόν ανεξιχνευτον (Volk.). The Versions read νόμον, 'law', for νομόν, 'pasture' (or? νομήν): hence 'unsearchable law' (R. V.).

VI. ix. 23-25. CONCLUSION OF THE VISION (S).

23 But if ⁱthou wilt separate thyselfⁱ yet seven more days—thou shalt not, however, fast in them, 24 but shalt go into a field of flowers, where no house has been built, and eat only ^jof the fruit of the 25 field^j; and thou shalt taste no flesh and drink no wine, but (eat) only the fruit—and pray unto the Most High continually, then I will come and talk with thee.

THE FOURTH VISION.

(ix. 26-x. 59.)

I. ix. 26-28. INTRODUCTION (S).

26 So I went, as he commanded me, into the field which is called ^kArdat^k, and there I sat among 27 the flowers, and did eat of the herbs of the field; ^land the eating thereof satisfied me^l. And it ⁱ⁻¹ so S: L [si] intermittas ^{j-j} so Ethiop. L de floribus campi ^{k-k} so L (S); = Ar.² (?); v. l. Adar, Ardad, Ardad, Ardaf: S Ethiop. Arpad (cf. 2 Kings xviii. 34); Ar.¹ Araab or Araat; Arm. Ardab ^{l-1} L et facta est esca earum mihi in saturitatem

ix. 23-25. This short section forms the conclusion of the long third vision and the transition to the fourth. The seer is bidden to wait another seven days, when a further revelation shall be vouchsafed to him. He is, however, expressly told not to fast—as he had done in preparation for former visions—but to go into a field of flowers, and eat only flowers (?) or herbs of the field; he is, moreover, to abstain from tasting flesh and wine, and is bidden to pray continually. The field is to be destitute of any building. As the following vision makes clear, this locality is to be the scene of a vision of the Heavenly Jerusalem. The direction as to eating only of the produce of the field is remarkable. What is its significance? It is clearly not to be regarded as on a par with the strict fast, from which it is expressly distinguished. Moreover, in the introduction to the third vision (vi. 35) the seer says that he fasted seven days in order to complete the three weeks of fasting that had been commanded him (i.e. a week of fasting before each of the first three visions). Thus this form of preparation had reached its climax at the beginning of the third vision, and it is curious to note that no further direct mention of fasting is met with in the remaining chapters of the book (x-xiv), though contexts occur in which such might have been expected (cf. xi. 1, xiii. 1, xiv. 1).¹

Is, then, the direction as to eating herbs or flowers here to be regarded as a substitute for fasting proper—as a form of half-fasting? This is possible, as abstinence from flesh and wine is decidedly in the direction of a mild asceticism. But it may be argued that more probably what is intended is rather in the nature of an antithesis to strict fasting. It should be remembered that the destruction of the Holy City—and, above all, of the Temple—in A. D. 70 gave rise to a widespread ascetic movement among the Jewish people who survived, especially in Palestine. Many gave expression to their grief in severe and regular forms of fasting. It is this situation which is contemplated here. The seer is about to receive a vision in which grief at the desolation—bitter as it is—of the earthly Sion is to be transcended by a vision of the heavenly City. He is bidden, therefore, not to fast, but, in solitude, and far from human habitation and proximity, to prepare himself by partaking of the simplest food of nature, and by prayer, for the coming revelation. The food most appropriate in the circumstances would be that of the primaeval age and the age of man's innocence. See further EA, p. 209 f.

24. thou shalt taste no flesh . . . no wine, but (eat) only the fruit, i. e. eat only what grows in the field. So Daniel and his companions ate only vegetable food, and drank water rather than suffer defilement; cf. 2 Macc. v. 27.

ix. 26-x. 59. THE FOURTH VISION. The following vision seems to have been preserved largely without interpolation, and as it was composed by the author of S, the pen of the Redactor (R) only coming into evidence in one or two places and in the transitional verses at the end (x. 58-59). The composition is even and flowing, and moves in an easy logical sequence. The seer proceeds, as he has been commanded, to a field which bears the mysterious name of 'Ardat', and there lives on herbs for seven days (ix. 26-28). Then he addresses God, giving utterance to the thoughts that have arisen within him. Israel had been entrusted with the divine Law—it had been sown in their hearts—but they had failed to keep it. The vessel that received it was doomed to perish because of sin, while the Law remained 'in its honour', imperishable (ix. 29-37). This speech is interrupted by a vision of a woman in distress, who is mourning the death of an only son—a son who, born after thirty years of sterility, had died on the very morning of his wedding. The seer, therefore, by way of consolation, admonishes her that her loss is small compared with the disasters that have befallen the chosen people as a whole, and more especially the crowning disaster of the destruction of Sion (ix. 38-x. 24). Then suddenly the scene changes: the woman vanishes, and in her place appears a great and splendid city—the heavenly Sion (x. 25-28). The section closes with an account of the intervention of the angel (Uriel) and the explanation of the vision given by him to the seer (x. 29-57, followed by the conclusion x. 58-59).

The whole section thus falls into the following divisions:—

i. Introduction (ix. 26-28);

ii. The abiding glory of the Law and Israel: a contrast (ix. 29-37);

iii. The vision of the Disconsolate Woman (ix. 38-x. 24).

With this vision, which transports him into the heavenly world, the Apocalypse of Salathiel doubtless ended. The visions that follow, as we shall see, belong to other sources. Some fragments of the work of S are embedded in these later visions (xii. 40-48 and xiv. 28-35); these will be discussed later in connexion with their present contexts.

ix. 26-28. The mysterious locality which is described as 'the field which is called Ardat', whither the seer went, in accordance with the divine command, and meditated for seven days, living on 'the herbs of the field,' has been the subject of much debate. The view that the name means 'the wilderness of Judah' (Lücke) or (as Arbah = ערבה,

¹ This fact affords a strong confirmation of the correctness of the critical analysis which separates these chapters from the Salathiel-Apocalypse.

S 28 came to pass after seven days, as I lay upon the grass, that my heart was again troubled as before. Then ^m I opened my mouth ^m, and began to address the Most High.

II. ix. 29-37. THE ABIDING GLORY OF THE LAW, AND ISRAEL: A CONTRAST (S).

29 And I said: ⁿ O Lord ⁿ, thou didst verily reveal thyself unto our fathers ^o in the wilderness ^p when they went forth out of Egypt, and when they walked through the untrodden and unfruitful wilder-30 ness; and thou didst say:

O Israel, hear thou me;

O seed of Jacob, attend unto my words!

31 For, behold, I sowed my Law in you, and it shall bring forth fruit in you, and ye shall be glorified in it for ever.

32 But our fathers, who received the Law, observed it not, and the statutes they did not keep, and yet
33 the fruit of the Law did not perish, nor could it—because it was thine; but they who received it
34 perished, because they kept not that which had been sown in them. ^q Now, it is a general rule ^q that, when the ground has received seed, or the sea a ship, or any other vessel food or drink, ^r and when it happens that what is sown ^r, or ^s what is launched ^s, or the things that have been taken in come to 35 an end,—these come to an end, while the receptacles remain: but with us it has not been so.
36 We who have received the Law and sinned must perish, together with our heart, which has taken 37 it in: the Law, however, perishes not, but abides in its glory.

^{m-m} so *Ethiop. Ar.*¹: \mathbb{L} apertum est os meum: so \mathbb{S} *Ar.*² ⁿ⁻ⁿ so \mathbb{L} : but \mathbb{S} Ethiop. O Lord my Lord (= $\Delta\epsilon\sigma\pi\omicron\tau\alpha$ κυριε)

^o \mathbb{L} + in nobis (prob. a gloss): other VSS. > ^p \mathbb{S} + of Sinai ^{q-q} = \mathbb{S} and this is the rule (Heb. וזה הכלל): \mathbb{L} et ecce consuetudo ^{r-r} so \mathbb{L} : \mathbb{S} > ^{s-s} \mathbb{L} quod missum est ^{t-t} so \mathbb{S} *Ar.*¹ Arm. \mathbb{L} et respexi oculis meis ^{u-u} reading adii-

'desert') is a symbolical name for the Holy Land generally, which might have been represented at the end of the first century A.D. as a veritable wilderness to the Jews (Volkmar), may be at once dismissed. More plausible is the suggestion put forward by Mr. Rendel Harris (The Rest of the Words of Baruch [Cambridge, 1889], pp. 35-39) that the locality intended is the neighbourhood of Abraham's oak, near Hebron. This would be a highly suitable place for a divine revelation; and, moreover, Hebron is mentioned in 2 Baruch as one of the seats of prophetic inspiration (xlvi. 1). Prof. Harris concludes that the scene of the fifth vision in 4 Ezra (ch. xi) is Hebron, and that this is identical with the scene of the fourth vision, i. e. 'the field of Ardat'. But in this view no account has been taken of the different sources which appear in these chapters; the connexion of the scene of the two visions is a purely artificial one, and is due to the compiler. Nor is it at all certain that the 'oak' mentioned in 4 Ezra xiv. 1 as the place where Ezra received the revelation is 'Abraham's oak', as Prof. Harris supposes. It may have been some well-known tree in Jerusalem (see notes ad loc.).

Thus the attempt to locate 'the field of Ardat' at Hebron cannot be regarded as successful. Whatever may be the true explanation of the name 'Ardat', it seems clear that its significance must be mainly of a symbolical character. The repeated statement that the mysterious place was one 'where no house has been built' (ix. 24, x. 51) not only excludes the actual site of the ruined earthly Jerusalem, but also points to a place which was still untouched by human hand, and so fit to be the spot where the heavenly city could (temporarily) rest. Presumably the reader was expected to think of this locality as in the immediate neighbourhood of Babylon, where Salathiel is represented as residing at the beginning of the Apocalypse (4 Ezra iii. 1).

One slight indication (cf. x. 58) suggests that the time when this revelation took place was during the day, and not by night, as is the case with the dream-visions. See further EA, p. 212 f.

ix. 29-37. After seven days' meditation in 'Ardat' the seer gives characteristic expression once again to the thoughts which have agitated his heart. This takes the form of a soliloquy on the relation of Israel to the Law. At the Exodus from Egypt—when Israel became a nation—God had sown the Law in the heart of His people, with the promise: 'It shall bring forth fruit in you, and ye shall be glorified in it for ever' (ix. 31). But the fathers observed it not; yet 'the fruit of the Law did not perish'—it could not—because it was essentially divine. But 'they who received it perished, because they kept not that which had been sown in them'. The law that obtains in the natural world is that the receptacles remain after that which they have received has passed away—for instance, the ground remains after the seed that has been sown in it has sprung up and been gathered, the sea remains after the ship that has been launched in it has come to an end, and so on. But with Israel it is different. For 'we who have received the Law and sinned must perish, together with our heart, which has taken it in: the Law, however, perishes not, but abides in its glory'.

The application of the moral remains. The divine element is eternal—the corruptible vessel that receives it perishes. Even so the eternal reality which was partially and imperfectly expressed by the earthly Jerusalem remains; but the vessel that mediated it has perished. The earthly vessel (i. e. the earthly Jerusalem) has been destroyed—it has perished: how foolish and perverse to look for its revival! Hope should rather be fixed on the eternal City which exists—and has always existed—in the incorruptible world, and which is to be enjoyed by those who pass into the blessed immortal life of the age that is to come. The confirmation of the truth of these hopes—and the answer to any lingering doubts that may remain—is the burden of the vision that follows (ix. 38 f.).

29. thou didst verily reveal thyself. The reference is to such passages as Ex. xix. 9, xxiv. 10, &c.

when they went forth out of Egypt. Cf. Judges xi. 16.

31. For, behold, I sowed my Law in you . . . in it for ever. This is the author's paraphrase of the O.T. description of the relation set up between God and Israel by Israel's acceptance of the Law, and entry into the covenant-relation with God. He reads into the naïve O.T. promises of temporal reward his own transcendental views, and understands the glory promised to Israel to mean the unfading glory of the eternal and incorruptible heavenly world. For a similar heightening of O.T. language cf. vii. 12), where Deut. xxx. 19 is cited ('Choose thee life', &c., i. e. eternal life).

37. the Law, however, &c. The Law does not perish because it comes from heaven: it is spiritual (πνευματικός,

III. ix. 38-x. 24. THE VISION OF THE DISCONSOLATE WOMAN (S).

38 And when I spake thus in my heart ^t I lifted up my eyes ^t, and saw a woman upon the right ; and lo ! she was mourning and weeping with a loud voice, and was much grieved in mind, and her clothes 39 were rent and there were ashes upon her head. Then I dismissed my thoughts in which I had been 40 preoccupied, and turned to her and said : Wherefore weepest thou ? And why art thou grieved in 41 thy mind ? And she said unto me : Suffer me, my lord, to indulge my sorrow and ^u continue my grief ^u, for I am embittered in soul and deeply afflicted.

42 And I said unto her : What has befallen thee ? tell me.

43 She said unto me : I, thy servant, was barren, and bore no child, though I had a husband thirty 44 years. Both hourly and daily during these thirty years I besought the Most High night and day.

45 And it came to pass after thirty years

God heard thy handmaid and looked upon my affliction ;
 He considered my distress, and gave me a son.

And I rejoiced in him greatly, I and my husband and ^v all my fellow townfolk ^v, and we gave great 47 glory unto ^w the Mighty One ^w. And I reared him with great travail. So when he was grown up,
 I came to take ^x him ^x a wife, and made ^y a feast day ^y.

1 And it came to pass when my son entered into his wedding chamber, he fell down and died.
 2 Then ^z I removed the lights ^z, and all my fellow townfolk rose up to comfort me ; but I remained 3 quiet ^a until the night of the next day ^a. ^b And it came to pass when they were all quiet (and desisted) from consoling, as I remained quiet ^b, I rose up by night, and fled, and came to this field, 4 as thou seest. And I purpose ^c never again ^c to return to the city, but here to stay and neither eat
 5 nor drink, but continually to mourn and to fast till I die. Then I left the thoughts in which I was 6 still occupied, and answered her in anger, and said : O thou above all other women most foolish !
 7 Seest thou not our mourning, and what has befallen us ? How Sion, the mother of us all, is in great
 8 grief and deep affliction ? ^d It is right now to mourn ^d, seeing that we all mourn, and to grieve, seeing 9 that we are all grief-stricken ; thou, however, art grief-stricken for one son ^e. But ask the earth, and ciam dolere ^{v-v} so § (lit. all the sons of my town) Ethiop. *Ar.*¹ *Ar.*² : ℒ omnes cives mei ^{w-w} ℒ Fortem (= του ισχυρον = האל in LXX) ^{x-x} read. ng ei ^{y-y} ℒ diem epuli : § + and great rejoicing ^{z-z} cf. § (1st pers.

sing.) : ℒ evertimus omnes lumina (everti = ? καθειλον = Heb. הסיר) ^{a-a} so Ethiop. ℒ usque in alium diem usque in noctem ^{b-b} ℒ et factum est cum omnes quievissent ut me consolarentur ut quiescerem (original Heb. text perhaps was : שני מחריש לפי שאני מחריש ליהי בהיותם מחרישים כגם מנחם see EA, p. 221) ^{c-c} so § (= μηκετι) ; cf. *Ar.*¹
*Ar.*² : ℒ iam non (= ? μη αρι) ^{d-d} so § *Ar.*¹ = ℒ (Violet) : lugere validissimum est nunc (BJ lugete validissime [end of v. 7]. Et nunc) ^e § + but we the whole world for our mother Rom. vii. 14) : cf. also 2 Cor. iii. 7 f. [With vv. 36, 37 cf. 2 Bar. xiv. 19 : 'And now I see that as for the world which was made on account of us, lo ! it abides, but we, on account of whom it was made, depart.']

ix. 38-x. 24. We now reach the final sections of the Salathiel-Apocalypse. It is altogether fitting that the close of the (Salathiel) book should contain a revelation of the realities of the future world where, according to the theology of S, the felicity and blessedness of the righteous can alone be consummated ; and it accords with what would be expected that this revelation should be concerned with that part of the heavenly realities (viz. the heavenly City) whose earthly counterpart (viz. Jerusalem), in its humiliation and ruin, had formed the starting-point of the debates of the Apocalypse (cf. iii. 27). It has already been declared (cf. viii. 52) that the heavenly Sion is one of the things which belong to the eternal order, and which should be made freely available for the enjoyment of the righteous after the final Judgement. It is this heavenly reality which is now manifested to the seer. An examination of this section and the following makes it clear that the disconsolate woman who appears to the seer, mourning the death of her only son, must be the heavenly Sion : she cannot be identified with the earthly Jerusalem, as Kabisch justly points out, without making the story meaningless. See further EA, p. 216 f.

38. ashes upon her head. A sign of grief and humiliation. Cf. 2 Sam. xiii. 19 ; Isa. lxi. 3.

45. we gave great glory. To 'give God the glory' (cf. Luke xvii. 18) for boons bestowed was an all-important religious duty. The fact that this duty was religiously performed seems to be emphasized here in order to exclude the possibility of a suggestion that the calamity which followed was a judgement of God (so Gunkel).

47. a feast day. Cf. Matt. xxii. 2 ; Luke xiv. 16.

x. 1. and died. With the death of the bridegroom here cp. the story in Tobit (esp. ch. viii). Kabisch thinks this points to a knowledge of the Book of Tobit by S ; but this does not necessarily follow.

2. I removed the lights. For the wedding lights cf. Matt. xxv. 7. Note the violent contrast between the brilliant illumination of the wedding-feast and the sudden darkness following on the death of the bridegroom.

to comfort me. To condole with mourners as well as to assist in the burial of the dead is a part of the practice of benevolence.

I remained quiet. A mother's grief would normally show itself in loud lamentation ; but here she remains dumb.

7. Sion, the mother of us all. Cf. Gal. iv. 26 (but there of the heavenly Jerusalem).

8. It is right now to mourn, &c. The point of the passage is that the nation is now plunged into calamities, and therefore all may now properly mourn.

S she shall tell thee, that it is she who ought to mourn ^f the fall of so many ^f that have sprung into 10 being upon her. ^g Yea, from the beginning all who have been born, and others who are to come—11 lo! they go ^g almost all into perdition, and the multitude of them comes to destruction. Who, then, should mourn the more? Ought not she that has lost so great a multitude? or thou who grievest 12 but for one? But if thou sayest to me: My lamentation is not like the earth's, for I have lost the fruit of my womb

which I bare with pains and brought forth with sorrows—

13 ^h but as regards the earth, (it is) according to the course of nature ^h; the multitude present in it is 14 gone as it came: then I say to thee: Just as thou hast borne (offspring) with sorrow, even so also the earth has borne (given) her fruit, namely man, from the beginning unto him that made her.

15 Now, therefore, keep thy sorrow within, and bear gallantly the misfortunes that have befallen thee.

16 For if thou wilt acknowledge God's decree to be just, thou shalt receive thy son again in (due) time, 17, 18 and shalt be praised among women. Therefore go into the city to thy husband. And she said unto 19 me: ⁱ I will not do so ⁱ: I will not enter the city, but here will I die. So I proceeded to speak further 20 unto her, and said: ^j No, woman! no, woman! ^j do not do so;

but ^k suffer thyself to be prevailed upon by reason of Sion's misfortunes ^k, be consoled by reason of Jerusalem's sorrow.

21 For thou seest how our sanctuary is laid waste, ^l our altar ^l thrown down;
 our Temple destroyed,
 our harp laid low;
 22 our song is silenced,
 our rejoicing ceased;
 the light of our lamp is extinguished,
 the ark of our covenant spoiled;
 our holy things are defiled,
 the name that is called upon us ^m is profaned ^m;

^{f-f} reading tantorum casum (MSS. > casum): so *Ethiop. Ar.*¹ ^{g-g} \mathbb{L} (Violet) et ex ipso initio omnes nati et alii venientes, ecce, &c.; cf. \mathbb{S} ^{h-h} \mathbb{L} terra autem secundum viam terrae ⁱ⁻ⁱ so \mathbb{S} (cf. *Ethiop. Ar.*¹):
 \mathbb{L} non faciam ^{j-j} so \mathbb{S} : other VSS. > ^{k-k} so \mathbb{S} Arm.: \mathbb{L} consenti persuaderi quid enim casus Sion
^{l-l} \mathbb{S} > ^{m-m} so \mathbb{S} (cf. *Ethiop. Ar.*¹): \mathbb{L} paene profanatum est

14. even so also the earth. The idea is peculiar and the parallel intended not quite clear. Man is earth's highest production; but this her choicest fruit is produced only to be gathered in by the Creator (i. e. ? by the death of man); and the constant loss of her best, in this way, involves the earth in ceaseless anguish. Such seems to be the general meaning intended.

16. thou wilt acknowledge . . . to be just. Cf. Ps. of Sol. viii. 7, 27, 31; ii. 16; Luke vii. 29, 35. To acknowledge the justice of God's decree is equivalent to pious submission to His will.

thou shalt receive thy son again in (due) time, i. e. either the dead son shall be restored to life, or another son shall be given to her in his stead, and so she shall win honour among women. It is possible that, as Gunkel suggests, the sequel of the original story set forth the restoration of the dead son to life; but it is significant that the writer here says nothing of this. He stops short at relating the son's death.

21. our Temple, i. e. the Temple-building proper, exclusive of the outer court.

our harp laid low: 'harp' here probably symbolizes the service of praise which has ceased in the ruined sanctuary.

22. our rejoicing ceased. Cf. Isa. xxiv. 8, 9.

the light of our lamp . . . extinguished. The extinction of the continual lamp marked the cessation of the functions of the Temple-services and sacrifices; cf. 1 Macc. iv. 36-59.

the ark of our covenant spoiled. This detail, of course, fits the position of the historical Salathiel (in the Exile), and can only be referred in strictness to the first Temple. The ark of the Covenant disappeared at the destruction of Solomon's Temple, and nothing took its place in the later Temples. Two divergent traditions are met with as to its fate; according to the one (which our text follows) the ark was carried off with the other holy vessels into Babylonia (cf. 2 Chron. xxxvi. 10); according to the other, the ark was concealed within the Temple; cf. 2 Macc. ii. 5-8 and 2 Bar. vi. What is the significance of the mention of the spoiling of the ark in our passage? Perhaps the writer intended to suggest that it was vain to look for the restoration of the ark and other holy things in the Messianic Age in the last times. In other words, there would be no Messianic Age, and no restoration of the Temple on earth. The other form of the legend which makes the ark to be concealed within the Temple precincts seems to be governed by the idea that it would be brought to light again in the Messianic Age. It is significant that these two contradictory ideas are represented in 4 Ezra and 2 Baruch respectively.

our holy things are defiled, i. e. the holy vessels which fell into the hands of the heathen. The writer, though the reference is directly to the first Temple, is thinking of the similar events connected with the destruction in A. D. 70 (e. g. the great candelabrum fell into the hands of Titus).

the name that is called upon us, i. e. the sacred name that has been bestowed upon us by God, the name of Israel; cf. Gen. xxxii. 28.

our nobles are dishonoured, our priests burnt,
 our Levites gone into captivity;
 our virgins are defiled,
 our wives ravished;
ⁿ our righteous are seized, [our saints scattered,] our children are cast out ⁿ, our youths are enslaved,
 our heroes made powerless:
 23 and, what is more than all—
 Zion's seal ^o is now sealed up dishonoured ^o, and given up into the hands of them that hate us.
 24 Do thou, then, shake off thy great grief, abandon thy much sorrow,
 That the Mighty One may again forgive thee, and the Most High give thee rest,
 a respite from thy troubles!

IV. x. 25-28. SION'S GLORY: THE VISION OF THE HEAVENLY JERUSALEM (S).

25 And it came to pass, while I was talking to her, lo!
 her countenance on a sudden shone exceedingly,
 and ^p her aspect became brilliant as lightning ^p, so that I was too much afraid ^a (to approach her, and my heart was terrified exceedingly) ^a: and 26 while I was debating what this might mean, she suddenly uttered a loud and fearful cry, so that the 27 earth shook at the noise. And when I looked, lo! the woman was no longer visible to me, ^r but there was a City builded ^r, and a place showed itself of large foundations. Then I was afraid, and 28 cried with a loud voice, and said: Where is Uriel, the angel who came unto me at the first? For he it is who has caused me to fall into this great bewilderment; and so ^s my prayer ^s is made futile,
 and my request disappointed!

V. x. 29-57. INTERPRETATION OF THE VISION (S).

29 And while I was speaking thus, lo! the angel came to me, who had come to me at the first; and ⁿ⁻ⁿ All VSS. give only two clauses here, except Ar.² which has three; clauses 1 and 3 are attested by \mathfrak{L} Ethiop. Ar.¹: \mathfrak{S} (in an emended form) supports clause 2 and omits clause 3; see for details EA, p. 228 f. ^{o-o} \mathfrak{L} resignata est de gloria sua nunc ^{p-p} \mathfrak{L} species coruscus fiebat vultus eius ^{q-q} so \mathfrak{S} Ethiop. Ar.¹: but \mathfrak{L} ad eam ^{r-r} so Oriental VSS.: \mathfrak{L} sed civitas aedificabatur ^{s-s} \mathfrak{L} finis meus = \mathfrak{S} Ethiop. Ar.¹ (cf. R.V. mine end):
 prob., as Violet suggests, there was a corruption in the Hebr. text here, תכלתי being misread תכלתי our priests burnt. An allusion to the destruction of the Temple by fire. Josephus (Wars, vi. 5. 1) specially mentions two priests of eminence, who threw themselves into the fire 'and were burnt together with the holy house'.

23. Zion's seal is now sealed up dishonoured, lit. 'is sealed up away from its honour', i.e. is robbed of its honour. The 'seal of Zion' is doubtless a symbolical representation of Zion's independence. A more specific allusion to the issue of a national coinage may be intended; see EA, p. 229. In vv. 22-23 the utter ruin of Israel is set forth in detail.

24. may again forgive thee. The death of the son manifested God's wrath; therefore divine forgiveness was necessary.

x. 25-28.

25. her aspect became brilliant as lightning. This recalls the representation of the heavenly bride (= the heavenly Jerusalem) of Rev. xxi. 9; cf. Rev. xii. 1.

27. of large foundations. Cf. Rev. xxi. 19 f.

28. my prayer is made futile, &c. The seer hastily concludes that the revelation regarding Israel's future glory—how it was to be attained (cf. ix. 29-37)—which he had been expecting and for which he was longing so ardently, has been denied him, because the vision he has seen has simply left him in a state of bewilderment and terror, while in fact it is but the prelude to a revelation all the more complete. This, as Gunkel remarks, is a fine touch.

The state of terror into which the seer falls at the marvellous transfiguration of the woman is a feature derived, doubtless, from the actual experience of such ecstasies; cf. similar features in Hermas.

x. 29-57. The interpretation of the vision by the angel follows. The seer is told that the transfigured woman is Zion. Which Zion? the heavenly or the earthly? The most natural interpretation is that the heavenly Zion is represented by the woman. In this case her son must stand for the earthly Jerusalem, and the son's death for the downfall and ruin of the earthly city. It is difficult on any other interpretation to understand the significance of the son in the allegorical interpretation. If the woman stands for the earthly Zion, whom does her son represent? According to Wellhausen (Skizzen, vi, p. 219 n.), the Messiah! But how can the Messiah have been pictured as being born when the Temple was founded by Solomon, and dying when the Temple was destroyed? The true explanation seems to be

- S 30 when he saw that I lay on the ground as one dead, 'my understanding being confused', he grasped my right hand and strengthened me, and set me on my feet, and said to me:
- 31 What aileth thee?
Why art thou so disquieted?
Wherefore is thy understanding confused, and the thoughts of thy heart?
- 32 And I said: Because thou hast forsaken me! Yet I did as thou commandedst, and went into the field, and lo! I have seen—^u and yet see ^u—that which I am unable to express.
- 33, 34 And he said unto me: Stand up like a man, and I will advise thee. Then said I: Speak on, my lord; only forsake me not, lest I die to no purpose.
- 35 For I have seen what I did not know ^v and heard ^v what I do not understand.
- 36 Or is my mind deceived, and my soul in a dream?
- 37 Now, therefore, I beseech thee to show thy servant concerning this perplexity!
- 38 And he answered me, and said:
Hear me, and I will teach thee, and tell thee concerning the things thou art afraid of;
for the Most High hath revealed many secrets unto thee.
- 39 For he hath seen ^w thy righteous conduct ^w, how thou hast sorrowed continually for thy people, and mourned greatly on account of Sion—
- 40, 41 ^xThe matter, therefore, is as follows.^x The woman who appeared to thee a little while ago, whom 42 ^ythou sawest ^y mourning and beganest to comfort: whereas now thou seest no likeness of a woman
43 any more, but ^za builded City ^z hath appeared unto thee: and whereas she told thee of the misfortune
44 of her son—this is the interpretation: This woman, whom thou sawest, is Sion, whom thou now
45 beholdest as a builded City; And whereas she said unto thee that she was barren thirty years: the reason is that there were ^athree thousand years ^a in the world before any offering was offered ^b in (it)

^{t-t} \mathbb{L} et intellectus meus alienatus erat (= ? και ο νους μου ηλλοτριωθη) ^{u-u} \mathbb{L} et video; so \mathbb{S} : but Ethiop. Ar.¹ Arm. >
^{v-v} reading audivi (C M) = Ethiop. Ar.¹ Ar.² Arm.: \mathbb{S} I hear = audio (S A) ^{w-w} \mathbb{L} rectam viam tuam: \mathbb{S} (cf. Ethiop.) = την ευθυτητα σου ^{x-x} so \mathbb{S} (= ουτος ουν εστιν ο λογος: וזה הדבר): cf. Ethiop. Arm.: \mathbb{L} hic ergo intellectus visionis ^{y-y} \mathbb{S} > ^{z-z} so Oriental VSS.: \mathbb{L} civitas aedificari (R.V. a city in building) ^{a-a} so all the Versions except the Arm. (which has many years) and \mathbb{L} (best MSS.) anni . . . tres ^{b-b} reading in eo (for in that the mother represents the heavenly, and the son the earthly Sion. For a full discussion of alternative views see EA, p. 233 f.

The original meaning of the vision has been obscured by two slight alterations in the text from the pen of R; in v. 45, 'in it' (= ἐν αὐτῷ, i.e. in the world) has been changed to 'in her' (= ἐν αὐτῇ, i.e. in Sion), thus producing the meaning that for 3,000 years no oblation was offered in Sion, i.e. the earthly Sion; and in v. 46 'David' has been altered into 'Solomon'. In this way R secures the interpretation that the woman = the earthly Sion; the son = the Temple (the son's birth = the founding of the Temple by Solomon), &c.; while the transfiguration of the woman is a prophecy of the future glory of the earthly Sion. But this destroys the original significance of the vision, and cannot be harmonized with the theology of S. See further EA, loc. cit.

29-30. and when he saw that I lay on the ground as one dead. For the representation cf. Dan. viii. 17, 18; x. 9, 10, 15; Rev. i. 17, &c.

and set me on my feet. Cf. v. 15; vi. 13, 17.

32. and yet see. The vision of the City is still before the seer's eyes.

that which I am unable to express. Cf. 2 Cor. xii. 4 (also of an ecstatic experience).

33. Stand up like a man. Cf. v. 15; vi. 13, 17.

45. three thousand years. For text see crit. note. Gunkel adopts the Latin 'three years', and (with Wellhausen) explains thus: the three years = the three years that elapsed after Solomon became king and before he began to build the Temple (cf. 1 Kings vi. 1 with vi. 38); and these three years mystically = three millennial years, i.e. 3,000 years. But according to v. 45 in the Latin the three years = thirty years, i.e. thirty generations (?); thus it would have a mystical meaning (3,000), a literal (three), and again a literal (= thirty generations) meaning, all in juxtaposition. It is better to adopt the reading of the Versions (3,000), and to regard this as an actual reckoning (see next verse).

before any offering was offered in it (i.e. in the world). The Lat. has quando non erat in ea adhuc oblatio oblata = 'when as yet there was no offering offered in her' (i.e. in Sion; so all the other Versions). By the slight emendation suggested by Kabisch (viz. to read in eo [ἐν αὐτῷ] for in ea) the difficulty of the text-reading can be removed. In her can only mean in the civitas aedificata, which for 3,000 years was without a son, i.e. the heavenly Sion; but the statement that no offering was as yet offered in the heavenly Sion is meaningless. The unfruitfulness of the heavenly Sion consisted rather in the fact that for 3,000 years there was on the earth—in this aeon—no corresponding reality, no aedificata civitas where the cultus of the sacrificial worship was established. (So Kabisch.)

It is true altars had been erected and sacrifices offered before the time of David (e.g. by Abraham, Gen. xxii. 9, and others); but no 'regular system of sacrifice' had been established in one spot which was sufficient to make this the earthly dwelling-place of Jahveh. At any rate such seems to have been the view of S, who in his survey of the 46 (i.e. in the world)^b. And it came to pass after ^cthree thousand years that ^{c d}(David)^d built the City, 47 and offered offerings: then it was that the barren bare a son. And whereas she told thee that she 48 reared him with travail: ^ethat was the (divine) dwelling in Jerusalem^e. And whereas she said unto thee: 'My son entering into his marriage-chamber died,'^f and that misfortune befell her^f—this was 49 the fall of Jerusalem that has come to pass. And lo! thou hast seen ^gthe (heavenly) pattern of her^g, how she mourned her son, and thou didst begin to comfort her for what had befallen^h.

50 Now, the Most High seeing that thou art grievedⁱ deeplyⁱ and art distressed whole-heartedly on account of her;
 hath showed thee the brilliance of her glory, and^j her majestic beauty^j.

52 Therefore I bade thee remain in the field where no house has been builded; for I knew that the 53 Most High was about to reveal all these things unto thee. ^k[Therefore I bade thee come into the 54 field where no foundation of any building is, for in the place where the City of the Most High was about to be revealed no building-work of man could endure^k.]

55 Therefore be not thou afraid, and let not thy heart be terrified; but go in and see the brightness and^l vastness of the building, as far as it is possible for thee with the sight of thine eyes to see!

ea) ^{c-c} see note a above ^{d-d} all the VSS. read Solomon; see exegetical note ^{e-e} \mathfrak{L} haec erat habitatio Hierusalem ^{f-f} so \mathfrak{L} Ar.¹: Ethiop. has direct speech (this grief befell me): $\mathfrak{S} >$ ^{g-g} \mathfrak{L} similitudinem eius
^h \mathfrak{L} + haec erant tibi aperienda = Ar.²: other VSS. $>$ (doubtless a gloss) ⁱ⁻¹ \mathfrak{L} ex animo ^{j-j} \mathfrak{L} pulchritudinem decoris eius (Hebr. תפארת הִירָרָה) ^{k-k} vv. 51-52 and 53-54 are doublets: perhaps 53-4 are more original ^{l-1} so all VSS. except \mathfrak{L} which has vel world's history in ch. iii ignores all previous sacrifices and offerings till he reaches the name of David. The earthly Jerusalem became the holy city—the civitas Dei—when David offered sacrifices in it. Cf. iii. 24.

46. after three thousand years. According to the LXX at least 4,227 years elapsed from the Creation to the founding of the Temple; thus S here follows the Hebrew text against the LXX. The period between the Creation of the world and the foundation of the Temple is estimated by Gutschmidt to be 3,043 years. Allowing 430 years for the oppression which ended in the Exodus (cf. Exod. xii. 40), and deducting from this the first three years of Solomon's reign and the forty years of David's, we reach 3,000 as the sum of the years from Creation to the beginning of David's reign, which may be the point of time fixed on by the apocalyptic writer as that of the founding of the earthly Zion, though, as a matter of fact, it was seven years later. This presupposes the emendation of 'Solomon' in the next clause to 'David' (see following note).

[It is true that in vii. 28 the reckoning 400 for the years of the oppression, in accordance with Gen. xv. 13, is implied; but that passage belongs to a different source.]

David built the City. All the Versions read 'Solomon'; but this is inconsistent with iii. 24 ('David; and thou commandedst him to build the City (which is called) after thy name, and to offer thee oblations therein of thine own'). There is, therefore, a strong presumption that the emendation adopted above (proposed by Kabisch) is right. If the reading of the Versions is retained 'City' must be understood to mean 'Temple'; so Ar. and Arm. add 'Temple' here ('the City and the Temple'). Volkmar is obliged to explain that in the apocalyptic writer's thought Temple and City are identical, so that he can speak indifferently now of one, now of the other, and similarly interchange David and Solomon. From the language of S, however, it seems clear that it was the inauguration of the regular 'offering of oblations' to God in the earthly Zion that constituted it as the civitas Dei. The altar erected to the Lord (cf. 2 Sam. xxiv. 18 f.; 1 Chron. xxi. 28, xxii. 1) by David marked the turning-point; this was the most sacred spot in the Holy City—the Temple, erected later, being regarded merely as the shelter or covering which contained it. To the apocalyptic writer (S) David was the founder and builder of Jerusalem, regarded as the one holy city of God (cf. iii. 24).

a son, i.e. the earthly Jerusalem (the heavenly Jerusalem being the mother). The representation of Jerusalem as a son, and not as a daughter, is certainly peculiar. It is probably due to the fact that the writer is adapting a popular tale to the purposes of his allegory; see further EA, p. 239.

47. reared him with travail. The difficulty referred to ('with travail') lay in the fact that during the existence of the first Temple the sins of the people (especially lapses into idolatrous worship) constantly threatened to interrupt the continuance of the divine dwelling (see next note) in the Holy City.

that was the divine dwelling in Jerusalem. The (divine) dwelling = the 'Shekinah' or visible manifestation of the divine presence in Jerusalem. It was the presence of the Shekinah in Jerusalem and the Temple, which sanctified the Holy City. According to one current view the visible Shekinah was one of the five things lacking in the second Temple (cf. Targ. to Hag. i. 8 and parallels in Talmud)—its throne being between the cherubim on the ark, which was absent after the destruction of the First Temple. But so long as a Temple existed in Jerusalem, and the sacrificial cultus was maintained, these, in a sense, were pledges and symbols of the divine presence. With these all visible tokens of the divine presence disappeared (in A. D. 70).

48. the fall of Jerusalem that has come to pass. The death of the son, according to this verse = the fall of the earthly Jerusalem, which confirms the interpretation that the son = the earthly Jerusalem.

49. the (heavenly) pattern (or 'model') of her. The 'heavenly pattern' or model of the earthly city is the heavenly Zion. The conception is similar to that which is met with in the Ep. to the Hebrews (xi. 10, 16 ['The City which hath the foundations, whose builder and maker is God'], xii. 22, xiii. 14), according to which the heavenly Zion is the heavenly counterpart of the earthly City, 'the eternal reality of which the literal City is but a shadow.' For the idea of the heavenly counterpart or model cf. Heb. viii. 5; Exod. xxv. 9 and 40. The vision of the heavenly reality is the culminating point in the disclosures made to the seer.

how she mourned her son, i.e. how she (the heavenly City) mourned her son (the ruined earthly Jerusalem).

55. as far as it is possible for thee . . . to see. The permission given to the seer implies that he saw and heard

S 56 Then shalt thou hear as much as the hearing of thine ears can hear.

57 For thou art blessed above many, and art named before the Most High as but few!

(The true sequel should be xii. 39 b, xiii. 57-58, and xii. 40-48 (xiv. 29-35); see introductions to the two latter sections. The sequence is shown by the following verses:)

[(xii. 39 b) And he departed from me. (xiii. 57) And I went forth and walked in the field greatly magnifying and praising the Most High on account of the marvellous acts which he performs in due season; (xiii. 58) and because he governs the times, and the things which come to pass in due time. (xii. 40 f.) And it came to pass when all the people heard, &c.]

VI. x. 58-59. REDACTIONAL TRANSITION TO THE FIFTH VISION (R).

R 58, 59 But ^m on the night of to-morrow ^m thou shalt remain here; so will the Most High reveal to thee 59 ⁿ in dream-visions ⁿ what the Most High will do unto the dwellers upon earth in the last days.

THE FIFTH (EAGLE) VISION.

(x. 60-xii. 35) (A).

I. THE VISION.

(x. 60-xii. 3a) (A) (R).

A 60 So I slept that night and the following as he had commanded me.

^{m-m} nocte . . . quae in crastinum futura est ⁿ⁻ⁿ Ἰ eas visiones somniorum (= τὰ πάντα τὰ ὄραματα τῶν ἐνυπνίων; ? τὰ πάντα a corruption of κατά: so Volk.)

(see next verse) much more than is told in the vision. As Gunkel remarks, this statement (obviously natural and unforced) makes it clear that the vision is the record of an actual experience. In the end what the seer saw and heard was so overpowering and marvellous that his powers of describing it all failed. Cf. 2 Cor. xii. 4. With vv. 55-56 cf. 1 Cor. ii. 9 and Isa. lxiv. 9. It should be noted that the City is conceived as still standing before the seer's eyes.

58-59. The seer is bidden to remain where he is (i. e. in the field of Ardat) for another two nights, in order that he may receive in dream-visions a revelation of what shall happen to the dwellers upon earth in the last days. It is obvious that these verses, which form the transition to the visions that follow, are the work of R. The situation presupposed is hardly a possible one for S. The seer had been bidden to resort to Ardat—the field untouched by any work of human hand—in order to receive a vision of the heavenly City. This has been accomplished, and to represent him as still remaining there in order to receive further revelations in dream-visions is in the nature of an anti-climax. Moreover the burden of the dream-visions, the revelation of what is to happen in the last days, has already formed the subject of long debates in the former visions of S. The dream-visions that follow, as we shall see, belong to other sources; and the transitional verses have been inserted by R in order to fit in and link together these other elements with the Salathiel-Apocalypse.

58. on the night of to-morrow, i. e. the night that follows to-morrow. Thus the words would be spoken during the day. The vision in the field of Ardat, accordingly, was not a night- but a day-vision.

The chapters that follow are drawn from three main independent sources, viz.:

A (= Adlorgesicht), the Eagle-Vision, ch. xi-xii;

M (= Menschensohn), the Son of Man Vision, ch. xiii;

E² = the Ezra-legend, ch. xiv.

x. 60-xii. 35. THE EAGLE-VISION. The famous Eagle-Vision—the last, apparently, of a series of dream-visions—follows. The seer in his dream sees an eagle, furnished with twelve wings and three heads, ascending out of the sea. It stretched its wings over all the earth, and all the winds of heaven blew upon it. From its wings eight other smaller wings developed; the three heads, of which the middle one was larger than the others, remained at rest. The Eagle flew with its wings, and reigned with undisputed sway over the whole earth. It stood up upon its claws, and told its wings that they should not all waken together, but each should sleep in its place, and awaken and keep watch in its own proper time; the heads were to be kept to the End. The voice announcing this proceeded not from the Eagle's head, but from the midst of his body. Presently a wing arose on the right side, reigned over the earth, and disappeared. The second arose and reigned a long time—a voice announced that none after it should reign even half as long—and this also disappeared. So it happened to the third and following wings. The seer now saw that the little wings were set up, on the right side, in order to rule; and of these some held it, but disappeared at once, while others rose up, but did not exercise rule. After this it was seen that the twelve wings had disappeared, and also two of the little wings—nothing remained in the Eagle's body but the three heads at rest and six little wings. Two of these latter were seen to detach themselves, and remained under the head at the right-hand side, while four remained in their place. These thought to set themselves up and reign. One did so and forthwith disappeared; and the second vanished even more quickly than the first. Two were now left in their original place, and while these were thinking to reign the middle head awoke and, uniting with itself the other two heads, devoured them. This head exercised rule over the earth with much oppression; but it, too, suddenly disappeared even as the wings. The two remaining heads reigned over the earth; but that on the right side devoured the one on the left. At this point the seer hears a voice telling him to look carefully and note what he should see. He saw a roaring lion come out from the wood,

1 And it came to pass the second night that I saw a dream : and lo ! there came up from the sea
 2 an eagle which had twelve (?) feathered wings, and three heads. And I beheld, and lo ! he spread his wings ° over ° the whole earth, and all the winds of heaven blew on him, and ^p (the clouds) were 3 gathered together (unto him) ^p. And I beheld, (and lo !) out of his wings there grew ^q anti-wings ^q ;
 4 and they became wings petty and small. But his heads were at rest ; the middle head was greater
 5 than the other heads, yet it rested with them. And I beheld, and lo ! the eagle flew with his wings

°-° so *Ar.*² Arm. : ℒ in = § Ethiop. ^{p-v} so Oriental VSS. (except Arm.) ℒ colligebantur (> nubes ad eum)
 q-q ℒ contrariae pennae (= ? ἀντιπτερυγία) : other VSS. = πτερυγία which, with a man's voice, upbraided the Eagle for his tyranny and cruel oppression, and announces his coming destruction :

'Therefore shalt thou disappear, O thou Eagle,
 and thy horrible wings,
 and thy little wings most evil,
 thy harm-dealing heads,
 thy hurtful talons,
 and all thy worthless body !

And so the whole earth, freed from thy violence, shall be refreshed again, and hope for the judgement and mercy of him that made her' (xi. 45-6).

While the Lion spoke, the last head disappeared ; the two little wings which had detached themselves and gone over to it rose up to reign, but their reign was short and full of uproar. Then they, too, vanished, the whole body of the Eagle was consumed in flames, and the earth was greatly terrified.

On awaking from his dream-vision the seer, much perturbed by what he has seen, prays that the interpretation of it may be granted him. He is told that the Eagle is the fourth kingdom which appeared to Daniel. The twelve wings represent twelve kings who shall reign in it one after the other. The second reign shall be longer than any of the other twelve. The voice proceeding from the midst of the body signifies that in the middle period (xii. 18, 'in the midst of the time of that kingdom,' according to the true text) great commotions shall arise, and it shall stand in peril of falling ; but it shall recover, and regain its stability. The interpretation of the eight under (little) wings is : there shall arise in this kingdom eight kings 'whose times shall be transient and years swift' ; two of these shall perish when the middle time of the kingdom approaches ; four are to be kept for the time 'when its time for dissolution shall approach' ; but two are to be reserved for the End. The interpretation of the three heads is : in the last days of the kingdom the Most High will raise up three kings who shall renew many things in the kingdom, and shall rule over the earth with much oppression above all that were before them. They are called the heads of the Eagle, because they shall bring its wickedness to a head and consummate its end. The disappearance of the largest (i. e. the middle) head signifies that the first of these three kings shall die upon his bed, but yet with torment. The other two are destined for the sword—one is to fall by the sword of the other, and the latter shall perish himself by the sword in the last days. The two wings that passed over to the right-hand head are reserved for the End. They shall reign for a brief time after the disappearance of the last head ; but their reign shall be full of trouble and uproar. The Lion is the Messiah whom the Most High has reserved for the End.

Such is the vision and its interpretation as they lie before us in our present text. At first sight all seems clear ; but a closer examination of the details reveals, as will appear, many grave difficulties. For a discussion of these see the introduction to the interpretation of the vision (xii. 3 b-39) below.

The vision must thus be regarded as an independent writing. It apparently belongs to a series of dream-visions, of which it forms the last, and which already existed in written form in a book when our vision was excerpted by R (cf. xii. 37). As in similar cases elsewhere R has inserted harmonistic additions designed to bring the matter into accord with other elements in our Apocalypse. Such are clearly xii. 9 and 34. But further, there seems to have been a revision of a more far-reaching character, as will appear when the details of the interpretation come to be examined.

The whole vision is clearly much influenced by, if it is not actually based upon, Dan. vii. The identification of the Eagle with the fourth kingdom of Dan. vii is an interesting case of the reinterpretation of prophecy.

With the Eagle-Vision should be compared the fountain and forest vision of 2 Baruch (xxxvi-xl), which remarkably enough is a dream-vision of the fall of the Roman power. As in our vision, this is effected by the Messiah ; the last leader of the hostile host is taken captive to Mount Sion, where the Messiah, after upbraiding him with his wickedness, destroys him.

For a fuller discussion cf. EA, pp. 244-9. The vision in its original form appears to have been composed some time in the reign of Vespasian (A. D. 69-79) or possibly later (A. D. 96-97).

xi. 1. I saw a dream. Cf. Dan. vii. 1. A dream-vision (not merely a dream) is meant.

from the sea. Cf. Dan. vii. 3 ; Rev. xiii. 1. In the latter passage, as here, the monster that ascends out of the sea = the Roman Empire. The latter, for the Orientals, came up, as a matter of historical fact, from the sea (i. e. the Mediterranean), and it is this fact that is doubtless present in the apocalyptic's thought here. [It is clear that the (perhaps contemporary) apocalyptic writers of Rev. xiii and our chapter both identified the fourth beast of Dan. vii with Rome : cf. esp. 4 Ezra xii. 10 f.] an eagle. The eagle of the following vision undoubtedly represents the Roman Empire. The symbolism was particularly appropriate to Rome, whose military emblem was the eagle.

three heads, i. e. according to the probable original meaning of the vision the three Flavian Emperors (Vespasian and his two sons, Titus and Domitian). Cf. the four wings and four heads of the leopard in Dan. vii. 6.

2. all the winds of heaven blew on him. Cf. xiii. 2, and Dan. vii. 2.

3. out of his wings there grew anti-wings. As πτέρυξ = βασιλεύς, so ἀντιπτερύγιον would = ἀντιβασιλεύς (so Volk.). Usurpers or military commanders who might prove to be dangerous rivals to the Emperors are apparently meant.

A 6 to reign over the earth and over them that dwell therein. And I beheld how all things under 7 heaven were subject unto him, and no one spake against him—not even one of the creatures upon 8, 9 earth. And I beheld, and lo! the eagle rose upon his talons, and uttered his voice to his wings,
 10 saying ^r, Watch not all at once: sleep every one in his place, and watch by course: but let the heads 11 be preserved for the last. And I beheld, and lo! the voice proceeded not from his heads, but from 12 the midst of his body. And I numbered his anti-wings, and lo! there were eight.
 13 And I beheld, and lo! [on the right side] there arose one wing, and reigned over the whole earth.
 14 And it came to pass that, after it had reigned, it came to its end and ^sdisappeared^s, so that the place
 15, 16 of it was not visible. Then arose the second and reigned, and this bare rule for a long time. And 17 it came to pass that, after it had reigned, it also came to its end, so that it disappeared even as the 18 first. And lo! a voice sounded which said to it: Hear, thou that hast borne rule over the earth so
 19 long a time: ^tthis I proclaim^t unto thee before thou shalt disappear—After thee shall none bear 20 rule (the length of) thy time, nay not even the half of it! Then the third lifted itself up and held 21, 22 the rule even as the former, and it also disappeared. And so it fell to all the wings [^uin turn^u] to 23 rule and then disappear. And I beheld, and lo! in process of time ^vthe little wings^v also were set up 24 [^wupon the right side^w] that they also might hold the rule; and some of them bare rule but 25 disappeared suddenly: and some of them were set up but did not hold the rule. After this I beheld, 26 and lo! the twelve wings disappeared, and two little wings; and nothing was left in the eagle's body
 27, 28 save only the three heads that were at rest, and six little wings. And I beheld, and lo! from the 29 six little wings two detached themselves, and remained under the head that was upon the right side:
 but four remained in their place. And I beheld, and lo! these under-wings thought to set themselves up and to hold the rule. And I beheld, and lo! one was set up, but immediately disappeared; a second also, and this disappeared more quickly than the first. And I beheld, and lo! the two that remained thought also in themselves to reign; and ^xwhile they were thinking thus^x, lo! ^yone

^r § (against all the other VSS.) + Go, rule over the whole earth: but remain quiet now (? an explan. gloss)
^{s-s} § non apparuit ^{t-t} reading hoc (v. l. haec) adnuntio ^{u-u} § singulatum ^{v-v} so § Ar.²: § sequentes pennae ^{w-w} so § Ethiop. Arm.: but Ar.¹ Ar.² > ^{x-x} § in eo cum cogitarent (= εν τω λογιζεσθαι αυτα)
^{y-y} § unum de quiescentium capitum (imitating Greek construction)

8. Watch not all at once: . . . watch by course. Each wing (or pair of wings) is to be awake and watch (i. e. reign) for a certain season, its allotted time (per tempus = κατὰ καιρόν) and in succession; all are not to be awake at once.

12. [on the right side]. This certainly looks like an addition. If it were an original feature in the vision there would be a corresponding mention of the wings 'on the left side', and we should expect some comment upon the symbolical significance of right and left in the interpretation. But nothing of the kind occurs there. Consequently we are justified in regarding the words here as an interpolation: if by R, or some other reviser, then it would seem he is dividing the wings into two sets, right and left, and this might imply that previously they had been reckoned by pairs. But the words may be a gloss.

one wing. Lat. una penna = έν πτερόν: if pairs of wings were in the original writer's thought here we should expect 'the first wing' (Hebr. ? האחת מן הכנפים). Possibly something like this originally stood here, and has been modified by R; in this case 'the first of the wings' would have meant the first pair of wings.

17. shall none bear rule (the length of) thy time, nay not even the half of it. The reference is clearly to the long reign of Augustus (over fifty years).

19. it fell to all the wings. The expression 'all the wings' is noticeable; it refers, apparently, to all the twelve wings: therefore what follows in v. 20 must refer to the other set of 'little' wings.

20. the little wings. The verse describes the general character and fate of the eight little wings. Some such introductory statement is required before v. 22, where it is said that the twelve great wings and two of the little wings had disappeared (so Drummond, JM, p. 102 f.).

[upon the right side]. If the wings referred to were the twelve greater wings this clause could have no meaning; the left side would be required by the context (and so Hilg. renders here ἀπὸ τῆς ἀριστερᾶς: but against all the textual evidence, though five MSS. of the Ethiopic have 'on the left side'). In reference to the little wings it may be meant to suggest their elevation to actual power. The clause may possibly be an incorrect gloss.

22. the twelve wings disappeared, and two little wings, i. e. (according to the original significance of the vision) the six Julian Emperors came to an end, and, about the end of the reign of the last emperor, Nero, 'two little wings' rose and disappeared: perhaps the fate of the conspirators Vindex (March, A. D. 68) and Nymphidius (a few months later) is referred to. Both were active in the last months of Nero's reign.

24. under the head that was upon the right side. This, according to the original meaning of the vision, must mean Domitian. Who the two 'little wings' represent in this case it is difficult to say—two Roman governors or generals probably who were expected to claim the imperial throne. Gunkel suggests Mucianus, proconsul of Syria, and Tiberius Alexander, prefect of Egypt (A. D. 69). But these leaders attached themselves to the cause of Vespasian (the middle head); it does not appear that either played any prominent part in the reign of Domitian ('the head on the right side'). Gfrörer suggests Agrippa II and Berenice, who went over to the Romans and were in favour with the Flavian family.

27. a second . . . disappeared more quickly than the first. Perhaps Galba's colleague (for a short time) is meant, viz. Piso. But more probably Galba and Otho are intended.

28. the two that remained. Perhaps Civilis (died June, 69) and Vitellius (died December, 69).

of the heads that were at rest^y—it, namely, that was in the midst—awoke; for this one was greater 31 than the two [other] heads. And I beheld how it allied with itself the two other heads; and lo!
 the head was turned with them that were with it, and did eat up the two under-wings that thought 32 to have reigned. This head^z bare rule over the whole earth^z, and exercised lordship over the dwellers therein with much oppression; [and it wielded more power over the inhabited world than 33 all the wings that had been.] And after this I beheld, and lo! the middle head^a suddenly^a 34 disappeared,^b even as the wings^b. But there remained the two heads which also reigned over the 35 earth, and over the inhabitants therein. And I beheld, and lo! the head upon the right side 36 devoured that which was upon the left. Then I heard a voice, which said unto me: Look before 37 thee, and consider what thou seest. And I beheld, and lo! as it were a lion, roused out of the wood, roaring; and I heard how he uttered a man's voice against the eagle; and he spake, saying:
 39 Hear,^c thou Eagle^c—I will talk with thee; the Most High saith to thee: Art thou not it that remainest of the four beasts which I made to reign in my world, that the end of^d my times^d might 40 come through them? ^e Thou, however, the fourth, who art come, hast overcome^e all the beasts that are past;

^f Thou hast wielded power over the world^f with great terror, and over all the inhabited earth with grievous oppression;
^g Thou hast dwelt^g so long in the civilized world with fraud,
 41 and hast judged the earth, (but) not with faithfulness:
 42 For thou hast afflicted the meek, and oppressed the peaceable;
 Thou hast hated^h the upright^h, and loved liars;
 Thou hast destroyedⁱ the strongholdsⁱ of the fruitful^j, and laid low the walls of such as did thee no harm—43 And so thine insolence hath ascended to the Most High, and thy pride to the Mighty One.
 44 Then the Most High regarded his times—
 And lo! they were ended;
 And his ages—
 (and) they were fulfilled.
 45 Therefore^k shalt thou disappear^k, O thou Eagle,
 and thy horrible wings,
 and thy little wings most evil,
^l thy harm-dealing heads^l,
^m thy hurtful talons^m,
 and all thy worthless body!

^{z-z} reading percontenuit omnem terram ^{a-a} so \mathbb{L} \mathbb{S} : other VSS. > ^{b-b} \mathbb{L} et hoc sicut alae (= και τουτο καθως αι πτερυγες) ^{c-c} so \mathbb{S} : but other VSS. (including \mathbb{L}) > ^{d-d} so \mathbb{L} : other VSS. of the (Ar.² all) times ^{e-e} reading et quartus veniens devicisti: cf. \mathbb{S} Ar.¹ Ar.² Arm.: Ethiop. Lat. MSS. have 3rd person ^{f-f} so \mathbb{S} (cf.
 Ar.¹ Ar.² Arm.) ^{g-g} so \mathbb{S} (cf. Ar.¹ Ar.² Arm.): \mathbb{L} inhabitant to be emended to inhabitabas (Violet) ^{h-h} so \mathbb{S} (cf. Ar.¹: Ar.² the pious): \mathbb{L} verum dicentes (cf. Ethiop. Arm.) ⁱ⁻ⁱ so Oriental VSS. (= τα οχυρωματα): \mathbb{L} habi-tationes (? dependent upon variant Hebr. readings: יימנע and יימנעו) ^{j-j} \mathbb{L} qui fructificabant: \mathbb{S} of the prosperous (= των ευθηνουτων: ευθηνουσου = יהיב פס Ps. cxxviii. [cxxvii] 3) ^{k-k} \mathbb{L} non apparens non appareas (= αφανισθεις αφανισθησθ) ^{l-l} et capita tua maligna ^{m-m} \mathbb{L} ungues tui pessimi

32. [and it wielded . . . that had been]. This clause is somewhat tautologous after the two preceding, and is probably an addition of R, who identified the middle head with Trajan. The statement, as applied to Trajan, would have special point in view of his conquests and vast additions to the Roman empire. Volkmar supposes that in the first clause omnem terram ('over the whole earth') should be rendered 'over all the land', i. e. the land of Palestine, and that orbem terrarum in the last clause stands in contrast with this.

35. the head upon the right side devoured that which was upon the left. In the original form of the vision this doubtless referred to Domitian (the right head) and Titus (the left head), whose death was at the time supposed to have been brought about by Domitian. But R probably identified the right head with Hadrian, who recalled and executed Lusius Quietus (the left head). See introduction to the next chapter.

39. the four beasts. Cf. Dan. vii. 3. The eagle is here identified with the fourth beast of Dan. vii, as in the interpretation below (xii. 11).

44. And his ages—(and) they were fulfilled. The meaning is: the predetermined time is fulfilled. The conviction was common to all the apocalyptists that they were standing at the end of the age. It should be remembered, however, that in the eschatology of A the end of the present age coincides with the downfall of Rome; the future age is the Rule of God that is to succeed the heathen empire on the present earth.

45. thy hurtful talons. It should be noted that this detail receives no explanation in the interpretation that follows in chap. xii. Probably the Roman armies are meant.

A 46 And so the whole earth, freed from thy violence, ⁿshall be refreshed again ⁿ, and hope for the judgement and mercy of him that made her.

12^{1, 2} And it came to pass, while the lion spake these words unto the eagle, I beheld, and lo! the head
3 that remained disappeared. And the two wings, which went over unto it, set themselves up to reign; and their rule was short and full of uproar. And I beheld, and lo! these also disappeared, and the whole body of the eagle was burnt; and the earth was terrified greatly.

II. xii. 3^b-39. THE INTERPRETATION OF THE VISION (A) (R).

A (R) Then I awoke ^o by reason of great perplexity of mind ^o and from great fear, and said unto 4 my spirit: Lo! this hast thou brought unto me because thou searchest out the ways of the Most High.

ⁿ⁻ⁿ \aleph refrigeret et revertetur (Hebr. תשוב תנפש)

^{o-o} reading a multo (for tumultu) excessu mentis

46. and hope for the judgement and mercy of him that made her, i.e. after the world-empire has been destroyed the Rule (or Sovereignty) of God follows. 'Judgement' here cannot have the same sense as in S, where it means the judgement of the last day: it here = the Hebr. mishpat and means the judicial process by which the Roman Empire is condemned and destroyed.

xii. 3^b-39. THE INTERPRETATION OF THE VISION. It has already been pointed out that a close examination of the details of the vision and its interpretation reveals many grave difficulties, and it has been suggested that these are probably due to later revision and readjustment. No solution known to the present writer has so far been proposed that entirely meets these difficulties. A most illuminating review and critical discussion of the more important of the suggestions and hypotheses that have been made is given in Dr. Drummond's Jewish Messiah, pp. 99-114. For a full discussion of later views reference must be made to EA, pp. 262 ff.

A NEW SOLUTION.

Is it possible to frame a hypothesis which will meet the objections that have been adduced and satisfy the data of the text? The following seems to the present writer to be a possible solution. It may be taken for granted that whatever revision or readjustment has taken place in the text of the chapters must have been the work either of the editor who compiled our book, or of some redaction previous to his use of the special source. As there is no trace of specifically Christian influence in the text of the vision the possibility of later redaction is ruled out. It becomes important, therefore, to fix approximately the date of the editor (R), and to determine the meaning of the vision for him. Kabisch fixes the date of R at about A.D. 120, and this—or possibly even a later year—may be accepted as correct. It may be assumed that in the original form of the vision the three heads represent the three Flavian Emperors; the twelve wings represent the six Julian Emperors from Caesar to Nero, reckoning the wings by pairs. The present writer suggests that the reckoning by pairs in the original vision was intended only to apply to the twelve wings, and had a symbolical significance. The pairs served to emphasize the greater dignity and power of the real Emperors as contrasted with the ephemeral rulers symbolized by the little wings. In order to exaggerate the contrast the latter were intended to be reckoned singly. The eight little wings represent, in the original form of the vision, Vindex (March, 68), Nymphidius (a few months later)—these disappeared about the same time as the last of the twelve wings (end of Nero's reign), as represented in our text (xi. 22). The middle four represent Galba, Otho, Civilis (died June, 69), and Vitellius (died Dec., 69).

The two little wings that were to survive the last head probably signify Roman governors or generals who were expected to claim the imperial throne at the last, or possibly the two last members of the Herodian family, Agrippa II and Berenice. In its original form, then, the vision may date from the closing years of Domitian's reign (circa A.D. 95).¹ But if the editor did not incorporate it into his book—our Ezra-Apocalypse—till A.D. 120 or later (some time certainly in the reign of Hadrian), what, it may well be asked, was the significance he himself attached to the vision? He can no longer have identified the three heads with the Flavian Emperors, seeing that the reigns of these had already long ended and the predicted deliverance had not yet come.

It seems to the present writer that the requirements of the situation will be met by the hypothesis that R identified the three heads with Trajan, Hadrian, and Lusius Quietus. The last mentioned was a favourite of Trajan, of princely birth, who was generally expected to succeed to the Empire. His memory is deeply impressed upon the Jews owing to the stern part he took in suppressing Jewish rebellions first in Mesopotamia, and later in Palestine (A.D. 116-117). In the Rabbinical sources he is sometimes spoken of as if he were actual emperor. As a matter of fact he was recalled by Hadrian, soon after the latter's accession to the throne, and executed.

Having identified the three heads in this way, the editor reinterpreted the twelve wings to be the 'twelve Caesars'—a numeration which is found in Suetonius—i.e. the six Julian Emperors, Galba, Otho, and Vitellius, and the three Flavian Emperors. In accordance with this view the present text of the vision has been redacted. Thus in xi. 12 the words 'on the right side', if not a gloss, are probably due to R, so also in xi. 19 'in turn' (singulatim). In xi. 20 the words 'on the right side' (they are omitted in the Arabic Version) may be a gloss; and in xi. 32 the clause 'and it wielded more power over the inhabited world than all the wings that had been' would apply with special force to Trajan, whose conquests were remarkable, though the possibility of their application to Vespasian is not excluded. They may be due to later revision.

In the interpretation of the vision in ch. xii the marks of revision are naturally more in evidence. Thus v. 14 ('In it twelve kings shall reign, one after the other') we have the later interpretation clearly expressed. Coming to the

¹ Or possibly in some part of Vespasian's reign.

5 Lo! I am yet weary in my soul, and very weak in my spirit, nor is there (left) the least strength in me on account of the great fear wherewith I have been 6 affrighted this night. Therefore will I now beseech the Most High, that he will strengthen me unto 7 the end. And I said: O Lord my Lord, if I have found favour in thy sight, if I am justified with 8 thee above many, if my supplication in truth be come up before thy countenance—Strengthen me, and show me, thy servant, the interpretation and ^p distinct explanation^p of this fearful vision, that 9 thou mayst completely comfort my soul! [For thou hast judged me worthy to show me ^a the end of the times and the last of the periods ^a.] 11 And he said unto me: This is the interpretation of the vision which thou hast seen. The eagle which thou sawest come up from the sea is the fourth kingdom which appeared in vision to thy 13 brother Daniel; [but it was not interpreted unto him as I now interpret it unto thee or have interpreted it]. Behold, the days come when there shall arise a kingdom upon the earth, and it shall be ^t more 15 terrible^t than all the kingdoms that were before it. [In it twelve kings shall reign, one after the other ;]

16 And the second that shall reign, he shall bear rule a longer time ^s than (any of) [the twelve]^s. This is the 17 interpretation of the twelve wings which thou didst see. And whereas ^t thou didst hear ^t a voice which 18 spake, going out not from his heads, but from the midst of his body, ^u this is the interpretation ^u. ^v In the midst ^v of the time of that kingdom there shall arise no small contentions, and it shall stand in peril 19 of falling; nevertheless it shall not then fall, but shall be restored again ^w to rule ^w. And whereas thou 20 didst see eight under-wings grow up with his wings, this is the interpretation: In it there shall arise eight 21 kings, whose times shall be transient and years swift: and two of them shall perish when the middle time (of the kingdom) approaches; and four shall be kept for the time when its time for dissolution

^{p-p} \mathbb{L} distinctionem (= την σαφηνειαν) ^{q-q} \mathbb{L} temporum finem et temporum novissima: other VSS. = των χρονων το τελος και των καιρων τα εσχατα ^{r-r} reading timorator ^{s-s} \mathbb{L} prae xii (prae = υπερ) ^{t-t} so \mathbb{L} Arm.: οὐτ [§] *Ethiop. Ar.*¹ thou didst see ^{u-u} \mathbb{L} haec est interpretatio: but [§] *Ethiop. Ar.*¹ = ουτος εστιν ο λογος (Hebr.
וזה הדבר) ^{v-v} so \mathbb{L} (cf. Ethiop.) and Arm. (= μεταξυ): \mathbb{L} post (= μετα: a mistake) ^{w-w} so Ethiop. (cf.
*Ar.*¹) Arm.: \mathbb{L} in suum initium (misunderstanding εις αρχην αυτης) heads we read: 'And whereas thou didst see that the great head disappeared—[one of them shall die upon his bed, but yet with pain. But as for the two who remain the sword shall devour them. For the sword of the one shall devour him that was with him; nevertheless this one also shall fall by the sword in the last days'].

This description would suit admirably the circumstances of Trajan's end. He died in Cilicia in the year 117, upon his bed, it is true, but mortified by his half-successes and by the unrest in the East. It need hardly be added that 'the sword of the one shall devour him that was with him' suits the identification of right and left heads with Hadrian and Lusius Quietus admirably. Further, if, as is suggested in the note on xii. 21, the four wings (or anti-wings) that are kept for the time when the dissolution of the Empire approaches can be identified with the four senators who were executed by Hadrian at the beginning of his reign, we have a further confirmation of the correctness of the hypothesis of reinterpretation already set forth.

7. if I am justified with thee above many. Cf. vi. 32, vii. 26, ix. 49, x. 39, xviii. 14.

8. completely. This implies that the seer had already been partially consoled (by the vision of the heavenly Zion)—a mark of R's hand.

9. the end of the times, &c. The whole verse reveals the hand of R. The Eagle Vision is not concerned with, and is not a revelation of, the 'last things'—these are treated in the preceding work of S and E—A is concerned only with the downfall of the Roman Empire. The reference here, therefore, to the end of the world is out of place, and is due to R (so Kabisch).

11. is the fourth kingdom which appeared in vision to thy brother Daniel. Cf. Dan. vii. 7 f. This is a particularly clear and interesting case of the way in which apocalyptic prediction was reinterpreted and reapplied. It is interesting to note that in the Talmud (T. B. Abôdâ Zârâ 1 b), Dan. vii. 23 (i. e. the fourth kingdom) is interpreted of Rome.

14. In it twelve kings shall reign, one after the other. This sentence is evidently the work of R, who understood the twelve kings to be the 'twelve Caesars'. It cannot be explained as an interpretation of the original form of the vision, as it is impossible to enumerate twelve rulers, beginning with Julius Caesar and excluding the three heads (Vespasian, Titus and Domitian), who ruled consecutively. R may have altered a number merely, or may have recast the entire sentence.

15. than (any of) [the twelve]. The number 'twelve' here reflects ex hypothesi the later interpretation.

18. In the midst of the time of that kingdom. The time referred to is the period of anarchy that ensued at the close of Nero's reign, and was put an end to by Vespasian (A. D. 68-70).

21. and four shall be kept for the time when its time for dissolution shall approach. Apparently four usurpers or possible candidates for the imperial dignity are meant, who are to rise and fall as the time for the dissolution of the Empire approaches, i. e. presumably in the reign of one of the three heads (probably either Trajan or Hadrian). Now it is worth noting that at the beginning of his reign Hadrian found it necessary to put to death four 'consular senators, his personal enemies, and men who had been judged worthy of empire' (Gibbon, Decline and Fall, vol. i, ch. iii). If the rise and fall of these four anti-wings is to be placed in the reign of Hadrian, unless the revision of the interpretation be credited to R at this point, it must already have reached an advanced stage before he incorporated A into our present book. In the original vision these four anti-wings apparently represent Galba, Otho, Civilis, and Vitellius (cf. xi. 27). In the reinterpretation Galba, Otho, and Vitellius are included in the twelve large wings (Civilis could be omitted as unimportant), thus involving the reinterpretation of the four anti-wings.

A (R) 22 shall approach: but two shall be kept for the end. And whereas thou didst see three heads resting, 23 this is the interpretation: In the last days thereof the Most High will raise up ^x three kings^x; and ^y they shall renew^y many things therein, and shall exercise lordship over the earth and over the 24 dwellers therein with much oppression, above all those that were before them. Therefore are they 25 called the heads of the eagle: for these are they that shall bring to a head his wickedness,^z and 26 consummate his last end^z. And whereas thou didst see that the great head disappeared—one of 27 them shall die upon his bed, but yet with pain. But as for the two who remain the sword shall devour 28 them. For the sword of the one shall devour him that was with him; nevertheless this one also 29 shall fall by the sword in the last days. And whereas thou didst see two under-wings^a passing over 30 to the head^a that is upon the right side; this is the interpretation: These are they whom the Most High hath kept for his (i.e. the eagle's) end; and their rule shall be short and full of uproar, as thou 31 hast seen. And as for the lion whom thou didst see roused from the wood and roaring, and speaking 32 to the eagle and reproving him for his unrighteousness and all his deeds, as thou hast heard: This is the Messiah whom the Most High hath kept unto the end (^b of the days, who shall spring from the seed of David, and shall come and speak^b) unto them;
 he shall reprove them for their ungodliness,
^c rebuke them^c for their unrighteousness,
^d reproach them to their faces with their treacheries^d.
 33 For at the first he shall set them alive for judgement; and when he hath rebuked them^e he shall 34 destroy them^e. [But my people who survive he shall deliver with mercy, even those who have been saved throughout my borders, and he shall make them joyful until the End come, even the Day of 35 Judgement, of which I have spoken unto thee from the beginning.] This is the dream that thou 36 didst see, and this is its interpretation. Thou alone hast been found worthy to learn^f this mystery^f 37 of the Most High—Therefore write all these things that thou hast seen in a book, and put them in ^{x-x} = τρεις βασιλεις: so all the VSS. except ℒ, which has tria regna (= τρεις βασιλειαι) ^{y-y} so ℑ Ethiop.

 Arm.: ℒ renovabit ^{z-z} ℒ et qui perficient novissima eius ^{a-a} so ℑ: (= μεταβατα εις την κεφαλην):
 ℒ traicientes super caput ^{b-b} so ℑ (and the other Oriental VSS. substantially): ℒ > ^{c-c} so ℑ (cf. Arm.):
 ℒ > ^{d-d} ℒ et infulciet coram ipsis spretiones eorum (= ? και επιπληξει ενωπιον αυτων τα καταφρονηματα αυτων):
 ℑ set in order (= ? επιταξει) before them, &c.: Ethiop. heap up (= ? επιπλησει) before them, &c. ^{e-e} reading corruptet eos: so ℑ Ethiop. Arm. (inferior reading corripet eos = A.V. correct them) ^{f-f} ℒ secretum hoc two shall be kept for the end, i.e. till after the disappearance of the third head; cf. xi. 24.

23. in the last days thereof, i.e. of the kingdom.

they shall renew many things therein. The statement would apply equally well to the new period inaugurated by Vespasian or Trajan; in both cases the new régime consolidated and strengthened the Empire generally.

with much oppression. This would apply with special point to Trajan and Lusius Quietus, who suppressed with great severity the Jewish rebellions of A. D. 116 and later; and also to Hadrian later.

26. shall die upon his bed, but yet with pain. This description would certainly better suit the circumstances of Trajan's end than Vespasian's (see introduction to this section).

28. the sword of the one shall devour him that was with him, i.e. the sword of Hadrian shall devour Lusius Quietus; the latter was deposed and executed by Hadrian. On the other hand, the terms do not suit the case of Domitian and Titus.

32. This is the Messiah. Cf. Rev. v. 5, where 'the Lion that is of the tribe of Judah' is identified with the 'Root of David' and = the Messiah.

whom the Most High hath kept unto the end (of the days), i.e. the Messiah is already pre-existent in heaven. This representation suits the idea of the heavenly Messiah, but is inconsistent with the next clause, which applies to the earthly Messiah: probably the clause is due to R, and is a harmonizing interpolation.

reproach them, &c. Cf. xiii. 37.

33. For at the first, &c. One of the principal tasks of the Messiah is to overthrow hostile wicked powers. Here it is the power of Rome that is first rebuked and then destroyed; cf. xiii. 37 f.; 2 Bar. xl. 1 f.

34. [But my people who survive, &c.] This whole verse is an insertion of R, according with his view that before the End of the world a temporary Messianic kingdom was to be set up (cf. vii. 25 f. and notes). In its present context the verse is out of harmony with the representation. The End of the age in ch. xii = the end of the heathen domination of the world, and is followed by the rule of the righteous embodied in Israel.

[even those who have been saved throughout my borders], i.e. those who shall have survived the Messianic woes in Palestine; but the writer of the Eagle Vision contemplated a world-wide deliverance in which all earth's inhabitants should participate, after the overthrow of the Roman Empire; cf. xi. 46. The clause is meaningless in its present connexion (cf. xii. 48).

[he shall make them joyful]. Cf. vii. 28.

37. Therefore write all these things that thou hast seen in a book. The secret revelation is to be written down in a book and preserved in a secret place for the future till the time for publishing it arrives. This representation is common in apocalyptic literature. It partly serves to reflect the originally esoteric character of the teaching which was treasured in apocalyptic circles—'apocrypha' in its original connotation (ἀπόκρυφος) = 'esoteric', 'secret', and carried with it no disparaging meaning—and partly serves to explain why, when the books were made known, their existence for so long a time previously had been unsuspected. Cf. Dan. viii. 26, xii. 4 (cp. xii. 9); 1 En. lxxxii. 1, civ. 11-13; Ass. Mos. i. 16, x. 11, xi. 1; cf. also 4 Ezra xiv. 26, 47.

38 a secret place; and thou shalt teach them to the wise of the people, whose hearts thou knowest are 39 able to comprehend and keep these mysteries. [But do thou remain here yet seven days more, that there may be shown unto thee whatsoever it may please the Most High to show thee.]

III. xii. 39b-48. CONCLUSION OF THE VISION (S).

39 And he departed from me.

40 And it came to pass when all the people heard that the seven days were past and I not returned to the city, they assembled themselves together, ^gall^g from the least unto the greatest; and they came unto me and said:

41 How have we sinned against thee, or how have we dealt iniquitously with thee that thou hast forsaken us and sittest in this place?

42 For of all the prophets thou ^halone^h art left to us, as a cluster out of the vintage,
 as a lamp in a dark place,
ⁱas a haven of safety for a ship in a stormⁱ.

44 Are not the evils that have befallen us sufficient ^j(that thou shouldst forsake us also)^j? If thou shalt forsake us, how much better had it been for us if we also had been consumed in the burning of 45 Sion! For we are not better than they who died there. And ^kthey wept^k with a loud voice.

46 And I answered them and said:

Take courage, O Israel;
 be not sorrowful, O House of Jacob!

47 For you are remembered before the Most High, the Mighty One hath not forgotten you ^lfor ever^l.

48 But as for me, I have not forsaken you, neither will I depart from you; but I have come to this place to pray for the desolation of Sion and to supplicate mercy for ^mour^m sanctuary's humiliation.

[*Originally it is probable that xiv. 29-35 immediately followed xii. 48 (see introductory section to
 xiv. 27-36).*]

IV. xii. 49-51. REDACTIONAL TRANSITION TO THE SIXTH VISION (R).

50 And now go every one of you to his own house, and after these days I will come unto you. So 51 the people went into the city as I had told them. But I sat in the field seven days, as he had commanded me: and I did eat only ⁿof the flowers of the fieldⁿ; my food was of the herbs in those days.

^{g-g} so \mathbb{L} (omnis): \mathbb{S} Ethiop. Ar.¹ Arm. all the people ^{h-h} so Ethiop. Arm.: \mathbb{L} (best MSS.) > ⁱ⁻ⁱ \mathbb{S} Ar.¹ which = καθως λιμην σωτηριας νηι εν χειμωνι (cf. Arm.): \mathbb{S} as a haven of life to a ship that is set in the tempest: \mathbb{L} sicut portus navis (v. l. navi) salvatae a tempestate ^{j-j} cf. \mathbb{S} (Ar.²): \mathbb{L} Ethiop. Ar.¹ Arm. > ^{k-k} so \mathbb{L} Ethiop. Ar.²
 Arm.: but \mathbb{S} Ar.¹ I wept ^{l-l} so \mathbb{S} (= εις αιωνα): \mathbb{L} in contentione (= εις αγωνα) ^{m-m} so \mathbb{S} Ethiop. (cf. Arm.):
 \mathbb{L} vestrae ⁿ⁻ⁿ so \mathbb{L} \mathbb{S} : Ethiop. of the fruit of the field

[vv. 36-38 clearly form the conclusion of the original vision.]

xii. 39b-48. The section that now forms the conclusion of the fifth vision is plainly a fragment of S, and has been transposed to its present position by R. It forms the true conclusion to the former vision, that of the heavenly Sion.
 For a discussion of the reasons for this analysis reference must be made to EA, p. 276 f. The passage is parallel to
 v. 14-16, which is also a misplaced fragment of S.

39. And he departed from me. 'He', sc. the angel Uriel: the verse forms the immediate continuation of x. 57.

40. the seven days, i. e. the seven days mentioned in ix. 23 f.

42. a cluster out of the vintage. For the figure cf. ix. 21, Isa. x. 6.

a lamp in a dark place. Cf. 2 Pet. i. 19.

45. they wept. For the representation cf. 2 Bar. xxxii. 8.

xii. 49-51. The verses that follow are clearly the work of R. The latter has introduced another seven days' stay in the field of Ardat as a preparation for the vision that follows (ch. xiii), which, however, is a dream-vision. We have already seen that the seven days' preparation in Ardat was for the final and crowning vision of the heavenly Sion, which concluded the Salathiel-Apocalypse (S). It cannot, therefore, have been repeated. In v. 49 (see note below) the expression 'after these days' must be due to R.

49. after these days, viz. those mentioned in xii. 39: but R has forgotten that this command to the seer had not been communicated to the people; to the latter 'these days' would be unintelligible.

THE SIXTH VISION.

(THE MAN FROM THE SEA.)

(xiii. 1-58) (M) (R).

I. xiii. 1-13 a. THE VISION (M).

M 13 ^{1, 2} And it came to pass after seven days that I dreamed a dream by night: ° (and I beheld,) ° and lo! ³ there arose ^p a violent wind ^p from the sea, and stirred all its waves. And I beheld, and lo! ^a (the wind caused to come up out of the heart of the seas as it were the form of a man. And I beheld, and lo!) ^a this Man ^r flew ^r with the clouds of heaven. And wherever he turned his countenance to ⁴ look everything seen by him trembled; and whithersoever the voice went out of his mouth, all ^s that ⁵ heard his voice ^s ^t melted away ^t, as the wax melts when it feels the fire. And after this I beheld, and lo! there was gathered together from the four winds of heaven an innumerable multitude of men

⁰⁻⁰ so \mathfrak{L} (cf. Arm.): but \mathfrak{S} Ethiop. Ar.¹ Ar.² > ^{p-p} so \mathfrak{S} (= μεγας ανεμος) Ethiop. Ar.¹ Arm.: \mathfrak{L} a wind
⁹⁻⁹ so \mathfrak{S} (cf. Ethiop. Ar.¹ Ar.² Arm.): \mathfrak{L} > (by homoioteleuton) ^{r-r} reading convolabat (for convalescebat):
 so Oriental VSS. ^{s-s} reading qui audiebant vocis (MSS. voces, vocem) eius = οι ηκουσαν της φωνης αυτου
^{t-t} so \mathfrak{S} (cf. Ar.¹ Arm.) = ετακησαν: \mathfrak{L} ardescabant = εκαησαν

xiii. 1-58. THE SIXTH [SON OF MAN] VISION. A fresh dream-vision reveals a storm-tossed sea, a violent wind having arisen. The wind brings up from the midst of the sea the figure of a Man, who flies with the clouds of heaven. Everything trembles at his look; whoever hears his voice is consumed with fire. From the four quarters of the world a multitude of men presently gather to wage war against him. He carves out—whence, it is not stated—an immense rock, which he mounts and from which he annihilates the hostile host with a stream of fire and tempest which proceeds out of his mouth. His weapons, it is to be noticed, are not sword and spear, but fire and storm. When the hostile multitude has been consumed the Man descends from the mountain, and summons to his side a peaceable host, all who—whether from friendliness or fear—had not attacked him.

The seer, awaking from his dream, prays that the vision may be interpreted to him. The interpretation follows. The Man from the Sea is the Messiah; his enemies are the nations of the world; the graven rock, whose origin was so mysterious, is the heavenly Jerusalem, which comes down from heaven. The annihilation of the hostile powers is effected by the fire of the Law. Then the Messiah gathers the ten tribes out of alien lands, and with the joint aid of these and of the others who are already in Palestine, he establishes a kingdom of peace and glory.

A careful examination of the vision proper and the interpretation that follows it reveals certain incongruities between what is explained and the explanation. This is a common phenomenon in apocalyptic, and shows that the apocalyptic writers were handling traditional material which was already extremely old when they wrote. Thus the first point to be noted is that when the vision first assumed a written form (i.e. probably some considerable time before the redactor (R) compiled our present book) the real significance of many features in the original vision was already lost, and was obscured by a more or less artificially adjusted interpretation. In other words religious thought and outlook had long outgrown those of the fixed tradition. It had become necessary to reinterpret the latter to suit later conditions.

For a full discussion of 'the original significance' of the vision reference must be made to EA, pp. 282-4. Here it can only be noted that the term 'the Man' (or 'one like unto a son of Man' in Dan. vii) apparently denoted, in the earlier stages of the tradition, an angelic being who was invested with attributes, proper only to Jahveh Himself, and ultimately developed into the heavenly Messiah. In the earliest stage of all this 'Man' was the Cosmic Man—the 'Urmensch'—who, endowed with supernatural gifts, fights and overcomes the monster of chaos (see further, Volz, pp. 214 f., 216 f.).

THE INTERPRETATION OF THE VISION. As has already been pointed out, the written source used by R included not only the Vision proper (vv. 1-13 a), but also its interpretation (vv. 25-53). Here the details of the Vision have been forced to adjust themselves to a later eschatological scheme. The Man from the Sea = the pre-existent Messiah, who shall deliver creation (vv. 25-26); he will first of all destroy with wind, fire, and storm the hostile powers that assemble against him (vv. 27-28 and 33-35 [vv. 29-32 may be an interpolation by R]), after rebuking them for their offences (vv. 37-38); the fire with which he destroys them is the fire of the Law (v. 38). The assembly of the hostile nations and their destruction thus described correspond to the 'wars of Gog and Magog', which is a regular feature in the eschatological scheme. After the destruction of his enemies the Messiah gathers his subjects—the peaceable multitude of v. 12. These, it is significant to notice, are identified (v. 40 f.) with the Ten Tribes (= Israel's exiles), who now are led back and, together with the two tribes already in Palestine (v. 48), enjoy the Messianic kingdom of peace. Nothing is said in the interpretation of the vision of any heathen nations being included in the peaceable multitude, though such were certainly included in the representation of the vision itself (v. 12). Possibly, however, proselytes were intended to be included.

A number of considerations, which cannot be discussed here, show that the vision and its interpretation (i.e. M) form an independent source; and the historical situation presupposed clearly points to a date anterior to A. D. 70 (see further EA, p. 285 f.).

THE REDACTION OF M. The redactional readjustments made by R are mainly by way of supplement from the other sources of the book. The most considerable of his additions is in the section xiii. 13 b-24 (see introduction to this); his hand is also apparent in xiii. 26 b, xiii. 29-32, xiii. 36, xiii. 48 (see notes on these passages). The vision and its interpretation fall naturally into the following divisions: i. The Vision (xiii. 1-13 a); ii. The Apocalyptic's reflections on the Vision (xiii. 13 b-24); iii. The interpretation of the Vision (xiii. 25-53 a).

2. from the sea. Cf. xi. 1.

4. as the wax melts when it feels the fire. A standing figure in the O. T., especially in theophanic descriptions; cf. Ps. xcvi. 5, Micah i. 4; also Judith xvi. 15, 1 En. 1, 6, &c.

6 to make war against the Man that came up out of the sea. And I beheld, and lo! he cut out for 7 himself a great mountain and flew up upon it. . But I sought to see the region or place from whence the 8 mountain had been cut out; and I could not. And after this I beheld, and lo! all who were gathered together against him to wage war with him were seized with great fear; yet they dared to fight.
 9 And lo! when he saw the assault of the multitude as they came he neither lifted his hand, nor held 10 spear nor any warlike weapon; but I saw only how he sent out of his mouth as it were "a fiery stream", and out of his lips "a flaming breath", and out of his tongue he shot forth "a storm of 11 sparks". And these were all mingled together—the fiery stream, the flaming breath, and "the . . . storm", and fell upon "the assault of the multitude" which "was prepared to fight, and burned them all up, so that suddenly nothing more was to be seen of the innumerable multitude save only 12 dust of ashes and smell of smoke. When I saw this I was amazed. Afterwards I beheld the same Man come down from the mountain, and call unto him another multitude which was peaceable.
 13 Then drew nigh unto him the faces of many men, "some of whom were glad, some sorrowful"; while some were in bonds, some brought others who should be offered.

II. xiii. 13^b-24. THE APOCALYPTIST'S REFLECTIONS ON THE VISION (mainly R).

Then through great fear I awoke. And I supplicated the Most High and said:

14 Thou from the beginning hast shown thy servant these wonders, and hast counted me worthy to 16 receive my prayer: oh show me now moreover the interpretation of this dream! For as I conceive in my mind, woe unto them that shall survive in those days! but much more woe unto them that 18 do not survive! For they that do not survive must be sorrowful, knowing as they do what things are 19 reserved in the last days, but not attaining unto them. But woe unto them also that survive, for 20 this reason—they must see great perils, and many distresses, even as these dreams do show. Yet "it is better" to come into "these things" incurring peril, than to pass away as a cloud out of the 21 world and not to see what shall happen in the last time. And he answered me, and said: The interpretation of the Vision I will tell thee, and I will also explain unto thee the things of which

^{u-u} \mathfrak{L} fluctum (v. l. flatum) ignis ^{v-v} \mathfrak{L} spiritum flammae ^{w-w} reading scintillas tempestatis ^{x-x} \mathfrak{L} multitudo
 tempestatis (we should expect scintillae tempestatis to be repeated) ^{y-y} reading multitudinis impetum ^{z-z} \mathfrak{L} quod (sc. multitudo = πληθος—retaining the Greek gender) ^{a-a} \mathfrak{L} quorundam gaudentium quorundam tristantium = ων μεν ηδομενων, ων δε λυπουμενων ^{b-b} so \mathfrak{S} Ethiop. (cf. Arm.): \mathfrak{L} facilius (? read felicius: so Hilg.) ^{c-c} reading haec = \mathfrak{S} Ethiop.

6. he cut out for himself a great mountain. Cf. Dan. ii. 45 ('the stone cut out without hands').

10. a storm of sparks. The whole representation is based on Isa. xi. 4; cf. Ps. Sol. xvii. 27, 1 En. lxii. 2. It is a striking feature that the Messiah, without the aid of weapons or allies, destroys the opposed nations by supernatural means. See further Volz, p. 224 f.

11. the . . . storm. The description is a threefold delineation of the fiery stormy emission from the Messiah's mouth—fire like a stream, flame like wind, a sea of sparks like a snowstorm, all forming a mingled mass (Volkmar).

12. and call unto him another multitude which was peaceable. The Messiah first destroys his enemies and then gathers his subjects, as in Ps. of Sol. xvii (cf. especially verses 27, 28); cf. Isa. xi. 12.

13. the faces of many men. The faces betray the moods (joy, sorrow, &c.) described in the following clause.

some . . . glad, some sorrowful. Jews and heathen, pious and godless, are meant (Gunkel).

some were in bonds, i.e. Jews in captivity.

some brought others who should be offered, i.e. the heathen bring in Jews as an oblation to the Messiah; cf. Isa. lxvi. 20 (Ps. Sol. xvii. 34).

xiii. 13^b-24. As would be expected, R has not allowed the old source (M) from which he excerpted this vision to remain without revision and interpolation. In the section that follows (vv. 13^b-24) his hand is much in evidence; practically the whole of it is his work. Thus vv. 16-20, beginning, 'Woe unto them that shall survive in those days! but much more woe unto them that do not survive!' is plainly out of place in the midst of a prayer for enlightenment as to the meaning of the vision. Such language is the work of one who knows that the vision describes the advent of the Messiah, though this has yet to be explained in the interpretation (vv. 25-52). R, in fact, has borrowed the language and ideas of this passage from the interpretation that follows, which begins with v. 25, as the form of that verse clearly indicates. The whole passage exhibits essentially similar features to those of viii. 63-ix. 12. It is a compilation made by R. Its reflective tone also accords with this view of its general character.

Possibly some of the language of the earlier source lies behind vv. 13^b-14, but if so it has apparently been revised by R. See further EA, p. 290.

13. And I supplicated the Most High. The prayer is addressed directly to God. [What here followed originally has, it seems, been worked over by R.]

14. from the beginning hast shown thy servant these wonders. Cf. viii. 63. R here alludes to the disclosures which have been made in the former Visions.

hast counted me worthy to receive my prayer. Cf. ix. 24, 25.

18. what things are reserved in the last days. 'The last days' here = the temporary Messianic kingdom that precedes the End. This view harmonizes with the eschatology of E and R. Cf. vii. 26-44 and viii. 63-ix. 12.

19. even as these dreams do show. By 'these dreams' R here means the whole series of preceding visions.

R 22 thou hast spoken. Whereas thou hast spoken of those who survive ^d(and of those who do not 23 survive)^d—this is the interpretation: He that shall bring the peril in that time ^ewill himself keep ^e them that fall into the peril, even such as have works and faith toward ^f(the Most High and)^f the 24 Mighty One. Know, therefore, that those who survive (to that time) are more blessed than those that have died.

III. xiii. 25-52, 53 a. THE INTERPRETATION OF THE VISION (M) (R).

M 25 These are the interpretations of the vision: Whereas thou didst see a Man coming up from 26 the heart of the Sea: this is he whom the Most High is keeping ^gmany ages ^g [(and) ^hthrough whom 27 he will deliver his creation^h,] and the same shall order the survivors. And whereas thou didst see 28 that out of his mouth there came wind, and fire, and storm; and whereas he held neither spear, nor any warlike weapon, but destroyed the assault of that multitude which had come ⁱto fight against R 29 himⁱ—this is the interpretation: [Behold, the days come when the Most High is about to deliver them 30, 31 that are upon earth. And there shall come astonishment of mind upon the dwellers on earth: and they shall plan to war one against another, ^jcity against city^j, place against place, people against 32 people, and kingdom against kingdom. And it shall be when these things shall come to pass, and the signs shall happen which I showed thee before, then shall my Son be revealed whom thou didst see as
M 33 a Man ascending.] It shall be, when all the nations hear his voice, every man shall leave his own 34 land and the warfare which they have one against another; and an innumerable multitude shall be 35 gathered together, as thou didst see, desiring to come and to fight against him. But he shall stand
R 36 upon the summit of Mount Sion. [And Sion shall come and shall be made manifest to all men,
M 37 prepared and builded, even as thou didst see the mountain cut out without hands.] But he, my Son, shall reprove the nations that are come for their ungodliness—which things (i. e., the rebukes) are 38 like unto a storm—; and shall reproach them to their face with their evil thoughts and with the tortures with which they are destined to be tortured—which are compared unto a flame—; and then 39 shall he destroy them without labour ^kby the Law^k which is compared unto fire. And whereas thou didst see ^lthat he summoned and gathered to himself^l another multitude which was peaceable—

^{d-d} so S (Ar.¹) (cf. Ethiop.): L > ^{e-e} reading ipse custodibit ^{f-f} so S (cf. Ethiop. Ar.¹): L > ^{g-g} L multis temporibus (= πολλοις χρονοις) ^{h-h} L qui per semetipsum (a misunderstanding of רבו רשע = ος δι αυτου):
the correct translation is given by Ar.¹ (cf. S Ethiop. Arm.) ⁱ⁻ⁱ L ad (so S, &c.) expugnare eum (= προς το εκπολεμειν αυτον) ^{j-j} L civitatis (a false nom. = civitas) civitatem ^{k-k} so S: L et legem ^{l-l} so S (cf. Ar.¹): L eum colli-

23. even such as have works and faith. A reminiscence of the theology of S; so in a similar composite passage, ix. 7 (cf. viii. 33 S).

xiii. 25-52, 53 a.

26. many ages. The pre-existent heavenly Messiah (= 'the Son of Man' of I En. xxxvii-lxx) is meant. His being hidden with God is referred to in v. 52 below. This heavenly pre-existence must be carefully distinguished from the earthly pre-existence which is attributed in various forms to the earthly Messiah in Rabbinic literature.

[through whom he will deliver his creation]. This clause does not accord with the rest of the interpretation; it has probably been interpolated by R from the former vision (A); cf. xi. 46. So, again, v. 29 in this chapter (the deliverance of creation).

and the same shall order the survivors. This is probably due to R (cf. v. 48).

29-32. [Behold, the days come, &c.] These verses appear to be an interpolation by R intended to explain how the nations had previously been engaged in internecine strife. The contents are in the style of E; cf. iv. 52-v. 12. The verses really interrupt the sequence of the interpretation, which is restored by their elimination.

29. [Behold, the days come]. Cf. v. 1, vi. 18.

31. [people against people, and kingdom against kingdom]. Cf. Isa. xix. 2, Matt. xxiv. 7.

34. [and an innumerable multitude shall be gathered together]. An important point in the eschatological drama is assigned to the final conflict of the assembled heathen nations against the people of God (the 'wars of Gog and Magog'). The annihilation of these hosts forms an indispensable preliminary to the inauguration of the Messianic era. Cf. Ezek. xxxviii-xxxix; Joel iii (Hebr. iv) 12; Zech. xiv. 2; Isa. xxv. 2; and see further EA, p. 294 f.

35. But he shall stand upon the summit of Mount Sion. The identification of the mysterious mountain (which the Man cut out for himself and upon which he flew) with Mount Sion is implied. This is natural from a later point of view; cf. Ps. ii. 6. For the original significance of this feature cf. EA, p. 295.

36. [And Sion shall come, &c.] Another interpolation by R. Here Sion = the heavenly City which descends from heaven at the end of the Messianic age (cf. vii. 26). Cf. also Rev. xxi. 2, 9 f.

[without hands]. Cf. Dan. ii. 34, 35.

37. shall reprove the nations. Cf. xii. 32.

shall reproach them, &c. Cf. xii. 32.

38. shall he destroy them. Apparently the hostile multitude here destroyed includes all the heathen nations, as 'the peaceable' multitude which is preserved is identified with the Ten Tribes. Contrast the original vision (v. 13 a), which contemplates the submission of some of the heathen to the triumphant Messiah (so 2 Bar. lxxii. 2, 3; Ps. of Sol. xvii. 32). For the older view see Ps. lxxii. 11; Isa. lxvi; Zech. xiv; Dan. vii. 14. Possibly in our passage, however, proselytes are intended to be included in the 'peaceable' multitude. For the conflict of opinion on the ultimate fate of the heathen see Volz, p. 322-325; RWS², ch. xi. 2 b.

40 These are ^mthe ten tribes^m which were led away captive out of their own land in the days ⁿof Josiah ⁿthe king, ^owhich (tribes)^o Salmanassar the king of the Assyrians led away captive; he 41 carried them across the River, and (thus) they were transported into another land. ^pBut they took this counsel among themselves^p, that they would leave the multitude of the heathen, and go forth 42 into a land further distant, where the human race had never dwelt, there at least to keep their 43 statutes which they had not kept in their own land. And they entered by the narrow passages 44 of the river Euphrates. For the Most High then wrought ^qwonders^q for them, and stayed the 45 springs of the River until they were passed over. And through that country there was a great way 46 to go, (a journey) of a year and a half; and that region was called Arzareth. There they have dwelt 47 until the last times; and now, when they are about to come again, the Most High will again stay the springs of the River, that they may be able to pass over. Therefore thou didst see a multitude 48 gathered together in peace. [But the survivors of thy people, even those who are found within my holy 49 *border, ^r(shall be saved)^r.] It shall be, therefore, when he shall destroy the multitude of the nations
 50 that are gathered together, he shall defend the people that remain. And then shall he show them 51 ^svery many wonders^s. And I said: O Lord my Lord, show me this: wherefore I have seen the 52 Man coming up from the heart of the sea. And he said unto me: Just as one can neither seek out nor know what is in the deep of the sea, even so can no one upon earth see my Son [or those that 53 are with him]. but in the time ^tof his day^t. Such is the interpretation of the dream which thou hast seen.*

IV. xiii. 53 b-58. EPILOGUE AND TRANSITION TO THE SEVENTH VISION
 (partly E², partly S R).

53 b . . . Therefore ^uhas this been revealed to thee^u, and to thee alone, 54 because thou hast forsaken ^vthe things of thyself^v, and hast applied thy diligence unto mine and searched out my Law;

gentem ad se ^{m-m} so L: S the nine and a half tribes = Ethiop. (some MSS.: but others nine) *Ar.*¹ Arm.: *Ar.*² the remnant of the nine tribes ⁿ⁻ⁿ L (best MSS.) Josiae; so S *Ar.*²: L (M) Oseae ^{o-o} so S Ethiop. *Ar.*¹: L quem (due to misunderstanding the reference of אֲשֶׁר) ^{v-v} L ipsi autem sibi dederunt consilium hoc ^{q-q} so Oriental VSS.:
L signa ^{r-r} so S: other VSS. (including L) > ^{s-s} L multa plurima portenta (= ? נפלאות רבות גדולות): S many wonders (Violet regards multa in L as an uncorrected mistake for plurima) ^{t-t} so S (cf. other Oriental VSS.): L diei only ^{u-u} L inluminatus es haec = εφωτισθησ ταντα ^{v-v} L tua = τα οα

40. the ten tribes. This is a purely ideal designation of the Northern Kingdom here. For the legends concerning the Ten Tribes cf. EA, p. 300 f.; and for the explanation of the variant 'nine and a half' cf. EA, p. 296.

in the days of Josiah the King. This is the true reading of L and the other versions. An historical error is involved, Hosea being the name of the king in whose reign the Captivity took place (cf. 2 Kings xvii). The error may be due to the original writer (cf. Dan. i. 1, 2 Bar. i. 1), or to textual corruption in the original Hebrew.

the River, i. e. the Euphrates.

41. where the human race had never dwelt. As Gunkel remarks, the fact that the Ten Tribes were not known to exist in any definite land made it necessary to suppose that they had removed to a locality not otherwise accessible, and out of contact with the rest of the world.

44. and stayed the springs of the River until they were passed over. Cf. Josh. iii. 15 f. This will explain why it is that the country in which the Ten Tribes are supposed to be dwelling is inaccessible (Gunkel).

45. Arzareth, i. e. as Dr. Schiller-Szinessy (Journal of Philology, iii [1871], p. 114) correctly pointed out, the 'eres 'achereth (= 'another land') of Deut. xxix. 25-28 (Hebr. 24-27). The words of this passage are applied to the Ten Tribes in the Mishnah (Sanh. x. 3). See further EA, p. 298.

48. [But the survivors . . . who are found within my holy border, &c.] This verse must be an interpolation of R; it represents the point of view of E (cf. vi. 25), which R is fond of insisting upon (cf. vii. 28). The logical connexion is much improved by its omission. For the idea that Palestine is, in a special sense, the land of salvation (cf. ix. 8), and that to dwell there is in itself a source of protection and happiness, cf. 2 Bar. xl. 2 (also xxxix. 2) and notes there. See also Volz, p. 308.

49. defend the people that remain, i. e. those, presumably, who do not come under the destructive fire that proceeds out of the Messiah's mouth, viz. Israel, which includes the people in Palestine and the Ten Tribes. The latter may be intended to embrace the Dispersion generally, together with proselytes.

51. show me this. The meaning of the coming up of the Man from the Sea was already obscure to the apocalypticist. The explanation that follows is clearly an artificial one, the product of later reflection.

52. [or those that are with him]. There is no hint in the vision itself, or elsewhere in the interpretation, that the Messiah is accompanied by other beings; probably the words are an insertion by R (cf. vii. 28—also R). The Messiah's immortal companions may be meant (cf. vi. 26), or, possibly, angels.

xiii. 53 b-58. The verses that follow form, in their present position, a short epilogue to the sixth, and a transition to the seventh vision. Probably vv. 53 b-55 (which are vigorous and distinctive both in thought and diction) were derived by R from E², while vv. 57-58 are a misplaced fragment of S, which should follow x. 57. See EA, p. 301 f. In order to adjust these verses to their present context R has added the redactional link 'and there I sat three days'. This finds its explanation in the opening words of the next vision.

- E² 55 Thy life thou hast ordered unto wisdom and hast called understanding thy mother.
- 56 Therefore have I showed thee this ; for there is a reward (laid up) with the Most High. And it shall be after three more days I will speak other things unto thee, and will declare to thee things difficult and marvellous.

REDACTIONAL TRANSITION TO THE SEVENTH VISION

[vv. 57-58 (S) misplaced : proper position after x. 57].

- S(R) 57 [^{vv} Then I went forth and walked in the field ^{vv}, greatly magnifying and praising the Most High on 58 account of the marvellous acts which he performs in due season ; and because he governs the times and the things which come to pass in due season.] And there I abode three days.

THE SEVENTH VISION.

(THE EZRA-LEGEND.)

(Chap. xiv) (E²) (S) (R).I. xiv. 1-17. EZRA'S COMMISSION (E²) (R).

- E² 14 1, 2 And it came to pass ^w after the third day ^w, while I sat under the oak, lo ! there came a voice out ^{vv-vv} so § Ethiop. (cf. *Arm. Ar.*²): ℒ et profectus sum et transii in campum ^{w-w} so *Ar.*² Arm. (cf. § after this): ℒ tertio die

55. hast called understanding thy mother. Cf. Prov. vii. 4.

57. Then I went forth and walked in the field, i.e. the field of Ardat, the scene of the Vision of the heavenly City. The proper position of this and the following verse is, therefore, after x. 57. In its original context the clause means that the seer avails himself of the permission given him in x. 55 to go in and look more carefully at the wonders of the heavenly City, still conceived as being visible to his eyes in the field. So he passes from the spot, where he has received the revelation, further into the field to gaze upon the City.

xiv. THE SEVENTH VISION. The so-called 'Seventh Vision' begins with a narrative description of Ezra sitting 'under the oak', and 'on the third day' (i.e. at the end of the three-day period prescribed in xiii. 56) hearing a voice from a bush (as to Moses), which commanded him to recall carefully the things (of Scripture and tradition) that he had learnt, because his departure from the world is at hand—he is assured that he is to be translated to the heavenly regions to be with the Messiah and his companions. The age is hastening to its close. Of the twelve periods which the world had to run nine and a half have elapsed already, and only two and a half remain. Therefore the prophet is bidden to prepare to take his departure. On his asking who is to take his place after he himself has gone, and praying that he may be inspired, while he remains on earth, to write down again all the Scriptures that have been burnt, he is told to withdraw from the people forty days: during this interval, with the aid of five specially equipped scribes, he is to write down all that he has seen and heard. Part of the writings is to be published openly; part to be kept secret. The seer, after delivering a farewell address to the people (vv. 27-36), does as he is commanded. A cup is given him 'which was full as it were with water, but the colour of it was like fire', after drinking which he is specially inspired and strengthened to remember all the sacred writings. For forty days he dictates to the five scribes, with the result that in all ninety-four books are written down, twenty-four of which (= the Old Testament Books) are to be published, while seventy are to be treasured in secret among the wise of the people. In the Oriental Versions a short postscript gives the year, according to the Era of Creation, when these events took place, and ends with the announcement of Ezra's assumption.

For a full discussion of the significance of the Ezra-legend for the interpretation of the book reference must be made to EA, pp. 304 ff. It should be noted that the legend represents Ezra as the restorer not only of the lost canonical but also of the dispersed apocalyptic books.

This amounts to a claim that the apocalyptic tradition occupies an essential place in genuine Judaism. It claims for itself the great names of Moses and Ezra, 'the second Moses.' When the date of the formation of our book is taken into consideration (? A.D. 120 or somewhat later) it seems impossible to dissociate its appearance with the controversies regarding the Canon. The motive of R in compiling his Apocalypse and associating with it the name of Ezra seems to have been a desire to reassert the claim of apocalyptic tradition to secure (or maintain) for itself an officially recognized place within Judaism as part of the oral tradition.

While there was, at this time, a party among the Rabbis more or less favourable to apocalyptic, a larger number took up a hostile attitude. Our book seems to be due to an attempt to win over opponents by publishing one of the secret books (or a collection of selections from them) associated with the great name of Ezra, in which the cruder elements of apocalyptic are refined away.

A number of considerations go to show that E² is an independent source. For a full discussion of these reference must be made to EA, p. 306 f. The fitting in of ch. xiv to its present context by R was not accomplished without some adjustment and adaptation. This can be seen clearly in vv. 8b, 17b, 28, and v. 37 ('into the field'): in vv. 29-35 we have, apparently, a misplaced section of S; while vv. 49-50 are obviously the work of R. The chapter falls naturally into the following divisions: (i) vv. 1-17; (ii) vv. 18-26; (iii) vv. 27-36; (iv) vv. 37-48; (v) vv. 49-50.

xiv. 1-17.

1. under the oak. Evidently some well-known oak is meant which had been fixed upon by tradition as a place where revelations were given. Such an oak is mentioned in several passages in 2 Baruch (vi. 1, lxxvii. 18, cf. lv. 1), and is there located in the neighbourhood of Jerusalem. Doubtless the same oak (in or near Jerusalem) is meant here; it cannot be identical with 'Abraham's oak' at Hebron.

2. there came a voice out of a bush. Cf. Exod. iii. 8.

of a bush over against me; and it said, Ezra, Ezra! And I said: Here am I, Lord. And I rose upon my feet. Then said he unto me: I did manifestly reveal myself ^x in the bush ^x, and talked with Moses when my people were in bondage in Egypt: and I sent him, ^y and led ^y my people out of Egypt, and brought them to Mount Sinai; and I held him by me for many days.

I told him many wondrous things, showed him the secrets of the times,
^zdeclared to him ^z the end of the seasons:

Then I commanded him saying:

These words shalt thou publish openly, but these keep secret. And now I do say to thee:

The signs which I have shewed ^a thee ^a,
The dreams which thou hast seen, and the interpretations which thou hast heard—lay them up in thy heart! For thou shalt be taken up from (among) men, and henceforth thou shalt remain with my Son, and with such as are like thee, until the times be ended.

For the world has lost its youth,
The times begin to wax old.

For the world-age is divided into ^b twelve ^b parts; ^c nine (parts) of it are passed already ^c, and the half of the tenth part; and there remain of it two (parts), besides ^d the half ^d of the tenth part.

Now, therefore, set in order thy house,
and reprove thy people;

Comfort the lowly among them,
^eand instruct those that are wise ^e.

Now do thou renounce the life that is corruptible, let go from thee ^f the cares of mortality ^f;

cast from thee the burdens of man, put off now the weak nature;
lay aside thy burdensome cares, and hasten to remove from these times!

For still worse evils than those which thou hast seen happen ^g shall yet take place ^g. For the weaker the world grows through age, so much the more shall evils increase upon the dwellers on earth.

Truth shall withdraw further off, and falsehood be nigh at hand:

for already the Eagle is hastening to come whom thou sawest in vision.

^{x-x} \mathfrak{L} super rubum (= $\epsilon\pi\iota$ της βατου): *Ar.*² in Mount Sinai (confusion of דנה [Aram. דנני] bush and סיני) ^{y-y} reading eduxi (SA): the v. l. eduxit is supported by \mathfrak{S} *Ar.*¹ *Ar.*² ^{z-z} so \mathfrak{S} (cf. other Oriental VSS.): \mathfrak{L} > ^{a-a} so \mathfrak{S} *Ethiop. Ar.*¹: but \mathfrak{L} (best MSS.) > ^{b-b} so \mathfrak{L} *Ar.*²: Ethiop. ten [vv. 11-12 are not attested in \mathfrak{S} and Arm.] ^{c-c} reading et transierunt eius ix iam (MSS. of \mathfrak{L} have x [decem] = *Ar.*²) ^{d-d} reading dimidium ^{e-e} so Oriental VSS.: \mathfrak{L} > ^{f-f} \mathfrak{L} mortales cogitationes (= $\tau\omicron\upsilon\varsigma$ $\theta\alpha\nu\alpha\sigma\iota\mu\omicron\upsilon\varsigma$ $\lambda\omicron\gamma\iota\sigma\mu\omicron\upsilon\varsigma$) ^{g-g} reading iterum . . . facientur (MSS. facient)

4. I held him by me, i. e. 'I held' Moses (viz. on Mount Sinai); cf. Exod. xxxiv. 28.

5. the secrets of the times . . . the end of the seasons, i. e. the secret tradition regarding the crises of the world's history (measured by certain periods of time) which was associated with the name of Moses: a specimen of this exists in the Assumption of Moses; see i. 16 f., x. 12, xi. 1. There are traces of a larger apocryphal literature which circulated under the name of Moses, but which is no longer extant.

6. These words . . . publish openly, but these keep secret. Cf. the narrative in Deut. v. What was published openly by Moses was the Torah; what was kept secret was, according to our author, the apocalyptic tradition. So Gunkel. The terms of v. 5 certainly suggest an apocalyptic rather than an oral legal tradition, such as the oral Law which was treasured in Rabbinic circles, and which was largely traced back (in theory, at any rate) to Moses.

8. The dreams . . . interpretations . . . heard. These lines have probably been added by R to connect what follows with the contents of the previous visions.

9. with my Son, and with such as are like thee. The Messiah is here conceived as pre-existing in heaven, and (as in the Parables of 1 Enoch) as surrounded by a community of elect ones (cf. 1 En. xxxix. 7). So, too, in the Parables Enoch is removed to heaven to dwell with the Son of Man (1 En. lxx. 1 f.), just as Ezra is here. See further EA, p. 309.

until the times be ended. The heavenly Messiah does not appear till the End; cf. 1 En. xlv. 3 f.

10. the world has lost its youth, the times begin to wax old. Cf. 2 Bar. lxxxv. 10; see the idea worked out in 4 Ezra v. 50-55.

12. the half. For vv. 11-12 the Ethiop. has: 'For the world is divided into ten parts and is come to the tenth; and there remains the half of the tenth' (cf. the half-week in Dan. ix. 27 = the last $3\frac{1}{2}$ years of tribulation). So in Sibyll. Oracles, iv. 47 f., and in the apocalypse of ten weeks, 1 En. xciii (xci). The twelve-period division appears in 2 Bar. liii f. In our passage it is probable that the time-definition is intended to apply to the historical Ezra. See further EA, p. 310.

13. thy house, i. e. the house of Israel.

14. cast from thee the burdens of man. Cf. 2 Cor. v. 4.

17. for already the Eagle, &c. This is obviously a redactional link to bring in ch. xi.

II. xiv. 18-26. EZRA'S PRAYER FOR INSPIRATION TO RESTORE THE SCRIPTURES (E²).

E² 18, 19 And I answered and said: ^h Let me speak ^h before thee, O Lord! Lo, I will depart, as thou hast commanded me, and will warn the people who (now) exist: but they that shall be born later, who shall admonish them?
 20 For the world lies in darkness, and the dwellers therein are without light.
 21 (For thy Law is burnt; and so no man knows the things which have been done by thee, or the 22 works that shall be done. If, then, I have found favour before thee, send into me the Holy Spirit, that I may write all that has happened in the world since the beginning, even the things which were written in thy Law, in order that men may be able to find ⁱ the path ⁱ, and that they who would live at the last, may live.)
 23 And he answered me and said: Go thy way, assemble the people and tell them not to seek thee
 24 for forty days. But do thou prepare for thyself many ^j writing-tablets ^j; and take with thee Saraia, Dabria, Selemia, ^k Elkanah ^k, and Osiel, these five, because they are equipped for writings wiftly;
 25 and (then) come hither, and I will light the lamp of understanding in thy heart, which shall not be 26 extinguished until what thou art about to write shall be completed. And when thou shalt have finished, some things thou shalt publish, and some thou shalt deliver in secret to the wise. To-morrow, at this hour, thou shalt begin to write.

III. xiv. 27-36. EZRA'S LAST WORDS (E²) (S) (R).

E² 27 Then I went forth as he commanded me, and assembled all the people and said:
 R 28 [Hear, O Israel, these words!]
 S 29 [Our fathers were at the beginning strangers in Egypt, and they were delivered from thence.
 30 And (then) they received the Law of life, which they kept not, ^l even as ^l you also after them have 31 transgressed (it). Then was a land given you for an inheritance ^m in the land of Sion ^m, but ye and

^{h-h} reading loquar (Lat. MSS. mostly >) = Oriental VSS. ⁱ⁻ⁱ so 𐤀 𐤃: Ethiop. + of life ^{j j} 𐤀 buxos (= πύλα: Hebr. לַיְחִיּוֹת) ^{k-k} so 𐤀 and Arm. (cf. Ethiop.): 𐤀 Ethanus ^{l-} 𐤀 quem (so 𐤀): prob. an original Hebr. כְּאִשֶּׁר was misread אִשֶּׁר (so Violet) ^{m-m} so 𐤀 𐤃 (cf. Ethiop.): Ar.¹ >: Ar.² on Mount

xiv. 18-26.

20. the dwellers therein are without light, i.e. without the light of God's Law. For the idea of the Law = light of divine revelation cf. Ps. xix, especially v. 8 b. Often, in apocalyptic, light and darkness correspond to piety and godlessness.

21. thy Law is burnt. The reference here is primarily to the destruction of Jerusalem by Nebuchadnezzar when, with other things, the Law is presumed to have been burnt.

the things which have been done by thee, i.e. the narrative of the sacred (historical) books of the Old Testament.

the works that shall be done, i.e. according to Gunkel, the eschatological passages of the Old Testament. The Old Testament thus consists primarily of sacred history and eschatology.

22. Law. 'Law' here, apparently, has the wide sense of Scriptures of the Old Testament generally; cf. John x. 24, xv. 25; 1 Cor. xiv. 21.

that they who would live at the last, may live. Cf. 2 Bar. xli. 1 and notes, and lxxvi. 5.

23. for forty days. As at the first giving of the Law (to Moses) and its writing down; cf. Exod. xxiv. 18, xxxiv. 28; Deut. ix. 9, 18. The precedent is followed in the case of the second Moses here.

24. these five. In Ezra and his five companions there may be a covert allusion to Johanan b. Zakkai—the re-founder of Judaism in A. D. 66-70—and his five famous disciples, Eliezer b. Hyrkanos, Joshua b. Hananya, Jose the Priest, Simeon b. Nathanael, and Eleazar b. Araq. (so Rosenthal).

26. some thou shalt deliver in secret to the wise. Just as Moses, according to Rabbinic tradition, had delivered the substance of the oral law to the teachers and wise of his people to be handed down to future ages.

xiv. 27-36. The section that follows is apparently of composite origin. In v. 23 God had said to Ezra: 'Go thy way, assemble the people and tell them not to seek thee for forty days.' Instead of simply carrying out this command Ezra, according to the present form of the section, assembles the people and delivers an address in which he reminds them that their fathers, though they were delivered from Egypt and received the Law of life, were unfaithful to their trust, and had not kept the behest of the Most High. In this unfaithfulness the assembled people had themselves shared. Therefore their land had been taken from them. If they will rule their understanding and instruct their hearts they shall be preserved alive, and after death obtain mercy. For after death there is the judgement, when the names of the righteous shall be made manifest, and the works of the ungodly declared. Ezra concludes by requesting that no one shall seek after him for forty days.

It seems probable that the passage as a whole formed no original part of E², and has been compiled by R, who has detached the original conclusion of S, and placed it here (it forms the true sequel to xii. 48). See further EA, p. 315. In its original form E² here simply had, it is probable, vv. 27 and 36.

28. [Hear, O Israel, these words!] This clause may have been added by R.

30. the Law of life, i.e. the Law which, if it was observed, would confer life and immortality—a characteristic thought of S.

your fathers have done unrighteousness, and have not kept the ways which ⁿthe Most High ⁿ com-32 manded you. ^oAnd ^oforasmuch as he is a righteous judge he took from you in due time that which 33 he had bestowed. And now ye are here [^pand your brethren are . . .^p].

34 If ye, then, will rule over your own understanding and will discipline your heart,

Ye shall be preserved alive and after death obtain mercy.

35 For after death shall the Judgement come,

[when we shall once more live again:]

And then shall the names of the righteous be made manifest, and the works of the godless declared.]

36 Let no man, then, come unto me now, nor seek me for forty days.

IV. xiv. 37-48. THE RESTORATION OF THE HOLY SCRIPTURES (E²).

37 So I took the five men as he had commanded me, and we went forth [into the field] and remained there.

38 And it came to pass on the morrow that, lo! a voice called me, saying:

Ezra, open thy mouth and drink what I give thee to drink!

39 Then I opened my mouth, and lo! there was reached unto me a full cup, which was full as it were with water, but the colour of it was like fire.

40 And I took it and drank; and when I had drunk

My heart poured forth understanding, wisdom grew in my breast, and my spirit retained its memory:

41 and my mouth opened, and was no more shut.

42 And the Most High gave understanding unto the five men, and they wrote what was dictated ^ain order ^a, ^rin characters which they knew not ^r.

43 ^sAnd so they sat ^s forty days:

They wrote in the day-time and at night did eat bread;

Sinai ⁿ⁻ⁿ so \mathfrak{L} Arm. (cf. Ethiop.): \mathfrak{S} Moses the servant of the Lord: *Ar.*¹ > ^{o-o} so Oriental VSS.: \mathfrak{L} > ^{p-p} \mathfrak{L} et fratres vestri introrsus vestrum sunt (*cf. Ar.*¹): \mathfrak{S} and your brethren are further inland than you in another land (cf. Ethiop. Arm.): *Ar.*² your brethren are in the furthest East ^{q-q} \mathfrak{L} ex successione (= καθεξής; cf. Luke
 i. 3) ^{r-r} reading [ex successione] notis (MSS. noctis) quae non sciebant (so \mathfrak{S} : cf. Ethiop.) (corrupt text is [quae dicebantur] excessiones noctis: the wonderful visions of the night that were told A.V.) ^{s-s} so \mathfrak{L} Ethiop.: but \mathfrak{S}
 (*cf. Ar.*¹ Arm.) I sat

33. ye are here, i.e. in Babylon (if the passage belongs to S). In its present context 'here' ought to mean in Jerusalem.

[and your brethren are . . .] The text is very uncertain (see crit. notes). If 'your brethren' = the Ten Tribes the verse is clearly a harmonistic addition based on xiii. 41.

34. Ye shall be preserved alive, i.e. spiritually alive.

35. [when we shall once more live again]. This clause seems certainly to refer to the bodily resurrection (preceding the last Judgement). But such a reference would not harmonize with the theology of S. Kabisch thinks the clause may have been originally a marginal gloss, which was added by a pious reader who believed in a general resurrection, and which afterwards got into the text.

37. [into the field]. This is probably due to R, who identified the spot to which Ezra and his five companions retired with the field of Ardat. Some other expression may have stood in the text originally.

39. was full as it were with water . . . fire. The cup is the cup of inspiration full of the holy spirit, which, clear as water, is like fire. Ezra after drinking it is inspired. The representation that is given in our passage of the inspired state is very interesting. It may be compared with Philo's conception which was influenced by the Platonic idea of the ecstatic or God-intoxicated seer. For an extended reference to this cf. Philo, Quis rerum divinarum heres sit, §§ 51-52.

The representation of the cup here as being the medium by which the prophet receives inspiration is peculiar. It certainly suggests Essene affinities; the idea of divine power being sacramentally mediated was familiar to the members of this sect. See further EA, p. 318 f.

40. and my spirit retained its memory. The effect of ecstasy was often such that the subject of it lost consciousness and memory. In Ezra's case, however, the natural faculties are immensely strengthened and intensified. This is inspiration, so our passage seems to imply, in its highest form. The apocalyptic writer here is obviously well acquainted with the experiences and phenomena of the ecstatic state.

42. in characters which they knew not, i.e. in a new Hebrew script, the square or 'Assyrian' character used in our printed Hebrew Bibles. Ezra was traditionally regarded as the inventor of this form of Hebrew writing; cf. Jerome in his Preface to the Books of Kings (the so-called prologus galeatus): certum est Esdras scribam legisque doctorem post captam Hierosolymam et instaurationem templi sub Zorobabel alias litteras repperisse quibus nunc utimur, cum ad illud usque tempus iidem Samaritanorum et Ebraeorum characteres fuerint.

- E² but as for me, I spake in the day, and at night was not silent.
- 44, 45 So in forty days were written ^tninety-four books ^t. And it came to pass when the forty days were fulfilled, that the Most High spake unto me saying: "The twenty-four books ^u that thou hast 46 written publish, that the worthy and unworthy may read (therein): but the seventy last thou shalt keep, to deliver them to the wise among thy people.
- 47 For in them is the spring of understanding,
the fountain of wisdom,
and the stream of knowledge.
- R 48 ^v And I did so ^v, ^win the seventh year, of the sixth week, after five thousand years of the creation and three months and twelve days ^w.

V. xiv. 49-50. CONCLUSION OF THE BOOK (R).

- 49 And then was Ezra caught away, and taken up ^x into the place of such as were like him, ^x after 50 having written all these things. And ^y he is called the Scribe of the knowledge of the Most High for ever and ever ^y.

^{t-t} so § Ethiop. Ar.¹ Arm.: the number given in the Lat. MSS. varies between 904, 970, and 974. ^{u-u} so §
(Ar.¹): \mathbb{L} priora (cf. Ethiop. Arm.)—omitting the number ^{v-v} here the Latin text breaks off ^{w-w} so § (= 5,042 years) see exeget. notes ^{x-x} so § Ethiop. (cf. Arm.): Ar.¹ to the land of the living of such as were like him ^{y-y} so §

43. but as for me, &c. Cf. 2 En. xxiii. 3 f.

45. The twenty-four books. The twenty-four books are, of course, the books of the O.T., which were read openly in the synagogue, and were open for all to read. The number 24 is the ordinary reckoning of the O.T. books (5 + 8 + 11). In the Talmud and Midrash the O.T. is regularly termed 'the twenty-four holy Scriptures'. Another reckoning was 22 (cf. Joseph. c. Apion, i. 8) in accordance with the number of letters in the Hebrew alphabet (so also Origen, Epiphanius, Jerome). This total seems to have been obtained by combining Ruth with Judges, and Lamentations with Jeremiah.

46. the seventy last, i.e. the apocalypses which were secret books.

47. the spring of understanding. The high estimation in which the apocalyptic literature was held within certain circles in Judaism comes here to clear expression.

48. And I did so. Here the Latin text breaks off. The last verses of the Apocalypse are preserved in the Oriental Versions. They were eliminated from the Latin text when the additional chapters that conclude the book in its Latin form (15 and 16) were appended by a Christian editor.

in the seventh year, &c. So Syr. = 5,042 years after the creation of the world (Ethiop. and Arm., 5,004; Ar.¹, 5,025). The Versions also vary as to the month: Syr., 3 months 12 days; Ethiop., 3 months 22 days; so Ar.¹; Arm., 2 months. Kabisch has shown that it is impossible to bring this date into chronological relation with any known system of reckoning the years of Creation. The verse is probably the work of R, and may possibly refer, as Kabisch suggests, to the time at which R himself wrote. But the minute specification of 3 months 12 (or 22) days is strange. Gunkel remarks that it recalls the 3½ months of the Book of Revelation.

xiv. 49-50. CONCLUSION OF THE BOOK. These verses, which are in the third person, are obviously the work of R.

49. such as were like him, i.e. the Messiah and his immortal companions; cf. vi. 26, vii. 28, xiii. 52, xiv. 9.

50. the Scribe of the knowledge of the Most High. This is otherwise the title of Enoch; cf. 1 En. xii. 3 f., xv. 1; also (?) of the archangel Vretil, 2 En. xxii. 11.

THE PSALMS OF SOLOMON

INTRODUCTION

§ 1. SHORT ACCOUNT OF THE BOOK.

THE Psalms of Solomon are a collection of eighteen Psalms which were written, according to the theory (see below) now generally accepted, in the middle of the first century B. C.

These Psalms passed with many other Jewish writings into Christian use, being classed sometimes with the 'apocrypha', sometimes with the 'antilegomena';¹ but their influence on Christian literature was neither very extensive nor intense, and they had passed out of sight and almost out of memory when at the beginning of the seventeenth century they again received attention. The editio princeps was published in 1626 by John Louis de la Cerda. This edition was based, as subsequent investigation and discovery have proved,² on a faulty copy of one (H) of the eight now known Greek MSS. which contain, together with other canonical and apocryphal books, the Psalms of Solomon. Before proceeding to the question of the origin and character of these Psalms it will be convenient to consider the material available for determining the text.

It may be regarded as practically certain (see below, § 4) that the Psalms were originally written in Hebrew: but this Hebrew original has perished and no testimony to it even survives. Till recently only Greek MSS. were known: now a Syriac text of the Psalms is known: but the Syriac is not the Semitic original itself, nor a direct version of the original: it is a translation from the Greek. The hypothetical Hebrew original will be denominated \mathfrak{H} , the Greek text \mathfrak{G} , and the Syriac \mathfrak{S} .

§ 2. THE GREEK (\mathfrak{G}) MSS.

The determination of the relation of the existing Greek MSS. to one another is due to Oscar von Gebhardt,³ on whose discussion the following account is based. All editions previous to von Gebhardt's rest on inadequate textual material.

The following is a list of the MSS. of \mathfrak{G} , with the symbols by which they are cited, the century in which they were written, and brief description:

Symbol.	Century.	Description.
C	12-13	Codex Casanatensis 1908 (Rome). Ps. i. 1-ii. 26 and xvi. 8 to the end of the Psalter is missing or illegible.
H (= K, Ryle and James)	10-11	Codex Havniensis 6: purchased at Venice in 1699, but since 1732 in the Royal Library at Copenhagen.
J	14	Codex Iberiticus: in the Iveron Monastery on Mount Athos.
L	12	A Codex of the Laura Monastery on Mount Athos.
M	12-13	Codex Mosquensis 147: in the Library of the Holy Synod at Moscow: formerly in the Iveron Monastery on Mount Athos, whence it was removed to Moscow in 1653.
P	15 (dated 1419)	Codex Parisinus Gr. 2991 A: in the National Library, Paris.
R	11-12	Codex (Romanus) Vaticanus Gr. 336: in the Vatican Library at Rome.
V	11	Codex Vindobonensis Theol. Gr. 11: now in the Royal Imperial Library in Vienna.

The authority cited by Ryle and James (Ψ αλμοὶ Σολομῶντος, Psalms of the Pharisees, Cambridge, 1891) as A is the faulty seventeenth-century copy of H, which was used for the editio princeps.

¹ Swete, Introduction to the O.T. in Greek, p. 282; O. von Gebhardt (as cited below), pp. 14 ff.

² Von Gebhardt, pp. 1 ff.

³ O. von Gebhardt, Ψ αλμοὶ Σολομῶντος: die Psalmen Salomo's zum ersten Male mit Benutzung der Athoshandschriften u. des Codex Casanatensis herausgegeben, Leipzig, 1895.

INTRODUCTION

The genealogy of these MSS., as established by von Gebhardt's investigations, is as follows :

where the small letters represent lost MSS. and capitals the existing MSS.: in particular z is the archetype of the Greek MSS., y is an (uncial) MS. from which R and x an (uncial) MS. were copied. MS. w was also probably uncial; v and u, on the other hand, probably minuscule. As between R and x (i. e. practically J L C H in agreement) von Gebhardt finds it difficult to determine which is the better MS. The variations between them amount to over 200 (von Gebhardt, p. 71), though by no means all of these affect the sense even of the Greek, and still less that of the Hebrew text lying behind the Greek. For some of the more important of these variations see ii 6, 24.

§ 3. THE SYRIAC (S): A VERSION FROM THE GREEK.

The Syriac Version is incompletely preserved: the MS., which also contained the really distinct work known as the Odes of Solomon, first published by Rendel Harris¹ in 1909, is defective at the close; xvii. 38 b to the end of xviii (the last Psalm) is missing. A small fragment of another MS. (containing xvi. 6-13) was subsequently discovered by Dr. Barnes in the Cambridge University MS. Add. 2012 (see Harris, p. 16), and Dr. Burkitt has still more recently drawn attention to yet another MS.² Harris (pp. 38 ff.) has argued (1) that the Syriac is a version of the Greek, not of the Semitic original of the Psalms: (2) that the place of the Greek text lying behind S is with R J L, perhaps being intermediate between J and L: (3) that in some passages S implies a reading of G preferable to that of all existing MSS. of G (e.g. in ii. 41 ὑπὸ τῶν S, ἐνώπιον G).³ From these conclusions the present writer sees no sufficient reasons for dissenting: there are, here and there, renderings of S which might well rest on a Hebrew original rather than on G, or which are not entirely explained by the text of any of the existing MSS. of G; but these renderings could scarcely establish a Hebrew original, and certainly should not outweigh the substantial evidence that S is a version of G. For this evidence see Harris, pp. 38 ff.: he rightly declines to allow this evidence to be outweighed by the curious paronomasia in xi. 6 f., where אֲנִי אֶלֶם might more readily have been suggested by an original Hebrew than by the ἀνέτειλεν of G. So again we might more readily explain אֲנִי אֶלֶם of ii. 1 as a rendering of אֲנִי אֶלֶם (cp. Ps. ix. 23 (x. 2)) than of ἐν τῷ ὑπερηφανεύεσθαι (= אֲנִי אֶלֶם), for S commonly has א where G has ἐν with the infin. (see e.g. i. 1, 3, v. 3, vi. 2, ix. 1, xvi. 1, 3); yet see v. 7, xv. 1. For another example of passages which might in themselves be well explained as resting on H rather than G, see xvii. 21. Apart from the general agreement of S with G, even where there is ground for suspecting that the latter rests on corruption in the transmission of G, or is the result of original faulty translation from H, there is evidence which may be illustrated by two or three examples: (1) in v. 16 אֲנִי אֶלֶם must be due to a confusion of א and א; (2) in ii. 24 (vi. 7) ἐδεήθη τὸ προσώπου κῶν, a euphemistic rendering of אֲנִי אֶלֶם (cp. 2 Kings xiii. 4), is literally rendered from the Greek אֲנִי אֶלֶם; ct. 2 Kings xiii. 4, where H is, indeed, paraphrased, but differently, אֲנִי אֶלֶם; (3) in xiii. 3 the ambiguous clause ἐν ταῖς μύλαις is rendered by S, not as the context requires with molar teeth (= במחלעות), but with millstones (which in H would have been entirely dissimilar—ברחים). See further notes on passages where S agrees with G though G appears to have misunderstood H; e.g. ii. 12; iii. 2, 4; viii. 3 ('us'), 12, 17 (xvii. 14).

¹ The Odes and Psalms of Solomon published from the Syriac Version, by J. Rendel Harris, Cambridge, 1909; ed. 2, 1911.

² This MS., now in the British Museum (B. M. Add. 14538), was described in Wright's Catalogue, pp. 1003-1008, and assigned by him to the tenth century A. D. For a description of that part of the MS. which contains the Odes and Psalms of Solomon, and for a collation of the variants as compared with Harris's MS., see Dr. Burkitt's note in the Journal of Theological Studies, April, 1912, pp. 372-378.

³ See also ii. 20, where all MSS. of G read κῶτέσπασε(ν), but S = κατεσπᾶσθη; xvi. 9 ἐν τόπω (so all MSS. but J), a scribal emendation of εν τῶπω (so J), which is itself a corruption of ἐνώπιον (so S).

THE PSALMS OF SOLOMON

§ 4. THE ORIGINAL LANGUAGE OF THE PSALMS: HEBREW (H).

The Hebrew the basis of the following translation.

That the Psalms were originally written in Hebrew is now generally admitted: this conclusion was indeed disputed by Hilgenfeld (Messias Iudaeorum, Prolegg. xvi, xvii), but his arguments are criticized by Wellhausen (Die Pharisäer u. die Sadducäer (1874) and Ryle and James (p. lxxxiv. f.).

Briefly stated, the argument that the Greek is not the original work, but a translation from an original, and now lost, Hebrew text, is this: Not only (1) does the Greek throughout show many features in common with Greek versions of existing Hebrew originals, but (2) it contains a certain number of strange expressions which are more or less obviously due to blunders in translating from Hebrew. As to (1), which might, if necessary, be largely, though not easily altogether, explained as not due to translation, but as a Hellenistic style specially influenced by the LXX, it must suffice to refer to the illustrations collected by Ryle and James (pp. lxxx ff.) of peculiar uses of the infin. and the aorist, of prepositions, of the negative οὐ . . . πᾶς = כִּי . . . כֹּל, of nouns anarthrous because equivalent to Hebrew nouns in the status constructus, of substantives in the genitive used in lieu of adjectives, and many other phenomena. For illustrations of (2) reference may be made to the notes below on ii. 12, 13, 19, 29, iii. 2, 4, v. 15, vii. 4, viii. 3, ix. 5, xv. 8, xvii. 14, 36.

A third line of argument might be urged: in not a few places the Hebrew rhythm can be still heard through the Greek version; as for example the so-called kinah rhythm (3:2) in Ps. viii.

But if the conclusion is right that behind the Greek lies a Hebrew original, the task of translation and interpretation must be constantly governed by it. Passages which might only be translated in one way, and so translated might receive some explanation, if the Greek were original, must often be translated otherwise, if the Hebrew, lying behind the Greek, would admit, or demands, an alternative translation that can receive a more satisfactory explanation. And in every case in which the Greek can only be explained in a strained and artificial manner, it is important to bear in mind the probability that the meaning of the Hebrew may have been different and simpler, even though the exact form and meaning of the Hebrew can no longer be discerned. In the notes that accompany the following translation it has been impossible to draw attention to all such alternatives; and in particular the tenses of the verbs have been represented by an equivalent in English which seemed most likely to express the force of the term in the original Hebrew, but only comparatively seldom have alternative possibilities been suggested. For a future tense the reader can always, if the context seems to him to render it more suitable, substitute a present and often a past.

§ 5. DATE, CHARACTER, AND ORIGIN OF THE PSALMS.

The earliest direct testimony to the Psalms of Solomon is in the catalogue at the beginning of the Codex Alexandrinus (A: fifth century A. D.). Here it stands after the final summary of the books of the Old and New Testaments.

Other references to the Psalms by name are later: the Pseudo-Athanasian Synopsis Sanctae Scripturae (? sixth century A. D.) (§ 74) places ψαλμοὶ καὶ ᾠδὴ Σολομῶντος among the antilegomena after Maccabees (four books) and Ptolemaica, and before Susanna; Nicephorus, Patriarch of Constantinople (A. D. 806-814), places them between Eccles. and Esther. In the text attached to the Quaestiones et Responsiones of Anastasius Sinaita (c. 640-700) Ψαλμοὶ Σολομῶντος are classed among twenty-five apocryphal books between the Assumption of Moses and the Apocalypse of Elijah.

The provision of the fifty-ninth canon of the Council of Laodicea (c. 360 A. D.), ὅτι οὐ δεῖ ἰδιωτικοὺς ψαλμοὺς λέγεσθαι ἐν τῇ ἐκκλησίᾳ, may be directed against church use of the Psalms of Solomon; but neither this reference nor a similar one in Ambrose, Praef. in Lib. Psalmorum, is free from ambiguity. So also the references in the Pistis Sophia (c. 250 A. D.) and Lactantius (fourth century A. D.) to the Odes of Solomon have a bearing on the date and history of the Psalms of Solomon only in so far as it can be shown that these two entirely distinct works were accustomed at an early date to be united as they are in the newly-recovered Syriac MS. On this see Harris, pp. 9 ff.

These references are of more importance as casting light on the circulation and position of the Psalms in the early Church than for closely determining the date at which the Psalms were written. For this we must turn to the internal evidence.

No argument can be based on language of the lost original, for though the Hebrew text can be to a large extent recovered, it cannot be so re-established in its minutiae as to admit of a linguistic argument of any weight.

It is different with the language of the Greek version, and attempts have been made to determine the date of that version, and consequently a terminus ad quem for the original work, by means of the style and affinities of the Greek in which it is written. From the Greek style and the relation of Pss. of Sol. xi to the Greek of Baruch iv. 36-v. 9 Ryle and James (pp. lxxii ff.) have argued that the Psalms of Solomon had been turned into Greek before A.D. 70. In so far as this argument turns on the assumption that Baruch iv. 36-v. 9 was originally written in Greek and is not a translation from the Hebrew, it may require reconsideration: for, to mention but a single point, in Baruch v. 6 ἀλομένοvs . . . ὡς θρόνον seems to be due to a thoughtless disregard of a well-known use of the Hebrew particle כּ¹ (BDB. 458 a): the sense requires borne as on a throne; this the Hebrew כּכסס would admit, but the Greek yields only the unsuitable meaning borne as a throne. However, the affinities of the Greek have convinced Viteau (pp. 140 ff.) who rejects, as well as Ryle and James who accept, the dependence of Baruch iv. 36-v. 9 on Pss. of Sol. xi, that the translation was made prior to A.D. 70.

INTRODUCTION

But the main argument for the date of the Psalms must be based on the subject-matter of these. Now the state of society reflected in these Psalms and the ideas that dominate them are entirely compatible with all that is known of the middle of the first century B.C., while the definite historical allusions, if these are rightly explained of Pompey's actions in Palestine and his death in Egypt (48 B.C.), show that it is the middle of the first century B.C., and not any other period at which the state of society and the ruling ideas may have been similar, that is the actual age in which the Psalms of Solomon were written.

Not all the Psalms taken separately, it is true, point with equal clearness to the circumstances under, or the age in, which they arose: but there is a general similarity of tone and character about them which, failing direct evidence to the contrary, justifies the generally accepted theory that they are the work, if not of a single hand, yet of a single generation.

These Psalms are the work of a writer or writers who, in common with the authors of many of the canonical Psalms, held firmly by the belief in the relative righteousness of Israel as compared with the nations of the world; alien nations are as such 'sinners' (i. 1, ii. 1 f., 24 ff.)

Yet actually Israel is not righteous as it should be, and as it had thought itself (e.g. i. 2 f.). On the other hand, there is within Israel a class, a dominating class so influential and powerful as to give in some measure its character to the entire people (cp. e.g. i. 4, xvii. 22), of 'sinners'. Thus throughout the Psalms Israel appears divided into sections or parties; the one section, or party, consists of the righteous,² or pious,³ or those that fear the Lord,⁴ or the poor,⁵ or the guileless;⁶ the other section consists of the unrighteous,⁷ or sinners,⁸ or transgressors,⁹ or profane,¹⁰ or, as they are termed in the fourth Psalm, the men-pleasers (ἀνθρωπάρεσκοι).

In this division of the people into two different parties, regarded as morally or religiously opposed, and even in the use of the terms employed to describe them, the Psalms of Solomon do not differ essentially from a large group of the canonical Psalms. As in those so in these, the writers naturally identify themselves with the section of the righteous or the pious. The more closely we can determine the actual character of the two parties thus described, the more closely shall we be able to determine the nature of the circles from which the Psalms sprang and the conditions under which they were written. In attempting to gather from the Psalms this closer determination of the characteristics of each party it must of course be remembered, and allowed for, that we are dealing with a strongly partisan work. Neither the righteousness of the righteous, nor the sinfulness of the sinful, must be accepted too literally.

The 'sinners' had recently passed through a period of prosperity, and they had acquired wealth; but to ease and prosperity had succeeded the distress of war, which, of course, affected the whole nation, 'sinners' and 'righteous' alike (i), though in some ways more particularly the 'sinners'; it was members of that party, if not exclusively yet predominantly, who were led away captive by the invaders (ii. 3-15, ix. 3 ff., viii. 24).

Prosperity had produced in the 'sinners' insolence and self-reliance (i) and disregard of God (iv. 14, 24). They are charged, in particular, (1) with gross sensual sins (ii. 13-15, iv. 4 ff., viii. 9 ff., 24), (2) with profanation of the sanctuary, or the sacred objects (i. 8, ii. 3 a, viii. 12, 26), and of the sacrificial

¹ Cf. Judges xx. 39, where כּמלחמה, 'as in the war', is rendered in the LXX καθὼς ὁ πόλεμος. See also my note at end of § 6 in Introd. to 1 Baruch, vol. i.—Gen. Editor.

² δίκαιοι, i. e. צדיקים; see ii. 38, iii. 3-8, 14, iv. 9, x. 3, xiii. 5-8, xiv. 6, xv. 8, xvi. 15.

³ ὅσιοι, i. e. חסידים; see iii. 10, iv. 1, 7, 9, viii. 28, 40, ix. 6, x. 7, xii. 5, 8, xiii. 9, 11, xiv. 2, 7, xv. 9, xvii. 18.

⁴ (οἱ) φοβούμενοι (τὸν) κύριον, i. e. יראי יי'; see ii. 37, iii. 16, iv. 26 (ct. v. 24), v. 21, xii. 4, xiii. 11, xv. 15.

⁵ πτωχοί (עניים?); see v. 2, 13 (also πένης), x. 7, xv. 2, xviii. 3.

⁶ ἄκακος; see iv. 25, xii. 4.

⁷ ἄδικοι, i. e. רשעים; see xii. 6, xv. 6.

⁸ ἀμαρτωλός, i. e. חטאים; see ii. 38 f., iii. 11, 13, iv. 9, 27, xii. 8, xv. 9-14, xvii. 6, and elsewhere (cp. xiii).

⁹ παράνομοι, i. e. פושעים (?); see iv. 21, xii. 1, 4, xiv. 6.

¹⁰ βέβηλος, i. e. חנה; see iv. 1.

THE PSALMS OF SOLOMON

offerings (ii. 3 b, viii. 12 ff.). More than once they are said to have exceeded the nations in transgression (i. 8, ii. 11, viii. 14). Yet they are, or at least attempt to be, outwardly extremely respectable (iv. 2, 11, 25); they are hypocrites—ὑποκρινόμενοι (iv. 22), οἱ ἐν ὑποκρίσει ζῶντες (iv. 7). As a class they are, especially as contrasted with the righteous poor, wealthy (cf. xii. 4, xv. 7); as a set-off against this they will, in the judgement of their opponents, have no portion in the life of blessedness to come: all that awaits them after death is destruction in Sheol (xiv. 4 ff., xv. 11–14). The charges of profanation of the sacred offerings seem to imply that the wicked, or the nucleus of the party, were intimately connected with the Temple-service: another charge, viz. that they had set up a non-Davidic monarchy (xvii. 7, 8), points to their being the adherents of the later Hasmoneans who from Aristobulus I (104 B. C.) and onwards claimed the title of king till the time (63 B. C.) when Pompey deposed Aristobulus II, and, while leaving Hyrcanus high-priest, deprived him of the title of king.

Over against this wealthy governmental party of 'sinners' stand the 'righteous', who are also called ῥαῖοι, a term which doubtless here, as in the LXX version of the canonical Psalms, represents the Hebrew hasîdim, godly or pious. In x. 7 the poor stands in parallelism, and probably in synonymous parallelism, with the pious: and there are other indications, besides the further occurrence of the term 'poor', that the party of the righteous consisted largely of persons of restricted means (cp. xv. 1, xvi. 12 ff.). The 'righteous', moreover, were political quietists (xii. 6), accepting the present distress as a discipline from God, which it was their duty to endure patiently (xiv. 1, xvi. 11), and assured that such patience would find its reward, if not in this age or life, yet in the life to come (xiii. 9–11, xiv. 3, xv. 15, xvi. 1–3). They waited for the fulfilment of the promises (xii. 7), especially for the coming of the promised Messianic king (xvii. 23 ff., xviii. 6 ff.), who would fulfil the prophetic ideal of rule based, not on material resources, but on the power of God (xvii. 37).

Conspicuous elements in the righteousness of the righteous were abstention (xvi. 7 f.) from the sexual sins which so offended them in their opponents, and scrupulous anxiety about sins done in ignorance (xiii. 4 ff.): their righteousness was pre-eminently 'a righteousness according to the Law' (xiv. 2). Here, again, we are face to face with a circle not remote, in character at least, and probably not very remote in time, from circles whence some of the canonical Psalms proceeded (e. g. xix, cxix).

Thus apart from xvii. 7, 8, which if it is to be interpreted strictly must point to a date after 104 B. C., none of the passages so far cited are decisive as between the two periods c. 165 and c. 63 B. C., which have chiefly been claimed as the period of origin of these Psalms. More decisive, in the opinion of the majority of recent scholars, are the allusions to external events. These Psalms bring before us not only Jewish society divided into two parties, but also a foreign conqueror. The references to this conqueror are, again, in part general and applicable to almost any foreign foe: for example, we may compare ii. 25–28 with what is said in Isa. x. 5–15, and even the striking use of the term 'dragon' in ii. 29 has its parallel in the comparison of Nebuchadnezzar to a δράκων = תנין in Jer. li. (xxviii.) 34. But others are more specific; this conqueror comes from the West, for thence he carries his captives (xvii. 14): though at first welcomed by (a party of) the nation, who left the way open for him to approach Jerusalem (viii. 18 f.), he later found resistance and was compelled to use battering-rams to destroy the fortifications of Zion (ii. 1 f.); having captured Zion he defiled the altar by letting his soldiers contemptuously trample it (ii. 2, cp. vii. 2): ultimately he is slain dishonourably in Egypt and his body lay exposed for lack of burial (ii. 30 f.). Now all these somewhat particular characteristics of the conqueror agree pretty closely with what is known of Pompey, and in their entirety they do not agree with any other known historical character: as a Roman, Pompey came from the West, and thither he carried back captive Aristobulus and his children; at first he was not merely not resisted by the princes Aristobulus II and Hyrcanus II, but on his way from Damascus southwards ambassadors met him bearing a rich present, and the fortresses on the way to Jerusalem were delivered up to Pompey; later, however, the party of Aristobulus entrenched themselves in Zion, and then Pompey brought up battering-rams and therewith demolished the walls that protected the Temple area; it is true the profanation of the altar to which allusion is made in ii. 2 is not directly mentioned in the accounts of Pompey's capture of Jerusalem, while his intrusion into the Holy of Holies is not alluded to in the Psalms; yet the alternative identification with Antiochus Epiphanes is in this respect not preferable, for the 'abomination of desolation' is just as little covered by the terms used in these Psalms. Finally, like the conqueror in the Psalms, Pompey is slain in Egypt, and his body, after being exposed on the beach, was hastily burned on an improvised pyre.¹

It is difficult to avoid the conclusion that these similarities between the conqueror of the Psalms and Pompey can only be due to the fact that the conqueror in the Psalms and Pompey are one and the same person. Frankenberg, who has most elaborately in recent times argued for identification with Antiochus Epiphanes, is compelled, not very satisfactorily, to treat the description of the death of the conqueror in ii. 30 ff., not as reference to fact, but as unrealized prophecy.¹ So also, on his interpretation, xvii. 7-10 is prophetic not historic, and 'the man alien to our race' (ἄνθρωπος ἀλλότριος γένους ἡμῶν) is not Pompey, nor even Antiochus, but the Messiah!

¹ For references to the sources for these or other details see notes on the passages cited above and others (ii. 1, 2, 30, 31, viii. 18, 19, 22, 23, 24, xvii. 6, 14).

INTRODUCTION

If we are right in identifying the person slain in ii. 30 f. with Pompey, that Psalm in particular was written after, and probably soon after, 48 B. C., the date of Pompey's death. None of the other Psalms refer to Pompey's death, and the majority of them may well be somewhat earlier than the second, and have been written soon after Pompey's invasion of Palestine (63 B. C.). Wellhausen suggested that iv might refer to, and also have been written in, the reign of Alexander Jannaeus (103-78), but this is uncertain. On the other hand, Ryle and James argue with some probability that Psalms iv and xii, in which the 'sinners' are denounced but not yet punished, and the intervention of the Gentiles was apparently as yet unforeseen, may be the earliest of the collection. These may have been written before Pompey's invasion.

If, now, the date of these Psalms is correctly determined, we need not hesitate to see in the 'righteous' of the Psalms the Pharisees, and in the 'sinners' the Sadducees (cf. iv. 2 ff.); and in the Psalms themselves the work of one or more of the Pharisees. It is the Pharisaic piety that breathes through the Psalms; it is their opposition to the worldly, non-Davidic monarchy, and to the illegitimate high-priesthood, of the ruling Hasmonaeon king, Aristobulus, that finds expression here; the Messianic hope (esp. xvii. 23 ff.), the firm belief in a future life which characterizes them later (N.T., Jos.), and renders them naturally political quietists and indifferent to political schemes, are already conspicuous here. And, again, the later attitude of the Pharisees in the matter of free-will as described by Josephus (B. I. ii. 8. 14)—these ascribe all to fate and to God, and yet allow that to act as is right, or the contrary, is principally in the power of men: although fate does co-operate in every action—is almost exactly paralleled by two passages in these Psalms, v. 4, ix. 6.

A considerable literature has grown up around the Psalms: an account of what had appeared down to 1891 is given by Ryle and James, and the more recent, as well as the earlier literature, will be found in the extensive bibliography in J. Viteau, Les Psaumes de Salomon (Paris, 1911), pp. 240-251. The most important works are: for the Greek text, von Gebhardt's edition (cited above, p. 658); for the Syriac versions, Harris's edition, cited above (p. 659), in the second edition (pp. ix-xii) of which a full bibliography of discussions of the Syriac are given; for interpretation and the consideration of the original Hebrew, Wellhausen (cited above, p. 659), and Ryle and James (cited above, p. 658). See also Viteau, op. cit.; Kittel, in Kautzsch's Die Apokryphen u. Pseudepigraphen zum A. T. ii. 127-48 (a German translation arranged in distichs and strophes, with brief introduction and notes); R. H. Charles in E. Bi. i. 241-245.

¹ Note also Cheyne's rejection of the identification of Pompey with the dragon of ii (Hibbert Journal, Oct. 1910, p. 207 f.).

THE PSALMS OF SOLOMON

I.

- 1 I cried unto the Lord when I was in distress [],
 Unto God when sinners assailed.
 2 Suddenly the alarm of war was heard before me ;
 (I said), He will hearken to me, for I am full of righteousness.
 3 I thought in my heart that I was full of righteousness,
 Because I was well off and had become rich in children.
 4 Their wealth spread to the whole earth,
 And their glory unto the end of the earth.
 5 They were exalted unto the stars ;
 They said they would never fall.
 6 But they became insolent in their prosperity,
 And . . .
 7 Their sins were in secret,
 And even I had no knowledge (of them).
 8 Their transgressions (went) beyond those of the heathen before them ;
 They utterly polluted the holy things of the Lord.

II. A Psalm. Of Solomon. Concerning Jerusalem.

- 2 1 When the sinner waxed proud, with a battering-ram he cast down fortified walls,
 And Thou didst not restrain (him).
 2 Alien nations ascended Thine altar,
 They trampled (it) proudly with their sandals ;
 3 Because the sons of Jerusalem had defiled the holy things of the Lord,
 Had profaned with iniquities the offerings of God.

1. 1. when I was in distress. So perhaps \mathfrak{H} (cf. e.g. Ps. lxvi. 14). \mathfrak{E} adds εἰς τέλος, which may be (1) a mis-translated and misplaced title = 'To the chief musician' (cf. Ps. liv (lv)); the rhythm of \mathfrak{H} (3 : 3) would have been complete without anything corresponding to this clause; or (2) an intensification: 'When I was in sore distress'; cf. 2 Chron. xii. 12, xxxi. 1 ; 1 Thess. ii. 16. \mathfrak{S} 'at my end'.

2. the alarm. \mathfrak{S} 'the voice'.

(I said). Not expressed in the MSS. of \mathfrak{E} , nor in \mathfrak{S} , but possibly lost in the course of the transmission of \mathfrak{E} .

full of righteousness. Cf. Isa. i. 21. 'Am full'; \mathfrak{E} 'was full'.

4. The fame of the wealth and glory of the Jews, the children (v. 3) of Zion, passed from mouth to mouth till it filled the whole world. For διεδόθη (cf. 2 Macc. iv. 39), the reading of R J L \mathfrak{S} , H has, erroneously, διέλθοι, 'may their wealth go forth'. The exact force of \mathfrak{H} cannot be inferred.

5. they would . . . fall. πέσωσιν (R H), πέσωσι (J), πέσωσι μὲν (L). Perhaps, originally, πέσωμεν, 'we shall never fall'. Cp. Ps. xxx. 7 (6).

6. And . . . \mathfrak{E} οὐκ ἤνεγκαν, 'they brought not'. Fabricius suggested that 'sacrifices' was to be understood as the object of the verb: very improbable. Ryle and James, relying on Jer. xx. 9, Job. xxxi. 23, Jer. ii. 13, x. 10, Joel ii. 11, suggest that the meaning may be that they did not keep their ambition under control. \mathfrak{S} אֵין יָדָעוּ may point to an original Greek reading καὶ οὐκ ἔγνωσαν, 'and they are without knowledge' (cp. Isa. i. 2). Von Gebhardt suggests that ἤνεγκαν arose from misreading as אֵין הַבִּינִי an original אֵין הַבִּינִי, 'and they were without understanding'.

8. the holy things. \mathfrak{E} may also, and \mathfrak{S} can only, mean 'the sanctuary', i. e. the Temple.

II. 1. Addressed to God. The 3rd pers. sing. in this verse and below may refer in particular to Pompey, or, being used collectively, to the Roman army (cp. v. 2).

When the sinner waxed proud (תִּבְאֵרָה) . . . he cast down, or, 'proudly (תִּבְאֵרָה) the sinner . . . cast down.'

Cp. Ps. x. 2.

a battering-ram. Pompey brought up battering-rams from Tyre and therewith broke down the fortified wall that enclosed the Temple. See Jos. Ant. xiv. 4. 2 ; B. I. i. 7. 3.

2. The writer singles out for mention not Pompey's personal intrusion into the Holy of Holies (Jos. Ant. xiv. 4. 4, B. I. i. 7. 6), but the irreverent treatment of the altar in front of the Temple by the Roman soldiers. To this Josephus does not specifically refer ; though cp., 'Many of the priests, even when they saw their enemies assailing them with their swords in their hands . . . went on with their divine worship, and were slain while they were offering their drink-offerings and burning their incense' (B. I. i. 7. 5).

with their sandals. They not only trampled the altar, but that even without removing their sandals (cp. Exod. iii. 5).

3. the holy things. See i. 8 n.

- 4 Therefore He said: Cast them far from Me ;
- 5 It was set at naught before God,
It was utterly dishonoured ;
- 6 The sons and the daughters were in grievous captivity,
Sealed (?) (was) their neck, branded (?) (was it) among the nations.
- 7 According to their sins hath He done unto them,
For He hath left them in the hands of them that prevailed.
- 8 He hath turned away His face from pitying them,
Young and old and their children together ;
- 9 For they had done evil one and all, in not hearkening.
- 10 (9) And the heavens were angry,
And the earth abhorred them ;
- 11 For no man upon it had done what they did,
- 12 (10) And the earth recognized all Thy righteous judgements, O God.
- 13 (11) They set the sons of Jerusalem to be mocked at in return for (the) harlots in her ;
Every wayfarer entered in in the full light of day.
- 14 (12) They made mock with their transgressions, as they themselves were wont to do ;
In the full light of day they revealed their iniquities.
- (13) And the daughters of Jerusalem were defiled in accordance with Thy judgement, 15 Because they had defiled themselves with unnatural intercourse.
- (14) I am pained in my bowels and my inward parts for these things.

4. Cast them, viz. the offerings (and holy things) of v. 3. This is clearly the meaning of the unambiguous neuter pronoun in \mathfrak{C} , but in \mathfrak{H} the pronoun may have been masculine, and therefore ambiguous ; in that case the real antecedent of the pronoun may have been 'the sons of Jerusalem'.

4, 5. The sense of the original in vv. 4 b, 5 a, cannot be determined ; it may have differed considerably from that of the MSS. of \mathfrak{C} and \mathfrak{S} , or of the conjectural emendations of \mathfrak{C} . Following the MSS. of \mathfrak{C} , and the punctuation found in them, we may render 4 b :—

His (i. e. God's) glorious beauty prospered them not.

Of this \mathfrak{S} is perhaps merely a loose rendering :—

And He did not establish with them His glorious beauty.

Hilgenfeld conjectured $\epsilon\upsilon\delta\omicron\kappa\omega\ \acute{\epsilon}\nu\ \alpha\upsilon\tau\omicron\iota\varsigma$ for $\epsilon\upsilon\delta\omicron\delta\omega\kappa\epsilon\nu$ (R J L : $\epsilon\upsilon\delta\omicron\delta\omega\kappa\epsilon\nu$ H) $\alpha\upsilon\tau\omicron\iota\varsigma$; and this is adopted by von Gebhardt, who also adopts $\alpha\upsilon\tau\eta\varsigma$ (M) for $\alpha\upsilon\tau\omicron\upsilon$ (R J L H \mathfrak{S}). Then 4 b, 5 may be rendered :—

I have no pleasure in them (cp. Jer. xiv. 12).

Her (Jerusalem's, cp. vv. 20, 22, 23) glorious beauty was set at naught before God.

The conjecture gives a rather more attractive phraseology than the text of \mathfrak{C} , but v. 4 b would in that case have balanced v. 4 a very badly in the original Hebrew ; and the position of $\tau\omicron\ \kappa\acute{\alpha}\lambda\lambda\omicron\varsigma\ \tau\eta\varsigma\ \delta\acute{\omicron}\xi\eta\varsigma\ \alpha\upsilon\tau\omicron\iota$ more naturally corresponds to that of the obj. of the verb in 4 b than to that of the subj. of the verb in v. 5.

5. utterly. Cp. i. 1 n.

6. The sons and the daughters of Jerusalem (cp. v. 3). So J L H ; but R 'sons and daughters', \mathfrak{S} 'her sons and her daughters'.

6 b. The line in some way, doubtless, expressed the ignominy of the captive (v. 6 a) Jews ; but the meaning of \mathfrak{C} (of which \mathfrak{S} 'and on their neck is set the sealed yoke of the peoples', is probably a free rendering), and still more that of \mathfrak{H} , is far from clear. Most probably the allusion is to the branding of slaves with the tokens of their masters. It is true that the branding of the neck in particular is not elsewhere mentioned, but 'many slave collars have been found in Roman cities, inscribed with the master's name and some such addition as Tene me, quia fugio' (Ryle and James). Kit. thinks the allusion may be to the custom of sealing or stamping the collar or clothing of a slave (Talmud Babli Shabb. 28 a). For more or less different explanations see Viteau's n. ad loc., and Büchler in JQR, xv (1903), pp. 115 ff.

Sealed. Gk. 'with (in) a seal'. This can scarcely mean '(surrounded) with a fetter' (Wellh.).

branded. Gk. 'with a slave-brand' (cp. Hesychius, s. v. $\epsilon\pi\iota\sigma\eta\mu\omicron\nu$). But another meaning is possible, viz. 'in the sight of' (Kit. ? = נכח לְנוֹיִם). But $\acute{\epsilon}\nu\ \epsilon\pi\iota\sigma\eta\mu\omicron\nu$ scarcely means 'in a public place' (cp. xvii. 32), viz. Rome.

7 a. Ct. Ps. cii. 10.—7 b. Ct. Ps. xxxvii. 33.

12. recognized. \mathfrak{C} \mathfrak{S} 'will recognize' ($\epsilon\upsilon\tau\epsilon\lambda\epsilon\upsilon\sigma\epsilon\iota$ for $\epsilon\upsilon\tau\epsilon\lambda\epsilon\upsilon\sigma\epsilon\iota$). Cp. viii. 8.

13. Difficult and uncertain, but cp. viii. 9-14.

They, viz. the heathen ; so R J L \mathfrak{S} . 'He' (viz. God) H.

in return for (the) harlots in her. $\pi\omicron\rho\upsilon\omega\upsilon\upsilon\ \acute{\epsilon}\nu\ \alpha\upsilon\tau\eta\eta$ should correspond to $\text{בְּהַ\text{זְנוּתָהּ}}$, or זְנוּתָהּ . In either case \mathfrak{H} probably intended 'in return for her whoredoms' (Ezek. xxiii. 14, 18) (abstract זְנוּתָהּ , זְנוּתָהּ rather than זְנוּתָהּ , 'her harlots').

13 a, 14 a. 'According as the Jews were wont to do, even so, by way of retribution, the Gentiles exposed to the world the iniquities of the Jews.' This may correctly interpret the passage, but the punctuation of the MSS. of \mathfrak{C} and parallelism favour the above division into lines rather than taking 'as they themselves were wont to do' with what follows.

14 b. In the full light of day, lit. 'before the sun'. Cp. 2 Sam. xii. 11 f.

15. with unnatural intercourse, lit. 'with confusion of mingling' ($\acute{\epsilon}\nu\ \phi\upsilon\rho\mu\omega\ \acute{\alpha}\nu\alpha\mu\iota\gamma\epsilon\omega\varsigma$). The reference is probably to incest (viii. 10) and other foul unions.

- (15) (And yet) I will justify Thee, O God, in uprightness of heart,
For in Thy judgements is Thy righteousness (displayed), O God.
- (16) For Thou hast rendered to the sinners according to their deeds, Yea according to their sins, which were very wicked.
- (17) Thou hast uncovered their sins, that Thy judgement might be manifest ;
19 Thou hast wiped out their memorial from the earth.
- (18) God is a righteous judge,
And He is no respecter of persons.
- (19) For the nations reproached Jerusalem, trampling it down ;
Her beauty was dragged down from the throne of glory.
- (20) She girded on sackcloth instead of comely raiment,
A rope (was) about her head instead of a crown.
- (21) She put off the glorious diadem which God had set upon her, 23 In dishonour was her beauty cast upon the ground.
- (22) And I saw and entreated the Lord and said,
Long enough, O Lord, has Thine hand been heavy on Israel, in bringing the nations upon (them).
- (23) For they have made sport unsparingly in wrath and fierce anger ;
26 And they will make an utter end, unless Thou, O Lord, rebuke them in Thy wrath.
- (24) For they have done it not in zeal, but in lust of soul, 28 Pouring out their wrath upon us with a view to rapine.
- (25) Delay not, O God, to recompense them on (their) heads,
To turn the pride of the dragon into dishonour.
- (26) And I had not long to wait before God showed me the insolent one Slain on the mountains of Egypt,

16. I: emphatic.

19. is no respecter of. \mathfrak{C} 'will be no respecter of', treating the Hebr. impf. as fut. instead of frequentative. For the phrase see e. g. Deut. x. 17.

20 ab. These lines are incorrectly given in the order ba in the ed. princeps and subsequent editions, including that of Ryle and James.

For. The $\gamma\acute{\alpha}\rho$, perhaps, as often in parts of the O. T. (e. g. Isaiah), had nothing corresponding to it in \mathfrak{H} .
was dragged down. MSS. of \mathfrak{C} 'he dragged down'; but \mathfrak{S} has a passive verb and, so far, supports as the true Greek reading von Gebhardt's conjecture, $\kappa\alpha\tau\epsilon\sigma\pi\acute{\alpha}\sigma\theta\eta$ for $\kappa\alpha\tau\epsilon\sigma\pi\alpha\sigma\epsilon\nu$ (R), $\kappa\alpha\tau\epsilon\sigma\pi\alpha\sigma\epsilon$ (J L H).

24. entreated. \mathfrak{C} \mathfrak{S} 'entreated the face of', which is probably the same half-euphemistic, half-literal rendering of \mathfrak{H} ('made sweet, or pleasant, the face of') that occurs in 2 Kings xiii. 4, Jer. xxvi. 19; cf. Exod. xxxii. 11 ($\acute{\epsilon}\delta\epsilon\eta\theta\eta$ $\acute{\epsilon}\nu\alpha\nu\tau\iota$).

Long enough . . . has Thine hand been. \mathfrak{C} lit. 'makes sufficient that Thy hand should be': but the idiom in \mathfrak{H} was probably the same as in Deut. i. 6, ii. 3.

O Lord. J. om.

Israel. So R ($\iota\eta\lambda$) \mathfrak{S} : other MSS. of \mathfrak{C} 'Jerusalem'.

in bringing the nations upon (them), or, as in Ecclus. iii. 28 (cp. x. 13, xxv. 13 f.), $\acute{\epsilon}\nu$ $\acute{\epsilon}\pi\alpha\gamma\omega\gamma\eta$ (H erroneously $\acute{\alpha}\pi\alpha\gamma\omega\gamma\eta$) may = תַּמְּצָא , 'with smiting of the nations', i. e. God has smitten Israel by means of the nations; cp. Isa. x. 5, 20, 24.

25. they. The nations.

fierce anger: $\theta\upsilon\mu\acute{\omega}$ $\mu\epsilon\tau\grave{\alpha}$ $\mu\eta\upsilon\sigma\epsilon\omega\varsigma$.

26. And they, i. e. the nations, will make an utter end of Israel. So probably \mathfrak{H} (וַיִּכְלֵו); \mathfrak{C} 'And they', i. e. Israel, 'will be made an utter end of' ($\sigma\upsilon\nu\tau\epsilon\lambda\epsilon\sigma\theta\eta\sigma\omicron\nu\tau\alpha\iota$ = וַיִּכְלֵו).

27. they. The nations.

not in zeal to fulfil God's punitive purposes concerning Israel; cp. Isa. x. 7.

28. with a view to rapine. Against Pompey personally this particular charge would be unfair; when he entered he refrained from plundering the Temple (Jos. Ant. xiv. 4. 4); but against the nations, i. e. the Romans, it might well lie (see Ryle and James ad loc.).

29. To turn. \mathfrak{S} 'To cast down', \mathfrak{C} 'To say'. The $\tau\omicron\upsilon$ $\acute{\epsilon}\iota\pi\epsilon\acute{\iota}\omega$ of \mathfrak{C} is unintelligible and probably due to a translator's misunderstanding; probably לָמַר , meant to be read לָמַר (= לְהַמְרִיר) and construed as in Hos. iv. 7, was mistakenly read $\text{לָמַר} = \text{לְאָמַר}$ (Wellh.); for another suggestion, see Ryle and James. If לְאָמַר is the original text of \mathfrak{S} and not a subsequent correction of a literal rendering (לְאָמַר) of $\tau\omicron\upsilon$ $\acute{\epsilon}\iota\pi\epsilon\acute{\iota}\omega$, \mathfrak{S} cannot be explained either by \mathfrak{C} or by such emendations as $\acute{\iota}\delta\epsilon\acute{\iota}\nu$ (Fabricius), or $\acute{\epsilon}\acute{\iota}\kappa\epsilon\acute{\iota}\nu$ or $\tau\rho\acute{\epsilon}\pi\epsilon\acute{\iota}\nu$ (Hilgenfeld); but Viteau proposes $\rho\acute{\iota}\pi\tau\epsilon\acute{\iota}\nu$.

the dragon. Seems clearly to be 'the insolent one slain on the mountains of Egypt' (v. 30), i. e. Pompey; cp. the comparison of Nebuchadnezzar with a dragon in Jer. li. 34, yet see above (p. 630, n. 2).

30. I had not long to wait before. Lit. 'I delayed not until God': \mathfrak{S} 'the Lord'.

the insolent one. \mathfrak{C} 'his insolence' ($\tau\eta\nu$ $\acute{\upsilon}\beta\rho\iota\nu$ $\alpha\upsilon\tau\omicron\upsilon$ = נָאֻנוּ or נְאֻתוֹ , which was perhaps a corruption in \mathfrak{H} of an original reading הַנְּאֻת).

on the mountains of Egypt. According to Dio Cassius xlii. 3-5 Pompey was slain $\pi\rho\acute{\sigma}$ $\tau\acute{\omega}$ Κασσιῶ ὄρει ; Mons Cassius was near Pelusium. Possibly \mathfrak{H} had יָאֵר (not יְהִי), 'beside the streams of Egypt' (Ryle and James).

- Esteemed of less account than the least, on land and sea ;
 31 (27) His body (, too,) borne hither and thither on the billows with much insolence,
 With none to bury (him), because He had rejected him with dishonour.
- (28) He reflected not that he was man, 32 And reflected not on the latter end ;
- 33 (29) He said : I will be lord of land and sea ;
 And he recognized not that it is God who is great,
 Mighty in His great strength.
- 34 (30) He is king over the heavens,
 And judgeth kings and kingdoms.
- 35 (31) (It is He) who setteth me up in glory,
 And bringeth down the proud to eternal destruction in dishonour,
 Because they knew Him not.
- 36 (32) And now behold, ye princes of the earth, the judgement of the Lord,
 For a great king and righteous (is He), judging (all) that is under heaven.
- 37 (33) Bless God, ye that fear the Lord with wisdom,
 For the mercy of the Lord will be upon them that fear Him, in the Judgement ;
- 38 (34) So that He will distinguish between the righteous and the sinner,
 (And) recompense the sinners for ever according to their deeds ;
- 39 (35) And have mercy on the righteous, (delivering him) from the affliction of the sinner,
 And recompensing the sinner for what he hath done to the righteous.
- 40 (36) For the Lord is good to them that call upon Him in patience, Doing according to His mercy to His pious ones,
 Establishing (them) at all times before Him in strength.
- 41 (37) Blessed be the Lord for ever before His servants.

III. A Psalm. Of Solomon. Concerning the righteous.

- 3 1 Why sleepest thou, O my soul,
 And blessest not the Lord ?
 2 Sing a new song,
 Unto God who is worthy to be praised.

Esteemed of less account than the least. Held in less account than a person of the least position : so clearly S ; on G ὑπὲρ ἐλαχίστου (or conjecturally ἐλάχιστον), see Ryle and James.

31. borne hither and thither, διαφερόμενον. So R J L (S) ; H 'destroyed' (διεφθαρμένον). The correct text of R J L (S) is further from the literal truth of Pompey's end, as described by Plutarch (see Ryle and James), than the reading of H.

31 b. After lying for some time decapitated and unburied on the shore, Pompey's body was burnt on a pile of spars gathered from the beach (Plutarch).

33. it is God who is great. God, not Pompey, is 'Magnus'. S 'the Lord is God'.

34. heavens. S '+' and over the earth'.

kings and kingdoms. S 'kingdoms and princes'.

35. bringeth down. Unless G κοιμίζων translated מוריד (the verb which would have been the simplest antithesis to v. 35 a ; cp. 1 Sam. ii. 6-8), the sense is : God causes the proud to lie down and sleep the sleep eternal (Ps. lxxvi. 6 (5) ; Job xiv. 12) of dishonour and destruction.

destruction. H perhaps (cp. Ezek. xxviii. 7 f.) had תהו, in which case the rendering should be 'the pit'.

37. in the Judgement. On the day of judgement and discrimination those that fear God will, unlike the wicked (Ps. i. 5), stand through the mercy of God. Such was probably the meaning of H, and perhaps of S (כ.כ. here as in Ps. i. 5, Pesch.). G 'with judgement' (טַפְּסָבִי for טַפְּסָבִי) : the mercy of God will be shown by introducing a principle of judgement or discrimination between the righteous and the unrighteous.

40. to His pious ones. So R J L C S τοῖς ὁσίοις ; H 'to them that are His' (τοῖς μετ' αὐτοῦ).

41. before. S 'by'.

III. vv. 1-2, Exordium ; 3-10, the character and conduct of the righteous ; 11-15, the conduct and fate of the sinner ; 16, the contrasted fate of the righteous—resurrection and life eternal.

1. O my soul. So S ; G om. 'my'.

2. G S probably fail to preserve the exact form and sense of H. Note in 2 a that ψάλατε, 'sing', is not the normal rendering of the verb שיר, stands abnormally after its object and is plural (ct. sing. in v. 1, 2 c) ; in 2 c, 'be wakeful against his awaking', a safer rendering of G than 'keep watch at his watch', is not very obviously in place between 2 b and 2 d. Ryle and James, assuming a confusion between the Hebrew roots רוע and עור, render 2 c 'shout unto Him with a joyful noise'. Another possibility, suggested by the General Editor, may be considered : γρηγορεῖν in the LXX = עמר ; so here γρηγόρησον ἐπὶ τὴν γρηγόρησιν (cp. xvi. 4) αὐτοῦ may represent a clause used by the translator as containing עמר and a derivative from the same root ; but עמר might easily arise (through the familiar confusion of

Sing and †be wakeful against His awaking†,
For good is a psalm (sung) to God from a glad heart.

3 The righteous remember the Lord at all times,
With thanksgiving and declaration of the righteousness of the Lord's judgements.

4 The righteous despiseth not the chastening of the Lord ;
His will is always before the Lord.

5 The righteous stumbleth and holdeth the Lord righteous :
He falleth and looketh out for what God will do to him ;

6 He seeketh out whence his deliverance will come.

(6) The steadfastness of the righteous is from God their deliverer ;
There lodgeth not in the house of the righteous sin upon sin.

(7) The righteous continually searcheth his house,
To remove utterly (all) iniquity (done) by him in error.

(8) He maketh atonement for (sins of) ignorance by fasting and afflicting his soul,
10 And the Lord counteth guiltless every pious man and his house.

(9) The sinner stumbleth and curseth his life,
The day when he was begotten, and his mother's travail.

10 He addeth sins to sins, while he liveth (?) ;
13 He falleth—verily grievous is his fall—and riseth no more.

11 The destruction of the sinner is for ever,
14 And he shall not be remembered, when the righteous is visited.

15 This is the portion of sinners for ever.

16 But they that fear the Lord shall rise to life eternal,
And their life (shall be) in the light of the Lord, and shall come to an end no more.

IV. A Conversation of Solomon with the Men-pleasers.

1 Wherefore sittest thou, O profane (man), in the council of the pious,
Seeing that thy heart is far removed from the Lord,

ד and ב) from עבר; the original text of ח may, therefore, have meant 'and perform His service'. Perchance 'good' in v. 2 d was accidentally repeated in ח from the end of the line, and 2 d originally ran, 'For a psalm (is due) to God from a glad heart.'

a new song. So J H S; R L C (erroneously) 'song and praise'.

a glad heart. So, rather than 'a pious heart', should ἀγαθῆς (R J S) καρδίας be rendered; ח טוב לב means the glad or merry heart; see e.g. Isa. lxx. 14, Judges xvi. 25, Ruth iii. 7, Eccles. ix. 7; and cp. 'Is any merry? Let him sing psalms', James v. 13. The less well-supported reading, 'the whole heart' (L C H), is not to be preferred.

3. remember. So, and probably rightly, S; ח (זכרו) might also mean 'make mention of'.

3 b. Cp. iv. 9. S is difficult; but the translation above may represent, at least approximately, the meaning of ח. By means of bold conjecture Ryle and James obtain better parallelism:

The righteous ever make mention of the Lord with praise,
And justify the judgements of the Lord (with thanksgiving).

4. the chastening of. So (מוסר) probably ח; S (= מ'פ'ר) 'being chastened by'.

His will. Apparently the meaning is: the righteous places his will at the service of God.

5. the Lord . . . God. S transposes. The first three verbs in the verse are aorists in S.

7. steadfastness. Lit. 'truth'.

lodgeth. ח doubtless ילי: the house of the righteous is not a khan open to all passing sins; on the contrary (v. 8), sins, that in spite of all his care, and unknown to him, have gained entrance, are discovered by means of constant and diligent search and turned out.

8. The righteous . . . searcheth his house. S 'He (i.e. God) searcheth the house of the righteous'.

8-9. iniquity (done) by him in error. He maketh atonement. Less probably 'Iniquity. With his trespass-offering he maketh atonement' (Ryle and James).

9. MSS. read ταπεινώσει ψυχῆν, which von Gebhardt emends into ταπ. ψυχῆς.

10. pious. ח doubtless יר.

11. begotten, or 'born'. 'Stumbleth'; S aor.

12. sins to sins. So Isa. xxx. 1 (S); in ח perhaps 'sin to sin', as in v. 7 (cp. Isa. xxx. 1, ח). In other respects v. 12 was perhaps a more exact antithesis to v. 7: 'while he liveth' (תָּה זֹמַת אֹתוֹ) is doubtful.

12-13. addeth . . . falleth. S aor., but 'riseth' in S is fut. In ח probably all were imperfects.

13. verily. S 'for'; S 'and because'.

14. ח probably as above; S 'And He' (i.e. God) 'will not remember (him', viz. the sinner), 'when He visits the righteous', with His favour.

IV. TITLE. Conversation, R J L C; 'psalm', H.

1. O profane (man). Here and throughout the Psalm the sing. may refer collectively to the party opposed to

- Provoking with transgressions the God of Israel?
- 2 Extravagant in speech, extravagant in outward seeming beyond all (men),
Is he that is severe of speech in condemning sinners in judgement.
- 3 And his hand is first upon him as (though he acted) in zeal,
And (yet) he is himself guilty in respect of manifold sins and of wantonness.
- 4 His eyes are upon every woman without distinction ;
His tongue lieth when he maketh contract with an oath.
- 5 By night and in secret he sinneth as though unseen,
With his eyes he talketh to every woman of evil compacts.
- 6 He is swift to enter every house with cheerfulness as though guileless.
- 7 (6) Let God remove those that live in hypocrisy in the company of the pious, (Even) the life of such an one with corruption of his flesh and penury.
- 8 (7) Let God reveal the deeds of the men-pleasers,
The deeds of such an one with laughter and derision ;
- 9 (8) That the pious may count righteous the judgement of their God,
When sinners are removed from before the righteous,
- 10 (Even the) man-pleaser who uttereth law guilefully.
- 11 (9) And their eyes (are fixed) upon any man's house that is (still) secure,
That they may, like (the) Serpent, destroy the wisdom of . . . with words of transgressors.
- 12 (10) His words are deceitful that (he) may accomplish (his) wicked desire.
- 13 He never ceaseth from scattering (families) as though (they were) orphans,
(11) Yea, he layeth waste a house on account of (his) lawless desire.
- 14 He deceiveth with words, (saying,) There is none that seeth, or judgeth.
- 15 (12) He fills one (house) with lawlessness,
And (then) his eyes (are fixed) upon the next house, the psalmist, or to the leader of that party; adopting the latter view some have identified the profane man with Alexander Jannaeus (Wellh.), others with Aristobulus (Ryle and James).

the council of the pious. So J §; 'the pious council' R L C; 'in council' H. The fuller and correcter phrase need not necessarily refer to the Sanhedrin; συνέδριον may also stand for סדר; cp. e.g. Jer. xv. 17. 'Pious' = הסידים; cp. iii. 10.

1 b. Cp. Isa. xxix. 13 (also Matt. xv. 8) 'seeing that'; ¶ 'and'.

2 b. Cp. 'the Sadducees . . . savage in judging (offenders) beyond all the Jews', Jos. Ant. xx. 9. 1.

3. upon him. In carrying out the sentence on the condemned sinner; cp. Deut. xiii. 10.

wantonness. Cp. Matt. xxiii. 25 (R. V. 'excess').

4. without distinction. § 'immodestly'.

5. of evil compacts. Or, perhaps (¶), 'of assignments for evil'.

7. the life of such an one. Lit. 'his life'; ¶ is difficult in this verse and scarcely represents ¶ exactly; § 'God shall remove those who judge with respect of persons; but He lives with the upright in the corruption of his body and in the poverty (read למשכּוּת for למשכּוּת) of his life'.

8. The deeds of such an one. Lit. 'his deeds'; cp. v. 7, also the sing. in v. 3 a (him) after the plur. 'sinners' in v. 2.

8 b. May mean either that God will deride the wicked (cp. Ps. ii. 4), or expose them to the derision of men (cp. Ps. xliv. (xliii) 14).

10. uttereth. ¶, perhaps, עבר 'transgresseth' (von Gebh.).

11. The meaning seems to be: if any house still survives secure against their licentious conduct, their set purpose is, like the Serpent (Gen. iii), to gain their way by working on the wife with seductive speech. But the text is uncertain. Wellh. differently: their eyes are directed to the house of a man (= Alexander Jannaeus) who understands how to pervert the wisdom of God (reading ἀγγέλων = דיהלן for ἀλλήλων).

the wisdom of . . . The genitive in ¶ is 'one another', but this yields no sense. For ἀλλήλων Ryle and James conjecture λαλῶν, 'to pervert wisdom, speaking with words,' &c.; the sing. part. in v. 11 b then resumes the plur. ('their') of v. 11 a; cp. v. 7, 8. Von Gebhardt conjectures λαῶν = דימ, a corruption in ¶ for דימ, 'the wisdom of the flawless'. For other suggestions see preceding note and Ryle and James.

13. He never ceaseth from. So probably ¶; ¶ has 'He ceased not, till he prevailed (in)'.

13 b-14. The aorists of ¶ are rendered by English present tenses.

14. Possibly once followed by v. 12, to which it would form a parallel. Verse 15 (if correctly interpreted) would follow v. 13 better than v. 14. Rearranged the passage would read thus:—

14 He deceiveth with words, (saying,) There is none that seeth or judgeth;

12 His words are deceitful that (he) may accomplish (his) wicked desire.

13 He never ceaseth from scattering (families) as though (they were) orphans,

Yea, he layeth waste a house on account of (his) lawless desire.

15 He is sated with lawlessness therewith:

And (then) his eyes are directed to the next house.

15 f. Obscure; but the general idea probably is that he has no sooner ruined one house than he turns his attention to the next, seducing its inmates to become the victims of his insatiable lust.

15 a. ¶ 'he is filled with (ἐν) lawlessness in this' (ἐν ταύτῃ).

To destroy it with words that give wing to (desire).

- 13) (Yet) with all these his soul, like Sheol, is not sated.
 16 Let his portion, O Lord, be dishonoured before thee ;
 Let him go forth groaning, and come home cursed.
 15) Let his life be (spent) in anguish, and penury, and want, O Lord ;
 Let his sleep be (beset) with pains and his awaking with perplexities.
 16) Let sleep be withdrawn from his eyelids at night ;
 Let him fail dishonourably in every work of his hands.
 17) Let him come home empty-handed to his house,
 And his house be void of everything wherewith he could sate his appetite.
 18) (Let) his old age (be spent) in childless loneliness until his removal (by death).
 19) Let the flesh of the men-pleasers be rent by wild beasts,
 And (let) the bones of the lawless (lie) dishonoured in the sight of the sun.
 20) Let ravens peck out the eyes of the hypocrites.
 23 For they have laid waste many houses of men, in dishonour,
 And scattered (them) in (their) lust ;
 21) And they have not remembered God,
 Nor feared God in all these things ;
 25 But they have provoked God's anger and vexed Him.
 22) May He remove them from off the earth,
 Because with deceit they beguiled the souls of the flawless.
 23) Blessed are they that fear the Lord in their flawlessness ;
 27 The Lord shall deliver them from guileful men and sinners,
 And deliver us from every stumbling-block of the lawless (men).
 24) Let God destroy them that insolently work all unrighteousness,
 For a great and mighty judge is the Lord our God in righteousness.
 28) Let Thy mercy, O Lord, be upon all them that love Thee.

V. A Psalm. Of Solomon.

- 1 O Lord God, I will praise Thy name with joy,
 In the midst of them that know Thy righteous judgements.
 2 For Thou art good and merciful, the refuge of the poor ;
 3 When I cry to Thee, do not silently disregard me.
 (3) For no man taketh spoil from a mighty man ;
 5 Who, then, can take aught of all that Thou hast made, except Thou Thyself givest ?
 (4) For man and his portion (lie) before Thee in the balance ;
 He cannot add to, so as to enlarge, what has been prescribed by Thee.
 O God, 7 (5) when we are in distress we call upon Thee for help,
 And Thou dost not turn back our petition, for Thou art our God.
 (5) Cause not Thy hand to be heavy upon us,
 Lest through necessity we sin.

15 a. like Sheol. So R L J C S ; H om. Cp. Prov. xxvii. 20, Isa. v. 14.

16 b. Cp. Deut. xxviii. 19, Ps. civ. 23, cxxi. 8.

19. could. \mathfrak{C} 'shall'.

20. until his removal. Or, perhaps, 'that (his family) may be taken away (from the earth)', i.e. let his old age be at once lonely and hopeless. \mathfrak{S} renders the entire verse by what is a free and inaccurate paraphrase of \mathfrak{C} , 'And of his children let not one draw near him.'

21. rent. Lit. 'be scattered'; \mathfrak{H} different ?

23. many houses of men. So R J H S ; 'houses of many men', L C. The latter rendering may more correctly represent \mathfrak{H} . Yet perhaps the original text of \mathfrak{H} ran rather as follows :

For they have laid waste houses in dishonour,

And by their lust scattered (i.e. made homeless) many men.

V. 4. Cp. Isa. xlix. 24 (\mathfrak{C}).

taketh. \mathfrak{C} 'shall take'.

5. Who, then, can take. \mathfrak{C} 'And who shall take'.

6. what has been prescribed by Thee. \mathfrak{C} τὸ κρίμα σου, where κρίμα is probably = ρπ, intended in the sense which it has in Gen. xlvii. 22, Prov. xxx. 8, xxxi. 15. For the thought of the verse cp. Matt. vi. 27 ; for the phraseology, Wisd. xi. 21.

7. O God. In \mathfrak{C} this goes with v. 6 ; in \mathfrak{H} it probably opened v. 7.

call . . . dost not turn back. In \mathfrak{C} the tenses are future.

- 9 (7) Even though Thou restore us not, we will not keep away ;
 But unto Thee will we come.
- 10 (8) For if I hunger, unto Thee will I cry, O God ;
 And Thou wilt give to me.
- 11 (9) Birds and fish dost Thou nourish,
 In that Thou givest rain to the steppes that green grass may spring up,
 (10) (So) to prepare fodder in the steppe for every living thing ;
 12 And if they hunger, unto Thee do they lift up their face.
- 13 (11) Kings and rulers and peoples Thou dost nourish, O God ;
 And who is the help of the poor and needy, if not Thou, O Lord ?
- 14 (12) And Thou wilt hearken—for who is good and gentle but Thou ?—
 Making glad the soul of the humble by opening Thine hand in mercy.
- 15 (13) Man's goodness is (bestowed) grudgingly and . . . ,
 And if he repeat (it) without murmuring, even that is marvellous.
- 16 (14) But Thy gift is great in goodness and wealth,
 And he whose hope is (set) on Thee shall have no lack of gifts.
- 17 (15) Upon the whole earth is Thy mercy, O Lord, in goodness.
- 18 (16) Happy is he whom God remembereth in (granting to him) a due sufficiency ;
 19 If a man abound overmuch, he sinneth.
- 20 (17) Sufficient are moderate means with righteousness,
 And hereby the blessing of the Lord (becomes) abundance with righteousness.
- 21 (18) They that fear the Lord rejoice in good (gifts),
 And Thy goodness is upon Israel in Thy kingdom.

Blessed is the glory of the Lord, for He is our king.

VI. In Hope. Of Solomon.

- 6 1 Happy is the man whose heart is fixed to call upon the name of the Lord ;
 2 When he remembereth the name of the Lord, he will be saved.
- 3 (2) His ways are made even by the Lord,
 And the works of his hands are preserved by the Lord his God.
- 4 (3) At what he sees in his bad dreams, his soul shall not be troubled ;

9a. Cp. Ps. lxxx. 7. § 'And turn not Thy face from us, lest we go far from Thee'.

11. To relieve the present awkwardness, von Gebhardt conjectured ἡτοίμισας, 'thou preparest', in place of ἐτοιμάσαι (⊕ §), 'so to prepare'; perhaps rightly. ℥ possibly suffered some misplacement and contamination, and read originally somewhat as follows :

When Thou givest rain, the green grass springs up ;
 Thou preparest provender in the steppe for every beast.
 Birds and fish Thou dost nourish,
 And if they hunger, they lift up their face to Thee.

At present the fresh grass of the steppes, which is not the food of fish and birds, is brought into unnaturally close relation to them.

12. The tenses, in ⊕ future, were doubtless in ℥ imperfects with frequentative force ; cp. vv. 11 a, 13 a.

14. Making glad the soul of the humble, or 'make glad', &c. § 'And his soul shall be satisfied'.

15. grudgingly. So J (ἐν φειδοῖ ; R L C ἐν φειδῶ) § ; the reading of H, ἐν φίλῳ, 'on a friend', arose from this by error. A synonymous clause followed, but has been obscured by the mistranslation of ⊕, and subsequent mutilation (?). ⊕ reads, ungrammatically, καὶ ἡ αὔριον, which is expanded by §, and, independently, by Ryle and James, into 'to-day and to-morrow'. Possibly ℥ read וְכַרְכַּרְךָ (whence, by confusion with וְכַרְכַּרְךָ, ⊕'s αὔριον), 'and for a price' (cp. Frankenberg).

16. is great, &c. Lit. 'great, with (μετά) kindness, and rich'. God's gift is given with a free, ungrudging (cp. 15 a) kindness, and is also in itself rich and costly.

shall have no lack of gifts. So, probably, the original text of ℥ ; but, if so, וְכַרְכַּרְךָ was miscopied וְכַרְכַּרְךָ (Frankenberg). ⊕ (cp. §) may be best rendered 'will not be sparing with his gifts'. See Ryle and James.

18. God. § 'the Lord'.

in (granting to him) a due sufficiency. Cp. e.g. Prov. xxx. 8. § 'in poverty', perhaps a paraphrase of ⊕, for note 'poverty' also renders τὸ μέτρον in v. 20.

20b. Not very clear. Perhaps the meaning is : the moderate means given by God is equivalent to abundance, but an abundance that does not lead to sin (v. 19). Ryle and James render : 'and herein is the blessing of the Lord, that (a man) be satisfied in righteousness.'

VI. 3. made even. Cp. Ps. v. 8 ; or, 'established', cp. Ps. xxxvii. 23.

3b. the Lord. § om.

THE PSALMS OF SOLOMON 6. 5—7. 9

- 5 When he passes through rivers and the tossing of the seas, he shall not be dismayed.
 (4) He ariseth from his sleep, and blesseth the name of the Lord:
 7 When his heart is at peace, he singeth to the name of his God,
 (5) And he entreateth the Lord for all his house.
 8 And the Lord heareth the prayer of every one that feareth God,
 (6) And every request of the soul that hopes for Him doth the Lord accomplish.
 9 Blessed is the Lord, who showeth mercy to those who love Him in sincerity.

VII. Of Solomon. Of turning.

- 7¹ Make not Thy dwelling afar from us, O God;
 Lest they assail us that hate us without cause.
 2 For Thou hast rejected them, O God;
 Let not their foot trample upon Thy holy inheritance.
 3 Chasten us Thyself in Thy good pleasure;
 But give (us) not up to the nations;
 4 For, if Thou sendest pestilence,
 Thou Thyself givest it charge concerning us;
 (5) For Thou art merciful,
 And wilt not be angry to the point of consuming us.
 (6) While Thy name dwelleth in our midst, we shall find mercy;
 6 And the nations shall not prevail against us.
 (7) For Thou art our shield,
 7 And when we call upon Thee, Thou hearkenest to us;
 8 For Thou wilt pity the seed of Israel for ever
 And Thou wilt not reject (them):
 (9) But we (shall be) under Thy yoke for ever,
 And (under) the rod of Thy chastening.
 (10) Thou wilt establish us in the time that Thou helpest us,
 Showing mercy to the house of Jacob on the day wherein Thou didst promise (to help them).

7. When his heart is at peace, lit. 'in the stability (or 'prosperity', cp. iv. 17) of his heart'. \mathfrak{H} , perhaps, לבו בשלוח; cp. בשלוי, Ps. xxx. 7 (6).

his God. \mathfrak{S} 'the Lord'.

7 b. This line was perhaps originally preceded by a parallel line.

he entreateth. Cp. ii. 24.

8. God. \mathfrak{S} 'him'.

8, 9. The lines of v. 8 are obvious parallels, and should not be placed in separate distichs (as by Kit.). Verse 9 is an isolated stichos, such as occurs at the end of other Psalms; see ii. 41, iv. 29, v. 22, ix. 20, x. 9, xi. 9 c, xvii. 51 c.

Cp. the rather different conclusions in the canonical Psalms, xli. 13, lxxxix. 52, cxxv. 5 c, cxxviii. 6 b, and the הללויה that concludes several Psalms.

VII. TITLE. Of turning. The title may indicate that the subject of the Psalm is the restoration of the people by God to prosperity (cp. v. 9). Less probably the word expresses the turning of the people in repentance to God.

1 a. Cf. v. 6.

1 b. they . . . that hate us without cause. In view of line a, and vv. 3 b, 6 b, it is probable that foreigners are intended (cp. Lam. iii. 52). In another connexion the words might denote a Jewish party, as they perhaps do in Ps. xxxv. 19, lxix. 5.

2. For. The force of \mathfrak{H} was, perhaps 'nay, but'.

Let not their foot. \mathfrak{S} 'in order that their foot might not'.

trample upon. Used of the profane intrusion of foreign soldiery in ii. 2; of the irreverent approach of Jewish worshippers in Isa. i. 12.

3, 4. The argument is: We have sinned and deserve chastisement (cp. v. 8 d); but let us be chastised directly by God, who even in wrath remembers mercy (v. 5, cp. ii. 24-7), not by pitiless men. Cp. 2 Sam. xxiv. 13-15, also 4 Esdras v. 30, Eccus. ii. 18.

4. pestilence. \mathfrak{S} 'death'; but $\theta\acute{\alpha}\nu\alpha\tau\omicron\varsigma$ here, as in 2 Sam. xxiv. 13-15, probably rendered דבר, 'pestilence'.

6. the nations. So \mathfrak{S} ; \mathfrak{G} 'nation'.

our shield. \mathfrak{G} lit. 'he who holds a shield over us'; but in O.T. $\acute{\iota}\pi\epsilon\rho\alpha\sigma\pi\iota\sigma\tau\acute{\eta}\varsigma$ is generally = מגן 'shield', or מעון 'refuge'. \mathfrak{S} here 'our strength' (cp. Ps. xxvii. 1, Pesch.).

7. And when we call . . . Thou hearkenest. \mathfrak{G} 'And we shall call . . . and Thou wilt hearken'.

8 c, d. The prayer of v. 3 will have been granted.

VIII. Of Solomon. Of the chief Musician.

- 8 1 Distress and the sound of war hath my ear heard,
 The sound of a trumpet announcing slaughter and calamity,
 2 The sound of much people as of an exceeding high wind,
 As a tempest with mighty fire sweeping through the Negeb.
 3 And I said in my heart, Surely (?) God judgeth us ;
 4 A sound I hear (moving) towards Jerusalem, the holy city.
 5 My loins were broken at what I heard, (5) my knees tottered ;
 6 My heart was afraid, my bones were dismayed like flax.
 7 (6) I said: They establish their ways in righteousness.
- (7) I thought upon the judgements of God since the creation of heaven and earth ;
 I held God righteous in His judgements which have been from of old.
 8 God laid bare their sins in the full light of day ;
 All the earth came to know the righteous judgements of God.
 9 In secret places underground their iniquities (were committed) to provoke (Him) to anger ;
 10 They wrought confusion, son with mother and father with daughter ;
 11 (10) They committed adultery, every man with his neighbour's wife.
 They concluded covenants with one another with an oath touching these things ;
 12 (11) They plundered the sanctuary of God, as though there was no avenger.
 13 (12) They trode the altar of the Lord, (coming straight) from all manner of uncleanness ;
 And with menstrual blood they defiled the sacrifices, as (though these were) common flesh.
 14 (13) They left no sin undone, wherein they surpassed not the heathen.

VIII. TITLE. Of the chief Musician. \mathfrak{C} eis níkos, 'unto victory'; but in Theodotion's version of Ps. xii. 1, xiii. 1, eis níkos is the rendering of לְמַנְצֵל , 'Of (or to) the chief Musician.'

1 a. Cp. i. 2.

1 b. announcing. $\eta\chi\acute{o}\sigma\eta\varsigma = \text{כִּי־שָׁמַע}$. Cp. Sir. xlv. 9.

2. the Negeb, i. e. the wilderness to the south of Judah. So probably \mathfrak{H} here, as in Isa. xxi. 1; \mathfrak{C} in both passages has the more general '(the) wilderness'.

3. in my heart. \mathfrak{C} \mathfrak{S} 'to my heart'.

Surely. \mathfrak{C} \mathfrak{S} 'where, then' (will God, &c.); ποῦ should imply in \mathfrak{H} אִי־פֶה or אִנָּה , but neither of these words in such a context would mean 'surely'. Possibly \mathfrak{H} was already corrupt. An assertive particle would be suitable; but, since the dominant rhythm of the Hebrew poem seems to have been 3 : 2, ποῦ ἄρα should rather correspond to the corruption of some word that belonged to the first half of the verse, perchance to כִּי לָנוּ כִּי , 'Woe to us! for.' Cp. e. g. Jer. vi. 4.

judgeth. \mathfrak{C} 'will judge'.

us. \mathfrak{C} \mathfrak{S} 'him'. \mathfrak{H} would have been ambiguous, permitting the different vocalizations, יִשְׁפָּטֵנוּ and יִשְׁפָּטֵנוּ .

4. hear. \mathfrak{C} 'heard'.

(moving) towards. eis ('Ἱερουσαλὴμ πόλιν'), R L C; én ('Ἱερουσαλὴμ πόλιν') H; \mathfrak{S} 'in (Jerusalem)'.

If the text of \mathfrak{C} in v. 3 f. represents the meaning of the original, the point of the verse is that the poet is convinced that God will judge the hostile people (v. 1 f), but is at first uncertain where: 'I said' in my heart, Where then will God judge him?' (v. 3). He then hears the sound of judgement upon 'him', i. e. the enemy, in Jerusalem. But in this case the distress at the news described in v. 4 is difficult to account for, though it is natural enough, if the poet sees in the hosts (v. 1 f.) advancing on (v. 4) Jerusalem the instruments of God's judgement on 'us', i. e. Jerusalem.

a sound, or 'a voice' (and so in v. 1 f.).

5. at what I heard, lit. 'at hearing'; but cp. Ezek. xxi. 11 (6), Isa. xxi. 3.

tottered. Isa. xxxv. 3.

6. Rhythm suggests that the simile may have stood in the first part of the verse; perchance $\epsilon\phi\omicron\beta\eta\theta\eta$ is paraphrastic, and the verse originally ran somewhat as follows: 'My heart trembled (cp. Isa. vii. 2) like flax, my bones were dismayed' (Ps. vi. 3).

7. The psalmist's first thought that Jerusalem is righteous (cp. i. 3), which created his astonishment and distress (v. 5, 6) at the approach of disaster (v. 1 f.), is corrected by God's laying bare the secret sins of the people (v. 8 ff.). Perhaps the thought has been obscured by the loss of more than half a distich. According to the punctuation and accentuation of the MSS. of \mathfrak{C} , we should render: 'And I said to those that establish, &c. \mathfrak{S} as above.

8. in the full light of day. ii. 13 n.

10. They wrought confusion. Cp. ii. 15 n.

12. the sanctuary. i. 8 n.

as though there was no avenger. \mathfrak{C} lit. 'there not being an inheritor delivering'. \mathfrak{S} 'as if there were none to inherit and deliver'. \mathfrak{H} probably as above. The apparent dominance of the 3 : 2 rhythm favours Ryle and James' conjecture that \mathfrak{H} read לֹא־יָרִיב .

13. altar. \mathfrak{S} 'temple'.

13 b. Having come in contact with women at a time when they are ritually unclean, and thereby themselves contracted uncleanness, they do not wait to undergo the necessary purification, but eat the sacrificial flesh as though it were not sacred, but mere common flesh that could be eaten whether one was clean or unclean. See Lev. xii. 1-8, xv. 19-33; Ezek. xviii. 6; Lev. xv. 31; Deut. xii. 15.

- (14) Therefore God mingled for them a spirit of wandering ;
 And gave them to drink a cup of undiluted wine, that they might become drunken.
- (15) He brought him that is from the end of the earth, that smiteth mightily ;
 17 He decreed (?) war against Jerusalem, and against her land.
- (16) The princes of the land went to meet him with joy : they said unto him :
 Blessed be thy way ! Come ye, enter ye in with peace.
- (17) They made the rough ways even, before his entering in ;
 They opened the gates to Jerusalem, they crowned its walls.
- (18) As a father (entereth) the house of his sons, (so) he entered (Jerusalem) in peace ;
 He established his feet (there) in great safety.
- (19) He captured her fortresses and the wall of Jerusalem ;
 22 For God Himself led him in safety, while they wandered.
- (20) He destroyed their princes and every one wise in counsel ;
 He poured out the blood of the inhabitants of Jerusalem, like the water of uncleanness.
- (21) He led away their sons and daughters, whom they had begotten in defilement.
- (22) They did according to their uncleanness, even as their fathers (had done) :
 26 They defiled Jerusalem and the things that had been hallowed to the name of God.
- (23) (But) God hath shown Himself righteous in His judgements upon the nations of the earth ;
 28 And the pious (servants) of God are like innocent lambs in their midst.
- (24) Worthy to be praised is the Lord that judgeth the whole earth in His righteousness.
- (25) Behold, now, O God, Thou hast shown us Thy judgement in Thy righteousness ;
 31 Our eyes have seen Thy judgements, O God.
- (26) We have justified Thy name that is honoured for ever ;
 32 For Thou art the God of righteousness, judging Israel with chastening.
- (27) Turn, O God, Thy mercy upon us, and have pity upon us ;
- (28) Gather together the dispersed of Israel, with mercy and goodness ;
 35 For Thy faithfulness is with us.
- (29) And (though) we have stiffened our neck, yet Thou art our chastener ;
- (30) Overlook us not, O our God, lest the nations swallow us up, as though there were none to deliver.
- (31) But Thou art our God from the beginning,
 And upon Thee is our hope (set), O Lord ;

15. God, by way of punishment, deprived the people of all sense and capability. Cp. Isa. xix. 14.

16. Cp. Isa. xli. 25, xlvi. 11 ; Jer. vi. 23 ; Isa. xiv. 19.

17. decreed. \mathfrak{H} , perhaps, 'he prepared' (יָרַד) ; \mathfrak{G} \mathfrak{S} = יָרַד . See Ryle and James.
and against. So \mathfrak{S} ; \mathfrak{G} omits 'against'.

18 ff. Cp. Jos. Ant. xiv. 3 (Pompey on his way from Damascus met by ambassadors of Aristobulus, bearing a rich present). Others have compared Ant. xii. 5. 3 (Antiochus Epiphanes captures Jerusalem without fighting, his party within the city opening the gates to him).

18. blessed, lit. 'desired' ; Jer. xx. 14, \mathfrak{H} and \mathfrak{G} .

19. The rough tracks of Judah are made easy before Jewish territory is entered by the great foreigner ; so, too, 'the gates to ($\epsilon\pi\iota$) Jerusalem', i. e. the passes, &c., commanding the approaches to the capital, rather than the city gates of Jerusalem, are flung open to give him an unimpeded approach. This may be a poetical account of the circumstances described by Jos. Ant. xiv. 3. 4 : Pompey came to Coreae, which is the first place in Judaea ($\alpha\rho\chi\eta\ \tau\eta\varsigma\ \text{Iou}\delta\alpha\iota\alpha\varsigma$), on the journey from the north to Jerusalem ; subsequently Aristobulus complied with Pompey's demand that the fortresses (on the way to Jerusalem) should be delivered up to him.

his entering in. So R J L \mathfrak{S} ; H 'their entering in'.

21. her, i. e. Jerusalem's. This may have been a mere anticipative suffix in \mathfrak{H} (cp. \mathfrak{S}), in which case substitute 'the' in English. Or the line may have suffered some corruption.

22. while they wandered incapable of planning or achieving anything for their safety ; cp. v. 15. The allusion in v. 21 seems to be to Pompey's forcible occupation of the Temple (cp. ii. 1) ; the 'wandering' may include a reference to the divided counsels of the Jews. The party opposed to Aristobulus admitted Pompey to the city and the king's palace, but the party of Aristobulus entrenched themselves in the Temple, from which they had to be expelled by force (Jos. Ant. xiv. 4. 2).

23. After the capture of the Temple Pompey executed the ringleaders ($\tau\omicron\upsilon\varsigma\ \alpha\iota\rho\iota\omicron\upsilon\varsigma\ \tau\omicron\upsilon\ \pi\omicron\lambda\acute{\epsilon}\mu\omicron\upsilon$). Jos. Ant. xiv. 4. 4.

23 b. Twelve thousand Jews fell during the assault on and capture of the city (ib.), many, however, not at the hands of the Romans, but of their fellow countrymen (Jos. B. I. i. 7. 5).

water of uncleanness. Cp. Num. xix.

24. Josephus (Ant. xiv. 4. 5) alludes in particular to the sons and daughters of Aristobulus being taken captive to Rome.

30. Behold, now. So probably \mathfrak{H} ; see 2 Sam. vii. 2, \mathfrak{H} and \mathfrak{G} .

Our : R J L C \mathfrak{S} ; H 'their'.

- 38 (32) And we will not depart from Thee,
 For good are Thy judgements upon us.
 39 (33) Ours and our children's be Thy good pleasure for ever :
 O Lord our Saviour, we shall never more be moved.
 40 (34) The Lord is worthy to be praised for His judgements with the mouth of His pious ones ;
 And blessed be Israel of the Lord for ever.

IX. Of Solomon. For rebuke.

- 9¹ When Israel was led away captive into a strange land,
 When they fell away from the Lord who redeemed them,
 2 They were cast away from the inheritance, which the Lord had given them.
 (2) Among every nation (were) the dispersed of Israel according to the word of God,
 3 That Thou mightest be justified, O God, in Thy righteousness by reason of our transgressions :
 4 For Thou art a just judge over all the peoples of the earth.
 5 (3) For from Thy knowledge none that doeth unjustly is hidden,
 6 And the righteous deeds of Thy pious ones (are) before Thee, O Lord :
 Where, then, can a man hide himself from Thy knowledge, O God ?
 7 (4) Our works are subject to our own choice and power
 To do right or wrong in the works of our hands ;
 8 And in Thy righteousness Thou visitest the sons of men.
 9 (5) He that doeth righteousness layeth up life for himself with the Lord ;
 And he that doeth wrongly forfeits his life to destruction ;
 10 For the judgements of the Lord are (given) in righteousness to (every) man and (his) house.
 11 (6) Unto whom art Thou good, O God, except to them that call upon the Lord ?
 12 He cleanseth from sins a soul when it maketh confession, when it maketh acknowledgement ;
 13 For shame is upon us and upon our faces on account of all these things.
 14 (7) And to whom doth He forgive sins, except to them that have sinned ?
 15 Thou blessest the righteous, and dost not reprove them for the sins that they have committed ;
 And Thy goodness is upon them that sin, when they repent.
 16 (8) And, now, Thou art our God, and we the people whom Thou hast loved :
 Behold and show pity, O God of Israel, for we are Thine ;
 And remove not Thy mercy from us, lest they assail us.
 17 (9) For Thou didst choose the seed of Abraham before all the nations,

IX. 1. Israel. J 'Jerusalem'.

2. the Lord. S 'God'.

Among every nation. Taken by Ryle and James with 'they were cast away' in the previous line. Cp. Deut. iv. 27.

the dispersed. G 'the dispersion' ; cp. viii. 34.

5. is. G 'shall be'. The tenses of vv. 4-6 must be the same. God is a just judge because He knows and takes account of all.

6. (are) before Thee. A synonym for 'Thou knowest'. Cp. Ps. li. 5 (3).

can. G 'shall'.

7. subject to our own choice and power, lit. 'in the choice and power of our soul'. Ryle and James (p. 96) discuss at length an alternative rendering and interpretation : Our deeds are by the choice (of God), and (at the same time) we have power to do rightly or wrongly ; but apparently the rhythmical structure of the original would not have admitted this alternative.

8. God impartially judges the way in which men exercise their free-will (v. 7), and by His law of life (v. 9) rewards them accordingly.

10. (every), (his). These words are expressed in S, but not in G.

11, 12. The exact line of thought and some of the details are uncertain. God is kind only to those who call upon Him ; to those who call upon Him in prayer for forgiveness He shows His kindness (cp. Ps. li. 3 f. (1 f.)) by forgiving their sins ; those who here speak may rely on forgiveness, for the shame of which they speak is a form of confession (so Kit., but ?).

11. art Thou (G 'wilt Thou be') good, O God. S 'is God good' (إلهي طيب). Originally, it is probable, vv. 10-15 were either in their entirety addressed to God, or a statement about Him. Von Gebhardt conjecturally restores the 2nd person in vv. 12 and 14.

12. cleanseth. G 'will cleanse'.

from sins. Cp. x. 1 ; G 'in sins' ; perhaps in consequence of reading a Hebr. נ as ז (a frequent error). S 'the sins of'.

when it maketh acknowledgement. S omit ; perhaps a doublet in G.

14. doth. G 'will'.

15. reprove. So S certainly, and apparently the εἰθυνείς of G must be interpreted similarly. See Ryle and James.

16. they. S 'the peoples'.

- And didst set Thy name upon us, O Lord,
 18 And Thou wilt not reject (us) for ever.
 Thou madest a covenant with our fathers concerning us ;
 10) And we hope in Thee, when our soul turneth (unto Thee).
 The mercy of the Lord be upon the house of Israel for ever and ever.

X. A Hymn. Of Solomon.

- 1 Happy is the man whom the Lord remembereth with reproving,
 And whom He restraineth from the way of evil with strokes,
 That he may be cleansed from sin, that it may not be multiplied.
 2 He that maketh ready his back for strokes shall be cleansed,
 For the Lord is good to them that endure chastening.
 3 For He maketh straight the ways of the righteous,
 And doth not pervert (them) by His chastening.
 4 And the mercy of the Lord (is) upon them that love Him in truth,
 (4) And the Lord remembereth His servants in mercy.
 5 For the testimony (is) in the law of the eternal covenant,
 The testimony of the Lord (is) on the ways of men in (His) visitation.
 (5) Just and kind is our Lord in His judgements for ever,
 And Israel shall praise the name of the Lord in gladness.
 (6) And the pious shall give thanks in the assembly of the people ;
 And on the poor shall God have mercy in the gladness (?) of Israel ;
 (7) For good and merciful is God for ever,
 And the assemblies of Israel shall glorify the name of the Lord.
 The salvation of the Lord be upon the house of Israel unto everlasting gladness !

XI. Of Solomon. Unto expectation.

- 1 Blow ye in Zion on the trumpet to summon (the) saints,
 2 Cause ye to be heard in Jerusalem the voice of him that bringeth good tidings ;
 For God hath had pity on Israel in visiting them.
 (2) Stand on the height, O Jerusalem, and behold thy children,
 From the East and the West, gathered together by the Lord ;

18. Thou wilt not reject. So, by conjecture, von Gebhardt ; cp. vii. 8. Ryle and James, by conjecture, ' Thou wilt abide (among us) for ever.' \mathfrak{C} ' Thou wilt not cease '.

X. TITLE. A Hymn J L C H ; ' In hymns ' R.

1. whom He restraineth. So \mathfrak{S} , and so, perhaps, \mathfrak{H} , though \mathfrak{S} may be merely a free rendering of $\epsilon\kappa\omega\lambda\acute{\upsilon}\theta\eta$, which Fritzsche tentatively suggested was the original text of \mathfrak{C} ; all codices of \mathfrak{C} read $\epsilon\kappa\kappa\lambda\acute{\omega}\theta\eta$, which Ryle and James render, on the authority of Exod. xiii. 18, Deut. xxxii. 12. \mathfrak{C} ' and he is fenced about '.

That he may be cleansed. \mathfrak{H} , perhaps, ' and whom He cleanseth ' ; cp. ix. 12.

3. \mathfrak{S} ' For the way of the righteous is straight, and His chastening doth not pervert it '.

maketh. \mathfrak{C} ' will make '.

doth not pervert. \mathfrak{C} ' will not pervert '.

4. remembereth. \mathfrak{C} ' will remember '.

5. The witness to God's mercy is to be found written in the Law, and constantly in His visitations of men in their daily lives (or, ways) ; such may be the meaning of the verse.

6. kind. \mathfrak{C} $\delta\sigma\iota\omicron\varsigma$; but this probably rendered יָדָוָה , as in Ps. cxlv. (cxliv.) 17. \mathfrak{S} ' upright '.

our Lord. \mathfrak{S} ' our God '.

in His judgements. \mathfrak{S} ' in all His judgements '.

for ever. \mathfrak{S} omits.

the Lord. J + ' for ever '.

7. God. \mathfrak{S} ' the Lord '.

the gladness (?) of Israel. A term for the Messianic age ? Cp. Ryle and James. Or does ' gladness ' conceal some term more parallel to ' assembly ' in the previous line ? and was ' the poor ' originally the subject, and ' God ' the object of a verb concealed by $\epsilon\lambda\epsilon\eta\sigma\epsilon\iota$? Kit. renders the line, ' Because God has pity on the poor, to the joy of Israel.'

8. The salvation of the Lord be upon, or, rather, in view of the position of $\tau\omicron\upsilon\ \kappa\upsilon\rho\iota\omicron\upsilon$, ' Unto the Lord belongeth the salvation (to be wrought for).'

XI. For the relation of this Psalm to Baruch iv. 36-v. 9, and of both passages to Isa. xl-lxvi, see Ryle and James, pp. lxxii ff. ; but also above, p. 628.

1. Based on Joel ii. 1. The exact form of \mathfrak{H} here cannot be determined ; possibly the last half of the line ran, ' the holy trumpet of Jubilee ' (Ryle and James).

2. Cause ye to be heard. \mathfrak{C} \mathfrak{S} ' proclaim '.

- 4 (3) From the North they come in the gladness of their God,
From the isles afar off God hath gathered them.
- 5 (4) High mountains hath He abased into a plain for them ;
6 The hills fled at their entrance.
- (5) The woods gave them shelter as they passed by ;
7 Every sweet-smelling tree God caused to spring up for them,
(6) That Israel might pass by in the visitation of the glory of their God.
- 8 (7) Put on, O Jerusalem, thy glorious garments ;
Make ready thy holy robe ;
For God hath spoken good concerning Israel, for ever and ever.
- 9 (8) Let the Lord do what He hath spoken concerning Israel and Jerusalem ;
Let the Lord raise up Israel by His glorious name.
- (9) The mercy of the Lord be upon Israel for ever and ever.

XII. Of Solomon. Against the tongue of transgressors.

- 12 1 O Lord, deliver my soul from (the) lawless and wicked man,
From the tongue that is lawless and slanderous, and speaketh lies and deceit.
- 2 Manifolily twisted (?) are the words of the tongue of the wicked man,
Even as . . . a fire that burneth up . . .
- 3 . . . to fill houses with a lying tongue,
To cut down the trees of gladness . . .
- 4 To involve households in warfare by means of slanderous lips.
- (4) May God remove far from the innocent the lips of transgressors by (bringing them to) want
And may the bones of slanderers be scattered (far) away from them that fear the Lord !
- 5 In flaming fire perish the slanderous tongue (far) away from the pious !
- 6 (5) May the Lord preserve the quiet soul that hateth the unrighteous ;
And may the Lord establish the man that followeth peace at home.
- 7 (6) The salvation of the Lord be upon Israel His servant for ever ;

6. The woods. ℣ 'the cedar'.

XII. TITLE. Against: ℞ ἐν. Perchance we have here another case of the Gk. ἐν representing an original ™, misread ™; in that case the title of this psalm was doubtless taken from the opening words of the second line.

2. Text and meaning of ℞ are uncertain and obscure, and it is impossible to determine the original form of ℞.

Manifolily twisted (?), lit. 'in manifoldness (cf. iv. 3) of turning', or 'twisting'. So R J (ἐν ποικιλία στροφῆς) and virtually L C (ἐν π. τροφῆς). H ἐν ποιήσει διαστροφῆς ('for the accomplishment of frowardness') is obviously a corruption of this.

Even as . . . a fire. In so far at least as the words omitted in the translation above are concerned, it is very questionable whether any of the readings or conjectures preserve or recover the sense of the original. The text of R J L C, which is substantially supported by ℣, reads, ὡσπερ ἐν λαῶ πῦρ ἀνάπτων καλλονὴν αὐτοῦ. This may be literally rendered, 'Even as among a people a fire that burneth up its beauty.' H reads ὡσπερ ἐν ἄλῳ πῦρ ἀνάπτων καλάμην αὐτοῦ, 'Even as on a threshing-floor a fire that burneth up its stubble.' See, further, von Gebhardt's discussion and suggestions, pp. 78 ff. If the 'twisting' of v. 2 a can be relied on, the point of the comparison should be that the guileful speech of the wicked is as full of twists and incalculable turns (cf. Isa. ix. 17 (18), with n. in Int. Crit. Comm.) as the volume of smoke with which fire ascends when it is blown about by the wind.

3. This verse also must have suffered from corruption of the Greek text or of the Hebrew text, or mistranslation, or both; but, in general, cf. iv. 11-15. The verbs in the three lines are ambiguous in ℞; apart from the accentuation they may be either optatives or infinitives; the position of the verb in the first line rather suggests that in ℞ they were infinitives. In that case the opening clause of the verse should lead up to an infinitive; in the original text these may have stood something like 'His (or, 'the transgressor's') delight is', or 'His heart is set'. ℞, literally rendered, is, 'His dwelling-place' or 'sojourning' (is, &c.), which yields no sense. It is a clever suggestion that ἡ παροικία αὐτοῦ is an unfortunate rendering, in itself perfectly possible, but in this passage impossible, of מגורו; yet it is questionable whether 'His terror (consists in filling)', &c., would be very naturally expressed in ℞ by מגורו. Ryle and James connect the first clause of v. 3 with v. 2, and render the last part of v. 2, 'Even as fire in a threshing-floor that burneth up the straw thereof, (so is) his sojourning (among men) that he may set fire to houses,' &c.; but this rests on the improbable text of H in v. 2, and implies an improbable rhythmical structure of ℞.

to fill. So ℞ ℣. Hilgenfeld al., by conjecture, 'to set fire to'.

the trees of gladness. Figurative for the saints? Cf. xiv. 2. The clause omitted above is very obscure; the entire line may be literally rendered, 'to cut off the trees of gladness which setteth on fire transgressors' (R L C), or 'the trees of wicked inflammatory joy' (J H). ℣ renders, 'For He hath cut down the trees of His delight with the flame of the transgressor'. By conjectural emendation of ℞ Ryle and James obtain for the last clause (omitted in the translation above), 'with the flame of (his) wicked tongue'.

4. households. ℞ ℣ 'lawless households'; but the position of the adjective differs in different MSS., and it is probably a dittograph from the previous line. If the adjective belongs to the original text the meaning is that 'the slanderer will not scruple to set those of his own party by the ears'.

And let the sinners perish together at the presence of the Lord ;
But let the Lord's pious ones inherit the promises of the Lord.

XIII. Of Solomon. A Psalm. Comfort for the righteous.

- 1 The right hand of the Lord hath covered me ;
The right hand of the Lord hath spared us.
2 The arm of the Lord hath saved us from the sword that passed through,
From famine and the death of sinners.
3 Noisome beasts ran upon them :
With their teeth they tore their flesh,
And with their molars crushed their bones.
(4) But from all these things the Lord delivered us.
(5) The righteous was troubled on account of his errors,
Lest he should be taken away along with the sinners ;
(6) For terrible is the overthrow of the sinner ;
But not one of all these things toucheth the righteous.
(7) For not alike are the chastening of the righteous (for sins done) in ignorance,
And the overthrow of the sinners.
(8) Secretly (?) is the righteous chastened,
Lest the sinner rejoice over the righteous.
(9) For He correcteth the righteous as a beloved son,
And his chastisement is as that of a firstborn.
10) For the Lord spareth His pious ones,
And blotteth out their errors by His chastening.
11) For the life of the righteous shall be for ever ;
10 But sinners shall be taken away into destruction,
And their memorial shall be found no more.
11) 12) But upon the pious is the mercy of the Lord,
And upon them that fear Him His mercy.

XIV. A Hymn. Of Solomon.

- 1 Faithful is the Lord to them that love Him in truth,
To them that endure His chastening,
(2) To them that walk in the righteousness of His commandments,
In the law which He commanded us that we might live.
(5) The pious of the Lord shall live by it for ever ;
The Paradise of the Lord, the trees of life, are His pious ones.
(4) Their planting is rooted for ever ;
They shall not be plucked up all the days of heaven :
(5) For the portion and the inheritance of God is Israel.

XIII. 1. me. S 'us'.

2. us. S 'me'.

that passed through: sc. the land. Cp. Ezek. xiv. 17, Lev. xxvi. 6.

the death of sinners. From premature (Ps. lv. 24 (23) or violent death, or death beyond which lies no eternal life (cf. ix), i. e. from such deaths as sinners die. Cp. 'the death of the righteous', Num. xxiii. 10. Or, possibly, \mathfrak{E} is due to a wrong division of \mathfrak{H} , which may have run, 'from famine and pestilence (see vii. 4 n.); as for sinners, noisome beasts', &c. In that case the passage refers to the four plagues of Ezek. xiv. 21.

4. The righteous. A conjectural substitute, which the context demands (Wellh., von Gebh., Kit.) for 'the impious', which is the reading of all MSS. of \mathfrak{E} and S. For a defence of the text of \mathfrak{E} see Ryle and James.

errors. Cf. v. 9; iii. 8; Ps. xix. 13 (12).

5. toucheth. \mathfrak{E} 'shall touch'.

7. Secretly, or 'Sparingly'. The meaning is uncertain; see Ryle and James.

8. correcteth. \mathfrak{E} 'will correct'. God corrects the righteous as a father corrects his beloved and first-born son.

9. The tenses in \mathfrak{E} are future.

11. upon them . . . His mercy. S 'He will cherish'.

XIV. 1 d. which J L C; 'as' H; omit R. Cp. S 'He has given us the law for our life'.

that we might live, lit. 'unto our life'.

2. by it, viz. the law; or, 'in Him'.

3. all the days of heaven. A synonym for 'for ever'. Cp. Ps. lxxxix. 30, Job xiv. 12.

- 4 (6) But not so are the sinners and transgressors,
 Who love (the brief) day (spent) in companionship with their sin ;
 (7) Their delight is in fleeting corruption,
 5 And they remember not God.
 (8) For the ways of men are known before Him at all times,
 And He knoweth the secrets of the heart before they come to pass.
 6 (9) Therefore their inheritance is Sheol and darkness and destruction,
 And they shall not be found in the day when the righteous obtain mercy ;
 7 10) But the pious of the Lord shall inherit life in gladness.

XV. A Psalm. Of Solomon. With a Song.

- 15 1 When I was in distress I called upon the name of the Lord,
 I hoped for the help of the God of Jacob and was saved ;
 2 For the hope and refuge of the poor art Thou, O God.
 3 (2) For who, O God, is strong except to give thanks unto Thee in truth ?
 4 And wherein is a man powerful except in giving thanks to Thy name ?
 5 (3) A new psalm with song in gladness of heart,
 The fruit of the lips with the well-tuned instrument of the tongue,
 The firstfruits of the lips from a pious and righteous heart—
 6 (4) He that offereth these things shall never be shaken by evil ;
 The flame of fire and the wrath against the unrighteous shall not touch him,
 7 (5) When it goeth forth from the face of the Lord against sinners,
 To destroy all the substance of sinners,
 8 (6) For the mark of God is upon the righteous that they may be saved.
 (7) Famine and sword and pestilence (shall be) far from the righteous,
 9 For they shall flee away from the pious as men pursued in war ;
 (8) But they shall pursue sinners and overtake (them),
 And they that do lawlessness shall not escape the judgement of God ;
 (9) As by enemies experienced (in war) shall they be overtaken,
 10 For the mark of destruction is upon their forehead.
 11 (10) And the inheritance of sinners is destruction and darkness,
 And their iniquities shall pursue them unto Sheol beneath.
 12 (11) Their inheritance shall not be found of their children, 13 For sins shall lay waste the houses of sinners.
 (12) And sinners shall perish for ever in the day of the Lord's judgement, 14 When God visiteth the earth with His judgement.
 15 (13) But they that fear the Lord shall find mercy therein,
 And shall live by the compassion of their God ;
 But sinners shall perish for ever.

XVI. A Hymn. Of Solomon. For Help to the Pious.

- 16 1 When my soul slumbered (being afar) from the Lord, I had all but slipped down to the pit,
 When (I was) far from God, 2 my soul had been wellnigh poured out unto death,

4. fleeting, lit. 'littleness of'.

XV. TITLE. With a Song. Cp. v. 3, and see xii, title.

1 b. § 'And for my help I called to the God of Jacob'.

5. A new psalm. So J R L § ; H 'a psalm and praise'. Cp. iii. 1 n.

6. offereth, lit. 'doeth'.

these things. Resumptive of v. 5.

8. pestilence. ☩ 'death'; see vii. 4 note.

9 a. they. The plagues of v. 8 b; and so in v. 9 b.

as men pursued in war. Such (cp. 9 d) was probably the meaning of the original. The actual readings of ☩ are διωκόμενοι (J ; -ου R L C H) ἀπὸ λιμοῦ (R J : λιμοῦ L C H); but they yield no tolerable sense. For different forms of the conjecture here adopted see Ryle and James and von Gebhardt. §, curiously, 'as death flees from life.'

9 b. they, i.e. the plagues mentioned in v. 8 b; so R § ; but in J L C H 'it', anticipating the summarizing singular sense of the next line.

13. sins. § 'their sins'.

14. H + 'to recompense sinners unto everlasting'; cp. ii. 38.

15 c. H omits.

XVI. TITLE. to the Pious. H omit.

1-3. The text is not improbably over-full, and the punctuation is uncertain.

to the pit. The translation rests on the supposition that (1) καταφθορά J C H § was the original text of ☩ ;

(I had been) nigh unto the gates of Sheol with the sinner, 3 when my soul departed from the Lord God of Israel—
Had not the Lord helped me with His everlasting mercy.

- 4 He pricked me, as a horse is pricked, that I might serve Him,
My saviour and helper at all times saved me.
5 I will give thanks unto Thee, O God, for Thou hast helped me to (my) salvation;
And hast not counted me with sinners to (my) destruction.
6 Remove not Thy mercy from me, O God,
Nor Thy memorial from my heart until I die.
7 Rule me, O God, (keeping me back) from wicked sin,
And from every wicked woman that causeth the simple to stumble.
8 And let not the beauty of a lawless woman beguile me,
Nor any one that is subject to (?) unprofitable sin.
- 9 Establish the works of my hands before Thee,
And preserve my goings in the remembrance of Thee.
10 Protect my tongue and my lips with words of truth;
Anger and unreasoning wrath put far from me.
11 Murmuring, and impatience in affliction, remove far from me,
When, if I sin, Thou chastenest me that I may return (unto Thee).
12 But with goodwill and cheerfulness support my soul;
When Thou strengthenest my soul, what is given (to me) will be sufficient for me.
13 For if Thou givest not strength,
Who can endure chastisement with poverty?
14 When a man is rebuked by means of his corruption,
Thy testing (of him) is in his flesh and in the affliction of poverty.
15 If the righteous endureth in all these (trials), he shall receive mercy from the Lord.

XVII. A Psalm. Of Solomon. With Song. Of the King.

- 7 1 O Lord, Thou art our King for ever and ever,
For in Thee, O God, doth our soul glory.
2 How long are the days of man's life upon the earth?
As are his days, so is the hope (set) upon him.
3 But we hope in God, our deliverer;

(2) that ὕπνου is due to a misplaced gloss or a corrupt dittograph in 𐤁 (בשנת שנת for בשנת); and (3) that καταφθορά, as in Ps. xlix. 9, and as more frequently διαφθορά, was a misrendering of שחא, 'pit'. The actual readings of the MSS. are 'in corruption of sleep' (J C H), (in) 'sleep of corruption' (S, which perchance represents the order of the two words in the original text of G), and 'in heaviness (καταφθορά) of sleep' (R L).

When (I was) far, τῷ μακρᾶν. G lacks the ἐν and the pronoun which should normally be present, if the sense implied by the translation was intended. S 𐤁; but this is inconclusive as to the reading of G. Von Gebhardt for ὕπνου τῷ conjectures ὑπνοῦτῶ = ὑπνούντων; then render '(sunk) in the heaviness of them that sleep afar from God'.

3. Lord God. S om. 'Lord'.

4. as a horse is pricked. Lit. 'like the goad of a horse'; ὡς κέντρον ἵππου, perhaps in 𐤁 simply 𐤍𐤏𐤍𐤏𐤍 'as with a goad'.

that I might serve Him. G ἐπὶ τὴν γρηγόρησιν αὐτοῦ, which Ryle and James render 'that I might watch unto him'. 𐤁 perhaps 𐤍𐤏𐤍𐤏𐤍; cp. iii. 2 note.

8. Nor any one. G 'nor of any thing' (or 'of any one'). The translation 'subject to' presupposes a very questionable construction in G. Ryle and James conjecture πᾶν τὸ συγκείμενον for παντὸς ὑποκειμένου, and render 'Nor aught that consisteth in sinful vanity'. S 'Nor any sin that is', which seems to be a paraphrase of G.

9. before Thee. S = ἐνώπιον σου, which is probably the original whence the readings ἐν τῷ φόβῳ σου (J) and ἐν τῷ φόβῳ σου (all other MSS. of G) arose. Renderings of conjectural emendations that have been suggested are, 'in thy fear', 'in thy word'.

14. The sense is obscure. 'A man'; G 'a soul'. 'Corruption'; cp. xiv. 4.

15. Or, 'If the righteous endureth, in the midst of these trials he shall receive,' &c.

XVII. TITLE. Cp. xv. 1.

1. and ever, For in Thee . . . doth. Or, perhaps, reading καὶ ἔτι for καὶ ἔτι ὅτι, 'And yet (cp. Ps. xlii. 6, 11) in Thee . . . shall.'

2. How long are the days. G 'and what is the time'.

the hope. G 'his hope'. Transitory as is man's life, so transitory is the hope which one man places in another; but (v. 3) the hope placed in God is eternal.

3. Mercy for Israel; judgement for the nations.

hope. So J; al. 'will hope'.

- For the might of our God is for ever with mercy,
 4 And the kingdom of our God is for ever over the nations in judgement.
- 5 (4) Thou, O Lord, didst choose David (to be) king over Israel,
 And swardst to him touching his seed that never should his kingdom fail before Thee.
- 6 (5) But, for our sins, sinners rose up against us;
 They assailed us and thrust us out;
What Thou hadst not promised to them, they took away (from us) with violence.
- 7 They in no wise glorified Thy honourable name;
 (6) They set a (worldly) monarchy in place of (that which was) their excellency;
 8 They laid waste the throne of David in tumultuous arrogance.
- (7) But Thou, O God, didst cast them down, and remove their seed from the earth, 9 In that there rose up against them a man that was alien to our race.
- 10 (8) According to their sins didst Thou recompense them, O God;
 So that it befell them according to their deeds.
- 11 (9) God showed them no pity;
 He sought out their seed and let not one of them go free.
- 12 (10) Faithful is the Lord in all His judgements
 Which He doeth upon the earth.
- 13 (11) The lawless one laid waste our land so that none inhabited it,
 They destroyed young and old and their children together.
- 14 (12) In the heat of His anger He sent them away even unto the west,
 And (He exposed) the rulers of the land unsparingly to derision.
- 15 (13) Being an alien the enemy acted proudly,
 And his heart was alien from our God.
- 16 (14) And all . . . Jerusalem,
 As also the nations . . .

6. sinners. Jews, not foreigners (cp. v. 9). The Hasmonaeans are probably intended; the first pers. plur. then refers to the Pharisees, or (Ryle and James) the priests. Frankenberg explains the verse of the Babylonian assault on Jerusalem, &c., treating 'us' as equivalent to 'our fathers'.

What . . . to them. \mathfrak{C} 'to whom'. \mathfrak{H} (לָהֶם . . . אֲשֶׁר) would admit of either rendering. The allusion appears to be to the assumption of the royal dignity by the non-Davidic Aristobulus I and later Hasmonaeans, and of the high-priestly dignity by these same persons, though they did not belong to the high-priestly lines.

7. in no wise glorified. Lit. 'they glorified not with (ἐν) glory'; for the construction representing probably the Hebrew infin. abs., cp. i. 8. In spite of the punctuation of the Greek MSS., 'in glory' is better taken with v. 7*a* (so clearly \mathfrak{S}) than with v. 7*b*.

7*b*. They preferred to use the title, and enjoy the position, of kings, than to recognize the sovereignty of God which was the true 'excellency' of the Jews. But this meaning is by no means certain; assuming that ἀντί may = \mathfrak{C} or \mathfrak{H} , others render 'they set up a monarchy', i. e. made themselves kings, 'in their pride.'

8*b*-12. In vv. 8*b*, 10*a*, 11*a*, the verbs in Greek are in the future tense; they represent Hebrew imperfects referring to the past.

8. in tumultuous arrogance. So H and perhaps \mathfrak{H} . R J L (cp. \mathfrak{S}) 'in pride of price', which seems senseless.

8*b*. from the earth, or, \mathfrak{H} being ambiguous, 'from the land' (cp. v. 30), a specific allusion to Pompey's carrying captive to Rome Aristobulus and his children (see v. 14, note).

9. a man that was alien. Pompey.

10. So that. \mathfrak{H} ? 'And'.

11. Obviously through dittography, there stand in J L H at the beginning of this verse, as well as at the end of v. 10, the words 'according to their deeds'. In \mathfrak{S} R the words are absent from v. 11.

The verbs throughout the verse are in \mathfrak{S} 2nd pers. sing. imperative (or imperfect with imperative force). In H the negative in v. 11*a* has been lost.

13. The lawless one. So R J L \mathfrak{S} ; H 'the tempest'. The sing. (ct. v. 20) throughout vv. 13-16 (except in 13*b*) is used collectively of the enemy (cp. v. 15) or specifically of their leader (Pompey). Whether the change to the plur. (of the enemies distributively) in v. 13*b* (\mathfrak{S} and all MSS. of \mathfrak{C}) is original may be doubted.

14. the heat of His anger. \mathfrak{C} 'the wrath of His beauty'; \mathfrak{S} 'the beauty of His wrath'. An original \mathfrak{H} , or (Ryle and James) \mathfrak{H} , was probably misread \mathfrak{H} . The pronouns probably refer to God.

unto the west. Pompey carried Aristobulus and his children captive to Rome (Jos. Ant. xiv. 4. 5, 5. 4, 6. 1; B. I. i. 7. 7, 8. 6).

15. Being an alien, ἐν ἀλλοτριότητι perhaps = \mathfrak{H} , which might be an error for \mathfrak{H} 'like an alien'. acted proudly. Cp. Ps. xxxi. 24 (23).

And his heart, or, rather, 'seeing that his heart', if, as Ryle and James suggest, v. 15*b* is not a simple parallel to 15*a*, but an explanation that proud doing was due to the excusable ignorance (in a foreigner) of the true God.

16. Very uncertain. According to the text of \mathfrak{C} the verse continues the description of what the enemy did (ἐποίησεν) in Jerusalem: 'all things whatsoever he did in Jerusalem, (he did) as also the nations (do).' According to \mathfrak{S} it rather opens the description continued in v. 17 of the evil conduct of the Jews: 'And every thing did Jerusalem, as also the peoples do

- 5) And the children of the covenant in the midst of the mingled peoples . . .
 There was not among them one that wrought in the midst of Jerusalem mercy and truth.
- 6) They that loved the synagogues of the pious fled from them,
 As sparrows that fly from their nest.
- 7) They wandered in deserts that their lives might be saved from harm,
 And precious in the eyes of them that lived abroad was any that escaped alive from them.
- 8) Over the whole earth were they scattered by lawless (men).
- 9) For the heavens withheld the rain from dropping upon the earth, Springs were stopped (that sprang) perennial(ly) out of the deeps, (that ran down) from lofty mountains.
- For there was none among them that wrought righteousness and justice ;
- o) From the chief of them to the least (of them) all were sinful ;
- 22 The king was a transgressor, and the judge disobedient, and the people sinful.
- 1) Behold, O Lord, and raise up unto them their king, the son of David,
 At the time in the which Thou seest, O God, that he may reign over Israel Thy servant.
- 2) And gird him with strength, that he may shatter unrighteous rulers, 25 And that he may purge Jerusalem from nations that trample (her) down to destruction.
- 3) Wisely, righteously 26 he shall thrust out sinners from (the) inheritance,
 He shall destroy the pride of the sinner as a potter's vessel.
- 4) With a rod of iron he shall break in pieces all their substance, 27 He shall destroy the godless nations with the word of his mouth ;
- 5) At his rebuke nations shall flee before him,
 And he shall reprove sinners for the thoughts of their heart.
- 6) And he shall gather together a holy people, whom he shall lead in righteousness,
 And he shall judge the tribes of the people that has been sanctified by the Lord his God.
- 7) And he shall not suffer unrighteousness to lodge any more in their midst,
 Nor shall there dwell with them any man that knoweth wickedness,
- 30 For he shall know them, that they are all sons of their God.

in their cities to their gods.' Literally rendered the text of J L H runs, 'And all things whatsoever he did in Jerusalem, as also the nations in the cities to their gods'; from this S seems to be derived through haplography of ἐν (ἐποίησεν for ἐποίησεν ἐν). The alternative that S represents the original text of G and that J L H is due to dittography of ἐν might be considered, if it was not probable that the τοῖς θεοῖς of J L H S was a mere substitute for the unintelligible, but probably earlier, reading of R—τοὺς θεοὺς. Similarly, 'their cities' (S) is probably a mere amplification of 'the cities' (G). For ἐν ταῖς πόλεσι τοὺς θεοὺς von Gebhardt conjectures as the original reading of G ἐν ταῖς πόλεσι τοῦ σθένους, understanding 'in the cities of their might' to mean in the other cities besides Jerusalem which they had conquered. But this, if it were in other respects more acceptable, would still leave v. 16 b suspiciously elliptical. This ellipsis, and the probability that the reading 'the cities' (G) is prior to 'their cities' (S), and τοὺς θεοὺς to τοῖς θεοῖς, deprives Frankenberg's argument that the allusion is not to Pompey but to Antiochus Epiphanes (1 Macc. i. 44 ff., 54 ff.; 2 Macc. vi. 102) of much of its plausibility. What may have been meant, or alluded to, by H remains very uncertain.

17 a. the children of the covenant, i.e. the Jews (cp. Ezek. xxx. 5, Acts iii. 25). 'The mingled peoples,' apparently here the Gentiles; for כּוּפּ implied by συμμίκτων see Neh. xiii. 3, Jer. xxv. 20, l. 37, Ezek. xxx. 5. What was meant by ἐπεκρατοῦσαν αὐτῶν (not translated above), or the Hebrew underlying it, is uncertain; is it that the Jews 'surpassed' (כּוּפּוּן) the heathen in wickedness (cp. i. 8), or 'attached themselves (כּוּפּוּן) to them'? G would most naturally mean 'ruled them' (cp. xvi. 7), or 'gained the mastery over them'.

18. that fly. G 'fled'.

19. To the sympathetic eyes of the Jews of the Dispersion, who are here termed παροικία as temporary residents (abroad), it seemed a rare thing for one of hasidim to escape alive from the faithless and merciless Jews of Jerusalem.

21. For. If the conjunction is correct—we might rather expect 'therefore' (S)—the argument implied rather than expressed is: The disloyal sons of the covenant by their sins brought about a drought (cp. ii. 10), and this in turn caused the pious to wander far and wide.

21 b. Probably enough, the exact form of the original is not preserved here.

21 d. to the least of them. So S; G 'and of the least people' (וְעַם misread וְעַם).

all were sinful. G 'in every sin' (כּוּפּוּן (cp. Ps. xiv. 3) misread כּוּפּוּן?).

23. seest. So R J L S; 'knowest', H V. Von Gebhardt conjectures 'chosest'.

25. And that he may purge. So S; cp. v. 33. G 'purge', as though addressed to God.

trample (her) down. Cp. ii. 2.

Wisely, righteously. According to the punctuation of J these words should go with v. 25. S omits them.

26, 27. In G the verbs are either certainly infinitive (v. 27 b) or ambiguous, i.e. optative or infinitive (according to the accentuation). It is possible that in H these verses were entirely dependent on v. 24: 'Gird him . . . that he may thrust out . . . destroy . . . break in pieces,' &c. More probably the tenses of H were, as in vv. 29 ff. (cp. G), imperfects intended in a simple indicative future sense. S continues the subordination of the tenses into v. 28, though, on the other hand, 'shall flee', clearly infinitive in G, is clearly imperfect in S.

28. whom he shall lead in. S 'who shall make their boast of'.

30. their. S om. In J L H αὐτῶν precedes, in R it follows εἰσιν.

- (28) And he shall divide them according to their tribes upon the land, 31 And neither sojourner nor alien shall sojourn with them any more.
 (29) He shall judge peoples and nations in the wisdom of his righteousness. Selah.
- 32 (30) And he shall have the heathen nations to serve him under his yoke ;
 And he shall glorify the Lord in a place to be seen of (?) all the earth ;
 33 And he shall purge Jerusalem, making it holy as of old :
 34 (31) So that nations shall come from the ends of the earth to see his glory,
 Bringing as gifts her sons who had fainted,
 35 And to see the glory of the Lord, wherewith God hath glorified her.
 (32) And he (shall be) a righteous king, taught of God, over them, 36 And there shall be no unrighteousness in his days in their midst,
 For all shall be holy and their king the anointed of the Lord.
 37 (33) For he shall not put his trust in horse and rider and bow,
 Nor shall he multiply for himself gold and silver for war,
 Nor shall he gather confidence from (?) a multitude (?) for the day of battle.
 38 (34) The Lord Himself is his king, the hope of him that is mighty through (his) hope in God.
- () All nations (shall be) in fear before him, 39 (35) For he will smite the earth with the word of his mouth for ever.
 40 He will bless the people of the Lord with wisdom and gladness, 41 (36) And he himself (will be) pure from sin, so that he may rule a great people.
 He will rebuke rulers, and remove sinners by the might of his word ;
 42 (37) And (relying) upon his God, throughout his days he will not stumble ;
 For God will make him mighty by means of (His) holy spirit,
 And wise by means of the spirit of understanding, with strength and righteousness.
 43 (38) And the blessing of the Lord (will be) with him : he will be strong and stumble not ;
 44 (39) His hope (will be) in the Lord : who then can prevail against him ?
 (40) (He will be) mighty in his works, and strong in the fear of God,
 45 (He will be) shepherding the flock of the Lord faithfully and righteously,
 And will suffer none among them to stumble in their pasture.
 46 (41) He will lead them all aright,
 And there will be no pride among them that any among them should be oppressed.

32 b. in a place to be seen of. So Ryle and James render ἐν ἐπισήμῳ (cp. ii. 6 n.), seeing in the lines an allusion to the miraculously exalted and consequently conspicuous Zion of the Messianic age (Isa. ii. 2). Kit. here, as in ii. 6, takes ἐν ἐπι. to be a rendering of לְנֶכַח, and renders 'openly before'. In § v. 32 b reads 'and they (i.e. the nations) shall praise (= glorify) the Lord openly in all the earth'.

34, 35 a. Very probably the original form of this tristich (originally a distich?) is not correctly preserved. 'His glory', i. e. the glory of the Messianic king; 'her sons', i. e. the exiled inhabitants of Jerusalem.

34. So that nations shall come. So R H §; J L 'Come, ye nations'; ¶? 'nations shall come'. fainted. § 'been scattered from her'.

35. Perhaps ¶ read simply, 'And he (shall be) a righteous king taught of God', יְהוָה אֱלֹהִים being dittographed and then read incorrectly עַל־יְהוָה = עַל־יְהוָה, 'over them.'

36. the anointed of the Lord (cp. xviii. 6). § ¶ 'the anointed, the Lord' (= Christ the Lord, Luke ii. 11). ¶ Χριστὸς κύριος = ¶ מְשִׁיחַ יְהוָה (or מְשִׁיחַ אֱלֹהִים), the normal rendering of which would be Χριστὸς κυρίου; for the X. κύριος of ¶ (§) see Lam. iv. 20.

37 c. Obscure. § employs the same verbal phrase here as in 37 a; if by accident § so far returns to the original, it is difficult to account for the variation in ¶. Further, if πολλοῖς is the objective of the verbal phrase, we might expect it to be preceded by a preposition, and if instrumental by ἐν. Ryle and James conjecture πλοίοις for πολλοῖς, and render 'nor by ships shall he gather confidence', &c.

38 a. Doubtless this line, together perhaps with v. 37 c in an earlier uncorrupted form, contained the antithesis to v. 37 a, b: Not in weapons and material resources, but in God does he put his trust. Whether the strangely expressed Greek text at all closely reproduces the original, or whether the Lord was here described as the king's King, must remain very doubtful.

38 b. The words καὶ ἐλεήσει, left untranslated above, are probably due to some corruption, whether in ¶ or ¶. 'He shall have mercy upon all the nations (that come) before him in fear' (Ryle and James) is a bad introduction to v. 39. καὶ ἐλεήσει . . . ἐν φόβῳ may represent some such phrase as 'he shall set trembling'; or καὶ ἐλεήσει may belong to the preceding corrupt line, and ἐν φόβῳ = יִרְאָה.

39. Cp. Isa. xi. 4. Note also the influence of Isa. xi. 3 f. on the following lines.

41. He will rebuke . . . and remove. ¶ 'that he may', &c.

42. stumble, or 'totter'. Cp. e. g. Ps. ix. 3, or Ps. xxvi. (xxv.) 1. ¶ 'be weak' (ἀσθενήσει = יִבְשֶׁל); so v. 43, 45.
 will make. ¶ 'made'.

42 b, c. by means of, or 'in'.

43. he will be strong. ¶ ἐν ἰσχύι, 'in strength' (= עַזְרָה erroneously read for עָזָה).

46. aright. Lit. 'in equalness'; so R J L marg.; 'in holiness', L (text) H.

- (42) This (will be) the majesty of the king of Israel whom God knoweth ;
 He will raise him up over the house of Israel to correct him.
- (43) His words (shall be) more refined than costly gold, the choicest ;
 In the assemblies he will judge the peoples, the tribes of the sanctified.
- 49 His words (shall be) like the words of the holy ones in the midst of sanctified peoples.
- 50 Blessed be they that shall be in those days,
 In that they shall see the good fortune of Israel which God shall bring to pass in the gathering together of the tribes.
- 51 May the Lord hasten His mercy upon Israel !
 May He deliver us from the uncleanness of unholy enemies !
- The Lord Himself is our king for ever and ever.

XVIII. A Psalm. Of Solomon. Again of the Anointed of the Lord.

- 8 1 Lord, Thy mercy is over the works of Thy hands for ever ;
 Thy goodness is over Israel with a rich gift.
- 2 Thine eyes look upon them, so that none of them suffers want ;
- 3 Thine ears listen to the hopeful prayer of the poor.
- (3) Thy judgements (are executed) upon the whole earth in mercy ;
- 4 And Thy love (is) toward the seed of Abraham, the children of Israel.
- (4) Thy chastisement is upon us as (upon) a first-born, only-begotten son, 5 To turn back the obedient soul from folly (that is wrought) in ignorance.
- 6 (5) May God cleanse Israel against the day of mercy and blessing, Against the day of choice when He bringeth back His anointed.
- 7 (6) Blessed shall they be that shall be in those days,
 In that they shall see the goodness of the Lord which He shall perform for the generation that is to come,
- 8 (7) Under the rod of chastening of the Lord's anointed in the fear of his God,
 In the spirit of wisdom and righteousness and strength ;
- 9 (8) That he may direct (every) man in the works of righteousness by the fear of God,
 That he may establish them all before the Lord,
- 10 (9) A good generation (living) in the fear of God in the days of mercy. Selah.

- 1 (10) Great is our God and glorious, dwelling in the highest.

47. whom. ⚭ 'which', wrongly referring the relative (אשר) to 'majesty' and not to 'king'.

knoweth. ⚭ 'knew'.

He will. ⚭ 'to'.

48. costly gold, the choicest. ⚭ probably read 'fine gold' simply.

In the assemblies. Ἐν συναγωγαῖς, possibly an error (בְּעֵדוּת for בְּעֵרֵית) for 'by means of the Testimony', i. e. the Law.

49. the holy ones. The angels; cp. Ps. lxxxix. 6, Job v. 1.

50. Cp. xviii. 6. 'The good fortune of Israel,' cp. Ps. cxxviii. 5. Instead of 'Israel' J reads 'Jerusalem'.

51. May He deliver. ⚭ 'He will deliver'; but in ⚭ the tenses in the parallel lines doubtless had the same force.

XVIII. TITLE. Again of. So R J; L H read 'upon'.

2. upon them, i. e. 'the works of Thy hands'.

so that . . . suffers. ⚭ 'and . . . will suffer'.

suffers want, or 'is lacking'.

the hopeful prayer of the poor, or 'the prayer of the poor who hopeth (in Thee)'.

6. the day of mercy and (lit. 'in') blessing is the day when God shows mercy to and blesses Israel; it is also the day of His choosing or determining upon the appearance of the Messiah (cp. xvii. 23). The term ἀναξίς here used, if we might press the force of the Greek, would imply a 'bringing again' or 'bringing up' of a pre-existing Messiah (cp. Ryle and James); yet it must remain very doubtful whether the original really expressed this idea here.

8. Loose and awkward; but apparently the meaning is the generation that is to come and will live under the discipline (cp. vii. 8) of the Messiah. We., assuming that ἔπι is a rendering of a misunderstood תחת which should have been rendered ἀντί, understands the line to mean 'Instead of the rod of chastening (there shall be) the Lord's Anointed'.

the spirit of wisdom and. ⚭ 'wisdom of spirit and of'.

11-14. A marked change of subject, and perhaps originally a distinct Psalm (Ryle and James). The abruptness of the conclusion, the incompleteness of the treatment, and the absence of any doxology suggest that the conclusion of the Psalm has been lost.

THE PSALMS OF SOLOMON 18. 12-14

12 (It is He) who hath established in (their) courses the lights (of heaven) for determining seasons from year to year,

And they have not turned aside from the way which He appointed them.

13 (11) In the fear of God (they pursue) their path every day,

From the day God created them and for evermore.

14 (12) And they have erred not since the day He created them.

Since the generations of old they have not withdrawn from their path,

Unless God commanded them (so to do) by the command of His servants.

12. for determining seasons, &c. Lit. 'for times of hours from days to days'.

14. by the command of His servants. Cp. Jer. x. 12-14, Isa. xxxviii. 1-10.

THE FOURTH BOOK OF MACCABEES

INTRODUCTION

§ I. SHORT ACCOUNT OF THE BOOK.

THE Fourth Book of Maccabees is couched in the form of a discourse or treatise, taking for its subject the power of ὁ εὐσεβῆς λογισμὸς, the Inspired Reason, to control the passions. It has been suggested by Freudenthal that the work may be a specimen of synagogue preaching, and Ewald appears to agree with him in this, but other commentators reply that in the Diaspora the regular synagogue practice was always to take a passage from the Bible as a text for the sermon. Now Fourth Maccabees has no text, and the rules of Jewish services are seldom departed from, so it is probable that this work was given as a lecture rather than a sermon. But the best authorities doubt whether we know enough about Judæo-Hellenistic practice nearly two thousand years ago to justify a positive conclusion about the matter. At all events the author of this work, be it lecture or sermon, is unquestionably an orthodox Jew, and his object is to fire the hearts of his co-religionists with such an enthusiastic devotion to their faith that they will be ready to face the last extremity of suffering in its behalf. A student of Greek philosophy himself, speaking to people who were evidently familiar with its terminology, he enlists the Stoic virtues in the cause of Jewish orthodoxy. Adopting the Stoic definition of the four cardinal virtues, judgement and justice, and courage and temperance, he insists that these are best attained by men being born and brought up under the Law of Moses. He leaves on one side the discussion of the methods by which Greek philosophy proposed to attain virtue. He has naturally no inspired anticipation of the Christian doctrine of God's grace whereby sinners may be led into the way of truth; for we shall find reason to think that he wrote before any such thing as a Christian document had even come into existence. But he not only adopts the Stoic virtues, he also takes the Stoic view of sin, that to offend in one point is to be guilty of all, when he makes his protomartyr, Eleazar, say, 'Think it not then a small sin for us to eat the unclean thing; for the transgression of the Law, be it in small things or in great, is equally heinous.' Yet his acceptance of the Stoic position is not indiscriminating, as, although he uses their philosophical definition of the virtues, he refrains from specifically adopting their classification of the primary passions under the four heads of delight, grief, pain, and fear. The Stoics held that the passions were not grounded in nature but were due to wrong thinking, and could and should be extirpated. The author, on the contrary, holds that the passions were implanted in man by God and are not to be extirpated but controlled. 'Reason', he says, 'is not the extirpator of the passions, but their antagonist.' And this power of Reason he illustrates, not, as his Stoic friends would have done, from Greek sources, but from the Jews' own Bible story, from the lives of Joseph and Jacob, of Moses and David. Then he passes to the subject of the terrible tyrant of Syria, Antiochus, whom some styled Epiphanes, The Brilliant, and some Epimanes, The Madman, and describes his odious oppressions: and so comes presently to the martyrs, Eleazar, and the Seven Brethren, and the Mother. He relates their defiance of the tyrant and enlarges on their sufferings with an even greater wealth of dreadful detail than the writer of Second Maccabees, whether the additions are due to his own invention or are drawn from a common original, the lost work of Jason of Cyrene. He recounts insistently the martyrs' triumphant victory over their sufferings, won by the aid of their Reason, their unconquerable fidelity to the Law of Moses, and their assured hope of a blessed immortality in the company of the patriarchs. That immortality is their reward in heaven, while they enjoy on earth the honour of being held the saviours of their country, which noble title he would inscribe as their epitaph. His impassioned eulogy is intended to rouse the patriotic and religious feelings of his audience to the highest pitch and harden them to the point of following so glorious an example. If I were asked to suggest the most probable reason why this book was written I should incline to the opinion that it was in consequence of the deification of the Roman Emperors. It is true that that deification (which involved nothing particularly startling to the pagan world) was not taken very seriously by Augustus and Tiberius, and in consequence did not become a really crucial question with the Jews until the accession of Caligula, whom we might well call the Second Brilliant Madman. Mad he was and did verily take himself for a god and demand to be worshipped as such, and then all the horrors of the persecution of Epiphanes were repeated in Egypt on the bodies of the wretched Jews, the defiling and torture of their persons, the plunder of their holy things, and the erection of statues of the deified Emperor in their desecrated Synagogues. But though this persecution did not take place till A. D. 38-39, the future instrument through which Caligula's madness was to work, namely the base passions of the dregs of the Egyptian, and especially the Alexandrian, populace, had become plainly visible long before. Every far-sighted man, such as the author of this book must have been, could not but recognize, even during the more clement days of Augustus and Tiberius, that as soon as ever Jews were required to offer public sacrifice at the imperial altars an impossible test would be imposed. Every true Jew knew that he must refuse, and it was not hard to foresee what would happen then, when once the passions of the vilest mob in the world were let loose. To meet and endure the coming persecution the sons of Israel would need all their courage, and how better could the Jewish-Hellenic philosopher steel the hearts of his brethren than by holding up to them the self-abnegating virtues of Stoicism and the sublime heroism of the Maccabean martyrs?

THE FOURTH BOOK OF MACCABEES

§ 2. TITLE.

The oldest form of title is simply Μακκαβαίων δ', under which it is found in three of the great uncial MSS., the Alexandrinus, the Sinaiticus, and the Venetus. But the book having been attributed to the Jewish historian Flavius Josephus, it also appears among his works with a title derived from the subject-matter, περὶ αὐτοκράτορος λογισμοῦ, On the Supremacy of Reason, and it is thus cited by Eusebius and Jerome. Another form of this title is περὶ σὺφρονος λόγου, which appears in some editions of Josephus; and the former of the two is generally rendered in the Latin versions by de imperatrice ratione, or else by de dominatu or de imperio rationis. Lastly, there is a third form of title, Ἰωσίππου εἰς τοὺς Μακκαβαίους βιβλίον, or εἰς τοὺς Μακκαβαίους λόγος.

§§ 3-4. THE MSS. AND THE ANCIENT VERSIONS.

The book is found, as already mentioned, in three great uncials, A, Σ, and V, but is unfortunately absent from the Codex Vaticanus. It was early translated into Syriac, and in 1895 Dr. Barnes brought out through the Cambridge Press a Syriac text prepared by the late Professor R. L. Bensly from a collation of nine MSS., of which he gives a description. The Syriac version was faithful enough to be of value for textual criticism, and Bensly found that as a rule it supports Σ rather than A. Dr. Barnes, who edited Bensly's notes, gives a list of some two hundred passages where the readings in the Syriac and the Greek MSS. are compared. As regards other ancient versions, 'Nothing is known', says Dr. Torrey, writing in the Encyclopaedia Biblica, 'of any old Latin version of Fourth Maccabees, or even of the sources used by Erasmus in making his Latin "paraphrase" which differs so widely from the Greek text.' The book is not in the Vulgate, and accordingly is absent from the Apocrypha of the Roman Bible and from our own.

§ 5. DATE.

The date of the original text is uncertain, but the author could never have spoken as he does of the Temple service had he been writing after the fall of Jerusalem in A. D. 70. Also, if the date of the book had been as late as the close of the first century A. D., its orthodox Judaism would probably have interfered with its acceptance among Christians, an acceptance which nevertheless it obtained. And if it was addressed, as it probably was, to an Alexandrian audience we must look at least thirty years further back than A. D. 70, for the author could not have spoken as he does to Alexandrian Jews after the occurrence of the Caligulan persecution, which took place in A. D. 38-39. This last date then becomes the inferior limit. Perhaps the superior limit may be taken as 63 B. C., when the High Priesthood passed from the Hasmonean House. For the author is at pains to explain that in the days of King Seleucus IV (175 B. C.) the High Priest, Onias, held that office for life, a tenure which ceased after the fall of the Hasmonean dynasty (Grimm). The date then probably falls between B. C. 63 and A. D. 38 or, roughly speaking, within two generations before or one generation after the Christian era.

§ 6. INTEGRITY.

The book is of the nature of a sermon, whether actually delivered in a synagogue or not, and as a moral discourse it is thoroughly homogeneous. It opens with the philosophical discussion of the supremacy of Reason, and then illustrates the subject with a series of examples drawn from the constancy of the nine martyrs under their tortures. The point sought to be proved is repeated with an insistence that becomes rather tedious to modern ears, a matter in which, perhaps, we are less tolerant than the ancients. The details, too, of the successive tortures are elaborated in a way that shocks modern taste. We must consider, however, that very few among us to-day have either seen torture inflicted with our own eyes or dreaded to feel it in our own persons. We only know of it by reading of such horrors in other parts of the globe or in the history of the past. The author of Fourth Maccabees was addressing an audience to whom the sight of tortured men was as much a matter of course as the butcher's shambles to us, and accordingly his treatment of this part of the subject is quite in keeping with his time and place. Though a Jew, and a highly orthodox Jew, he is completely master of the Greek language, which he writes with ease; his vocabulary is large, and he handles the idioms with variety and flexibility; his style is so ornate and copious that I am tempted to call it over-decorated. There is no sign of the Midrash method of treatment in his work, no reciting of scattered texts with disconnected expositions attached thereto. He keeps his main point before him, in good Greek form, illustrating it freely and well not only from the story of the martyrs but also from the heroes of old. The nearest he comes to writing in a Hebrew style is at the end, where he puts into the mouth of the Mother what may be described as a roll-call of Old Testament worthies. But as a Jew speaking to Jews nothing could be more natural or more effective than this Hebraic finale. Accordingly I see no reason why we should look in this last chapter for traces of another hand, though certain commentators have thought that the book originally ended at xviii. 2 with the words 'O Israelites, children born of the seed of Abraham, obey this Law, and be righteous in all ways, recognizing that Inspired Reason is lord over the passions'. It is true that this close makes a neat Euclidean Q.E.D. to the demonstration of his proposition as enunciated at the beginning, namely that the Inspired Reason is supreme ruler over the passions. But considered as a peroration, from the rhetorical point of view, it is nothing less than an absolute bathos after the striking passage just before where he gives the epitaph that he would like to write for the martyrs. The main argument for the conjectural placing of the original conclusion at this point is that the Mother's account of her early life, which occupies fourteen verses immediately after it, is of the nature of a digression. So it is, but the reason is not far to seek. The author, through the main part of the book, has dealt chiefly with men and the manly virtues, courage in particular. He gives the heroine of his story, the Mother, due praise for this virtue, but he also desires to insert in his work a fit encomium on the domestic virtues which as a Jew he considers to be most important for the women of his race. Courage he has already praised; now he lays stress on the woman's more commonplace duty of stopping at home and attending to the house, of her father first and later of her husband. Above all, she must be very careful to run no risk of contamination by any deceiver, be he man or be he devil, inside or outside the house. So he makes the Mother say with pride in this last chapter, 'I kept guard over the rib that was builded into Eve.' Like Eve she was to be a helpmeet for man, but she was not, like Eve, to dally with the false beguiling serpent. Clearly the writer was determined to get in his point about female virtue, and he does it. Of course it is a digression even here, but if we look back to where he has the Mother in the front of the scene during the previous chapters there is no place where these verses would not have been ten times more out of keeping. He had far too much literary skill to spoil his effect by putting the passage in the wrong place, and he reserved this piece about her early days till he could use it as a relief to the tension of the tortures, and so lead up to the final roll-call of the heroes. He throws a true and honourable light on the religious influence of the Jewess in her home when he depicts her as recalling to her sons' minds the words of their dead father and his manner of holding up the great men of old to their admiration. His setting of the passage in her mouth is far more effective than if the author himself called the roll in his own person. For myself I am inclined to distrust those confident critics who on the evidence of style say dogmatically 'the author wrote this, the author did not write that'. Even the great Bentley himself, a critic whose shield (were he alive) few knights of the pen would dare to touch by way of challenge, succeeded in persuading himself that Milton never closed the last book of Paradise Lost with such a distich as:

INTRODUCTION

'They hand in hand, with wandering steps and slow,
Through Eden took their solitary way.'

No, these lines had been corrupted by the 'editor' whom Bentley's own imagination invented to account for the faults he discovered in Milton. And this is what he offered as a substitute:

'Then, hand in hand, with social steps their way Through Eden took with heavenly comfort cheer'd.'

Where Bentley could so stumble which of us shall stand upright? The style of Fourth Maccabees shows no more variation than naturally follows on the changes from one branch of the subject to another. All through the author writes the vigorous, free, idiomatic Greek of one to whom it was a native language, so that we might say of him, as of the Jew whom Aristotle is represented as meeting in Asia, that he was 'Ἑλληνικὸς οὐ τῆ διαλέκτῳ μόνον ἀλλὰ καὶ τῆ ψυχῆ'. He likes to coin new words of the right Greek stamp. For instance, in the first sentence of his treatise he states that the question he will discuss is whether Inspired Reason is really αὐτοδέσποτος τῶν παθῶν, autocratic over the passions, where the word αὐτοδέσποτος is apparently a ἅπαξ λεγόμενον of his own minting. Later on he uses in the same sense the much commoner word αὐτοκράτωρ, and we can even find his very phrase αὐτοκράτωρ λογισμός in Thucydides, though the historian uses it in quite another sense, to mean 'an arbitrary decision'. The author of Fourth Maccabees chooses αὐτοδέσποτος not in order to avoid confusion with Thucydides' phrase but to strike the key-note of originality and intensity: he would have you note from the outset that he is an undoubted autocrat of language. So Ruskin in the first sentence of The Seven Lamps of Architecture uses the rare Miltonic 'resplendence' where another man would have chosen some more ordinary term. But Ruskin meant his work to be resplendent, and strikes the note of brilliancy at once. Not a few more of these vigorous compounds does the author coin: ἐθνόπληθος = 'the nation-mass', ἑπταμήτωρ = 'the mother of seven children', κοσμοπληθής = 'world-whelming', κοσμοφορῶν = 'world-freighted', μαλακοψυχείν = 'to be weak-spirited', παθοκρατεῖσθαι = 'to be mastered by the passions'. These words are neither obscure nor far-fetched; their meaning is obvious enough, but they are fresh. We have but to turn over a few pages of Carlyle's French Revolution at haphazard to find parallels; Danton is 'the Minister of Moloch-Justice', the while 'France is dancing its desert-waltz'; 'Louis Capet was only called Inviolable by a figure of rhetoric; but at bottom was perfectly violable, triable'; or again, when the King's sentence is being settled, constitution-monger Sieyes votes 'La mort sans phrase, Death without phrases, and fares onward and downward. Most spectral, pandemonial'. A good word 'pandemonial' (which I have not found in Dr. Murray's dictionary) for horrors whether of the French Revolution or of torture under the Brilliant Madman. Some of the author's new coinage passed into circulation; he speaks of Eleazar's Reason as a pilot, πηδαλιουχῶν, 'rudder-handling' or 'rudder-ruling' the ship of godliness, where the common expression would have been οἰακίζων, 'steering'; and we find this new word of his, πηδαλιουχείν, used by later writers, not of handling the helm of a real ship, but in the very same metaphorical sense we have here. We may note the author's love of double-barrelled prepositional compounds, as where he speaks of parents as ἐναποσφραγίζοντες, stamping their seal on the child; and of prepositions used intensively in composition, as in ἐπιρρωγολογούμενος, another of his coinages, to express the skinflint's extra-gleaning of his grapes. Indeed his love of the ornate is such that he will invent a three-barrelled prepositional compound, if the fancy strikes him; as when, in the case of the torture of the first of the seven brethren, in order to describe the horrid ingenuity of the torturers, he says, τὸν τροχὸν προσεπικατέτεινον, 'they extra-overstrained against him the wheel', or as the Syriac version has it, 'they made the wheel more cruel by artifice against him.' I find no cause to suspect that this book is not the work of a single hand.

THE FOURTH BOOK OF MACCABEES

§ 7. AUTHORSHIP.

The authorship of Fourth Maccabees must be considered doubtful. It was attributed to Flavius Josephus by Eusebius, the learned bishop of Caesarea, who lived more than two centuries later than Josephus, or between A.D. 270 and 340. The words of Eusebius are (Hist. Eccl. iii. 10, see page 76 in E. Burton's Oxford Ed., 1856): πεπόνηται δὲ καὶ ἄλλο οὐκ ἀγεννὲς σπούδασμα τῷ ἀνδρὶ περὶ αὐτοκράτορος λογισμοῦ, ὃ τινες Μακκαβαϊκὸν ἐνέγραψαν, τῷ τοῖς ἀγῶνας τῶν ἐν τοῖς οὕτω καλουμένοις Μακκαβαϊκοῖς συγγράμμασιν ὑπὲρ τῆς εἰς τὸ θεῖον εὐσεβείας ἀνδρῖσαμένων Ἑβραίων περιέχειν. 'The man (Josephus) has also produced another work of a lofty character on the Supremacy of Reason, to which some have given the title of Maccabean, because it includes the struggles of the Hebrews who in the books known as Maccabean strove valiantly for the sake of righteousness before God.' Jerome, writing in A.D. 492, follows Eusebius in naming Josephus as the author, and in consequence of this attribution, which was generally accepted in ancient times, we find the book frequently printed among Josephus's works. Internal evidence, however, points strongly the other way. For example, the statement made in Fourth Maccabees xvii. 24, that Antiochus publicly held up the example of the martyrs to his men to inspire them with courage, 'so that he conquered all his enemies and laid waste their cities,' is a singular one to have been made by Josephus, who himself has chronicled the notorious failure of Antiochus before Elymais and discusses the question whether that failure was not the immediate cause of his death. Again, Josephus (Ant. xii. 4) correctly states that Antiochus Epiphanes was the brother of Seleucus IV. But in Fourth Maccabees iv. 15 the writer makes the blunder of calling him his son. Also the writer says in Fourth Maccabees xiv. 7, 'we now shudder when we hear of the sufferings of those youths,' thus presupposing that his hearers enjoy peace and safety. Such words would be hardly natural in the mouth of Josephus, who was actually present at the fall of Jerusalem and wrote the history of the fatal Jewish War. It is also worth noting that Josephus in his historical works uses the Greek equivalents of Biblical names, whereas the author of Fourth Maccabees uses the Hebrew indeclinable forms except in the cases of Ἱεροσόλυμα and Ἐλεάζαρος. Indeed the whole form and style of Fourth Maccabees are so unlike any of Josephus's other works that, if he did write it, he must have done so when very young, and then have completely changed his style later. He would seem to have changed his views also, for the ideal purpose of Fourth Maccabees is to glorify the heroes who sacrifice everything for the sake of religion. But the personal ideals of Josephus were of a very different nature, for we learn from his own pen that his heroism took quite another shape. After fighting against Rome on behalf of his country till victory declared for Rome, he then surrendered and fought against his brethren; he took the Roman name of Flavius in compliment to the Flavian Caesar, and married a Gentile wife, contrary to Moses' Law, to oblige Vespasian. As every single one of these acts would have been anathema to the author of Fourth Maccabees, we may fairly conclude that the writer was not Flavius Josephus. It has indeed been suggested, by Ewald among others, that the ascription may have arisen from the author's actual name having been Josephus, and that he thus became confused later on with the more famous historian, which of course is possible but does seem somewhat futile. Whatever his name was, it is more likely that he lived in Alexandria than in Palestine. The implication, noticed above, that he and his hearers are living in the enjoyment of peace and safety suits Jerusalem less well than Alexandria, at least for any period prior to the Caligulan persecution. And not only is the writer's style but his sentiment more Alexandrian than Palestinian. He shows indeed a proper orthodox horror of the Hellenizing Jason's action in setting up a gymnasium on the Holy Mount, but so far from condemning the Greek games in themselves, he does not shrink from comparing the struggle between the martyrs and the tyrant to an athletic contest. Indeed, he elaborates the likeness; the competitors are Antiochus and the martyrs; the spectators are the whole world; and the prize of victory is immortality. He shows a similar tolerance towards Greek art, when he suggests that 'if it were allowable for us' the art of painting would best bring before the mind the idea of the martyrdoms. Surely some Niobe or Medea or other heroine of Greek tragedy was familiar to the sight of his hearers and of himself when he said this; and when he added 'as might some artist' (if that be the correct reading) he was alluding to some painter whom they all knew. In cosmopolitan Alexandria such an allusion could hardly hurt his reputation for orthodoxy, but it would have been a hazardous thing to publish such a phrase in Jerusalem, where the very sight of Pilate's eagles raised a fury that was only quenched in blood. Moreover, the main object of his discourse, which is to show how Greek philosophy can help an orthodox Jew to keep the Law, is one more likely to be addressed to Jews living in the great Greek city of Alexandria than to those at the sacred centre of Judaism itself. The general conclusion is that the author was not Flavius Josephus, and that there is evidence to show that he was a Jew, living in Egypt, most probably in Alexandria, within a few years of the Christian era.

INTRODUCTION

§ 8. INFLUENCE.

The direct influence of this book on Jewish literature does not seem to have been great; there is, however, a mediæval work, written in Biblical Hebrew, by Joseph ben Gorion, commonly known as Yosippon, which shows traces of Fourth Maccabees. Yosippon's work is a history of his people from the destruction of Babylon to the fall of Jerusalem in A.D. 70. He is sometimes called the 'Hebrew' Josephus to distinguish him from his namesake, the well-known historian of the Antiquities and the Jewish War, who wrote in Greek. Yosippon, indeed, in the text of his book now current, claims to be the great historian himself, but this is certainly false. It is now generally held that his writings have absolutely no historical value, and that, so far from being the real Flavius Josephus, he was a Jew of Southern Italy who lived as late as the ninth or tenth century. But his work became exceedingly popular among the Jews of the Middle Ages and it was translated into many languages and widely circulated. One modern authority, Trieber, would assign him a date as early as the fourth century, and thinks he had the original work of Jason of Cyrene before him, but this question is still debated. At any rate Yosippon recounts the story of the martyrdoms much as we have it in Fourth Maccabees, but with additions and variations of his own. The first martyr, Eleazar, is represented as having formerly been the guest of Ptolemy in Egypt, where he acted as one of the LXX, and as having won at Jerusalem the favour of Philip, by which name is intended the general to whom Antiochus entrusted the business of persecuting the Jews. This Philip takes Eleazar apart and begs him to eat, before all the people, some of the meat of a Jewish sacrifice, but to do so in such a way that he may be supposed to be eating meat sacrificed to the king's image. For the rest of the story of Eleazar the author does little more than expand Maccabees. He then brings the Mother, whom he calls Hannah, with her seven sons, before Antiochus himself, 'who had not gone far from Jerusalem'; and their several martyrdoms follow. I note a few points differing from Maccabees. While the first martyr is suffering the others quote the Song of Moses, 'The Lord will judge his people and have mercy on his servants,' &c. The fifth brother tells the king that it is vain for him to hope to establish the worship of his own image by their torture. The Mother makes a long speech to the youngest son, who promises her that 'he will keep the Law which Moses our teacher, may he rest in peace! gave to the Holy People of Israel'. And the boy calls Antiochus an insane dotard of seventy, and tells him 'it had been better for thee never to have been born from the impure womb of the foolish mother who bore thee, thou fatuous fool that hast brought woe upon thyself'. There is no mention either of the seventh son or the Mother casting themselves into the fire; but Hannah begins her dying speech, 'My heart has rejoiced in the Lord and my horn is exalted in my God.' After the martyrdoms Antiochus goes off to Macedonia (?) and the Maccabean rising follows. As we might expect, the Stoic philosophy of Fourth Maccabees finds no place here.

THE FOURTH BOOK OF MACCABEES

Neither can I discover any trace of this Stoicism surviving in the Chanukah services which to this day commemorate the Maccabean purification. If one may imitate St. Paul's simile of the wild olive tree, Stoicism was a graft that throve but ill when set in the stem of the 'good' olive of Judaism. The Chanukah festival lasts for eight days, beginning on the famous twenty-fifth of Chisleu (December), when it was instituted by Judas Maccabaeus, his brothers, and the elders, to be celebrated annually in memory of the dedication of the restored altar on the occasion of the purification of the Sanctuary at Jerusalem. The popular name, according to Josephus (the true Josephus, not Yosippon), was φῶτα, 'Lights', because it was and is still celebrated by a grand general illumination. The eight-day continuance of it is said to come from the story that the priests found one single cruse of holy oil that had remained unpolluted all through the desecration under Antiochus, and by a miracle this was made to last for eight days until the priests could prepare new oil for the lamps of the holy candlestick.

In later times the Pharisaic party haggled over the legitimacy of the claims of the family of Mattathias to the hereditary High-priesthood which was assumed by the Maccabees in 153 B.C. Strict Jews held that the Maccabeans, though they had proved themselves national heroes, were in a sense irregular as occupants of the sacred office. As an explanation of this it is stated by Morris J. Raphall, Rabbi-preacher of the Greene Street synagogue, New York, who published in 1854 a Post-Biblical History of the Jews, that the Chasidim condemned Judas Maccabaeus because he allied himself with the Parthians and sent an embassy to Rome. He quotes from a Midrash Chanukah, which he describes as an ancient Codex in the City Library of Leipzig, these words as personally directed against Judas by the leader of the Chasidim: 'Cursed be the man who placeth his dependence on flesh while from the Lord his heart departeth.' But Rabbi Raphall thinks that Mattathias was probably regarded as High-Priest, or Cohen-Gadol, by his own followers, and describes him as a priest of the order of Joarib, the first of the twenty-four appointed by David by lot, and descended from the elder branch of the family of Aaron. The father of Mattathias was Johanan, and his father Asmoneus. In the service for Chanukah, in the official Jewish prayer-book, there is a special prayer set out in the morning service for the day which runs thus: 'In the days of the Hasmonean, Mattathias, son of Johanan the High-Priest, and his sons, when the iniquitous power of Greece rose up against thy people Israel, to make them forgetful of thy Law and to force them to transgress the statutes of thy will, then didst thou in thine abundant mercy rise up for them in the time of their trouble . . . and for thy people Israel thou didst work a great deliverance and redemption as at this day. And thereupon thy children came into the oracle of thy house, cleansed thy temple, purified thy Sanctuary, kindled light in thy holy courts, and appointed these eight days of Chanukah in order to give thanks and praises unto thy great name.' But I can find nothing that specially recalls Fourth Maccabees in the whole service.

If the Jews themselves have somewhat neglected the book, the Christian Fathers have not done so. The Maccabeans are lauded by the Western as well as by the Eastern Church; they are commemorated in panegyrics by St. Augustine and Leo the Great, and they find a place in the calendars of Carthage as well as in those of the Syrians and Arabians. But the Eastern Church naturally glorified them first, and I can find no better specimen of the influence of Fourth Maccabees on Christian literature than the oration of Gregory Nazianzen on the Martyrs. 'What of the Maccabeans?' he begins, 'for to-day (Aug. 1) is their anniversary; though by many they be not honoured because their ἀθλησις, their "contest", was not after Christ, yet are they worthy to be honoured by all, in that their endurance was in behalf of the Law of their fathers. And what would men who were martyred before Christ's passion have achieved if they had been persecuted after Christ and had His death on our behalf to imitate? For would not they who without His great example showed such virtue have appeared nobler still in hazarding themselves after that example? Mystical and ineffable is the saying, and one very persuasive to me and to all that love God, that none of those who were made perfect¹ before Christ reached that point outside of the Christian faith.' We are reminded of that noble benediction 'abi in pacem anima naturaliter Christiana'. It has been finely said that if Judaism as a religion had perished under Antiochus, the seed-bed of Christianity would have been lacking; and thus the blood of the Maccabean martyrs, who saved Judaism, ultimately became the seed of the Church. Therefore as not only Christendom but also Islam derive their monotheism from a Jewish source, it may well be that the world to-day owes the very existence of monotheism both in the East and in the West to the Maccabees.

¹ Compare Heb. xi: 40.

INTRODUCTION

This then is the key-note of Gregory's paean in their honour, delivered in the latter half of the fourth century, and he strikes the note again further on where he repeats that 'the Maccabees are not to be despised because they were before the Cross, but they are to be praised and held in honour for having lived according to the Cross'. His oration is really a paraphrase of Fourth Maccabees, to which he clearly alludes in the following sentence: 'For who they were and whence, these men, and from what fount of education and training they advanced to such a pitch of virtue and glory that they are honoured by these yearly feasts and celebrations, and beyond these visible things have enshrined themselves in the hearts of all men, all this those who love labour and learning will find made clear in the book, which philosophizes about the Reason being supreme over the passions and holding the balance between two, that is to say, between virtue and vice.' A great sentence in more senses than one. Gregory, then, describes Eleazar as the first-fruits of those who suffered before Christ, as Stephen was the first-fruits of those after him. He takes not a few phrases straight from Eleazar's mouth, as where the martyr prays that he and his fellow martyrs may be accepted as a purification for the whole people; but when Gregory makes Eleazar speak of the youths as his sons, he clearly must do so in a spiritual sense, for in Fourth Maccabees it is very distinctly stated that Eleazar was not their father, and what they owed him was not their birth but their teaching; and Gregory knows his original perfectly. Gregory, however, likes playing such variations on his theme. Thus he makes the youths boldly demand the torture for themselves, their only fear being lest any should be denied the crown of martyrdom; but when he comes to describe the sufferings of the Mother, the Christian introduces a touch unknown to the Jewish writer. Like him he dwells at length on her agony over her sons' agonies, but the Christian recognizes there a true foretype of the Mother of Sorrows at the crucifixion of Christ, and he gives her the palm for courage and devotion. Like the author of Fourth Maccabees he delights in his own eloquence. If, as some think, two chapters of Second Maccabees have been expanded into the Fourth, Gregory in his turn now expands the Fourth by introducing numerous variations of his own, as where he makes the youths whet one another's spirits, ὡς σὺῶν ὀδόντες ἀλλήλους θήξαντες, 'like boar's tusks whetting each other.' He takes the Maccabean author's simile of the mother-bird fluttering round her young ones, threatened by the snake, and applying it more directly to the Mother represents her as gathering up their broken bodies and—a curious touch this—adoring their relics; προσεκύνει τὰ λείψανα he says; unless indeed we simply render προσεκύνει 'she kissed them'. He fills her mouth with phrases clearly befitting the Mother of God. 'Yet a little while,' she proclaims, 'and blessed shall I be among women.' When she has done speaking he makes her run to the pyre as to her bride-bed, ὡς ἐπὶ νυμφῶνα τὴν πυρκαϊάν δραμοῦσα, not waiting for her executioners 'in order that no impure person should touch her pure and honourable body'. Gregory makes the tyrant rejoice within himself that she had not borne more sons, for then he must have come off even more defeated and worse disgraced. Antiochus plays the part of the devil in this drama, and the fate of the Hebrew race is ὡς ἐπὶ ξυροῦ, on a razor's edge, and the martyrs are the conquerors. 'So,' says Gregory to his flock, 'imitate these noble sufferers and do battle bravely with our daily Antiochus,' πρὸς τὸν καθ' ἡμέραν Ἀντίοχον γενναίως ἀνδριζόμενοι; and so dismisses them with his blessing in the name of Christ, 'to whom be the glory for ever. Amen.'

Commenting on this oration, Nicetas declares that Gregory opens by maintaining that the Maccabees were truly pre-Christian martyrs 'because some averred that these martyrs suffered not for Christ but in defence of the Law and of abstinence from swine's flesh', and quotes other Fathers in defence of Gregory's position. Further on there is a highly exalted passage where Gregory makes the youths say to Antiochus, 'Our country is the heavenly Jerusalem which no Antiochus can besiege, and our kinship is the spirit with which we are inspired by having been born unto virtue.' Gregory's word for 'the spirit with which we are inspired' is ἐμπνευσις, and Nicetas finely illustrates this from the passage in Genesis where God breathes into man's nostrils the breath of life.

In a strain of equal exaltation Gregory's great contemporary, Chrysostom, the golden-mouthed, begins his panegyric on the Holy Maccabees and their Mother. 'How bright and joyous is our city, and sunnier this day than all the year! Not that to-day the sun pours his beams more splendid than of wont upon the earth, but that the light of the holy martyrs flashes brighter than lightning over all our city.' He follows the author of Fourth Maccabees in choosing to compare the martyrs' struggle to the athletic contests of the games, and the martyr's crown to that of the victor in the contest. He appeals to Christ in the character of one who 'produces the games', as the phrase went. τί ποτε τοῦτο ἄρα, δέσποτα; 'What in the world is this, Master? Bringest thou feeble age into the contests on the arena? Who ever heard of a woman being entered for a contest at such an age? None ever heard of it.' And Christ answers that it is not bodily strength on which they rely, but that He lends His strength to His athletes. Further on Chrysostom sets forth eloquently the force of maternal devotion, quite in the vein of Fourth Maccabees but with instances of his own. 'Often,' he says, 'a mother seeing her child burning with fever—πάντα ἂν ἔλοιτο παθεῖν—would choose to take all the pain to herself so as to transfer the fire of the distemper from the child's body to hers.' It is interesting to observe how Chrysostom can always find something new to say. Fourth Maccabees has a beautiful simile of birds defending their young. He alters it by introducing the idea of their love of offspring being turned into a snare for themselves. 'Many wild animals hard to catch are thus taken, when, disregarding their own safety in their affection for their young, they fall into the hands of the hunters.' He is very ingenious in these variations, and doubtless intended them to remind those among his hearers who, in Gregory's words, loved labour and learning, of a book so well worth knowing, and he contrives to freshen their interest by novel applications. Finally, in his stirring close he, like Gregory, lends his powerful support to the claim that these were true martyrs before Christ. 'Who is there, man or woman, old or young, who would not contend for the martyr's crown, when a woman did so—πρὸ τῆς χάριτος ἀγωνισαμένη—contending before the days of grace?' And, lastly, we find him using a phrase that seems to me a probable allusion to Fourth Maccabees xvii. 7, where the author suggests the art of painting as well fitted to commemorate the martyrdoms. 'You should all,' says Chrysostom to his hearers, 'engrave their contests and their struggles on your hearts as it were on a tablet,' τοὺς ἀγῶνας καὶ τὰ παλαίσματα ὥσπερ ἐπὶ πίνακός τινος τῆς καρδίας ὑμῶν ἀπογράψαντες. This may primarily refer to St. Paul's 'not on tables of stone but on fleshly tables of the heart', but it also seems distinctly to point to the conjectural reading ὥσπερ ἐπὶ πίνακός τινος in the passage in Maccabees. In this connexion we have to consider that the early Church by no means favoured the representation of the agonies of martyrdom by the graphic arts. On the contrary, the Church then desired to see the martyrs depicted only as blessed and glorified. The physical details of their cruel sufferings were not a popular subject until the Dark Ages, and it is quite possible that Chrysostom may be deprecating here the outward representation of such sufferings when he tells his hearers to engrave them on their hearts.

There is yet another speech of his, lauding the Maccabean martyrs, in which he selects the last and youngest of the sons for his special panegyric. Here, too, he introduces quaint touches of his own, as that the tyrant was looking at the braziers, but the youth was looking at the hell into which the tyrant was going to cast himself. Also that the youth leapt into the braziers 'as they had been fountains of cool waters, reckoning them a divine font and baptism'. Then the preacher once more lauds the Mother, recounting her many sorrows, and borrowing from Fourth Maccabees the comparison of her to the Three Children in the burning fiery furnace, which he embellishes thus: 'The fuel of their furnace was naphtha and pitch, tow and brushwood; the fuel of hers was nature and birth-pangs and maternal love and the sweet voice of her children.' The words φύσις καὶ ὠδίνες καὶ φιλοστοργία καὶ παίδων συμφωνία seem to flow from his mouth as fresh as if he had just prepared himself by reading over the story. He borrows direct the simile of the brave Eleazar, like a beetling sea-cliff standing fast against the tempest of the passions, and applies it to the Mother, who, like a sea-cliff taking the assaults of the waves, remains unmoved while they spend themselves in spume. And lastly, 'She saw in the flames not a form of torment but a nuptial torch, γαμήλιον λαμπάδα,' a fancy which he shares with Gregory.

There is yet a third discourse on the subject by Chrysostom, but space forbids me to enlarge further. The orations are all well worth looking at. They may be found in T. B. Prunaeus's Gregory Nazianzen, Paris, 1609, page 397, and in Fronto Ducaeus's John Chrysostom, Paris, 1609, pages 581 and 622 ff., as well as in later editions.

To come down to more modern times, I can find nothing so interesting as the book of Erasmus on the Maccabean martyrs. He felt a personal interest in the matter, for in the early sixteenth century which saw the beginnings of the Reformation a man who had the courage of his opinions had also a right good chance of martyrdom. It was in 1517 that Luther nailed his denunciation of Indulgences to the doors of the church at Wittenberg, and in that same year Erasmus seems to have compiled his little work for the benefit of his friend Elias Marcaeus, 'moderator of the most honourable college of the Maccabeans' at Cologne. Martyrdom was a thing of which the great leader of the humanists had a very real dread. 'We have not all strength for martyrdom, and I fear if trouble comes I shall do like Peter,' he wrote in 1521, and he had reason to quake when his works were actually submitted to the Spanish Inquisition six years later. Martyrdoms have a cruel interest for a man who dreads the torture, and it is no wonder that he made a book for his friends at Cologne out of all that antiquity had said about their martyr-saints. The earliest edition of his work that I can hear of was printed by E. Cervicornus at Cologne, Feb. 1, 1524, fol., with the title—'Opera Iosephi interprete Ruffino presbytero. De insigni machabaeorum martyrio, castigatus ab Erasmo: nunquam ante praedictis additus,' &c., &c. The book was several times reprinted in the sixteenth century, e.g. at Basle, 1524, 1534, and 1540, and the Bodleian has a copy of another edition from the Cologne press, which is undated but was probably printed in 1534 or later, and has the title really preferred by Erasmus, 'περὶ αὐτοκράτορος λογισμοῦ, de imperatrice ratione.' In his prefatory letter Erasmus says that he has worked from a Latin text, not having a Greek MS. at hand (the Greek text appears not to have been printed till 1526); and that, conjecturing the Greek original from the Latin, he has changed some things, but not very much. He shows his literary art in the way in which he compliments both the college and the city of Cologne, alluding elegantly to the eleven thousand virgins martyred there, and so proceeds to his translation. After the translation he gives selections from antiquity, including the following from Jerome: 'The seven Maccabean brothers were born of one mother, by name Maccabea; they kept the Law of their own tradition; they did not eat the flesh of swine. For this cause they by the most cruel king Antiochus were crowned with the glory of martyrdom, in Antioch, together with their pious mother, and there they remain buried with great veneration.'

INTRODUCTION

'So far St. Jerome,' says Erasmus; 'but', he continues, 'it is certain that the relics of these Maccabean brothers were by the blessed Helena, mother of the Emperor Constantine, brought to Byzantium, and thence by the president Eustorgius to Mediolanum (Milan), and lastly by the act of Reginold bishop of Cologne transferred from Mediolanum to Cologne in the year 1164, where now they are held in great veneration in the college of the glorious name of the Maccabeans themselves.' Their removal to Cologne in 1164 was celebrated by a special feast, 'which', observes Erasmus, 'is now marked off by our very reverend father and lord in Christ, Hermann de Hassia, archbishop of Cologne, in the year 1506, as having been transferred to the feast of St. Cuthbert, archbishop and confessor.' However, to return to his translation of Fourth Maccabees, or rather to his paraphrase, for such it is. He completely rewrites the argument about Reason and the passions, nor do I find any allusion to the Stoic classification of the passions, though he agrees with the author of Fourth Maccabees that Reason does not extirpate passion but checks it, and he quotes the cases there cited of Joseph, Moses, Jacob, and David. In David's case he has a curious variant. David would not quench his thirst with the water which ran by his tent because he had sworn not to drink till the enemy's camp was taken, thinking thus to stimulate the valour of his troops. When we come to the Hellenizing campaign of Antiochus and the tyrant's persecutions, Erasmus follows his author more closely, but I note various changes. Jason builds baths, not a gymnasium, near the temple. The women who circumcise their sons fling themselves off the rocks voluntarily, 'quippe quae vitantes longiora tormenta celerem halitum ingestae mortis optarent.' When Antiochus counsels Eleazar to eat the swine's flesh, he says, 'It is a mark of superstition and cowardice to make a law for oneself and call one's choice Reason'; and Eleazar replies, 'Our law condemns your philosophy, wherein the less a man understands the more he thinks he understands.' Erasmus was thinking of some theologians more distinguished for bigotry than learning when he wrote these words. Nor is he at any pains to keep a Jewish atmosphere: on the contrary, he puts into the mouth of Eleazar, when he is asking God to accept him as an atonement, such a characteristically Christian phrase as 'Receive me for them all, and give them all to me'.

The martyrdom of Eleazar appears to take place in Jerusalem, but the seven brethren and the Mother are brought to Antioch, 'atrociter de eorum castello Sufandro.' The Mother is called Solomona. The eldest son is Maccabeus, the others are Aber, Machir, Judas, Achas, Areth, Jacob. Erasmus describes their tortures at length, and the curious may compare his long Latin list of devilish engines with the Greek. When he comes to xii. 7 he transfers thither the speech of the Mother which the author had reserved for a later place, and in the same connexion he largely expands both the tortures and the speeches of the seventh son. Finally he describes the Mother as herself being stripped, scourged, and grievously tormented by Antiochus, until at last she is brought to the brazier, 'ac oratione protensis surrectisque manibus pro gravidis matribus fusa coelibem effudit spiritum'. There he introduces a very mediaeval touch, as also when he shows Antiochus terror-stricken at the very moment of her death by a flash of lightning. Again, later on, he makes the tyrant become so impressed by the martyrs' courage that he enlists whole legions of Hebrew soldiers in his service and wins battles with them. Yet death is not to be staved off; for he shows the king at last dying miserably of a disgusting disease, as told in the Second but not in the Fourth Book of Maccabees.

It will be seen that Erasmus gave himself a perfectly free hand. A century and a half later Combeffin fell upon him with severity for it. The French scholar calls him such unkind names as

THE FOURTH BOOK OF MACCABEES

‘ineptus Paraphrastes (veriusque temerator) Erasmus’. He says that Erasmus put the kingdom of heaven for τὰ τῆς ἀρετῆς ἀθλα, and eternal fire for eternal death,—‘est hoc παραχάπτειν non παραφράζειν,’ ‘this is to adulterate a monument of antiquity. If a monk had taken such liberties with the work of Josephus and the words of the Maccabees, how the man would have laughed at him.’ Then he ridicules Erasmus for giving to the martyrs names drawn either from some apocryphal writings or invented out of his own head. And again Combeffin calls an expression of the Paraphrastes ‘inanis mihi verborum pompa et phalerae’, and casts scorn upon him for expending so many rhetorical exaggerations over the tortured Mother, to which the critic would prefer the simplicity of the Greek account. I do not know if it was odium theologicum or odium scholasticum which prompted this assault, but if Erasmus could have awaked from his long century’s sleep we might have had a literary quarrel, the echoes of which would be ringing yet in our ears. The French scholar would have had a backer on this side of the Channel in Dr. Wm. Cave of Oxford, who wrote that he would like to know why Erasmus put a quantity of stuff into his work of which there is no trace in the Greek. ‘Others may solve the question,’ says Cave, ‘Quin id pro ingenii sui pruritu fecerit Erasmus dubitari nequit.’

But if one could picture such a ghostly battle of the books as taking place, I am not sure that Erasmus might not find on his side the shade of another Oxford scholar, John Lloyd, who translated Fourth Maccabees just two years after the defeat of the Great Armada, and decidedly did not love Rome. He does indeed criticize Erasmus’s work, though he avoids, intentionally it may be, the mention of his name, but he keeps the vials of his wrath for certain Roman theologians, who endeavoured to make out that Fourth Maccabees was to be received as canonical, on evidence which they claimed to be that of Josephus, and cited Gregory in support of their thesis. Whom our Lloyd laughs to scorn, winding up with ‘O dignos Romana meretrice mangones!’

Tantaene animis scholasticis irae?

Lloyd’s text, based on the Strassburg edition of 1526, like those of Hudson and all the other printed texts I have seen (except Swete’s), has the reading ὡς περ ἐπὶ τινος πίνακος in xvii. 7 where the MSS. give ὡς περ τινός or ὡς ἐπὶ τινος, and this conjectural emendation of πίνακος is reproduced in the Latin of Erasmus and others. The conjecture, though unsupported, is natural enough, as the author of Fourth Maccabees undoubtedly is referring here to a picture. Erasmus, however, tacks on to it quite a new idea, and turns this suggested figure of the martyred Mother from an ideal work of art into a sort of charm or amulet: ‘if a sculptor were to put this piteous figure on a tomb or set it up on a house, he would be free from every dreadful plague and would surely enjoy eternal bliss.’ The idea of the picture appears to have commended itself to the printer of a later edition of the book, for the Bodleian copy has fourteen rude woodcuts of the martyrdoms where no dreadful detail is spared. In their crude horror they remind one of the grim ghastliness of the Macabre pictures, so popular in the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries, whose very name shows how the word Maccabean ultimately came to indicate death in its most detested forms. And this survives to-day in the argot of Paris, where the body of a murdered victim is still mockingly termed a ‘macabé’.

§ 9. THEOLOGY.

When Paul was brought before the Jewish Council at Jerusalem, in order to divide his opponents he exclaimed: ‘I am a Pharisee, the son of a Pharisee: of the hope and resurrection of the dead I am called in question.’ And we read that the two parties in the Council proceeded to fall out on the instant, ‘for the Sadducees say that there is no resurrection, neither angel, nor spirit; but the Pharisees confess both.’ This account exhibits very clearly the strongly contrasted beliefs of the two great parties among the Jews, as they existed (or were believed to exist) in Palestine about the middle of the first century A. D. In Alexandria, however, there was a third form of belief, approaching that of the Pharisees indeed, but with a difference; and this third form is the standpoint of the author of Fourth Maccabees. Briefly stated it is this. At death men meet with the reward or punishment due for their deeds. The righteous are received into bliss (see x. 15; xiii. 17; xvii. 4, 18; xviii. 23). The wicked are punished with eternal torture (see ix. 8, 32; x. 11, 15; xii. 19; xiii. 15; xviii. 5, 22). Apparently there is no resurrection of the body. Also, like the Pharisees, the author believes in angels (see iv. 10, and perhaps vii. 11), and in devils (see xviii. 8). For Jewish views of immortality see Oesterley and Box, Synagogue Religion and Worship, p. 224, and R. H. Charles, Eschatology, Hebrew, &c., passim. How the Alexandrian school came to adopt the doctrine of the immortality of the soul but not of the resurrection of the body is too large a subject to enter upon here, but it is usually attributed to their having come under the influence of the philosophy of Plato and the neo-Pythagoreans. That the author was saturated with Greek philosophy is proved by his systematic adoption of its terminology, including the fourfold classification of the cardinal virtues which the Stoics copied from Plato. In his general thesis on the Supremacy of Reason, he follows exactly the Platonic classification of φρόνησις, judgement or self-control, ἀνδρεία, courage, δικαιοσύνη, justice, and σωφροσύνη, temperance. But when he comes to tell of the martyr facing the tortures he adds something new. 'You scoff at our philosophy,' says Eleazar to the king, 'but the Law teaches us temperance, and courage, and justice,'—so far the author goes with Plato; then comes the new word—'and εὐσέβεια, righteousness, so that with due reverence we worship only the God who is.' This is the key-note of his whole book. The Stoic ideal is right, and the Stoic path to it may be well enough, but the driving force is to be sought elsewhere, namely in the Law of Moses. It is the same thought that he puts into the mouth of the first to suffer of the seven Brethren. 'Through all the torments I will show you . . . that the Sons of the Hebrews alone are unconquerable,' the secret of the youth's courage being that he has been trained in the Law of Moses. Similarly Philo, who accepted the Platonic idea of the soul as a divine emanation, chose the Stoic ethics for the groundwork of his system, and made Greek philosophy 'a means of defending and justifying Jewish religious truths. These he regarded as fixed and determinate, and philosophy was merely an aid to truth and a means of arriving at it' (Jewish Encyclopaedia, art. Philo). No better description could be given of the position of the author of Fourth Maccabees. But the position was one that the Pharisaic party, which was ultimately successful, could never bring themselves to accept, and the school of Philo and of our author, after exerting considerable authority for a time, died away in the end.

INTRODUCTION

Of direct Christian influence on the book there is naturally no trace, but I. Abrahams, writing in the Jewish Encyclopaedia, thinks that as it stands there may possibly be some Christian interpolation in such passages as vii. 14, xiii. 17, and xvi. 25, which declare that the patriarchs are not dead, but live unto God. In the second of these, where we read, 'Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob shall receive us,' Swete's text omits the phrase εἰς τοὺς κόλπους αὐτῶν, which is not in the uncials and appears only in MSS. of secondary importance; these particular words may perhaps be a later insertion made by some one familiar with the New Testament who wished to allude to Luke xvi. 23, but it is difficult to see why the general statement that the Jewish patriarchs live with God should be due to a Christian hand. Christian phraseology, however, does certainly find a remarkable echo, or rather anticipation, in the prayer of Eleazar, vi. 28, 'Be merciful unto thy people, and let our punishment be a satisfaction in their behalf. Make my blood their purification, and take my soul to ransom their souls.' This idea is repeated in xvii. 21, 22, where the author says that the martyrs 'became a ransom for our nation's sin; and through the blood of these righteous men and the propitiation of their death, the divine providence delivered Israel that before was evil entreated'. The phrases fall with a familiar sound on our ears, but nevertheless the idea of an atonement is not more distinctively Christian than it is Jewish. The whole Jewish system of sacrifices was based on the idea of the death of an animal being substituted for that of a man as an atonement for sin. Under the ancient law the scape-goat upon whom the lot for the Lord fell, in the service for the Day of Atonement, was sacrificed, and his blood was taken within the Holy Place, while the one for Azazel was turned out in the wilderness. The substitution of the goat for the people in the greatest ceremony of the year was thoroughly typical of the sacrificial principle. In later times the idea of the propitiatory sacrifice was extended from earth to heaven. In the Testament of Levi (circa 107 B.C.) we have 'In [the sixth heaven] are the archangels, who minister and make propitiation to the Lord for all the sins of the righteous; offering to the Lord a sweet-smelling savour, a reasonable and a bloodless offering'. Charles's note on this (Test. Twelve Patr. Levi, iii. 5) gives the explanation that since the earthly altar and tabernacle of Exodus and Numbers were made after heavenly patterns the idea of a sacrificial service in heaven must long have been familiar to Jews. Michael 'the merciful and longsuffering' is one of these archangels who pray and offer sacrifice for Israel. So we see that there is nothing specifically Christian in the suggestion of the sufferings of the righteous making atonement for the people.

To go back to ancient times, the sacrifice of Jephthah's daughter (though not an atonement) is by no means the only instance in the history of Judaism showing that the idea that a human being might be accepted as a sacrifice was quite conceivable. Did not Moses thus offer himself (Exod. xxxii. 32) when he found the people worshipping the golden calf, and prayed to the Lord, 'Yet now, if thou wilt forgive their sin —; and if not, blot me, I pray thee, out of thy book'? David also, when Israel was smitten because of his having numbered the people, cried to the Lord, 'It is I that have sinned and done evil indeed; but as for these sheep, what have they done? let thine hand, I pray thee, O Lord God, be upon me and on my father's house; but not on thy people that they should be plagued' (see 2 Sam. xxiv. 17). Indeed the whole Jewish theory of national religion was based on redemption by substitution. The first-born son of every family was due to Yahveh and had to be redeemed, just as every first-born of any unclean animal, such as an ass, had to be redeemed by the substitution of a calf or a lamb. The author recurs again as he approaches his peroration to this thought of the martyrs' deaths being an atonement, in xvii. 21-22, where he says, 'they having as it were become a ransom for our nation's sin (apostasy); and through the blood of these righteous men and the propitiation of their death, the divine providence delivered Israel that before was evil entreated.' As for the pagan world, we find the idea everywhere: to take a single instance, I may quote the self-sacrifice of Curtius's leap into the chasm to appease the gods of Rome. In the New Testament, of course, we have numerous parallels; to take one only, we read in Hebrews ix. 28, 'So Christ was once offered to bear the sins of many.'

THE FOURTH BOOK OF MACCABEES

It is not only in the idea of atonement that we find thoughts familiar to Christians suggested in Fourth Maccabees. The word 'faith' also occurs, in a distinctively religious sense. For example, in xvi. 22 the Mother, after having spoken of Abraham and Isaac and Daniel and the Three Children, says to her sons, 'And ye also, having the same faith unto God, be not troubled.' Here πίστις must mean religious faith, and in the very next verse the Mother speaks of the young men as 'knowing religion'. In xv. 24 the author speaks of the Mother's own faith: 'she willingly surrendered them through faith in God'; and again in xvii. 2 he describes her as giving 'an example of the nobleness of faith'. In this religious sense πίστις belongs not to Stoic, nor even to Greek thought, but to that devotional side of the Hebrew mind which was to be more fully expressed in Christianity. Here, however, as Maldwyn Hughes says (Ethics of Jewish Apocr. Lit. p. 112), 'It is rather trust in an external Providence than an inner dependence arising from an inward relationship. Faith is not a renewing and life-giving power, but confidence in the providential order.'

On the ethical question the author of Fourth Maccabees relies absolutely on the Mosaic Law. The Inspired Reason, i. e. the Reason guided by the Law, is autocratic over the passions, while depending on the Law for knowledge as to what to do and what to avoid. The author does not want the passions extirpated; he upholds the Stoic virtues, though not the Stoic ἀπαθεία; but he wants the passions to be brought under rigid control, and he shows how this has been and can be done by many examples from the Old Testament, giving as instances Joseph, David, and the rest. He does accept the Stoic doctrine about sin, that all sins are alike in being breaches of the law, when he makes Eleazar say (v. 20), 'for the transgression of the Law, be it in small things or in great, is equally heinous; for in either case equally the Law is despised.' He never doubts that the Law is supreme (v. 16): 'We, O Antiochus, having accepted the Divine Law as the Law of our country, do not believe that any stronger necessity is laid upon us than that of our obedience to the Law.' He is a Jew to the core, and his conclusion is peremptory; for him the Law is the last word.

I will close this section with another quotation from Maldwyn Hughes (op. cit., p. 111): 'The great purpose of the book is to stimulate faithfulness to the Law, and to show that the Greek ideal of virtue can be realized only by Judaism. The writer's heroes are not the Maccabean patriots, to whom he makes no reference, but the martyrs of Maccabean times. His silence as to the former is a significant hint that he did not sympathize with the political ideals which expressed themselves in active resistance to the Gentile powers, but that he preferred the Quietistic method of vindicating the Law, by absolute and unswerving faithfulness to it, at whatever pain and cost. The emergence of political ideals had resulted in the secularization of Judaism.'

§ 10. BIBLIOGRAPHY.

So far as I can learn the text of Fourth Maccabees was first printed in 1526 in the Greek Bible published at Strassburg by Vuolphius (Wolfgang) Cephalaeus, of which there is a good copy in the Bodleian Library. In this edition it appears as Ἰωσήπου εἰς τοὺς Μακκαβαίους βιβλίον. Professor Torrey, whose bibliographical account of the book in the Encyclopaedia Biblica is the fullest I have seen and to whom I am indebted for some of the following information, quotes Freudenthal's statement that this text was based on a very poor MS. Once it was in type, however, it found general acceptance and was frequently reprinted in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, not only in Greek Bibles but also in various editions of Josephus; of the latter we may name the Basle text of 1544, and that of John Lloyd (Luidus), Oxford, 1590. Lloyd says that he collated the Strassburg text with an ancient MS. at New College. This text was also used for the Greek Bible printed at Frankfort in 1597, with the same title of the Book of Josippus on the Maccabees, and it was likewise used by Hudson, Oxford, 1720, and by others who followed him, e. g. Dindorf, 1845-7, and Bekker, 1856, the latter work being a decided advance on its precursors. In 1709, however, a different text, based on the Codex Alexandrinus in the British Museum and edited by J. E. Grabe, was printed at Oxford, and after his death it was printed there again in 1719. It was also used by Apel, Apocr. V. T., 1837. Still later another text, based on Codex A, was edited by F. Field, Oxford, 1859, in beautiful type. Dr. Field, who was of Trinity College, Cambridge, a Tyrrhitt's Hebrew scholar, and one of the O.T. Revisers, pillories the anonymous editor of a certain text which appeared at Oxford in 1817. The culprit had thought to get a neat transcript of the original MS. by rejecting every small-type reading in Grabe and putting back the marginal one. Whereby he not only restored many obvious errors in the Codex, but also repeated, in his ignorance, whatever misprints occurred in Grabe's text; these numbered six in the first chapter alone, 'cetera per totum libellum innumera!' says Dr. Field with crushing severity. Since then the book has appeared in Bagster's Apocrypha, Greek and English, 1882, and in

INTRODUCTION

Fritzsche's Libri Apocr. V. T., in which the commentary is excellent but the text differs considerably from that in Swete's LXX, Cambridge, 1894-9, which gives Codex A with variants of \aleph and V. The present translation is made from Swete's text, the cases where different readings are used being noted at the foot of the page. There is a florid paraphrase in English by that prolific seventeenth-century writer Sir Roger L'Estrange, and there are modern English translations in Cotton, Five Books of the Maccabees, 1832, in Bagster's Apocrypha already mentioned, and in Churton's Uncanonical and Apocryphal Scriptures, 1884. The ancient Syriac version of which I have spoken was published in 1895 by the Cambridge Press from the text of R. L. Bensly; and there is a modern Hebrew translation in Fraenkel, Kethubin acharonim, sive Hagiographa posteriora, Leipzig, 1830. Of Latin translations there are several. Erasmus made a very free paraphrase, as already described in § 8, in the early sixteenth century, which was reprinted by Peter de la Roubiere at Geneva in 1611 with the Greek text. The Bodleian Library has two copies of this edition, in one of which there is a marginal collation of the New College MS. of Fourth Maccabees. This copy is catalogued C. 9. 5. Art., and has opposite the title a marginal note written 'Ἰωσήπου περὶ σώφρονος λογισμοῦ'. MS. in Collegio Novo', while the printed title has 'a Des. Erasmo Rot. in sermonem Latinum παραφραστικῶς translatus'. Lloyd in 1590 brought out at Oxford an edition of the Greek text (in wretched print alas!) collated with the New College MS. and accompanied by a Latin version that seems to be well done; this last may be said also of the Latin version by Fr. Combefin, Paris, 1672, whose work is praised by W. Cave in his Scriptores Eccl., Oxford, 1688-1740, where he attacks Erasmus so severely. The best German translation is that of Deissmann in Kautzsch's Apocr. u. Pseudepigr., Leipzig, 1899, and there are good German commentaries by Grimm, Handbuch zu den Apocryphen, 1857, by Freudenthal, Die Fl. Josephus beigelegte Schrift über die Herrschaft der Vernunft, 1869, by Fritzsche in Libri apocr. V. T., 1871, and by Deissmann (in Kautzsch) as mentioned above. The two last named have been those chiefly used in preparing the present translation. Other German works that may be consulted, according to Professor Torrey, are Zöckler's Apocryphen, 396-402; Gfrörer, Philo und die alexandrinische Theosophie, 2. 172-200 (1831); Dähne, Die jüdisch-alexandrinische Religionsphilosophie, 2. 190-9 (1834); Ewald, GVI (3), 4, 632 ff.; Grätz, MGWJ (1877), pp. 454 ff.; Zeller, Die Philosophie der Griechen (3), 3. 2 (1881), pp. 275-7. Also in English translations we have Schürer's Jewish People in the Time of Jesus Christ, iii. 244 ff., and Ewald's History of Israel, 5. 484 ff. For the ethical and theological side of the book I know nothing so good as Maldwyn Hughes, Ethics of Jewish Apocr. Lit. (date not given). Last but not least I would name Edwyn Bevan's House of Seleucus, 1902, as giving the best account of Antiochus Epiphanes and his attempts forcibly to Hellenize the Jews, and the reader may wisely consult his Jerusalem under the High Priests.

Appended is a comparison of the historical statements of 2 and 4 Macc. abridged from Bensly.

2 MACC. iii. 1—vii. 41.

1. Deep peace. iii. 1.
2. Seleucus, king of Asia, acts as patron of the Temple. iii. 3.
3. Simon at variance with Onias. iii. 4.
4. Tells Apollonius of the Temple treasures. iii. 6.
5. Heliodorus enters the Temple. iii. 14.
6. Under the new king Antiochus, Jason buys the priesthood. iv. 7.
7. Jason builds a gymnasium. iv. 12.
8. Menelaus outbids Jason. iv. 24.
9. On report of Antiochus's death in Egypt Jason surprises Jerusalem. v. 5.
10. Antiochus storms Jerusalem and massacres. v. 11.
11. King sends an Athenian to change the Jewish customs. vi. 1.
12. Philip the Phrygian persecutes in Jerusalem. v. 22.
13. Eleazar, a scribe of ninety, is beaten to death. vi. 23-31.
- 14-19. The brothers are variously tortured. vii.
20. Antiochus touched with compassion for Brother VII promises him riches and friendship in exchange for obedience. vii. 24.
21. The Mother implores Brother VII to have compassion on her pains and care as a mother and to resist. vii. 27-29.
22. The Mother died last. vii. 41.

4 MACC. iii. 20—xvii. 1.

1. Do. iii. 20.
2. Do. iii. 20.
3. Do. iv. 1.
4. Do. iv. 3.
5. Apollonius, do. iv. 8.
6. Do. iv. 17.
7. Do. iv. 20.
8. Not mentioned.
9. On report of Antiochus's death in Egypt the Jews rejoice. iv. 22.
10. Antiochus returns and lays the Jews waste. iv. 23.
11. King decrees death to those who follow their fathers' religion. iv. 23.
12. Antiochus himself orders the Hebrews to be brought before him. v. 2.
13. Eleazar, priest and lawyer, an old man, is beaten and tortured to death with hot irons after a speech addressed to Antiochus. v. 16-vi. 30.
- 14-19. Do. do. (different order). viii to xiv.
20. Do. xii. 2-6.
21. The Mother advises VII in Hebrew in words not given at once. xii. 7.
22. The Mother, certain guards say, flung herself into the frying-pan. xvii. 1.

THE FOURTH BOOK OF MACCABEES

1. 1. Philosophical in the highest degree is the question I propose to discuss, namely whether the Inspired Reason is supreme ruler over the passions; and to the philosophy of it I would seriously

I. 1. Inspired Reason. Philosophy is the power-house of the soul. It covers the motive-power by which our higher nature rules or tries to rule our worse self. Man's first want is meat and drink, and how to supply the want his first problem. The physical side of the problem solves itself; he either finds food, or he starves. But there is also a spiritual side to the problem, and to it Philosophy contains the answer—or answers. Will a man starve rather than sin, sin by stealing food from his brother man, or even by killing and eating him? The hungry wolf solves it one way; he will verily eat his brother wolf. But man, as soon as he rises above the wolf level, and developing a conscience becomes man, finds himself faced with this most serious problem. It may seem remote to us now living in comfort and protected by the police; but it is still quite close up with every exploring expedition, polar or tropical, that takes its chances in the unknown. Will the individual man, when tempted, yield to temptation or resist it? From the time of the flint-weaponed hunters down to the present day the question has been answered—both in the way of the man with a conscience, the higher man, and the way of the man with the heart of a wolf, the lower man. But what is the power that enables the higher type to abstain not only from cannibalism but also, as life grows more complex, from all kinds of wrong? The answer to that question is duty, the one short word that has a hundred names in a hundred lands. Where a man feels the call of duty and can also trust that his fellows feel it, religion, the essence of religion at any rate, the binding of soul to soul, exists, and there in truth is the beginning of human society. Where the call of duty is not felt, life becomes inhuman; we revert to the conditions of the wolf-pack. Fourth Maccabees is the attempt of an orthodox Jew, one well skilled in Greek philosophy, to show how men may rise above the wolf-pack level and be true to their duty even under the last extremity of torture. For even though a man may recognize his duty, yet through weakness of will he may fail to respond. The driving power, that which out of weakness makes him strong to respond, is the mainspring of the higher life, and that is why philosophy, which covers all man's attempts to find and to explain the source of the driving power, may be called the power-house of the soul.

The name which the author of the book here takes to express the working action of duty in the human mind is λογισμός. In its ordinary acceptation λογισμός was the word used for common arithmetic, but here it stands for the human reason, or rather the rational will, which according to Epicurus disposes of all the greatest and most important matters of life (Diog. Laert. 10. 44), and here may be suitably expressed as the personified Reason with a capital R. It was a conveniently definite term for the author of Fourth Maccabees to adopt, seeing that λόγος both in Greek and in Jewish philosophy had been already consecrated to a different use. Λόγος was the Word. According to Lactantius (de Vera. Sap. c. 9) 'Zeno rerum naturae dispositorem atque artificem universitatis λόγον praedicat, quem et fatum et necessitatem rerum et deum et animum Iovis nuncupat'. So in Ps. xxxiii. 6 we have 'By the Word of the Lord were the heavens made'. In hundreds of passages Jew and Greek alike declare the power of the Word, the λόγος, the 'memra'. To come down from the Psalmist and Zeno to the first century A. D., in Alexandria, the probable date and place of origin of Fourth Maccabees, we find the Jewish philosopher Philo actually taking over from the Stoics the doctrine that the λόγος is the power of God or the active Divine intelligence in general. With such powerful associations clinging to λόγος it was natural for the author to choose λογισμός for Reason, and the more so that the Stoics had already used it in that sense. There is extant an interesting little dialogue of Cleanthes, given by Pearson, Fragm. Zeno and Cleanthes, p. 306, in which the two speakers are λογισμός and Θυμός.

Λογισμός. τί ποτ' εἰσθ' ὅτι βούλει, θυμέ; τοῦτό μοι φράσον.

Θυμός. ἔχειν, λογισμέ, πᾶν ὃ βούλομαι ποιεῖν.

Λογισμός. ναὶ βασιλικόν γε· πλὴν ὅμως εἶπον πάλιν.

Θυμός. ὦν ἂν ἐπιθυμῶ ταῦθ' ὅπως γενήσεται.

Reason. What on earth do you want, my good animal? Tell me that.

Animal Nature. I want, O Reason, to be able to do everything I want.

Reason. A royal appetite indeed; but would you say that again.

Animal Nature. I want whatever I desire to come to pass.

The contrast between our higher and our lower self could hardly be better put.

It has happened to some young men entering the study of philosophy to feel a sudden qualm lest they were being made fools of by a set of bookworms calling themselves philosophers, weaklings constitutionally unable to enter into the feelings of a healthy natural man. Such may take comfort in the recollection that the writer of this little dialogue, Cleanthes, who after Zeno was the great prophet of the Stoics, in his unconverted days had been a pugilist, and that no man ever stood up in the ring but had a working knowledge of our animal nature and the need of keeping one's head in spite of its promptings. But though the Stoic ex-pugilist well knew the need for the λογισμός to dominate the θυμός we must remember that the λογισμός of Fourth Maccabees is not precisely the same thing as the Reason of Greek philosophy, Epicurean or Stoic. For the λογισμός of the Jewish writer is qualified by the adjective εὐσεβής, a word which in the mouth of a Hellenistic Jew signifies a strict adherence to the Law of Moses, that is to say the Law of God. εὐσεβής, in short, was the technical word used in the Diaspora to describe the Chasidim, the 'pious' or 'godly' party among the Jews, rigorous precisians whose pride it was to follow the Law in all things. With us 'orthodox' has something of the same implication, though it applies in our own days to faith rather than to works. The 'Saints' of Cromwell 'doing the work of the Lord faithfully' perhaps come nearer the idea; and indeed their inspiration was largely drawn from the Old Testament. Thus the word εὐσεβής means directly inspired by God as He

2 entreat your earnest attention. For not only is the subject generally necessary as a branch of 3 knowledge, but it includes the praise of the greatest of virtues, whereby I mean self-control. That 4 is to say, if Reason is proved to control the passions adverse to temperance, gluttony and lust, it is also clearly shown to be lord over the passions, like malevolence, opposed to justice, and over those opposed to manliness, namely rage and pain and fear.

5 But, some may ask, if the Reason is master of the passions, why does it not control forgetfulness 6 and ignorance? their object being to cast ridicule. The answer is that Reason is not master over defects inhering in the mind itself, but over the passions or moral defects that are adverse to justice and manliness and temperance and judgement; and its action in their case is not to extirpate the passions, but to enable us to resist them successfully.

7 I could bring before you many examples, drawn from various sources, where Reason has proved 8 itself master over the passions, but the best instance by far that I can give is the noble conduct of 9 those who died for the sake of virtue, Eleazar, and the Seven Brethren and the Mother. For these all by their contempt of pains, yea, even unto death, proved that Reason rises superior to the 10 passions. I might enlarge here in praise of their virtues, they, the men with the Mother, dying on this day we celebrate for the love of moral beauty and goodness, but rather would I felicitate them 11 on the honours they have attained. For the admiration felt for their courage and endurance, not only by the world at large but by their very executioners, made them the authors of the downfall of the tyranny under which our nation lay, they defeating the tyrant by their endurance, so that 12 through them was their country purified. But I shall presently take opportunity to discuss this, after we have begun with the general theory, as I am in the habit of doing, and I will then proceed to their story, giving glory to the all-wise God.

14 Our enquiry, then, is whether the Reason is supreme master over the passions. But we must define just what the Reason is and what passion is, and how many forms of passion there are, and 15 whether the Reason is supreme over all of them. Reason I take to be the mind preferring with is revealed to the soul of the 'righteous man' in the Book of Moses, and I therefore translate εὐσεβῆς λογισμός by 'The Inspired Reason', that is to say the Reason or Rational Will obeying the guidance of the Law. When so guided, the λογισμός becomes our higher self, and includes not only reason, but the moral sense and that noblest form of courage which consists in perfect self-sacrifice for the sake of our ideal. With regard to εὐσεβῆς I have only used 'Inspired' for it when thus connected with λογισμός. Elsewhere it is generally represented by 'righteous', which must be taken in the meaning it usually bears in the Old Testament of 'following the Law' in the Jewish sense. Similarly εὐσεβεία is either 'righteousness' or 'religion', according to the context, with the same definitely limited connotation of orthodox Judaism.

2. the ... virtues. The author takes his classification of the four cardinal virtues from the Stoics, who got them from Plato. The four are φρόνησις, δικαιοσύνη, ἀνδρεία, σωφροσύνη, and the greatest of these is φρόνησις, a puzzling word to render adequately. Diogenes Laertius tells us that Apollonphanes held φρόνησις to include the whole of virtue, and Plutarch says (Sto. Rep. vii. 2) that Zeno defined the cardinal virtues as follows: φρόνησις, he held, as a general term included the other three; in things demanding endurance or vigorous action, it was courage; in things demanding fairness, it was justice; in things demanding a choice, it was temperance. It is not easy to find English words that will correspond exactly to these terms, though courage and justice may pass, and so indeed may temperance, even if the idea it brings to our minds is somewhat limited by its modern use for abstinence from alcohol. But φρόνησις, which can sometimes be expressed by self-control, covers more than that. It is prudence, but that hardly expresses the active side of it enough; it is wisdom, but more in its practical than in its intellectual aspect; it is glorified common sense, but that, though expressive, hardly suggests a sufficiently lofty ideal. Judgement is nearer to it, judgement in the sense in which we have it in the collect where we ask to be given 'a right judgement in all things'. But the selected word for φρόνησις must be varied to suit the context.

3. the passions, πάθη. The word includes the emotions and affections as well as what we call the lower self. For the Stoic philosophers' division of the πάθη see i. 20.

5. ignorance. Zeno, according to Stobaeus, classed some vices as ἄγνοιαί, and there was a Stoic dogma, πάντα ἄγνοεὶ ὁ φαῦλος. The Stoics used the terms σπουδαῖος and φαῦλος to distinguish between two classes, the initiated and the uninitiated in philosophy; much as we might talk of saints and sinners, converted and unconverted, 'elect' and 'worldly'. I doubt, however, if the Stoic ἄγνοιαί were quite what is meant by ἄγνοια here. Deissmann thinks that this and the following verse have been bodily transposed here from ii. 24, iii. 1, where their connexion is clearer. But the mere fact that the sentences are repeated in almost the same words need hardly trouble us: the author of Fourth Maccabees does not mind repeating himself, as will be abundantly evident before the reader reaches the end of the book; and the author does get a sort of antithesis between the two passages. Here he shows us sceptics laughing at Stoicism (compare 'Coxcombs vanquish Berkeley by a grin'), but in iii. 1 it is he who laughs at the sceptics.

10. this day we celebrate, τοῦτον τὸν καιρὸν. Apparently the Chanukah festival, for which see § 7 ad finem. Even if this treatise is not a synagogue sermon (see § 1) it may very well have been given as a lecture on the anniversary of the martyrs. The words ὅπερ ἔγωγα ποιεῖν, two verses lower down, clearly imply that the author is speaking to an audience that he had often addressed before.

11. their country purified. The spirit roused by the martyrs led to the rising headed by Judas Maccabaeus and his brethren, and so was the effectual cause of the Temple being purified and its service re-established. καθαρισθῆναι refers not only to the cleansing of the Jews from the national sin of apostasy, but to the cleansing of the Temple itself after Zeus Olympius had been worshipped there and swine offered upon the altar.

12. giving glory, δόξαν διδοῦς. Perhaps the one Hebraism in the whole book.

16 clear deliberation the life of wisdom. Wisdom I take to be the knowledge of things, divine and 17 human, and of their causes. This I take to be the culture acquired under the Law, through which we learn with due reverence the things of God and for our worldly profit the things of man.

18 Now wisdom is manifested under the forms of judgement and justice, and courage, and temper-
19 ance. But judgement or self-control is the one that dominates them all, for through it, in truth, 20 Reason asserts its authority over the passions. But of the passions there are two comprehensive sources, namely, pleasure and pain, and either belongs essentially also to the soul as well as to the 21 body. And with respect both to pleasure and pain there are many cases where the passions have 22, 23 certain sequences. Thus while desire goes before pleasure, satisfaction follows after, and while fear 24 goes before pain, after pain comes sorrow. Anger, again, if a man will retrace the course of his 25 feelings, is a passion in which are blended both pleasure and pain. Under pleasure, also, comes 26 that moral debasement which exhibits the widest variety of the passions. It manifests itself in 27 the soul as ostentation, and covetousness, and vain-glory, and contentiousness, and backbiting.
and in the body as eating of strange meat, and gluttony, and gormandizing in secret.

28 Now pleasure and pain being as it were two trees, growing from body and soul, many offshoots of 29 these passions sprout up; and each man's Reason as master-gardener, weeding and pruning and binding up, and turning on the water and directing it hither and thither, brings the thicket of 30 dispositions and passions under domestication. For while Reason is the guide of the virtues it is master of the passions.

Observe, now, in the first place, that Reason becomes supreme over the passions in virtue of the 31, 32 inhibitory action of temperance. Temperance, I take it, is the repression of the desires; but of the 33 desires some are mental and some physical, and both kinds are clearly controlled by Reason; when we are tempted towards forbidden meats, how do we come to relinquish the pleasures to be derived from them? Is it not that Reason has power to repress the appetites? In my opinion it is so.
34 Accordingly when we feel a desire to eat water-animals and birds and beasts and meats of every 35 description forbidden to us under the Law, we abstain through the predominance of Reason. For the propensions of our appetites are checked and inhibited by the temperate mind, and all the movements of the body obey the bridle of Reason.

15. ορθου λογου Ν V

σοφιας βιον Ν σοφον βιον V

35. φιμουται Ν V

15. clear deliberation. Ὀρθός λόγος, which here I render by 'clear deliberation', is a regular philosophic term. Stobaeus (Ecl. ii. 192) gives as the Stoic dogma the statement that ὁ νόμος was σπουδαίος, i. e. on the side of the 'elect', seeing that it is λόγος ὀρθός, 'right reason', enjoining what should be done and forbidding what should not be done; but here the Jew parts company. For him νόμος means neither the man-made law of any Greek state, nor the κοινός νόμος, the Universal Law of the philosophers; but the Law of Moses which is the Law of his God. The Jewish moralist may rejoice in the acute intellectual analysis of the Greek mind; but no Greek standard of religious duty for him! He will traffic willingly with the Greek for intellectual wares, but when it comes to the moral sense he will pray in another temple.

16. the knowledge of things. Plutarch in Plac. Phil. i. 1 has this, οἱ μὲν οὖν Στωικοὶ ἔφασαν τὴν μὲν σοφίαν εἶναι θείων τε καὶ ἀνθρωπίνων ἐπιστήμην, the exact phrase we have here with the exception of γνώσις for ἐπιστήμη.

20. the passions. With this analysis of the πάθη compare Stobaeus, Eth. ii. [166], where he explains the Stoic position:—πρῶτα δ' εἶναι τῶ γένει ταῦτα τὰ τέσσαρα, ἐπιθυμίαν φόβον λύπην ἡδονήν. ἐπιθυμίαν μὲν οὖν καὶ φόβον προηγείσθαι, τὴν μὲν πρὸς τὸ φαινόμενον ἀγαθόν, τὴν δὲ πρὸς τὸ φαινόμενον κακόν. ἐπιγίγνεσθαι δὲ τοῦτοις ἡδονήν καὶ λύπην, ἡδονήν μὲν ὅταν τυγχάνωμεν ὧν ἐπιθυμοῦμεν ἢ ἐκφύγωμεν ἃ ἐφοβούμεθα, λύπην δὲ ὅταν ἀποτυγχάνωμεν ὧν ἐπιθυμοῦμεν ἢ περιπέσωμεν οἷς ἐφοβούμεθα. Similarly Diogenes Laertius says (vii. 110) τῶν δὲ παθῶν τὰ ἀνωτάτω, καθά φησιν Ἐκάτων ἐν τῷ δευτέρῳ περὶ παθῶν καὶ Ζήνων ἐν τῷ περὶ παθῶν, εἶναι γένη τέτταρα, λύπην, φόβον, ἐπιθυμίαν, ἡδονήν.

With regard to ἀκολουθία compare this passage from Huxley, which will be found in the peroration of his work on Hume and Berkeley, Collected Essays, vi. 318: 'Our sensations, our pleasures, our pains, and the relations of these, make up the sum total of the elements of positive unquestionable knowledge. We call a large section of these and their relations matter and motion; the rest we term mind and thinking; and experience shows that there is a certain constant order of succession between some of the former and some of the latter.' The words underlined exactly express ἀκολουθία. Our author makes the πάθη cover the whole range of the emotions and affections, and includes under this head our weaknesses and moral defects generally. Among us the word passion generally has a more limited connotation. Grimm says that the Stoic view was that the πάθη are bad in themselves and belong to the λόγος πονηρός, but that the author of Fourth Maccabees holds that the πάθη are part of human nature implanted by the Creator, and as such require to be controlled but not extirpated.

27. gormandizing. Compare with this Job xxxi. 17 εἰ δὲ καὶ τὸν ψωμόν μου ἔφαιγον μόνος καὶ οὐχὶ ὀρφανῶ μετέδωκα.

Aristophanes in the Wasps, 923, has the comic superlative μονοφαγίστατος—'the very greedydoggest chap of all.'

By the transposition of μ and ν the scribe in some MSS. has made the word into νομόφαγος, which should mean an eater of laws (swallower of formulae!) if it means anything—a nonsensical error which was corrected by Grabe only to be foolishly restored to the text of the 1817 edition by a certain careless man whom Dr. Field holds up to scorn.

29. turning on the water. ἐπάρδων is leading the water on from the acequia madre or main irrigating ditch; the work is well described in the First Georgic, 108 'Ecce supercilio clivosi tramitis undam Elicit', &c. μεταχέων is turning the water from one water-furrow to another so as to irrigate the separate squares or plots. I can find no authority for the meaning 'transplanting' which has been given to it, though it makes good enough sense.

1 And what is there to be surprised at if the natural desire of the soul to enjoy the fruition of beauty
2 is quenched? This, certainly, is why we praise the virtuous Joseph, because by his Reason, with a 3 mental effort, he checked the carnal impulse. For he, a young man at the age when physical desire 4 is strong, by his Reason quenched the impulse of his passions. And Reason is proved to subdue the 5 impulse not only of sexual desire, but of all sorts of covetings. For the Law says, 'Thou shalt not 6 covet thy neighbour's wife, nor anything that is thy neighbour's.' Verily, when the Law orders us not to covet, it should, I think, confirm strongly the argument that the Reason is capable of controlling covetous desires, even as it does the passions that militate against justice.

7 How else can a man, naturally gormandizing and greedy and drunken, be taught to change his 8 nature, if the Reason be not manifestly the master of the passions? Certainly, as soon as a man orders his life according to the Law, if he is miserly he acts contrary to his nature, and lends money 9 to the needy without interest, and at the seventh-year periods cancels the debt. And if he is par-simonious, he is overruled by the Law through the action of Reason, and refrains from gleaning his stubbles or picking the last grapes from his vineyards.

And with regard to all the rest we can recognize that Reason is in the position of master over 10 the passions or affections. For the Law ranks above affection for parents, so that a man may not 11 for their sakes surrender his virtue, and it overrides love for a wife, so that if she transgress a man 12 should rebuke her, and it governs love for children, so that if they are naughty a man should punish them, and it controls the claims of friendship, so that a man should reprove his friends if they do 13 evil. And do not think it a paradoxical thing when Reason through the Law is able to overcome 14 even hatred, so that a man refrains from cutting down the enemy's orchards, and protects the property of the enemy from the spoilers, and gathers up their goods that have been scattered.

15 And the rule of Reason is likewise proved to extend through the more aggressive passions or 16 vices, ambition, vanity, ostentation, pride, and backbiting. For the temperate mind repels all these 17 debased passions, even as it does anger, for it conquers even this. Yea, Moses when he was angered against Dathan and Abiram did not give free course to his wrath, but governed his anger by his 18 Reason. For the temperate mind is able, as I said, to win the victory over the passions, modifying 19 some, while crushing others absolutely. Why else did our wise father Jacob blame the houses of Simeon and Levi for their unreasoning slaughter of the tribe of the Shechemites, saying, 'Ac-20 cursed be their anger!' For had not Reason possessed the power to restrain their anger he would 21 not have spoken thus. For in the day when God created man, he implanted in him his passions 22 and inclinations, and also, at the very same time, set the mind on a throne amidst the senses to be 23 his sacred guide in all things; and to the mind he gave the Law, by the which if a man order himself, he shall reign over a kingdom that is temperate, and just, and virtuous, and brave.

24 Well then, some one may ask, if Reason is master of the passions why is it not master of forgetfulness and ignorance? But the argument is supremely ridiculous. For Reason is not shown to be 2 master over passions or defects in itself, but over those of the body. For example, none of you is able to extirpate our natural desire, but the Reason can enable him to escape being made a slave by 3 desire. None of you is able to extirpate anger from the soul, but it is possible for the Reason to 4 come to his aid against anger. None of you can extirpate a malevolent disposition, but Reason can 5 be his powerful ally against being swayed by malevolence. Reason is not the extirpator of the passions, but their antagonist.

II. 8. ἐνστασῶν & V

III. 3. + τον λογισμον & V

II. 8. at the seventh-year periods. The reading ἐντάσσω, which is that of A, and accordingly is retained by Swete, is supported by the Syriac version, which Bensly renders as follows: 'So he reckoneth by the weeks and forgiveth part of that which is due to him.' But there is no MS. authority in the Greek for the insertion of the words 'part of', without which ἐντάσσω yields very poor sense. And even if we admit 'part of', how can reckoning by the weeks be supposed to reduce the debt? The Strassburg Bible of 1526 has the more intelligible reading ἐνστασῶν, which must mean the seventh-year period of release. This reading is followed by Lloyd (1590) and many others. Lloyd translated the passage thus: 'Cum primum igitur quis (? quisquis) ad Legis praescriptum vivit, si avaro fuerit ac sordido ingenio, suis vim adhibere moribus cogitur, ut tenuioribus sine foenore mutuet; atque imminentibus iam septimanis mutuum amittat.' And Lloyd is followed by Hudson (1720), who also reads ἐνστασῶν and translates 'ut imminentibus iam septimanis mutuum amittat'. The version of Deissmann, who likewise reads ἐνστασῶν, runs, 'He lends to the needy without interest, although (in the future) when the seventh year comes he even loses the capital he has lent.' This reading ἐνστασῶν is also supported by the fact that it does certainly correspond very closely with the Law as stated in Deut. xv. 9: Beware that there be not a thought in thy wicked heart, saying, The seventh year, the year of release, is at hand; and thine eye be evil against thy poor brother, and thou givest him nought.'

22. his sacred guide. As an instance of the Stoic terminology of this book I give the following passage from A. C. Pearson's Fragments of Zeno and Cleanthes, p. 142, where he quotes from Nemes. de Nat. Hom., p. 96 Ζήνων δὲ ὁ Στωικὸς ὀκταμερῆ φησιν εἶναι τὴν ψυχὴν, διαιρῶν αὐτὴν εἰς τε τὸ ἡγεμονικὸν καὶ εἰς τὰς πέντε αἰσθήσεις καὶ εἰς τὸ φωνητικὸν καὶ τὸ σπερματικόν. And Diog. Laert. vii. 52 has this: αἰσθησις δὲ λέγεται κατὰ τοὺς Στωικοὺς τὸ τ' ἀφ' ἡγεμονικοῦ πνεῦμα ἐπὶ τὰς αἰσθήσεις διήκον . . . καὶ ἡ περὶ τὰ αἰσθητήρια κατασκευή.

6. 7 The case of the thirst of King David may serve at least to make this clearer. For when David had fought the live-long day against the Philistines, and by the help of our country's warriors had 8 slain many of them, he came at eventide, all fordone with sweat and toil, to the royal tent, around 9 which was encamped the whole army of our ancestors. So all the host fell to their evening meal; 10 but the king, being consumed with an intense thirst, though he had abundance of water, was 11 unable to slake it. Instead, an irrational desire for the water that was in the possession of the 12 enemy with growing intensity burned him up and unmanned and consumed him. Then when his body-guard murmured against the craving of the king, two youths, mighty warriors, ashamed that their king should lack his desire, put on all their armour, and took a water-vessel, and scaled the 13 enemy's ramparts; and stealing undetected past the guards at the gate, they searched through 14 all the enemy's camp. And they bravely found the spring, and drew from it a draught for the 15 king. But David, though still burning with the thirst, considered that such a draught, reckoned 16 as equivalent to blood, was a grievous danger to his soul. Therefore, opposing his Reason to his 17 desire, he poured out the water as an offering to God. For the temperate mind is able to conquer 18 the dictates of the passions, and to quench the fires of desire, and to wrestle victoriously with the pangs of our bodies though they be exceeding strong, and by the moral beauty and goodness 19 of Reason to defy with scorn all the domination of the passions. And now the occasion calls us to set forth the story of the self-controlled Reason.

20 At a time when our fathers enjoyed great peace through the due observance of the Law, and were in happy case, so that Seleucus Nicanor, the king of Asia, sanctioned the tax for the temple-service, 21 and recognized our polity, precisely then, certain men, acting factiously against the general concord, 4 1 involved us in many and various calamities. Onias, a man of the highest character, being then high priest and having the office for his life, a certain Simon raised a faction against him, but since despite every kind of slander he failed to injure him on account of the people, he fled abroad with intent to betray his country.

2, 3 So he came to Apollonius, the governor of Syria and Phoenicia and Cilicia, and said, 'Being loyal to the king, I am here to inform you that in the treasuries of Jerusalem are stored many thousands of private deposits, not belonging to the temple account, and rightfully the property of King Seleucus.'

4 Apollonius, having made inquiry into the details of the matter, praised Simon for his loyal service to the king, and hastening to the court of Seleucus, disclosed to him the valuable treasure; 5 then, after receiving authority to deal with the matter, he promptly marched into our country, 6 accompanied by the accursed Simon and a very powerful army, and announced that he was there 7 by the king's command to take possession of the private deposits in the treasury. Our people were deeply angered by this announcement, and protested strongly, considering it an outrageous thing for those who had entrusted their deposits to the temple treasury to be robbed of them, and 8 they threw all possible obstacles in his way. Apollonius, however, with threats, made his way into 9 the temple. Then the priests in the temple and the women and children besought God to come to 10 the rescue of his Holy Place that was being violated; and when Apollonius with his armed host marched in to seize the moneys, there appeared from heaven angels, riding upon horses, with lightning

14. εγεμισαν is supported by the Syriac

18. τη καλοκαγαθια NV

IV. 8. απειλων N

9. του ιερου NV

12. two youths. The author's story of David's thirst and the water that he poured out like blood upon the ground differs materially from that told in 2 Sam. xxiii. 16 ff. and 1 Chron. xi. 11. Here the feat is performed by two young soldiers who scour the whole Philistine camp (which lies in a place whose name is not given) in order to find the spring. In the O.T. the heroes are three chiefs of David's mighty men, apparently Jashobeam, Eleazar, and Shammah, though there is some uncertainty about the names. The action takes place at Bethlehem and the well is close to the gate, neither have they any special difficulty in finding it. The author does not use, perhaps he even avoids, the actual phraseology of the LXX, except only that in reference to David's action he employs the words ἐπιθυμία and ἔσπεισεν. Either his Bible differed materially from ours, or else he allowed himself considerable latitude in handling the incident. The latter seems probable, and this should be borne in mind when considering the various points on which he differs from the writer of 2 Maccabees.

20. Seleucus Nicanor. τὸν Νικάνορα. Perhaps we should here read with V τὸν Νικάνορος, 'the descendant of Nicanor', he being the one of Alexander's generals who founded the Seleucid dynasty. The king who is here meant was his sixth successor, Seleucus IV (Philopator), son of Antiochus III (the Great), and elder brother of his own successor Antiochus IV (Epiphanes). He reigned first as associated with his father and shared his defeat by Rome, and after 187 B.C. he reigned as sole king till he was murdered by Heliodorus in 176-5. Seleucus IV wasted little money in wars and left a full treasury. The words χρήματα κτλ. may mean that he assigned part of the state revenues to the Temple service, or that he sanctioned the exaction of the regular Temple tax, the annual half-shekel which the Jews, not in Palestine only but in all parts, were expected to pay to the priests. The authority for this tax was derived from Moses' Law, Exod. xxx. 12, 2 Chron. xxiv. 6. After the Captivity it was reduced to a third, in consequence of the rise in values and the poverty of the people; but it was raised again to half a shekel by Simon the Maccabee. The expression τὴν πολιτείαν ἀποδέχασθαι indicates that the king recognized the Jewish form of government which prevailed after the Return, that is to say, a theocracy under which the high-priest was also the chief ruler of the state.

11 flashing from their arms, and cast great fear and trembling upon them. And Apollonius fell down 12 half-dead in the Court of the Gentiles, and stretched out his hands to heaven, and with tears he 13 entreated the Hebrews that they would make intercession for him and stay the wrath of the heavenly 14 host. For he said that he had sinned and was worthy even of death, and that if he were given his 15 life he would laud to all men the blessedness of the Holy Place. Moved by these words, Onias, the 16 high-priest, although most scrupulous in other cases, made intercession for him lest King Seleucus
 17 should possibly think that Apollonius had been overthrown by a human device and not by divine 18 justice. Apollonius, accordingly, after his astonishing deliverance departed to report to the king the 19 things that had befallen him. But Seleucus dying, his successor on the throne was his son Antiochus 20 Epiphanes, an overweening terrible man; who dismissed Onias from his sacred office, and made his 21 brother Jason high-priest instead, the condition being that in return for the appointment Jason should 22 pay him three thousand six hundred and sixty talents yearly. So he appointed Jason high-priest and 23 made him chief ruler over the people. And he (Jason) introduced to our people a new way of life
 24 and a new constitution in utter defiance of the Law; so that not only did he lay out a gymnasium 25 on the Mount of our fathers, but he actually abolished the service of the temple. Wherefore the 26 divine justice was kindled to anger and brought Antiochus himself as an enemy against us. For when he was carrying on war with Ptolemy in Egypt and heard that the people of Jerusalem had rejoiced exceedingly over a report of his death, he immediately marched back against them. And when he had plundered the city he made a decree denouncing the penalty of death upon any who should be seen to live after the Law of our fathers. But he found all his decrees of no avail to break down the constancy of our people to the Law, and he beheld all his threats and penalties utterly despised, so that even women for circumcising their sons, though they knew beforehand what would be their fate, were flung, together with their offspring, headlong from the rocks. When therefore his decrees continued to be contemned by the mass of the people, he personally tried to force by tortures each man separately to eat unclean meats and thus abjure the Jewish religion.

5 1 Accordingly, the tyrant Antiochus, accompanied by his councillors, sat in judgement on a certain
 2 high place with his troops drawn up around him in full armour, and he ordered his guards to drag

19. ἐξεδιτησεν N V Syr.

21. επολεμωσεν

24. ευνομιαν N V Syr.

IV. 13. most scrupulous. I have followed Grimm's rendering, but it here may be noted that εὐλάβεια, caution, is the regular philosophical term for the useful side of the passion which in excess becomes fear. If we take it in the latter sense, ἄλλως εὐλαβηθεὶς would mean that Onias was so much alarmed as to the possible effect on King Seleucus that on this occasion he swallowed his repugnance and offered the prayer. In 2 Macc., where the story is told at much greater length, and where the offender is called Heliodorus not Apollonius, Onias not only prays but also offers sacrifice 'as an atonement for the man'. Poor Onias seems to have been a lover of peace, nevertheless he was, after his retirement, murdered at Antioch by Menelaus, the usurping high-priest who outbid and ousted Jason.

15. his son, υἱός. An extraordinary mistake for brother, but the MSS. leave no doubt that the author made it. Antiochus Epiphanes was a curious mixture. Like the rest of the Seleucid House he was of mixed Persian and Macedonian blood, and his education, half Greek, half Roman, was no less mixed, for he spent his childhood at the Graeco-Syrian court, and his boyhood at Rome, where he became a hostage for his father on his defeat. Released after his father's death, he played as a young man at being a citizen and an elected official of Athens, keeping his eye all the time on the Syrian throne. Then came the murder of his brother Seleucus by Heliodorus, and Antiochus presently made his bid for the kingdom and won. Thenceforth he reigned with a sort of insane energy, acting as the militant missionary of Hellenism in the East, and backing up his mission with wayward freakishness. While planting gorgeous new temples and new Antiochs everywhere, he took advantage of his audacious title of Θεὸς Ἐπιφανής, the Manifest God, to assert his right to plunder remorselessly the already existing temples in order that their treasures might support his extravagances. His looting of the Temple at Jerusalem was but one instance out of many, and it was the failure of his attempt on the shrine of Ishtar at Elymais that brought about his doom.

22. war with Ptolemy. Antiochus made several campaigns against Ptolemy and succeeded in conquering the whole of Egypt with the single exception of Alexandria, to which he actually laid siege. But he had reckoned without Rome, who disapproved of his ambitions, and having finished the Macedonian war had got her hands free at last. Antiochus was watching the siege when he saw a small party of Romans who had just landed approaching him. He recognized their leader, a consular, Pompilius Laenas, whom he had known as a boy in Rome, and held out his hand in greeting. Pompilius took no notice of the offered hand, but presented a note from the senate desiring Antiochus to quit Egypt. The Syrian king looked at it, and said lightly, 'I will consider it with my friends.' Pompilius held in his hand a vine-stick, a thing as characteristic of a Roman officer as the sjambok was of a Boer commander. He drew a circle in the sand with it round the king. 'Consider there,' he said. Antiochus paused, hesitated, and then, still inside the circle, said, 'The senate shall be obeyed.' His hand was instantly grasped by Pompilius, and they were the best of friends. Having accepted the situation Antiochus withdrew his armies from Egypt, but being enraged with the Jews, as related in the text, he relieved his feelings by the sack of Jerusalem and the persecution of the Jews.

V. 1. a certain high place. Tradition varies as to the scene of the martyrdoms. In Maccabees there is nothing to indicate that they took place anywhere except at Jerusalem. The early Church, however, held the place to have been Antioch, and a basilica was erected there in the martyrs' honour. For the transfer of the relics from Antioch to Milan and Cologne, see § 8. The relics are said now to be in Rome.

there every single man of the Hebrews and compel them to eat swine's flesh and things offered to 3 idols; but if any should refuse to defile themselves with the unclean things, they were to be tortured 4 and put to death. And when many had been taken by force, one man first from among the company was brought before Antiochus, a Hebrew whose name was Eleazar, a priest by birth, trained in knowledge of the law, a man advanced in years and well known to many of the tyrant's court for his philosophy.

5 And Antiochus, looking on him, said:

6 'Before I allow the tortures to begin for you, O venerable man, I would give you this counsel, that you should eat of the flesh of the swine and save your life; for I respect your age and your grey hairs, although to have worn them so long a time, and still to cling to the Jewish religion, makes me 7 think you no philosopher. For most excellent is the meat of this animal which Nature has graciously
8 bestowed upon us, and why should you abominate it? Truly it is folly not to enjoy innocent 9 pleasures, and it is wrong to reject Nature's favours. But it will be still greater folly, I think, on your part if with idle vapouring about truth you shall proceed to defy even me to your own punish-10, 11 ment. Will you not awake from your preposterous philosophy? Will you not fling aside the nonsense of your calculations and, adopting another frame of mind befitting your mature years, learn the 12 true philosophy of expediency, and bow to my charitable counsel, and have pity on your own 13 venerable age? For consider this, too, that even if there be some Power whose eye is upon this religion of yours, he will always pardon you for a transgression done under compulsion.'

14 Thus urged by the tyrant to the unlawful eating of unclean meat, Eleazar asked permission to 15 speak; and receiving it, he began his speech before the court as follows:

16 'We, O Antiochus, having accepted the Divine Law as the Law of our country, do not believe any stronger necessity is laid upon us than that of our obedience to the Law.

17, 18 'Therefore we do surely deem it right not in any way whatsoever to transgress the Law. And yet, were our Law, as you suggest, not truly divine, while we vainly believed it to be divine, not even so 19 would it be right for us to destroy our reputation for piety. Think it not, then, a small sin for us
20 to eat the unclean thing, for the transgression of the Law, be it in small things or in great, is equally 21, 22 heinous; for in either case equally the Law is despised. And you scoff at our philosophy, as 23 if under it we were living in a manner contrary to reason. Not so, for the Law teaches us self-control, so that we are masters of all our pleasures and desires and are thoroughly trained in manli-24 ness so as to endure all pain with readiness; and it teaches justice, so that with all our various dispositions we act fairly, and it teaches righteousness, so that with due reverence we worship only the 25 God who is. Therefore do we eat no unclean meat; for believing our Law to be given by God, we know

V. 4. φιλοσοφίαν V

11. των λογισμων N

24. εκδιδασκει N

4. advanced in years. According to 2 Macc. he was ninety. Prof. Kraus in the Jewish Encyclopaedia has this interesting note on him: 'Cardinal Rampolla's investigations have proved the historical character of the account despite the fact that while the seven martyrs are mentioned in rabbinical legend, Eleazar seems to be unknown to the Rabbis (Martyre et Sépulture des Macchabées, Bruges, 1900). Grätz had already declared it to be substantially true (Geschichte, 2nd ed., ii. 317). Hertzfeld's supposition (Geschichte des Volkes Israel, ii. 75) that Eleazar is identical with Eleazar ben Harsom is untenable.'

5. And Antiochus... said. The author adopts the usual ancient practice of making up speeches for his characters, a practice too common to call for comment. In some cases the speeches must have been invented from beginning to end; in others they doubtless contain actual phrases worked into their text which had been used by the speaker in whose mouth they are put. Such interweavings of truth and fiction are well known as occurring, to take the most obvious case, in Shakespeare's historical plays; and, to come down to our own day, I have seen in America a popular biography of so great a man as Abraham Lincoln which purported to report verbatim long conversations of his, suitable indeed to the circumstances but unquestionably invented. It is hard to be sure that even the shortest phrase is truly recorded in history. I think I have seen four or five different accounts both in Greek and Latin of the scene outside Alexandria between Antiochus and Pompilius Laenas (see on iv. 22, note), where scarcely a dozen words were spoken between the two men, but I cannot remember that any two of the reports can be said to coincide, or even to approach it. So at Waterloo; what was the word that Cambronne used? or did the Duke ever say, 'Up, guards, and at them,' or anything of the sort? We must make the best of our history as we have it.

20. equally heinous. This is a well-known doctrine of the Stoics. Stobaeus (Eth. ii. 218) says ἴσα τε πάντα λέγουσιν εἶναι τὰ ἀμαρτήματα, οὐκ ἔτι δ' ὁμοία. And he goes on to explain how a lie is always a lie καὶ ἀμαρτάνειν δὲ μᾶλλον καὶ ἥττον οὐκ ἔστι, πᾶσαν γὰρ ἀμαρτίαν κατὰ διάψευσιν πράττεσθαι. Horace in the Satires makes fun of the idea (I. iii. 115):

'It never can be an equivalent crime
To crib the cheap cabbage and plunder the shrine.'

Zeno himself is quoted as the original authority for it by Diog. Laert. vii. 120 ἀρέσκει τε αὐτοῖς ἴσα ἡγεῖσθαι τὰ ἀμαρτήματα καθά φησι Ζήνων. With these pronouncements of the Stoics we may compare James ii. 10: 'For whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet offend in one point, he is guilty of all.' St. James was the most Jewish of the apostles, and the idea which to us seems so strained was not less familiar to the Jew than to the Greek.

26 also that the Creator of the world, as a Lawgiver, feels for us according to our nature. He has 27 commanded us to eat the things that will be convenient for our souls, and he has forbidden us to 28 eat meats that would be the contrary. But it is the act of a tyrant that you should compel us not 29 only to transgress the Law, but should also make us eat in such manner that you may mock at this 30 defilement so utterly abominable to us. But you shall not mock at me thus, neither will I break the 31 sacred oaths of my ancestors to keep the Law, not even though you tear out mine eyes and burn out
 32 mine entrails. I am not so unmanned by old age but that when righteousness is at stake the strength
 33 of youth returns to my Reason. So twist hard your racks and blow your furnace hotter. I do not so 34 pity mine old age as to break the Law of my fathers in mine own person. I will not belie thee, O Law
 35 that wast my teacher; I will not desert thee, O beloved self-control; I will not put thee to shame,
 O wisdom-loving Reason, nor will I deny ye, O venerated priesthood and knowledge of the Law.
 36 Neither shalt thou sully the pure mouth of mine old age and my lifelong constancy to the Law.
 37 Clean shall my fathers receive me, unafraid of thy torments even to the death. For thou indeed 38 mayest be tyrant over unrighteous men, but thou shalt not lord it over my resolution in the matter of righteousness either by thy words or through thy deeds.'

1 But when Eleazar replied thus eloquently to the exhortations of the tyrant, the guards around 2 him dragged him roughly to the torturing place. And first they unclothed the old man, who was 3 adorned with the beauty of holiness. Then binding his arms on either side they scourged him, 4 a herald standing and shouting out over against him, 'Obey the orders of the king!' But the 5 great-souled and noble man, an Eleazar in very truth, was no more moved in his mind than if he 6 were being tormented in a dream; yea, the old man keeping his eyes steadfastly raised to heaven
 7 suffered his flesh to be torn by the scourges till he was bathed in blood and his sides became a mass
 8 of wounds; and even when he fell to the ground because his body could no longer support the 9 pain he still kept his Reason erect and inflexible. With his foot then one of the cruel guards as 10 he fell kicked him savagely in the side to make him get up. But he endured the anguish, and 11 despised the compulsion, and bore up under the torments, and like a brave athlete taking punishment, 12 the old man outwore his tormentors. The sweat stood on his brow, and he drew his breath in hard 13 gasps, till his nobility of soul extorted the admiration of his tormentors themselves. Hereupon, 14 partly in pity for his old age, partly in sympathy for their friend, partly in admiration of his courage, 15 some of the courtiers of the king went up to him and said: 'Why, O Eleazar, dost thou madly destroy thyself in this misery? We will bring to thee of the seethed meats, but do thou feign only to partake of the swine's flesh, and so save thyself.'

17 And Eleazar, as if their counsel did but add to his tortures, cried loudly: 'No. May we sons of Abraham never have so evil a thought as with faint heart to counterfeit a part unseemly to us.'

11. ευψυχία N

26. according to our nature. The Rabbis explained these commands to abstain from unclean food in the following way: 'These commands were given with the highest of all objects—for the sake of the purity which obedience to them imparts to the moral life.' And again: 'The ideal Jew does not say, "I have no desire to eat swine's flesh, no desire to indulge in any sensual cravings; I desire, but I will conquer the desire for the sake of my Father which is in Heaven"' (Oesterley and Box, Synagogue Religion and Worship, p. 412). Of course anthropologists explain such matters as taboos, probably based on a primitive totemism.

38. through thy deeds. Before we begin the dreadful story of the martyrdoms I would like to recall the words of Heine, the emancipated Jew, who from his mattress-grave tilted against Destiny with a sardonic humour that often mocked both himself and his race. 'If suffering ennobles,' he says, 'then has Israel attained the highest rank.' And if the Jewish refusal to eat swine's flesh seems a trivial cause for which to endure death in torments, let me also quote here these words of a yet more recent writer: 'There is no idea so ridiculous and outlandish but that some one has gone to the stake for it. Thousands have died for the Crescent as for the Cross, for the Synagogue as for the Church, for heresy as for orthodoxy, for undistinguishable shades of opinion about beliefs which were wholly false, for tyranny as for liberty, for anarchy as for order—faithful unto death for the truth that was no truth, doing loyal service to detestable masters, wasting heroism in the service of poltroons. Yet by such have the great human virtues of constancy and loyalty been established; and if not martyrs for the truth, they are witnesses to the best in man—his fantastic chivalry and contempt for death, when once an idea has laid hold of his imagination.'

VI. 5. Eleazar. This name means 'God help'. As to his defiance of torture let me quote the following passage from Pearson's Fragments of Zeno and Cleanthes, p. 214: 'The Indian philosophers are said to have used these words to Alexander: σώματα μὲν μετὰξεις ἐκ τόπου εἰς τόπον, ψυχὰς δ' ἡμετέρας οὐκ ἀναγκάσεις ποιεῖν ἢ μὴ βουλόμεθα. πῦρ ἀνθρώποις μέγιστον κολαστήριον, τούτου ἡμεῖς καταφρονοῦμεν. Similarly Philo, in telling the same story (Quod omnis probus sit liber, p. 879), has this: πῦρ μεγίστους τοῖς ζῶσι σώμασι πόνους καὶ φθορὰν ἐργάζεται, τούτου ὑπεράνω ἡμεῖς γινόμεθα, ζῶντες καίόμεθα. Other historians attest the custom of burning themselves alive, which is said to have been practised by the Brahmans. Strabo, xv. 1. 65, says αἰσχιστον δ' αὐτοῖς νομίζεσθαι νόσον σωματικὴν τὸν δ' ὑπονοήσαντα καθ' αὐτοῦ τοῦτο ἐξάγειν καθίσαντα ἐπὶ τὴν πυρὰν ὑφάψαι κελεύειν, ἀκίνητον δὲ καίεσθαι.'

15. We will bring. In 2 Macc. vi. 21 they beseech him 'to bring flesh of his own provision, such as was lawful for him to use, and make as if he did eat of the flesh taken from the sacrifice commanded by the king'.

18 Contrary to Reason, indeed, were it for us, after living unto the truth till old age, and guarding in 19 lawful guise the repute of so living, now to change and become in our own persons a pattern to 20 the young of impiety, to the end that we should encourage them to eat unclean meat. Shame were 21 it if we should live on a little longer, during that little being mocked of all men for cowardice, and 22 while despised by the tyrant as unmanly should fail to defend the Divine Law unto the death. There-23 fore, O sons of Abraham, do ye die nobly for righteousness' sake ; but as for you, O minions of the tyrant, why pause ye in your work ?'

24 So they, seeing him thus triumphant over the tortures and unmoved even by the pity of his 25 executioners, dragged him to the fire. There they cast him on it, burning him with cruelly cunning 26 devices, and they poured broth of evil odour into his nostrils. But when the fire already reached 27 to his bones and he was about to give up the ghost, he lifted up his eyes to God and said, 'Thou, 28 O God, knowest that though I might save myself I am dying by fiery torments for thy Law. Be 29 merciful unto thy people, and let our punishment be a satisfaction in their behalf. Make my blood their purification, and take my soul to ransom their souls.'

30 And with these words the holy man nobly yielded up his spirit under the torture, and for the sake of the Law held out by his Reason even against the torments unto death.

31, 32 Beyond question, then, the Inspired Reason is master over the passions ; for if his passions or sufferings had prevailed over his Reason we should have credited them with this evidence of their 33 superior power. But now his Reason having conquered his passions, we properly attribute to it 34 the power of commanding them. And it is right that we should admit that the mastery lies with 35 Reason, in cases at least where it conquers pains that come from outside ourselves ; for it were ridiculous to deny it. And my proof covers not only the superiority of Reason to pains, but its superiority to pleasures also ; neither does it surrender to them.

7 1 For the Reason of our father Eleazar, like a fine steersman steering the ship of sanctity on the 2 sea of the passions, though buffeted by the threats of the tyrant and swept by the swelling waves
3 of the tortures, never shifted for one moment the helm of sanctity until he sailed into the haven of 4 victory over death. No city besieged with many and cunning engines ever defended itself so well as did that holy man when his sacred soul was attacked with scourge and rack and flame, and he moved them who were laying siege to his soul through his Reason that was the shield of sanctity.
5 For our father Eleazar, setting his mind firm as a beetling sea-cliff, broke the mad onset of the 6 surges of the passions. O priest worthy of thy priesthood, thou didst not defile thy holy teeth,
7 nor didst thou befoul with unclean meat thy belly that had room only for piety and purity. O 8 confessor of the Law and philosopher of the Divine life ! Such should those be whose office is to serve the Law and defend it with their own blood and honourable sweat in the face of sufferings to 9 the death. Thou, O father, didst fortify our fidelity to the Law through thy steadfastness unto glory ; and having spoken in honour of holiness thou didst not belie thy speech, and didst confirm 10 the words of divine philosophy by thy deeds, O aged man that wast more forceful than the tortures, O reverend elder that wast tenser-strung than the flame, thou great king over the passions, Eleazar.
11 For as our father Aaron, armed with the censer, ran through the massed congregation against the 12 fiery angel and overcame him, so the son of Aaron, Eleazar, being consumed by the melting heat of 13 the fire, remained unshaken in his Reason. And yet most wonderful of all, he, being an old man, with the sinews of his body unstrung and his muscles relaxed and his nerves weakened, grew a young 14 man again in the spirit of his Reason and with Isaac-like Reason turned the hydra-headed torture 15 to impotence. O blessed age, O reverend grey head, O life faithful to the Law and perfected by the seal of death !

16 Assuredly, then, if an old man despised the torments unto death for righteousness' sake it must 17 be admitted that the Inspired Reason is able to guide the passions. But some perhaps may answer that not all men are masters of the passions because not all men have their Reason enlightened.

18. επ' αυτω Ν

24. μεταβαλλομενον Ν

VII. 13. των Ν Syr

20. a little longer. There is a curiously close correspondence between these words and the counsel attributed by Stobaeus to Eusebius : 'We ought not therefore for the sake of brief, uncertain, and transitory pleasure to choose great evils which endure for all time, and, in a life which is of the briefest, injure the after-life which is immensely long, nor yet, fearing a short pain, should we loose hold on great blessings which endure for all time and on the happiness of the immensely long life which comes after this world.' Ethica ii. 420.

29. to ransom their souls. These remarkable words on the martyr's death being taken as an atonement for the whole people are discussed in § 9.

35. for it were ridiculous, ἐπει καὶ γελοῖον. Bensly translates the Syriac thus : 'It is therefore ridiculous that a man should say, Reason does not rule, where we have shown that it overcame not only passions (sufferings) but also threats.' Lloyd, whose reading is the same as that in our text, translates 'nisi ridiculi esse velimus'. οἱ ἕξωθεν ἀλγηδόνες are the physical tortures as distinguished from οἱ ἐνδοθεν πόνοι of xv. 29 and xviii. 2.

18 But as many as with their whole heart make righteousness their first thought, these alone are able 19 to master the weakness of the flesh, believing that unto God they die not, as our patriarchs, Abra-
 20 ham and Isaac and Jacob, died not, but that they live unto God. Therefore there is nothing 21 contradictory in certain persons appearing to be slaves to passion in consequence of the weakness of 22 their Reason. For who is there that being a philosopher following righteously the whole rule of 23 philosophy, and having put his trust in God, and knowing that it is a blessed thing to endure all hardness for the sake of virtue, would not conquer his passions for the sake of righteousness? For the wise and self-controlled man alone is the brave ruler of the passions. Yea, by this means even young boys, being philosophers by virtue of the Reason which is according to righteousness, have triumphed over yet more grievous tortures.

1 For when the tyrant found himself notably defeated in his first attempt, and impotent to compel 2 an old man to eat unclean meat, then truly in violent rage he ordered the guards to bring others of the young men of the Hebrews, and if they would eat unclean meat to release them after eating it, 3 but if they refused, to torture them yet more savagely. And under these orders of the tyrant seven brethren together with their aged mother were brought prisoners before him, all handsome, 4 and modest, and well-born, and generally attractive. And when the tyrant saw them there, standing as if they were a festal choir with their mother in the midst, he took notice of them, and struck by their noble and distinguished bearing he smiled at them, and calling them nearer said :

5 'O young men, I wish well to each one of you, and admire your beauty, and honour highly so large a band of brothers; so not only do I advise you not to persist in the madness of that old 6 man who has already suffered, but I even entreat of you to yield to me and become partakers in my friendship. For, as I am able to punish those who disobey my orders, so am I able to 7 advance those who do obey me. Be assured then that you shall be given positions of importance
 8 and authority in my service if you will reject the ancestral law of your polity. Share in the 9 Hellenic life, and walk in a new way, and take some pleasure in your youth; for if you drive me to anger with your disobedience you will compel me to resort to terrible penalties and put 10 every single one of you to death by torture. Have pity then on yourselves, whom even I, your 11 opponent, pity for your youth and your beauty. Will you not consider with yourselves this thing, that if you disobey me there is nothing before you but death in torments?'

12 With these words he ordered the instruments of torture to be brought forward in order to per-13 suade them by fear to eat unclean meat. But when the guards had produced wheels, and jointdislocators, and racks, and bone-crushers, and catapults, and chaldrons, and braziers, and thumb-14 screws, and iron claws, and wedges, and branding irons, the tyrant spoke again and said, 'You 15 had better feel fear, my lads, and the Justice you worship will pardon your unwilling transgression'.

But they, hearing his persuasions, and seeing his dreadful engines, not only showed no fear but actually arrayed their philosophy in opposition to the tyrant, and by their right Reason did abase his tyranny.

16 And yet consider; supposing some amongst them to have been faint-hearted and cowardly, what sort of language would they have used? would it not have been to this effect?

17 'Alas! miserable creatures that we are and foolish above measure! When the king invites us 18 and appeals to us on terms of kind treatment shall we not obey him? Why do we encourage our-19 selves with vain desires and dare a disobedience that is to cost us our lives? Shall we not, O men my brothers, fear the dread instruments and weigh well his threats of the tortures, and abandon these 20 empty vaunts and this fatal bragging? Let us take pity on our own youth and have compassion on 21 our mother's age; and let us lay to heart that if we disobey we shall die. And even the divine 22 justice will have mercy on us, if compelled by necessity we yield to the king in fear. Why should 23 we cast away from us this dear life and rob ourselves of this sweet world? Let us not strive against 24

VII. 19. they live unto God. These words on immortality are repeated in xvi. 25. The closest parallel is Mark xii. 26: 'And as touching the dead, that they rise: have ye not read in the book of Moses, how in the bush God spake unto him, saying, I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob? He is not the God of the dead, but the God of the living.'

See also § 9.

VIII. 13. wheels, &c. Erasmus gives the horrid list in Latin thus: 'Exhibentur itaque rotae, radii, unguulae, rotabula, catapultae, lebetes, catastae, frixoria, digitaria, pugillaria, manus ferreae, subulae, succensoria, ollae aeneae, sartago. Haec enim illis nomina esse reperimus. Succensorium ad excitandam flammam quoddam tenue esse ferri telum accepimus. Exhibentur id genus reliqua nimis profecto abhorrenda, quae sigillatim enarrantem dies sit defecturus.' Lloyd's list is 'rotae, eculeus, fidiculae, unci, catapultae, lebetes, sartagine, digitalia, manicae ferreae, cunei, et folles'. For myself I agree with the poet that artists in torture should be hoist with their own petard.

'... neque enim lex aequior ulla est
 Quam necis artifices arte perire sua.'

25 necessity nor with vain confidence invite our torture. Even the Law itself does not willingly con-
 26 demn us to death, we being in terror of the instruments of torture. Why does such contentiousness inflame us and a fatal obstinacy find favour with us, when we might have a peaceful life by obeying 27 the king?' But no such words escaped these young men at the prospect of the torture, nor did 28 such thoughts enter into their minds. For they were despisers of the passions and masters over pain.
 29 And thus no sooner did the tyrant conclude his urging of them to eat unclean meat than all with one voice together, and as with one soul, said to him:

9 1 'Why dost thou delay, O tyrant? We are ready to die rather than transgress the command-
 2 ments of our fathers. For we should be putting our ancestors also to shame, if we did not walk in 3 obedience to the Law and take Moses as our counsellor. O tyrant that counsellest us to transgress
 4 the Law, do not, hating us, pity us beyond ourselves. For we esteem thy mercy, giving us our life
 5 in return for a breach of the Law, a thing harder to bear than death itself. Thou wouldst terrify us with thy threats of death under torture, as if a little while ago thou hadst learned nothing from 6 Eleazar. But if the old men of the Hebrews endured the tortures for righteousness' sake, yea, until they died, more befittingly will we young men die despising the torments of thy compulsion, over 7 which he our aged teacher also triumphed. Make trial therefore, O tyrant. And if thou takest our 8 lives for the sake of righteousness, think not that thou hurtest us with thy tortures. For we through 9 this our evil entreatment and our endurance of it shall win the prize of virtue; but thou for our cruel murder shalt suffer at the hands of divine justice sufficient torment by fire for ever.'

10 These words of the youths redoubled the wrath of the tyrant, not at their disobedience only but 11 at what he considered their ingratitude. So by his orders the scourgers brought forward the eldest of them and stripped him of his garment and bound his hands and arms on either side with thongs.
 12 But when they had scourged him till they were weary, and gained nothing thereby, they cast him 13, 14 upon the wheel. And on it the noble youth was racked till his bones were out of joint. And as joint after joint gave way, he denounced the tyrant in these words:

15 'O thou most abominable tyrant, thou enemy of the justice of heaven and bloody-minded, thou dost torment me in this fashion not for manslaying nor for impiety but for defending the Law of God.'

16 And when the guards said to him, 'Consent to eat, that so you may be released from your 17 tortures,' he said to them, 'Your method, O miserable minions, is not strong enough to lead captive
 18 my Reason. Cut off my limbs, and burn my flesh, and twist my joints; through all the torments I 19 will show you that in behalf of virtue the sons of the Hebrews alone are unconquerable.' As he thus spake they set hot coals upon him besides, and intensifying the torture strained him yet tighter on 20 the wheel. And all the wheel was besmeared with his blood, and the heaped coals were quenched by the humours of his body dropping down, and the rent flesh ran round the axles of the machine.
 21 And with his bodily frame already in dissolution this great-souled youth, like a true son of Abraham, 22 groaned not at all; but as if he were suffering a change by fire to incorruption, he nobly endured
 23 the torment, saying, 'Follow my example, O brothers. Do not for ever desert me, and forswear

IX. 2. Μωϋσαι & Syr.

19. λεγοντι &

IX. 9. torment by fire for ever. For the eschatology of this passage see § 9. There is here no trace of the spirit of the Crucified: 'Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do.'

18. alone are unconquerable. Some commentators think that the words put into the mouths of the martyrs are unreal and impossible. Dramatic inventions they doubtless are, like most other speeches that have come down to us from antiquity, but for a commentator to reject them a priori as impossible is to assume to himself the power to plumb the depths of human nature. That is an assumption that does not commend itself to one who has heard with his own ears the strange things even a ruffian can say with the hangman's rope round his neck. And when it comes to martyrdom for a principle, we have good evidence that men dying for what they hold truth can play the man in the tenth or twentieth century as well as in the first. Did not Latimer, here in Oxford three and a half centuries ago, say at the stake, 'Play the man, Master Ridley; we shall this day light such a candle, by God's grace, in England, as I trust shall never be put out?' And did not Cranmer—Cranmer who so feared the fire—thrust the hand which had signed his recantation into the flames that it might be burned first? The nature of man is strangely compounded, and it is best not to dogmatize too rashly about what it can or cannot rise to.

19. tighter on the wheel. Bently translates the Syriac here: 'They made the wheel more cruel by artifice against him.' Erasmus translates: 'Haec eo loquente praeparatur incendium, et ut erat affixus rotae, igni in catasta obicitur, atque ita tendentibus corpus radiis et contrahentibus flammis, costis deinde patentibus lateribus vitalia rumpuntur.' In this he adds to the original narrative certain explanatory details as to the exact workings of the torment; probably some fifteenth-century expert in torture told him all about how it was done, if indeed he had not seen it for himself. But it is better not to go more closely into the horrors of torture. The writer happened once to be in company with some frontiersmen who were pursuing a white renegade, said to be guilty of having betrayed the whites to the Indians. He learned that if they caught the renegade they proposed to burn him alive, and they treated with some scorn the suggestion that death was penalty enough, as they grimly jested over the various particulars of what they intended for him. The wretch was not caught, but it is as true to-day as ever it was that the dark places of the earth are full of the habitations of cruelty.

24 not our brotherhood in nobility of soul. War a holy and honourable warfare on behalf of righteousness, through which may the just Providence that watched over our fathers become merciful unto his 25 people and take vengeance on the accursed tyrant.' And with these words the holy youth yielded up the ghost.

26 But while all were wondering at his constancy of soul, the guards brought forward the second in age of the sons, and grappling him with sharp-clawed hands of iron they fastened him to the 27 engines and the catapult. But when they heard his noble resolve in answer to their question, 'Would 28 he eat rather than be tortured?' these panther-like beasts tore at his sinews with claws of iron, and rent away all the flesh from his cheeks, and tore off the skin from his head. But he steadfastly 29 enduring this agony said, 'How sweet is every form of death for the sake of the righteousness of 30 our fathers!' And to the tyrant he said, 'O most ruthless of tyrants, doth not it seem to thee that at this moment thou thyself sufferest tortures worse than mine in seeing thy tyranny's arrogant 31 intention overcome by my endurance for righteousness' sake? For I am supported under pain 32 by the joys that come through virtue, whereas thou art in torment whilst glorying in thy impiety; neither shalt thou escape, O most abominable tyrant, the penalties of the divine wrath.'

1) 1 And when he had bravely met his glorious death, the third son was brought forward and was 2 earnestly entreated by many to taste and so to save himself. But he answered in a loud voice, 'Are ye ignorant that the same father begat me and my brothers that are dead, and the same
3 mother gave us birth, and in the same doctrines was I brought up? I do not forswear the noble
4 bond of brotherhood. Therefore if ye have any engine of torment, apply it to this body of mine; for 5 my soul ye cannot reach, not if ye would.' But they were greatly angered at the bold speech of the 6 man, and they dislocated his hands and his feet with their dislocating engines, and wrenched his limbs out of their sockets, and unstrung them; and they twisted round his fingers, and his arms, 7 and his legs, and his elbow-joints. And in no wise being able to strangle his spirit they stripped off his skin, taking the points of the fingers with it, and tore in Scythian fashion the scalp from his head, 8 and straightway brought him to the wheel. And on this they twisted his spine till he saw his own
9 flesh hanging in strips and great gouts of blood pouring down from his entrails. And at the point
10 of death he said, 'We, O most abominable tyrant, suffer thus for our upbringing and our virtue that 12 are of God; but thou for thy impiety and thy cruelty shalt endure torments without end.' And 13 when this man had died worthily of his brothers, they brought up the fourth, and said to him, 'Be not thou also mad with the same madness as thy brethren, but obey the king and save thyself.' 15 But he said unto them, 'For me ye have no fire so exceeding hot as to make me a coward. By the blessed death of my brethren. by the eternal doom of the tyrant, and by the glorious life of the 16 righteous, I will not deny my noble brotherhood. Invent tortures, O tyrant, in order that thou 17 mayest learn thereby that I am brother of those who have been already tortured.' When he heard this the bloodthirsty, murderous, and utterly abominable Antiochus bade them cut out his tongue.
18 But he said, 'Even if thou dost remove my organ of speech, God is a hearer also of the speechless.
20 Lo, I put out my tongue ready: cut it out, for thou shalt not thereby silence my Reason. Gladly 21 do we give our bodily members to be mutilated for the cause of God. But God will speedily pursue after thee; for thou cuttest out the tongue that sang songs of praise unto him.'

1 But when this man also was put to a death of agony with the tortures, the fifth sprang forward
3 saying, 'I shrink not, O tyrant, from demanding the torture for virtue's sake. Yea, of myself I come forward, in order that, slaying me also, thou mayest by yet more misdeeds increase the penalty thou 4 owest to the justice of Heaven. O enemy of virtue and enemy of man, for what crime dost thou
5 destroy us in this way? Doth it seem evil to thee that we worship the Creator of all and live
7 according to his virtuous Law? But these things are worthy of honours not of tortures, if thou
8 didst understand human aspirations and hadst hope of salvation before God. Lo, now thou art 9 God's enemy and makest war on those that worship God.' As he spake thus the guards bound 10 him and brought him before the catapult; and they tied him thereto on his knees, and, fastening them there with iron cramps, they wrenched his loins over the rolling 'wedge' so that he was 11 completely curled back like a scorpion and every joint was disjoined. And thus in grievous strait 12 for breath and anguish of body he exclaimed, 'Glorious, O tyrant, glorious against thy will are

XI. 7. ἀνθρώπου ποθῶν

XI. 3. increase the penalty. Erasmus paraphrases thus: 'Reum te gehennae effusus quattuor innocentum sanguis effecit, me quinto gradatim numerus ipse ampliandus est, ut tibi tandem poenae ex multitudine peremptorum accrescant.'

7. if thou didst understand. εἴπερ ἡσθάνον ἀνθρώπου ποθῶν. Lloyd's text omits 7 and 8 entirely, following the Strassburg Bible. What Erasmus had before him is hard to guess: what he prints is '. . . honor nobis est et salus non poena: mirificum accipiemus a deo beneficium, si in nulla nobis laterum parte parcatur'.

the boons that thou bestowest on me, enabling me to show my fidelity to the Law through yet more honourable tortures.

13 And when this man also was dead, the sixth was brought, a mere boy, who in answer to the 14 tyrant's inquiry whether he was willing to eat and be released, said: 'I am not so old in years as 15 my brethren, but I am as old in mind. For we were born and reared for the same purpose and are 16 equally bound also to die for the same cause; so if thou chooseth to torture us for not eating unclean meat, torture.'

17, 18 As he spake these words they brought him to the wheel, and with care they stretched him out and 19 dislocated the bones of his back and set fire under him. And they made sharp skewers red-hot 20 and ran them into his back, and piercing through his sides they burned away his entrails also. But he in the midst of his tortures exclaimed, 'O contest worthy of saints, wherein so many of us brethren, in the cause of righteousness, have been entered for a competition in torments, and have not been 21, 22 conquered! For the righteous understanding, O tyrant, is unconquerable. In the armour of virtue
23 I go to join my brothers in death, and to add in myself one strong avenger more to punish thee, O
24 deviser of the tortures and enemy of the truly righteous. We six youths have overthrown thy tyranny.
25 For is not thine impotence to alter our Reason or force us to eat unclean meat an overthrow for thee?
26, 27 Thy fire is cool for us, thy engines of torture torment not, and thy violence is impotent. For the guards have been officers for us, not of a tyrant, but of the Divine Law; and therefore have we our Reason yet unconquered.'

12 1 And when this one also died a blessed death, being cast into the cauldron, the seventh son, the 2 youngest of them all, came forward. But the tyrant, although fiercely exasperated by his brethren, felt pity for the boy, and seeing him there already bound he had him brought near, and sought to 3 persuade him, saying, 'Thou seest the end of the folly of thy brethren; for through their dis-
4 obedience they have been racked to death. Thou, too, if thou dost not obey, wilt thyself also be 5 miserably tortured and put to death before thy time; but if thou dost obey thou shalt be my friend, 6 and thou shalt be advanced to high office in the business of the kingdom.' And while thus appealing to him he sent for the boy's mother, in order that in her sorrow for the loss of so many sons she 7 might urge the survivor to obey and be saved. But the mother, speaking in the Hebrew tongue, as 8 I shall tell later on, encouraged the boy, and he said to the guards, 'Loose me, that I may speak to 9 the king and to all his friends with him.' And they, rejoicing at the boy's request, made haste to 10, 11 loose him. And running up to the red-hot brazier, 'O impious tyrant,' he cried, 'and most ungodly of all sinners, art thou not ashamed to take thy blessings and thy kingship at the hands of God, 12 and to slay his servants and torture the followers of righteousness? For which things the divine justice delivers thee unto a more rapid and an eternal fire and torments which shall not leave hold 13 on thee to all eternity. Art thou not ashamed, being a man, O wretch with the heart of a wild beast, to take men of like feelings with thyself, made from the same elements, and tear out their 14 tongues, and scourge and torture them in this manner? But while they have fulfilled their righteous-15 ness towards God in their noble deaths, thou shalt miserably cry "Woe is me!" for thy unjust slaying of 16, 17 the champions of virtue.' And then standing on the brink of death he said, 'I am no renegade to 18 the witness borne by my brethren. And I call upon the God of my fathers to be merciful unto my 19, 20 nation. And thee will he punish both in this present life and after that thou art dead.' And with this prayer he cast himself into the red-hot brazier, and so gave up the ghost.

13 1 If therefore the seven brethren despised the tortures even to the death, it is universally proved 2 that the Inspired Reason is supreme lord over the passions. For if they had yielded to their passions or sufferings and eaten unclean meat, we should have said that they had been conquered thereby.
3 But in this case it was not so; on the contrary by their Reason, which was commended in the sight
4 of God, they rose superior to their passions. And it is impossible to deny the supremacy of the 5 mind; for they won the victory over their passions and their pains. How can we do otherwise than admit right Reason's mastery over passion with these men who shrank not before the agonies of 18. επιμελως 19. αυτου και Ν 20. αγανος Ν Syr. XII. 6. εαυτην ελεησασα επι την σωτηριον ευπειθειαν Ν

Syr. XIII. 2. ει Ν αν Ν

19. sharp skewers. Erasmus has 'Subulis etiam ferire pendentis latera ad viscera iubet, ut per eas (quae his ductae erant in longum tramitem) rimas ad intimas fibras flamma perveniret'.

XII. 7. speaking in the Hebrew tongue. Erasmus chooses to insert her speech at this point instead of keeping it back as the author had done. He also adds, borrowing from I know not where, or else inventing, a long torture scene with the seventh son; and in the son's speech he introduces (apparently after verse 12) 'Sit enim inter te et reliquos discretio potestatis. Numquid alterius tu operis, tuve alterius naturae homo es? Una nascendi et moriendi omnibus ratio est. Quisquis hominem interficit, interfici se posse confirmat. Tu effigiem tuam laceras, tu in torquendo nihil proficis.'

6 burning? For even as towers on harbour-moles repulse the assaults of the waves and offer a calm
 7 entrance to those entering the haven, so the seven-towered right Reason of the youths defended the 8 haven of righteousness and repulsed the tempestuousness of the passions. They formed a holy choir 9 of righteousness as they cheered one another on, saying: 'Let us die like brothers, O brethren, for the Law. Let us imitate the Three Children at the Assyrian court who despised this same ordeal of 11 the furnace. Let us not turn cravens before the proof of righteousness.' And one said, 'Brother, be 12 of good cheer,' and another, 'Bear it out nobly'; and another, recalling the past, 'Remember of what stock ye are, and at whose fatherly hand Isaac for righteousness' sake yielded himself to be a sacri-13 fice.' And each and all of them together, looking at each other brightly and very boldly, said, 'With a whole heart will we consecrate ourselves unto God who gave us our souls, and let us lend our bodies 15 to the keeping of the Law. Let us not fear him who thinketh he kills; for a great struggle and 16 peril of the soul awaits in eternal torment those who transgress the ordinance of God. Let us then 17 arm ourselves with divine Reason's mastery of the passions. After this our passion, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob shall receive us, and all our forefathers shall praise us.'

18 And to each separate one of the brothers, as they were dragged off, those whose turn was yet to come said, 'Do not disgrace us, brother, nor be false to our brethren already dead.'

19 You are not ignorant of the love of brethren, whereof the divine and all-wise Providence has given an inheritance to those who are begotten though their fathers, implanting it in them even through 20 the mother's womb; wherein brethren do dwell the like period, and take their form during the same 21 time, and are nourished from the same blood, and are quickened with the same soul, and are brought into the world after the same space, and they draw milk from the same founts, whereby their frater-22 nal souls are nursed together in arms at the breast; and they are knit yet closer through a common nurture and daily companionship and other education, and through our discipline under the Law of God.

23 The feeling of brotherly love being thus naturally strong, the seven brethren had their mutual 24 concord made yet stronger. For trained in the same Law, and disciplined in the same virtues, and 25 brought up together in the upright life, they loved one another the more abundantly. Their 26 common zeal for moral beauty and goodness heightened their mutual concord, for in conjunction with their piety it rendered their brotherly love more fervent.

27 But though nature, companionship, and their virtuous disposition increased the ardour of their brotherly love, nevertheless the surviving sons through their religion supported the sight of their 1 brethren, who were on the rack, being tortured to death; nay more, they even encouraged them to face the agony, so as not only to despise their own tortures, but also to conquer their passion of 2 brotherly affection for their brethren. O Reasoning minds, more kingly than kings, than freemen
 3 more free, of the harmony of the seven brethren, holy and well attuned to the keynote of piety!
 5 None of the seven youths turned coward, none shrunk in the face of death, but all hastened to 6 the death by torture as if running the road to immortality. For as hands and feet move in harmony with the promptings of the soul, so those holy youths, as if prompted by the immortal soul
 7 of religion, went in harmony to death for its sake. O all-holy sevenfold companionship of brethren
 8 in harmony! For as the seven days of the creation of the world do enring religion, so did the youths

9. Assyrias (ασ superscrip.). 12. καταμνησθεis N V Syr. 19. αδελφοτητα N 24. εαυτους αγαπων N V Syr.
 XIV. 2. βασιλεων N V 3. εναρμωστου N

XIV. 2. more kingly than kings, βασιλέων βασιλικώτεροι. The Stoics held that the wise man alone was a king :
μόνον εἶναι τὸν σοφὸν βασιλέα καὶ βασιλικόν (Stob. Eth. ii. [222] of Heeren's ed.). Also we have in Diog. Laert. vii. 122 οὐ μόνον δ' ἐλευθέρους εἶναι τοὺς σοφοὺς ἀλλὰ καὶ βασιλέας, τῆς βασιλείας οὐσης ἀρχῆς ἀνυπευθύνου.

8. the seven days of the creation, οὕτως περὶ τὴν ἑβδομάδα χορεύοντες κτλ. Erasmus paraphrases thus: 'Quos (credo) propterea in eo numero esse voluit in quo mundum ipse construxit, ut septem fratres septem dierum, quibus perfecta sunt omnia, aemuli redderentur.' The general sense of the passage in the Greek is clear enough, though a word for word translation does not yield very intelligible English, and Deissman accordingly transposes ἑβδομάδα and εὐσέβειαν, and renders it 'For as the seven days of creation around the (sacred) number seven, so circled the youths in chorus round piety'. Grimm describes the passage as a forced comparison in the style of the Alexandrian mystics; the seven days of the week were meant by God to recall to His people's minds the sacred seven days of creation; and the figure seven being thus a means of grace, this sacred number stands in the text as a visible expression of the piety which was the centre of these young men's lives. Doubtless the above explains well the Jewish feeling of reverence for the mystical nature of seven. This feeling of reverence was, however, common to other ancient peoples besides the Jews, and most students of early man now incline to the belief that the sacred number seven derived its mystic significance from astrology. Astrology, indeed, was forbidden to the Jews, but that need not prevent their having assimilated ideas to which it had given birth elsewhere. When first men began to observe the stars attentively, it presently appeared that in the heavens, visible to the naked eye, there were certain bodies that were always changing their position among the fixed stars; and ultimately men succeeded in tracing out, more or less correctly, their motions and calculating their periodic times. These times ran from the Moon's one month to the thirty years of Saturn, and choir-like enring their sevenfold companionship, and made the terror of the tortures of no account. 9 We now shudder when we hear of the suffering of those youths; but they, not only seeing it with their eyes, nor merely hearing the spoken, imminent threat, but actually feeling the pang, endured 10 it through; and that in the torture by fire, than which what greater agony can be found? For sharp and stringent is the power of fire, and swiftly did it bring their bodies to dissolution.

11 And think it not wonderful if with those men Reason triumphed over the tortures, when even 12 a woman's soul despised a yet greater diversity of pains; for the mother of the seven youths endured the torments inflicted on each several one of her children.

13 But consider how manifold are the yearnings of a mother's heart, so that her feeling for her 14 offspring becomes the centre of her whole world; and indeed, here, even the irrational animals have 15 for their young an affection and love similar to men's. For example, among the birds, the tame 16 ones sheltering under our roofs defend their nestlings; and those that nest upon the mountain tops, and in the rock clefts, and in the holes of trees, and in the branches, and hatch their young 17 there, do also drive away the intruder. And then, if they be unable to drive him away, they flutter around the nestlings in a passion of love, calling to them in their own speech, and they give suc- 18 cour to their young ones in whatever fashion they can. And what need have we of examples of the 19 love of offspring among irrational animals, when even the bees, about the season of the making of the comb, fend off intruders, and stab with their sting, as with a sword, those who approach their 20 brood, and do battle against them even to the death? But she, the mother of those young men, with a soul like Abraham, was not moved from her purpose by her affection for her children.

15 1 O Reason of the sons, lord over the passions! O religion, that wast dearer to the mother than 2 her children! The mother, having two choices before her, religion and the present saving alive of 3 her seven sons according to the tyrant's promise, loved rather religion, which saveth unto eternal 4 life according to God. O how may I express the passionate love of parents for children? We stamp a marvellous likeness of our soul and of our shape on the tender nature of the child, and most of all 5 through the mother's sympathy with her children being deeper than the father's. For women are softer of soul than men, and the more children they bear the more do they abound in love for them. 6 But, of all mothers, she of the seven sons abounded in love beyond the rest, seeing that, having in 7 seven child-bearings felt maternal tenderness for the fruit of her womb, and having been constrained 8 because of the many pangs in which she bore each to a close affection, she nevertheless through the 9 fear of God rejected the present safety of her children. Ay, and more than that, through the moral beauty and goodness of her sons and their obedience to the Law, her maternal love for them was 10 made stronger. For they were just, and temperate, and brave, and great-souled, and lovers of each other and of their mother in such manner that they obeyed her in the keeping of the Law even unto

XV. 4. (;) after παθη

εναποσφραγιζομεν N*

το των πατερων V

7. ηναγκασμενη NV

their proper motions were seen to be confined within the broad belt of the heavens known to us as the Zodiac. Seven was found to be the number of these πλάνητες or Wanderers, who did indeed appear to go like the fixed stars round the earth from east to west once in every twenty-four hours, but, as was well known to Chaldaean, Egyptian, and Greek star-gazers, had likewise another exceedingly complicated set of movements peculiar to themselves. The direction of these movements was retrograde or from west to east: ἀπὸ γὰρ δυσμῶν ἐπ' ἀνατολὰς ἀντιφέρεσθαι says Plutarch (Plac. Phil. ii. 16), describing the astronomical knowledge possessed by Alcmaeon and the mathematicians. And the early star-gazers, who by painful labour had obtained this difficult knowledge, took these movements of the mysterious Seven, their journeyings and their standings still, their oppositions and their conjunctions, to be the visible hand of Fate writing the scroll of man's destiny upon the sky. Thus the sacred Seven, the Sun, Moon, Mars, Mercury, Jupiter, Venus, and Saturn, to whom in the course of time were assigned the different hours of the day and after whom were named the days of the week, came to be honoured as the lords of heaven and earth, and the very number of them, seven, was nothing less than a power to conjure with.

9. We now shudder. An important inference can be drawn from this phrase. It is true that νῦν may mean no more than that the discourse is being delivered on the anniversary of the martyrs. But it has also been taken to indicate something further, namely, that the audience shudder at the past as contrasted with the present state of things in which they find themselves. If this be so, it certainly points to a time when the Jews in Alexandria had little or no personal experience of persecution, and necessarily indicates for the discourse a date previous to the awful persecution under Caligula in A.D. 38. See § 5.

XV. 4. a marvellous likeness, ψυχῆς τε καὶ μορφῆς ὁμοιότητα. There is a whole literature, ancient as well as modern, on heredity and the mysterious relation of parent to child in mind as well as body. I will only quote here a fragment of Cleanthes from Nemesius, Nat. Hom., p. 32 (see Pearson, Fragm. Cleanthes, 36) 'Ο Κλεάνθης τοιόνδε πλέκει συλλογισμόν' οὐ μόνον φησὶν ὅμοιοι τοῖς γονεῦσι γινόμεθα κατὰ τὸ σῶμα ἀλλὰ καὶ κατὰ τὴν ψυχὴν, τοῖς πάθεσι, τοῖς ἡθεσι, ταῖς διαθέσεσι: and also this from Plut. Plac. Phil. lib. 5, cap. 11 οἱ Στωικοί, ἀπὸ τοῦ σώματος ὅλου καὶ τῆς ψυχῆς φέρεσθαι τὰ σπέρματα, καὶ τὰς ὁμοιότητας ἀναπλάττεσθαι ἐκ τῶν αὐτῶν γενῶν τοὺς τύπους καὶ τοὺς χαρακτῆρας, ὡσπερανεὶ ζωγράφον ἀπὸ ὁμοίων χρωμάτων εἰκόνα τοῦ βλεπομένου. And yet one more from cap. 12, where he makes the curious statement that certain women have admired statues so passionately as to produce children like them: πολλὰκις γὰρ εἰκόνων καὶ ἀνδριάντων ἠράσθησαν γυναῖκες, καὶ ὅμοια τοῦτοις ἀπέτεκον. οἱ Στωικοί, συμπαθεία τῆς διανοίας, κατὰ βρυμάτων εἰσκρίσεις καὶ ἀκτίνων, οὐκ εἰδῶλων, γίνεσθαι τὰς ἀλλήλων ὁμοιότητας.

11 death. But nevertheless, though she had so many temptations to yield to her maternal instincts, in no single instance did the dreadful variety of tortures have power to alter her Reason ;
 13 but the mother urged each son separately, and all together, to die for their religion. O holy nature, and parental love, and yearning of parents for offspring, and wages of nursing, and unconquerable
 14 affection of mothers! The mother, seeing them one by one racked and burned, remained unshaken 15 in soul for religion's sake. She saw the flesh of her sons being consumed in the fire, and the extremities of their hands and feet scattered on the ground, and the flesh-coverings, torn off from 16 their heads right to their cheeks, strewn about like masks. O mother, who now knew sharper 17 pangs than the pangs of labour! O woman, alone among women, the fruit of whose womb was 18 perfect religion! Thy firstborn, giving up the ghost, did not alter thy resolution, nor thy second,
 19 looking with eyes of pity on thee under his tortures, nor thy third, breathing out his spirit. Neither 20 didst thou weep when thou beheldest the eyes of each amid the torments looking boldly on the same
 21 anguish, and sawest in their quivering nostrils the signs of approaching death. When thou sawest 22 the flesh of one son being severed after the flesh of another, and hand after hand being cut off, and 23 head after head being flayed, and corpse cast upon corpse, and the place crowded with spectators
 24 on account of the tortures of thy children, thou sheddest not a tear. Not the melodies of the sirens
 25 nor the songs of swans with sweet sound do so charm the hearers' ears, as sounded the voices of the 26 sons, speaking to the mother from amid the torments. How many and how great were the tortures 27 with which the mother was tormented while her sons were being tortured with torments of rack and 28 fire! But Inspired Reason lent her heart a man's strength under her passion of suffering, and 29 exalted her to make no account of the present yearnings of mother-love.

24 And although she saw the destruction of her seven children and the many and varied forms of 25 their torments, the noble mother willingly surrendered them through faith in God. For she beheld 26 in her own mind, even as it had been cunning advocates in a council-chamber, nature, and parenthood, 27 and mother-love, and her children on the rack, and it was as if she, the mother, having the choice
 28 between two votes in the case of her children, one for their death and one to save them alive, thereupon 29 regarded not the saving of her seven sons for a little time, but, as a true daughter of Abraham, called 30 to mind his God-fearing courage. O mother of the race, vindicator of our Law, defender of our religion, 31 and winner of the prize in the struggle within thyself! O woman, nobler to resist than men, and braver 32 than warriors to endure! For as the Ark of Noah, with the whole living world for her burden in 33 the world-whelming Deluge, did withstand the mighty surges, so thou, the keeper of the Law, beaten 34 upon every side by the surging waves of the passions, and strained as with strong blasts by the 35 tortures of thy sons, didst nobly weather the storms that assailed thee for religion's sake.

31 Thus then, if one both a woman and advanced in years, and the mother of seven sons, endured 32 the sight of her children being tortured to death, the Inspired Reason must confessedly be supreme 33 ruler over the passions. I have proved, accordingly, that not only have men triumphed over their 34 sufferings, but that a woman also has despised the most dreadful tortures. And not so fierce were 35 the lions around Daniel, not so hot was the burning fiery furnace of Mishael, as burned in her the 36 instinct of motherhood at the sight of her seven sons being tortured. But by her religion-guided 37 Reason the mother quenched her passions, many and strong as they were. For there is this also to

11. +βασανוי 13. γενεσει V: γενεσις Syr. 18. εις]+σε N V 21. ως N V Syr. 32. υπερ N V Syr.
 XVI. 3. εκεινην ορωσαν N V Syr. ουτως ποικιλως N V Syr.

13. wages of nursing. Deissmann would read γένεσις φιλόστοργε καὶ τροφέ, and objects to Grimm who upholds τροφεία. The MS. authority for γένεσις is weak, but V reads γενέσει; and γένεσις, according to Bensly, has the support of the Syriac, and it makes good sense with or without Deissmann's emendation of τροφέ. The Strassburg text has ὡ φύσις ἱερὰ καὶ φίλτρα γονέων, καὶ σύνεσις φιλόστοργε, καὶ τροφεία, καὶ μητέρων ἀδάμαστα πάθη, which Lloyd keeps, rendering, 'O sanctissimam naturam, amorisque parentum illecebras; et intelligentiam indulgentissimam, et nutricia, matrumque motus indomitos.' The marginal collation in the Bodleian copy of the Geneva edition of 1611 has the curious variation γοναὶ φιλόστοργοὶ καὶ τροφείαι. I have attempted to render γένεσις φιλόστοργε, καὶ τροφεία.

20. the place crowded. The text here is very corrupt: χωριον (A) gives good sense and has the support of V, but there is another reading χοριον (N*) or χοριδιον (N^{c.a}) which appears as χορείον, a dancing-place, in the Strassburg LXX; χορείον would undoubtedly be quite in the author's rhetorical style, as it would artfully recall his comparison in viii. 4 of the band of youths to a χαρὸς or festal choir with the mother in their midst, and also allude to χορεύοντες above in xiv. 8. The Syriac has the strange rendering, 'when she saw the servants of the tyrant falling like a storm upon her sons,' which does not seem reconcilable with any Greek text known to us.

29. the struggle within thyself. These are the οἱ ἐνδοθεν πόνοι as distinguished in xviii. 2 from οἱ ἔξωθεν πόνοι, the physical tortures. We may note again in ἀθλοφόρε how the author recurs to the comparison with the Greek games.

31. her burden in the world-whelming Deluge. κοσμοπληθής and κοσμοφορεῖν are vigorous compounds coined by the author, and good specimens of their sort, just as the whole passage is typical of his rhetoric. The three alliterative quadrisyllables, rolling in like waves one after the other, aim at something like the Homeric πολυφλοίσβοιο θαλάσσης. I have attempted a slight imitation of his effect with 'world-whelming' and 'whole living world'.

consider, that had the woman been weak of spirit, despite her motherhood, she might have wept
6 over them, and perchance spoken thus: 'Ah, thrice wretched me, and more than thrice wretched!
7 Seven children have I borne and am left childless! In vain was I seven times with child, and to no profit was my ten months' burden seven times borne, and fruitless have been my nursings, and 8 sorrowful my sucklings. In vain for you, O my sons, did I endure the many pangs of labour, and 9 the more difficult cares of your upbringing. Alas for my sons, that some were yet unwed, and those that were wedded had begotten no children; I shall never see children of yours, nor shall I be called 10 by the name of grandparent. Ah me, that had many beautiful children, and am a widow and 11 desolate in my woe! Neither will there be any son to bury me when I am dead!'

12 But the holy and God-fearing mother wailed not with this lamentation over any one of them, neither 13 besought she any to escape death, nor lamented over them as dying men; but, as though she had a soul of adamant and were bringing forth the number of her sons for a second time, into immortal life, 14 she besought rather and entreated of them that they should die for religion's sake. O mother, warrior of God in the cause of religion, old and a woman, thou didst both defeat the tyrant by thy endurance, 15 and wast found stronger than a man, in deeds as well as words. For verily when thou wast put in bonds with thy sons, thou stoodest there seeing Eleazar being tortured, and thou spakest to thy 16 sons in the Hebrew tongue: 'My sons, noble is the fight; and do ye, being called thereto to bear 17 witness for our nation, fight therein zealously on behalf of the Law of our fathers. For it would be shameful if, while this aged man endured the agony for religion's sake, you that are young men shrank 18 before the pain. Remember that for the sake of God ye have come into the world, and have enjoyed
19, 20 life, and that therefore ye owe it to God to endure all pain for his sake; for whom also our father Abraham made haste to sacrifice his son Isaac, the ancestor of our nation; and Isaac, seeing his 21 father's hand lifting the knife against him, did not shrink. And Daniel, the just man, was cast to the lions, and Ananias, Azarias, and Mishael were flung into the furnace of fire, and they endured 22, 23 for God's sake. And ye also, having the same faith unto God, be not troubled; for it were against Reason that ye, knowing righteousness, should not withstand the pains.'

24 With these words the mother of the seven encouraged every single one of her sons to die rather 25 than transgress the ordinance of God; they themselves also knowing well that men dying for God live unto God, as live Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and all the patriarchs.

17 1 Some of the guards declared that when she also was about to be seized and put to death, she 2 cast herself on the pyre in order that no man might touch her body. O mother, that together

20. ορων ο Ισαακ Syr.

24. αποθανειν N Syr.

25. ειδοτες N V

XVII. 1. τις N V Syr.

XVI. 14. old and a woman. The Syriac has 'who didst go a warfare in old age'.

20. ancestor of our nation. εθνοπάτωρ is another of the author's coinages like εθνόπληθος in vii. 11. He has an affection for the word εθνος, much as some English writers like to speak of 'our people', by way of heightening the sense of union between author and reader as belonging to a nation set apart for great ends.

25. knowing well. I have accepted the reading of N, ειδοτες, but it really seems to me that I have translated ειδοτας, which Grimm adopts apparently without MS. authority. In this I rely upon Deissmann, whose note I translate verbatim: 'Read with Sin. Ven. ειδοτες. Freudenthal, S. 123 f., is unjust in his complaints of the "ungrammatical sequence". For this formal and rigid ειδοτες is found elsewhere: 2 Cor. i. 7, Rom. xiii. 11. Egyptian report of the Berlin Museum No. 246, Z. 11 f. Private letter, Fayoum, 2-3 century A.D.: η οὐκ ιδοτες (sic) οτι νυκτος και ημερας εντυγχανω (sic) τῷ θεῷ ὑπερ ὑμων. The nominative plural of a participle in other instances readily becomes an anacolouthon.'

XVII. 1. she cast herself, εαντην ερριψεν κατὰ τῆς πυρᾶς. It is curious in what a sidelong fashion the author does but hint at the suicide of the woman. The writer of Second Maccabees never alludes to it at all, though he can hardly have considered it wrong, for the act is nowhere forbidden in the Old Testament and he himself celebrates (xv. 42) the self-inflicted death of Razis, who 'fell upon his sword, choosing rather to die manfully, than to come into the hands of the wicked, to be abused otherwise than beseemed his noble birth'. It is well known that the Stoics habitually advocated suicide, εξαγωγή, when life became a burden, but the author of Fourth Maccabees makes no allusion to this, neither does he quote the various Old Testament instances of it. There is, indeed, only one case in the O.T. that can really be considered analogous to the Mother's, for Samson's deed in pulling down the house on himself and his enemies must be classed as an act of war, and was no more suicide than the self-devotion of Arnold von Winkelried embracing the spears at Sempach, or of Salkeld and Burgess blowing in the Cashmere Gate at Delhi. There is, however, an exact parallel in the case of Saul, when he killed himself (or had himself killed) 'lest these uncircumcised come and thrust me through, and abuse me'. Erasmus does not mention the mother's suicide, unless indeed 'ultro' is intended to suggest it, but (as already mentioned in § 8) he pictures the woman as being in the first instance most horribly tortured by Antiochus, and then, 'being brought to the fire-vomiting brazier,' she of her own accord (ultro) joins her sons who had been already burnt, in their pains, 'ac oratione protensis surrectisque manibus pro gravidis matribus fusa coelibem effudit spiritum'; where coelibem is quite un-Jewish and mediaeval. As to the morality of such an act opinions differ and will differ to the end of time. During the Indian Mutiny, near sixty years ago, a bishop of the Irish Church gave it as his opinion that it was morally justifiable for white women there to choose death before outrage, and those who know anything of savage warfare, be it in India, or Africa, or America, or even in Europe (for we still have savages in Europe), will agree with him. As to such a deed being cowardly, I can only with thy seven sons didst break the tyrant's force, and bring to nought his evil devices, and 3 gavest an example of the nobleness of faith. Thou wert nobly set as a roof upon thy sons as pillars,

 4 and the earthquake of the torments shook thee not at all. Rejoice therefore, pure-souled mother, 5 having the hope of thy endurance certain at the hand of God. Not so majestic stands the moon amid the stars in heaven as thou, having lit the path of thy seven starlike sons unto righteousness, standest 6 in honour with God; and thou art set in heaven with them. For thy child-bearing was from the 7 son of Abraham. And had it been lawful for us to paint, as might some artist, the tale of thy piety, would not the spectators have shuddered at the mother of seven sons suffering for righteous-8 ness' sake multitudinous tortures even unto death? And indeed it were fitting to inscribe these words over their resting-place, speaking for a memorial to future generations of our people:

9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16
 17 18 19 20 21
 22
 23 24

HERE LIE AN AGED PRIEST AND A WOMAN FULL OF YEARS AND HER SEVEN SONS
 THROUGH THE VIOLENCE OF A TYRANT DESIRING TO DESTROY THE HEBREW NATION.
 THEY VINDICATED THE RIGHTS OF OUR PEOPLE
 LOOKING UNTO GOD AND ENDURING THE TORMENTS EVEN UNTO DEATH.

For truly it was a holy war which was fought by them. For on that day virtue, proving them through endurance, set before them the prize of victory in incorruption in everlasting life. But the first in the fight was Eleazar, and the mother of the seven sons played her part, and the brethren fought. The tyrant was their adversary and the world and the life of man were the spectators.
 And righteousness won the victory, and gave the crown to her athletes. Who but wondered at the athletes of the true Law? Who were not amazed at them? The tyrant himself and his whole council admired their endurance, whereby they now do both stand beside the throne of God and live the blessed age. For Moses says, 'All also who have sanctified themselves are under thy hands.' And these men, therefore, having sanctified themselves for God's sake, not only have received this honour, but also the honour that through them the enemy had no more power over our people, and the tyrant suffered punishment, and our country was purified, they having as it were become a ransom for our nation's sin; and through the blood of these righteous men and the propitiation of their death, the divine Providence delivered Israel that before was evil entreated. For when the tyrant Antiochus saw the heroism of their virtue, and their endurance under the tortures, he publicly held up their endurance to his soldiers as an example; and he thus

3. στυλους N V

4. βεβαιαν N V

7. ως επι τινος N* V Syr.

ευσεβιας σου ιστοριαν N V say that a few years ago, when the Red Indian tortures still awaited captives, many frontiersmen, men whom it would hardly have been safe to call cowards, made no secret that they intended to keep their last bullet (if need be) for themselves. As to whether a woman could harden her heart to the act, let me borrow the words of the author of this book, πολλαχόθεν μὲν οὖν καὶ ἀλλαχόθεν ἔχοιμι ἂν ὑμῖν ἐπιδείξαι, and say that many a woman in every age and every land has chosen death rather than that polluted hands should touch her body.

7. some artist, ὡς ἐπὶ τινος. The conjecture πίνακος is highly plausible, but lacks MS. authority; and if we may take ἐπὶ as 'after', i.e. 'in the style of', πίνακος is not really needed, for the word ζωγραφῆσαι itself must imply an artist to paint the picture. In § 8 I have discussed the very striking allusion to this passage in Chrysostom's τοὺς ἀγῶνας καὶ τὰ παλαίσματα ὡς περ ἐπὶ πίνακος τινος τῆς καρδίας ὑμῶν ἀπογράψαντες, and also the curious turn given to it by Erasmus when he suggests that the figure of the martyr might be made into an amulet. The latter quite excels himself in his paraphrase of the first part of the passage: 'Si possit in picturam aliquam manus humana describere et victorum omnium poenarum genus in posteros ceris, ut gestum constitit, explicare, sine lachrymis nemo transiret, omnis utique multitudo conflueret, suffragarentur plurimi, et multa videretur donasse qui in gloriam summi dei stratagemata depinxisset.'

8. for a memorial. τοῖς ἀπὸ τοῦ ἔθνους εἰς μνείαν λεγόμενα. The author may well have been thinking of the great monument of polished white stone, rising above a cloister with monolithic columns of the same, which Simon Maccabeus set up in memory of his parents and his brethren at Modin near Joppa. Neither Josephus in his Anti- quities nor the author of I Macc. speaks of any inscription on the monument, though the latter mentions the armour of the heroes being set on the pillars, 'and by the armour ships carved, that they might be seen of all that sail on the sea.' But some fitting inscription there must have been of a tenor not unlike that proposed here. Of course to employ sculpture to represent Jewish heroes and martyrs was out of the question, but our author in the verses which follow uses the imagery of the Greek games, making the tyrant and the martyrs, as it were, competitors, in a way to give the idea of a frieze—may one say?—like that of a Greek temple, commemorating their exploits.

19. under thy hands. πάντες οἱ ἡγιασμένοι ὑπὸ τὰς χεῖράς σου. This is taken word for word from Deut. xxxiii. 3.

22. having as it were become a ransom. ὡς περ ἀντίψυχον γεγονότας. The idea of the deaths of the martyrs becoming a ransom for the sin of Israel has been noticed in § 9, and the deliverance of Israel through them in the note on i. 11.

24. as an example. One would like further evidence before giving credence to the story that Antiochus publicly inspired his men with a sense of honour and heroism on the field of battle and in the labours of besieging, so that he plundered and overthrew all his enemies.

- 18 1 O Israelites, children born of the seed of Abraham, obey this Law, and be righteous in all ways,
 2 recognizing that Inspired Reason is lord over the passions, and over pains, not only from within,
 3 but from without ourselves; by which means those men, delivering up their bodies to the torture for righteousness' sake, not only won the admiration of mankind, but were deemed worthy of 4 a divine inheritance. And through them the nation obtained peace and restoring the observance of the Law in our country hath captured the city from the enemy.
 5 And vengeance hath pursued the tyrant Antiochus upon earth, and in death he suffers punishment. For when he failed utterly to constrain the people of Jerusalem to live like Gentiles and abandon the customs of our fathers, he thereupon left Jerusalem and marched away against the Persians.
 6 Now these are the words that the mother of the seven sons, the righteous woman, spake to her
 7 children: 'I was a pure maiden, and I strayed not from my father's house, and I kept guard over 8 the rib that was builded into Eve. No seducer of the desert, no deceiver in the field, corrupted me;
 9 nor did the false, beguiling Serpent sully the purity of my maidenhood; I lived with my husband all the days of my youth; but when these my sons were grown up, their father died. Happy was 10 he; for he lived a life blessed with children, and he never knew the pain of their loss. Who, 11 while he was yet with us, taught you the Law and the prophets. He read to us of Abel who was slain by Cain, and of Isaac who was offered as a burnt-offering, and of Joseph in the prison.
 12 And he spake to us of Phineas, the zealous priest, and he taught you the song of Ananias, Azarias, 13 and Mishael in the fire. And he glorified also Daniel in the den of lions, and blessed him; and 14 he called to your minds the saying of Isaiah, "Yea even though thou pass through the fire, the extolled them to his troops. The text here is practically the same as that of the Strasburg LXX, and also as that of Lloyd, but Erasmus, followed by Lloyd, takes the latter part of the sentence in a way that is hard to reconcile with the original: 'videns namque Antiochus magnitudinem fidei mortisque contemptum peditum sibi legiones ex Hebraeorum numero congregat, per quas hostem perculit, et laudis plurimum cepit.' If this be so the Syrian king would have understood William III's feeling, when he met in battle the brave exiles whom the penal laws had driven from Ireland, and cried, 'Cursed be the laws that deprive me of such soldiers.' But history knows nothing of these Hebrew legions, and Antiochus, like William, had to do without the soldiers whose religion he could not shake.

XVIII. 5. εθων V Syr. 9. επιζησας N c^a V

all his enemies. καὶ ἐκπορθήσας ἐνίκησεν πάντας τοὺς πολεμίους. This is one way of drawing a moral from history. Whether Antiochus fired his soldiers by the martyrs' example or not, he did certainly after leaving Jerusalem conquer Armenia and no small part of Persia. And as it would rather spoil the moral to say that in the full tide of success he failed miserably in an attack on an obscure Persian temple and died almost immediately after, the fatal ending is quietly dropped just for the moment. But of course the audience knew perfectly well the story of Antiochus' death, so the author covers himself by deftly alluding to it five verses later, where he says that vengeance pursued the tyrant upon earth, and in death he suffers punishment still. It is a neat rhetorical turn.

XVIII. 2. from within. οἱ ἔνδοθεν πόνοι are mental sufferings, οἱ ἔξωθεν πόνοι are physical: see on xv. 29 and vi. 35.

4. restoring the observance, ἀνανεωσάμενος. If we keep this reading we must take it that some masculine word like Israel equivalent to τὸ ἔθνος is the subject understood. The alternative is to read the plural forms given in N and V both for the participle and the verb, and make the subject simply 'they', or even 'the Maccabees' understood. Historically the statement is correct; for the Maccabees truly did recapture Jerusalem and restore the Law and win Jewish independence.

7. I strayed not, οὐχ ὑπερέβην πατρικὸν οἶκον. Erasmus translates word for word, 'domum patriam non reliqui'. This home-keeping habit was of course a virtue highly extolled in a Jewess, and certainly the race seems to have found a certain profit in the strictness with which it has been practised.

the rib that was builded, τὴν ᾠκοδομημένην πλευράν. In the translation I have added into Eve to make the sense clear. Grimm at one time held the idea that the phrase might mean 'the woman's side of the house', but he gave it up. The allusion to the Garden of Eden and the creation of Eve is infinitely more in keeping with Jewish style and taste. The actual words in Genesis are καὶ ᾠκοδόμησεν ὁ θεὸς τὴν πλευρὴν, ἣν ἔλαβεν ἀπὸ τοῦ Ἀδάμ. The moral of the passage is that a woman gets her body, as it were, direct from God, and should therefore keep it worthy of Him.

8. No seducer of the desert, λυμεῶν τῆς ἐρημίας φθορεὺς ἐν πεδίῳ. This is a curious instance of the Jewish belief that evil spirits haunted the waste, to which we have references in the New Testament. It seems hardly credible to us, but the Jews did actually believe that out in the desert there were demons who would lie in wait for women and lead them astray. The Australian Arunta similarly hold that certain rocky places in their deserts are the habitation of wanton spirits, and that women venturing near them may become mothers, apparently without knowing it. And for the Jew the Prince of the demons was Satan, the λυμεῶν ἀπάτης ὄφης who had started his campaign against mankind by corrupting Eve. The authors of Synagogue Religion and Worship, already quoted, say, 'Jewish traditions vary, however, as to the reason of Satan's tempting Eve; in several passages it is stated that Satan's lust towards her brought about her fall; see Bereshith rabbah, c. 18, 19; Sanhedrin 59^b; Sotah 9^b; Yebamoth 103^b; Abodah zarah 22^b.' Philo has some curious remarks about the woman and the serpent in Sacr. Leg. All. iii. 20, 21. He calls ἡδονὴ snakelike, and declares that ἡ ἡδονὴ ἐξ ἑαυτῆς ἐστὶ μοχθηρά.

9. these my sons. It looks as though some phrase such as 'and bore him seven sons' were omitted between 8 and 9. It is therefore necessary to insert 'my sons' in 9 to explain τούτων.

5 flame shall not hurt thee." He sang to us the words of David the psalmist, "Many are the afflictions
6 of the just." He quoted to us the proverb of Solomon, "He is a tree of life to all them that do his 7 will." He confirmed the words of Ezekiel, "Shall these dry bones live?" For he forgot not the 8 song that Moses taught, which teaches, "I will slay and I will make alive. This is your life and the 9 blessedness of your days."

o Ah, cruel was the day, and yet not cruel, when the cruel tyrant of the Greeks set the fire blazing for his barbarous braziers, and with his passions boiling brought to the catapult and back again to his 1 tortures the seven sons of the daughter of Abraham, and blinded the eyeballs of their eyes, and cut
2 out their tongues, and slew them with many kinds of torment. For which cause the judgement of 3 God pursued, and shall pursue, the accursed wretch. But the sons of Abraham, with their victorious mother, are gathered together unto the place of their ancestors, having received pure and immortal
4 souls from God, to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen.

21. ἐπηρώσεν ἄ'

23. having received, &c. These words point to an original difference between good and bad souls before their incorporation in the body. Cp. Wisd. viii. 19.

PIRKĒ ABOTH

SAYINGS OF THE FATHERS

INTRODUCTION

§ 1. SHORT ACCOUNT OF THE BOOK.

THE treatise called 'Pirkē Aboth', or 'Sayings of the Fathers', is a collection of maxims, mostly ethical and religious, uttered by Jewish teachers within a period extending from the third century B.C. to the third century A.D. 'Pirkē Aboth' is not its original title, neither is 'Sayings of the Fathers' a correct rendering of that title; but the former is very ancient, and the latter is so far sanctioned by custom that it would be inconvenient to correct it to 'Chapters of Fathers', though that is what it ought to be. The book was not the production of one author. It was one of the sixty-three treatises of the Mishnah, the great corpus juris in which the Tradition of the Elders was reduced to order. The compiler or editor of the Mishnah was Rabbi Judah the Holy, commonly called 'Rabbi', who died A.D. 219; and to that extent he may be regarded as the author of the Pirkē Aboth. But this treatise, like the Mishnah itself, is mainly composed of material older than the time of 'Rabbi'; and both give clear evidence of later additions. From this it will be seen that Pirkē Aboth can hardly be treated as a book in the ordinary sense of the word, and that no definite date can be given for its composition or even for its completion. While still a portion of the Tradition of the Elders, it differs in character and form from the main body of the Tradition, and is thus capable of separate treatment and study. As a collection of moral and religious sayings it was included in the liturgy of the synagogue at least as early as the eleventh century; and many commentaries upon it were written in and after the Middle Ages. Since the invention of printing, it has been published in innumerable editions, mostly Hebrew, but recently in other languages.

The contents of the book are not arranged in any obvious order, and it is evidently made up of several collections differing in aim and method. Chronological sequence is observed in ch. i, and to some extent in ch. ii. It is wholly disregarded in the remaining chapters. The maxims in ch. i-iv are the utterance of named teachers, while those in ch. v are mostly anonymous. Ch. vi is no part of the original book, and only attempts to catch the manner of it. But in all six chapters there is no attempt at a completely representative list of names. Sixty-five teachers are named, out of the hundreds who belonged to the period of the Mishnah; and while it was not to be expected that all these should be included, it is hard to account for some of the omissions. It is remarkable that Gamaliel II, one of the most important of all, is not mentioned, though all the line of Hillel, with that one exception, is represented, down to the beginning of the third century. So, too, in regard to the substance of the maxims, while these touch upon some of the main heads of Rabbinical theology and ethics, they by no means cover the whole field; and in what they do give there is no appearance of systematic arrangement. The whole collection, indeed, might well have been taken from the editor's note-book. But, while thus 'formless', it is by no means 'void'; and the reader who will persevere will find much that is valuable and instructive for the right understanding of the religion and ethics of the Pharisees; much, also, which, without being either very profound or very sublime, is yet well and wisely said.

For the explanation of the origin and nature of the book, several things need to be said which cannot well be given under the separate heads of title, date, integrity of composition, and authorship. In place of these sections there will here be given—

§ 2. HISTORICAL AND CRITICAL ACCOUNT OF PIRKĒ ABOTH.

1. Origin and growth of the Mishnah as a whole. The characteristic feature of the reformation of Ezra in the fifth century B.C. was the stress laid upon the idea of Torah as the complete divine revelation given to Israel. 'Torah' should never be translated 'Law'; it is much more than Law. The written record, the Pentateuch, contained divine instruction in other forms besides that of precept. The interpretation of the Pentateuch was the unfolding of the contents of revelation in every direction, not in that of practical conduct alone. The truth thus rendered explicit through valid interpretation was part of the contents of the original revelation; hence the written word and the unwritten interpretation were each Torah, and together made up the whole Torah. What was sought in the divine revelation was either truth to be known or directions for conduct to be obeyed. In order to carry out the fundamental command, 'Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart,' &c., it was needful that the Jew should know exactly what the divine will was on every occasion of choice. Therefore one main line on which the idea of Torah was developed was that of a Rule of right conduct. This was obtained first of all from the written word, and thence extended by successive definitions and the application of recognized methods of interpretation. The results of this process were carefully handed on from one teacher to another, being regarded as ascertained portions of Torah, no longer to be disputed and of binding authority. The body of judicial interpretations thus accumulated is the Tradition of the Elders; and the name given to the Rule of right conduct embodied in the tradition is Halachah. The tradition probably began with Ezra, but no names are preserved of the earliest teachers. In the centuries after his time, the mass of halachah increased in amount and complexity, since in each generation the more eminent teachers made their own contributions to it. The teachers whose names are given in the Pirkē Aboth are those who were chiefly instrumental in developing the Tradition on the line of halachah. R. Akiba (see notes) made the first attempt to classify the unwieldy mass of halachah, but left the work unfinished. His pupil, R. Meir, carried it further; but it was left to R. Judah (Rabbi) to undertake and accomplish the orderly arrangement of the whole, in the Mishnah. In form, the Mishnah is a series of definitions of halachah upon various subjects, extending over the whole range of practical life, regarded from the point of view of the Pharisee. In addition to the definitions of halachah, the Mishnah contains many rejected opinions, together with the reasons for rejecting them; also the names of the teachers on whose authority the tradition rested, as well as occasional historical and biographical notes. It is divided into six orders (sedarim) and sixty-three treatises or books (massichtoth). Each treatise is divided into chapters (perakim), and each chapter into paragraphs (each called a halachah or a mishnah). One of these treatises, in the fourth order, is that now known as Pirkē Aboth. In the editions of the Mishnah and the Talmud it is always called 'Aboth'.

INTRODUCTION

2. The treatise Aboth. While the rest of the Mishnah consists mainly of halachah, Aboth contains no halachah at all; and the only reason for its inclusion in the Mishnah would seem to be the fact that its list of 'Fathers' is made up of those teachers who mainly produced the Mishnah. But why it was placed where it now stands, in the main division dealing with 'Injuries', has not been satisfactorily explained. That it was incorporated in the Mishnah, and was not left an isolated book as might well be supposed, is shown by the fact that in the Gemara (the later comment on the Mishnah, in the third to the fifth centuries) there are at least seventeen references to passages in Aboth, introduced by one or other of the formulae regularly used in quoting from the Mishnah. Several of these references are on the authority of R. Johanan, who had been a pupil of 'Rabbi' and must have known the Mishnah as Rabbi left it. But it was incorporated in the Mishnah, as an extraneous element, not forming part of the halachic tradition. The motive for the collection of the contents of Aboth was originally the desire to indicate the links in the chain of tradition from the time of Moses to the time of the compiler, whoever he was. This earliest nucleus of Aboth is contained in ch. i, and, as I believe, ends there. It will be seen from the notes that the last teacher mentioned in ch. i died in the war of A.D. 68-70, a date which is one of the fixed points of Rabbinical chronology. Who it was that drew up this list of 'Fathers' there is no evidence to show; it might well have been R. Zadok (iv. 7), an old man who just survived the fall of Jerusalem. But it is clear that the title 'Fathers' belongs to this earliest list, and, strictly speaking, only to that. The ancient, not the contemporary, teachers were the Fathers of Israel. In ch. ii is found another list, probably suggested by, but not continuous with, the earlier one. It deals mainly with R. Johanan b. Zaccai, his teacher, and his chief pupils; in other words, with the men who re-established the tradition after the war. A connexion with the older series is made by the statement that R. Johanan b. Zaccai 'received from' Hillel. But there is no further attempt to carry on the successive stages of the tradition. The mention in ii. 1, 2 of Rabbi and his son is clearly a later addition, and the same may perhaps be the case with R. Tarphon ii. 19, 20. Chapters iii and iv (which are continuous) abandon chronology altogether, and seem to be due to a desire to enrich the former collections of ancient wisdom with specimens from later times. Ch. v in its turn abandons the form of personal reference, and consists mainly of a series of groups based on numbers. All these different elements are clearly distinguishable; but it is impossible to allot them to their respective authors. I can only suggest that Rabbi found ch. i and ii already in existence, possibly also iii and iv (if he did not compile them himself), and that he added ch. v as a conclusion to the whole collection. Ch. vi was not added till long after. The Mishnah, as left by Rabbi, contained then the treatise Aboth substantially complete; but interpolations were made in the one as in the other. Those in Aboth will be pointed out in the notes. The Mishnah became the subject of study in the Rabbinical schools both of Palestine and Babylonia, and the resulting commentary is called the Gemara. The Mishnah and the Gemara together form the Talmud, and there are thus two Talmuds, known respectively as the Jerusalem and the Babylonian. But there is no Gemara on Aboth, since it did not deal with halachah. At some period, probably after the closing of the Talmud, there was compiled a sort of expansion of Aboth, the work known as the Aboth of R. Nathan, though he was certainly not the compiler of the whole of it (see the preface in Schechter's edition of the ARN, 1887). The older Aboth was not displaced by the later expansion; it gradually came to be used as a book of edification for Sabbath reading by students in the colleges. The earliest trace of such use is in the college at Sura, towards the middle of the ninth century. At some later period, but before the end of the eleventh century, its use was extended from the colleges to the synagogues, and it was appointed to be read in the service on certain Sabbaths. Already in the college at Sura, the sixth chapter had been added to Aboth; and, if the reading was intended to last over six Sabbaths (as is the case in many Jewish communities), here would be the reason for compiling an additional chapter to the original five. Since the eleventh century, Aboth has been included in all the Jewish liturgies, though the days on which it is to be read vary in different localities. The most usual practice is to read it on the six Sabbath afternoons after Passover.

PIRKĒ ABOTH

§ 3. THE MANUSCRIPTS.

These are either of the whole Talmud, or of the Mishnah, or of Aboth separately. The Munich MS. of the Babylonian Talmud, written in 1369, and collated by Rabbinowicz for his variae lectiones, contains Aboth; but it has never been published, and the great work of Rabbinowicz was left unfinished at his death, the collation of Aboth being amongst the unprinted remainder. The most important Mishnah MS. is that in the Cambridge University Library (Add. 470. 1), fully described in Taylor's edition of Aboth (Appendix, 1900). In that Appendix, Taylor gives a classified list of 170 MSS. of Aboth contained in the libraries of London (B. Museum), Oxford (Bodleian), Cambridge, Paris, Hamburg, Berlin, St. Petersburg, and Parma. The reader is referred to Taylor's list, also to the section on MSS. in Strack's article 'Thalmud' in Hauck's Encyklopädie. The present translation and notes have been made (so far as manuscript authority is concerned) with the help of Taylor's critical material; it may be sufficient therefore to describe briefly the chief MSS. used by him. For convenience of printing, ordinary capitals have been substituted for his Old English letters.

- A. The Cambridge MS. mentioned above, containing the whole Mishnah according to the Palestinian recension, date fourteenth century. It has been published in full by W. H. Lowe, 1883. Taylor uses this as the basis of his translation. Aboth contains only five chapters.
- B. Cambridge, St. John's College, K. 7. A copy (1517) of the commentary on Aboth (six chapters) by R. Isaac Israeli (1368), which was based upon an older commentary by R. Israel of Toledo (twelfth-thirteenth centuries).
- C. Cambridge University, Add. 667, date 1220. Contains an unpointed text of Aboth (six chapters), also a commentary upon it.
- D. Br. Museum, Add. 27200-1, date not later than 1242. Contains an unpointed text of Aboth, together with commentary. Six chapters are given; but it is expressly stated that Aboth ends with v. 23.
- S. London, Jews' College, date about 1610. Contains pointed text of Aboth, six chapters, with a grammatical commentary.

§ 4. INFLUENCE OF ABOTH ON LATER LITERATURE.

Very little can be said under this head, although Pirkē Aboth has been more widely read amongst Jews than almost any other book. Its influence upon life and character has been very great, because it has kept before the minds of its readers a certain type of piety. But it does so only by expressing the ethical, and to some extent the religious, ideas common to the whole of the literature coeval with the Talmud. It strikes out no new line, presents no new thought whose influence might be traced in later writings. The object of its compilation was to collect the treasures of ancient wisdom, not to invite a search for the new. There was progressive thought in Talmudic and mediaeval Judaism; but it received no stimulus from Pirkē Aboth. When Maimonides wrote his commentary on Aboth, he got his ethics mainly from Aristotle and interpreted the Jewish wisdom in terms of the Greek. Aboth served him as a basis for his exposition, not as the source of his ideas. The same is more or less true of all the many commentaries on Aboth; the object of them is to unfold the meaning of an ancient manual of piety, according to the moral judgement of the interpreter, and not to go beyond it. The value of Aboth consisted largely in its presentation of the past, its reflection of the wisdom and piety which had stood the test of long experience, and was consecrated by the memory of revered sages and saints of the olden time. As a factor in training character it has played a great part in Jewish history; but as a source of new developments in literature, what influence it may have had is merged in that of the Talmud and the Midrash as a whole.

INTRODUCTION

Outside the domain of Jewish literature and life Aboth has had practically no effect at all. It was known only to scholars, and by them used for the illustration of Jewish thought; it did not, so far as I know, lead to any fresh literary creation by non-Jewish writers.

§ 5. THEOLOGY OF ABOTH.

As will have appeared already, the main character of the book is ethical rather than theological. A theology is certainly implied in it, but it is the theology which underlies the whole of Rabbinical Judaism, and is in no way peculiar to Aboth. A full account of this theology would be out of place in an introduction to a book which is not specially theological, and would moreover occupy far more space than could be given to it. All that will here be attempted is to remark on those features of Aboth which may be regarded as theological. The distinction here drawn between ethical and theological would be hardly felt by those for whom Aboth was intended or by whom it was compiled. To be virtuous was to do the will of God; and the way to become virtuous was to learn what He had revealed and to take it to heart. A Talmudic Rabbi would not deny that there were virtuous Gentiles; but for those to whom the Torah, the complete divine revelation, had been given, there could be no moral excellence apart from Torah. The sanction of ethics was the revealed will of God; and there was no moral worth in obeying the precepts, in doing the things prescribed, unless there were the conscious intention of serving God in so doing. Hence, for all that the maxims in Aboth are in form mostly ethical, they are in substance religious, and, to the Jew, inseparable from religion. The character formed in accordance with them is the character of the hasid, the saint, the type of what the Jew ought to be as one of the children of God. To bear this in mind is constantly necessary in reading Aboth, else the non-Jewish reader will be likely to be little impressed by a series of moral counsels which do not appear to be very profound or very interesting. Behind them all (or nearly all) is, for the Jew, the thought of his personal relation to God, to whose perfect service those counsels are the guides. In this sense, the whole of Aboth is religious, though not specifically theological.

Of theology proper, the chief concept in Aboth is Torah, as it is the chief concept in all Rabbinical theology. What Torah means has been to some extent explained in § 2. A large proportion of the maxims in Aboth refer to the study of Torah; and by that is to be understood not merely the reading of the Pentateuch but the study of the divine thought, revealed implicitly in the written word (directly in the Pentateuch, indirectly in the rest of Scripture), and rendered explicit in the oral interpretation. Torah virtually means the whole of divine truth, so far as it was accessible to human minds. The characteristic terms of Talmudic Judaism are those of teaching and learning; the names Talmud, Mishnah, Midrash express the giving or receiving of knowledge, the thing known being Torah. Hence the keynote of Rabbinism is wisdom, and its saints are its sages; and here is to be found the clue to the remarkable difference in tone and character between the Talmudic literature and the N. Testament.

When the real significance of Torah is understood, it will not seem surprising that in Aboth there is no very frequent mention of God. Wherever Torah is referred to God is implied. He is not actually named by the use of the word 'God' all through the book, except in Scriptural citations. The term most often used is 'Makom', lit. 'place', as we should say 'the All-present'.¹ But it must not be inferred from this that the Talmudic idea of God was of a remote and abstract being. This was not so; although the evidence for denying this frequent misrepresentation cannot be given here. God is once referred to, in the concluding verse of the original book, v. 23, as 'thy Father which is in heaven', a term which is quite as characteristic of Talmudic religion as 'Makom', and which belongs of right to Judaism no less than to Christianity.

In regard to God's dealings with man, His foreknowledge is asserted, but most stress is laid upon His justice which shows itself in retribution; reward and punishment are apportioned for good deeds and bad respectively, and, though sometimes described in figures of speech commercial rather than religious, reward and punishment signify the divine approval and disapproval not limited to particular forms of expression. God must be served not for the sake of the reward, but for His own sake; 'for the sake of Heaven' is only another way of saying 'for the sake of God'. The love of God to man is also mentioned, and is not confined to Israel (iii. 19). God hears prayer; and prayer is not to be restricted to fixed forms, but is to be the spontaneous utterance of the soul to Him. It may be inferred, though it is not expressly said, that as man was made in the image of God, the characteristics of the saint (see especially vi. 6) are likewise (so far as they are applicable) attributes of God.

¹ Other terms are 'Holy One, blessed be He', 'Heaven', 'Shechinah', 'King of the kings of the kings'.

PIRKĒ ABOTH

There is no theological doctrine which is taught in Aboth and not found elsewhere; while there is much that is found elsewhere and only unmentioned in Aboth because there was no occasion for it. The object of the compiler was not to produce a handbook of theology, but to illustrate from famous examples the character of the saint. For Rabbinical theology as a whole the reader is referred to the Jewish Encyclopedia, and is warned that Weber's System of Synagogue Theology is a most unsafe guide, as it presents the results of great learning from a standpoint entirely mistaken and by a method fundamentally wrong.¹ (See the present writer's Pharisaism, pp. 235-7.)

§ 6. BIBLIOGRAPHY.

There is no need to distinguish here between editions of the text and editions of the book; and the critical problems presented by the text are of comparatively small importance, relating only to various readings and interpolations. There is nothing in the criticism of Aboth comparable to the problems presented by the Hexateuch, or Isaiah, or the Synoptic Gospels.

Apart from the editions of the Mishnah and of the whole Talmud, there is, so far as I know, no editio princeps of Aboth. The separate text appeared first in the prayer-books, or less probably in the commentaries. It was never, till quite recently, printed as a book on its own account. The text in Hebrew, for private edification, has been published in many editions, but without any pretence of textual criticism.

Of critical editions, prepared with all the resources of modern scholarship, there are only two. The first is that by C. Taylor (reprinted as second edition with appendix, in two volumes, 1900). This gives text, translation, critical and general notes, and a full critical apparatus. It is quite indispensable to the student of Aboth, though the notes are somewhat overloaded and not always strictly relevant. The chief omission is an account of the origin and history of the book, a few lines in the preface being all that is given to that branch of the subject. With that exception, Taylor's edition leaves little to be said by any future editor of the text. The other critical edition is that by Strack, published in 1882. It is much shorter than that of Taylor, the notes being mainly grammatical and literary. But, so far as it goes, the work could hardly be improved; the scholarship and minute accuracy for which Strack is so well known appear on every page. The introduction, though short, includes almost everything that is necessary, except an account of the MSS. Strack does not say what text he has used, nor what is the authority for the various readings which he rejects. For further details upon editions of Aboth, see the article in the Jewish Encyclopedia, and Strack's Introduction just mentioned.

SUPPLEMENTARY NOTES.

In the following translation I have used the text as given in Taylor, in Strack, in the Wilna edition of the Talmud Babli (1880-1884), and in the Amsterdam edition of the Mishnah, 1675 (a copy that belonged to R. Moses of Rothenburg). I have not followed any one of them exclusively. I have also got useful help from the edition, with commentary, called 'Minḥah ḥadashah', 1722 (written by Michael Moravczyk and published in 1576). I have throughout consulted the commentaries of Rashi, R. Obadiah of Sforno (Bartenora), Maimonides, and Jom-tob-Heller. I have followed the usual division of chapters; but, as there is no recognized division of paragraphs, I have used my own judgement in dividing them.

¹ The student, however, should bear in mind that Rabbinic Pharisaism after the destruction of the Temple in 70 A. D. differs largely from Pharisaism before that date. See the Introduction to this Vol.—Gen. Editor.

PIRKĒ ABOTH

SAYINGS OF THE FATHERS

- 1 Moses received Torah from Sinai and delivered it to Joshua, and Joshua to the Elders, and the Elders to the Prophets, and the Prophets delivered it to the men of the Great Synagogue. They said three things: Be deliberate in judgement; and raise up many disciples; and make a fence for the Torah.
- 2 Simeon the Just was of the remnants of the Great Synagogue. He used to say: On three things the world standeth: on the Torah, and on the Service, and on the doing of kindnesses.
- 3 Antigonos of Socho received from Simeon the Just. He used to say: Be not like slaves who serve the master with a view to receiving a present; but be like slaves who serve the master not with a view to receiving a present: and let the fear of Heaven be upon you.
- 4 Jose ben Joezer of Zeredah and Jose ben Joḥanan of Jerusalem received from them. Jose b. Joezer of Zeredah said: Let thy house be a house of meeting for the Wise, and bedust thyself with the dust of their feet, and drink with thirst their words.

I. 1. Torah. A technical term not identical with 'Law'. Torah (= teaching) denotes the revelation which God gave to Israel by Moses, supposed to be complete and final. The Pentateuch is the written record of that teaching; hence the name Torah is often applied to the Pentateuch. But Torah included also the unwritten tradition whereby the implicit contents of the revelation were made explicit by successive interpretations. No English word is equivalent to Torah, which is therefore retained untranslated in the text and the notes.

the Elders. Probably the 'able men' chosen by Moses to assist him (Exod. xviii. 25), and regarded as a permanent body.

Great Synagogue. In the rabbinical tradition a council founded by Ezra which lasted for many years. The scanty references to it indicate the assembly mentioned in Neh. ix, x. No such permanent council can be shown to have existed; but the tradition is not wholly worthless. The term 'Great Synagogue' may be taken to denote the early Scribes (Sopherim), who developed the religion of Torah on the lines and in the spirit of Ezra, for several generations after his time. See my Pharisaism, pp. 18-22.

They said, i.e. the men of the Great Synagogue said. Tradition represented as decrees of a council what were probably only the rules agreed on by the Scribes for their own guidance. The three sayings are certainly very ancient. It was the duty of the Scribes to judge, also to teach Torah.

a fence for the Torah, סיג לתורה. This does not mean that the Torah was to be made into a stiff hedge, but refers merely to precautions by which a man might be guarded from transgression before it was too late.

2. Simeon the Just, or the Righteous. It is impossible to be sure who is meant, whether Simeon, grandson of Jaddua, who was High Priest from 310 to 291 B. C. (or 300-270), or his grandson, who was High Priest from 219 to 199. Josephus mentions both (Ant. xii. 2. 5 and 4. 10), but he only applies the epithet 'the Just' to the older man. The Simon of Sirach i is probably the younger, and he is not there called 'the Just'. The rabbinical references confuse the two, and possibly allude to other men also.

the world standeth. Meaning that the three things are the fundamentals of human (or perhaps national) life.

Torah. See above.

the Service, העבודה. The Temple service. The three things represent revelation, worship, and sympathy, i. e. God's word to man, man's response to God, and man's love to his fellow men.

3. Antigonos of Socho. Note the Greek name. His date, being dependent on that of Simeon the Just, is uncertain. Later tradition said that he had two disciples, one of whom, Zadok, became the founder of the Sadducees.

a present. The Hebr. word פֶּרֶם represents the Gk. phoros, and is distinguished from 'reward', שָׂכָר, that which the servant has a right to expect.

fear of Heaven, i. e. the fear of God. Heaven, for God, a frequent substitute in Jewish speech; the most familiar instance is 'kingdom of heaven' = kingdom of God. The two dicta of Antigonos are unconnected with each other.

4. From here to v. 12, the successive teachers are arranged in pairs. They are so grouped elsewhere in the Talmud, and are called Zūgōth (Pairs). They are represented in tradition as having been, in each case, the president and vice-president of the Sanhedrin, the great council of the state. This is incorrect, as Kuenen has conclusively shown (see his essay 'Over de samenstelling van het Sanhedrin'). If, however, there were some assembly of Scribes, as suggested above, v. 1, then the Zūgōth may have been presidents and vice-presidents of that body.

Jose b. Joezer was probably among the sixty who were killed by Alcimus (1 Macc. vii. 16), 162 B. C. Alcimus is said to have been his nephew.

from them, מֵהֵם. The MSS. and printed texts are divided between this reading and an alternative 'from him' מִמֶּנּוּ. For the former ABCD, for the latter S. Taylor, Baer, and Strack adopt the former. The latter is perhaps due to a desire to obviate the difficulty of the reading 'from them', since only Antigonos is mentioned in the preceding verse. The reading 'from them' implies that a name or names are missing between Antigonos and the first Pair. This favours the authenticity of the list; if it had been fictitious, names would have been supplied.

the Wise. The recognized teachers, whether the early Scribes or the later Rabbis.

bedust thyself. The disciple should sit at the feet of his teacher; cp. Acts xxii. 3.

- 5 Jose b. Johanan of Jerusalem said: Let thy house be opened wide; and let poor folk be thy household; and talk not much with the wife.
- 5 a [He said it concerning his own wife; much more concerning the wife of his associate. Hence the Wise have said: So long as a man talks much with the wife he causes evil to himself, and desists from words of Torah, and his end is that he inherits Gehenna.]
- 6 Joshua b. Peraḥiah and Nittai the Arbelite received from them. Joshua b. Peraḥiah said: Make to thyself a teacher; and get thee an associate; and judge every man with a leaning to his merit.
- 7 Nittai the Arbelite said: Keep far from an evil neighbour, and consort not with the wicked, and be not heedless of retribution.
- 8 Judah b. Tabbai and Simeon b. Shetaḥ received from them. Judah b. Tabbai said: Make not thyself as those that prepare the judges; and when the suitors are standing before thee let them be in thine eyes as wicked men; and when they have been dismissed from before thee let them be in thine eyes as just men who have received their sentence.
- 9 Simeon b. Shetaḥ said: Do much in examining the witnesses; and be careful in thy words; perchance by means of them they may learn to lie.
- 10 Shemaiah and Abtalion received from them. Shemaiah said: Love work, and hate mastery, and make not thyself known to the government.

5. the wife, or 'woman' in general; cp. John iv. 27. But the former is more likely, because the whole verse refers to the one household; also in the following verse, which interprets this saying, the meaning is clearly 'wife'.

5 a. This verse is a later comment on the preceding, though it is included in all the MSS. Ch. i is the oldest part of the treatise (v. Introduction); this verse may have been added by the compiler.

He said it. The Hebr. is אָמַר, which, being unpointed, may be translated 'he said it', or 'they said'. The former suits the context, while the latter can only be made intelligible by supplying 'the Wise' from the next clause. Taylor and Strack render 'they said', and do not notice the alternative. Schoettgen has 'he said it', dixit. The meaning of the prohibition to talk with the wife is variously explained: (a) it distracts the man's attention from words of Torah; (b) she may put him to shame by gossiping of what he says to her; (c) it may lead to his talking with other women, thence to suspicion, thence to sin.

inherits, יוֹרֵשׁ. So most MSS. S has יוֹרֵד 'descends into'. 'Inherit' is frequently used of Paradise, the bliss after death; v. infra, v. 22, 'Garden of Eden', and cp. Matt. xxv. 34, 41.

Gehenna, Γέεννα, the abode of the wicked after death.

6. The second Pair, v. supra, i. 4. Their approximate date is 110 B. C. J. b. Peraḥiah, according to one set of traditions in the Talmud, was the teacher of Jesus.

Nittai the Arbelite. From Arbela (mod. Irbid) in Galilee, a few miles west-north-west of Tiberias. Nittai is the usual reading, and is a contracted form of Nethaniah. A reads Mattai, here and Hag. ii. 2, the only other place where this teacher is mentioned; the difference is only between נִתַּי and נִתַּי.

associate, haber, חֵבֵר, the name applied to members of a society, habūrah, pledged to strict observance of the rules of 'clean' and 'unclean', &c. The term is possibly derived from Ps. cxix. 63, and was used by Pharisees to designate each other.

leaning to his merit, לִכְפֵּי זְכוּת. Metaphor of a balance with two pans, one to hold the merit, the other the demerit. That which holds the merit is to be helped to descend. The maxim simply means 'believe the best of every man'.

7. evil neighbour. Probably general.

heedless, perhaps 'hopeless'. It has been suggested (J. Enc. s. v. Nittai) that this third saying was uttered in reference to the persecution of the Pharisees by John Hyrcanus after he had gone over to the Sadducees (Josephus, Ant. xiii. 10. 6), and that it was meant to encourage the Pharisees to hope that Hyrcanus would yet be punished for his apostasy. This is possible; but the commentators interpret the saying of retribution in general.

8. The third Pair. S. b. Shetaḥ, brother-in-law of King Jannaus (126-76 B. C.), whom he survived. He was successful in restoring the influence of the Pharisees which had been lost under Hyrcanus (see above). In the tradition, though J. b. Tabbai is here placed first, S. b. Sh. is by far the more important. (See Rev. d. Études Juives, 1912, pp. 216-32.)

prepare the judges, עוֹרְכֵי הַדִּיּוּן, i. e. influence them before the trial. As the maxim is addressed to judges the meaning seems to be 'do not listen to those who prepare the judges', in any case 'be impartial'. This clause is repeated below, iv. 7. [If we read הַדִּיּוּן we have an excellent sense: 'Make not thyself like those who prepare the suits,' i. e. do not play the part of a counsel but of a judge.—Gen. Editor.]

wicked: not, however, guilty (Taylor). The judge must not assume that the accused has done what he is accused of, but must merely show no favour to either party; he must not say 'this man is respectable' (Rashi).

just: as they have received the sentence, there is no further ground of imputing evil to them; they have satisfied the law.

9. Again addressed to judges. careful in thy words, זְהִיר בְּדַבְרֶיךָ: the judge is not to indicate what his own opinion is, lest the witnesses should adapt their evidence to his views and swear falsely for the sake of a verdict in their favour.

10. The fourth Pair. Shemaiah and Abtalion are probably the Σαμέας and Πολλίων of Josephus (Ant. xv. 1. 1). Both are said to have been proselytes of heathen origin; but Grätz (G. d. Jud. iii. 481) disproves this, and suggests that they were Alexandrian Jews. Date, 60 B. C., circa. Shemaiah is the more prominent figure; but it is said by Josephus that he was a disciple of Abtalion.

mastery, רַבְּנוּת, the word used in later literature to describe the status of a Rabbi. It cannot have that meaning here, for Shemaiah himself was a Rabbi, and magnified his office. The Talmud (b. Sotah. 13^b) says that 'Joseph died before his brethren because he behaved with rabbanuth', i. e. he domineered over them. Shemaiah warns against arrogance.

- 11 Abtalion said: Ye Wise, be careful in your words; lest ye become guilty with the guilt that involves exile, and be exiled to a place of evil waters, and the disciples that come after you drink and die, and the Name of Heaven be found profaned.
- 12 Hillel and Shammai received from them. Hillel said: Be of the disciples of Aaron, one that loves peace, that pursues peace, that loves mankind and brings them nigh to Torah.
- 13 He used to say: Whoso makes great his name destroys his name; whoso adds not makes to cease; and he who will not learn is guilty so as to deserve killing. And whoso serves himself with the crown passes away.
- 14 He used to say: If I am not for myself, who is for me? And when I am for myself, what am I? And if not now, when?
- 15 Shammai said: Make thy Torah a fixed duty; say little and do much; and receive every man with the look of a cheerful face.
- 16 Rabban Gamaliel said: Make to thyself a teacher; and remove thyself from what is doubtful; and do not often tithe by mental valuation.

government, רשות. The authorities (so ii. 3 below). It is dangerous to become known to the authorities, or it is corrupting. Probably here the latter is meant; as Shemaiah was very well known to the authorities.

11. Wise. The teachers, Rabbis; see above, i. 4. To expound Torah wrongly is to promote the transgression of its precepts. If, as the divine retribution for doing so, a teacher is exiled to a place of evil waters, i. e. a place where there is no sound teaching of Torah, he may perpetuate his error, so that those who come after, i. e. learn from him, may drink, i. e. receive his teaching, and die, i. e. fall into sin for which death is the divine punishment. In that case, it will be found, i. e. it will result, that the name of God has been profaned.

12. Hillel and Shammai, the fifth and last Pair (date 30 B. C. and after). Hillel is said to have lived 120 years, but this is only a way of comparing him with Moses. The same is said of R. Johanan b. Zaccai. The disciples of H. and S. were divided in opinion upon many questions, and their controversies lasted for nearly a century. It was perhaps owing to this that no further Pairs are mentioned. The authorized tradition was that of the school of H.; and, with the one exception of R. Joh. b. Zaccai, descendants of H. successively held the leading position (later, with the title of 'Nasi', 'prince') down to A. D. 415. Seven sayings of H. are given in this book, i. 12-14, ii. 5-8. The originals are part in Hebrew, part in Aramaic.

disciples of Aaron. The association of Aaron with peace is frequent in the Rabbinical literature, and is possibly due to H. himself.

mankind, בריות, lit. 'creatures', but the commentators agree that it refers to the human race as a whole; and thus it often denotes the Gentiles as distinguished from the Jews. Taylor compares Mark xvi. 15 and Rom. viii. 19. The sense is probably the same; but in these and similar passages κρίσις is in the singular (R. V. 'creation').

brings . . . nigh to Torah, מקרבן לתורה. As the Torah was the divine revelation, the 'creatures', i. e. all mankind, should be invited to come and share in it. This is the motive of 'compass sea and land to make one proselyte', Matt. xxiii. 15.

13. The original is in Aramaic. name, reputation. For the sense of the maxim cp. 'vaulting ambition doth o'erleap itself' (Shaks.).

adds not, i. e. to what he learns from his teacher; he must contribute something from his own intelligence.

makes to cease. The reading varies between the trans. and the intrans. יסף and יסוף. In the first case the learner loses what he has learned; in the second he comes to an end, is good for nothing.

guilty . . . killing, קטלא חיב. For the form of the phrase cp. (A. V.) Matt. xxvi. 66. 'Guilty of death' gives the wrong sense in English; but it exactly represents the Hebrew, of which ἐνοχος θανάτου is the rendering in the Gospel. To refuse to learn Torah at all is to despise the divine revelation, and is, as it were, spiritual suicide. One who does so 'deserves death', but is not 'guilty of killing' himself.

serves himself, makes his own profit out of.

crown: any position of authority or privilege, here his knowledge of Torah. The teacher of Torah must not be paid for teaching. The Rabbis either worked for their living or had private means. See below, iv. 7, where this maxim is paraphrased by R. Zadok, and Hillel's own words added, perhaps by the editor.

14. Original in Hebrew. The general sense is of self-reliance and readiness. The contrast between 'now' and 'when?' refers either to 'this world' and 'the world to come', or else merely to the present and some future time. The opportunity may never come again.

15. Shammai (see above, v. 12) was much less prominent in the tradition. He had the character of being harsh and severe, as contrasted with Hillel.

fixed, קבע: 'duty' is added to complete the sense. Torah is to be the foundation of all, the one essential in life, and the study of it is to take precedence over everything else. Another interpretation is that fixed times are to be kept for the study of Torah lest it be omitted. Another is, that Torah (precept) is to be applied uniformly, not in favour of one and against another, but equally to both.

16. Rabban Gamaliel. In Hebrew גמליאל. Grandson of Hillel; this is the teacher of Paul, and the Gamaliel of Acts v. 34. Rabban is a title, first used in his case, to denote the head of the house of Hillel. According to the Rabbinical view, this carried with it the presidency of the Sanhedrin; but the passage in Acts shows that Gamaliel did not hold that position. After the fall of Jerusalem, when the Sanhedrin ceased to be the great council under the presidency of the High Priest, and became merely the assembly of the Rabbis, the chief of the house of Hillel was its president; except that for some years, A. D. 70-80, R. Johanan b. Zaccai held the office. The title Rabban is not indicated in the passage in Acts; but if it were the retrospective compliment of a later age, it would almost certainly have been given also to Hillel. Perhaps it is the expression of the fact that Gamaliel was 'held in honour of all the people'.

remove . . . doubtful, הסתלק מן הספק. Taylor renders 'Be quit of doubt', but does not explain the saying. The commentators connect it with the previous saying, and take it to mean, 'In doubtful cases consult some one else,

- 17 Simeon his son said: All my days I have grown up among the Wise, and I have not found anything better than silence; and not study is the chief thing but action; and whoso makes many words occasions sin.
- 18 Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel said: On three things the world stands: on judgement, on truth, and on peace. [As it is said: 'Truth and judgement of peace judge ye in your gates.']
- 21 Rabbi said: What is that right way which a man should choose for himself? Whatever is an honour to him that does it and an honour to him in the sight of men. And be careful over a light precept as over a weighty, for thou knowest not the giving of the rewards of the precepts. And reckon the loss involved in a precept against its reward, and the reward of a sin against its loss. And and do not depend on your own judgement alone'; the reference is to the functions of a judge, and not to the difficulties of a searcher after truth. The third saying is mere practical advice not to rely on guesswork in estimating the amount to be separated (from corn, &c.) as tithe.

Zech i

17. Simeon his son. This would be the son of the preceding, and is so understood by nearly all the commentators. But a much more probable explanation is that v. 16, 17 have been transposed, and that the Simeon of v. 17 is the son of Hillel and father of Gamaliel. In favour of this view is the fact that this Simeon is not called Rabban, as he would have been if he had succeeded Gamaliel. Also, that Simeon the son of Hillel was so unimportant that he is only once mentioned in the Talmud; this is in keeping with the saying mentioned in v. 17, which is the utterance of a shy, retiring man. Also, in v. 18, there is Rabban Simeon b. Gamaliel, i. e. the man to whom v. 17 is commonly supposed to refer, viz. the Simeon who was one of the leading men during the siege of Jerusalem (Jos. Wars, iv. 3. 9). The commentators, however, having already assigned v. 17 to him, are obliged to assign v. 18 to a younger S. b. Gamaliel, in the middle of the second century, who is here quite out of place. The identification I propose makes the arrangement simple and natural; it brings the line of Hillel down to the year of the siege and stops there, in accordance with the remark in the Talmud (b. Shabb. 15^a) that the order of succession was: Hillel, Simeon, Gamaliel, Simeon; of whom it is said that the four held office for a hundred years prior to the destruction of the Temple. The whole line of descent for the period included in this book is as follows: Hillel, Simeon I, Gamaliel I, Simeon II, Gamaliel II, Simeon III, Judah the Prince, Gamaliel III, each being son of his predecessor. For the bearing of this conjecture on the compilation of the book, see the Introduction. The saying recited in v. 17 scarcely needs explanation; it is in keeping with the character of a man who had no head for study, and found it safest to remain silent. It was natural that he should lay more stress on the practice than on the theory of Torah. On the danger of much speaking cp. iii. 17 below, 'Silence is a fence for wisdom.'

18. For the identification of this teacher, see preceding note. This is the Simeon of the siege, in the course of or soon after which he was apparently killed. His maxim is a variant on v. 2 above, where three fundamentals are laid down in a saying ascribed to Simeon the Just. The text, Zech. viii. 16, cited in support of the maxim, is probably an editorial addition. The citations of Scripture become more frequent in the later parts of the book, but it is seldom possible to be sure whether any of them were included in the original text.

II. 1. For the division of chapters in this book see the Introduction.

Rabbi. This is R. Judah the Prince (Nasi), son of Simeon III, see above on i. 17; also called Judah the Holy (ha-ḳadosh). The title Rabbi was given to every accredited teacher in Palestine, but always with the addition of his own name, thus—Rabbi Zadok. In the case of Judah the Holy, the name was omitted and the title alone given, as if to indicate that he was the Rabbi par excellence. Rabbi died A.D. 219. He is said to have been born A.D. 135, but this is probably too early. He was the last and chief compiler of the Mishnah, though additions were made to it after his time. This is evident from the mention of him in this verse, and still more from v. 2. See the Introduction.

way, path, or course, used as in English of the manner of life, course of action. The 'way of the earth', דרך ארץ, means general intercourse with one's fellow men. It was the aim of the Rabbis to deduce from Torah directions for the practical service of God in daily life, guidance in the right 'way'; and the rules which they formulated were called (singly and collectively) 'halachah', הלכה, i. e. 'going', in other words 'rule of right conduct'. The Mishnah is, mainly, a collection of 'halachah', and the Gemara the commentary on it. Mishnah and Gemara together make up the Talmud. For the use of the term 'way', in its ethical meaning, cp. Acts xviii. 26; xix. 9, 23; xxiv. 14; also the title of the early Jewish treatise, adapted to Christian use, 'The Two Ways.'

a man, האדם, not especially a Jew.

him that does it. The almost universal reading is לעשה, which is pointed either לעֲשֶׂה or לעֲשֶׂהוּ. I do not venture to depart from this in the translation. But עשה is not the verb which would naturally be used in reference to דרך 'way'; and, further, some commentators have felt that the maxim of Rabbi requires a different antithesis. R. Israel of Toledo (twelfth to thirteenth century) suggests that לעשה ought to be read לעֲשֶׂהוּ (or, more simply, לעֲשֶׂהוּ, as the first letter of the next word is ו), and translated 'to his Maker'. The maxim would then mean that a man's actions should be honourable in the sight of God, as well as in the sight of men. This is certainly a brilliant conjecture, but there is no manuscript authority for it. According to the usual reading, the meaning is merely that a man should do what is a credit to himself and meets with the approval of his fellow men.

light . . . weighty, קלה . . . חמורה, i. e. in appearance. In theory, all precepts of the Torah were of equal obligation, because all were expressions of the divine will.

rewards, שכר. The Rabbis meant by 'reward' the sign (whatever form it might take) of God's approval of what was done in obedience to His will; they did not mean a payment for service rendered, a claim for which could be set up against God. The precepts were to be obeyed 'with a perfect heart', not for the sake of the reward. (See my Pharisaism, pp. 267-76.) The saying of Rabbi is commented on in this sense (though he is not named) in Midrash Rabbah, Deut., p. 112^a, a fine passage too long to quote.

loss . . . reward, הפסד מצוה . . . שכרה. Whatever sacrifice a duty entails there is the divine approval for it, keep in view three things, and thou wilt not come into the clutches of sin; know what is above thee, an eye that sees and an ear that hears, and all thy deeds written in a book.

2 Rabban Gamaliel the son of Rabbi Judah the Prince said: Comely is study of Torah with worldly occupation, for toil in both makes sin forgotten. And all Torah without work ends in failure and brings with it sin. And let all who labour with the congregation labour with them for the Name of Heaven, for the merit of their fathers upholds them, and their righteousness standeth for ever. And ye—I confer upon you, saith God, [plenteous] reward, as if ye had wrought.

3 Be careful with the government, for they do not come near to a man except for their own need; and they appear like friends in the hour of their advantage, and they stand not by a man in the hour of his need.

4 He used to say: Make His will as thy will that He may make thy will as His will; efface thy will before His will that He may efface the will of others before thy will.

5 Hillel said: Separate thyself not from the congregation, and be not sure of thyself till the day of thy death; and judge not thine associate until thou comest to his place. And say not of a word which cannot be understood that it will be understood in the end. And say not 'when I am at leisure I will study'; perchance thou wilt not be at leisure.

6 He used to say: A rude man fears not sin; and no vulgar person is pious; and the shy man does and whatever be the advantage or profit gained by sin, there is the divine disapproval, retribution, behind it. Cp. Matt. xvi. 26.

three things. It is not quite clear what the 'three things' are, as 'know what is above thee' may be reckoned as one of them. But probably this is only a variation on 'consider', and the three things are the seeing eye, the listening ear, and the book of record. C reads 'know that above thee are', &c. For the book of record cp. Rev. xx. 12.

2. Rabban Gamaliel. This is Gamaliel III, son of Rabbi. His date may be put at A.D. 250; hardly anything is known of him. The heads of the house of Hillel continued to hold the position of Nasi, and were the representatives of their people in dealing with the Roman government; but they ceased to take the lead in the teaching of Torah in the Rabbinical schools. Of this Gamaliel's contemporaries, the chief teachers were R. Joḥanan in Palestine and Rab in Babylonia.

worldly occupation, דרך ארץ. See above, note on v. 1, on 'way of the earth'; Rabbinical opinion was divided on the amount of דרך ארץ to be allowed in conjunction with Torah; see below, iii. 20, vi. 7.

failure . . . sin, עון . . . בטלה. The consequences, not of Torah, but of Torah without practice; cp. Jas. ii. 26, iv. 17.

congregation, צבור. The community of Israel as a whole, or any local community; the reference is to synagogue officials, and more particularly to the 'parnas' or steward who dispensed the charity and administered the funds of the congregation. The steward must do his work as a service of God, and not take credit to himself for what he does. The congregation do their charity through him, but the 'righteousness' is theirs, not his. The merit of their fathers upholds them, not the merit of the steward. But, if the steward acts thus piously and disinterestedly, there is reward, divine approval, for him also. God reckons it to him as if he had done from himself what the congregation have done through his agency.

saith God, or, the Scripture, not in the text but implied in the singular of the verb מעלה. A has the plural מעלין 'they confer', 'they' being the angels, the 'family above', as they are called in the Rabbinical literature. The phrase is often used as equivalent to Providence. There is no thought of beings independent of God. ABC omit plenteous.

3. This is apparently said by the same R. Gamaliel III as the preceding. It is not clear to whom the advice is addressed. Gamaliel himself, as Nasi, was the official representative of the Jews to the Roman authorities; but the synagogue stewards may have been brought into contact with government officials. But it is possible that the saying, being anonymous, does not belong to Gamaliel at all, and may be addressed to others than the stewards of the preceding verse. The saying is based on bitter experience of the ways of the Roman government, but expresses a cynical opinion about all governments, that they only act from self-interest.

4. He. The speaker of the preceding verse, presumably Gamaliel III.

His will, i.e. God's will. The thought is clear, but falls short of the unconditional submission of 'Not as I will, but as Thou wilt. Thy will be done.' There is no exact parallel to that saying of Jesus in the Rabbinical literature.

5. Hillel. See above, i. 12. There was a much later Hillel, but there is no ground for supposing that the speaker here is any but the early and famous Hillel. For the want of chronological order in the book see the Introduction.

Separate . . . congregation. Probably intended as a warning against taking up strange and heretical opinions and practices. The saying is ascribed to R. Zadok, see below, iv. 7, but perhaps only because he there repeats another saying of Hillel.

say not . . . understood. The reading varies between אפשר 'can be', and אי אפשר 'cannot be'. Also some commentators supply על 'of', to make sense. Two interpretations are possible: (a) the teacher shall not teach what cannot be understood and excuse himself by saying that it will be understood in time, after reflection by the learner; he ought to express his meaning clearly at the first; (b) the learner ought not to say 'of' anything which is taught and which seems to him unintelligible, that he will learn what it means later on; he ought to apply himself to it at once till he masters it. The difference between 'can be' and 'cannot be' understood is in appearance, not in reality. The interpretation (b) is that of Rashi (or the commentary ascribed to him). It is confirmed by the final clause, 'say not when I am at leisure,' &c.

6. rude, בור, 'empty of everything, even the knowledge of business' (Bartenora). He has no Torah to keep him from sin.

vulgar, in the sense of 'one of the common herd'. Hebr. עם הארץ, a famous term much discussed. It denotes all who for whatever reason did not seek to conform their lives and actions to the Torah. Cp. John vii. 49.

shy, בישן. One who is afraid to ask his teacher to explain what he does not understand.

not learn nor the passionate teach, nor he that hath much business become wise. And in a place where there are no men strive to be a man.

- 7 Moreover, he saw a skull which floated on the face of the water, and he said to it: Because thou drownedst they drowned thee; and at the last they who drowned thee shall be drowned.
- 8 He used to say: More flesh more worms; more wealth more care; more maidservants more lewdness; more menservants more thieving; more women more witchcraft; more Torah more life; more classroom more wisdom; more counsel more discernment; more righteousness more peace. Whoso has gained a good name has gained it for himself; who has gained for himself words of Torah has gained for himself the life of the world to come.
- 9 Rabban Johanan b. Zaccai received from Hillel and from Shammai. He used to say: If thou hast practised much Torah, take not credit to thyself, for thereunto wast thou created.
- 10 Five disciples there were to Rabban Johanan b. Zaccai, and these are they: Rabbi Eliezer b. Hyrcanus, Rabbi Joshua b. Hananiah, Rabbi Jose the priest, Rabbi Simeon b. Nathaniel, and Rabbi Eleazar b. Arach. He used to sum up their praise—Eliezer b. Hyrcanus is a plastered cistern which loseth not a drop; Joshua b. Hananiah, happy is she who bore him; Jose the priest is pious; Simeon b. Nathaniel feareth sin; Eleazar b. Arach is a full-flowing spring.
- 11 He used to say: If all the Wise of Israel were in one scale of the balance and Eliezer b. Hyrcanus in the other scale, he would weigh down them all. Abba Saul said, in his name: If all the Wise of Israel were in one scale of the balance and Eliezer b. Hyrcanus with them, and Eleazar b. Arach in the other scale, he would weigh them all down.
- 12 He said to them: Go and see what is that good way to which a man should cleave. R. Eliezer said: A good eye. R. Joshua said: A good associate. R. Jose said: A good neighbour. R. Simeon said: He that regards the result of an action. R. Eleazar said: A good heart. He said to them: I regard the words of Eleazar b. Arach more than your words, for your words are included in his.
- 13 He said to them: Go and see what is that evil way from which a man should keep himself.

passionate, קפדן. The teacher who loses his temper when his pupils do ask him questions.
become wise. Cp. Sirach xxxviii. 24.

7. An epigram of retribution. The original is in Aramaic.

8. A series of epigrams. For the sake of brevity the original מרבה 'one that increases' is rendered by 'more'. There is more of cynicism in these sayings than of the gentle and lovable nature for which Hillel was traditionally famous.

9. Rabban Johanan b. Zaccai. One of the disciples of Hillel; he died about A.D. 80, and is said to have been 120 years old; probably he was born about the beginning of our era. He saved Judaism after the fall of Jerusalem, A.D. 70, by gathering the surviving Rabbis in Jabneh, and re-establishing the broken fabric of the study of Torah. The surviving heir of the House of Hillel, Gamaliel II, son of Simeon II (see above, i. 17, 18), was probably too young to take the lead. He succeeded to the presidency on the death (or retirement?) of R. Johanan. Note that the title 'Rabban' is given to Johanan; also that he is said to have 'received from' Hillel, the same phrase as that used in the earlier verses of ch. i. This is the last occasion on which the phrase is used in the book.

practised, עשיה. So ABCD, supported by Abarbanel and many commentators. The printed editions have 'learned', למדה, possibly influenced by a similar phrase in ii. 20. Since the verb עשה does not go well with 'Torah', some MSS. read טובה 'good', instead of תורה, with the meaning 'done much good'; but the authority for this is very slight. It may have been suggested by טובה after אל תחזק.

10. The five disciples of R. Johanan. All are known in the Rabbinical tradition, but the first two far outshone the others. R. Eliezer died shortly before A.D. 116, and was then an old man. R. Joshua had been a singer in the Temple. He was living in A.D. 130, for he met the emperor Hadrian in Alexandria; but he was dead before the rebellion of Bar Cōcheba broke out in A.D. 135. Of the other three Rabbis, no chronological details can be given. ACD omit 'Rabbi' before their names when their master refers to them; the printed texts add it. Note the reference to the mother of R. Joshua; tradition says that she used to bring him in his cradle to the Synagogue that he might thus early be accustomed to hear words of Torah (Jer. Jeb. 3 a). This is reported by Dosa b. Harchinas (see below, iii. 14), who knew him as a child.

11. He, i. e. R. Johanan. The two clauses contradict each other. R. Eliezer and R. Eleazar b. Arak cannot both have been supreme. The remark of Abba Saul (a contemporary) seems intended to replace a misquoted opinion of R. Johanan by a correct version. This is confirmed by R. Johanan's approval of R. Eleazar in v. v. 12, 13.

12. He. Again R. Johanan.

Go and see. Merely an opening formula, 'Come now.'

good way. See above on ii. 1. The answers give not a 'way' but the clue to finding the way.

good eye. Cp. Matt. vi. 22, 23. In general it means an unselfish disposition.

associate. See above on i. 6.

neighbour. See above, i. 7.

result of an action. The meaning is that the 'good way' is found by learning from experience.

good heart, as being the source of all feeling and all action. This is the ground why R. Johanan approved R. Eleazar's answer before all the rest.

13. The negatives to the preceding answers. R. Simeon, however, varies the form of his reply. The man who borrows and does not pay is one who acts without considering the consequences. The clause, 'He that borrows from man,' &c., although it is included in the MSS., is probably a later gloss, because it is out of keeping with the brevity of all the other replies. The proof-text shows that the author of the gloss interpreted R. S.'s saying of literal borrowing.

R. Eliezer said: An evil eye. R. Joshua said: An evil associate. R. Jose said: An evil neighbour. R. Simeon said: He that borrows and does not pay. [He that borrows from man is as he that borrows from God, blessed be He; as it is said, 'The wicked borroweth and payeth not, but the righteous showeth favour and giveth.'] R. Eleazar said: An evil heart. He said to them: I regard the words of Eleazar b. Arach more than your words; for your words are included in his.

Ps. xxxvi.

14 They said each three things. R. Eliezer said: Let the honour of thine associate be dear to thee as thine own. And be not easily wroth; and repent one day before thy death. And warm thyself at the fire of the Wise, and be careful of their glowing coal lest thou be singed. For their bite is the bite of a jackal, and their sting the sting of a scorpion, and their hiss the hiss of a serpent, and all their words like coals of fire.

15 R. Joshua said: An evil eye and the evil principle and hatred of mankind drive a man out of the world.

16 R. Jose said: Let the wealth of thy associate be dear to thee as thine own. And set thyself to learn Torah, for it is not a legacy to thee. And let all thy actions be to the Name of Heaven.

17 R. Simeon said: Be careful in reading the 'Shema' and in prayer. And when thou prayest make not thy prayer a fixed form, but [mercies and] entreaties before God. [As it is said: 'For he is gracious and merciful, longsuffering and full of compassion, and repenteth him of the evil.'] And be not wicked in thine own sight. Joel ii. 17

18 R. Eleazar said: Be alert to learn Torah, [and know] what thou shalt answer to an Epicurean;

14. They. The five Rabbis of the preceding verses.

three things. It will be noticed that most of the teachers in i, ii are credited with a group of three sayings; this arrangement is not maintained in the case of later teachers. The three sayings of R. Eliezer are variously distinguished, according as the remark about 'the fire of the Wise', &c., is included or excluded. Maimonides excludes it, and this seems right, although a connexion can be made out between the other three clauses so as to group two of them as one. R. Eliezer was excommunicated in his old age by his colleagues; and the caustic criticism of the Wise probably expresses his sentiments upon the subject. It may well have been remembered as an epigram, but hardly as an expression of habitual wisdom.

honour, good name, credit. For a variant of the saying see below, iv. 15.

repent . . . death. R. Eliezer explained his meaning thus:—Repent every day, since thou knowest not the day of thy death (b. Shabb. 153^a).

fire of the Wise, as being dangerous to play with. The vivid similes which follow are easily intelligible under the circumstances of R. Eliezer's closing years, and need no comment.

15. evil eye. See on v. 12, above.

evil principle, יצר הרע. According to the Rabbinical psychology, there were in every man two opposing principles or impulses, one towards good, the other towards evil. The evil principle corresponds to the σάρξ of Paul.

mankind. See above on i. 12. In place of בריות C reads חנם 'without cause', possibly influenced by a similar phrase in b. Joma 9^b. Cp. Matt. v. 22, where, however, εὐκαὶ is omitted in R. V.

drive . . . out of the world, מן העולם . . . מוציאין. Taylor compares 1 John iii. 15; but the exclusion referred to in R. Joshua's saying is exclusion from this world, not from that to come. The meaning is that the selfish man is solitary; he cuts himself off from all human fellowship.

16. wealth. For the form of the saying cp. ii. 14, and note the contrast.

legacy, ירשה. Torah has to be learned, acquired, by a man's own effort, even though God gave Torah to Israel as a permanent possession.

to the name of Heaven, for the sake of. Cp. Col. iii. 17.

17. 'Shema'. The first word of Deut. vi. 4, 'Hear, O Israel,' &c. The term 'Shema' denotes the first of a group of three texts, Deut. vi. 4-9, xi. 13-21, Num. xv. 37-41, which may be called the heart of the Jewish liturgy. The Shema had to be recited in the morning and evening of every day. Cp. Mark xii. 29.

fixed form, קבע. If this refers to the public prayers, the meaning is that the spiritual intention of prayer is to be kept in mind during the recital of prescribed formulae. If it refers to private prayer, then the meaning is that this should not be a matter of prescribed formulae at all, but the spontaneous utterance of the soul. (See my Pharisaism, pp. 305-6.)

[mercies]. ABCD omit. It was perhaps suggested by the proof-text, which itself was probably an editorial addition.

God. The word used here is מקום 'place', a frequent designation of the Deity. It might be paraphrased in English by 'the Omnipresent'; but it is often used of God without special reference to that one attribute.

wicked . . . sight, רשע בפני עצמך. The meaning is doubtful. I translate according to the interpretation of Maimonides. Taylor translates 'wicked against thyself'; Geiger (quoted by Strack), 'wicked when thou art by thyself.' The difficulty, however, is to understand why such counsel should be needed. Bartenora quotes an interpretation which he had heard, 'wicked in standing by thyself,' i. e. in severing thyself from the congregation (see above on ii. 5). If this had been the meaning, a repetition of Hillel's saying would have been simpler. I suggest that the meaning is: 'Though others call thee wicked, no matter so long as thine own conscience reproach thee not.'

18. [and know]. ACD omit. BS contain it, and S expressly defends the reading. It has probably crept in from the beginning of the following clause; possibly תורה was also added to supply an object for ללמוד, and the original clause may have run: 'to learn what to answer,' &c., ללמוד מה שתשיב.

Epicurean, i. e. אפיקורוס, a free-thinker, from פקר, but with a play on the name of the philosopher. An Epicurean might be of any nation, but it is said that a Jewish Epicurean is more dangerous than a Gentile one (see b. Sanh. 38^a, where R. Johanan, third century, comments on this saying of R. Eleazar).

and know before whom thou toilest, and who is master of thy work, [who will pay the hire of thy labour].

19 R. Tarphon said: The day is short and the work is great, and the labourers are slow, and the hire is much, and the master of the house is urgent.

20 He used to say: It is not incumbent on thee to finish the work, and thou art not free to desist from it. If thou hast learned much Torah, they will give thee much hire; and the master of thy work is faithful who will pay thee the hire of thy labour; and know that the giving of the reward of the righteous is for the time to come.

3 1 Akabia b. Mahalalel said: Keep in view three things, and thou wilt not come into the clutches of sin;—know whence thou comest, and whither thou goest, and before whom thou art to give strict account. Know whence thou comest,—from a fetid drop; and whither thou goest,—to the place of dust, worm, and maggot; and before whom thou art to give strict account,—before the King of the kings of the kings, the Holy One, blessed be He.

2 R. Hanina, the deputy of the priests, said: Pray for the peace of the kingdom; for except for the fear of that we should have swallowed up each his neighbour alive.

3 R. Hanina b. Teradion said: When two sit and there are not between them words of Torah, lo, this is 'the seat of the scornful', as it is said: 'Nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful'. But when two sit and there are between them words of Torah, the Shechinah rests between them, as it is said: 'Then they that feared the Lord spake one with another, [and the Lord hearkened and heard, and a book of remembrance was written before Him for them that feared the Lord and that thought upon His name]'.
P
M

who will pay. The phrase is repeated in the next verse, and may be an interpolation here. A omits it; BS contain it.

19. R. Tarphon had been a priest in the Temple; probably put to death A. D. 117. He is not to be identified with the Τρυφών of Justin Martyr; the latter probably used his name and perhaps knew it as that of a bitter opponent of Christianity. If the two ever met, which is not likely, Justin would be only a boy. There is no resemblance, except in name, between Justin's Tryphon and the real Tarphon. The latter form of the name is the usual one in the Rabbinical literature. The form תרִיפֹן is found, Jer. Bikk. iii. 1; but the person so named was not the same as the subject of this note. His two sayings turn on the same comparison of life to work in a field, cp. Matt. ix. 37, 38; John ix. 4.

20. learned. See above, v. 9; 'learned' is the right reading here.

time to come. Usually, but not always, עֵתִיד לְבוֹא refers to the future life. It does so here.

III. 1. Akabia b. Mahalalel. As to his date opinions differ; some scholars place him near the time of Hillel and Shammai (see on i. 12), others bring him down to the beginning of the second century. Strack holds him to have been a contemporary of Gamaliel I. I believe this to be the most probable date. Observe that he is not called 'Rabbi'. He was excommunicated by his colleagues, and died while under the ban. The first clause of his saying is identical with that of Rabbi, ii. 1.

strict account, lit. 'judgement and reckoning'; but 'judgement', in English, is what is done upon the accused, not pleaded by him.

place of dust. A omits.

worm, and maggot. Cp. Job xxv. 6. English does not supply a synonym for 'worm'.

King . . . kings. An extension of the usual phrase, in order to exalt the majesty of God.

the Holy One, blessed be He. One of the most frequent modes of referring to God in the Rabbinical literature.

2. R. Hanina, the deputy of the priests. As his title shows, he had served in the Temple; but his date cannot be further defined. He does not appear to have survived the destruction of Jerusalem. Testimony of his was cited in the Assembly at Jabneh (end of the first century A. D.), but apparently only as tradition (Edu. ii. 1-3). The name is often written Hananiah.

peace of the kingdom, literally, of the political, not the spiritual kingdom. It seems natural to connect H.'s saying with the rising hostility against the Romans, which broke out in the war of A. D. 68. If so, it would be a warning to his countrymen against rebellion. But, in any case, it is quite different in character from the rest of the maxims in the book.

we . . . swallowed. So ABC, בלענו; ES 'they . . . swallowed', בלעו. Founded on Ps. cxxiv. 3. The factions which split up the nation were, according to H., only prevented from destroying each other by the fear of Rome. If the reading בלענו be adopted, H. regarded himself as a participant; if the alternative reading, as an onlooker. The maxim goes to show that H. did not witness the outbreak of the war, since that would have confuted his assertion.

3. R. Hanina b. Teradion. Date, end of first century and beginning of second; executed A. D. 135. His daughter, Beruria, was the wife of R. Meir. The name Teradion is Greek, but what it represents is uncertain. Krauss suggests Theodorion. R. Hanina taught in Sichnin.

Torah. See on i. 1.

'seat of the scornful.' Reference to Ps. i. 1. The relevancy of the quotation only appears when v. 2 is added: 'But his delight is in the Torah of the Lord,' &c. Talmudic citations of Scripture are very often confined to the opening words of a text, the rest being left to be supplied by the reader from memory. So, in the second proof-text applied by Hanina, probably only the words, 'Then they . . . one another,' were originally written in the text of the book, the remainder being added later.

Shechinah, lit. 'dwelling' (not the place but the act of dwelling), one of the many modes of reference to God. The word is not found in the O. T., but is clearly based on the thought expressed, e. g. in Num. xxxv. 34. Cp. Matt.

4 [I find here only two. Whence it is proved that when even one sits and is occupied with Torah the Holy One, blessed be He, fixes for him a reward? As it is said: 'Let him sit alone and be silent, for he hath taken it upon him.'] Lam.iii.28

5 R. Simeon said: Three who have eaten at one table and have not said over it words of Torah, lo, they are as if they had eaten sacrifices of the dead, as it is said: 'For all tables are full of vomit and filthiness without God.' But three who have eaten at one table and have said over it words of Torah are as if they had eaten from the table of God, blessed be He, as it is said: 'And he said to me, This is the table that is before the Lord.' Isa.xxviii.8 Ezek.xli.22

6 R. Hanina b. Hachinai said: He who wakes in the night, and he who walks alone by the way and turns his heart to idle thoughts, lo, he makes himself guilty against his soul.

7 R. Nehunia b. ha-Kanah said: Every one who receives upon him the yoke of Torah, they remove from him the yoke of the kingdom and the yoke of worldly occupation. And every one who breaks off from him the yoke of Torah, they lay upon him the yoke of the kingdom and the yoke of worldly occupation.

8 R. Halaphta [b. Dosa] of Chephar Hanania said: When ten sit and are occupied with Torah, the Shechinah is among them, as it is said: 'God stands in the congregation of God.' [And whence is it proved for even five? As it is said: 'He hath founded His troop upon the earth.'] Ps.lxxxii.1 Amos ix. 6 xviii. 20, and Rev. xxi. 3. In the latter passage the Greek is: 'Ἰδοὺ, ἡ σκηνὴ τοῦ Θεοῦ μετὰ τῶν ἀνθρώπων, καὶ σκηνώσει κτλ. σκηνή looks very much like an allusion to 'Shechinah'.

4. This clause is certainly not due to R. Hanina. It is found, substantially, in BCDS. A omits 'I find . . . even'. But the formula 'I find . . . Whence . . .?' shows that the passage is later than the Mishnah. It represents an addition made in the Amoraic period, third to fifth century. Thus it is found in many MSS., but with variations; and some mediaeval commentators are doubtful about it. See Taylor's critical note. Probably there is some confusion with iii. 7 (last clause). R. Hanina had spoken of the Shechinah resting between two who study Torah. The addition does not refer to the Shechinah, but to the fixing of a reward for studying Torah. The proof-text, Lam. iii. 28, is only relevant if 'hath taken' be interpreted 'hath received (reward)'.
5. R. Simeon. This is the famous R. Simeon b. Johai; approximate date A.D. 100-170. He was a disciple of R. Akiba; he escaped the persecution of A.D. 135, and lay hid for thirteen years. Afterwards he taught in Galilee, and amongst his disciples was the future 'Rabbi', ii. 1.

sacrifices of the dead. This is explained by Bartenora as equivalent to idolatry, on the ground of Ps. cvi. 28.

without God, lit. without place, בלי מקום. Whatever may be the meaning in the passage Isa. xxviii. 8 (or the true reading of the text), R. Simeon makes a play upon the word מקום, by taking it as one of the frequent designations of God. See on ii. 17, where it occurs in a saying by this same Simeon.

table of God. The word is again מקום. The combination הוא המקום ברוך הוא is unusual. CS omit ב'ה'.

6. R. Hanina b. Hachinai, contemporary of Simeon b. Johai, but somewhat older. He was a disciple of R. Joshua b. Hananiah (ii. 10), as well as of R. Akiba. He lived in Sidon, and thus escaped the persecution in A.D. 135.

turns . . . thoughts, ומפנה. So ABS; והמפנה CD. The difference in meaning is considerable. According to the first reading, a man endangers his soul if he gives way to idle thoughts either on waking in the night or when walking by himself. According to the second reading, a man endangers his soul when he either (a) wakes in the night, or (b) walks by himself, or (c) gives way to idle thoughts. The latter interpretation may have been due to a desire to find a threefold division in H.'s maxim, as in so many of the other sayings. Bartenora, who adopts the second interpretation, explains that waking in the night is dangerous because of demons, and solitary walking because of robbers. The first interpretation commends itself as superior, and has good manuscript authority.

guilty . . . soul, מתחייב בנפשו. Hardly more than 'does a wrong to himself'. There is no thought of being eternally lost.

7. R. Nehunia b. ha-Kanah. Contemporary with R. Johanan b. Zaccai, but not among his disciples. He lived to a great age. His life covers the greater part of the first century A.D., and probably extended into the second. The epithet ha-Kanah (or Kana) is the same as that which is rendered Ζηλωτής, Luke vi. 15, and disguised as Καναῖος, Matt. x. 4. N.'s father had been of the party of the Zealots.

yoke of Torah, על תורה. This does not imply that the service of God according to Torah was a burden. The yoke is the symbol of obedience; and 'to take the yoke upon' oneself means to devote oneself to the service of the authority whose yoke it is. Cp. Matt. xi. 30, where the meaning of the symbol is exactly the same.

they, the familia caelestis; see on ii. 2, end.

kingdom, the actual political kingdom. Its 'yoke' took the form of taxes. The meaning is that devotion to Torah frees a man from oppression and care by setting his mind on things above; while if he despises Torah he feels all the weight of political oppression and the struggle for existence.

8. R. Halaphta [b. Dosa]: second half of second century, disciple of R. Meir. Possibly the son of R. Jose b. Halaphta, the R. Jose of the Mishnah (see below, iv. 8), who had a son of this name. The name Dosa is omitted in the printed texts, and has no important manuscript support. It might easily be confused with 'Jose'. H.'s saying is a series of Scripture proofs of the presence of the Shechinah. See above, v. 3.

ten is the usual number requisite for the worship of a congregation. H. assumes this number, as an axiom, and seeks to prove the conclusion for a series of smaller numbers. The clause relating to five is probably a late addition. The MSS. and commentaries show much uncertainty about it. AB connect the number five with the proof-text of the number three; BCS allot the proof-texts as in the translation. If the 'five' clause were not in the original series, it would be natural for some later hand to supply it. The proofs from the texts quoted are as follows: For five, אנגרה (translated 'troop') is lit. a handful, and the hand has five fingers; for three, the gods are taken to mean judges, and the smallest tribunal consisted of three judges; for two, because one man talks to another man; for one, because it is said 'to thee', not 'to you'.

- whence even three? As it is said: 'He judgeth among gods.' And whence even two? As it is said: 'Then they that feared the Lord spake often one to another.' And whence even one? As it is said: 'In every place where I record My name I will come to thee and will bless thee.'
- 9 R. Eleazar b. Judah of Bartotha said: Give Him of what is His, for thou and thine are His. And thus the Scripture saith, in the place concerning David, 'For all things come of Thee, and of Thine own have we given Thee.'
- 10 R. Jacob said: He who walks by the way and studies and breaks off his study and says, 'How beautiful is that tree,' and 'how beautiful is that fallow', the Scripture reckons it to him as if he had made himself guilty against his soul.
- 11 R. Dosthai b. Jannai, in the name of R. Meir, said: A disciple of the Wise who sits and studies and forgets a word of his study, the Scripture reckons it to him as if he had made himself guilty against his soul; as it is said: 'Only take heed to thyself and keep thy soul diligently, lest thou forget the things which thine eyes have seen.' It may be that his study has been hard to him. Learn to say, 'Lest they depart from thy heart all the days of thy life.' Lo! he makes not himself guilty until he sits and turns them away from his heart.
- 12 R. Hanina b. Dosa said: Every one whose fear of sin precedes his wisdom, his wisdom endures; and every one whose wisdom precedes his fear of sin, his wisdom does not endure.
- 13 He used to say: Every one whose deeds are more than his wisdom, his wisdom endures. And every one whose wisdom is more than his deeds, his wisdom does not endure.
- 14 He used to say: Every one with whom the spirit of mankind is pleased, the Spirit of God is pleased with him. And every one with whom the spirit of mankind is not pleased, the Spirit of God is not pleased with him.

9. R. Eleazar b. Judah of Bartotha. A contemporary of Akiba, end of first and beginning of second century. Some MSS. omit 'b. Judah'. The name of his place of abode is variously given, and its situation unknown, except that it was probably in Upper Galilee.

Give Him, i. e. God. Eleazar was famous for his charitable gifts.

in . . . David, בְּדָוִד. For the form of the phrase cp. Mark xii. 26.

10. R. Jacob (see also iv. 21, 22 below). Probably the same as R. Jacob b. Korshai, latter half of the second century, contemporary of Simeon III, b. Gamaliel II, and teacher of Judah I, 'Rabbi'. He was a grandson, on the mother's side, of Elisha b. Abuiah (see iv. 25 below). The name of R. Simeon, or R. Akiba, is sometimes given in place of R. Jacob in this passage, but with slight authority.

study. His mind is to be fixed on Torah.

How beautiful . . . tree. A repeats this exclamation.

Scripture reckons. No proof-text is given. The commentators have been rather troubled by J.'s maxim. The Mishnah itself provides a formula of praise, to be said on beholding beautiful or wonderful objects of nature (Ber. ix. 3). The Scripture proof intended may have been the text quoted in v. 11, Deut. iv. 9. The reading מַעֲלֶה ('reckons') is supported by all the MSS.; otherwise מַעֲלִין ('they reckon') would make the meaning somewhat less objectionable.

11. R. Dosthai b. Jannai: end of the second century, contemporary of 'Rabbi'. The name Dosthai (= Δοσθαίος) was borne by several teachers, and represents either Mattaniah or Nathaniel. Why a Greek form should have been preferred is not clear.

forgets. It should be borne in mind that the teaching in the Rabbinical schools was oral and transmitted from memory. The Mishnah, even if written down by 'Rabbi', was a corpus of decisions whose accuracy of form depended on memory alone. To forget was a loss to the learner and possibly a loss to posterity.

Scripture reckons. Here the proof-text is given (see on preceding verse).

guilty . . . soul (see on v. 6 above). The idea is that since Torah is the means of spiritual life, to forget what it imparts is an injury to the soul. R. Dosthai seems to have uttered his maxim for the sake of putting in a plea on behalf of the man who only forgets because his task is hard. The first clause may be a general maxim already accepted, which D. wishes to qualify. He contends that only wilful neglect to remember, or even positive rejection, incurs the censure of Scripture.

12. R. Hanina b. Dosa; date, first century A. D.; disciple of R. Johanan b. Zaccai. Chiefly famous as a saint and miracle-worker.

precedes, קודמת, either in order of time or in order of importance. Fear of sin is the supreme object to be aimed at. If wisdom is sought for the sake of becoming a fearer of sin, then wisdom is of enduring worth; otherwise not. Taylor conjectures that the negative clause in this verse, and also those in v. 13, 14, are later interpolations. But there is no manuscript support for this conjecture. Aboth di Rabbi Nathan, § 22, has the negative clauses of v. 12, 13.

13. He. R. Hanina b. Dosa.

deeds. Not especially good deeds, but the practical application of Torah.

14. He. R. Hanina b. Dosa.

spirit of mankind . . . pleased, רוח הבריות נוחה. This is literal, but too concrete; all that is meant is a general opinion held by men, upon any subject or in regard of any person. When it is said that Jesus 'grew in favour with God and men', Luke ii. 52, the phrase expresses what is meant in 'the spirit of mankind . . . of God is pleased'. The truth of H.'s maxim, as a fact of experience, is open to question; and it appears to make human favour the criterion and condition of divine approval. H. was a mystic, and probably he is teaching here the doctrine of a correspondence between the things in heaven and the things on earth.

- 5 R. Dosa b. Harchinas said: Morning sleep, and midday wine, and children's talk, and sitting in the meeting-houses of the vulgar, drive a man out from the world.
- 6 R. Eleazar, the Modiite, said: He who profanes holy things and despises the set feasts [and shames his associate in public], and makes void the covenant of Abraham our father, and discloses meanings in the Torah which are not according to the Rule, yea, even if he have [Torah and] good works, he has no portion in the world to come.
- 7 R. Ishmael said: Be light-minded and yielding to forced service, and receive every man with gladness.
- 8 R. Akiba said: Laughter and light-mindedness accustom a man to shame. Tradition is a fence for Torah. Vows are a fence for separation. A fence for wisdom is silence.
- 9 He used to say: Beloved is man in that he was created in the image of God. [Greater love was 15. R. Dosa b. Harchinas: born about A. D. 10, died not later than A. D. 90. A teacher of R. Joḥanan b. Zaccai. There was another D. b. H. in the middle of the second century, perhaps grandson of the earlier. The name Harchinas (הרקינס) must not be confused with Hyrcanus (הורקנוס).

Morning . . . wine. D. was a rich man, and knew the temptations of idle luxury.

children, הילדים. Perhaps, rather 'youths', who should be silent in presence of their elders.

meeting-houses, בתי כנסיות, synagogues.

vulgar. The class known as am-ha-aretz; see above, on ii. 6. D.'s objection is probably that in these synagogues Torah was not properly taught or duly observed.

drive . . . world. See above, on ii. 15. It is not likely that D., or any other strict Pharisee, would attend a synagogue of the am-ha-aretz; the saying is a general condemnation of them.

16. R. Eleazar, the Modiite, i. e. of Modiin, where he lived; the former home of the Maccabees. R. Eleazar was a chief supporter of Bar Cocheba in the rebellion which ended A. D. 135. Bar Cocheba is said to have been his nephew, also to have killed him in a fit of anger. R. E. was a disciple of Tarphon. His dates may be given A. D. 50-A. D. 135.

E.'s maxim is directed against sectaries and false brethren. The formula against the Minim, i. e. Jewish Christians, had been ordained at Jabneh, under Gamaliel II, about A. D. 80. See my Christianity in Talmud and Midrash, pp. 126-136. The Minim were open to all the charges in E.'s list, except that of effacing the covenant of Abraham. The MSS. vary the order in which the several charges are given. A omits 'and shames his associate in public', also 'which are not according to rule', שלא כהלכה, also 'Torah' before 'good works.' The latter omission is supported by BD. The most important of these omissions is the second, because it affects the sense of what is left in. מנגלה פנים בתורה means, as Taylor says, 'to act impudently against the Torah.' But that in itself needs explanation. The phrase occurs in Jer. Peah i. 1, where it is explained as the act of one who denies that the Torah is from heaven. מנגלה פנים בתורה שלא כהלכה means to reveal meanings in the Torah which are not authorized, to interpret Torah in ways not sanctioned by approved teachers. This is a definite charge, especially applicable to sectaries. שלא כהלכה is, no doubt, a gloss, but one added to bring out the right meaning, and to guard against the other and more vague interpretation.

the Rule, halachah. See above, on ii. 1. The addition of 'Torah' before 'good works' is, perhaps, due to the frequent mention of these in conjunction elsewhere. But a man who acts in the ways described by R. Eleazar would not naturally be credited with having 'Torah'.

portion . . . world to come. His fate would be to go down to Gehenna, and be destroyed there. On Gehenna, see above, i. 5 a.

17. R. Ishmael. This is R. Ishmael b. Elisha, a disciple of R. Joshua and contemporary of R. Akiba: born about A. D. 60; usually said to have been executed A. D. 135, but there is evidence that he lived some years longer.

light-minded, in the good sense, 'cheerful.' The meaning is, however, uncertain. The Hebr. is קל ראש, and by many this is interpreted as 'courteous to a superior'. This would require קל לראש (so CS); and while the ל may easily have slipped out, ראש is not the usual word for a superior. D has הקל ראשך, but interprets it of a man who is pliant before ראש העיר, thus seeking to combine the two meanings of ראש. The phrase קלות ראש occurs in the next verse, a fact which tends to show that the meaning here is somewhat the same.

forced service, תשחורת, a rare word whose meaning is uncertain. It is variously translated 'youth', 'age', and 'forced service'. It occurs Eccles. xi. 10, where the R. V. has 'prime of life'. The meaning 'forced service' is well supported, and has the authority of Levy, NHW, s. v. See Taylor's note; he translates 'impressment'. For the last clause, cp. the saying of Shammai, i. 15.

18. R. Akiba: b. about A. D. 50; executed in or after A. D. 135. The chief supporter of Bar Cocheba in his rebellion, and the most famous teacher of his time.

light-mindedness. In the bad sense, 'frivolity'; see note on v. 17.

Tradition, מסורה, the παράδοσις (τῶν πρεσβυτέρων), Mark vii. 3. The principle of tradition was the giving of adequate sanction to what was taught. The 'Torah' was the divine revelation (see on i. 1), and tradition was a fence for it, by defending it from wrong interpretation.

separation, פרישות. The Pharisees gained their name from their פרישות into societies, תבורות, pledged to the observance of rules of 'clean' and 'unclean', &c. The Talmud is the detailed exposition of the Pharisaic conception of religion. See my Pharisaism, p. 107. The last clause explains itself. Cp. i. 17 above.

19. He. Again R. Akiba. The clause in brackets, 'Greater . . . image,' omitted by A, is found in BCDS. It seems to be required both to give point to the saying, and also by analogy with the similar sayings which immediately follow. Its omission, however, may be justified by the consideration that the proof-text merely states that man was made in the image of God, not that man was made aware of the fact. This additional knowledge is the additional it that it was known to him that he was made in the image.] As it is said: 'In the image of God G. he made man.'

Beloved are Israel, that they are called sons of God. Greater love was it that it was known to them that they were called sons of God. As it is said: 'Sons are ye to the Lord your God.'

Beloved are Israel, in that to them was given the precious instrument wherewith the world was created. Greater love was it that it was known to them that there was given to them the precious instrument wherewith the world was created, as it is said: 'For a good doctrine I have given you; forsake not my Torah.' All is foreseen, and free-will is given, and the world is judged by goodness, and all is according to the amount of work.

20 He used to say: All is given on pledge, and the net is spread over all the living; and the shop is open and the shopman gives credit, and the account-book is open and the hand writes, and every one who will borrow comes and borrows, and the collectors go round continually every day, and exact payment from man whether with his knowledge or without it; and they have whereon to lean, and the judgement is a judgement of truth; and everything is prepared for the banquet.

21 R. Eleazar b. Azariah said: If there is no Torah there is no worldly occupation; if there is no worldly occupation there is no Torah. If there is no wisdom there is no fear; if there is no fear there is no wisdom. If there is no knowledge there is no discernment; if there is no discernment there is no knowledge. If there is no meal there is no Torah; if there is no Torah there is no meal.

22 He used to say: Every one whose wisdom is greater than his deeds, to what is he like? To a tree whose branches are many and its roots few; and the wind comes and roots it up and turns it over on its face. [As it is said: 'For he shall be like a tamarisk in the desert, and he shall not see when good cometh, but shall inhabit the parched places in the wilderness, a salt land undwelt in.'] But every one whose deeds are more than his wisdom, to what is he like? To a tree whose branches are few and its roots many, which, if all the winds that are in the world come and blow upon it, they move it not from its place; [as it is said: 'For he shall be as a tree planted by the waters, and blessing, the 'greater love' of the two following clauses. In clause 2 God is מְקוּם, see on ii. 17 above. The proof text is a declaration to Israel of their sonship to God.

wherewith . . . created. The 'precious instrument' is the 'Torah'; not the written record or the oral interpretation of it, but the divine thought enshrined in it. This is shown by the proof-text.

All is foreseen, הַכֵּל צִפּוּי. Lit. 'seen'; but 'all' includes future things and actions as well as present and past ones.

free-will, הַרְשׁוּת. Lit. 'authority', which is explained to mean man's responsibility for his own actions. The Talmudic Rabbis attempted no solution of the philosophical problem; they were content to affirm the two truths and left the reconciliation of them a divine mystery.

judged by goodness. Either by one who is good, viz. God, or according to the goodness found in it. The former is probably meant, because the latter would be hardly more than a variant of the following clause.

amount of work. So BDS. A omits 'amount', רוּב. But CD have 'not according to the amount', and B knows of this reading. The difference is that between quality and quantity of human action. The former meaning is preferable, but the reading 'amount' is the better supported; and the omission of the word in A, and the addition of 'not' in CD, may be due to the desire to modify the sense.

20. He. Again R. Akiba. The whole passage is a rather undignified metaphor to illustrate God's dealings with man. The reader should be careful not to assume that the Jews were, or are, required to believe this or any other fanciful exposition of doctrine as an article of faith. The thought conveyed in the passage is mainly that of retribution, which follows surely, if slowly, on human actions.

pledge. A man's act binds him to accept its consequences.

net. No one can act apart from or outside the range of God's knowledge and control.

account-book, פְּנִיקָס, πῖναξ. Cp. ii. 1 above.

borrow, in freedom of action, what he will have to repay in consequences.

collectors, trials and chastisements which God sends upon him. Man does not always know why they are sent.

they . . . to lean. 'They' probably refers to the 'collectors'; their warrant is the account written in the book.

prepared . . . banquet, מִתְקַן לְסְעוּדָה. The metaphor does not really change. The 'banquet' is the symbol of the world to come, cp. Rev. xix. 9; and the idea is that the debtor, having paid his debt and submitted to just judgement, is welcomed into Paradise.

21. R. Eleazar b. Azariah: b. about A. D. 50, d. after A. D. 116, and before A. D. 135. One of the chief men of the Assembly in Jabneh; when Gamaliel II was deposed from the presidency, R. Eleazar was elected in his place, and was still associated with Gamaliel in that office on the latter's restoration. The MSS. differ in the order of the series of contrasted terms, but not in the substance of them. The terms, so far as they need explanation, have mostly been dealt with in previous notes.

no meal . . . no Torah, i. e. if a man have nothing to eat he cannot learn Torah; and vice versa, if he have no Torah, his food is worthless. If he have not heavenly things, what profit in earthly things?

22. He. R. Eleazar b. Azariah.

wisdom . . . deeds. For the thought, cp. vv. 12, 13 above.

to what is he like? לְמָה הוּא דוֹמֵה. The regular formula for introducing a comparison or parable. Cp. Luke xiii. 18. The proof-text may be a later insertion, though it is found in the MSS. Proof-texts in this book are always open to suspicion, because they impair the conciseness of the sayings which they illustrate. The figure of the tree may be suggested by Ps. i. 3, though the word for 'tree' is not the same.

that sendeth out its roots by the river; and shall not fear when heat cometh, but his leaf shall be green; and in the year of drouth he shall not be anxious, neither shall cease from yielding fruit’].

23 R. Eleazar Hisma said: Offerings of birds and purifications, these are the main Rules. Astronomy and geometry are mere fringes to wisdom.

1 Ben Zoma said: Who is wise? He who learns from every man; as it is said: ‘From all my teachers I get understanding, for thy testimonies are my conversation.’ Ps. cxix. 99

Who is mighty? He who controlleth his evil disposition; as it is said: ‘Better is the long-suffering than the mighty, and he that ruleth his spirit than he that taketh a city.’ Prov. xvi. 32

Who is rich? He that rejoiceth in his portion; as it is said: ‘When thou eatest of the labour of thy hands, happy art thou and it shall be well with thee.’ ‘Happy art thou’ in this world, and ‘it shall be well with thee’ in the world to come. Ps. cxxviii. 2

Who is honoured? He who honoureth mankind; as it is said: ‘For them that honour Me I will honour, and they that despise Me shall be lightly esteemed.’ 1 Sam. ii. 30

2 Ben Azai said: Be swift towards a light precept [as towards a weighty one] and flee from sin; for precept leads to precept and sin leads to sin. For the reward of a precept is a precept, and the reward of a sin is a sin.

3 He used to say: Despise not any man, and be not captious at any thing; for you find no man that has not his hour, and no thing that has not its place.

4 R. Levitas of Jabneh said: Be exceedingly humble, for the hope of man is only the worm.

5 R. Johanan b. Berökah said: ‘Every one who profanes the Name of Heaven in secret, they exact

23. R. Eleazar Hisma. Date, about the end of the first century and the beginning of the second. He was a disciple of R. Joshua (see on ii. 10 above). He was a great mathematician, and was said to have been able to calculate the number of drops in the sea.

Offerings of birds, קינים. Lit. ‘nests’, i. e. the offerings brought in accordance with Lev. v. 1–10. Cp. Luke ii. 24.

purifications, פתחי נדה. This relates to the periods of women.

Rules, halachôth. See on ii. 1 above.

Astronomy, תקופות. Lit. ‘turnings’, meaning the four points in the ecliptic which divide the seasons.

geometry, גמטריאות. The word is commonly used of a method of interpretation by giving to the letters of a word their numerical value. But here, considering the mathematical reputation of the speaker, it may be rendered ‘geometry’. R. El. means that his mathematics are only pastime in comparison with the study of halachah. Even minor portions of the latter are worth more than whole sciences.

fringes. The word is פּרפּראות, which represents περιφορά or περιφέρεια. The comparison is to dishes carried round after the main meal is finished. Taylor is not afraid to translate by ‘after-courses’. I have rendered by ‘fringes’ so as to keep the thought though not the literal form of it, and also to suggest (in keeping with the derivation from περιφέρεια, ‘circumference’) that the sciences stand around at a distance while halachah is at the centre. R. El. perhaps wished to excuse his favourite studies in the eyes of his less scientific brethren.

IV. 1. Ben Zoma (Simeon b. Z.). Note that he is not called Rabbi. He was a disciple and associate of R. Akiba, but was not ordained. His date may be given as the end of the first century. He is one of the four who were said to have entered Paradise, i. e. studied theosophy. He died young.

From . . . teachers. In the Ps. ‘more than . . . teachers’; the second clause of the proof-text is not needed.

evil disposition. See on ii. 15 above; the word ‘spirit’ in the proof-text represents a different Hebrew word. The clause explaining the reference to this world and the world to come has the appearance of a later comment on B. Z.’s maxim. In the parallel passage in Aboth di Rabbi Nathan (Schechter), A, § 23, omits it; B, p. 36^b, has it.

honoured. The proof-text does not establish B. Z.’s point. The meaning may be that he who honours mankind is really honouring God who made them, and vice versa. Cp. iv. 8 below.

mankind. Lit. ‘creatures’; see on i. 12 above.

2. Ben Azai (Simeon b. A.). Like Ben Zoma not called Rabbi, and for the same reason. What is said above of the one applies to the other. The two are said to have been judges in Jabneh. Azai = Azariah.

as . . . weighty one. Omitted in all the chief MSS., probably inserted from ii. 1; see note on that verse for the distinction between ‘light’ and ‘weighty’ precepts.

reward . . . precept. In the Rabbinical view, a precept (mitzvah) was simply an opportunity offered of doing the will of God; there could be no greater reward than a further opportunity. A mitzvah was never regarded as a burden. On ‘reward’ see on ii. 1 above.

reward . . . sin. The just retribution for sin is a further temptation. This is one of the great sayings of the book.

3. He. Again B. Azai.

captious, מפליג. Lit. ‘a causer of division’, especially in argument.

you find. Lit. ‘there is not to thee’. For the thought cp. Eccles. iii. 1–8.

4. R. Levitas of Jabneh. Probably a contemporary of B. Azai. He is not mentioned elsewhere in the Talmud. The name represents the Greek Λεβίτης.

His maxim is given by BCDS. By an error A omits it and also the name of the next teacher, thus ascribing the saying of the latter to R. Levitas.

hope . . . worm. Cp. iii. 1 above; and, for the phrase, Job xi. 20.

5. R. Johanan b. Berokah. A disciple of R. Joshua b. Hananiah, ii. 10, and companion of R. Eleazar Hisma, iii. 23; date, about the end of the first century and beginning of the second.

profanes . . . Heaven. To profane the Name is to be guilty of ‘actions which, if they become known, bring shame on the Jew and his religion’ (Levy, NHW, s. v. הלול). Heaven, i. e. God.

in secret . . . openly. Cp. Eccles. xii. 14.

punishment of him openly ; the ignorant and the wilful are alike *sinner*s in regard to the profaning of the Name.

- 6 R. Ishmael his son said : He who learns with a view to teaching, they give him the opportunity to learn and to teach ; he who learns with a view to doing, they give him the opportunity to learn and to teach and to do.
- 7 R. Zadok said : [Separate not thyself from the congregation, and be not as they who prepare the judges]. Make not them a crown wherewith to magnify thyself, nor a dish to eat from. And thus Hillel used to say : He who serves himself with the crown passes away. Behold, [thou hast learned,] 'Every one that makes a profit from words of Torah removes his life from the world.'
- 8 R. Jose said : Every one who honours the Torah is himself honoured of men. And every one who dishonours the Torah is himself dishonoured of men.
- 9 R. Ishmael his son said : He who withdraws from judgement gets rid of enmity, theft and perjury ; and he who is haughty in his teaching is foolish, wicked and arrogant.
- 10 He used to say : Judge not alone ; for there is none save One that judgeth alone. And say not to thy colleagues, Receive my opinion ; for they are entitled and thou art not.
- 11 R. Jonathan said : Every one who fulfils the Torah when poor will in the end fulfil it when rich ; and every one who makes it vain when rich will in the end make it vain when poor.

ignorant . . . wilful. The meaning is that the guilt of profaning the Name is so great that no account is taken of whether it was done in ignorance or intentionally ; both are punished alike.

6. R. Ishmael his son. Date, middle and end of second century ; he is not to be confused with the R. Ishmael of iii. 17, nor with the R. Ishmael of v. 9, below.

learns, i. e. Torah.

they, the familia caelestis ; see on ii. 2 above ; here, in the meaning of 'Providence'.

7. R. Zadok : date, first century ; contemporary of R. Johanan b. Zaccai, and possibly, like him, disciple of Hillel ; he was at Jabneh with R. Joh. b. Z. after the fall of Jerusalem. There was another R. Zadok, grandson of the foregoing, and a third later still.

[Separate . . . congregation, &c.] Does not belong to this context. See on ii. 5 above.

[prepare . . . judges.] Also out of place here. See the maxim of Judah b. Tabbai, i. 8 above. R. Zadok's own saying has a close likeness to that of Hillel in i. 13.

Make . . . them. So ABCDS. Strack and Baer read 'make . . . it'. The reference is to 'words of Torah' or 'Torah'. But the first words of the maxim are evidently lost, and the two interpolations mentioned above are perhaps attempts to fill the gap.

dish . . . eat from. ACD have 'an axe to eat with (or from)'; BS 'an axe to cut with'. In order to keep the better reading 'eat with', and because an axe is not commonly used for that purpose, I render קררום 'dish'. The meaning is clear. The teacher must not make a profit out of the teaching of Torah.

thus Hillel. May be an editorial note. For a possible interpretation, if it belongs to R. Zadok himself, see Introduction, § 2. 2.

Every . . . makes profit. Lit. 'eats advantages'. The MSS. nearly all have הנאות 'profits' (noun, not verb). This makes no sense, without a verb. S has בל האוכל ה', ACD הא כל ה', B והאכל ה', corrected to והאוכל. This gives the clue to the other readings. האכל was by error divided into הא כל, the verb was lost and had to be supplied as in S, or by reading נחנה in place of הנאות. After the interjection הא (as it was taken to be), some MSS. and printed texts insert למרת 'thou hast learned'.

removes . . . world. Cp. ii. 15 above. R. Joshua may have founded his maxim on that of R. Zadok, whom he must often have heard.

8. R. Jose (b. Halaphta) : born about A.D. 110, died about A.D. 180 ; a disciple of R. Akiba ; one of the six ordained in the 'Terror' A.D. 135. Rabbi was one of his disciples.

honours . . . Torah. Cp. on iv. 1 above. The commentators explain that to 'honour Torah' is to honour everything connected with it, down to the letters in which it is written.

himself. Lit. 'his body', גופו.

men. Lit. 'creatures', as explained before.

9. R. Ishmael his son (so BD, om. A. C has R. Simeon). Son of the preceding, and presumably brother of iii. 8 ; date, end of second century and beginning of third.

withdraws . . . judgement. Excuses himself from acting as a judge.

fear, theft and perjury. Because, if he judges, he displeases the losing party ; he may decide wrongly as to the ownership of property, and he may lead the witnesses to commit perjury. Cp. i. 9 above.

teaching. Here the decisions he gives as a judge. On humility see above, iv. 4.

10. He. Again R. Ishmael b. Jose.

Note that the maxim turns again on the function of a judge.

One . . . judgeth alone, i. e. God. For the form of the phrase cp. Mark x. 18. R. I. only means, however, that a human judge should share the responsibility with others.

entitled. They are in the majority and have a right to enforce their opinion.

11. R. Jonathan (so BDS, Johanan A, Nathan C). There is no R. Johanan in the Mishnah without some descriptive epithet. 'R. Johanan' would mean the R. J. of the Gemara, third century. R. Jonathan was a disciple of R. Ishmael (iii. 17) and contemporary of Ben Azai ; middle of second century. There was another R. Jonathan, a disciple of 'Rabbi'.

The meaning of his maxim is that a man who learns Torah when poor gives his mind to it so earnestly that he will not forget or forsake it when he becomes rich ; a rich man is tempted to neglect Torah, and if he should become poor would be without the knowledge of it.

- 2 R. Meir said: Do little in business and be busy with the Torah; and be humble of spirit before all men; and if thou hast been idle in respect of the Torah, there will be many idle things in thy way; and if thou hast laboured at the Torah, there will be for Him much reward to give thee.
- 3 R. Eliezer b. Jacob said: He who does one precept gains for himself one advocate; and he who commits one transgression gains for himself one accuser; repentance and good works are as a shield in face of punishment.
- 4 R. Johanan, the sandal-maker, said: Every assembly which is for the sake of Heaven will in the end be established; and one that is not for the sake of Heaven will in the end not be established.
- 5 R. Eleazar b. Shammua said: Let the honour of thy disciple be dear to thee as the honour of thy associate, and the honour of thy associate as the fear of thy teacher, and the fear of thy teacher as the fear of Heaven.
- 6 R. Judah said: Be careful in teaching; for error in teaching amounts to sin.
- 7 R. Simeon said: There are three crowns; the crown of Torah, the crown of priesthood and the crown of royalty; but the crown of a good name mounts above them.
- 8 R. Nehorai said: Betake thyself to a place of Torah, and say not it shall come after thee; for thine associates will fulfil it through thee. And 'Lean not upon thine own understanding'. Prov. iii. 5
- 9 R. Jannai said: It is not in our hands to explain either the prosperity of the wicked or the chastisements of the righteous.

12. R. Meir. The most famous disciple of R. Akiba, one of the six ordained A.D. 135; married the daughter of R. Hanina b. Teradion, iii. 3. His origin is unknown, and it is not certain whether 'Meir' was his real name. His work formed the basis of Rabbi's Mishnah.

business, עסק. Any occupation other than study of Torah.

idle things. Trifles that hinder. For the thought cp. iv. 2, the retribution of like for like.

Him. God.

reward. See on ii. 1, and cp. ii. 18.

13. R. Eliezer b. Jacob. There were two teachers of this name, the elder a contemporary of R. Johanan b. Zaccai, and the younger a disciple of R. Akiba. The younger is probably intended here. Date, middle to end of second century.

precept, mitzvah, any one of the precepts of the Torah; the doing of a mitzvah was a service of God.

advocate . . . accuser. The two Hebrew words פּרִקְלִיט, קַטְנוּר, represent παράκλητος and κατήγορος.

shield, תָּרִים. Again = a Greek word, θυρεός.

punishment, פּוֹרְעֵנוּת, divine retribution. Cp. Dan. iv. 24.

14. R. Johanan, the sandal-maker. A disciple of R. Akiba; date, middle to end of second century.

assembly. Society, company, or association of persons, for any purpose. For the thought cp. Acts v. 38, 39, and even Matt. xviii. 19.

15. R. Eleazar b. Shammua. So S; ACD omit 'b. Shammua'. Disciple of R. Akiba; one of the six ordained in the Terror, A.D. 135; one of the teachers of 'Rabbi'; lived to a great age. Date, the greater part of the second century.

honour . . . associate, חֲבִירָךְ. So ABCD; S reads כִּשְׁלֶךָ 'thine own honour'. The latter is probably due to a confusion with the maxim of R. Eliezer (note the similarity of name), ii. 14. In the present passage the reading 'thy associate', besides being better supported, is more suitable to the context.

fear, in the sense of reverence; on the ground that the teacher was the medium by which Torah, the divine revelation, is imparted to the disciple.

16. R. Judah (b. Illai). Contemporary of the preceding; a disciple of R. Akiba; one of the six ordained in the Terror, A.D. 135. Date, most of the second century.

teaching. The MSS. vary between תִּלְמוּד and לְמוּד. The sense is the same, for תִּלְמוּד had not yet acquired the special meaning of Mishnah plus Gemara.

amounts to, עוֹלָה, rises to such a height of seriousness that it becomes sin. There is a contrast between 'error' and 'sin' similar to that in iv. 5. The teacher may err through ignorance; but the consequence of his error may be wilful sin on his own part or that of others afterwards.

17. R. Simeon. Probably R. Simeon b. Johai; see on iii. 5. crowns. Symbol of supreme excellence.

crown . . . Torah. Cp. Prov. iv. 9.

crown . . . priesthood. Lev. viii. 9, and cp. 1 Pet. ii. 9.

good name. Cp. Prov. xxii. 1, Eccles. vii. 1.

18. R. Nehorai. Probably among the disciples of R. Akiba; but hardly anything is known of him. His name Nehorai is said to be merely an epithet applied to him. Some have identified him with R. Meir or with R. Nehemiah. Yet, if so, why a separate name?

Betake thyself, נוֹלָה, generally used of exile. The meaning would seem to be, 'if you are forced to leave your native place, go to a place where Torah is to be found.' Cp. i. 10 above.

fulfil . . . thee. By going to such a place he will add his share to the fulfilling of Torah by those who are there already. [Rather render: 'establish thee in the possession of it.' It is the collective not the individual judgement that is to be trusted, as the following words show.—Gen. Editor.]

19. R. Jannai; date, beginning and middle of third century; a disciple of 'Rabbi'. His maxim is one of the post-Mishnaic additions, like ii. 2. ABS give the name; CD have 'He used to say', ascribing this verse to the preceding teacher.

in . . . hands, אֵין בְּיַדֵּינוּ יִּי מִשְׁלוֹת וְגו', it is not for us. The lit. translation would be, 'there is not in our hands any of the prosperity of the wicked,' &c.

- 20 R. Matthia b. Harash said: Be first in greeting every man; and be a tail to lions and not a head to foxes.
- 21 R. Jacob said: This world is like a porch before the world to come. Make thyself ready in the porch, that thou mayst enter into the banqueting-hall.
- 22 He used to say: Fairer is one hour of repentance and good works in this world than all the life of the world to come; and fairer is one hour of calmness of spirit in the world to come than all the life of this world.
- 23 R. Simeon b. Eleazar said: Pacify not thy associate in the hour of his anger, and console him not in the hour when his dead is stretched out before him; and question him not in the hour of his vow, and seek not to behold him in the hour of his degradation.
- 24 Samuel, the small, said: 'Rejoice not when thine enemy falleth, and let not thine heart be glad Pr when he is overthrown, [lest the Lord see it, and it displease Him, and He turn away His wrath ib. 3 from him'].
- 25 Elisha b. Abuiah said: He who learns when a youth, to what is he like? To ink written on new paper. And he who learns when an old man, to what is he like? To ink written on erased paper.
- 26 R. Jose b. Judah, of Chephar ha-Babli, said: He who learns from the young, to what is he like? To one that eats unripe grapes and drinks wine from his winepress. He that learns from the old, to what is he like? To one that eats ripe grapes and drinks old wine.
- 27 Rabbi said: Look not at the pitcher but at what is in it. There is a new pitcher that is full of old wine, and an old pitcher in which there is not even new wine.
- 28 R. Eleazar ha-Kappar said: Jealousy and desire and ambition drive a man out of the world.
- 29 He used to say: Those that are born are for death, and the dead for making alive, and the living tail . . . lions. The meaning is clear; perhaps the maxim is an ironical comment on R. M.'s own situation, head of an exiled community in Rome, instead of 'least among the saints' in Palestine.

20. R. Matthia b. Harash; date, second century; a disciple of R. Ishmael, iii. 17; settled in Rome, where he spent the rest of his life. The name is sometimes written 'Heresh', after 1 Chron. ix. 15.

21. R. Jacob. The same as in iii. 10 above. Date, latter half of second century.

porch. The MSS. vary between פרוזדור and פרוזדור, of which neither reproduces the Greek, πρόθυρον.

banqueting-hall, טרקלין, triclinium, the world to come; cp. iii. 20.

22. He. R. Jacob.

With the general thought of this maxim cp. Luke xv. 7.

23. R. Simeon b. Eleazar; date, end of second century; son of R. Eleazar b. Shammua, iv. 15 above; disciple of R. Meir.

Pacify . . . anger. Give him time to cool down.

console . . . not. Cp. In Memoriam, vi: 'One writes that other friends remain,' &c.

hour . . . vow. When he has made a vow, do not discuss it with him and so perhaps make him regret it.

degradation. Either brought on himself or by others.

24. Samuel, the small; date, first century. He died somewhere about A.D. 80, and is usually said to have died young. I believe, on the contrary, that he died in extreme old age. For the reasons on which this view is based, see my Christianity in Talmud and Midrash, pp. 127-35. The fact that Samuel is not called Rabbi can be explained on either theory. The epithet 'small' is supposed to indicate his humility.

His maxim is merely a Scripture text without comment. The second half of the proof-text is given by BCDS, but omitted by A.

25. Elisha b. Abuiah; date, end of first century and up to the middle of the second, say A.D. 90-160. R. Meir was his friend, though much younger. El. is not called Rabbi, either because he was never ordained or because he fell under the censure of the Rabbis on account of his heretical views. He was one of the four who were said to have entered Paradise; and his theosophy may have been the cause of his going astray. The references to him in Rabbinic literature are numerous and mostly hostile; yet a certain respect is shown towards him as a teacher. He is the most interesting figure in the Talmud and Midrash.

to . . . like? For the phrase cp. iii. 22.

ink . . . paper, ניר . . . די. The comparison is not with the ink but with the writing. The paper is papyrus. erased paper, ניר טחוק, palimpsest. The thought needs no explanation.

26. R. Jose b. Judah, of Chephar ha-Babli; date, end of second century and beginning of third; son of R. Judah, iv. 16 above; disciple of R. Eleazar b. Shammua; contemporary of Rabbi. Chephar ha-Babli was probably in Galilee. His maxim turns on the same thought as the preceding, with a change of simile.

wine . . . winepress, wine newly made. Nothing turns on the fact that the winepress is his own.

27. Rabbi. See on ii. 1 above.

Taylor points out that this maxim serves to correct the preceding one. Not the age of the teacher but the worth of what he teaches is to be regarded. Did Rabbi perhaps regard himself as the 'new pitcher full of old wine', and R. Jose as the old empty pitcher?

28. R. Eleazar ha-Kappar; date, end of second century and beginning of third; contemporary of Rabbi.

drive . . . world. See on ii. 15.

29. He. R. Eleazar ha-Kappar.

This long utterance seems intended as the close of the book, or of the collection of dicta incorporated in it. Was R. Eleazar perhaps the collector?

for making alive, להחיות, i. e. for God to make them live again.

to be judged; to know and to make known and to be known that He is the maker and He the creator, and He the discerner, and He the Judge, and He the witness, and He the adversary, and He will judge in whose presence there is neither obliquity nor forgetfulness nor respect of persons nor taking a bribe; for all is His; and know that all is according to reckoning. Let not thy nature make thee believe that the grave is a place of refuge. For not of thy will wast thou formed, and not of thy will dost thou live, and not of thy will dost thou die, and not of thy will art thou to give just account and reckoning before the King of the kings of kings, the Holy One, blessed be He.

1 By ten Sayings the world was created. And why does the Scripture teach this? Could not the world have been created by one Saying? But it was in order to exact penalty from the wicked who destroy the world that was created by ten Sayings, and to give good reward to the righteous who establish the world that was created by ten Sayings.

2 Ten generations from Adam to Noah, to make known how much long-suffering is with Him; for all the generations provoked Him, until He brought the flood upon them.

3 Ten generations from Noah to Abraham, to make known how much long-suffering is with Him; for all the generations provoked Him, until Abraham our father came, and received the reward of them all.

4 Ten trials Abraham our father was tried with, and he bore them all, to make known how great was the love of Abraham our father.

5 Ten wonders were done for our fathers in Egypt, and ten by the sea.

6 [Ten plagues did the Holy One, blessed be He, bring upon the Egyptians in Egypt, and ten by the sea.]

7 Ten trials did our fathers try God with in the wilderness, as it is said: 'And they tempted Me Num. xiv. 22 these ten times, and did not hearken to My voice.'

8 Ten wonders were done in the Sanctuary, [for our fathers]. No woman miscarried through the smell of the sacred flesh; and the sacred flesh did not ever stink; and no uncleanness befell the High Priest on the day of Atonement; and no fly was seen in the slaughter-house; and no defect was found in the sheaf, or in the two loaves, or in the shewbread; and rain never quenched the fire; and wind never overcame the pillar of smoke; the people stood close together yet had room to bow themselves; no serpent nor scorpion did harm in Jerusalem; and none said to his companion, The place is too narrow for me that I should lodge in Jerusalem.

to know . . . known . . . be known, לידע ולהודיע ולהודע. Men are to know their relation to God, and learn it from others, and impart it to others (so Bartenora).

adversary, בעל דין. In the final judgement, God will be not only judge and witness but the other party in the suit.

reckoning. Cp. the saying of R. Akiba, iii. 20.

nature. The יצר, and probably the י' הרע, the evil impulse (see on ii. 15 above); the idea is that a man's lower nature will lead him to think that there is no judgement after death, so that he should need to fear.

grave. Sheol, the underworld.

refuge, a place where the soul can escape from divine justice.

just account . . . reckoning. See on iii. 1, where the whole of the concluding phrase, down to 'blessed be He', occurs. This may indicate that cc. iii-iv formed a separate collection. See Introduction.

V. This chapter is mainly taken up with groups of related things based respectively on the numbers ten, seven, four, and three. A few sayings of teachers are added at the end.

1. First group of ten. world . . . created. The ten 'Sayings' are the divine utterances in Gen. i, 'And God said,' &c.

why . . . teach. This is the meaning of the phrase מיה תלמוד לומר, which occurs numberless times in the Talmud. The explanation is that of Bacher (Terminologie, i, p. 200).

But . . . penalty . . . reward. The meaning is that though God could have created the world by one 'Saying', He chose to protract His creative work, to linger over it, and thereby enhanced its worth; so much the greater is the guilt of those who destroy it by sin, or the merit of those who maintain it by righteousness.

2. Second group of ten. Him, God. For the thought cp. 2 Pet. iii. 5-9.

3. Third group of ten. It would seem that Noah is included amongst those who provoked God. reward . . . all. The meaning is not clearly expressed; the sinners did not deserve a reward, and Abraham was not punished for their sins. Probably the meaning is that God put up with the sinners till Abraham, and that he by his righteousness made up for the sins of his ancestors.

4. Fourth group of ten. The ten trials of Abraham are not all scriptural. The list is variously reckoned by different commentators. love, i. e. Abraham's love to God, since he 'bore them all' for His sake.

5. Fifth and sixth group of ten.

6. This clause is noted as doubtful in DS. It is evidently intended as a parallel to No. 5. Possibly the sixth group was linked with the fifth, in order to introduce the two sets of plagues.

7. Seventh (ninth) group of ten. A mere deduction from Num. xiv. 22.

8. Eighth group of ten. The separate members being specified.

sacred flesh. The carcasses of the animals slaughtered for sacrifice.

uncleanness. As in Deut. xxiii. 10, which would prevent the High Priest from officiating.

sheaf, Lev. xxiii. 10-14.

loaves, ibid. 17.

shewbread, Exod. xxv. 30.

wind . . . smoke. It was considered a bad sign if the smoke rising from the great altar was blown aside instead of rising straight up.

place . . . narrow. Josephus says (B.I. vi. 9. 3) that on one occasion, just before the war, 2,565,000 persons were present at the Passover sacrifice in Jerusalem. The reader can believe that, if he will.

- 9 Ten things were created 'between the suns'. And these are they: The mouth of the earth; the mouth of the well; the mouth of the ass of Balaam; the bow; and the manna, and the rod of Moses; and the shamir-worm; and writing; and the writing; and the Tables. Some say, also the evil spirits, and the grave of Moses, and the ram of Abraham our father; and some say also the tongs that are made with tongs.
- 10 Seven things concerning a rude man, and seven concerning a wise man. A wise man does not speak in the presence of one who is greater than he in wisdom; and he does not break in upon the words of his associate; and he does not hasten to reply; he asks according to the Rule, and answers according to the subject; and he speaks on the first thing first, and on the last last; concerning what he has not heard he says, I have not heard; and he acknowledges the truth. The opposites of these are found in the rude man.
- 11 Seven kinds of punishment come upon the world for seven main transgressions. When some men tithe and some do not tithe, famine from drought comes; some go hungry and some are full. When they have resolved that they will not tithe at all, famine from tumult and from drought comes. And when they have resolved that they will not offer the cake of dough a famine of extermination comes. Pestilence comes upon the world for the capital crimes mentioned in the Torah which are not within the jurisdiction of the court of justice. Also, for fruits of the seventh year. The sword comes upon the world for suppression of justice and for perversion of justice, and for those that teach in the Torah not according to Rule. The wild beast comes on the world for false swearing, and for profaning of the Name. Exile comes upon the world for false worship, for incest, for bloodshed, and for not giving release to the earth.
- 12 At four seasons pestilence increases; in the fourth year, in the seventh, at the end of the seventh, and at the end of the Feast in each year. In the fourth, because of the tithe for the poor in the third; in the seventh, because of the tithe for the poor in the sixth; at the end of the seventh, because of the fruits of the seventh; and at the end of the Feast, because of the robbery of the gifts assigned to the poor.
- 13 Four types of men: He that says, What is mine is mine and what is thine is thine; this is the average type, some say it is the type of Sodom. He that says, What is mine is thine and what is thine is mine, is one of the vulgar; He that says, What is mine and what is thine are thine, is pious. He who says, What is thine and what is mine are mine, is wicked.
- 14 Four types of character: Easy to provoke and easy to pacify, his gain is cancelled by his loss.

9. Ninth group of ten. The things here mentioned became of special importance in the later history, but they are not specially mentioned in the account of the Creation; since, it was held, God had created nothing more after He 'rested from His labour', the things here mentioned must have been created last of all.

'between the suns,' בין השמשות, i. e. between sunset and sunrise. So all the MSS. C adds 'at nightfall', and DS 'on the eve of Sabbath'.

mouth . . . earth, that swallowed Korah. Num. xvi. 32.

mouth . . . well. Probably that in Num. xxi. 16-18.

mouth . . . ass, i. e. the speaking of Balaam's ass was provided for at the Creation.

bow, the rainbow.

shamir, a worm supposed to have the power of gnawing the hardest substances. Moses and Solomon are said to have made use of it.

writing, the forms of the letters; the writing, either the art of combining letters into words, or the writing on the Tables, or the writing instrument, stylus or pen.

tongs . . . tongs. The meaning is, that if the smith uses tongs in order to make tongs, who made the first tongs? Answer, they were made among the last things at the Creation. Presumably meaning that God is the author of all unexplained beginnings.

10. First group of seven. rude man, גולם. Lit. foetus, the unformed human being.

Rule, halachah. See on ii. 1 above.

11. Second group of seven. A deduction from Lev. xxvi. 14-22.

fruits . . . seventh year, Exod. xxiii. 11. So also, release . . . earth.

12. First group of four. seasons, פּרָקִים. Not in each year, but regularly recurring periods within the cycle of seven years. The idea is that pestilence comes by reason of the sins committed in regard to the tithe for the poor, &c.

the Feast, i. e. of Tabernacles.

robbery . . . poor. After the harvest has been reaped, the gleaning and the corner of the field and any part forgotten were to be left for the poor. Any one who did not so leave them robbed the poor.

13. Second group of four. types, מְדוּת. Lit. 'measures', the same word as in 'with what measure ye mete', &c., Matt. vii. 2; here the means by which the character of a man is estimated or measured; 'type' conveys the same meaning through a different metaphor.

Sodom. The reference is to Ezek. xvi. 49.

vulgar, am-ha-aretz. See on ii. 6 above. The meaning is that he who does not know the Scripture does not know that he ought only to give and not to receive, Prov. xv. 27. Hence the definition of the pious.

14. Third group of four. gain . . . loss, הַפְסָדוֹ בְשֹׁכְרוֹ. The two men described lose by their anger and gain by their being pacified; but the second is of a firmer character than the first, and therefore in his case gain is mentioned before loss, and vice versa.

Hard to provoke and hard to pacify, his loss is cancelled by his gain. Hard to provoke and easy to pacify, he is pious. Easy to provoke and hard to pacify, he is wicked.

15 Four types of disciples: Quick to hear and quick to lose, his gain is cancelled by his loss. Slow to learn and slow to lose, his loss is cancelled by his gain. Quick to hear and slow to lose, he is wise. Slow to hear and quick to lose, this is an evil lot.

16 Four types of almsgivers: He who is willing to give but not that others should give, his eye is evil towards what is theirs; he who is willing that others should give but does not give himself, his eye is evil towards what is his; he who is willing to give and that others should give, is pious; he who is not willing that he should give or that others should give, is wicked.

17 Four types of them that go to the house of learning: He that goes and does nothing, has the reward of his going; he that goes not but does something, has the reward of doing; he that goes and does something, is pious; he that neither goes nor does anything, is wicked.

18 Four types of them that sit before the Wise: A sponge, a funnel, a strainer and a sieve. A sponge, because it sucks up everything; a funnel, because it receives at one end and lets out at the other; a strainer, because it lets out the wine and keeps back the dregs; a sieve, because it lets out the coarse meal and keeps the fine flour.

19 All love which depends on something—if the thing ceases, the love ceases. If it does not depend on something it ceases not for ever. What love is that which depends on something? This is the love of Amnon and Tamar. And that which does not depend on something? This is the love of David and Jonathan.

20 Every controversy which is for the name of Heaven will in the end be established; and that which is not for the name of Heaven will not in the end be established. What controversy is that which is for the name of Heaven? The controversy of Shammai and Hillel. And that which is not for the name of Heaven? This is the controversy of Korah.

21 Every one that makes the many virtuous, sin comes not by his means; and every one that maketh the many to sin, they give him not the opportunity to repent. Moses was virtuous and made the many virtuous, and the virtue of the many depended on him; as it is said: 'He executed the righteousness of the Lord, and His judgements with Israel.' Deut. xxxiii. 21

Jeroboam sinned and made the many to sin, the sin of the many depended on him; as it is said: 'For the sin of Jeroboam who sinned and made Israel to sin.'

1 Kings xiv. 16

22 Every one who has three things is one of the disciples of Abraham our father. And every one who has three other things is one of the disciples of Balaam the wicked. If he has a good eye, and a lowly soul and a humble spirit, he is of the disciples of Abraham our father. If he has an evil eye, and a boastful soul and a haughty spirit, he is of the disciples of Balaam the wicked. What is the difference between the disciples of Abraham our father and the disciples of Balaam the wicked? The disciples of Balaam the wicked inherit Gehenna and go down to the pit of destruction, as it is said: 'But Thou, O God, wilt bring them down to the pit of destruction. Men of blood and deceit shall not live out half their days; but I will trust in Thee.' But the disciples of Abraham our father inherit the Garden of Eden and inherit the world to come; as it is said: 'That I may cause them that love me to inherit substance, and that I may fill their treasuries.' Ps. lv. 24 Prov. viii. 21

15. Fourth group of four. Types of students, of course of Torah.

16. Fifth group of four. Almsgivers. eye . . . evil. See above on ii. 12.

17. Sixth group of four. Types of students, as in 15, here considered in reference to their going to the School and what they do there.

has . . . reward. Cp. Matt. vi. 2.

does something, practises some of the Torah which he learns.

18. Seventh group of four. Similes of students. The four objects described are explained, and it is clear what ought to be the effect of the sieve; but no commentator has explained what kind of a sieve lets the coarse go through and keeps the fine. The word is rightly rendered 'sieve'.

19. No longer groups but general principles. The contrast between selfish and unselfish love.

20. Controversy justifiable and unjustifiable. be established, סופה להתקיים. It will not establish the contentions of both opponents, but it will show that it was right for them to have argued against each other.

Shammai . . . Hillel. See on i. 12. It was said in regard to them, 'The words of each are the words of the living God, but the halachah is according to Hillel' (Erub. 13^b).

21. A omits the clause about Jeroboam, probably only by a scribal error.

the many, οἱ πολλοί.

sin. Taylor compares Rom. v. 19.

22. disciples . . . Abraham. Taken as a model, like Aaron, i. 12 above.

Balaam. Perhaps a covert reverence to Jesus is intended.

blood . . . deceit. This text is elsewhere used to show that Balaam (Jesus?) was about thirty-three years old. (For the Rabbinical comparison of Balaam with Jesus, see my Christianity in Talmud and Midrash, pp. 64-70.)

[inherit the Garden of Eden and inherit the world to come. This is clearly a conflate text. One of these clauses should be excised.—Gen. Editor.]

- 23 R. Judah b. Tema said: Be bold as a leopard, and light as an eagle, and swift as a gazelle, and strong as a lion to do the will of thy Father which is in heaven.
- 24 [He used to say: The bold-faced man is for Gehenna, and the shame-faced man is for the Garden of Eden. May it be Thy will, O Lord our God and the God of our fathers, that Thy city may be built speedily in our days; and grant our portion to be in Thy Torah.]
- 25 [Ben Bag-Bag said: Turn it, and turn it again, for the whole is in it, and the whole of thee is in it; and from it swerve not, for there is to thee no greater good than it.]
- 26 [Ben He-He said: According to the toil is the pay.]
- 27 [He said: At five years old one is fit for the Scripture, at ten years for Mishnah, at thirteen for the commandments, at fifteen for Talmud, at eighteen for marriage, at twenty for retribution, at thirty for power, at forty for discernment, at fifty for counsel, at sixty for elderhood, at seventy for grey hairs, at eighty for strength, at ninety for decrepitude, and at a hundred he is as if he were Ps. c. dead and had passed away and vanished from the world.]

END OF THE TREATISE 'FATHERS'.

THE CHAPTER OF R. MEIR, OR, THE ACQUISITION OF TORAH.

6 1 The Wise have taught in the language of the Mishnah; blessed is He that made choice of them and of their Mishnah.

R. Meir said: Every one who is occupied with the Torah for its own sake is worthy to have many things; and not only so, but the whole world, all of it, is his equivalent. He is called friend,

23. Note the return to maxims of named teachers.

R. Judah b. Tema; date uncertain; he is once mentioned with R. Meir, middle of second century.

Father . . . in heaven. This term is common in the Rabbinical literature, and is pre-Christian. See my Pharisaism, pp. 120-4. The use of it here tends to show that this verse was originally the conclusion of the book. D says this expressly. The verses which follow are later additions, and the order of them is variously given.

24. He. Probably not R. Judah b. Tema. The author is unknown. Whoever added it did so as a further conclusion to the book, for the second clause is a kind of doxology common in the Jewish liturgy.

25. Ben Bag-Bag. This is not a real name, but an epithet formed from the initials of the words 'Ben Ben Ger Bath Gerah'; and one explanation is that his father and mother were each the offspring of converts to Judaism. The vowels are only supplied to enable the word to be sounded. He is supposed to have been a disciple of Hillel.

His maxim refers to Torah, as the full and complete divine revelation.

26. Ben He-He. A name formed like the preceding, and possibly the same person is referred to. The maxim is in Aramaic, as are some of those of Hillel.

27. He. Sometimes is introduced here the saying of Samuel the small, iv. 24, in order to make him the author of the saying about the ages of man. But this connexion is quite uncertain. The passage is only placed here as having been either added later than the body of the book, or else, as Strack suggests, having been excluded from the book on account of its melancholy conclusion. It is a series of descriptive phrases which need little comment.

twenty . . . retribution. Although he is considered to be old enough at thirteen to be able to obey the precepts (he is called then a bar-mitzvah), he is not held fully responsible, and therefore liable to divine punishment for sin, לרדוף, until he is twenty. [Better 'twenty . . . pursuing a calling'.—Gen. Editor.]

VI. It is admitted by all that the sixth chapter formed no part of the treatise incorporated in the Mishnah. See Introduction. It is only given here because, by long custom, it is read with the rest of the book. Nevertheless the material contained, the maxims of particular Rabbis, may be as authentic as what is included in the earlier chapters. It is usually called the 'Chapter of R. Meir', or the 'Acquisition of Torah', the former title being merely a reference to the first teacher mentioned in it. The latter title fairly describes the contents. Taylor, in his edition, merely gives a translation from the text contained in a modern prayer-book; he adds no comment and no critical apparatus. The text here translated is that of Strack's edition.

1. The Wise, the Talmudic teachers.

taught, לשנ, the special word applied to the authoritative teaching of Torah; the name Mishnah, from the same root, denotes the corpus of such teaching, as it was collected and edited by 'Rabbi'. The intention of this sentence, which forms a sort of motto for the chapter, is to connect the chapter with the preceding ones as forming with them virtually a part of the Mishnah.

blessed . . . He, i. e. God.

choice. Implying, as it would seem, some degree of divine guidance in the development of the Mishnah. The Talmud says (B. B. 12^a) that prophecy was taken from the prophets and given to the Wise, meaning the Rabbis.

R. Meir. See on iv. 12. Date, middle of second century.

occupied . . . Torah. This phrase occurs in R. M.'s maxim, iv. 12, and may have been taken thence to serve as the theme for the present exposition.

worthy to have, זוכה; the corresponding noun is זכות, merit. The term denotes a condition of mind and character such as to meet with the divine approval; it does not imply a claim against God for reward. See my Pharisaism, pp. 276-80. For the phrase cp. Rev. v. 9, 12.

equivalent, כרי הוא לו, and not more; he is worth the whole world. Strack wrongly, as I think, compares 1 Cor. iii. 21, 'for all are yours.'

beloved, one that loves God and loves mankind, makes glad both God and mankind. And it clothes him with humbleness and fear, and purifies him to become righteous, pious, upright and faithful; keeps him far from sin and brings him to virtue. Men enjoy from him counsel and sound knowledge, discernment and might; as it is said: 'Counsel is mine and sound knowledge; I am discernment; I have might.' And it gives him sovereignty and dominion and searching out of justice; and they disclose for him secrets of Torah. And he is made like a spring which ceases not, and like a stream that goes on getting stronger. And he is modest and longsuffering and forgiving of insult. And it makes him great and lifts him above all the things that are done.

2 R. Joshua b. Levi has said: Every day a Bath-Qol goes forth from Mount Horeb and proclaims and says 'Woe to mankind because of their insulting of the Torah'; for every one that is not occupied with the Torah is called reprobate; as it is said: 'As a jewel of gold in the snout of a swine, so is a fair woman without sense.' And Scripture says: 'And the tables were the work of God, and the writing writing of God, graven on the tables.' Read not 'haruth' (graven) but 'heruth' (freedom); for none is your freeman, but he who is occupied with the study of Torah. And every one who is occupied in the study of Torah, lo, he exalts himself, as it is said: 'And from Mattanah to Nahaliel, and from Nahaliel to Bamoth.'

3 He who learns from his associate one chapter, one rule, one verse, one saying, even one letter, must show honour to him; for thus we find in the case of David, king of Israel, that he learned loves God . . . mankind. Observe the unlimited range of the love inspired by the religion of Torah.

makes glad. Cp. Zeph. iii. 17, but with a finer meaning here.

it clothes him. 'It' is Torah, personified. Cp. 1 Pet. v. 5 for humility as a virtue put on, given from above.

purifies, makes him כָּשֵׁר, kāshēr, in a fit condition to perform his religious duties. The same word, pronounced 'kosher', is used in Jewish shops to denote food ritually fit for use.

from him, i. e. from the man who is occupied with Torah. The proof-text, Prov. viii. 14, makes Wisdom say 'Counsel is mine', &c. Torah is identified with wisdom; therefore the man who has Torah is enabled to give what is inherent in wisdom.

it gives, i. e. Torah gives.

sovereignty, מַלְכוּת, moral not political supremacy.

searching . . . justice. Solomon, the wise king, was able to find out what true justice required, 1 Kings iii. 16-28.

they disclose. 'They' are the familia caelestis, the angels.

stream, &c. For the phrase cp. ii. 10; the simile used there is expanded here.

And . . . is. Strack reads הִוָּה (participle) for the common reading הִוָּה, imperative, which, as he says, makes no sense. But הוּוה is very unusual, and it would be simpler to read הוּוה 'he (is)'. The structure of the whole passage is very clumsy, with its frequent changes of subject; it may be a cento of phrases from different sources.

things . . . done, meaning that he is not the slave of circumstance but spiritually free.

2. R. Joshua b. Levi: date, middle of third century, A. D., a famous haggadist (see note below) and mystic. The Mishnah was closed before his time, and with it the series of Rabbis known as Tannaim. Their successors, who commented on the Mishnah, and whose teaching forms the Gemara, were called Amoraim; R. Joshua was an Amora, and his mention here is one of the indications that this chapter did not form part of the original book.

Bath-Qol. Lit. 'daughter of a voice'. The term denotes a sound interpreted as a voice from heaven, delivering some special message to men. It was said to have been a 'Bath-Qol' which decided on the rivalry between the schools of Hillel and Shammai. See on v. 20 above. In John xii. 28, 29, what is referred to is evidently meant for a 'Bath-Qol'. The Rabbis held that since the extinction of prophecy, the 'Bath-Qol' took the place of the 'word of the Lord' which came to the prophet, but was an inferior mode of inspiration.

Horeb. Not that R. J. believed that God dwelt on Horeb, but merely as a scriptural phrase for the seat of divine authority.

reprobate, נִזְוֵה, one who is reproved by God. The word does not occur in the O. T. The proof-text, which seems to be wholly irrelevant, is applied after the methods of haggadah (non-literal interpretation of Scripture for edification). The text says נִזְוֵה בְּאֵף הַזוּר. R. J. takes נִזְוֵה and associates it with נִזְוֵה אֵף, by mere similarity of letters, and then argues, in effect, that as 'a fair woman without sense' is נִזְוֵה אֵף, so a man without Torah is נִזְוֵה. This is haggadah; and the haggadist did not imply that the words of Scripture really gave that meaning, but that the lesson he wished to teach could be linked on to Scripture in that way.

Read not 'haruth' but 'heruth'. This also is haggadah. For the sake of edification, the text of Scripture might be read otherwise than as written; but this implied no actual criticism of the text, nor any question of 'various readings'. R. J. reads 'heruth' 'freedom', for the sake of making his point about the freeman; but he was quite aware that 'heruth' would make no sense in the original text, Exod. xxxii. 16.

exalts himself. In the previous verse it is Torah which exalts. The proof-text, Num. xxi. 19, is again applied in the manner of haggadah. The place-names are taken according to their literal meaning, Mattanah = gift; Nahaliel, God leads; Bamoth = heights. Thus Torah was given; God leads the man who studies it to the heights, i. e. exalts him. This exposition is given in the Talmud (Erub. 54^a) but not in the name of R. J., although he is quoted on the same page.

3. This saying is anonymous. learns, i. e. learns Torah.

rule, halachah. See on ii. 1 above.

show honour, as to a teacher of Torah, cp. iv. 15 above.

David . . . Ahithophel. The reference is to a story, not found in the O. T., intended to explain how David came to compose the fifteen 'Psalms of degrees'. The story, too long to quote, occurs in Succ. 53^b, Macc. 11^a, and the authority for it is said to be R. Johanan (A. D. 199-279). The present passage is thus later than the Gemara.

- from Ahithophel only two things, but he called him his master, his teacher, his familiar friend; as it is said: 'But thou, a man mine equal, my teacher and my familiar friend'. And are not these things an argument a fortiori? If David, king of Israel, who learned from Ahithophel only two things, called him his master, his teacher, his familiar friend, how much more one who learns from his associate one chapter or one rule, or one verse, or one saying, or even one letter, ought to show honour to him: and 'honour' simply means Torah; as it is said: 'The wise shall inherit honour'; and 'The perfect shall inherit good': and 'good' simply means Torah; as it is said: 'For I have given thee good doctrine, forsake not my Torah.'
- 4 This is the way of Torah: A morsel with salt thou shalt eat, 'and thou shalt drink water by measure'; and thou shalt sleep on the ground, and thou shalt live a life of hardship, and thou shalt labour in the Torah. If thou doest thus 'happy shalt thou be, and it shall be well with thee'; 'happy' in this world, and 'well with thee' in the world to come.
- 5 Seek not greatness for thyself, neither covet honour. Perform more than thou hast learned. And crave not for the tables of kings; for thy table is greater than their table, and thy crown greater than their crown; and faithful is He, the master of thy work, to pay thee the reward of thy labour.
- 6 Greater is Torah than priesthood and than sovereignty. For sovereignty is acquired through thirty qualifications, and priesthood by twenty-four; but the Torah is acquired by forty-eight things. And these are they:—'By learning, the listening of the ear, the ordering of the lips, the discernment of the heart, fear, dread, humility, cheerfulness, purity, attendance on the Wise, discussion with associates, argument with disciples, sedateness, Scripture, Mishnah; by little business, little intercourse with the world, little sleep, little conversation, little luxury, little merriment; by forbearance, a good heart, faith in the Wise, acceptance of chastisements; by being one that knows his place, and rejoices in his portion, and makes a fence for his words, and claims not goodness for himself, that is loved, that loves God, that loves mankind, that loves deeds of charity, that loves uprightness, that loves reproofs, and keeps himself far from honour, and puffs not up his heart with his learning, and delights not in giving decisions, that bears the yoke along with his associate, and judges him with a leaning to merit, and establishes him upon truth, and establishes him upon peace, and settles his heart in his study, that asks and answers, that hears and adds thereto, that learns with a view to teaching, and that learns with a view to action, that makes his teacher wise, that makes sure what he hears, and that repeats a word in the name of him who said it. See, thou hast learned: Every one that says a word in the name of him who said it brings redemption into the world; as it is said: 'And Esther said to the king in the name of Mordecai.'
- 7 Great is Torah, for it gives to them that practise it life in this world and in the world to come; as it is said: 'For they are life to them that find them, and health to all their flesh.'

called . . . master. This is not in the Talmudic story, but merely an inference from Ps. lv. 13, taken as referring to Ahithophel.

a fortiori, קל וחומר, lit. 'light and heavy'. The form of the argument is: 'if A is B, how much more C is B?' This is one of the seven rules which Hillel introduced for the interpretation of Scripture.

'honour' . . . means Torah. There is a confusion of thought here, for the disciple is to show honour to his Master because of Torah; he does not show Torah to him.

good doctrine. The same proof-text is quoted in iii. 19 above.

4. Anonymous. way. Cp. on ii. 1 above. The proof-text, Ps. cxxviii. 2, is quoted in iv. 1 above, and even there it is probably a later insertion.

5. Anonymous. Perform . . . learned. Cp. i. 17, iii. 12 above.

tables of kings, court favour.

thy table, the table at which thou sittest, the table of God, see on iii. 5 above.

thy crown, of Torah. See on iv. 17 above.

faithful . . . labour. Verbatim from ii. 19.

6. Anonymous. Torah . . . priesthood . . . sovereignty. Classed together, iv. 17 above.

acquired, נקנית; but a different word is needed. The dignities referred to are not acquired by the things specified, but these are, in the case of kings and priests, privileges enjoyed by the holder of the dignity; in the case of the man of Torah they are characteristic features. The privileges of kings and high-priests are given in the Mishnah, Sanh. ii. The list of forty-eight 'things' shows variations in the style which point to an origin from different sources. Nos. 1-25 are nouns, the remainder verbs describing what the man of Torah does. The total number is fifty, and there seems to be little attempt at orderly sequence in the list. The whole passage may be taken as the summary of the Pharisaic ideal; see my Pharisaism, pp. 327-30. Various parallels with phrases in the earlier part of the book occur. Detailed comment is unnecessary, as nearly all the ideas have been mentioned before. After the list is closed, follows a comment upon the last item, 'that says a word in the name of him who said it.' The Rabbis attached great importance to this, the idea being that he who brought to the knowledge of his fellows some new meaning of Torah and rendered explicit part of the divine meaning till then implicit in it, should be held in remembrance for having done so.

See, thou hast learned. The words which follow are a quotation from the Talmud, Chull. 104^b, another proof of the late date of this chapter. The proof-text is less cogent than the reason given above.

7. Anonymous. The life-giving power of Torah. Chiefly a series of Scripture texts.

And Scripture says: 'It shall be health to thy navel, and marrow to thy bones.' And it says: Prov. iii. 8 'She shall be a tree of life to them that lay hold upon her, and happy are they that retain her.' ib. iii. 18 And it says: 'For they shall be a chaplet of grace unto thy head, and chains about thy neck.' And it says: 'She shall give to thine head a chaplet of grace; a crown of beauty shall she deliver thee.' And it says: 'For by me thy days shall be multiplied, and they shall increase to thee years of life.' And it says: 'Length of days is in her right hand, and in her left hand riches and honour.' And it says: 'For length of days, and years of life, and peace shall they add to thee.' ib. iii. 2

8 R. Simeon b. Judah, in the name of R. Simeon b. Johai, said: Beauty, strength, riches, honour, wisdom, old age, grey hairs, children, are comely for the righteous and comely for the world; as it is said: 'The hoary head is a crown of glory; it shall be found in the way of righteousness.' Prov. xvi. 31 And it says: 'Children's children are the crown of old men; and the glory of children are their fathers.' And it says: 'The glory of young men is their strength; and the beauty of old men is the hoary head.' And it says: 'Then the moon shall be confounded and the sun ashamed; for the Lord of Hosts shall reign in Mount Zion, and in Jerusalem, and before His ancients gloriously.' Isa. xxiv. 23

9 R. Simeon b. Menasia said: These seven attributes, which the Wise have assigned to the righteous, were all exemplified in Rabbi and in his sons.

10 R. Jose b. Kisma has said: Once I was walking by the way and there met me a man, and he greeted me, and I greeted him again. He said to me, Rabbi, whence comest thou? I said to him, I am from a great city of wise men and scribes. He said to me, Rabbi, wilt thou dwell with us in our place, and I will give thee a thousand thousand gold pieces and precious stones and pearls? I said to him, If thou gavest me all the silver and gold and precious stones and pearls which are in the world I would not dwell except in a place of Torah. For thus it is written in the book of Psalms, by the hands of David, king of Israel: 'The Torah of Thy mouth is better unto me than thousands of gold and silver.' And not only so, but in the hour of a man's death it is not silver or gold or precious stones or pearls which accompany him, but Torah and good works alone; as it is said: 'When thou walkest it shall lead thee. when thou liest down it shall watch over thee, and when thou wakest it shall talk with thee.' 'When thou walkest it shall lead thee'—in this world. 'When thou liest down it shall watch over thee'—in the grave. 'When thou wakest it shall talk with thee'—in the world to come. And it says: 'The silver is Mine and the gold is Mine, saith the Lord of Hosts.' Hag. ii. 8

11 Five possessions hath the Holy One, blessed be He, acquired in His world, and these are they: Torah is one possession; heaven and earth are one possession; Abraham is one possession; Israel is one possession; the house of the sanctuary is one possession. Whence is this proved concerning Torah? That which is written: 'The Lord possessed me in the beginning of His way, before His works of old.' Whence concerning heaven and earth? That which is written: 'Thus saith the Lord of Hosts, Heaven is My throne and the earth the footstool of My feet: what is this house that ye build for Me, and what is the place of My rest?' And it says: 'How manifold are Thy works, O Lord! in wisdom hast Thou made them all: the earth is full of Thy possessions.' Whence concerning in the name of, מִשׁוֹם. The regular formula by which one teacher cites the dictum of another, but it does not necessarily imply that the later had actually heard it from the earlier teacher. The series of graces, together with all the proof-texts except the last, is taken verbatim from Tosephta, Sanh. xi. 8. The relevancy of the text from Isa. xxiv. 23 is not obvious.

8. R. Simeon b. Judah. A contemporary, probably older, of Rabbi; date, middle of second century. He was a disciple of R. Simeon b. Johai (see iii. 5); his father was probably (R.) Judah of Chephar Ikos, mentioned in connexion with Gamaliel II. This verse is sometimes, wrongly, assigned to R. S. b. Menasia, v. 9.

9. R. Simeon b. Menasia. Also, like the preceding, an older contemporary of Rabbi; date, middle of second century.

His remark, which only gives the personal application of the saying in v. 8, is likewise taken from Tosephta, where it follows immediately after the saying of R. Simeon.

10. R. Jose b. Kisma. Friend of R. Hanina b. Teradion (iii. 3 above); date, end of first century and beginning of second.

has said. Note the change of form. The maxims of the various Sages are what they were in the habit of saying; here we have an anecdote which R. Jose once told.

great city. R. Jose lived in Caesarea Philippi, but that city was not specially remarkable for its 'wise men and scribes'. Jerusalem cannot be meant; for though, after the siege, Jews were not forbidden to live there, it was no longer a place of learning. The seat of authority had been transferred to Jabneh, and in R. Jose's time was at Usha. Possibly this is the city referred to.

gold pieces, דִּנָּר, denarii.

11. Anonymous. This passage has its sources in the Talmud and the older Midrash. In Siphri 134^a, three 'possessions' are mentioned: Torah, Israel, and the Sanctuary. In Mechilta, Beshallah 9, p. 43^{a, b}, four are given: Israel, heaven and earth, the Sanctuary, and Torah. In the Talmud, Pes. 87^b, the same four are given. Abraham is thus a later addition; the proof-text does not support his inclusion, because it says that God is the possessor, not of Abraham, but of heaven and earth.

Abraham? That which is written: 'And he blessed him and said, Blessed be Abraham of God Most High, possessor of heaven and earth.' Whence concerning Israel? That which is written: 'Till Thy people pass over, O Lord, till the people pass over which Thou hast possessed.' And it says: 'As for the saints that are in the earth, they are the excellent in whom is all my delight.' Whence concerning the house of the Sanctuary? That which is written: 'The place, O Lord, which Thou hast made for Thee to dwell in, the Sanctuary, O Lord, which Thy hands have founded.' And it says: 'And He brought them to the border of His Sanctuary, to this mountain which His right hand hath possessed.' All that the Holy One, blessed be He, created in His world, He created it only for His glory; as it is said: 'Every one that is called by My name, and whom I have created for My glory, I have formed him, I have made him.' And it says: 'The Lord shall reign for ever and ever.'

12. Anonymous. Probably continuous with the preceding, the idea being to supplement the statement that God has five possessions in the world by the declaration that all which it contains is His because He created it. The passage itself is older, being taken verbatim from the Talmud, Joma 38^a, and there it is assigned to a date before A.D. 70. The compiler of this chapter included it as a well-known ancient saying in praise of God, and added it here both to qualify the preceding statement about the possessions, and also to serve as a sort of concluding doxology to the whole book.

The Wilna edition of the Talmud gives, after v. 12, a saying ascribed to R. Hanania b. Akashia (date unknown) and taken from Macc. 23^b, 'Be pleased, O God, to purify Israel; wherefore increase to them Torah and precepts, as it is said (Isa xlii. 21): "It pleased the Lord, for His righteousness' sake, to magnify the Torah and make it honourable."' Rashi mentions this verse, but says it does not belong to the treatise of the Fathers.

THE STORY OF AḤIḲAR

INTRODUCTION

§ 1. SHORT ACCOUNT OF THE BOOK.

IN the story of Aḥiḳar we are probably, as in the parallel case of Tobit, in the region of folk-lore pure and simple. It is a tale of Ingratitude and its Just Judgement, much in the same ethical manner as Tobit is a tale of a Grateful Ghost, and how he made recompense to his benefactor, who had cared for his dead body. We make the acquaintance of the story, first of all, in the supplementary pages of the Arabian Nights; we then trace it through the legends of a variety of peoples, with a growing sense of the antiquity of the common nucleus which underlies the traditions, and finally, as an interesting combination of good luck with good learning, the original story turns up in an Aramaic papyrus of the fifth century B.C. among the ruins of Elephantiné; in a language, that is, which had been conjectured as its original, and of an antiquity even greater than had been assigned to it by any of its investigators. The discovery followed from first suspicions to last achievement is itself almost a romance.

Aḥiḳar, who is the hero of the tale, was Grand-Vizier to Sennacherib, King of Assyria; he was a sage, as well as a politician, high in honour, abundant in wealth, and only poor by the curse of childlessness which left him without a son whom he might make the heir of his wealth and his wisdom. Repeated prayers brought him at last an injunction to take his sister's son, Nadan, and bring him up as his own offspring. The story-teller relates the education of the youth, and how, after being deluged with proverbial philosophy, he turned out ill, intrigued against his adopted father, and betrayed him, by forged documents of a treasonable character, to the Government. Aḥiḳar is condemned to death and Nadan steps into his place; but, on the way to execution, the swordsman is reminded by Aḥiḳar of a previous occasion on which he had saved him from a similar danger. A plan is devised by the two friends for the saving of Aḥiḳar's life, a criminal is substituted for him at the place of execution, and Aḥiḳar is hidden away in his own cellarage to wait for the evolution of events. At last political circumstances bring the necessary turn to the wheel of his fortune. The King of Assyria is unable, without his aid, to meet the intrigues and satisfy the demands of the King of Egypt; he sighs over Aḥiḳar dead, and is informed, to his delight, that the sage is really living. Aḥiḳar is brought out of his hiding-place, a very spectacle, with unkempt locks and overgrown nails, and reinstated in his ancient honour. After an interval spent, in the typical folk-lore manner, in satisfying the requirements of the King of Egypt, Aḥiḳar returns to claim the boon of a due revenge on his adopted son, whom he imprisons, beats, and starves, and to whom he talks parables, till the young man dies,—after the manner recorded of another traitor in the Acts of the Apostles.

The story is divided internally into four parts, which need not, all of them, be of equal antiquity. There is (1) the narrative itself: (2) the imbedded proverbial philosophy or, as we may call it, the Teaching of Aḥiḳar: (3) the journey to Egypt, which may be the expansion of a later folklorist and can easily be detached from the main narration; and (4) the similitudes, with which Aḥiḳar completes the education of his nephew; or as we may call them, the Parables of Aḥiḳar.

§ 2. THE ANTIQUITY OF THE BOOK.

The antiquity of the book is demonstrated by the following considerations:

(a) That Democritus, the Greek proverbial philosopher, is alleged by Clement of Alexandria to have incorporated with his writings matter which he had appropriated from the Pillar of Aḥiḳar: if this be the real Democritus, and the monument actually contained the Sayings of Aḥiḳar, the latter must have been extant in the early part of the fifth century B.C.

(b) That the story of Aḥiḳar has been made the foundation for the account of the adventures of the Greek Aesop at the Court of Lykeros, King of Babylon.

(c) That the Book of Tobit makes definite allusion to the story of Aḥiḳar and Nadan, the deliverance of the former, and the just doom of the latter, in a way that assumes the story to be well known to the author of Tobit and to his readers.

THE STORY OF AHIKAR

(d) That Theophrastus is said to have composed a book called Aḥīkar, which suggests some account of the hero of our tale.

(e) That Strabo enumerates amongst persons who had mantic gifts a man named Ahaikar amongst the people of the Bosphorus, where it has been acutely suggested that we should read 'the people of Borsippa'.¹

(f) The names of the leading characters in the story are Assyrian in form, a peculiarity which is often conserved in the very latest versions.

(g) Aḥīkar appears to be included amongst the wise men of the world in a mosaic found at Trèves.

(h) And lastly, the story of Aḥīkar is found in a fragmentary papyrus recently recovered from the ruins of Elephantiné, and without doubt belonging to the fifth century before Christ.

A further confirmation, if confirmation were needed, would lie in the occurrence of definite quotations from the recovered story in other early works. The investigation of such quotations is, however, complicated by the uncertainty as to whether all parts of the Aḥīkar-tradition are substantially of the same age. If we could assume that they were, then, in view of the great age of the Elephantiné-papyrus and the still greater age of the original from which it is derived, we could at once infer that the Aḥīkar story was an influencing factor in a number of Biblical Psalms and in certain of the Sapiential books, such as Proverbs and Sirach, as well as in Daniel and in Tobit, in the Book of Jubilees and in the Testaments of the Twelve Patriarchs. We shall also have a number of significant parallels in the New Testament, in the Gospels, the Acts, the first Epistle to the Corinthians, and the second Epistle of Peter. It will, probably, be best to present all these coincidences as parallels in the first instance, and postpone the decision as to whether they are actual quotations until we have further light on the development of the story itself. Over and above these Biblical parallels, we have a number of quotations made by Shahrastani, probably through the medium of Democritus, a series of adaptations of the proverbs of Aḥīkar by Mohammed, an incorporation of part of the opening sentences in the story of Syntipas, a versification in Old French of one of the Parables of Aḥīkar, and a number of quotations in early Armenian writers. Few books have so wide an attestation as the story of Aḥīkar. For convenience we tabulate the above parallels and quotations as follows:—

Democritus.	Matthew.
Tobit.	Luke.
Psalms.	Acts.
Proverbs.	1 Corinthians.
Sirach.	2 Peter.
Daniel.	2 Timothy.
Jubilees.	Koran.
Testaments of Twelve Patriarchs.	Syntipas, and an Old French Parable.

§ 3. QUOTATIONS AND REFERENCES.

a. Democritus.

Now that the antiquity of Aḥīkar is so firmly established, there is very little ground for questioning the references made to him or his teaching by Democritus or other writers depending on Democritus. Here are the principal passages that come under discussion:

Shahrastani, as from Democrates (ed. Cureton, p. 306):

'The tail of a dog gives him meat, his voice gets him blows.'

Cf. Aeth. 2: 'My son, make fair thy discourse and thy behaviour; for the wagging of a dog's tail gives him bread, but his jaw brings him stones.'

Syr. ii. 38: 'My son, sweeten thy tongue and make savoury the opening of thy mouth; for the tail of a dog gives him bread, but his mouth gets him blows.'

It is also found in the Copenhagen Arabic in this form:

'The tail of a dog gives him bread to eat, and his mouth gives him a beating with stones to eat.'

In Cod. Syr. S₃ it recurs in this form:

'For the tail of the dog gives him bread, but his mouth gives him blows and stones.'

In the Armenian sayings it has got into the second group in the form:

'(God passes judgement between me and thee). For the tail of a dog gives him bread, and his mouth a cudgel.'

¹ Th. Reinach in Revue des Études Juives, xxxviii, pp. 1-13, and Fränkel in Pauly-Wissowa, s. v. Ahikaros.

INTRODUCTION

In the Aesop story it comes in this form :

‘My child . . . be accessible to those whom thou meetest, knowing that even to the dog his tail supplies bread.’

Here then, in every version except the Slavonic, we have the traces of the special proverb. There can be no doubt that it formed part of the primitive collection.

A second example from the same source runs as follows :

‘Do not allow any one to tread on your heel to-day, lest he tread on your neck to-morrow.’

This is almost exactly the Syriac proverb (ii. 39):

‘My son, suffer not thy neighbour to tread on thy foot, lest he tread on thy neck.’

The proverb is also found in the Armenian, Arabic, and Slavonic versions.

A third example which follows in Shahrastani is as follows :

‘Be not over-sweet, lest thou be swallowed down : nor over-bitter, lest thou be spit out.’

The proverb is found in the Slavonic and Armenian versions (c. ii. 8) : it is no doubt to be referred to both Democritus and Aḥīkar.

The next instance from Shahrastani is as follows :

‘(Solon) saw a man who stumbled, and said to him : It is better to stumble with the foot than with the tongue.’

The proverb is found in the Ethiopic, in the Syriac (ii. 53), and in the Slavonic. In the proverbs of Maximus it is referred to Socrates : for which I propose to read Democrates (= Democritus).

The last, and perhaps the most interesting of the maxims of Democritus, will be found in Clement of Alexandria, Protrept. 75 :

‘For swine delight in mud more than in clean water, and wallow in a drain, according to Democritus.’

The latter half of the sentence is quoted by Plutarch, De tuenda sanitate 14, again with reference to Democritus. There seems to be little room for doubt that Democritus is quoting from the same proverb of Aḥīkar which we find quoted in 2 Peter ii. 22, and which is current in the Syriac (viii. 18), Armenian, and Karshuni versions : e. g. in the Karshuni (viii. 15) :

‘My son, thou hast been to me like the pig, who went to the hot bath with people of quality, and when it came out of the hot bath it saw a filthy hole, and it went down and wallowed in it.’

These examples will show conclusively the correctness of the tradition that Democritus copied from Aḥīkar, and issued the proverbs of the latter under his own name.

b. The Tobit Parallels.

The parallel passages in the Book of Tobit, and the supposed references to Aḥīkar, have occupied the leading place in the criticism of the text, partly because it was by their means that the antiquity of Aḥīkar was, in the first instance, established, and partly because around these parallels the question of relative priority was, in the first instance, debated. Now that the antiquity of Aḥīkar has been vindicated in an extraordinary manner, we need not hesitate to mark quotations in Tobit, only reserving such cases as may properly be referred to a more recent manipulation of the text of Aḥīkar.

The following are the principal parallels, as given in the Vatican Codex, with which, however, the Sinaitic text should be carefully compared :

Tob. i. 21 seq. : ‘And Esarhaddon¹ his son reigned in his stead, and he appointed Achiachar the son of Anael my brother over all the fisc of this Kingdom, and over all the administration. And Achiachar asked on my behalf, and I came to Nineveh. And Achiachar was Cupbearer and Great Seal, and Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Esarhaddon appointed him a second time :² and he was my cousin.’

Tob. ii. 10 : ‘And I (Tobit) went to the physicians, and they could not help me. And Achiachar maintained him until the time that he went to Elymais’ (where an acute conjecture suggests to read ‘his hiding-place’ for ‘Elymais’).

Tob. xi. 17, 18 : ‘And there was great joy to all the brethren in Nineveh, and Achiachar and Nasbas his cousin (?) came (to the wedding festival).’

¹ It is difficult to say if this is the original form ; it looks as if Σαχερδονός were a misplaced genitive, and the original reading ‘the son of Esarhaddon’, which would mean that Tobit had repeated the blunder of the versions of Aḥīkar, by making Sennacherib later than Esarhaddon.

² Exactly, but unintelligibly, ‘Sacherdonos, a son ἐκ δευτέρας’, which again looks like an original ‘Son of Sacherdon’.

THE STORY OF AHIKAR

For 'Nasbas' the Sinaitic text has 'Nabad', which can hardly be right, and it makes Achiachar and Nabad to be both of them cousins of Tobit. Perhaps the obscure Nasbas covers the name of Nadan's younger brother.

Tob. xiv. 10: 'My child, consider what Nadab did to Achiachar that brought him up, how from the light he led him to the dark and what recompense he made him: and Achiachar (God) saved, but to the other the just reward was made, and he went down to the dark. Manasses (read Aḥīkar) did alms, and he was saved from the snare of death which he laid for him, but Nadab fell into the snare and perished.'

I have corrected some obvious transcriptional blunders, and made one bold but necessary emendation. For the almsgiving of Aḥīkar, see also Tob. iv. 10, 'Alms doth deliver from death, and will not suffer thee to come into darkness'. See also Aḥīkar (viii. 2, viii. 37 Syr.).

Tob. xiv. 15: 'And he heard before his death of the destruction of Nineveh, which Nebuchadnezzar and Ahasuerus took captive;'

where the Sinaitic text expands, and explains that Nineveh was taken captive by Achiakar, the King of Media.

Ahasuerus is a mere blunder for 'Nineveh and Athur' in the Aḥīkar story: the Sinaitic expansions have made the confusion worse confounded. Tobit's history and his geography are out of the reach of justification.

Tob. iv. 17: 'Pour out thy bread on the graves of the righteous and do not give it to sinners:' with which cf. Aḥīkar

(Arab. ii. 13): 'O my son, pour out thy wine on the tombs of the just, and drink not with ignorant, contemptible people.'

(Syr. ii. 10): 'My son, pour out thy wine on the graves of the righteous, rather than drink it with evil men.'

[On this question see I. 189-192.—Gen. Editor.]

c. Parallels in the Testaments of the Twelve Patriarchs.

See p. 291 of this volume.¹

d. Some Old Testament Parallels.

The parallels with the O.T., especially with the Sapiential books, are constant, and it is not always easy to say certainly on which side antiquity lies. As a general principle the Aḥīkar sentences are older than their parallels in Sirach. A few places may be noted:

Aḥīkar (c. ii. 45 Syr.): 'My son, I have carried salt and have removed lead; but I have not seen anything heavier than that a man should pay a debt that he did not borrow,' &c.

Cf. Sirach xxii. 14, 15: 'What is heavier than lead, and what is the name thereof, but a fool? Sand and salt and a mass of iron are easier to bear than a man without understanding.'

Some traces of a similar proverb will be found in the papyrus:

Aḥīkar (c. ii. 65 Syr.): 'My son, strive not with a man in his day, and stand not against a river in its flood.'

Cf. Sirach iv. 26: 'Do not stand up against a river' (cf. the Syriac version).

Aḥīkar (c. ii. 2 Syr.): 'My son, if thou hast heard a word let it die in thy heart.'

Cf. Sirach xix. 10 (Syr.).

Aḥīkar (c. ii. 19 Arab.): 'O my son, be not neighbour to the fool, and eat not bread with him.'

Cf. Ps. cxli. 4.

Aḥīkar (c. ii. 61 Arab.): 'O my son, let the wise man beat thee with a rod: but let not the fool anoint thee with sweet salve.'

Cf. Ps. xli. 5 (LXX).

Aḥīkar (c. viii. 38 Arab.; cf. viii. 41 Syr.): 'For he who digs a pit for his brother, falls into it; and he who sets traps shall be caught in them.'

Cf. Ps. cxli. 10.

For coincidences with Daniel we may take:

Aḥīkar c. i. 3 (Arab.) with Dan. ii. 2, ii. 27, v. 7.

Aḥīkar c. i. 7 (Arm.) with Dan. v. 16.

Aḥīkar c. v. 4 (Arab.) with Dan. ii. 11.

Aḥīkar c. v. 11 with Dan. iv. 33.

¹ In Jub. xxxvii. 23 the words 'When the raven becomes white as the rāzâ (i. e. a large white bird), then know that I have loved thee' may be an echo of Syriac A 62 'And the raven become white as snow'.—[Gen. Editor.]

INTRODUCTION

e. Coincidences and Parallels with the New Testament.

Aḥiḳar, c. iv. 14, has the account of Nadan's revelry, after he has got rid of his uncle, and of his beating the menservants and the women-servants, &c. We have to compare carefully Matt. xxiv. 48-51, and Luke xii. 43, 46, and it will be seen that the language of Aḥiḳar has coloured one of our Lord's parables.

Perhaps the same thing is true of the parable of the Prodigal Son; for we have in the Syriac (viii. 34):

'Forgive me this my folly; and I will tend thy horses and feed thy pigs which are in thy house.'

and in the Armenian (viii. 24):

'Father, I have sinned against thee. Forgive me, and I will be a slave unto thee henceforth and for ever.'

Cf. Luke xv. 19.

Nor should we neglect to compare the story of the unfruitful fig-tree in the Gospel with:

Aḥiḳar, c. viii. 35 (Syr.): 'My son, thou hast been to me like the palm-tree that stood by a river, and cast all its fruit into the river; and when its lord came to cut it down, it said to him, "Let me alone this year, and I will bring thee forth carobs." And its lord said unto it, "Thou hast not been industrious in what is thine own, and how wilt thou be industrious in what is not thine own?"' for which we compare Luke xiii. 6-9.

For Aḥiḳar, c. viii (death of Nadan), cf. the death of Judas in Matt. xxvii. 5, in Acts i. 18, 19, and in the traditions of Papias.

For the rest of the N.T. compare

Aḥiḳar, c. ii. 16 (Syr.): 'My son, it is not proper even to eat with a shameless person.'

with 1 Cor. v. 11;

Aḥiḳar, c. ii. 59 (Syr.): 'Visit the poor in his affliction, and speak of him in the presence of the ruler, and do one's diligence to save him from the lion.'

with 2 Tim. iv. 17;

and Aḥiḳar, c. viii. 18 (Syr.), viii. 15 (Arab.), viii. 24 (Arm.) (the pig that went to the bath), with the 'true proverb' in 2 Peter ii. 22, noting that the proverb in Aḥiḳar can be traced back to him through Democritus.

f. Parallels in the Koran.

The Koran knows Aḥiḳar by the name of Loqman, and makes allusion to him and his gnomic sayings.

The 31st Sura of the Koran is, in fact, named after him, and we may compare:

'O my son . . . be moderate in thy pace, and lower thy voice, for the most ungrateful of all voices surely is the voice of asses.'

The passage becomes intelligible when we put by the side of it Aḥiḳar, c. ii. 45 (Arm.), ii. 8 (Syr.), ii. 11 (Arab.):

'My son, cast down thy eyes and lower thy voice . . . for if a house could be built by a high voice, the ass would build two houses in one day.'

§ 4. MATERIALS FOR THE DETERMINATION OF THE TEXT.

a. The Aramaic Papyrus.

The first and only authority for the original text of Aḥiḳar is the Aramaic papyrus, discovered at Elephantiné by Dr. Rubensohn in the excavations of 1906-1908, and published by Sachau in 1911 as part of his Aramäische Papyrus und Ostraka aus Elephantiné. The MS. is unfortunately imperfect, but it is clear, from comparison with a number of dated documents with which it was found, that it was written somewhere between 420 B.C. and 400 B.C. It is thus the earliest example of either Biblical or Apocryphal literature. The book itself cannot have been composed very much earlier than its copy, and Sachau suggests that it was produced somewhere between 550 and 450 B.C. We should say that the upper limit is more likely, for even if the book were at once popular (as it almost certainly was) it would take time for it to be carried from Mesopotamia to the outlying Jewish colony at the first cataract of the Nile. Suppose we say that it was written about 500 B.C., or a little earlier. It should be somewhat later than the Aramaic inscriptions from Zinjerli, for in these the name of Assyria is still written Asshur, whereas the Aḥiḳar book has Athur. The ✓ Aramaic, then, is the original language: there is no sign of Hebraism anywhere in the book. We are as near to the first form of an ancient book as we are ever likely to be.

THE STORY OF AHIKAR

It is unfortunate, therefore, that the papyrus is so incomplete. There is nothing preserved of the narrative portion after the condemnation of Aḥīkar, and not very much of what leads up to the condemnation; while the fragments of the proverbs and parables are so difficult to reconstruct, that we are hardly able to read a single unbroken sentence. It appears as if the proverbial philosophy and the parabolic admonitions were mixed up together, and that there was little agreement between what is contained of them in the papyrus and the two collections which are exhibited in our extant versions.

Moreover, as the latter part of the narrative is not extant, which must at least have contained the account of Aḥīkar's recovery, we cannot be certain whether the Egyptian episode is a part of the missing matter or whether it is the addition of a later folklorist. We can, however, make certain things quite clear.

First of all, the papyrus makes the story fall under Sennacherib and Esarhaddon, his son; and it does not make the mistake which occurs in most of the later versions, of calling Sennacherib the son of Esarhaddon, and putting all the story in his reign. It is nearer to history even if it is not exactly history. We understand, too, what used to be a difficulty, why Tobit, which certainly follows Aḥīkar, does not make the mistake of inversion with regard to the kings which we find in Aḥīkar, according to the later versions (though there are suspicions that Tobit has corrected an original mistake).

If, however, the papyrus in certain points discredits the later versions, there are other points in which it accredits even the youngest of them. Thus the Arabic version has the correct Assyrian form, Nabušumiškun, for the executioner of Aḥīkar; and M. l'Abbé Nau, in his valuable book on Aḥīkar, has pointed out that one of the youngest copies of the Syriac text is free from the historical blunder over Sennacherib and Esarhaddon. Further, amongst the few proverbial sentences that can be reconstructed from the papyrus fragments there is one which is preserved in the Armenian version, and apparently nowhere else. So that even late versions are not to be despised in the reconstruction of the original legend.

On the other hand, there can be no doubt that the story has been treated very freely by many generations of transcribers. Even if it should be maintained that there was an original historical nucleus (which seems very unlikely in view of the manner in which the story is told) there can be no doubt that it was handled as a folk-tale from the earliest times. For example, in the opening of the story, Aḥīkar explains his unsuccessful wedlock with sixty wives, for whom he built sixty castles or palaces. That is genuine folk-lore. When he adopts his sister's son, Nadan, he hands him over to eight wet-nurses that they may bring him up; and the boy grows up like a cedar under their assiduous fostering. If any one doubts whether this is folk-lore or not, he may consult the following openings of Tibetan tales from the collection of von Schiefner and Ralston:

Story of Sudhana Avadana, p. 52.

The boy Sudhana was handed over to eight nurses, two to carry him, two to suckle him, two to cleanse him, and two to play with him. As those eight nurses fed him and brought him up on milk, &c.: . . . he shot up like a lotus in a tank, &c.

An exactly similar story concerning the rearing of Visvantara on p. 257; again, on p. 273, The Story of the Fulfilled Prophecy, the same description is given of the rearing of Sūryanemi; and on p. 279, The Story of the Two Brothers, the same description will be found for the early years of Kohemankara.

In the same way, whether the Egyptian episodes of the story are a part of the original document or not, they are neither more nor less than folk-lore. For instance, the demand of the Pharaoh that Aḥīkar should make some ropes out of sand is one of the themes in the Tibetan tale of Mahausadha and Vasakha, which will be found, in the collection from which we have just quoted, on p. 138: 'King Janaka sent a messenger to Pūrna, the head-man of the village Pūrnakatshsha, with an order to send a rope made of sand one hundred ells long,' &c.

These examples, taken from a single collection of Eastern folk-tales, will be sufficient to show, to any one who is unfamiliar with Eastern story-telling, that the Aḥīkar legend is not meant to be taken for history. It is an ethical folk-tale, with Ingratitude for its theme of reprehension. To try to turn it into history is to do the original composer a literary injustice. We now turn to the description of the leading versions.

INTRODUCTION

b. The Syriac Version (S).

There are not many copies of this version, and those that do exist are late. The following are the chief texts:

- S₁: a single leaf of the twelfth or thirteenth century in the British Museum (Cod. Add. 7200).
- S₂: a MS. in the Cambridge University Library, formerly in the possession of the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, dated A. D. 1697 (Univ. Cant. Add. 2020).
- S₃: a MS. in the Sachau Collection at Berlin (Cod. Sach. 336), written in 1883. This is the MS. to which M. Nau attaches so great importance, that he has made it the basis of his text. The main thing in its favour is that it has escaped the inversion of Sennacherib and Esarhaddon.
- S₄, S₅, S₆ are three transcripts in the American Mission Library at Ooroomiah, none of them of any importance.
- S₇ is a fragment of the fifteenth century at Berlin (Cod. Sach. 162).
- S₈ in the British Museum (sixteenth or seventeenth century) = Cod. Or. 2213, contains the latter part of the story of Aḥīkar.
- S₉ is a MS. in the Chaldean convent which Nau describes as 'Notre-Dame des Semences, à neuf heures au nord de Mossoul', written in 1883.

Of these S₁, S₂, S₃, S₈ are the only ones that require attention.

There is also a translation into modern Syriac (dialect of the Jebel Tûr) in the Berlin MS., Cod. Sach. 339; it is accompanied by an Arabic text, of which it appears to be a direct translation.

c. The Arabic and Karshuni Versions (A and K).

We have the text of Aḥīkar in Arabic, printed by Salhani in his Contes Arabes (Beyrout), and there are also a number of MSS. either in Arabic script, or in Karshuni (Arabic in Syriac characters): of these the principal are:—

- K₁: a Cambridge MS. (Cod. Add. 2886) dated 1783.
- K₂: a British Museum MS. (Cod. Add. 7209).

The former of these MSS., with the latter as an occasional supplement, is the base of Mrs. Lewis's translation of Aḥīkar in the Cambridge volume.

- K₃: a Gotha MS. (no. 2652), which was employed by Cornill in editing an Arabic counterpart to his Ethiopic text of the Sayings of Aḥīkar.
- K₄: a Vatican MS. from Aleppo, referred to by Assemani.
- K₅: the Arabic half of the Berlin MS. (Cod. Sach. 339) described above as containing a modern Syriac version and a Karshuni original.

The Arabic MSS. proper must be fairly numerous. There are examples in Copenhagen and in the Vatican and at Paris.

- A₁: Copenhagen (Cod. Arab. 236), written in 1670.
- A₂: Vatican (Cod. Arab. 11), from the collection of Pope Innocent XIII, written in 1766.
- A₃: Vatican (Cod. Arab. 55).
- A₄: Paris (Cod. Arab. 3637), from which Caussin de Perceval made his translation.

d. The Ethiopic Version (Aeth.).

A complete Ethiopic version has not yet been found; but in the Book of the Wise Philosophers fifteen maxims of Aḥīkar are extant, translated from an Arabic original. They were published by Cornill in 1875.

e. The Armenian Version (Arm.).

This version is of peculiar importance. It is at least as early as 450 A. D., and is extant in numerous copies, most of which are unfortunately late. It was also frequently printed in Constantinople in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. Mr. Conybeare has noted the following MSS.:—

- Arm.₁ in the Bodleian Library at Oxford.
- Arm.₂ at Venice, no. 482 in the Library of San Lazaro: fifteenth or sixteenth century.
- Arm.₃ at Paris (Cod. Arm. no. 92), in the National Library: dated A. D. 1619.
- Arm.₄ at Paris (Cod. Supp. 58), seventeenth century.
- Arm.₅ at Paris (Cod. Arm. 131), late seventeenth century.
- Arm.₆ at Paris (Cod. Arm. 69), seventeenth century.
- Arm.₇ at Oxford (Bodl. Can. Or. 131), A. D. 1697.
- Arm.₈ at Edjmiatzin (Cod. 2048), about A. D. 1600.
- Arm.₉ at Edjmiatzin (Cod. 1633) in A. D. 1604.

THE STORY OF AHIKAR

Arm.¹⁰ at Edjmiatzin (Cod. 1995) in A. D. 1605.

Arm.¹¹ at Edjmiatzin (Cod. 1986) in A. D. 1623.

Arm.¹² at Edjmiatzin (Cod. 51) in A. D. 1642.

As we have said, this version is early, its text inspires confidence. For example, the saying 'Son, rejoice not thou in the number of thy children, and in their deficiency be not thou distressed' is found only in the Armenian and in the newly-found papyrus.

The translation of the Armenian version is made from Mr. Conybeare's Armenian text which is published in The Story of Ahikar, Cambridge, 1898, and is based on the above MSS.

f. The Greek Version (Aes.).

All that we at present know of the Greek version is contained in the Greek lives of Aesop, which are modelled upon the story of Ahikar, and which may conveniently be studied in Eberhard's Fabulae Romanenses Graece conscriptae, in which the part that corresponds to Ahikar runs from p. 285 to p. 297.

g. The Slavonic Version (Sl.).

This version is made from the lost Greek, and is translated by Jagić in Byzant. Zeitschr., pp. 107-126. We have not thought it worth while to give a translation of this version.

It is probable that other versions will come to light before long: in particular we consider it very unlikely that there should be no traces of the story in Latin.

SUMMARY OF THE PRINCIPAL EDITIONS, VERSIONS, AND TRANSLATIONS OF THE TEXT OF AHIKAR.

1. The original text will be found in Sachau, Aramäische Papyrus und Ostraka aus Elephantiné (Berlin, 1911), and in Ungnad, Aramäische Papyrus aus Elephantiné (Leipzig, 1911).
2. The Armenian, Syriac, and Arabic versions in The Story of Ahikar, edited by Conybeare, Harris, and Lewis (Cambridge, 1898).
3. The Slavonic version translated into German by Jagić, in Byzantinische Zeitschrift, i, pp. 107-26 (1892). This translation is repeated in English in the Cambridge edition ut supra.
4. The Ethiopic fragment was published by Cornill in the Book of the Wise Philosophers, and Cornill's translation is repeated in English in the Cambridge edition ut supra.
5. The Arabic version was published by Salhani in Contes Arabes (Beyrout) and in the Cambridge edition ut supra.
6. The Arabic version was translated in not a few editions of the Arabian Nights, beginning with Chavis et Cazotte (Cabinet des Fées), t. xxxix.
7. A neo-Syriac version, accompanied by an Arabic text, was published by Lidzbarski in 1894 (Die neuaramäischen Handschriften der Königlichen Bibl. zu Berlin), Weimar. A German translation accompanies this work.
8. English translations of the chief texts are found in the Cambridge edition ut supra; and the Syriac version was translated by E. J. Dillon in the Contemporary Review for March, 1898.
9. A French translation of the Syriac versions is given by M. Nau, Histoire et Sagesse d'Ahikar (Paris, 1909).
10. The Greek version, so far as it is involved in the text of Aesop, may be consulted in Eberhard, Fabulae Romanenses Graece conscriptae; the principal parts of the parallel story being reproduced in the Cambridge edition ut supra.
11. The Armenian version has often been printed. The first attempt at a critical edition is found in the Cambridge edition ut supra, accompanied by a translation; the earlier editions have been chronicled for the following dates: 1708, 1731, 1807, 1834, 1850, 1861 (see Nau, p. 15). The book appears to have been very popular in the Armenian community.

COMPARATIVE ARRANGEMENT OF THE SAYINGS OF AHIKAR IN DIFFERENT VERSIONS.

I. Proverbs of Ahikar.

The numbers below refer to the verses in Chapter II.

Syriac.	Arabic.	Eth.	Arm.		Syriac.	Arabic.	Eth.	Arm.
A	B				A	B
1	1	1	1	Cf. Arm. c. ii at end.		11 a		45 a
					8	9	4	45 b
2	2	2	1 b			11 c
3	3	3, 5	1 c		9	10	5	4
4	4	6	1 b		10			7
5	7	9	2	Cf. Syr. A 19, 72.	11	11		5
					12	12		6
6			39		13	13	6	9
7		10	3		14	14	7	10 a

INTRODUCTION

Syriac.	Arabic.	Eth.	Arm.	Cf.	Syriac.	Arabic.	Eth.	Arm.	Cf.
A	B				A	B
15	15	18	10 b	Cf. Arm. 27.	45			69 b
16	16	19 a	10 c ?		46			69 c
17	18	58	11, 97		47	41		15	Cf. Syr. A 42, Arm. 66.
18	19	8	13		48	44		51
19	7 a , 20			Cf. Syr. A 5, 72.	49 a	46		73 c
20	21	19 b , 58 b			49 b	7, 47	12	50
21		21	9	12	50 a	48 a
		22	8		50 b	48 b		25
22		23	10	14	51	49		52
23		24	11	14	52	53
24		25			53	45	13
25				17	54			56
26		26		18, 78	55	8	54 b	3	57
27		27		19	56				91
28		28, 29		20, 21	57		56		77
29		31 a		22 a	58
30				22 b	59				60
31		31 b		23	60		58 a
32					61	22	38, 55		28
33				41	62		59	14	83
34		33		42	63
35				85	64		20		80 a
36		30		43	65		38, 62		28, 81 a
37				44 a	66	6			81 b
38	5	35 a	2	Parab. 26 c	67		60	15	38
39		35 b		Greek 11.	68		63		82
40		36		64?	69		64
41		37		65	70		65
42		39		66	71		66
				Cf. Syr. A 47 and Arm. 15.	72				Cf. Syr. A 5, 19.
43				67.	73		61 a
44				68	74				84
				69 a	75				26, 27

II. Parables of Ahikar.

The numbers below refer to the verses in Chapter VIII.

Syriac.	Arabic.	Arm.	Cf.	Syriac.	Arabic.	Arm.	Cf.
1	1	1		21
2 a	2 a	2		22
2 b	2 b	3, 5, 7	Cf. Syr. 23, 30-2.	23			Cf. Syr. 2, 30-2.
3	3	8		24	20	12 a
4	4	9		25		13
5	6	10		26	21	20
6	5	18		27	22	21
7	8	12 b c		28
8	7, 9			29	23
9		17		30
10	10	15		31	26
11	11			32	27	4
12	12 a	12 d		33		22
13				34	29	24 b
14	12 b	11		35	30	25
15	13			36 a	32	16
16				36 b	33	23
17	14	19		37		26	Cf. Arm. 7.
18	15	24 a		38	34
19		6		39	35
20 a	17	14 a		40
20 b	18	14 c		41	38	26 c , 27
20 c	19	14 b

THE STORY OF AHIKAR

SYRIAC VERSION A.

from MS. Syr.₂

1 I AGAIN, by the divine power, I write the proverbs, to wit, the story of Aḥīkar, sage and secretary of Sennacherib the king of Assyria and Nineveh.

In the twentieth year of Sennacherib, son of Sarhadum, king of Assyria and Nineveh, I, Aḥīkar, was the king's secretary.

2 And it had been said to me when I was a boy, that no son will be born to thee¹: and the wealth that I had acquired was too vast to tell. Sixty wives had I wedded: and sixty castles did I build them: and I had no son.

3 Thereupon I, Aḥīkar, built me a great altar, all of wood; and kindled fire upon it, and laid good meat thereon. and thus I spake:

4 'O Lord, my God; when I shall die and leave no son, what will men say of me? they will say that this, then, is Aḥīkar the just and good and God-serving: he is dead, and has left no son to bury him, no! nor a daughter: and his possessions, as if he were accursed, no man inherits.

5 But I ask of Thee, O God, that I may have a male child; so that when I shall die, he may cast dust on my eyes.'

6 and this voice was heard by me, 'O Aḥīkar, wise scribe, all that thou hast asked of me I have given thee; but as to my having left thee childless, let it suffice thee: perplex not thyself: but behold! Nadan thy sister's son: he shall be a son unto thee: so that with the growth of his stature thou shalt be able to teach him everything.'

¹ Presumably, this was said by the astrologers.

SYRIAC VERSION B.

from MS. Syr.₃

... And it was said to me, '[There will be no son to thee].' And I had much wealth; I wedded me sixty wives, and built me sixty castles: and from none of these women had I a son.

Then I 3 built me a great altar of incense and vowed a vow, and said,

'O Lord God, give me a male 5 child, that when I shall die he may cast dust on my eyes.'

Thereupon there was heard by me 6 this voice, saying, 'O Aḥīkar, vex not thyself overmuch; there is no son for thee; but behold Nadan thy sister's son; make him thy son; so that as he grows up, thou mayst be able to 8 x teach him everything.' Then when I heard this, I took Nadan my sister's son, and he became my son.

ARABIC VERSION

1 IN the name of God the Creator, the Living One, the Source of Reason, we hereby begin with the help of the Most High God¹ and His best guidance, to write the story of Haiqâr the Wise, Vizier of Sennacherib the King, and of Nadan, sister's son to Haiqâr the Sage.

There was a Vizier in the days of King Sennacherib, son of Sarhadum, King of Assyria and Nineveh, a wise man named Haiqâr, and he was 2 Vizier of the king Sennacherib. He had a fine fortune and much goods, and he was skilful, wise, a philosopher, [in] knowledge, [in] opinion and [in] government, and he had married sixty women, and had built a castle for each of them. But with it all he had no child by any of these women, 3 who might be his heir. And he was very sad on account of this, and one day he assembled the astrologers and the learned men and the wizards and explained to them his condition and the matter of his barrenness. And they said to him, 'Go, sacrifice to the gods and beseech them that perchance they may provide thee with a boy.' 4 And he did as they told him and offered sacrifices to the idols, and besought them and implored them with request and entreaty. And they answered him not one word. And he went away sorrowful and dejected, departing with a pain at 5 his heart. And he returned, and implored the Most High God, and believed, beseeching Him with a burning in his heart, saying, 'O Most High God, O Creator of the Heavens and of the earth, O Creator of all created things! I beseech Thee to give me a boy, that I may be consoled by him, that he may be present at my death, that he may close my eyes, and that he may bury me.'

Then

6 there came to him a voice saying, 'Inasmuch as thou hast relied first of all on graven images, and hast offered sacrifices to them, for this reason thou shalt remain childless thy life long. But take Nadan thy sister's son, and make him thy child and teach him thy learning and thy good breeding, and at thy death he shall bury thee.'

¹ Literally 'God, may He be exalted!' passim.

ARMENIAN VERSION

THE maxims and wisdom of Khikar, which 1 the children of men learn.

In the times and in the reign of Seneqerim King of Nineveh and of Asorestan, I, Khikar Notary of Seneqerim the King, took¹ sixty wives and builded me sixty palaces. And I, Khikar, was sixty years of age, 2 and I had not a son.

Then I went in to the 3 gods with many offerings; I lit a fire before the gods and cast incense² upon it, and presented my offerings and sacrificed victims, kneeled down and prayed, and thus spake in my prayer.

O my lords and gods, Belshim and Shimil and 4 Shamin, ordain and give to me male seed. For lo, Khikar dieth alive. And what say men? That Khikar though alive and wise and clever is dead, and there is no son of his to bury him, nor daughter to bewail him. I have no heir after my death. Not even if a son should spend ten talents in the last day, would he exhaust my riches. But (I ask merely) that he may cast 5 dust with his hands upon me, in order that I may not remain unremembered.

Then there was a voice from the gods and 6 they said:

Khikar, there is not ordained seed for thee. But thou shalt take Nathan³, thy sister's son, and bring him up as thy son, and he shall pay thee back thy cost of rearing him⁴.

¹ Can. thus: 'acquired me slaves and handmaids and many possessions. I builded,' &c.

² Add 'of sweet odour' 58 and Edjm.

³ So the better Arm. MSS. The inferior read 'Nadan'.

⁴ So Canon. Others have 'pay thee back thy name'. See note on Arm. text.

SYR. A

SYR. B

7 And when I heard these things, I was grieved again, and said, 'O Lord God! is it that Thou wilt give me as a son Nadan my sister's son, so that when I die, he may throw dust on my eyes?' And no further answer was 8 returned to me. And I obeyed the command and took to me for a son Nadan, my sister's son: and because he was yet young, I furnished him with eight wet-nurses: and I brought up my son on honey, and made him lie on choice carpets,
9 and clothed him in fine linen and purple; and my son grew and shot up like a cedar, and when my son was grown big, I taught him book-lore
10 and wisdom; and when the king came from the place to which he had gone, he called me and said to me, 'O Aḥīkar, the wise scribe and master of my thoughts, when thou shalt wax old and die, who is there to come after thee and to serve me like thyself?'

11 And I answered and said to him, 'O my lord the king, live for ever! I have a son, wise like myself, and book-learned like myself, and educated.'

12 And the king said to me, 'Bring him and let me see him. If he is able to stand before me, I will release thee in peace, and thou shalt spend thy old age in honour, until 13 thou shalt end thy days.' Then I took my son Nadan and set him before the king, and when my lord the king saw him, he said, 'This day shall be a blessed day before God, so that like as Aḥīkar walked¹ before my father Sarḥadum, and before me also, he shall be rewarded² and I will set his son in my gate in his lifetime, and he shall depart his life [in peace].'

14 Thereupon I, Aḥīkar, bowed down before the king and said, 'My lord the king, live for ever! And like as I walked before thy father and before thyself even until now, so do thou also extend thy forbearance to the youthfulness of this my son, that thy grace which was toward me may be found multiplied 15 towards him.' Then when the king heard this, he gave me his right hand, and I, Aḥīkar, bowed down before the king.

Nor did I cease from the instruction of my son, until I had filled him with instruction as with bread and water. And on this wise was I discouraging to him:

¹ Lit. 'ran'.

² Reading .

ARABIC

7 Thereupon he took Nadan his sister's son, who was a little suckling. And he handed him over to eight wet-nurses, that they might suckle him 8 and bring him up. And they brought him up with good food and gentle training and silken 9 clothing, and purple and crimson. And he was seated upon couches of silk. And when Nadan grew big and walked, shooting up like a tall cedar, he taught him good manners and writing and science and philosophy.

10 And after many days King Sennacherib looked at Haiqâr and saw that he had grown very old, and moreover he said to him, 'O my honoured friend, the skilful, the trusty, the wise, the governor, my secretary, my vizier, my Chancellor¹ and director; verily thou art grown very old and weighted with years; and thy departure from this world must be near. Tell me who shall have a place in my service 11 after thee.' And Haiqâr said to him, 'O my lord, may thy head live for ever! There is Nadan my sister's son, I have made him my child. And I have brought him up and taught him my 12 wisdom and my knowledge.' And the king said to him, 'O Haiqâr! bring him to my presence, that I may see him, and if I find him suitable, put him in thy place; and thou shalt go thy way, to take a rest and to live the remainder of thy 13 life in sweet repose.' Then Haiqâr went and presented Nadan his sister's son. And he did homage and wished him power and honour. And he looked at him and admired him and rejoiced in him and said to Haiqâr: 'Is this thy son, O Haiqâr? I pray that God may preserve him. And as thou hast served me and my father Sarhadum so may this boy of thine serve me and fulfil my undertakings, my needs, and my 14 business, so that I may honour him and make him powerful for thy sake.' And Haiqâr did obeisance to the king and said to him, 'May thy head live, O my lord the king, for ever! I seek from thee that thou mayst be patient with my boy Nadan and forgive his mistakes that he may serve thee as it is fitting.' Then the king swore to him that he would make him the greatest of his favourites, and the most powerful of his 15 friends, and that he should be with him in all honour and respect. And he kissed his hands and bade him farewell. And he took Nadan his sister's son with him and seated him in a parlour and set about teaching him night and day till he had crammed him with wisdom and knowledge more than with bread and water.

¹ Literally 'the sealer of my secrets', passim.

ARMENIAN

And when I heard this from the gods, I took 7 Nathan my sister's son; one year old was he, and I clad him in byssus and purple; and a gold collar did I bind around his neck; and like a king's son I decked him out with ornaments. And I gave him to drink milk and honey, and 8 laid him to sleep on my eagles and doves, until he was seven years of age. Then I began to 9 teach him writing and wisdom and the art of knowledge and the answering of dispatches, and the returns of contradictory speeches. And by day and by night I ceased not to instruct him; and I sated him with my teaching, as it were with bread and water.

Then saith the king unto me: Khikar, my 10 Notary and wise one, I know that thou art grown old; and after thy death, who is there to discharge ably and wisely the affairs of our kingdom? And I am very grieved at this thought.

And I said to him: O King, live for 11 ever. There is my son, who is superior to me and is more clever.

And the king says: Bring 12 him unto me, that I may behold him. And when I had brought him and stood him before the king, he beheld him and said: In his days may Khikar be blessed, because in his lifetime he hath led and stood before me his son, and may he himself be at rest.

I bowed my head to my lord, and taking 13 Nathan I led him into my dwelling and thus spake in my teaching¹.

¹ Canon adds: 'give ear to my conversation and precept. Write it on thy seal, and forget it not; that the years of thy life may be plentiful, and that in glory and wealth thou mayst reach old age.' No other Arm. source

THE STORY OF AHIKAR 2. 1-8

The Proverbs of Ahikar

SYR. A

2 ¹ 'Hear, O my son Nadan, and come to the understanding of me, and be mindful of my words, as the words of God ¹:

² My son Nadan, if thou hast heard a word, let it die in thy heart, and reveal it to no man; lest it become a hot coal in thy mouth and burn thee, and thou lay a blemish on thy soul, and be angered against God.

³ My son, do not tell all that thou hearest, and do not disclose all that thou seest.

⁴ My son, do not loose a knot that is sealed, and do not seal one that is loosed.

⁵ My son, lift not up thy eyes and look upon a woman that is bedizened and painted; and do not lust after her in thy heart; for if thou shouldst give her all that is in thy hands, thou findest no advantage in her; and thou wilt be guilty of sin against God.

⁶ My son, commit not adultery with the wife of thy neighbour; lest others should commit adultery with thy wife.

⁷ My son, be not in a hurry, like the almond-tree whose blossom is the first to appear, but whose fruit is the last to be eaten; but be equal and sensible, like the mulberry-tree whose blossom is the last to appear, but whose fruit is the first to be eaten.

⁸ My son, cast down thine eyes, and lower thy voice, and look from beneath thine eyelids: for ¹ Cf. Teaching of Apostles, c. iv, 'Him that speaketh to thee the word of God, thou shalt remember night and day, and thou shalt honour him as the Lord'.

SYR. B

And on this wise I was saying to him ¹:
'Hear my teaching, my son Nadan; and come 2 to my understanding, and be mindful of my words, according to the following sayings:' and thereupon Ahikar² began to teach Nadan his sister's son, and answered and said to him:

'My son, if thou hast heard a word, let it die in ² thy heart; and reveal it to no man; lest it should become a hot coal in thy mouth, and burn thee; and thou shalt lay blemish on thy soul, and shalt be hated on earth, and be angered against God ³.

My son, do not tell all that thou seest, and do ³ not disclose all that thou hearest.

My son, do not loose a knot that is sealed, ⁴ and do not seal one which is loosed.

My son, sweeten thy tongue, and make savoury ⁵ the opening of thy mouth; because the tail of the dog gives him bread, and his mouth gets him blows.

My son, the eye of man is a fountain, and is ⁶ not satisfied with riches until [filled with dust].

<My son>, lift <not> up thine eyes <and look ⁷ upon a woman bedizened> and beautified, lust not after her in thy heart; for if thou shouldst give her all [that thou hast, advantage]⁴ in her thou wilt not find; and thou wilt be guilty of sin before God.

My son, stand not in the house of those that ⁸ are at strife: because from a word there comes a quarrel, and from a quarrel is stirred up vexation; and from vexedness springs murder ⁵.

My son, if a house were built by loudness of voice, the ass would build two houses in a single ¹ The account of the earlier years of Nadan's bringing up is omitted; if indeed it existed in the first form of the story.

² The text is double; a copy which had the primitive 'I, Ahikar, took my son' having been compounded with one that had 'Thereupon Ahikar'. A comparison with the Tobit-parallels shows that the second clause is a modification of the first.

³ We expect 'And God shall be angry with thee'.

⁴ A slight correction has been made in the Syriac text.

⁵ Cf. Teaching of the Twelve Apostles, 'My child, be not angry, for anger leads to murder,' which is a simpler and more archaic form of the same precept.

The Proverbs of Ahikar

ARABIC

Thus he taught him, saying:

- 2 1 'O my son! hear my speech and follow my advice and remember what I say.
- 2 O my son! if thou hearest a word, let it die in thy heart, and reveal it not to another, lest it become a live coal and burn thy tongue and cause a pain in thy body, and thou gain a reproach, and art shamed before God and man.
- 3 O my son! if thou hast heard a report, spread it not; and if thou hast seen something, tell it not.
- 4 O my son! make thy eloquence easy to the listener, and be not hasty to return an answer.
- 5 O my son! when thou hast heard anything, hide it not.
- 6 O my son! loose not a sealed knot, nor untie it, and seal not a loosened knot.
- 7 O my son! covet not outward beauty, for it wanes and passes away, but an honourable remembrance lasts for aye.
- 8 O my son! let not a silly woman deceive thee with her speech, lest thou die the most miserable of deaths, and she entangle thee in the net till thou art ensnared.
- 9 O my son! desire not a woman bedizened with dress and with ointments, who is despicable and silly in her soul. Woe to thee if thou bestow on her anything that is thine, or commit to her what is in thine hand and she entice thee into sin, and God be wroth with thee.
- 10 O my son! be not like the almond-tree, for it brings forth leaves before all the trees, and edible fruit after them all, but be like the mulberry-tree, which brings forth edible fruit before all the trees, and leaves after them all.
- 11 O my son! bend thy head low down, and soften thy voice, and be courteous, and walk in the straight path, and be not foolish. And raise not thy voice when thou laughest, for if it were by a loud voice that a house was built, the ass

ARMENIAN

Son, if thou hear any word in the royal gate, 2 1 make it to die and bury it in thy heart, and to no one divulge it. The knot that is sealed do thou not loose, and that which is loosed do thou not tie. And that which thou dost see, tell not; and that which thou hearest, reveal it not.

Son, raise not up thine eyes to look on a 2 lovely woman, rouged and antimonied. Desire her not in thy heart. For if thou shouldst give her all thy riches, thou¹ dost get nothing the more out of her; but art condemned by God and by mankind. For she is like unto a sepulchre which is fair on the upper side and below is full of the rottenness and bones of the dead.

Son, be not like the olive-tree, which is first 3 to bloom and last to ripen its fruit. But be like the mulberry, which is last to bloom and first to ripen its fruit.

has such an addition, which however distantly resembles the Slavonic and Syriac.

¹ Bodl. = 'thou art not in any way benefited by her more than to be condemned by the God of just judgements and by mankind'. Canon = 'thou wilt not get anything more than thy own sin and shame from men and judgement from God', omitting the rest.

SYR. A

if a house could be built by a high voice, the ass would build two houses in one day: and if by sheer force the plough was guided, its share would never be loosed from the shoulder of the camel.

- 9 My son, it is better to remove stones with a wise man than to drink wine with a fool.
- 10 My son, pour out thy wine on the graves of the righteous, rather than drink it with evil men.
- 11 My son, with a wise man thou wilt not be depraved, and with a depraved man thou wilt not become wise.
- 12 My son, associate with the wise man, and thou wilt become wise like him; and associate not with a garrulous and talkative man, lest thou be numbered with him.
- 13 My son, while thou hast shoes on thy feet, tread down the thorns and make a path for thy sons and for thy sons' sons.
- 14 My son, the rich man eats a snake, and they say, "He ate it for medicine." And the poor man eats it, and they say, "For his hunger he ate it."
- 15 My son, eat thy portion, and despise not thy neighbours.
- 16 My son, it is not becoming even to eat with a shameless man.¹
- 17 My son, envy not the prosperity of thy enemy; and rejoice not at his adversity.²
- 18 My son, draw not near to a woman that is a whisperer, nor to one whose voice is high.
- 19 My son, go not after the beauty of a woman, and lust not after her in thy heart because the beauty of a woman is her good sense, and her adornment is the word of her mouth.
- 20 My son, if thine enemy meet thee with evil, meet thou him with wisdom.³
- 21 My son, the wicked falleth and riseth not; but the just man is not moved, for God is with him.

¹ Cf. 1 Cor. v. 11 ἐάν τις . . . ἢ πόρνος . . . τῷ τοιούτῳ μηδὲ συνεσθίειν.

² Cf. Prov. xxiv. 17 ἐὰν πέση ὁ ἐχθρός σου, μὴ ἐπιχαρῆς αὐτῷ.

³ He does not mean 'overcome evil with good', which would be a sentiment foreign to the action of the story, but 'get the better of him'.

SYR. B

day: and if by sheer force the plough was directed, the ploughshare would never be worn away under¹ the shoulder of the camel.

Better to remove stones with the wise man than to drink wine with the fool.

My son, in the company of the wise thou wilt not be depraved; and in the company of the depraved thou wilt not become wise.

My son, make companion of the wise person, and thou wilt become wise like him; and make not a companion of the foolish person, lest thou be reckoned like him.

While there are shoes on thy feet, tread down the thorns and make a path for thy sons and thy sons' sons.

My son, the rich man eats a snake, and they say, "For his medicine he ate it": the poor man eats it, and they say, "Because of his hunger he ate it."

My son, eat thy portion, and stretch not out thy hand over that of thy neighbour.

My son, do not eat bread with a man that is shameless.

My son, if thou seest thine enemy fallen, do not mock at him; lest he should rise up and repay thee.

My son, be not envious at the good fortune of thine enemy; and do not rejoice at his misfortune.

My son, do not approach a woman who is hateful and talkative, and one whose voice is high.

For the beauty of a woman is her good sense and the word of her mouth is her adornment.

My son, if thine enemy meet thee with evil, meet thou him with good.

My son, if thou seest a man who is stronger than thyself, rise up before him. . . .

End of Fragment.

J. R. HARRIS.

¹ This difficult expression is replaced in S₂ by the easier term 'would never be loosed from'. In either case the meaning is obscure. Quære, 'if brute force were sufficient, the camel might go on ploughing by himself'?

ARABIC

would build many houses every day; and if it were by dint of strength that the plough were driven, the plough would never be removed from under the shoulders of the camels.

- 12 O my son! the removing of stones with a wise man is better than the drinking of wine with a sorry man.
- 13 O my son! pour out thy wine on the tombs of the just, and drink not with ignorant, contemptible people.
- 14 O my son! cleave to wise men who fear God and be like them, and go not near the ignorant, lest thou become like him and learn his ways.
- 15 O my son! when thou hast got thee a comrade or a friend, try him, and afterwards make him a comrade and a friend; and do not praise him without a trial; and do not spoil thy speech with a man who lacks wisdom.
- 16 O my son! while a shoe stays on thy foot, walk with it on the thorns, and make a road for thy son, and for thy household and thy children, and make thy ship taut before she goes on the sea and its waves and sinks and cannot be saved.
- 17 [O my son! if the rich man eat a snake, they say "It is by his wisdom", and if a poor man eat it, the people say "From his hunger".]
- 18 O my son! be content with thy daily bread and thy goods, and covet not what is another's.
- 19 O my son! be not neighbour to the fool, and eat not bread with him, and rejoice not in the calamities of thy neighbours. If thine enemy wrong thee, show him kindness.
- 20 O my son! a man who fears God do thou fear him and honour him.
- 21 O my son! the ignorant man falls and stumbles, and the wise man, even if he stumbles, he is not shaken, and even if he falls he gets up quickly, and if he is sick, he can take care of his life. But as for the ignorant, stupid man, for his disease there is no drug.
- 22 O my son! if a man approach thee who is inferior to thyself, go forward to meet him, and remain standing, and if he cannot recompense thee, his Lord will recompense thee for him.

ARMENIAN

Son, it is better with a wise man to carry 4 stones, than with a foolish man to drink wine.

Son, with wise men be not a fool, and with 5 fools be not thou wise.

Son, be thou the companion of a wise man, 6 so that thou become wise as he is; but do not become the companion of a senseless man and of a fool, lest like them thou be called a fool.

Son, pour out thy wine, and drink it not with 7 the senseless and with the lawless, lest thou be despised by them¹.

Son, be thou not over-sweet, so that they 8 swallow thee down, nor over-bitter, so that they spit thee out. But do thou be gentle, tranquil in the works of thy paths and in all thy words.

Son, while the boot is on thy foot, tread down 9 the thorns and make a path for thy sons².

Son, a rich man hath eaten a serpent, and 10 they say it is medicine for him. A poor man hath eaten it, and they say that he ate it out of hunger. Eat thy own portion in peace³, and cast not thy eye on that of thy companion; and with one that is without fear go not on a journey; and with the senseless do thou not eat bread.

Son, if thou seest thy enemy fallen, do not 11 make a scoff at him; for if he get up again, he requiteth thee evil⁴.

Son, the lawless man falleth by his evil deeds, 12 but the just man is raised by his good deeds.

Son, go not near a senseless and backbiting 13 woman, that thou be not despised by her⁵; and thou art made a mock of, and she robs thee.

¹ Canon and Edjm. = 'despised like them'.

² So Canon, ordotz: the other MSS. have otitz, 'for thy feet'.

³ Ven. and Canon add 'in peace': Bodl. and 58 omit.

⁴ Ven. adds: 'and there is continual ill-will.'

⁵ The Arm. = 'by them'. If that be read we should turn 'woman' into the plural.

SYR. A

- 22 My son, withhold not thy son from stripes; for the beating of a boy is like manure to the garden, and like rope to an ass [or any other beast],¹ and like tether on the foot of an ass.
- 23 My son, subdue thy son while he is yet a boy, before he wax stronger than thee and rebel against thee, and thou be shamed in all his corrupt doing.
- 24 My son, get thee an ox that [is fat and] lies down, and an ass that has good hoofs, but do not get thee a slave that is runaway nor a maid that is thievish; lest they destroy all that thou hast gotten.
- 25 My son, the words of a liar are like fat sparrows; and he that is void of understanding eateth them.
- 26 My son, bring not upon thee the curses of thy father and of thy mother, lest thou rejoice not in the blessings of thy children.
- 27 My son, walk not in the way

¹ The bracketed words are a gloss.

ARABIC

- 23 O my son! spare not to beat thy son, for the drubbing of thy son is like manure to the garden, and like tying the mouth of a purse, and like the tethering of beasts, and like the bolting of the door.
- 24 O my son! restrain thy son from wickedness, and teach him manners before he rebels against thee and brings thee into contempt amongst the people and thou hang thy head in the streets and the assemblies and thou be punished for the evil of his wicked deeds.
- 25 O my son! get thee a fat ox with a foreskin, and an ass great with its hoofs, and get not an ox with large horns, nor make friends with a tricky man, nor get a quarrelsome slave, nor a thievish handmaid, for everything which thou committest to them they will ruin.
- 26 O my son! let not thy parents curse thee, and the Lord be pleased with them; for it hath been said, "He who despiseth his father or his mother let him die the death (I mean the death of sin); and he who honoureth his parents shall prolong his days and his life and shall see all that is good."
- 27 O my son! walk not on

ARMENIAN

Son, spare not the rod to thy son; for the rod is to children as the dung in the garden; and as the tie and seal fastening the packet, and as the tether on the feet of the ass, so is the rod profitable to the child. For if thou strike him with a rod once or twice, he is rendered clever quietly, he does not die¹. But if thou leave him to his own will, he becomes a thief; and they take him to the gallows and to death, and he becomes unto thee a reproach and breaking of heart².

Son, train thy son in hunger and thirst, in order that in humility he may lead his life.

Son, receive not any who shall repeat to thee the (word) of an enemy, for they will repeat thy word.

Son³, at first thou art fond of a false man⁴, but in the end he becomes hateful to thee. For a false word is like a fat quail; but he that is foolish swallows it down.

Son, love the father who begat thee, and earn not the curses of thy father and mother; to the end that thou mayst rejoice in the prosperity of thy own sons.

Son, without a weapon go

¹ Bodl. = 'once or twice, he is quieted, but does not die'. I render the Venice text which is attested by Canon.

² Canon here adds in agreement with the Syriac and Slavonic these two precepts: 'Son, make thy child obedient, while he is small and pliant, lest he come into open conflict with thee, and thou be undone by his injury, and win the curses of strangers because of his disobedience. Son, acquire for thyself a sturdy ass and a strong-hoofed horse and an ox short in neck. And desire not a runaway slave, or one petulant of tongue, or a quarrelsome thief.'

³ Paris 58 omits this adage.

⁴ So Bodl., 58: Ven. = 'at first (one) loves a false man'.

SYR. A

unarmed; because thou knowest not when thy enemy shall come upon thee.

28 My son, even as a tree is fair in its branches and fruit, and a bosky mountain in its trees, so is a man fair in his wife and weans; and he that hath not brethren, nor wife nor weans, is despised and contemptible before his enemies; and he is like unto a tree by the roadside, from which every passer-by plucketh, and every beast of the weald teareth down its leafage.¹

29 My son, say not, "My lord is a fool, and I am wise"; but take hold of him in his faults and thou shalt obtain mercy.

30 My son, count not thyself to be wise, when others count thee not to be wise.

31 My son, lie not in thy speech before thy lord, lest thou be convicted, and he shall say to thee, "Away from my sight!"

32 My son, let thy words be true, in order that thy lord may say to thee, "Draw near me," and thou shalt live.

33 My son, in the day of thy calamity revile not God; lest when He hear thee, He should be angered against thee.

34 My son, treat not thy slave better than his fellow; for thou knowest not which of them thou wilt have need of at the last.

35 My son, smite with stones the dog that has left his own master and followed after thee.

¹ Cf. Ps. cxxvii. 5.

ARABIC

the road without weapons, for thou knowest not when the foe may meet thee, so that thou mayst be ready for him.

28 O my son! be not like a bare, leafless tree that doth not grow, but be like a tree covered with its leaves and its boughs; for the man who has neither wife nor children is disgraced in the world and is hated by them, like a leafless and fruitless tree.

29 O my son! be like a fruitful tree on the roadside, whose fruit is eaten by all who pass by, and the beasts of the desert rest under its shade and eat of its leaves.

30 O my son! every sheep that wanders from its path and its companions becomes food for the wolf.

31 O my son! say not, "My lord is a fool and I am wise," and relate not the speech of ignorance and folly, lest thou be despised by him.

32 O my son! be not one of those servants, to whom their lords say, "Get away from us," but be one of those to whom they say, "Approach and come near to us."

33 (O my son! caress not thy slave in the presence of his companion, for thou knowest not which of them shall be of most value to thee in the end.)

34 O my son! be not afraid

ARMENIAN

not on a journey by night¹, lest thy enemy meet thee, and thou be destroyed.

Son, as a tree is enjoyable to see for its fruit and branches, and the mountains are wooded with the cedars, in the same way are enjoyable to see man and wife² and son and brother and kinsman and friend, and all families.

Son, one who hath not wife²¹ or son or brother or kinsman or friend is in the long years despised, and is like unto a tree that is in the crossways, and all who pass by it pluck off her leaves and break down her branches.

Son³, say not thus: My lord²² is foolish and I am wise, but bear with him in his folly; and thou wilt keep thyself with a wise man, until some other one shall praise thee.

Son, say ill to no one; and²³ be thou not evil-tongued in the presence of thy lord, that thou be not contemned by him.

Son, turn not aside at the day²⁴ of thy sacrifice, for fear lest the Lord be displeased with thy sacrifice⁴.

Son, quit not the scene of²⁵ mourning and repair unto the wedding; for death lies ahead of all, and the punishment is great.

Son, put not on thy finger a²⁶ gold⁵ ring which is not thine; nor clothe thee in byssus and purple that is not thine. Neither mount a horse that is not thine, since the onlookers who know it will make mock at thee⁶.

¹ Canon adds 'by night' with the Slavonic. The other sources omit with the Syriac.

² Ven. omits 'and wife'. The other sources with Canon add it.

³ Paris 58 omits this adage.

⁴ Paris 58 adds 'which thou offerest'.

⁵ Paris 58 adds 'or silver'.

⁶ Bodl. and Paris 58 add 'when they recognize it'.

SYR. A

- 36 My son, the flock that makes many tracks becomes the portion of the wolves.
- 37 My son, judge upright judgement in thy youth, in order that in thy age thou mayst have honour.
- 38 My son, sweeten thy tongue and make savoury the opening of thy mouth; for the tail of a dog gives him bread, and his mouth gets him blows.
- 39 My son, suffer not thy neighbour to tread on thy foot, lest he tread on thy neck.
- 40 My son, smite the [wise] man with wise word, that it may be in his heart like a fever in summer; [but know] that if thou smite the fool with many blows, he will not understand.
- 41 My son, send a wise man and give him no orders; but if thou wilt send a fool, go rather thyself and send him not.
- 42 My son, test thy son with bread and water, and then thou canst leave in his hands thy possessions and thy wealth.
- 43 My son, withdraw at the first cup, and tarry not for lickerish draughts¹: lest there be to thee wounds in thy head.
- 44 My son, he whose hand is full is called wise and honourable; and he whose hand is scant is called foolish and abject.
- 45 My son, I have carried salt and removed lead; and I have not seen anything heavier than ¹ Lit. 'heats'. But perhaps we should change the reading slightly (cf. the 73rd proverb), and translate 'tarry not for sweet unguents'.

ARABIC

- of thy Lord who created thee, lest He be silent to thee.
- 35 O my son! make thy speech fair and sweeten thy tongue; and permit not thy companion to tread on thy foot, lest he tread at another time on thy breast.
- 36 O my son! if thou beat a wise man with a word of wisdom, it will lurk in his breast like a subtle sense of shame; but if thou drub the ignorant with a stick he will neither understand nor hear.
- 37 O my son! if thou send a wise man for thy needs, do not give him many orders, for he will do thy business as thou desirest: and if thou send a fool, do not order him, but go thyself and do thy business, for if thou order him, he will not do what thou desirest. If they send thee on business, hasten to fulfil it quickly.
- 38 O my son! make not an enemy of a man stronger than thyself, for he will take thy measure¹, and his revenge on thee.
- 39 O my son! make trial of thy son, and of thy servant, before thou committest thy belongings to them, lest they make away with them; for he who hath a full hand is called wise, even if he be stupid and ignorant, and he who hath an empty hand is called poor, ignorant, even if he be the prince of sages.
- 40 O my son! I have eaten a colocynth, and swallowed aloes², and I have found nothing more bitter than poverty and scarcity.

¹ Literally 'he will weigh thee'.

² Or 'myrrh'.

ARMENIAN

- Son, eat not bread that is not thine own, even though thou be very hungry.
- Son, if a man be stronger than thyself, have no controversy with him, lest he slay thee.
- Son, crush and consume the evil out of thy heart, and it is well for thee with God and man, and thou art holpen by the will of God.
- Son, if thy doorposts be loftily built to heaven as it were seven ells, whenever thou enterest, bow thy head.
- Son, take not from others with a big weight and give back to them with a little weight, and say: I have made a profit. For God allows it not, but will be wroth; and thou wilt die of starvation.
- Son, swear not false, that of thy days there be no fail¹.
- Son, give ear unto the laws of God, and be not afraid of the evil (one), for the commandment of God is the rampart of man.
- Son, rejoice thou not in the number of thy children, and in their deficiency be not distressed.
- Son, children and possessions are bestowed by God. The rich man is made poor, the poor man is enriched; the humble is exalted, and the exalted is humbled.
- Son, if lofty be the lintels of thy house, and thy friend be sick, say not: What shall I send him? but go on foot and see him with thy eyes; for that is better for him than a thousand talents of gold and silver.
- Son, in reward for evil-speaking receive not gold and silver, for it is a death-fraught deed

¹ Bodl. and Paris 58 add 'upon the earth'.

SYR. A

that a man should pay back a debt when he did not borrow.¹

46 My son, I have carried iron and removed stones; and they were not heavier on me than a man who settles in the house of his father-in-law.

47 My son, teach hunger and thirst to thy son, that according as his eye sees he may govern his house.

48 My son, better is he that is blind of eye than he that is blind of heart; for the blind of eye straightway learneth the road and walketh in it: but the blind of heart leaveth the right way and goeth into the desert.

49 My son, better is a friend that is at hand than a brother who is far away: and better is a good name than much beauty: because a good name standeth for aye, but beauty wanes and wastes away.

50 My son, death is better than life to a man that hath no rest: and better is the voice of wailing in the ears of a fool than music and joy.²

51 My son, better is a drumstick in thy hand than a wing [?] in the pot of other people; and better is a sheep that is at hand

¹ Cf. Sirach xxii. 14, 15; Prov. xxvii. 3.

² Cf. Eccles. vii. 1, 2. Apparently the sentiments of Ecclesiastes are contradicted.

ARABIC

41 O my son! teach thy son frugality and hunger, that he may do well in the management of his household.

42 O my son! teach not to the ignorant the language of wise men, for it will be burdensome to him.

43 O my son! display not thy condition to thy friend, lest thou be despised by him.

44 O my son! the blindness of the heart is more grievous than the blindness of the eyes, for the blindness of the eye may be guided little by little, but the blindness of the heart is not guided, and it leaves the straight path, and goes in a crooked way.

45 O my son! the stumbling of a man with his foot is better than the stumbling of a man with his tongue.

46 O my son! a friend who is near is better than a more excellent brother who is far away.

47 O my son! beauty fades but learning lasts, and the world wanes and becomes vain, but a good name neither becomes vain nor wanes.

48 O my son! the man who hath no rest, his death were better than his life; and the sound of weeping is better than the sound of singing; for sorrow and weeping, if the fear of God be in them, are better than the sound of singing and rejoicing.

49 O my child! the thigh of a frog in thy hand is better than a goose in the pot of thy neighbour; and a sheep near thee is better than an ox far away; and a sparrow in thy hand is better than a thousand sparrows flying; and poverty which and very evil. And shed not just blood unrighteously, lest thy blood be shed in return for his blood.

ARMENIAN

Son, keep thy tongue from 38 evil-speaking and thine eye from immodest glances, and thy hand from stealing; and it will be well for thee with God and man. For whether it be gold or little things that one steals, the punishment and the slaying is one and the same.

Son, commit not adultery with 39 thy friend's wife, lest God be angry and others commit adultery with thy wife.

Son, take not a widow to wife, 40 for whenever there is any word between you, she will say: Alas, for my first husband! and thou art distressed.

Son, if retribution overtake 41 thee from God, flee not nor murmur; lest God be angry and with other harsher stroke destroy thee untimely.

Son, love not thy son better 42 than thy servant, for thou knowest not which of them will be useful to thee.

Son, the sheep that stray 43 from the flock become the portion of the wolves.

Son, pass a just judgement 44 in thy mind, and honour the aged; to the end that thou mayst receive honour from the great judge, and that it may be well with thee.

Son, incline thine eyes and 45 soften the utterance of thy mouth, and look under thine eyes; that thou mayst not appear senseless to men, for if a temple were built by halloosings, an ass would build seven palaces¹ every day and . . .

¹ So Ven. which has aprans. The other MSS. with Canon have darbas, a word not given in lexicons, but which must have the same sense. The meaning of the word 'tchardakhs' is unknown and I leave it blank [? cottages]. Canon omits it, perhaps rightly. Canon has this precept 45 after no. 2 of our series and adds to it in that context this: 'Son, if the oxen by sheer strength drew along, the yoke would not diminish from the neck of the camel.'

SYR. A

than a heifer that is far off: and better is poverty that gathers than wealth that scatters; and better one sparrow in thy hand than a thousand on the wing: and better is a woollen coat on thy back than fine linen and silks on the backs of others.

52 My son, restrain a word in thy heart, and it shall be well with thee; because when thou hast exchanged thy word, thou hast lost thy friend.

53 My son, let not a word go forth from thy mouth, until thou hast taken counsel within thy heart: because it is better for a man to stumble in his heart than to stumble with his tongue.

54 My son, if thou hear an evil matter, put it seven fathoms deep underground.

55 My son, tarry not where there is contention: for from strife arises murder.¹

56 My son, every one who does not judge right judgement angers God.

57 My son, remove² not from thy father's friend, lest perchance thy friend come not near to thee.

58 My son, go not down into princes' gardens, and draw not near to princes' daughters.

59 My son, aid thy friend before the ruler, that thou mayst find ¹ Cf. Teaching of Apostles, 'Be not angry: for anger leads to murder: nor contentious'.

² A slight textual correction.

ARABIC

gathers is better than the scattering of much provision; and a living fox is better than a dead lion; and a pound of wool is better than a pound of wealth, I mean of gold and silver; for the gold and the silver are hidden and covered up in the earth, and are not seen; but the wool stays in the markets and it is seen, and it is a beauty to him who wears it.

50 O my son! a small fortune is better than a scattered fortune.

51 O my son! a living dog is better than a dead poor man.

52 O my son! a poor man who does right is better than a rich man who is dead in sins.

53 O my son! keep a word in thy heart, and it shall be much to thee, and beware lest thou reveal the secret of thy friend.

54 O my son! let not a word issue from thy mouth till thou hast taken counsel with thy heart. And stand not betwixt persons quarrelling, because from a bad word there comes a quarrel, and from a quarrel there comes war, and from war there comes fighting, and thou wilt be forced to bear witness; but run from thence and rest thyself.

55 O my son! withstand not a man stronger than thyself, but get thee a patient spirit, and endurance and an upright conduct, for there is nothing more excellent than that.

56 O my son! hate not thy first friend, for the second one may not last.

57 O my son! visit the poor in his affliction, and speak of him in the Sultan's presence, and do thy diligence to save him from the mouth of the lion.

ARMENIAN

Son, boast not in the day of 46 thy youth, lest thy youth be thy destruction.

Son, suffer not thy companion 47 to tread on thy feet, lest he should presume and tread on thy neck¹ as well.

Son, speak not in wrath with 48 thine adversary before the judge, lest thou be called senseless² and foolish. But whatever he asks thee, answer him with sweetness; and thou wilt heap up his judgement on his head.

Son, if thou petitionest God 49 for good, first fulfil His will with fasting and prayer, and then are fulfilled thy petitions unto thy good.

Son, a good name is better 50 than a face that excites longing. For beauty is destroyed³, but a good name endureth for ever.

Son, it is better to be blind 51 of eye than blind of mind; for he that is blind of eye is quick to learn the coming and going of the road. But the blind in mind forsakes the straight road, and walks according to his will.

Son, a side-bone in thy own 52 hand is better than a fat lamb in the hand of others. A sparrow in thy hand is better than a thousand fluttering in the air. A kid for a feast⁴ in thy own house is better than a steer in the house of others.

Son, it is better to garner with 53 poverty⁵ than to squander with riches.

Son, curse not thy son, until 54 thou seest his end; and reject him not in scorn, until thou behold his latter end and earnings.

Son, examine the word in thy 55 heart and then utter it. For if thou alter the word, thou art a fawner.

¹ Bodl. add 'and head'.

² Bodl.: 'lest thou appear senseless and unprofitable.'

³ Bodl. 'passes'.

⁴ So Bodl. and Canon: Ven. has 'a fat kid in', &c., where parart 'fat' is a corruption of patarag, which is the potior lectio and better attested.

⁵ Canon: 'Better is poverty with repose than . . .'

SYR. A

- out how thou mayst help him from the lion.
- 60 My son, rejoice not over thy enemy when he dieth.
- 61 My son, when thou seest a man who is stronger than thyself, rise up before him.
- 62 My son, if the waters should stand up without earth, and the sparrow fly without wings, and the raven become white as snow, and the bitter become sweet as honey, then may the fool become wise.
- 63 My son, if thou art a priest of God, be thou ware of Him and enter His presence in purity, and from His presence remove not.
- 64 My son, him that God prospers do thou also honour.
- 65 My son, strive not¹ with a man in his day, and stand not against a river in its flood.²
- 66 My son, the eye of man is like a fountain of water, and it is not satisfied with riches until filled with dust.
- 67 My son, if thy will is to be wise, refrain thy tongue from lying, and thy hand from theft, and thou shalt become wise.
- 68 My son, have no part in the espousal of a woman; for if it shall go ill with her, she will curse thee; and if it shall go well with her, she will not remember thee.
- 69 My son, he that is elegant in his dress is elegant also in his speech, and he that is con-

ARABIC

- 58 O my son! rejoice not in the death of thine enemy, for after a little while thou shalt be his neighbour, and him who mocks thee do thou respect and honour and be beforehand with him in greeting.
- 59 O my son! if water would stand still in heaven, and a black crow become white, and myrrh grow sweet as honey, then ignorant men and fools might understand and become wise.
- 60 O my son! if thou desire to be wise, restrain thy tongue from lying, and thy hand from stealing, and thine eyes from beholding evil; then thou wilt be called wise.
- 61 O my son! let the wise man beat thee with a rod, but let not the fool anoint thee with sweet salve. Be humble in thy youth and thou shalt be honoured in thine old age.
- 62 O my son! withstand not a man in the days of his power, nor a river in the days of its flood.
- 63 O my son! be not hasty in the wedding of a wife, for if it turns out well, she will say, 'My lord, make provision for me'; and if it turns out ill, she will rate at him who was the cause of it.
- 64 (O my son! whosoever is elegant in his dress, he is the same in his speech; and he

ARMENIAN

Son, if thou hearest an evil word about any one, hide it in thy heart seven fathoms deep; so that the evil die and the good be fulfilled.

Son, do thou not scoff frivolously; for the frivolous scoff is a quarrel, and the quarrel is slaying and death.

Son, the false word and the false conversation is heavy as lead; but after a few days it floats upon the waters, like the leaf of a tree.

Son, reveal thy lesser counsel to thy friend, and after days irritate him and flout him. And¹ if he does not reveal that counsel, then reveal to him thy greater counsels, and thou keep-est him a trusty friend.

Son, in the presence of kings and judges, be helpful to thy comrade; for, as it were from the mouth of a lion, dost thou rescue him; and he becometh to thee a good name and a glory.

Son, if thy enemy come to thy foot, grant him pardon and laugh with joy to his face and receive him with honour.

Son, where thou art not invited, go not unto a festival; and where they ask thee not, give no answer.

Son, over a river frozen and swollen pass thou not, lest thou die a sudden death.

Son, ask of a wise man words of advice², and thou shalt be made wise. But if thou ask a foolish man, in spite of many words, he is not wise.

Son, if thou sendest a wise man to give any command, he himself fulfils the matter. But if thou sendest a fool, give the command in the presence of many men. And do thou either go thyself or not send him.

Son, test thy son in hunger and thirst; and if he is able to bear it, then give thy riches into his hands.

¹ Lit. 'judge not'.

² Cf. Sirach iv. 26.

¹ Bodl. 'and see, if' and below 'and keep him', &c.

² Bodl. 'words of wisdom'.

SYRIAC

temptible in his dress is contemptible also in his speech.

- 70 My son, if thou shalt find a find before an idol, offer the idol its share of it.¹
- 71 My son, the hand that was satisfied and is now hungry will not give, nor the hand that was hungry and is now satisfied.
- 72 My son, let not thine eyes look upon a woman that is beautiful; and be not inquisitive into beauty that does not belong to thee: because many have perished through the beauty of woman, and her love has been as a fire that burneth.
- 73 My son, let the wise man strike thee with many blows, and let not the fool salve thee with sweet salve.²
- 74 My son, let not thy foot run after thy friend, lest he be surfeited with thee and hate thee.
- 75 My son, put not a gold ring on thy finger, when thou hast not [wealth]³, lest fools make mock of thee.'

This is the teaching which Ahikar taught to Nadan his sister's son.

¹ This sentence cannot be of Christian or Moslem origin.

² Cf. Ps. cxli. 5, 'Let the righteous smite me,' &c.

³ Or 'when it is not thine'.

ARABIC

who has a mean appearance in his dress, he also is the same in his speech.)

- 65 O my son! if thou hast committed a theft, make it known to the Sultan, and give him a share of it, that thou mayst be delivered from him, for otherwise thou wilt endure bitterness.
- 66 O my son! make a friend of the man whose hand is satisfied and filled, and make no friend of the man whose hand is closed and hungry.
- 67 There are four things in which neither the king nor his army can be secure: oppression by the vizier, and bad government, and perversion of the will, and tyranny over the subject; and four things, which cannot be hidden: the prudent, and the foolish, and the rich, and the poor.'

ARMENIAN

Son, from the house of invitation and from the wedding go first before thy fellow, and return not again¹; that thou mayst get thy boon fragrant² and mayst get no wounds on the head.

Son, a man who has many possessions and chattels, they call him wise and virtuous; but one who has few chattels they call a fool and of no account, and no man honoureth him.

Son, I have eaten endive and I have drunk gall, and it was not more bitter than poverty. I have lifted salt, and I have lifted lead, and it was not heavier than is debt. For though I ate and drank, I could not rest³. I have lifted iron and I have lifted stones upon my shoulders, and it was better for me, than to dwell with the ignorant and the fool.

Son, if thou be poor among thy fellows, reveal it not; lest thou be despised by them, and they hearken not unto thy words.

¹ Perhaps the sense is 'and stay not till the last'.

² Canon: 'that thou mayst be anointed with fragrant oil,' &c. Compare the Syriac. Other texts read: 'that thou mayst get a good name.'

³ Canon adds: 'until I repaid the debt.'

ARMENIAN

- 71 Son⁴, love thy flesh and thy wife. For she is thyself and the companion of thy life, and even by extreme labour she nurtures thy son.⁵
- 72 Son, if thy lord send thee to bring a duned grape, bring it not to him; for he will eat the grape, yet not let thee off punishment for the dung.
- 73 Son, the word of a wise man in drink is better than the word of a fool that is thirsty or sober.⁶ Better is an upright slave than one free but false. Better is a friend near at hand than a brother far away.
- 74 Son, reveal not thy secret counsel to thy wife. For she is weak and small of soul, and she reveals it to the powerful, and thou art despised.
- 75 Son, if thou drinkest wine, keep thy tongue from much speaking, and it is well for thee and thou art called wise.
- 76 Son, without a schedule and witness, give not up thy property, lest the other deny it and thou regret it.
- 77 Son, forsake not thy friend, lest thou find not another sharer of thy counsel and friend.⁷
- 78 Son, love thy father who begat thee, and incur not the curse of thy father and mother, so that thou mayst rejoice in the prosperity of thy sons.

⁴ This precept, no. 41 in the series of Paris 58, is not in Ven.

⁵ Paris 58 here repeats precept 15.

⁷ Nos. 77 and 79 are only given in Paris 58.

⁶ The Armenian text must be faulty here.

ARMENIAN

- 79 Son, it is better if they steal thy goods, than that they detect theft in thee.
- 80 Son, if God prosper a man in his undertakings, do thou honour him. And whenever thou beholdest an aged man, do thou rise and stand up before him and magnify him.
- 81 Son, oppose not thyself to a wealthy man and to a river in flood. For the eyes of a grasping man are not filled¹ except with dust².
- 82 Son, do thou not bring about a betrothal match, for they see the good to be from God and from luck; but the bad is traced to thee, and they call thee an intriguing person³.
- 83 Son, if the rivers pause in their courses or the sun in its career, or if the gall become sweet as honey, or the raven turn white as the dove, even so will the senseless man abandon his want of sense and the fool become sensible.
- 84 Son, go not on foot⁴ too often to the house of thy friend, lest he hate thee.
- 85 Son, a dog that leaves his master and follows after thee, pursue him with stones⁵.
- 86 Son, good deeds and a pure offering are pleasing to God; and do thou fear shame as thou fearest God.
- 87 Son, the taking of an evil counsel into thy heart is the antagonism of the *dev*⁶; and endurance is the foundation of deeds and the rampart of faith.
- 88 Son, that which seems evil unto thee do not to thy companion; and what is not thine own, give not unto others.
- 89 Son, love the truth and hate lawlessness and⁷ falsehood. Give ear unto the commandments of God, and fear not the evil one. For the commandment of God is the rampart of man.
- 90 Son, flee from a man that is evil and speaketh falsely; for avarice is the mother of all evils, and all evils are engendered of impudence.
- 91 Son, love not judgement⁸; for even if thou get the better of thine adversary, yet be in fear of the judgement of God.
- 92 Son, he that is upright in mind is the sun giving light, and he that is treacherous in heart is gloomy with darkness, and he that is generous in heart is full of pity. He that is grasping, even though he has aught, is nevertheless dull of wit.
- 93 Son⁹, into the house of a drunkard enter not; and if thou enter, tarry not; for in thy habits thou remainest empty and idle.
- 94 Son, malign not thy fellow whether near or at a distance; for evil words will quickly reach the master and lead to quarrels¹⁰.
- 95 Son, God hath ordained wine for the sake of gladness, but in the place of a brothel or in any other low and unsuitable place, it is better to drink muck than wine¹¹.
- 96 Son, a drunken man thinks in his mind thus: I am brave, and everything that I say, I say wisely. He does not know that if he meets with a man of courage, he will throw him at the first touch of his hands flat on the ground and drag him.
- 97 (Son, if thou behold thine enemy fallen, do thou sorrow over him, that thou mayst make a friend of him; but if thou mock at him, when he gets up again he will requite thee with evil¹².)
- 98 Son, a drunken man thinks that the earth whirls round; in his going he knows not that his head is deranged; for as the earth is the mother of all plants and fruit-bearing things, so wine is the mother of all evils; it doth cause men to be sick with divers sicknesses, and to slay others without mercy; it deranges the man and changes his nature into that of a brute.
- 99 Son, flee from guaranteeing; but if thou become a guarantor, make up thy mind that thou must give away out of thy purse; and not thy purse only, but the hair off thy chin¹³.
- 100 Son, be thou not false in speech; for if they find thee to be once false, then when thou speakest the truth, they will reckon thee false and will not believe thee¹⁴.
- 101 And I say to Nadan: Son, receive into thy mind my precepts and forget them not.

¹ Paris 69 adds 'with treasure'.

² Paris 58 om. 81. Paris 69 has 'are not filled with treasure, but are filled with dust'.

³ The Armenian is obscure here.

⁴ Canon adds 'on foot'.

⁵ Bodl., Ven. add: 'which is not.' Canon omits.

⁶ Or to the dev, a Persian word which in Old Armenian usually means a demon.

⁷ Ven. om. 'lawlessness and'.

⁸ Canon adds 'of injustice'.

⁹ Nos. 93-100 are only given in Codex Paris 58 and Venet.

¹⁰ Codex Paris 58 gives this precept in late and obscure Armenian, and its text is clearly faulty.

¹¹ Ven. adds this: 'A drunken man is like an arrow in the hollow (lit. "palate") of a bow, which strikes no one else, but bruises its own head.'

¹² This precept has already come as no. 11, in almost identical language.

¹³ This precept is in bad late Armenian and I give the sense of the last clause conjecturally.

¹⁴ This precept also is in late Armenian.

ARMENIAN

The questions¹ of the king's sons and the answer of Khikar.

Houday and Baliayn asked questions of Khikar, and Khikar said to Nathan: There are four things that increase the light to man's eyes,—to look upon flowers, to tread with naked foot on the green, to walk upon the water, and to see one's friend.

102 Four things are there which make a man fat and keep him healthy,—to wear linen and to hear such things as seem to him pleasant; in the house an amiable and healthy spirit, and to see one's remote (friend) well off.

103 And four things are there which improve a man's banquet,—at all times to converse well, not to give answer to every word, to be humble, to talk little, modesty in small matters and big ones.

104 And four things are there which bring shame to one's face—domination of love, to talk too much and to boast that one knows what one does not know, (to conceal everything, to weave a snare and fall into it)², and false-speaking.

105 They asked the sage and said: What is the most pleasing thing on earth? He replied: Modesty. He that hath a modest face is pleasing. For all evils are born of impudence and folly.

¹ The passage which follows until the resumption of the narrative is written in vulgar Armenian. Ven. gives the names thus: Shoutay and Bayilan.

² Ven. omits the words in brackets.

SYRIAC

3 1 But I, Aḥikar, supposed that everything which I had been teaching Nadan he took hold of in his heart, and that he stood in my stead in the king's gate; and I knew not that Nadan listened not to my words, but scattered them, as it were to the wind, and returned and said that 'my father Aḥikar is grown old, and stands at the door of his grave; and his intelligence has withdrawn and his understanding is diminished';

ARABIC

3 1 Thus spake Haiqâr, and when he had finished these injunctions and proverbs to Nadan, his sister's son, he imagined that he would keep them all, and he knew not that instead of that he was displaying to him weariness and contempt and mockery.

Thereafter Haiqâr sat still in his house and delivered over to Nadan all his goods, and the slaves, and the handmaidens, and the horses, and the cattle, and everything else that he had possessed and gained; and the power of bidding and of forbidding remained in the hand of Nadan; and Haiqâr sat at rest in his house, and every now and then Haiqâr went and paid his respects to the king, and returned home. Now when Nadan perceived that the power of bidding and of forbidding was in his own hand, he despised the position of Haiqâr and scoffed at him, and set about blam-

ARMENIAN

And^a this was the advice which I taught to Nathan my sister's son. All this I taught to Nathan my sister's son, I, Khikar, chief Notary of Seneqerim the king. And so I supposed in my mind that the teaching and advice which I taught to Nathan would abide and remain and that he would preserve it in his mind. And I knew not that he despised my words, and scattered them like the chaff before the wind, supposing in his mind that Khikar his father was grown very old and had arrived at the door of his tomb. His mind (he said) is distraught and his thoughts are deficient and he knows nothing.

^a What follows is in MS. Canon given in a form which often more nearly resembles the Syriac than do the better Armenian copies, as below:

All this I taught to Nathan my sister's son, thus thinking that what I taught he kept in his heart and would live in the royal gate. And I knew not that he scorned my words, and scattered them like dust before the wind. Forthwith he began to waste my chattels and my possessions. He spared not my slaves and maidservants nor even my darlings and my friends, but bound and ill-treated them; wounded with violent blows and destroyed my steeds continually.

SYRIAC

2 and my son Nadan began [to ill-treat] my servants by beating them and slaughtering them and destroying them; and he showed no mercy on my servants and my handmaidens though they were industrious and well-beloved and excellent; and my horses he slew and my good mules he hamstringed.

3 So when I beheld me that my son Nadan was doing detestable things, I answered and said to him, 'My son Nadan, touch not my property; my son, it is said in the proverb, "What the hand did not acquire, the eye did not spare."'

4 Moreover I showed to Sennacherib my lord all these matters; and my lord spake on this wise: 'As long as Ahiḱar lives, no man shall have power over his wealth.'
5 Then when my son Nadan saw his brother Nebuzardan standing in my house, he was very irate and he spake on this wise: 'My father Ahiḱar is grown old and his wits have waned; [and as for his wise words, he despised them]¹; hath he given his possessions to Nebuzardan my brother, and hath he removed me from his house?'

6 When I, Ahiḱar, heard these things, I said, 'Alas for thee, my wisdom, that my son Nadan has made insipid; and as for my wise sayings, he has contemned them.'

¹ Probably a repetition from three lines lower down.

ARABIC

ing him whenever he appeared, saying, 'My uncle Haiqâr is in his dotage, and he knows nothing now'; and he began to beat the slaves and the handmaidens, and to sell the horses and the camels and be spendthrift with all that his uncle Haiqâr had owned.

3 And when Haiqâr saw that he had no compassion on his servants nor on his household, he arose and chased him from his house, and sent to inform the king that he had scattered his possessions and his provision.

4 And the king arose and called Nadan and said to him: 'Whilst Haiqâr remains in health, no one shall rule over his goods, nor over his household, nor over his possessions.' And the hand of Nadan was lifted off from his uncle Haiqâr and from all his goods, and in the meantime he went neither in nor out, nor did he greet him.

6 Thereupon Haiqâr repented him of his toil with Nadan his sister's son, and he continued to be very sorrowful. And Nadan had a younger brother named Benuzârdân, so Haiqâr took him to himself in place of Nadan, and brought him up and honoured

ARMENIAN

Nathan began to dissipate² my property to its loss, and spared not my servants and handmaids. But he tormented them and killed them, and cut about my horses and mules, and my steeds, and destroyed the very pick of the flock.

And when I saw Nathan my³ sister's son, that he was transforming my affairs and dissipating my property, I began to speak with him and I said: Keep away from my property, and come not near it, for it is written in the Proverbs that, whereon hands have not laboured, that thing his eye spareth not. And I went and⁴ told Seneqerim my lord. And he called Nathan and said: As long as Khikar is alive, thou shalt not touch his property.

In that season Nathan saw⁵ Boudan¹ his brother, who had been brought up in my house, and said: Khikar my father is grown old and his words have lost their savour.

And when I⁶ heard this, I cast him out from all my belongings.

¹ In Bodleian MS. Baudan.

When I saw that Nathan counterfeited (or metamorphosed) my affairs, then I spared my chattels lest he should ruin them. And I said to Nathan: Come not near my chattels, for it is said in the wise ones, that hands which have not been hard worked, the eye shall not spare. And I went and told my lord Seneqerim. And the king ordered Nathan and said: As long as thy father Khikar is alive, go not near his possessions, but remain in the royal gate, and let thy father Khikar remain in his gate, and rest in his old age.

I, Khikar, when I saw all this that Nathan did, I said in my heart: Alas! How hath Nathan despised my sweet advice, and all my wisdom hath he set at naught and quite despised.

SYRIAC

7 Now when my son Nadan heard thereof, he was angry and went to the gate of the king, and devised evil in his heart; and sat down and wrote two letters to two kings who were enemies of Sennacherib my lord; one to Akhi, the son of Hamselim, king of Persia and Elam, as follows:

8 'From Ahikar the Secretary and Great Seal of Sennacherib king of Assyria and Nineveh, greeting. When this letter reaches thee, arise and come to Assyria to meet me; and I will bring thee into Assyria, and thou shalt seize the kingdom without war.'

9 And he wrote another letter, as follows: 'To Pharaoh, him with the utmost honour. And he delivered over to him all that he possessed, and made him governor of his house.

ARABIC

7 Now when Nadan perceived what had happened he was seized with envy and jealousy, and he began to complain to every one who questioned him, and to mock his uncle Haiqâr, saying: 'My uncle has chased me from his house, and has preferred my brother to me, but if the Most High God give me the power, I shall bring upon him the misfortune¹ of being killed.' And Nadan continued to meditate as to the stumbling-block he might contrive for him. And after a while Nadan turned it over in his mind, and wrote a letter to Achish, son of Shah the Wise, king of Persia, saying thus:

8 'Peace and health and might and honour from Sennacherib king of Assyria and Nineveh, and from his vizier and his secretary Haiqâr unto thee, O great king! Let there be peace between thee and me. And when this letter reaches thee, if thou wilt arise and go quickly to the plain of Nisrîn², and to Assyria and Nineveh, I will deliver up the kingdom to thee without war and without battle-array.'

9 And he wrote also another letter in the name of Haiqâr

¹ Lit. 'cast him into the misfortune'.

² Nisrîn may either mean 'the eagles' or 'the wild rose'. I prefer the latter, because the usual plural of nasr is nusûr or ansur.

ARMENIAN

But Nathan formed a plan of wickedness in his heart. He wrote in my name a letter¹ to the enemy of Seneqerim, the King of Nineveh and Asorestan; and it was as follows:

I, Khikar, chief Notary of Seneqerim the king, have sent to the King of the Egyptians to this effect: When this writing reaches thee, thou shalt muster thy forces, and come to the plain of the Eagles on the twenty-fifth day of the month Hrotitz, and I will put in your power the land of the Asores, and will give the throne of Seneqerim into thy hand without trouble, for thee to hold it.

And he had made his handwriting to resemble my hand-

¹ There is evidently a lacuna here to be filled up from the Bodley MS. as follows: 'to Pharaoh, king of Egypt.'

Then Nathan went into the house of the king and planned very great evils for me. For he wrote two letters. One he sent to Pharaoh, king of Egypt, since he was an enemy of my lord Seneqerim, and it was written as follows:

I, Khikar, notary of Seneqerim king of Asorestan and Nineveh, to Pharaoh king of Egypt write. Be it in thy cognizance, when this dispatch reaches thee, at once shalt thou muster thy forces and come to the plain of Eagles on the twenty-fifth day of the month Hrotitz, and I will lead and make thee king over these without trouble.

And again a letter which had this form:

From Seneqerim, king, health (or peace) to Khikar, notary of my tribunal. When there shall come to king of Egypt, from Aḥīkar, Secretary and Great Seal of the king of Assyria and Nineveh, greeting. When this letter shall reach thee, arise and come to meet me at Eagles' dale, which lieth to the south, on the twenty-fifth day of the month of Ab. And I will bring thee into Nineveh without war and thou 10 shalt seize the kingdom.' And he made these writings of his like to my own handwriting; and he sealed them in the king's palace, and went his way.

SYRIAC

And he wrote further another letter to me, as if from my lord the king Sennacherib; and on this wise he wrote it:

11 'From Sennacherib the King, to Aḥīkar, my Secretary and Great Seal, greeting. When this letter reaches thee, gather all thy forces together, to the rock that is called Šiṣ: and come forth from thence and come to meet me at Eagles' dale, which lieth to the south, on the twenty-fifth day of the month Ab.

12 And when thou seest me approaching to thee, array thy forces against me, like a man that is ready for battle: for ambassadors of Pharaoh the king of Egypt are to Pharaoh king of Egypt. 'Let there be peace between thee and me, O mighty king! If at the time of this letter reaching thee thou wilt arise and go to Assyria and Nineveh to the plain of Nisrīn, I will deliver up to thee the kingdom without war and without fighting.'

ARABIC

10 And the writing of Nadan was like to the writing of his uncle Haiqâr.

Then he folded the two letters, and sealed them with the seal of his uncle Haiqâr; they were nevertheless in the king's palace.

11 Then he went and wrote a letter likewise from the king to his uncle Haiqâr: 'Peace and health to my Vizier, my Secretary, my Chancellor, Haiqâr. O Haiqâr, when this letter reaches thee, assemble all the soldiers who are with thee, and let them be perfect in clothing and in numbers, and bring them to me on the fifth day in the plain of 12 Nisrīn, and when thou shalt see me there coming towards thee, haste and make the army move against me as an enemy who would fight with me, for I have with me writing, and had sealed it with my seal. And when the forces of the king asked to go home to their homes, Nathan alone remained before the king, and said: O King, live for ever. I that have eaten bread and salt in thy house, God forbid that I should see evils before thee. Khikar my father, who was in honour and greatness before thee, hath lied to me and to thee, and hath taken the side of thy enemies. And the letter which Nathan had written in my words, and had likened his handwriting to my handwriting therein, he took, and read the dispatch which he himself had sealed, before the king.

ARMENIAN

And when the king heard it, 11 he was very much distressed, and said: What wrong have I done to Khikar, that he has so behaved to me? And at once Nathan wrote by the command of the king a letter thus conceived:

When thou readest this 12 writing, thou shalt muster thy hosts and shalt come to the plain of the Eagles on the twenty-fifth day of the month Hrotitz. And whenever thou thee this dispatch, thou shalt prepare my forces which are under thy hand; exactly on the twenty-fifth day of the month Hrotitz thou shalt come to meet me on the plain of Eagles. And when thou comest near draw up face to face against my forces, as if it were being prepared against thine enemies. For the envoys of Pharaoh are come unto me to see our forces and tremble.

And this letter Nathan sent to me as if by the command of the king. And he himself, Nathan, stood before the king and said: King, live for ever. I have eaten bread and salt in thy house. God forbid that I should deceive my king.

For my father Khikar, whom thou didst send unto rest, unto honour, unto glory, hath not done according to the command of your kingship, but hath played false to God and your kingship. And he had given the letter to certain trusty men of the king, and they gave it to the sovereign; and the sovereign gave it to Nathan and said: Read. And Nathan read it before the king; and the king was sorely troubled, and asked those who gave him the letter: Who gave into your hands this letter? And as Nathan had charged them, they answered with one mind, saying: Travellers that were going into Egypt. They had the letter, and we thy servants found them and took them by force. And when we asked them: Whence are ye? they answered, We are native slaves of Khikar.

And the king was troubled and said to the trusty men: What harm then have I done to Khikar, that he hath devised such a snare for me? Wherefore hath he returned evil for good? Nathan replied and said: Be not troubled, O mighty king. But let us go to the plain of the Eagles, as is written in the dispatch, and let us see if it is so; then let thy behests be done.

SYRIAC

come to me, that they may see what forces I have.'

13 And my son Nadan sent this letter to me by the hands of two of the king's servants.

And thereupon my son Nadan took the letters that he had written, as if he had actually found them; and he read them before the king; and when my lord the king heard them, he lamented and said, 'O God, wherein have I sinned against Ahiqar, that he should do unto me on this fashion?'

14 And my son Nadan answered and said to the king, 'My lord, do not fret nor rage. Arise and let us go to Eagles' dale on the day that is written by him in the letter. And if it be true, then all that thou commandest shall be done.'

15 So my son Nadan took the king my lord, and they came to me at Eagles' dale: and they found me having with me great forces that were gathered there. And when I saw the king, I put my forces in array against him, as it was written in the letter. And when the king saw it, he was much afraid.

ARABIC

the ambassadors of Pharaoh king of Egypt, that they may see the strength of our army and may fear us, for they are our enemies and they hate us.'

13 Then he sealed the letter and sent it to Haiqâr by one of the king's servants. And he took the other letter which he had written and spread it before the king and read it to him and showed him the seal. And when the king heard what was in the letter he was perplexed with a great perplexity and was wroth with a great and fierce wrath, and said, 'Ah, I have shown my wisdom! what have I done to Haiqâr that he has written these letters to my enemies? Is this my recompense from him for my benefits to him?' And Nadan said to him, 'Be not grieved, O king! nor be wroth, but let us go to the plain of Nisrîn and see if the tale be true or not.'

15 Then Nadan arose on the fifth day and took the king and the soldiers and the vizier, and they went to the desert to the plain of Nisrîn. And the king looked, and lo! Haiqâr and the army were set in array. And when Haiqâr saw that the king was there, he approached and signalled to the army to move as in war and to fight in array against the king as it had been found in the letter, he not knowing what a pit Nadan had digged for him. And when the king saw the act of Haiqâr he was seized with anxiety and terror and perplexity, and was wroth shalt see me, thou shalt draw up in battle array against me. For the messengers of Pharaon are come to me to see my hosts.

ARMENIAN

He brought the letter to me, 13 and he himself went to the king. He stood before the king and said:

Grieve not, O ruler; but 14 come, let us go to the plain of the Eagles, and let us see whether this be so. Then what thou commandest is done.

And Seneqerim took his army 15 and came to the plain of the Eagles, and found me with my army; and I drew up my forces over against him as he had commanded. When the king saw this, he was very grieved.

And Nathan took the king and went to the plain of the Eagles. But I, Khikar, when I learned of the setting out of the king, prepared my forces and set them over against him, as had been written in the dispatch by behest of the king.

When the king saw my forces, he was sore troubled. The king said: If thou bringest Khikar before me, mighty presents will I give thee, and all the royal affairs shall be discharged by thee; for thou hast been found a trusty servant before me. And the king went back into his palace.

SYRIAC

16 Then my son Nadan answered and said to him: 'Let it not disturb thee, my lord the king. Return and come into thy chamber¹ in peace: and I will bring Ahikar before thee.'

Then my lord the king returned to his house.

17 And my son Nadan came to me and said to me, 'All that thou hast done, thou hast done finely: and much hath the king praised thee; and he commands thee to dismiss thy forces that they may go every man to his own place and his own district. And do thou come to me thyself alone.'

1 Thereupon I came before the king, and when he saw me, he said unto me, 'Art thou come, Ahikar, my Secretary and the foster-child of Assyria and Nineveh, thou whom I caused to come into honour? but thou hast turned back and taken the part of my enemies.'

¹ Taking the word as equivalent of the Greek κοιτώνα.

ARABIC

16 with a great wrath. And Nadan said to him, 'Hast thou seen, O my lord the king! what this wretch has done? but be not thou wroth and be not grieved nor pained, but go to thy house and sit on thy throne, and I will bring Haiqâr to thee bound and chained with chains, and I will chase away thine enemy from thee without toil.'

And the king returned to his throne, being provoked about Haiqâr, and did nothing concerning him. And Nadan went to Haiqâr and said to him, 'W'allah, O my uncle! The king verily rejoiceth in thee with great joy and thanks thee for having done what he commanded thee. And now he hath sent me to thee that thou mayst dismiss the soldiers to their duties¹ and come thyself to him with thy hands bound behind thee, and thy feet chained, that the ambassadors of Pharaoh may see this, and that the king may be feared by them and by their king.' Then answered Haiqâr and said, 'To hear is to obey.' And he arose straightway and bound his hands behind him, and 4 1 chained his feet. And Nadan took him and went with him to the king. And when Haiqâr entered the king's presence he did obeisance before him on the ground, and wished for power and perpetual life to the king. Then said the king, 'O Haiqâr, my Secretary, the Governor of my affairs, my Chancellor, the ruler of my State, tell me what evil

¹ Lit. 'to the way of their path'.

ARMENIAN

Nathan began to speak and 16 said: Grieve not, O king, but let us go home. And I will bring my father Khikar before thee. The king said to Nathan: If thou bringest Khikar before me, I will give thee very great presents and I will set thee in trust over all my affairs. And all the affairs of my kingdom shall be transacted by thee with ability.

And the king returned to his 17 palace, and Nathan my sister's son came to me and said: Seneqerim the king hath sent me to thee and says, Come to me and let us be joyful together.

And when I went, the king said 4 1 to me:

Khikar, Notary and wise man, thou wast my counsellor and ruler, and giver of commands of the house of the Asores and Ninevites; and thou hast gone over to the side of my enemies.

And Nathan came to me and said: My father Khikar, very honourable and pleasing hath seemed to the king this preparing of thy cavalry in array. Therefore hath he sent me to thee and saith, All thou hast done thou hast done well and wisely. So then give orders to thy forces to go to their place, and do thou come and let us make merry together.

SYRIAC

2 And he gave me those letters that were written in my name and were sealed with the seal of my own ring. And when I read them, my tongue stammered and my limbs became faint: and I sought for a single word from the words of wisdom and I found me none.

3 And my son Nadan answered and said to me, 'Away with thee from the king's sight, thou foolish old man: and give thy hands to bonds and thy feet to iron fetters.'

Then Sennacherib the king turned away his face from me, and he talked with Nabusemakh¹ . . . and said to him, 'Arise, go slay Ahiqar, and separate his head a hundred ells from his body.'

4 Then I fell on my face on the ground and worshipped the king, and I said, 'My lord the king, live for ever. Seeing, my lord, that it hath pleased thee to kill me, thy will be done. I know, however, that I have not sinned against thee. But 5 command them, my lord the king, that they kill me at the door of my house: and let them give my body to burial.'

6 And the king said to Nabusemakh² . . . , 'Go, kill Ahiqar at the door of his house, and ¹ 'Yabusemakh Meskin Kanti', which I do not understand; the correction of the first part of the name is obvious. Possibly it should be 'Nabušumuškin, my colleague'. Compare the form as given in the papyrus, and in the Arabic.

² Ut supra.

ARABIC

have I done to thee that thou hast rewarded me by this 2 ugly deed.' Then they showed him the letters in his writing and with his seal. And when Haiqâr saw this, his limbs trembled and his tongue was tied at once, and he was unable to speak a word from fear; but he hung his head towards the earth and was dumb. And when the king saw this, he felt certain that the thing was from him, and he straightway arose and commanded them to kill Haiqâr, and to strike his neck with the sword outside of the city.

3 Then Nadan screamed and said, 'O Haiqâr, O black-face! what avails thee thy meditation or thy power in the doing of this deed to the king?'

4 Thus says the story-teller. And the name of the swordsman was Ibn Samîk. And the king said to him, 'O swordsman! arise, go, cleave the neck of Haiqâr at the door of his house, and cast away his head from his body
5 a hundred cubits.' Then Haiqâr knelt before the king, and said, 'Let my lord the king live for ever! and if thou desire to slay me, let thy wish be [fulfilled]; and I know that I am not guilty, but the wicked man has to give an account of his wickedness; nevertheless, O my lord the king! I beg of thee and of thy friendship, permit the swordsman to give my body to my slaves, that they may bury me, and let thy slave be thy sacrifice.'

6 The king arose and commanded the swordsman to do with him according to his

ARMENIAN

And that letter, which Nathan 2 had written in my¹ words and had likened therein his handwriting to my handwriting, the king gave unto me and said: Take and read.

And when I read it, all my limbs were² dissolved, and my tongue was shrivelled up as parchment; and I was stupefied and became like one of those distraught. I sought for a word of wisdom and found no answer to give.

Nathan began to speak, 3 and said to me: Get out of the presence of thy king, grey-haired one, perverted and inane³. Give thy hand for the iron and thy foot for the fetter.

And the 4 king turned away his face from me and said to Abusmaq, his nayip: Lead away and slay yon godless Khikar, and remove his head afar, about one hundred ells.

And I fell on my face and 5 kissed the earth and said: O King, live for ever. Thou hast willed me to slaying, and hast not hearkened unto my words. And I from my heart know that I have not in any way wronged thee, and in my heart there is no guile. I am innocent. Therefore have pity on me and order that in my own house they slay me and give over my body for burial.

And the king ordered Abusmaq, that they should slay me in my own house. And when

¹ Ven. omits 'my'.

² Bodl. = 'all the flesh of my limbs was'.

³ The Arm. word is obscure.

SYRIAC

give his body to burial.' Thereupon I, Ahiqar, sent to Eshfagni my wife that she should bring forth from the daughters of my tribe maids a thousand and one: 'and let them put on raiment of mourning, and let them wail and lament and weep
7 over me. And let them come to meet me, and let them make a funeral feast¹ over me before I die. And prepare thou bread and a table and a banquet for Nabusemakh² . . . and his Parthians that are with him, and come to meet them, and receive them and bring them into my house. And I too will come into the house as a guest.'

8 And Eshfagni my wife, for that she was exceeding wise, understood all my message, and did whatsoever I had sent to her to do; and she came forth to meet them, and she brought them into my house: and they did eat bread, and with her own hand she served them, until they fell asleep from drunkenness, every man in his place.

9 Thereat I, Ahiqar, entered and said to Nabusemakh³, 'Look towards God, and remember the love that there was between us. brother: and grieve not over my death: and remember that thee also did Sarhadum the father of Sennacherib deliver to me that I should slay thee, yet I slew thee not, because I was aware that there was in thee no ground of offence; and I kept thee alive until the king desired thee, and when I brought thee before him,

¹ Lit. 'a house of weeping'.

² Yabusemakh.

³ Ut supra.

ARABIC

desire. And he straightway commanded his servants to take Haiqâr and the swordsman and to go with him naked that they might slay him. And when Haiqâr knew for certain that he was to be slain he sent to his wife 7 and said to her, 'Come out and meet me, and let there be with thee a thousand young virgins, and dress them in gowns of purple and silk that they may weep for me before my death. And prepare a table for the swordsman and for his servants. And mingle plenty of wine, that they may drink.'

8 And she did all that he commanded her. And she was very wise, clever, and prudent. And she united all possible courtesy and learning.

And when the army of the king and the swordsman arrived they found the table set in order, and the wine and the luxurious viands, and they began eating and drinking till they were gorged and drunken.

9 Then Haiqâr took the swordsman aside apart from the company and said, 'O Abu Samîk, dost thou not know that when Sarhadum the king, the father of Sennacherib, wanted to kill thee. I took thee and hid thee in a certain place till the king's anger subsided and he asked for thee? And when I brought thee into his presence he rejoiced in thee: and now remember the kindness I did

ARMENIAN

I went forth from the king, I wrote a letter lamenting to Abestan my wife and said: When this letter reaches thee, do thou send out to meet me a thousand virgins; and let them put on apparel of mourning and let them mourn for me and bewail me, that I may see with my own eyes even the wailers who bewail me in my lifetime. But^a thou shalt make large loaves, to give to my executioners, and dainty viands for them to eat and drink.

And Abestan my wife was⁸ very wise and¹ fulfilled my orders. She went out to meet me, and led them into the house, and set before them a table; and fed them, and gave them to drink old wine and unmixed, till they were fuddled and were drunk and fell asleep.

Then I⁹ and my wife fell at the feet of Abusmaq weeping, and I said to him: Abusmaq, my comrade, look up to heaven and behold God with thy eyes; and remember the bread and salt which we have eaten together, and remember how that they betrayed thee to Seneqerim the king's father; and I took and kept thee until the king asked for thee, and how, when I led thee before him, he gave me

¹ Paris 92 and 58 alone add the words 'was . . . and'.

^a The narrative that follows is given in MS. Canon in a form more closely resembling the Syriac as below: And they shall make and prepare a table, adorned with all good things, for Abusmaq and the Parthians who are with me. Thou shalt go out to meet these and shalt lead them into the house.

And Arphestan my wife did immediately what I had commanded; and we set out to my house. And Abusmaq and the Parthians reclined, and my wife set before them a table, and waited on them. And I entered with them to eat bread; and they were fuddled with wine.

And I said to Abusmaq my comrade, Look up to heaven and discern God with thy eyes and remember the love of our brotherhood. And sin not against my blood, for thou knowest that I am innocent. But he gave me great gifts, and many presents did I carry off

SYRIAC

 10 from him. And do thou too, now, preserve me alive and recompense me this kindness: and in order that the word come not abroad that I was not killed and that the king may not quarrel with thee, behold, I have in my prison-house a slave, Marzifan hight, and he is due to die: clothe this slave in my raiment and rouse up the Parthians against him and they will slay him: and I shall not die, because I have done no wrong.'

11 And when I spake thus, moreover Nabusemakh¹ . . . also was sore grieved over me, and he took my raiments and clad in them the slave that was in the prison-house. And he roused up the Parthians, and they arose in the fumes² of their wine, and they slew him and removed his head a hundred ells from his corse, and they gave over his body for burial.

12 Then went forth the report in Assyria and Nineveh, that Ahiḱar the Secretary is killed.

And Nabusemakh³ . . . rose up, and Eshfagni my wife, and they made for me a hiding-place underground; its breadth was three cubits and its height five cubits, under the threshold of the 13 door of my house. And they put bread and water with me, and went and showed to Sennacherib the king that Ahiḱar, the Secretary, was dead: and when the men heard it, they wept; and the women disfigured⁴ their

¹ Ut supra.

² Lit. 'taste'.

³ Ut supra.

⁴ Lit. 'scratched'.

ARABIC

10 thee. And I know that the king will repent him about me and will be wroth with a great wrath about my execution. For I am not guilty, and it shall be when thou shalt present me before him in his palace, thou shalt meet with great good fortune, and know that Nadan my sister's son has deceived me and has done this bad deed to me, and the king will repent of having slain me; and now I have a cellar in the garden of my house, and 11 no one knows of it. Hide me in it with the knowledge of my wife. And I have a slave in prison who deserves to be killed. Bring him out and dress him in my clothes, and command the servants when they are drunk to slay him. They will not know who it is they are killing.

12 And cast away his head a hundred cubits from his body, and give his body to my slaves that they may bury it. And thou shalt have laid up a great treasure with me.' And then the swordsman did as Haiqâr had commanded him, and he went to the king and said to him, 'May thy head live for ever!'

13 Then Haiqâr's wife let down to him in the hiding-place every week what sufficed for him, and no one knew of it but herself. And the story was reported and repeated and spread abroad mighty gifts. Now therefore 10 keep me and render to me a return of the service I rendered thee, and to thee there will be mighty gifts as thy requital, good for good¹. I have a man in prison, and very like unto me is he. He shed blood in my house and is under sentence of death, and his name is Seniḱar. Take therefore my garments into the prison and dress him up in them and slay him; and so thou fulfillst the king's command.

ARMENIAN

And when I said this, Abus- 11 maq had pity on me, and did my will and what I told him. And the soldiers, fuddled, woke up from sleep² at midnight, and slew Seniḱar my slave, and removed his head from him one hundred ells.

And the news 12 went forth into the city of Asorestan, that Khikar, Notary and wise man, was dead.

Then Abusmaq my comrade and Abestan my wife made me a house dug out underground, its³ length seven ells, and its height equal to my head's, hard by the door-posts of my house. And they shut me in and placed 13 beside me bread and water, and then Abusmaq went off to the king and told him that 'Khikar the wise is slain'. And all who heard of my death beat their breasts and were full of regret remember also this, that the sire of Seneqerim gave thee into my hands for slaying; and I wronged thee not, for I knew that thou wast innocent. And I kept thee until the king made a request; and then I led thee before the king, and the king gave me mighty gifts. This do thou likewise and slay me not. There is my slave whose name is Sêniphar, and very like is he unto me. And he is in prison, because he is under sentence of death. So then lead me into prison and dress him up in my garments and cast him to the Parthians, for them to slay him. . . .

¹ Bodl. has 'will be a requital from God': Paris 92, 'will be mighty gifts'. I render the Ven. MS.

² So Ven. and Paris 92: the rest = 'fuddled with wine, woke up at'.

³ Canon = 'its height three ells and its length seven ells, equal to (or level with) the door-posts of my house'.

SYRIAC

faces and said: 'Alas for thee, Ahiḱar the wise Secretary, thou fence of the breaches of our country: for like thee there will never be any one to us.'

14 Then Sennacherib the king called my son Nadan, and said to him, 'Go make a funeral feast¹ for thy father Ahiḱar, and then return to me.'

15 And when Nadan my son came, no funeral feast did he make for me, nor any remembrance at all; but gathered him the vain and lewd folk, and set them down at my table, with singing and with great joy; and my beloved servants and handmaidens he stripped and flogged without mercy.

16 Nor had he any reverence for my wife Eshfagni, but sought to do with her the way of man with woman.

17 And I, Ahiḱar, was cast into darkness in the pit beneath. And I was hearing the voice of my bakers, cooks, and butlers as they wept and sobbed within my house.

¹ Lit. 'a house of weeping'.

ARABIC

in every place of how Haiqâr the Sage had been slain and was dead, and all the people of that city mourned for him. And they wept and said: 'Alas for thee, O Haiqâr! and for thy learning and thy courtesy! How sad about thee and about thy knowledge! Where can another like thee be found? and where can there be a man so intelligent, so learned, so skilled in ruling as to resemble thee that he may fill thy place?'

But the king was repenting about Haiqâr, and his repentance availed him naught.

14 Then he called for Nadan and said to him, 'Go and take thy friends with thee and make a mourning and a weeping for thy uncle Haiqâr, and lament for him as the custom is, doing honour to his memory.'

15 But when Nadan, the foolish, the ignorant, the hard-hearted, went to the house of his uncle, he neither wept nor sorrowed nor wailed, but assembled heartless and dissolute people and set about eating and drinking. And Nadan began to seize the maidservants and the slaves belonging to Haiqâr, and bound them and tortured them and drubbed them with a sore drubbing.

16 And he did not respect the wife of his uncle, she who had brought him up like her own boy, but wanted her to fall

17 into sin with him. But Haiqâr had been cast into the hiding-place, and he heard the weeping of his slaves and his neighbours, and he praised the Most High God, the Merciful One, and said: Alas for thee, O Notary! Who is there to decide the matters of thy kingdom with thy ability?

ARMENIAN

Then the king called Nathan¹⁴ and said to him: Go, make lamentations for the house and mourning for thy father.

Na-¹⁵ than^a came, and instead of lamenting he gathered together actors, and made great cheer; and he very cruelly tormented my servants and handmaids.

And even for Abestan my wife¹⁶ he had no respect, but desired to fornicate with her, that had brought him up. And I from my subterranean chamber heard the weeping and groanings and the complaints of my servants. And¹⁷ I moreover wept and my soul longed for a little bread and a morsel of meat and a cup. And I was destitute of all my chattels.

^a MS. Canon has the narrative which follows in a form nearer to the Syriac. It is given below:

And Nathan went off to the house of Khikar, but with him there was no concern for mourning. And he collected all his dear ones to drink wine and made great good cheer, instead of mourning as the king commanded. Using force to the dear ones of Khikar he tortured them and had no respect for Arphestan wife of Khikar, nay rather desired to fornicate with her.

And I, Khikar, was hearing the voice of my stewards whom Nathan tortured and ill-treated. And I was tortured in the darkness. My soul was longing for bread and a morsel of meat.

SYRIAC

18 And after a few days came Nabusemakh¹ . . . and opened [my prison] over me² and comforted me; and set before me bread and water; and I said to him, 'When thou goest forth from me, remember me before God; and say, O God, just and righteous, and that showest grace upon the earth, hear the voice of Thy servant Aḥikar,³ and remember that he sacrificed to Thee fatted oxen like sucking
19 lambs. And now he is cast into the darksome pit where he seeth no light. And dost Thou not save him that crieth unto Thee? O Lord, hear the voice of my colleague,⁴ [I pray Thee.]'
5 1 Now when Pharaoh, king of Egypt, heard that I, Aḥikar, had been slain, he was greatly rejoiced, and he wrote a letter to Sennacherib on this wise:

2 'Pharaoh, king of Egypt, to Sennacherib, king of Assyria and Nineveh, greeting. I am planning to build a castle between heaven and earth, wherefore seek out and send me from thy kingdom a man who is a skilled architect, that he may give me reply concerning all
3 that I shall ask him. And when thou shalt send me such a man, I will collect and send thee the revenue of Egypt for three

¹ Ut supra.

² Lit. 'on my eyes'.

³ Cf. Apoc. vi. 10, 'How long, O Lord, holy and true,' &c.

⁴ This trifling but necessary emendation confirms our interpretation (vide supra) of the corrupt name.

ARABIC

and gave thanks, and he always prayed and besought the Most High God.

18 And the swordsman came from time to time to Haiqâr whilst he was in the midst of the hiding-place: and Haiqâr came and entreated him. And he comforted him and wished him deliverance.

19 And when the story was reported in other countries that Haiqâr the Sage had been slain, all the kings were grieved and despised king Sennacherib, and they lamented over Haiqâr the solver of riddles.

5 1 And when the king of Egypt had made sure that Haiqâr was slain, he arose straightway and wrote a letter to king Sennacherib, reminding him in it 'of the peace and the health and the might and the honour which we wish specially for thee, my beloved
2 brother, king Sennacherib. I have been desiring to build a castle between the heaven and the earth, and I want thee to send me a wise, clever man from thyself to build it for me, and to answer me all my questions, and that I may have the taxes¹ and the custom duties of Assyria for three years.' Then he sealed

¹ i.e. taxes in kind, agricultural produce. For this rendering of the Arabic word, see Dozy, vol. ii, p. 345.

ARMENIAN

And all the inhabitants of Asorestan and of Nineveh fled from me.

When the king of Egypt^{5 1} heard this, of how Khikar the Notary was dead, and of the Ninevites and all the land (that) they were fled, he was very glad. And the king of Egypt, Pharaoh, wrote a letter as follows:

To Seneqerim, king of the² Asores. Health be to thy Lordship and Kingship. Be it known to thee that I desire to build a palace hung betwixt heaven and earth. Look and send unto me a true and clever and wise man who can build, and also give answer to any question I ask. If however thou shalt neglect³ this request, then I will come

And when Pharaoh heard that Khikar was slain, he was very glad, and wrote a dispatch to the king Seneqerim, riddles.

And the king called Nathan and said: Write an answer to this letter.

And Nathan said: Difficult is this matter. Who is able to give answer thereto?

And the king was distressed and said: Alas for Khikar my secretary and wise man!

And when Pharaoh learned that they could not give an answer to his writing, he sent puissant forces and they took tribute from Seneqerim. And as long as Khikar languished in the prison, the burden of Pharaoh was multiplied on Asorestan and Nineveh. Those who were under the hand of Seneqerim also were much impoverished and all the land laid waste, and the chambers of the royal treasury were emptied.

SYRIAC

years: and if thou send me not a man who shall give me reply concerning all that I ask him, then do thou collect and send me the tribute of Assyria and Nineveh for three years, by the hands of these ambassadors that come to thee.'

4 And when this letter was read before the king, he cried out to all the nobles and franklins of his kingdom, and said unto them: 'Which of you will go to Egypt to give reply to the king concerning all that he shall ask him? And he shall build him the castle that he planneth, and bring back the three years' tribute of Egypt and come hither.'

5 And when the nobles heard this, they answered and said unto the king: 'My lord the king, thou knowest that not only in the years of thy reign, but also in the years of thy father Sarhadum, Ahikar the Secretary was in the habit of resolving
6 questions like these. And now, also, behold his son Nadan, he is instructed in his father's booklore and wisdom.' And when my son Nadan heard these things, he cried out before the king and said: 'The gods themselves cannot do things like these; let alone men'¹

7 And when the king heard

¹ Cf. Dan. ii. 11.

ARABIC

the letter and sent it to Sen-
3 nacherib. He took it and read it and gave it to his viziers and to the nobles of his kingdom, and they were perplexed and ashamed, and he was wroth with a great wrath, and was puzzled about

4 how he should act. Then he assembled the old men and the learned men and the wise men and the philosophers, and the diviners and the astrologers, and every one who was in his country, and read them the letter and said to them, 'Who amongst you will go to Pharaoh king of Egypt and answer him his
5 questions?' And they said to him, 'O our lord the king! know thou that there is none in thy kingdom who is acquainted with these questions except Haiqâr, thy vizier and 6 secretary. But as for us, we have no skill in this, unless it be Nadan, his sister's son, for he taught him all his wisdom and learning and knowledge. Call him to thee, perchance he may untie this hard knot.' Then the king called Nadan and said to him, 'Look at this letter and understand what is in it.' And when Nadan read it, he said, 'O my lord! who is able to build a castle between the heaven and the earth?'

7 And when the king heard

ARMENIAN

and take away thy kingdom and will lay waste thy land.

When
4 the king heard this he was very grieved, and sent and mustered his satraps to ask their advice, saying: What shall we do?

The¹ satraps say: O King, who
5 else can answer this question except Nathan, who hath learned of Khikar and knoweth his lore and hath been brought up in his house? He will be able to give an answer to this demand which the king of Egypt hath written. Then the king called Nathan and showed him the counsel; and he gave him the dispatch, and Nathan read
6 it. When he had read aloud the letter, he cried out with a loud voice and said: This² is a matter which even the gods³ cannot settle or give answer to. How shall I be able to give answer?

When the king heard, he rose
7

¹ Canon: 'And they perplexed said: To such a matter Khikar would give an answer, and now Nathan who is in his place.'

² Canon: 'Such a matter the gods cannot answer, much less men. When the king heard, he was sorely troubled; he rose . . .'

³ The Arm. word used is dign, i. e. the devs.

And the king said: Alas for Khikar, secretary and wise man! One who should give thee to me alive, many chattels would I give him, even to the half of my kingdom.

And Abusmaq revealed it not to the king, that he might be in stress and know the value to him of Khikar.

And Pharaon sent a dispatch to king Seneqerim which had this tenor: From Pharaon to Seneqerim, health. I desire to build a palace. . . .

This when Nathan heard, he cried with a loud voice and said: King, live for ever. Such a matter as that the gods could not make answer to. Surely then not men?

When the king heard this he was very distressed. He rose from his throne and sat on sackcloth, beat his these words, he was much perturbed, and he descended from his throne and sat on the ground, and spake thus:¹ 'Alas for thee, Ahiḳar the wise, that I destroyed thee for the words of a boy! Who will give thee to me for such a time as this? I would give him thy weight in gold.'

SYRIAC

8 And when Nabusemakh² . . . heard these words, he fell down before the king and said to him: 'He who has contemned the commandment of his lord, is guilty of death; and I, my lord, have contemned the command of thy kingship. Command, therefore, that they crucify me.

¹ Cf. Ezek. xxvi. 16 καὶ καταβήσονται ἀπὸ τῶν θρόνων αὐτῶν πάντες οἱ ἄρχοντες . . . ἐπὶ γῆν καθεδούνται . . . καὶ στενάξουσιν ἐπὶ σέ· καὶ λήψονται ἐπὶ σέ θρῆνον καὶ ἐροῦσίν σοι. . . .

² Ut supra.

ARABIC

the speech of Nadan he sorrowed with a great and sore sorrow, and stepped down from his throne and sat in the ashes, and began to weep and wail over Haiqâr, saying, 'O my grief! O Haiqâr, who didst know the secrets and the riddles! woe is me for thee, O Haiqâr! O teacher of my country and ruler of my kingdom, where shall I find thy like? O Haiqâr, O teacher of my country, where shall I turn for thee? woe is me for thee! how did I destroy thee! and I listened to the talk of a stupid, ignorant boy without knowledge, without religion, without manliness. Ah! and again Ah for myself! who can give thee to me just for once, or bring me word that Haiqâr is alive? and I would give him the half of my kingdom. Whence is this to me? Ah, Haiqâr! that I might see thee just for once, that I might take my fill of gazing at thee, and delighting in thee. Ah! O my grief for thee to all time! O Haiqâr, how have I killed thee! and I tarried not in thy case till I had seen the end of the matter.' And the king went on weeping night and day.

8 Now when the swordsman saw the wrath of the king and his sorrow for Haiqâr, his heart was softened towards him, and he approached into his presence and said to him: 'O my lord! command thy servants to cut off my head.' Then from his golden throne and sat in the ashes, and with his own hands he smote his face and plucked out his beard and said: Alas for thee, Khikar, Notary and wise, I have through the tittle-tattle of men destroyed thee! For thou didst arrange the affairs of our kingdom. Now if any one gave thee unto me, I would give him whatever he asked of me, no matter how great a treasure of gold and silver.

¹ B.M. MS. 'is crucified'.

ARMENIAN

When Abusmaq my comrade heard this, he stood before the king and said: O King, live for ever. He that doeth not the king's commands is sentenced to death, for the commands of God and of the king are one. Thou didst bid slay Khikar, and he is still living.

person and said: Alas for Khikar, able notary and wise! On the words of a lying man I slew him. There is none like thee. And there is no successor like thee in the royal gate. If any one gave thee to me, I would weigh him against gold and buy thee. When Abusmaq learned the deep distress of the king, he said: My lord king, he that contemns the behests of his lord and fulfils them not is guilty of death. Now then this word of mine is fulfilled in me. For I fulfilled not the behest of my lord. Thou didst make behest to slay Khikar, and now he is still alive.

SYRIAC

For Aḥikar, whom thou didst command me to slay, is yet alive.'

9 And when the king heard these words, he answered and said, 'Speak on, speak on, Nabusemakh¹; speak on, thou good and clever man, unskilled in evil. If it is indeed as thou sayest, and thou show me Aḥikar alive, then I will give thee presents of silver, a hundred talents in weight, and of purple, fifty talents in value.'²

10 And Nabusemakh³ answered and said, 'Swear to me, my lord the king, that, if there be not found before thee other sins of mine, this sin shall not be remembered against me.' And the king gave him his right hand on this matter.

¹ Cod. 'Yabusemakh'.

² Dan. v. 16.

³ Cod. 'Yabusemakh'.

ARABIC

said the king to him: 'Woe to thee, Abu Samik, what is thy fault?' And the swordsman said unto him, 'O my master! every slave who acts contrary to the word of his master is killed¹, and I have acted contrary to thy command.' Then the king said unto him, 'Woe unto thee, O Abu Samik, in what hast thou acted contrary to my command?' And the swordsman said unto him, 9 'O my lord! thou didst command me to kill Haiqâr, and I knew that thou wouldst repent thee concerning him, and that he had been wronged, and I hid him in a certain place, and I killed one of his slaves, and he is now safe in the cistern, and if thou command me I will bring him to thee.' And the king said unto him, 'Woe to thee, O Abu Samik! thou hast mocked me and I am thy lord.' And the swordsman said unto him, 'Nay, but by the life of thy head, O my lord! Haiqâr is safe and alive.' And when the king heard that saying, he felt sure of the matter, and his head swam², and he fainted from joy, and he commanded [them] to bring 10 [Haiqâr]³. And he said to the swordsman, 'O trusty servant! if thy speech be true, I would fain enrich thee, and exalt thy dignity above that of all thy friends.' And the swordsman went along rejoicing till he came to Haiqâr's house. And he opened the door of the hiding-place, and went down and found Haiqâr sitting, praising God, and thanking Him. And he shouted

¹ B.M. MS. 'is crucified'.

² Lit. 'his reason flew'.

³ Cod. 'him'.

ARMENIAN

The king 9 said: Speak, Abusmaq, my servant and trusty one. If thou canst show me Khikar alive, I will give thee¹ byssus and purple and bestow on thee mighty presents.

And Abusmaq, when 10 he heard this from the king, like a swiftly flying fowl, came unto me, and opened the door of my subterranean chamber, and led me forth.

¹ Bodl. 'will array thee in'.

And the king said: Speak, speak, my servant, well-doing and trusty. For thou hast not sinned. But of many good things hast thou become worthy. If thou showest me Khikar, I will give thee royal purples and one hundred thousand talents of gold.

SYRIAC

11 And forthwith the king mounted his chariot, and came unto me in haste, and opened [my prison] over me, and I ascended and came and fell before the king; the hair of my head had grown down on my shoulders, and my beard reached my breast; and my body was foul with the dust, and my nails were grown long like eagles'.¹

12 And when the king saw me, he wept and was ashamed to talk with me, and in great grief he said to me, 'It was not I that sinned against thee, Aḥikar; but thy son whom thou broughtest up, he it was that sinned against thee.'

13 Thereupon I answered and said to him, 'Because I have seen thy face, my lord, no evil is in my mind.' And the king said to me, 'Go to thy house, Aḥikar, and shave off thy hair, and wash thy body, and recover thy strength² forty days; and after that come to me.'

¹ Dan. iv. 33.

² Lit. 'let thy soul come into thee'.

ARABIC

to him, saying, 'O Haiqâr, I bring the greatest of joy, and happiness, and delight!' And Haiqâr said to him, 'What is the news, O Abu Samîk?' And he told him all about Pharaoh from the beginning to the end. Then he took him and 11 went to the king. And when the king looked at him, he saw him in a state of want, and that his hair had grown long like the wild beasts' and his nails like the claws of an eagle, and that his body was dirty with dust, and the colour of his face had changed and faded and was now like ashes.

12 And when the king saw him he sorrowed over him and rose at once and embraced him and kissed him, and wept over him and said: 'Praise be to God! who hath brought thee back to me.' Then he consoled him and comforted him. And he stripped off his robe, and put it on the swordsman, and was very gracious to him, and gave him great wealth, and made Haiqâr rest.

13 Then said Haiqâr to the king, 'Let my lord the king live for ever! These be the deeds of the children of the world. I have reared me a palm-tree that I might lean on it, and it bent sideways, and threw me down. But, O my lord! since I have appeared before thee, let not 14 care oppress thee.' And the king said to him: 'Blessed be God, who showed thee

ARMENIAN

And the colour of my face was changed and my head¹ was matted and my nails were grown like an eagle's.

When the king beheld me², he bent his head and was ashamed to look in my face; and hardly looked in my face, his face being full of shame; and^a he said to me: O my loved and honourable brother Khikar, go to thy house and repair thy person for forty days, and then come unto me. And I did so. And I came back again to the king, and the king said: I have sinned against thee, father Khikar. Not I is it that has sinned against thee, but Nathan thy sister's son, whom thou didst bring up.

And I fell on my face and kissed the earth before the king and said: Forasmuch as I have seen the face of the king, I am alive; and all evils are turned for me into wellbeing, forasmuch as thy servant Khikar has found grace.

The king said: Hast thou heard this, O honourable good Khikar, to wit, what the Egyp-

¹ Canon: 'the hair of my head.'

² Bodl. adds 'in such plight'.

^a For the text of MS. Canon see below:

And he sent me to the bath for them to wash and anoint me with fragrant oil (omitting the direct speech of the king on this point). And they did so, and brought raiment of great price and clad me in it. And the king brought and set me close to him. And all that he had promised to Abusmaq he fulfilled amply.

SYRIAC

1 Therefore I went to my house, and I was in my house about thirty days, and when I was recovered¹, I came to the king, and the king answered and said to me: 'Hast thou seen, Aḥikar, what a letter Pharaoh, king of Egypt, has written me?'

¹ Lit. 'my soul was in order upon me'.

ARABIC

mercy, and knew that thou wast wronged, and saved thee and delivered thee from being slain. But go to the warm bath, and shave thy head, and cut thy nails, and change thy clothes, and amuse thyself for the space of forty days, that thou mayst do good to thyself and improve thy condition and the colour of thy face may come back 15 to thee.' Then the king stripped off his costly robe, and put it on Haiqâr, and Haiqâr thanked God and did obeisance to the king, and departed to his dwelling glad and happy, praising the Most High God. And the people of his household rejoiced with him, and his friends and every one who heard that he was alive rejoiced also.

6 1 And he did as the king commanded him, and took a rest for forty days. Then he dressed himself in his gayest dress, and went riding to the king, with his slaves behind him and before him, rejoicing and delighted. But when Nadan his sister's son perceived what was happening, fear took hold of him and terror, and he was perplexed, not knowing what to do. And when Haiqâr saw it he entered into the king's presence and greeted him, and he returned the greeting, and made him sit down at his side, saying to him, 'O my darling Haiqâr! look at these letters which the king of Egypt sent to us, after he had heard that thou wast slain. They have provoked us and overcome us, and many of the people of our country have fled to Egypt for fear of the taxes that the king of Egypt has sent to demand from us.' Then tian has sent and that which is said, that the inhabitants of Nineveh and Asorestan are fled? And I said to the king: Therefore let a herald proclaim at the 14 gate of thy palace, that Khikar is alive; and all who shall hear it will return, each man to his place.

ARMENIAN

And the king commanded a herald to cry, saying: Khikar is alive; and that all the dwellers in Nineveh and Asorestan returned, each man to his place.

Then the king brought the letter of Pharaoh and gave it to me, and said: Read and give an answer to this letter.

SYRIAC

2 And I answered and said, 'My lord the king, let there be no trouble to thee over this affair. I will go to Egypt and build the king a castle: and I will make him answer concerning all that he may ask me: and I will bring back with me the three years' tribute of Egypt.'

3 And when the king heard these things he rejoiced with a great joy: and he gave me gifts: and as for Nabusemakh¹ . . . he set him at the head of all. And after this I wrote a letter to Eshfagni my wife, as follows:

4 'When this letter reaches thee, command my huntsmen that they catch me two young eagles: and command the workers in flax, that they make me hempen ropes; the length of each one of them shall be a thousand ells, and their thickness that of one's little finger.

5 And bid the carpenters to make me cages for the young eagles: and deliver over Ubael and Tabshelim, the two boys, who do not yet know how to talk, and let them teach them to say on this wise: "Give the builders mud, mortar, tiles, bricks, for they are idle."

¹ Ut supra.

ARABIC

Haiqâr took the letter and read it and understood all its contents. Then he said to the king, 'Be not wroth, O my lord! I will go to Egypt, and I will return the answers to Pharaoh, and I will display this letter to him, and I will reply to him about the taxes, and I will send back all those who have run away; and I will put thy enemies to shame with the help of the Most High God, and for the happiness of thy kingdom.'

3 And when the king heard this speech from Haiqâr he rejoiced with a great joy, and his heart was expanded and he showed him favour. And Haiqâr said to the king: 'Grant me a delay of forty days that I may consider this question and manage it.' And the king permitted this.

4 And Haiqâr went to his dwelling, and he commanded the huntsmen to capture two young eaglets for him, and they captured them and brought them to him: and he commanded the weavers of ropes to weave two cables of cotton for him, each of them two thousand cubits long, and he had the carpenters brought and ordered them to make two great boxes, and they did this.

5 Then he took two little lads, and spent every day sacrificing lambs and feeding the eagles and the boys, and making the boys ride on the backs of the eagles, and he bound them with a firm knot, and tied the cable to the feet of the eagles, and let them soar upwards little by little every day, to a distance of ten cubits, till they grew accustomed and were educated to it; and they rose all the length of the rope till they reached the sky; the

ARMENIAN

And I said to the king Seneqerim: Concerning this matter which the Egyptian has sent, do thou not be anxious. I will go and give him answer and will bring to thee the tribute from Egypt. 6

When the king heard this he was glad, and established Abusmaq at the head of the divan. And on the morrow I wrote to Abestan my wife and said as follows: 3

When thou readest this writing, do thou have caught two nestlings of an eagle, and two children not yet able to talk, and two nursing women to nurse the little ones. And they shall say: Clay, lime, mortar, brick. The artisans stand idle. And have two ropes spun, the length thereof two hundred ells, and the thickness thereof one ell. 4

And cause a carpenter to fit together two cages for the children; and give food to the eagles, every day two lambs. And cause the children to be bound upon the eagles, and to make little flights, until they form the habit. And in this way habituate them until they soar aloft two hundred ells. 5

And I took and read it, and said to the king: Send yon envoys to go to their place. And I will later set out and fulfil the behests of Pharaoh.

And when they were gone, I, Khikar, Secretary, sent and had brought two eaglets. . . .

SYRIAC

6 And Eshfagni my wife did all that I commissioned her: then I said to the king: 'Command, my lord, and send me that I go to Egypt.' And when the king commanded me to go, I took me a force of soldiers and went.

7 And when we came to the first halting-place, I let out the young eagles and bound the ropes to their feet and made the boys ride on them; and they took them and went up to a height, and the boys cried out as they had been taught, 'Mud, mortar, tiles, bricks supply to the builders who are idle.' Then I pulled them in again.

8 And when we came to Egypt, I went to the king's gate: and his nobles told the king, 'There is come the man whom the king of Assyria has sent.' And the king commanded and gave me a place to reside in; and on the following day I came in before him and worshipped him and inquired after his health¹.

ARABIC

boys being on their backs. Then he drew them to himself.

6 And when Haiqâr saw that his desire was fulfilled he charged the boys that when they were borne aloft to the sky they were to shout, saying, 'Bring us clay and stone, that we may build a castle for king Pharaoh, for we are idle.' And Haiqâr was never done training them and exercising them till they had reached the utmost possible point (of skill). Then leaving them he went to the king and said to him, 'O my lord! the work is finished according to thy desire. Arise with me that I may show thee the wonder.' So the king sprang up and sat with Haiqâr and went to a wide place and sent to bring the eagles and the boys, and Haiqâr tied them and let them off into the air all the length of the ropes, and they began to shout as he had taught them. Then he drew them to himself and put them in their places. And the king and those who were with him wondered with a great wonder: and the king kissed Haiqâr between his eyes and said to him, 'Go in peace, O my beloved! O pride of my kingdom! to Egypt and answer the questions of Pharaoh and overcome him by the strength of the Most High God.'

8 Then he bade him farewell, and took his troops and his army and the young men and the eagles, and went towards the dwellings of Egypt; and when he had arrived, he turned towards the country of the king. And when the people of Egypt knew that Sennacherib had sent a man of his Privy Council to talk with Pharaoh and to answer his questions, they carried the news to king Pharaoh,

ARMENIAN

And Abestan my wife was 6 very wise and did everything at once which I told her. Then the king commanded me to depart to Egypt.

And when I 7 reached the gate of Egypt, I brought the children's cages, even as they were habituated. And I bound them upon the eagles; they flew up and soared aloft, and the children cried out and said: Clay, lime, mortar, brick. The artisans stand idle.

And I, Khikar, took a rod, and 8 I went after all whom I met and struck them blows (and said): Hurry up, give what the artisans ask for. The king of Egypt came up and was very astonished, and was glad and bade us make (the birds) come down. And he said: Come, rest them from their labours. Eat, drink, and be merry, and on the morrow come to me.

¹ Lit. 'asked after his peace'.

SYRIAC

9 And the king answered and said unto me, 'What is thy name?' And I said to him, 'My name is Abikam: one of the contemptible ants of the kingdom.' And the king answered and said to me, 'Am I thus despised of thy lord, that he has sent me a despised ant of his kingdom? Go, Abikam, to thy lodging, and come to me early in the morning.'

10 Then the king commanded his nobles, 'On the morrow clothe yourselves in red,' and the king dressed himself in fine linen, and sat on his throne. And he commanded and I came into his presence: and he said to me, 'To what am I like, Abikam, and to what are my nobles like?' And I answered and said to him, 'My lord the king, thou art like unto Bel, and thy nobles are like unto his priests.' And again he said to me, 'Go to thy lodging, and come to me on the morrow.'

11 And the king commanded his nobles, 'On the morrow clothe yourselves in robes of white linen,' and the king himself put on white and sat on his throne. And he commanded and I came into his presence: and he said to me, 'To what am I like, Abikam, and to what are my nobles like?' And I said to him, 'My lord the king, thou art like to the sun, and thy nobles to his rays.' And again he said to me, 'Get thee to thy lodging, and come to me to-morrow.'

ARABIC

and he sent a party of his Privy Councillors to bring him before him¹. And he came and entered into the presence of Pharaoh, and did obeisance to him as it is fitting to do to kings. And he said to him: 'O my lord the king! Sennacherib the king hails thee with abundance of peace and might, and honour; and he has sent me, who am one of his slaves, that I may answer thee thy questions, and may fulfil all thy desire: for thou hast sent to seek from my lord the king a man who will build thee a castle between the heaven and the earth.'

10 And I by the help of the Most High God and thy noble favour and the power of my lord the king will build [it] for thee as thou desirest. But, O my lord the king! what thou hast said in it about the taxes of Egypt for three years—now the stability of a kingdom is strict justice, and if thou winnest and my hand hath no skill in replying to thee, then my lord the king will send thee the taxes which thou hast mentioned, and if I shall have answered thee in thy questions, it shall remain for thee to send whatever thou hast mentioned to my lord the king.'

11 And when Pharaoh heard that speech, he wondered and was perplexed by the freedom of his tongue and the pleasantness of his speech.

¹ Lit. 'betwixt his hands'.

ARMENIAN

And when it was dawn the king called me and said: What is thy name? And I said: Abikam is my name. For I am a serf of Seneqerim the king.

And when the king heard, he was grieved exceedingly, and said: Have I seemed so contemptible in the eyes of Seneqerim the king of Asorestan, that he has sent a serf unto me to give me answer? And he said to me: Go unto thy house and to-morrow come to me.

And when on the morrow I went, the king gave command to his forces to dress themselves in scarlet chlamid; and the king himself was arrayed in purple raiment, and sat on his throne, and his forces around him. He commanded and called me to him and said: Abikam, unto whom am I like? Or my forces, whom are they like? I said, Thou art like to the *dig*¹ and thy satraps to their priests. He said to me: Go to thy lodgings, and to-morrow come unto me.

When I had gone to my house and came the next day to him, he had arrayed his forces in linen, and he himself was arrayed in scarlet, and he said to me: Unto whom am I like, or my forces, to whom are they like? And I said: Thou art like the sun and thy satraps are like its rays.

¹ i.e. 'to God'. The plural dig literally = 'demons', but is used like the Hebrew Elohim as a singular. The same use is found in the Arm. version of Eusebius' Chronicon, Bk. 1. In the Arm. O. T. it is used as a plural.

SYRIAC

12 And again the king commanded his nobles, 'On the morrow clothe yourselves in black,' and the king put on crimson. And he commanded, and I came into his presence: and he said to me, 'To what am I like, Abikam; and to what are my nobles like?' And I said to him, 'My lord the king, thou art like to the moon, and thy nobles to the stars.' And again he said to me, 'Go to thy house: and come to me to-morrow.'

13 And the king commanded his nobles, 'On the morrow dress in diverse and varied colours, and let the doors of the palace¹ be covered with red hangings.' And the king himself was robed in fine needlework.² And he commanded and I came into his presence: and he said to me, 'To what am I like, Abikam? and my nobles, to what are they like?' And I said to him, 'My lord the king, thou art like to the month Nisan, and thy nobles to its flowers.'

14 the king said to me, 'The first time thou didst compare me to Bel, and my nobles to his priests. The second time thou hast compared me to the sun, and my nobles to its rays. The third time thou hast compared me to the moon, and my nobles to the stars. And the fourth time thou hast likened me to Nisan, and my nobles to the flowers thereof. And now tell me, Abikam, to what is thy lord like?'

15 And I answered and said to him, 'Be it far from me, my lord the king, that I should make mention of my lord Sennacherib, whilst thou art seated.'

16 My lord Sennacherib is like³

¹ Lit. 'temple': but as in Daniel, it means palace; cf. Dan. iv. 4, 'I, Nebuchadnezzar, was at rest in my house, and flourishing in my palace בְּהִיכְלִי'; Dan. vi. 18, 'Then the king went to his palace הִיכְלֵה.' Cf. also 1 Reg. xxi. 1; 2 Reg. xx. 18, &c.

² 'Dressed in tapestry.'

³ An erasure has been made of two words, and these are now illegible.

ARABIC

12 And king Pharaoh said to him, 'O man! what is thy name?' And he said, 'Thy servant is Abiqâm, and I am a little ant of the ants of king Sennacherib.' And Pharaoh said to him, 'Had thy lord no one of higher dignity than thee, that he has sent me a little ant to reply to me, and to converse with me?'

15 And Haiqâr said to him, 'O my lord the king! I would to God Most High that I may fulfil what is on thy mind, for God is with the weak that He may confound the strong.'

14 Then Pharaoh commanded that they should prepare a dwelling for Abiqâm and supply him with provender, meat, and drink, and all that he needed. And when it was finished, three days afterwards Pharaoh clothed himself in purple and red and sat on his throne, and all his viziers and the magnates of his kingdom were standing with their hands crossed, their feet close together, and their heads bowed. And Pharaoh sent to fetch Abiqâm, and when he was presented to him, he did obeisance before him, and kissed the ground in front of him¹. And king Pharaoh

¹ Lit. 'between his hands'.

ARMENIAN

And again he 12 said to me: Go to thy lodgings, and on the morrow come to me.

And when I went on the 13 morrow, he commanded the satraps to array themselves in dyed raiment, and he arrayed himself in raiment of plumes, and sat on his throne and said to me: To whom am I like? I said: Thou art like to the 14 green grass¹ and thy satraps to the blossoms thereof.

Then the king was glad and said: Tell me the truth. Seneqerim the king, to whom is he like? I said: God forbid that 15 thou shouldst mention Seneqerim the king, since thou art sitting down. But stand up, and I will tell thee. When he had risen up, I said: Seneqerim 16

¹ Venice MS. = 'to the plain'.

THE STORY OF AHIKAR 6. 16 (17-26 Arab.)

SYRIAC

[the God of Heaven] and his nobles to the lightnings that are in the clouds: for when he wills, he fashions the rain and the dew [and] the hail; and if he thunders, he restrains the sun from rising, and its rays from being seen; and he will restrain Bel from coming in and from going forth in the street, and his nobles from being seen; and he will hinder the moon from rising and the stars from appearing.'

Perhaps the original text was 'the God of Heaven', which was erased to make way for 'the idol Bel', but this correction was a stupid one, seeing that Pharaoh has himself been compared to the great god Bel; hence perhaps a final erasure. The Arabic has 'my lord is the God of Heaven', which is sufficiently audacious to invite correction. Mrs. Lewis by the use of a reagent has brought up the word Bel, and perhaps the whole expression 'our god Bel'.

ARABIC

said to him, 'O Abiqâm, whom am I like? and the nobles of my kingdom, to whom are they like?' And Haiqâr said to him, 'O my lord the king! thou art like the idol Bel, and the nobles of thy kingdom are like his servants.' He said to him, 'Go, and come back hither to-morrow.' So Haiqâr went as king Pharaoh had commanded him.

ARMENIAN

the king is like unto Bêlshim, and his satraps to the lightnings. When he willeth, he weaveth the rain¹; and he shooteth out the dew on high, he sendeth it forth in his empery. He thunders, and imprisons the rays of the sun. And when he willeth, he doth bring hail and grindeth to dust tree, green herb and dry; and he makes the dawn break and smiteth the shoots of green grass.

¹ Bodl. = 'the material of rain'.

ARABIC

- 17 And on the morrow Haiqâr went into the presence of Pharaoh, and did obeisance, and stood before 18 the king. And Pharaoh was dressed in a red colour, and the nobles were dressed in white. And Pharaoh said to him, 'O Abiqâm, whom am I like? and the nobles of my kingdom, to whom are they like?' And Abiqâm said to him, 'O my lord! thou art like the sun, and thy servants are like [its] beams.' And Pharaoh said to him, 'Go to thy dwelling, and come hither to-morrow.'
- 19 Then Pharaoh commanded his Court to wear pure white¹, and Pharaoh was dressed like them and 20 sat upon his throne, and he commanded them to fetch Haiqâr. And he entered and sat down before 20 him. And Pharaoh said to him, 'O Abiqâm, whom am I like? and my nobles, to whom are they like?' And Abiqâm said to him, 'O my lord! thou art like the moon, and thy nobles are like the planets and the stars.' And Pharaoh said to him, 'Go, and to-morrow be thou here.'
- 21 Then Pharaoh commanded his servants to wear robes of various colours, and Pharaoh wore a red 22 velvet dress, and sat on his throne, and commanded them to fetch Abiqâm. And he entered and 22 did obeisance before him. And he said, 'O Abiqâm, whom am I like? and my armies, to whom 23 are they like?' And he said, 'O my lord! thou art like the month of April, and thy armies are like 23 its flowers.' And when the king heard it he rejoiced with a great joy, and said, 'O Abiqâm! the first time thou didst compare me to the idol Bel, and my nobles to his servants. And the second time thou didst compare me to the sun, and my nobles to the sunbeams. And the third time thou didst compare me to the moon, and my nobles to the planets and the stars. And the fourth time thou 24 didst compare me to the month of April, and my nobles to its flowers. But now, O Abiqâm! tell me, thy lord, king Sennacherib, whom is he like? and his nobles, to whom are they like?' And Haiqâr shouted with a loud voice and said: 'Be it far from me to make mention of my lord the king and thou seated on thy throne. But get up on thy feet that I may tell thee whom my lord the king is like and to whom his nobles are like.'
- 25 And Pharaoh was perplexed by the freedom of his tongue and his boldness in answering. Then Pharaoh arose from his throne, and stood before Haiqâr, and said to him, 'Tell me now, that 26 I may perceive whom thy lord the king is like, and his nobles, to whom they are like.' And Haiqâr said to him: 'My lord is the God of heaven, and his nobles are the lightnings and the thunder, and when he wills the winds blow and the rain falls. And he commands the thunder, and it lightens and rains, and he holds the sun, and it gives not its light, and the moon and the stars, and they circle not. And he commands the tempest, and it blows and the rain falls and it tramples on April and destroys its flowers and its houses.'

¹ Or a dress completely white.

SYRIAC

17 And when the king heard these things he was exceeding wroth, and said to me, 'By the life of thy lord, I adjure thee tell me what is thy name?'

18 And I answered and said to him, 'I am Ahiqar the Secretary and Great Seal of Sennacherib king of Assyria and Nineveh.'

19 And the king said to me, 'Did I not certainly hear that thy lord had killed thee?' And I said to him, 'I am yet alive, my lord the king: and God saved me from something which my hands did not.'

20 And the king said to me, 'Go, Ahiqar, to thy house, and come to me to-morrow, and tell me a word which I never heard nor any one of my nobles, and which was never heard in the city of my kingdom.'

ARABIC

27 And when Pharaoh heard this speech, he was greatly perplexed and was wroth with a great wrath, and said to him: 'O man! tell me the truth, and let me know who thou really art.'

28 And he told him the truth. 'I am Haiqâr the scribe, greatest of the Privy Councillors of king Sennacherib, and I am his vizier and the Governor of his kingdom, and his Chancellor.'

29 And he said to him, 'Thou hast told the truth in this saying. But we have heard of Haiqâr, that king Sennacherib has slain him, yet thou dost seem to be alive and well.' And Haiqâr said to him, 'Yes, so it was, but praise be to God, who knoweth what is hidden, for my lord the king commanded me to be killed, and he believed the word of profligate men, but the Lord delivered me, and blessed is he who trusteth in Him.'

30 And Pharaoh said to Haiqâr, 'Go, and to-morrow be thou here, and tell me a word that I have never heard from my nobles nor from the people of my kingdom and my country.'

ARMENIAN

The king said: Tell me, what 17 is thy name? I said: Khikar is my name. He said: Wretch, 18 hast thou come to life? And I said: Since I have seen thy face, O king, I am alive. The king 19 said: May this day be blessed, for I have seen Khikar with my own eyes alive, with my own eyes.

And I fell on my face and 20 did homage to him and kissed him. The king said: Expound this saying.

There stands a pillar, and 21 upon that pillar twelve cedars, and upon them thirty wheels, and upon each wheel two couriers¹, the one black and the other white. And I said: O king, this the cowherds of the Asores know. The pillar of which thou spakest is the year and the cedars are the twelve months. The thirty wheels are the days of the months. The two couriers, the one black and the other white, are dawn and nightfall².

The king said, What is this 22 story, that from Egypt as far as Nineveh there are 500 leagues—how did our mares hear the neighing of your stallions and miscarry? I, Khikar, went out from him, and I took a cat and scolded and tortured it. Then they told the king, saying: Khikar flouts the diq and tortures the cats. The king called me and said: Khikar, wherefore dost thou flout our diq and torture the cats? And I said: 23 Yon cat has done harm enough to me. Aforetime the king gave to me a cock; sweet of voice was it, and at each hour it awoke me, to go to the king's palace. This very night (the cat) went off and bit off the head of the cock and came back here. And the king said to me 24 as follows: It appears that as thou growest old, in the same ¹ The Arm. word has this meaning.

² After the explanation of the pillar MS. Canon passes direct to the rope of sand incident, as does the Syriac.

SYRIAC

7¹ Then I sat down and meditated in my heart and wrote a letter as follows:

'From Pharaoh, king of Egypt, to Sennacherib, king of Assyria and Nineveh, greeting.

2 'Kings have need of kings and brethren of brethren: and at this time my gifts are become scant, because silver is scarce in my treasury: command, therefore, to send me from thy treasury 900 talents of silver, and in a little while I will return them to their place.'

3 This letter, then, I folded and held it in my hands: and the king commanded and I came into his presence, and I said to him, 'Perhaps in this letter there is a word that was never heard by thee.' And when I read it before the king and before his nobles, they cried out, as they were ordered by the king to do, and said, 'This has been heard by all of us, and it is so.'

4 Whereupon I said to them, 'Behold, [in that case] there is a debt of 900 talents from Egypt to Assyria.' And when the king heard this, he marvelled.

5 Then he said to me, 'I am planning to build a castle between earth and heaven. Its height from the earth shall be one thousand fathoms.'

ARABIC

7¹ And Haiqâr went to his dwelling, and wrote a letter, saying in it on this wise:

'From Sennacherib king of Assyria and Nineveh to Pharaoh king of Egypt.

2 'Peace be to thee, O my brother! and what we make known to thee by this is that a brother has need of his brother, and kings of each other, and [my] hope from thee is that thou wouldst lend me nine hundred talents of gold, for I need it for the victualling of some of the soldiers, that I may spend [it] upon them. And after a little while I will send it thee.' Then he folded the letter, and presented it on the morrow to Pharaoh.

3 And when he saw it, he was perplexed and said to him, 'Verily I have never heard anything like this language

4 from any one.' Then Haiqâr said to him, 'Truly this is a debt which thou owest to my lord the king.' And Pharaoh accepted this, saying, 'O Haiqâr, it is the like of thee who are honest in the service of kings. Blessed be God who hath made thee perfect in wisdom, and hath adorned thee with philosophy and knowledge. And

5 now, O Haiqâr, there remains what we desire from thee, that thou shouldst build us a castle between heaven and earth.'

ARMENIAN

measure your words and wisdom are changed round. From Egypt to Nineveh there are 500¹ leagues. How then in a single night could a cat bite off the head of the cock and come back hither? But I said: How could your mares hear the neighing and miscarry?

The king said: Leave this.²⁵ Come and weave me a rope of sand. When I had gone out from him, the king said to all those with him: Whatever Khikar says, ye shall say, 'We know and have heard this saying.'

And I took and wrote a letter⁷ thus: From Seneqerim king, all hail to Pharaoh king of Egypt.

Brethren have need of brethren² to behold them and kings of kings. In this season expenses and debts enough have there been and silver is wanting in our treasuries. So then give orders and have brought to me by dispatch a hundred talents of silver. And I fastened up³ the letter and went in to the king and said: In this dispatch I have written of a matter, of which neither your city² nor your satraps have heard. And they all said: We have heard and we know this matter of yours. But I said: If ye have heard, say then before ye have opened the letter. And they could not say, but opened and read it. I said: Ye have heard what is written. The king said:³ 4 If a rope of sand thou weavest not for me, thou shalt not carry

¹ MS. Canon has 360.

² 92 adds 'nor your king'.

³ Canon = 'and Pharaoh said: Weave me a rope of sand, in length nine ells. And I said: My lord king, order them to bring forth from your treasury a model that I may see and according to the model make it, that it be not too thick or too thin. And Pharaoh said: In my treasury is none. But unless thou weave it, thou carriest not off the silver, which by thy wisdom thou hast sought and I promised.'

SYRIAC

6 Then I brought out the young eagles and bound the ropes to their feet, and set the boys on their backs; and they were saying, 'Provide mud, mortar; [foreman, mix] tiles and bricks for the builders, because they are idle.' And when the king saw it, he was confounded.

7 Then I, Aḥikar, took a switch and beat the king's nobles, till they all took to flight. Then the king was indignant with me, and said to me, 'Thou art gone clean mad, Aḥikar: who is able to carry up anything to these boys?'

8 And I said to him, 'Concerning the affairs of Sennacherib my lord, say ye nothing; for if he had been at hand, he would have built a couple of castles in one day.' And the king said to me, 'Have done with the castle, Aḥikar, and go to thy lodging; and in the morning come to me.'

ARABIC

Then said Haiqâr, 'To hear is to obey. I will build thee a castle according to thy wish and choice; but, O my lord! prepare us lime and stone and clay and workmen, and I have skilled builders who will build for thee as 6 thou desirest'. And the king prepared all that for him, and they went to a wide place; and Haiqâr and his boys came to it, and he took the eagles and the young men with him; and the king and all his nobles went and the whole city assembled, that they might see what Haiqâr would do.

Then Haiqâr let the eagles out of the boxes, and tied the young men on their backs¹, and tied the ropes to the eagles' feet, and let them go in the air. And they soared upwards, till they remained between heaven and earth. And the boys began to shout, saying, 'Bring bricks, bring clay, that we may build the king's castle, for we are standing idle!'

7 And the crowd were astonished and perplexed, and they wondered. And the king and his nobles wondered. And Haiqâr and his servants began to beat the workmen, and they shouted for the king's troops, saying to them, 'Bring to the skilled workmen what they want and do not hinder them from their work.' And the king said to him, 'Thou art mad; who can bring anything up to 8 that distance?' And Haiqâr said to him, 'O my lord! how shall we build a castle in the air? and if my lord the king were here, he would have built several castles in a single day.' And Pharaoh said to him, 'Go, O Haiqâr, to thy dwelling, and rest, for we have given up² building

¹ Lit. 'on the eagles' backs'.

² Lit. 'we have passed away from'.

ARMENIAN

away the tribute from Egypt. And I went into a deeply dug chamber, and perforated the wall of the chamber on the side whence the dawn shone; and when the dawn gleamed forth, it flashed into the chamber seven ells; and I took up dust of sand and cast it into the hole bored and blew into it. It appeared like woven twists, and I said: Give orders, O king, that they collect yon ropes and I will weave yet others.

When the king saw this he 5 laughed and said: Blessed art thou before the dig. And he gave me very great presents, and allowed the tribute from Egypt and well and gladly dismissed me, and I departed.

SYRIAC

9 And when it was morning, I came into his presence, and he said to me, 'Explain to me, Ahiḳar, the following matter. The horse of thy lord neighs in Assyria, and our mares hear his voice here, and their foals miscarry.'

10 Then I went forth from the king's presence, and commanded my servants to catch me a cat, and I whipped it in the streets of the city; and when the Egyptians saw it, they went and told the king that 'Ahiḳar has acted contemptuously of our people and makes mock of us. For he has caught a cat and whips it in the streets of our city.'

11 And the king sent for me and called me; and I came into his presence.

12 And he said to me, 'In what way art thou insulting us?' and I answered and said to him, 'This cat has seriously damaged me in no slight matter; for a cock had been entrusted to me by my lord, whose voice was extremely beautiful, and by the time that he crowed I understood that my lord wished for me, and I went to the gate of my lord. And in this past night this cat went to Assyria and tore off the head of this cock of mine and returned.' And the king answered and said to me, 'As far as I can see, Ahiḳar, since thou art grown old thou art become stark mad. For it is 360 parasangs from here to Assyria; and how canst thou say that in a single night this cat went and cut off the head of the cock and came back?'

14 Then I said to him, 'And if it is 360 parasangs from Egypt to Assyria, how do thy mares in this place hear the voice of the horse of my lord, and their foals miscarry?'

ARABIC

the castle, and to-morrow come to me'.

9 Then Haiqâr went to his dwelling and on the morrow he appeared before Pharaoh. And Pharaoh said, 'O Haiqâr, what news is there of the horse of thy lord? for when he neighs in the country of Assyria and Nineveh, and our mares hear his voice, they cast their young.' And when Haiqâr heard this speech he went and took a cat, and bound her and began to flog her with a violent flogging till the Egyptians heard it, and they went and told the king about it.

11 And Pharaoh sent to fetch Haiqâr, and said to him, 'O Haiqâr, wherefore dost thou flog thus and beat that dumb beast?' And Haiqâr said to him, 'O my lord the king! verily she has done an ugly deed to me, and has deserved this drubbing and flogging, for my lord king Sennacherib had given me a fine cock, and he had a strong true voice and knew the hours of the day and the night. And the cat got up this very night and cut off its head and went away, and because of this deed I have treated her to this drubbing.' And Pharaoh said to him, 'O Haiqâr, I see from all this that thou art growing old and art in thy dotage, for between Egypt and Nineveh there are sixty-eight parasangs, and how did she go this very night and cut off the head of thy cock and come back?'

14 And Haiqâr said to him, 'O my lord! if there were such a distance between Egypt and Nineveh, how could thy mares hear when my lord the king's horse neighs and cast their young?'

SYRIAC

15 And when the king heard this, he was sore vexed, and he said to me, 'Aḥikâr, expound to me this riddle: A pillar has on its head twelve cedars; in every cedar there are thirty wheels, and in every wheel two cables, one

16 white and one black.' And I answered and said to him, 'My lord the king, the ox-herds in our country understand this riddle that thou tellest. The pillar of which thou hast spoken to me is the year; the twelve cedars are the twelve months of the year; the thirty wheels are the thirty days of the month; the two cables, one white and one black, are the day and the night.'

17 Again he said to me, 'Twine me five cables from the sand of the river.' And I said to him, 'My lord the king, bid them bring me from thy treasury one rope of sand, and I will make one to match it.' Then he said to me, 'Unless thou do this, I will not give thee the Egyptian

18 tribute.' Thereupon I sat down and calculated in my heart how I should do it. And I went out from the king's palace¹ and bored five holes in the eastern

19 wall of the palace. And when the sun entered the holes I scattered sand in them, and the sun's path² began to appear as if [the sand] were twined in the holes. Then I said to the king; 'My lord, bid them take up these, and I will weave you others in their stead.' And when the king and his nobles saw it, they were amazed.

20 And again the king commanded to bring me an upper millstone that was broken: and he said to me, 'Aḥikâr, sew up for us this broken millstone.' Then I went and brought a nether³ millstone, and cast it down before the king and said and how could the voice of the horse reach to Egypt?'

ARABIC

15 And when Pharaoh heard that, he knew that Haiqâr had answered his questions.

And Pharaoh said, 'O Haiqâr, I want thee to make me ropes of the sea-sand.' And Haiqâr said to him, 'O my lord the king! order them to bring me a rope out of the treasury that I may make 16 one like it.' Then Haiqâr went to the back of the house, and bored holes in the rough shore of the sea, and took a handful of sand in his hand, sea-sand, and when the sun rose, and penetrated into the holes, he spread the sand in the sun till it became as if woven like ropes. And Haiqâr said, 'Command thy servants to take these ropes, and whenever thou desirest it, I will weave thee (some) like them.'

17 And Pharaoh said, 'O Haiqâr, we have a millstone here and it has been broken and I want thee to sew it up.' Then Haiqâr looked at it, and found another stone.

18 And he said to Pharaoh, 'O my lord! I am a foreigner, and I have no tool for sewing. But I want thee to command thy faithful shoe-

¹ Lit. 'temple', ut supra.

² Lit. 'furrow'.

³ Lit. 'the mortar of a millstone'.

SYRIAC

to him, 'My lord the king, since I am a stranger here, and have not the tools of my craft with me, bid the cobblers cut me strips (?) from this lower millstone which is the fellow of the upper millstone; and forthwith 21 I will sew it together.' And when the king heard it, he laughed and said, 'The day in which Ahiḱar was born shall be blessed before the God of Egypt; and since I have seen thee alive, I will make it a great and appropriate day.'

22 Then he gave me the revenue of Egypt for three years, and straightway I returned and came to my lord the king Sennacherib: and he came forth to meet me and received me.

ARABIC

makers to cut awls from this stone, that I may sew that millstone.'

19 Then Pharaoh and all his nobles laughed. And he said, 'Blessed be the Most High God, who gave thee this wit and knowledge.'

20 And when Pharaoh saw that Haiqâr had overcome him, and returned him his answers, he at once became excited, and commanded them to collect for him three years' taxes, and to bring them to 21 Haiqâr. And he stripped off his robes and put them upon Haiqâr, and his soldiers, and his servants, and gave him the expenses of his journey. And he said to him, 'Go in peace, O strength of his lord and pride of his Doctors! have any of the Sultans thy like? give my greetings to¹ thy lord king Sennacherib, and say to him how we have sent him gifts, for kings are content with little.'

22 Then Haiqâr arose, and kissed king Pharaoh's hands and kissed the ground in front of him, and wished him strength and continuance, and abundance in his treasury, and said to him, 'O my lord! I desire from thee that not one of our countrymen
 23 may remain in Egypt.' And Pharaoh arose and sent heralds to proclaim in the streets of Egypt that not one of the people of Assyria or Nineveh should remain in the land of Egypt, but that they should go with Haiqâr. Then Haiqâr went and took leave of king Pharaoh, and journeyed, seeking the land of Assyria and Nineveh; and he had some treasures and a great deal of wealth.

¹ Lit. 'my peace upon'.

SYRIAC

23 And he made it a great day and set me at the head of his household: and he said to me, 'Ask what thou wilt, Ahiḳar'; and I worshipped the king and said, 'Whatever thou wilt to give me, bestow it upon Nabusemakh . . .¹; because he gave me my life; and for myself, my lord, bid them give me my son Nadan, that I may teach him a further lesson. For he has forgotten my former teaching.'

ARABIC

24 And when the news reached king Sennacherib that Haiqâr was coming, he went out to meet him and rejoiced over him exceedingly with great joy and embraced him and kissed him, and said to him, 'Welcome home, O kinsman! my brother Haiqâr, the strength of my kingdom, and pride of my realm. Ask what thou wouldst have from me, even if thou desirest the half of my kingdom and of my possessions.' Then said Haiqâr unto him, 'O my lord the king, live for ever! Show favour, O my lord the king! to Abu Samîk in my stead, for my life was in the hands of God and in his.'

25 Then said Sennacherib the king, 'Honour be to thee, O my beloved Haiqâr! I will make the station of Abu Samîk the swordsman higher than all my Privy Councillors and my favourites.' Then the king began to ask him how he had got on with Pharaoh from his first arrival until he had come away from his presence, and how he had answered all his questions, and how he had received the taxes from him, and the changes of raiment and the 26 presents. And Sennacherib the king rejoiced with a great joy, and said to Haiqâr, 'Take what thou wouldst fain have of this tribute, for it is all within the grasp of thy hand.' And Haiqâr said: 'Let the king live for ever! I desire naught but the safety of my lord the king and the continuance of his greatness. O my lord! what can I do with wealth and its like¹? but if thou wilt show me favour, give me Nadan, my sister's son, that I may recompense him for what he has done to me, and grant me his blood and hold me guiltless of it.'

ARMENIAN

When the king Seneqerim 6 heard of my coming, he went out to meet me with joy. When we had saluted each other, he took and led me into his palace and made me recline at the head of the couch; and made merry for several days, and bestowed on me very great presents, and said to me: O my father Khikar, ask of me other very great presents and I will give them to thee. And 7 I bowed to the earth to him and said: O king, live for ever. Whatsoever thou wouldst bestow on me, bestow on Abusmaq my comrade, who gave life to thy servant.

But to me thou shalt give Nathan my sister's son whom I taught¹. For he hath not well learned my former lore.

¹ Canon = 'sister's son, that I may teach him another teaching'.

¹ غيره here = dergleichen.

SYRIAC

24 And the king commanded and gave me my son Nadan; and the king said to me, 'Go thy way, Ahikar, and work thy will on thy son Nadan; for no man shall rescue his body from thy hands.' Thereupon I took Nadan my son, and brought him to my house; and I bound him with iron chains whose weight was twenty talents, and I fastened the chains in rings, and I fastened collars on his neck; and I struck him one thousand blows on the shoulders and a thousand and one on his loins¹; and I put him in the porch of the door of my palace, and gave him bread by weight and water by measure.

26 And I delivered him to my boy Nabuel to guard, and told my boy, 'Write down in a tablet whatever I say to my son Nadan, when I go in or come out.' And I answered and said to my son Nadan as follows:

ARABIC

27 And Sennacherib the king said, 'Take him, I have given him to thee.' And Haiqâr took Nadan, his sister's son, and bound his hands with chains of iron, and took him to his dwelling, and put a heavy fetter on his feet, and tied it with a tight knot, and after binding him thus he cast him into a dark room, beside the retiring-place, and appointed Nebu-hal as sentinel over him and commanded him to give him a loaf of bread and a little water every day; and whenever Haiqâr went in or out he scolded Nadan, his sister's son, saying to him wisely:

ARMENIAN

And the king gave Nathan 8 my sister's son into my hands, and I^a bound him with a single chain of iron, which was of the weight of seven talents, at the door of my portico; and I entrusted him to Bêliar my servant. And I ordered him to scourge him on his back and belly. And I said to him in my coming in and going forth: Whatsoever I speak in proverbs with him, do thou write on paper and keep it with thee; and I gave to him a 9 little bread and a little water. I began to speak and said as follows:

The Parables of Ahikar, VIII. 1-41

8 1 'My son, he who does not hear with his ears, they make him hear with the nape of his neck.'

2 My son Nadan answered and said to me, 'Wherefore art thou so angry against thy son?'

I answered and said to him, 'My son, I set thee on the throne of honour; and thou hast cast me down from my throne. And

¹ Cf. the punishment of the disobedient servant in the Gospel, δαρίζεται πολλάς.

1 'O Nadan, my boy! I have done to thee all that is good and kind, and thou hast rewarded me for it with what is ugly and bad and with killing.

'O my son! it is said in the proverbs: He who listeneth not with his ear, they will make him listen with the scruff of his neck.'

2 And Nadan said, 'For what cause art thou wroth with me?'

And Haiqâr said to him, 'Because I brought thee up, and taught thee, and gave thee honour and respect and made thee great, and reared thee with the best of breeding, and seated thee in my place that thou mightest be my heir in the world, and Son, him that with his ears 8 heareth not they make to hear through his back.

Nathan began to speak and 2 said: Wherefore art thou angry with me, my father? I have¹ sinned against thee, my father Khikar. If thou wilt have mercy on me, thy servant, I will even become to thee dust and ashes and a servant all the days of my life.

And I said to him:

Son, on the throne of glory I seated thee, and from my throne thou didst hurl me to ruin.

Son, I in byssus and purples 3 clad thee, and thou with earth wouldst have destroyed my body.

Son, I raised thee on high 4

¹ Canon, with Syriac, omits the words 'I have . . . of my life'.

^a For the text of MS. Canon, see below:

Then I took Nathan, and led him to my house; and bound (him to) my pillar of iron, of which the weight was seven hundred utres; and I placed a rope round his neck. And I smote a thousand blows (lit. trees) on his chest and a thousand on his back. And he was kept in the door of my portico. And I gave him bread by weight and water by measure; and entrusted him to Beliar my servant, and I said to him: In my goings out and my comings in, whatever I say to Nathan write it in thy book.

SYRIAC

as for me, my righteousness¹ has saved me.

3 Thou hast been to me, my son, like a scorpion, which strikes at a rock. And the rock said to it, "Thou hast struck at an unconcerned heart." And it struck at a needle, and they say to it, "Thou hast struck at a sting worse than thy own."

4 My son, thou hast been to me like a gazelle that was standing over a sumach-tree and eating it. And the sumach-tree said to it, "Why eatest thou me, seeing that they tan thy skin with me?" And the gazelle said, "I eat thee in my life, and when I am dead they will pluck thee up by thy roots."²

5 My son, thou hast been to me like the man that threw a stone at the heaven, and it did not reach the heaven; but he incurred sin against God.

6 My son, thou hast been like the man who saw his companion shivering from cold, and took a pitcher of water and threw it over him.

¹ In the primitive sense of 'alms-giving'?

² Apparently the point of the story is missed, which is that the sumach-tree has its revenge on the gazelle: 'thy skin shall be dyed with my roots presently.'

ARABIC

thou didst treat me with killing and didst repay me with my ruin. But the Lord knew that I was wronged, and He saved me from the snare which thou hadst set for me, for the Lord healeth the broken hearts and hindereth the envious and the haughty.

3 O my boy! thou hast been to me like the scorpion which, when it strikes on brass, pierces it.

4 O my boy! thou art like the gazelle who was eating the roots of the madder, and it said to her, "Eat of me to-day and take thy fill, and to-morrow they will tan thy hide in my roots."

5 O my boy! thou hast been to me like a man who saw his comrade naked in the chilly time of winter; and he took cold water and poured it upon him.

6 O my boy! thou hast been to me like a man who took a stone, and threw it up to heaven to stone his Lord with it. And the stone did not hit, and did not reach high enough, but it became the cause of guilt and sin.

ARMENIAN

like a tower, so that if the enemy should come to me, I might go forth and fortify myself in thee; and thou thyself hast been found to be the enemy in my house.

Son, I gave thee to glory⁵ and honour; and thou didst betray me into the hands of enmity and death.

Son, I nurtured¹ thee like⁶ the cub of the fox; and thine eye was on thine hole and my finger smooth was on thy mouth and thy fingers were sharpened upon my eyes.

Son, my righteousness and⁷ innocency saved and rescued me; and thy injustice prospered thee not.

Son, thou wast to me as a⁸ scorpion which struck the needle. The needle said²: Behold a sting which is worse than thine own. Again he struck the sole of the foot of the camel, and he set his foot hard upon that scorpion and crushed it and said: Captive, knewest thou not that thy breath and soul were under my feet?

Son, thou hast been to me⁹ like a goat which was eating madder. Says the madder: Why eatest thou me? Knowest thou not that with my root they dye thy skin³? Said the goat: I in my lifetime eat thee, after my death they pluck up thy root and prepare (lit. build) my skin.

Son, thou hast been to me¹⁰ like him that shot his arrow up to the heavens; and he was not able to reach thereunto but reaped the reward of his lawlessness, and the arrow returned upon his head.

¹ I render snoutzi of MS. Canon instead of ousoutzi = 'taught' of the other MSS. MS. Canon has the rest of the saying thus: 'like the young of the eagle, and thy fingers were sharpened against my eyes. For thine eye was evil to look upon me.'

² I supply the words 'The needle said' from MS. Canon. The other copies omit it through homoioteleuton.

³ So MS. Canon; the other MSS. less well: 'with me they work thy skin.'

SYRIAC

- 7 My son, not when thou hadst killed me, wouldst thou have been able to stand in my place; for be well aware, my son, that even if the tail of the swine should grow to seven ells, he would never take the place of the horse: and even if his hair should become soft and woolly, he would never ride on the back of a free man.¹
- 8 My son, I said that thou shouldst be in my place; and thou shouldst acquire my house and my wealth, and inherit them. But God was not pleased therewith and has not heard thy voice.
- 9 My son, thou hast been to me as the lion that came upon an ass in the morning of the day and said to him, "Welcome, my lord Kyrios." But the ass said to him, "May the same welcome that thou givest me be the portion of him that tied me up last night, and did not make my halter fast, so that I had not seen thy face."
- 10 My son, a snare was set² upon a dunghill, and there came a sparrow and looked at it and said, "What doest thou here?" And the snare said, "I am praying to God." The sparrow said, "And what is that in thy mouth?" The snare said, "Bread for guests." Then the sparrow drew near and took it, and the snare caught him by the neck. And the sparrow said, as he was being shaken, "If this is thy bread for guests, may the God to whom thou prayest never listen to thy voice."
- 11 My son, thou hast been to me as an ox that was bound with a lion; and the lion turned and crushed him.

¹ We should expect 'the free man would never ride on his back'.

² A Syriac play of words between ܠܐܘܢܐ = disposuit laqueos and ܠܥܘܠܐ which follows.

ARABIC

- 7 O my boy! if thou hadst honoured me and respected me and hadst listened to my words thou wouldst have been my heir, and wouldst have reigned over my dominions.
- 8 O my son! know thou that if the tail of the dog or the pig were ten cubits long it would not approach to the worth of the horse's even if it were like silk.
- 9 O my boy! I thought that thou wouldst have been my heir at my death; and thou through thy envy and thy insolence didst desire to kill me. But the Lord delivered me from thy cunning.
- 10 O my son! thou hast been to me like a trap which was set up on the dunghill, and there came a sparrow and found the trap set up. And the sparrow said to the trap, "What doest thou here?" Said the trap, "I am praying here to God." And the lark¹ asked it also, "What is the piece of wood that thou holdest?" Said the trap, "That is a young oak-tree on which I lean at the time of prayer." Said the lark: "And what is that thing in thy mouth?" Said the trap: "That is bread and victuals which I carry for all the hungry and the poor who come near to me." Said the lark: "Now then may I come forward and eat, for I am hungry?" And the trap said to him, 'Come forward.' And the lark approached that it might eat. But the trap sprang up and seized the lark by its neck. And the lark answered and said to the trap, "If that is thy bread for the hungry

¹ For this rendering of قفشي see Payne Smith's Thes. Syr. col. 3555, sub ܩܦܫܝܐ.

SYRIAC

ARABIC

ARMENIAN

God accepteth not thine alms and thy kind deeds. And if that is thy fasting and thy prayers, God accepteth from thee neither thy fast nor thy prayer, and God will not perfect what is good concerning thee."

11 O my boy! thou hast been to me (as) a lion who made friends with an ass, and the ass kept walking before the lion for a time; and one day the lion sprang upon the ass and ate it up.

12^a O my boy! thou hast been to me like a weevil in the wheat, for it does no good to anything, but spoils the wheat and gnaws it.

12^b O my boy! thou hast been like a man who sowed ten measures of wheat, and when it was harvest time, he arose and reaped it, and garnered it, and threshed it, and toiled over it to the very utmost, and it turned out to be ten measures, and its master said to it: "O thou lazy thing! thou hast not grown and thou hast not shrunk."¹

13 O my boy! thou hast been to me like the partridge that had been thrown into the net, and she could not save herself, but she called out to the partridges, that she might cast them with her(self) into the net.

14 O my son! thou hast been to me like the dog that was cold and it went into the potter's house to get warm. And when it had got warm, it began to bark at them, and they chased it out and beat it, that it might not bite them.

¹ This meaning of ضرر will be found in Lane, p. 1776, col. 3.

Son, thou hast been to me like the sower, who sowed ten bushels, and gathered five bushels, and the rest failed.

12 My son, thou hast been to me like the weevil that is in the corn, which destroys kings' granaries, and is itself of no account.

13 My son, thou hast been to me like the pot, to which they made golden handles¹, but its bottom was not cleansed from blackness.

14 My son, thou hast been to me like a husbandman that sowed a field with twenty measures of barley; and when he reaped it, it made him twenty measures. And he said to it: "What I scattered, I have gathered, but thou art shamed with thine evil name, in that thou hast made a bushel into a bushel²: and I, [how] am I to live?"

15 My son, thou hast been to me like the . . . bird that could not save himself from death, and by his voice slaughtered his companions.³

16 My son, thou hast been to me like the buck that led his companions into the slaughter-house; and yet he did not save his own life.

17 My son, thou hast been to me like the dog that came to the potters' oven to warm himself, and after he was warm rose up to bark at them.

¹ Lit. 'ears'.

² Cf. Matt. xxv. 24-7.

³ Reading .

SYRIAC

- 18 My son, thou hast been to me like the swine that had been to the baths, and when it saw a muddy ditch, went down and washed in it, and cried to its companions, "Come and wash."
- 19 My son, my finger is upon thy mouth, and thy finger is upon my eyes. Why have I brought thee up, thou jackal, that thy eyes look thus upon apples?
- 20 My son, the dog that eats of his hunting will become the portion of wolves: and the hand that is not industrious shall be cut off from its shoulder: and the eye in which there is no vision the raven shall pluck it out.
- 21 What good hast thou done me, my son, that I remembered thee and that my soul had comfort in thee?¹
- 22 My son, if the gods steal, by whom shall they make them to swear? And a lion that steals a piece of land, how will he sit down and eat it?
- 23 My son, I caused thee to behold the face of the king, and brought thee to great honour: and thou hast chosen to do me evil.
- 24 My son, thou hast been to me like the tree that said to its woodcutters, "If there had not been somewhat from me in your hands, ye had not fallen upon me."

¹ We should have expected, 'that I might remember thee and that my soul might have comfort in thee'.

ARABIC

- 15 O my son! thou hast been to me like the pig who went into the hot bath with people of quality, and when it came out of the hot bath, it saw a filthy hole¹ and it went down and wallowed in it.
- 16 O my son! thou hast been to me like the goat which joined its comrades (on their way) to the sacrifice, and it was unable to save itself.
- 17 O my boy! the dog which is not fed from its hunting becomes food for flies.
- 18 O my son! the hand which does not labour and plough and (which) is greedy and cunning shall be cut away from its shoulder.
- 19 O my son! the eye in which light is not seen, the ravens shall pick at it and pluck it out.
- 20 O my boy! thou hast been to me like a tree whose branches they were cutting, and it said to them, "If (something) of me were not in your hands, verily you would be unable to cut me."

¹ Gûre means a hollow place, siân is presumably from the Hebrew נֶדֶם to be soft or sticky and the Syriac ܠܝܡܘܣ limus, coenum. I can find no justification for siâq, the reading of the MSS. used by Salhani and Lidzbarski.

ARMENIAN

Son, thou hast been to me like the axe that was chopping a tree. Said the tree: Wert¹ thou not from me, thou couldst not overcome me. Thus² didst thou imagine saying: I will fill his place. But if the pig's tail were about five ells long, it would not fill the place of the horse. And if its fleece were as purple, it could not be likened to the body of a king³.

¹ MS. Canon, better: 'Were not what is in thy hand from me, thou wert not able to overcome me.'

² MS. Canon, better: 'My son, thou didst imagine thus, saying: I fill the place of Khikar, but were the pig's tail nine ells long, &c.'

³ MS. Canon like the Syriac adds here this saying: 'Son, I thus thought, that thou wouldst stay in my house and inherit my goods. But according to thy lawlessness, God hath not prospered thee.'

SYRIAC

ARABIC

ARMENIAN

The maggot of the bread ate ¹² the body of a king, but was itself of no use to any one nor profitable, but vile.

Son, thou hast been to me ¹³ like the young of the swallow which fell out of its nest, and a weasel found it and said: If it had not been for me¹, then a great evil would have befallen you. The nestling said to the weasel: Thy good which thou hast done to me shall return upon thine head.

¹ Lit. 'if it had been apart from me'.

ARMENIAN

Son, a dog which itself eats the quarry, will become the prey of wolves. An eye that gives me ¹⁴ no light, the ravens dig it out. Hand which helps me not, from the shoulder let them lop it off.

Son, thou hast been to me like the lure which lay buried in the dung. A sparrow found it and ¹⁵ said: What doest thou?² And it said: I am engaged in prayer unto God. Said the sparrow: And that which is in thy mouth, what is it? It said: A little loaf for the hungry. The sparrow darted in to take the bread and was caught by the neck and said: If this was a little loaf for the hungry, God even so heareth thy prayer.

Son, they said to the wolf: Keep away from the fold. It answered: If I live away, I am ¹⁶ blinded; for the dust is a remedy for my eyes and benefits them.

Son, thou hast been to me as the wolf that encountered an ass, and said: Peace be unto thee. ¹⁷ The young ass said: Peace to yonder master of mine, who hath loosed the cord of my feet, and let me behold thy face evil and bloodthirsty.³

Son, thou hast been to me like one who saw his fellow a-shivering. Taking water he threw ¹⁸ it over him.

Son, thou hast been to me like the dog which went into the oven of the potter. When he ¹⁹ was warm, he began to bark at the potter.

² So Paris 69: the rest = 'What art thou?'

³ Canon omits 'evil and bloodthirsty'.

SYRIAC

ARABIC

ARMENIAN

²⁶ My son, thou hast been to me like the cat, to which they say, "Leave off thy thievish ways, and thou shalt go out from and come in to the king's palace, according to thy heart's wish." And she answered and said, "If I should have eyes of silver and ears of gold, I will not leave off my thieving."

²⁷ My son, thou hast been to me like a serpent that was mounted on a thorn-bush and thrown into a river; and a wolf saw them and said to them: "Bad rides on bad, and worse than either carries them off." The serpent said to him, "If thou hadst been here, thou shouldst have paid the reckoning for the she-goats and their young ones."

²⁸ My son, I have seen a she-

²¹ O my boy! thou art like the cat to whom they said: "Leave off thieving till we make for thee a chain of gold and feed thee with sugar and almonds." And she said, "I am not forgetful of the craft of my father and my mother."

²² O my son! thou hast been like the serpent riding on a thorn-bush when he was in the midst of a river, and a wolf saw them and said, "Mischief upon mischief, and let him who is more mischievous than they direct both of them." And the serpent said to the wolf, "The lambs and the goats and the sheep which thou hast eaten all thy

Son, they said to the cat, ²⁰ Give up thy habitual affair⁴, and the privilege⁴ is extended to thee to enter the palace and quit it. The cat said: If my eyes were gold and my paw of silver, I would yet not give up the habitual thing⁵.

Son, thou hast been to me as ²¹ a snake that wound itself round a bramble and fell into a river. A wolf saw it and said: Lo, the evil is mounted on the evil, and evil is that which drives them along.

⁴ Lit. 'word'.

⁵ Canon here has 'habit', bars for ban = 'word', and this should probably be read all through.

SYRIAC

goat brought into the slaughter-house, and because its time was not yet come, it returned to its place and saw its children and its children's children.

My son, I have seen colts that have become slayers of their mothers.

29 My son, I fed thee with every pleasant meat: and thou, my son, hast fed me with bread of ashes¹, and I was not satisfied therewith.

30 My son, I salved thee with sweet salves, and thou, my son, hast fouled my body with dust.

31 My son, I trained up thy stature like a cedar, but thou hast humbled me in my life, and hast made me drunken with thy wickedness.

32 My son, I raised thee like a tower and said, "If the enemy should come upon me, I will go up and dwell in thee": and thou, when thou sawest my enemy, didst bow before him.

33 My son, thou hast been to me like the mole that came up out of the earth that he might get possession² of the sun, because he had no eyes; and an eagle saw him and struck him and carried him off.'

¹ Lit. 'dust'.

² Lit. 'receive'. But perhaps the original was 'that he might see the sun, though he had no eyes'.

ARABIC

life, wilt thou return them to their fathers and to their parents or no?" Said the wolf, "No." And the serpent said to him, "I think that after myself thou art the worst of us."

23 O my boy! I fed thee with good food and thou didst not feed me with dry bread.¹

24 O my boy! I gave thee sugared water to drink and good syrup, and thou didst not give me water from the well to drink.

25 O my boy! I taught thee, and brought thee up, and thou didst dig a hiding-place for me and didst conceal me.

26 O my boy! I brought thee up with the best upbringing and trained thee like a tall cedar; and thou hast twisted and bent me.

27 O my boy! it was my hope concerning thee that thou wouldst build me a fortified castle, that I might be concealed from my enemies in it, and thou didst become to me like one burying in the depth of the earth; but the Lord took pity on me and delivered me from thy cunning.

28 O my boy! I wished thee well, and thou didst reward me (with) evil and hatefulness, and now I would fain tear out thine eyes, and make thee food for dogs, and cut out thy tongue, and take off thy head with the edge of the sword, and recompense thee for thine abominable deeds.'

¹ For this meaning of خبز حاف cf. Lane, Book I, part 2, p. 598, and Badger, p. 272.

ARMENIAN

Son, thou hast been to me as 2 a mole which came out of its hole and one with another went forth because of their eyes not seeing. And an eagle swooped and seized him; and the mole said: If there had been no senses in my case, I should have remained in my place and lived a peaceful life.

Son, they gave teaching to 2 the wolf's cub, and said: Say thou, *ayb, ben, gim*¹; and he said ayts, bouts, garhn (i.e. goat, kid, lamb).

Son, they took the swine to 2 the bath, and he plunged into it, then rolled himself in the bog, saying: You wash in your own, and I will in mine.

¹ i.e. the first three letters of the Armenian alphabet.

SYRIAC

34 My son Nadan answered and said to me, 'My father Aḥikar, such things be far from thee: do to me according to thy mercy: for God also forgives the fault of men: and thou also, forgive me this my folly: and I will tend thy horses and feed thy pigs which are in thy house, and I shall be called evil: but thou, devise not evil against me.'

35 I answered and said to him, 'My son, thou hast been to me like that palm-tree that stood by a river, and cast all its fruit into the river, and when its lord came to cut it down, it said to him, "Let me alone this year, and I will bring thee forth carobs." And its lord said unto it, "Thou hast not been industrious in what is thine own, and how wilt thou be industrious in what is not thine own?"'

36 My son, they say to the wolf, "Why dost thou follow after the sheep?" He said to them, "Their dust is exceeding good for my eyes." Again they brought him into the school-house¹: the master said to him, "Aleph, Beth"; the wolf said, "Kid, Lamb."

37 My son, I taught thee that there is a God: and thou risest up against good servants, and beatest those that have not sinned; and like as God has kept me alive on account of my righteousness² so hath He destroyed thee for thy works.

38 My son, they set the head of the ass over a dish at the table, and he rolled off and fell in the dust. And they say, "He spites

¹ Lit. 'house of the scribe'.

² Query, 'almsgiving'? ut supra.

ARABIC

29 And when Nadan heard this speech from his uncle Haiqâr, he said: 'O my uncle! deal with me according to thy knowledge, and forgive me my sins, for who is there who hath sinned like me, or who is there who forgives like thee? Accept me, O my uncle! Now I will serve in thy house, and groom thy horses and sweep up the dung of thy cattle, and feed thy sheep, for I am the wicked and thou art the righteous: I the guilty and thou the forgiving.'

30 And Haiqâr said to him, 'O my boy! thou art like the tree which was fruitless beside the water, and its master was fain to cut it down, and it said to him, "Remove me to another place, and if I do not bear fruit, cut me down." And its mastersaid to it, "Thou being beside the water hast not borne fruit, how shalt thou bear fruit when thou art in another place?"'

31 O my boy! the old age of the eagle is better than the youth of the crow.

32 O my boy! they said to the wolf, "Keep away from the sheep lest their dust should harm thee." And the wolf said, "The dregs of the sheep's milk¹ are good for my eyes."

33 O my boy! they made the wolf go to school that he might learn to read, and they said to him, "Say A, B." He said, "Lamb and goat² in my belly."

34 O my boy! they set the ass down at the table and he fell, and began to roll himself in the dust, and one said, "Let him roll himself, for it

¹ This is evidently a pun, ghabar meaning dust, and ghubr the last milk in the udder.

² The animals mentioned by the wolf had names which doubtless began with A, B. In the Arabic and English this is lost.

ARMENIAN

Nathan began to speak and ²⁴^b said: My father Khikar, men sin unto God, and He forgives them, when they say: I have sinned. Father, I have sinned unto thee. Forgive me, and I will be to thee a slave henceforth for ever.¹

And I spake to Nathan thus: Son, thou hast been to me ²⁵ like a palm-tree which was growing with roots on the bank of the river. When the fruit ripened, it fell into the river. The lord of the tree came to cut it down, and the tree said: Leave me in this place², that in the next year I may bear fruit. The lord of the tree said: Up to this day hast thou been to me useless, in the future thou wilt not become useful.

Son, God hath rescued me ²⁶^a because of my innocence, but hath destroyed thee because of thy lawlessness. God passes judgement between me and thee. For the tail of the dog gives ²⁶^b bread and his mouth a cudgel.³

¹ Canon adds: 'like one of the sinners'.

² Canon = 'Leave me for this year'.

³ Canon adds this precept about the dog after no. 16. It comes as the fourth in the first series of the Syriac.

SYRIAC

himself; he does not receive honour."

39 My son, thou hast verified the proverb, which is current: "Call him whom thou hast begotten, thy son, and him whom thou hast purchased, thy slave."

40 My son, the proverb is true that is current: "Take thy sister's son under thy arm and dash him against a stone."

But God is He that hath kept me alive, and He will judge between us.'

41 Thereat Nadan swelled up like a bag and died. And to him that doeth good, what is good shall be recompensed: and to him that doeth evil, what is evil shall be rewarded.¹ And he that diggeth a pit for his neighbour, filleth it with his own stature. And to God be glory, and His mercy be upon us. Amen.

The proverbs of Ahikar the sage and secretary of Sennacherib king of Assyria and Nineveh are ended.

J. R. HARRIS.

¹ Lit. 'He shall be rewarded evil'.

ARABIC

is his nature, he will not change."

35 O my boy! the saying has been confirmed which runs: "If thou begetteth a boy, call him thy son, and if thou rearest a boy, call him thy slave."

36 O my boy! he who doeth good shall meet with good; and he who doeth evil shall meet with evil, for the Lord requiteth a man according to the measure of his work.

37 O my boy! what shall I say more to thee than these sayings? for the Lord knoweth what is hidden, and is acquainted with the mysteries and the secrets. And He will requite thee and will judge betwixt me and thee, and will recompense thee according to thy desert.'

38 And when Nadan heard that speech from his uncle Haiqâr, he swelled up immediately and became like a blown-out bladder. And his limbs swelled and his legs and his feet and his side, and he was torn and his belly burst asunder and his entrails were scattered, and he perished, and died. And his latter end was destruction, and he went to hell. For he who digs a pit for his brother shall fall into it; and he who sets up traps shall be caught in them. This is what happened and (what) we found about the tale of Haiqâr, and praise be to God for ever. Amen, and peace. This chronicle is finished with the help of God, may He be exalted! Amen, Amen, Amen.

A. S. LEWIS.

ARMENIAN

In the same hour Nathan²⁶ swelled up and all his body burst asunder, and I said:

Son,^a he that doeth good,²⁷ winneth good; and he that digs a pit for others, himself falls into the pit. The good endeth in good and the evil in evil.

Here endeth Khikar.¹

F. C. CONYBEARE.

¹ The last three words in Codex Ven. alone.

^a The text of MS. Canon is as follows:

Said Khikar: He that doeth well to the good will meet with good. And he who diggeth a pit for his fellow, with his own person filleth it. He who loves evil is hateful to many, and he who pursues the good inherits it.

THE STORY OF AHIKAR

AETHIOPIC FRAGMENTS OF THE SAYINGS OF AHIKAR.

The following is the translation of the fifteen sayings of Aḥiḳar, published by Cornill in his Maṣḥafa Falâsfâ Tabîbân, or Book of the Wise Philosophers. These sayings are taken from two MSS., one at Frankfort and the other at Tübingen. They apparently come from an Arabic collection of ethical maxims, and not from a complete story of Aḥiḳar. We should have inferred that the precepts were in separate circulation in Arabic, from the title of a MS. in the Vatican described by Assemani which is said to contain Hicari philosophi Mosulani praecepta.

Instruction of Ḥaiḳar the Wise.

- 1 He spake as follows:
'Hear, my son, and keep in remembrance my discourse, so that thou rememberest God the High and the Mighty.
My son, if thou hearest a discourse, hide it in thy heart and disclose it not to thy neighbour, that it become not to thee as a coal and burn thy tongue, and bring derision upon thee and make thee hateful to God.
- 2 My son, make fair thy discourse and thy behaviour; for the wagging of a dog's tail gives him bread, but his jaw brings him stones.
- 3 My son, do not tarry with him, in whom there is strife: for strife brings controversy: and strife gives for an inheritance revengefulness and murder.
- 4 My son, if a house could be built by talk without action, an ass would build two houses a day.
- 5 My son, it is better to haul stones with a wise and understanding man, than to drink wine with a fool.
- 6 My son, so long as there are shoes on thy feet, tread down the thorns, and level the way for thy children and thy children's children.
- 7 My son, if the rich man eats a snake, they say of him, "He seeks a medicine therein"; if, however, the poor man eats it, they say of him, "It was from hunger."
- 8 My son, if there come to thee a slenderer and poorer man than thyself, rise up to receive him.
- 9 My son, the wicked falls and rises not again; but the good man falls and rises immediately and remains in his condition.
- 10 My son, cease not to beat thy son; for the chastisement of a child is good for it, even as dung makes the land good; and as the land which is not rugged and on which there is grass delights the cattle, so doth a well-brought up son delight his father.
- 11 My son, keep thy son in curb, as long as he is small, that he may not grow up and thou have no more control over him, and be fain to blush over his corrupt behaviour.
- 12 A fair repute is better than a fair appearance; for the fair repute abides for ever, but the fair appearance and form pass away.
- 13 My son, it is better to stumble with the foot than with the tongue; and bring no discourse out of thy mouth, before thou hast entered into counsel with thine own self.
- 14 My son, if the course of water should turn backwards, and if birds should fly without wings, and if the raven should become white as snow, then may a fool become wise.
- 15 My son, if thou wilt be wise, refrain thy tongue from lying and thy hands from stealing.'

J. R. HARRIS.

THE ARAMAIC FRAGMENTS FROM ELEPHANTINÉ.

The following represents roughly the narrative portion of the Aḥiḳar-legend, and the most important of the Parables and Proverbs of Aḥiḳar preserved in the papyrus:

- 1 Aḥiḳar was his name, a wise and erudite scribe, who instructed his son He said: The son will be for me before Aḥiḳar the Great Seal of Sennacherib, king of Assyria and there was no son to me and Sennacherib,
- 3 king of Assyria, had fulfilled (his days) and Sennacherib died his son, named Esarhaddon,
- 15 and he was king of Assyria in the place of his father (Sennacherib) Assyria. Thereupon I (took) my son and I instructed him and virtue in the Palace along with I presented him before Esarhaddon, the king of Assyria. And wisdom what he had asked him. And thereon Esarhaddon, the king of Assyria, loved him and said, (Long) life the wise scribe, the counsellor of all Assyria, who has appointed as his son, and no son and I bowed down and worshipped, I, Aḥiḳar, before Esarhaddon (the king) of Assyria. Aḥiḳar, and when I saw the face of Esarhaddon, the king of Assyria, favourably, I rose up (as I was before) Sennacherib thy father, who was king (before thee)

THE STORY OF AHIKAR

I shall not be able to serve (the king) in the gate of this palace whose name is Nadin, my grown-up son, and he shall succeed me as Secretary (and Great) Seal shall he be; and also my wisdom and the king of Assyria. And he said to me, (like thyself) and in thy stead he shall do thy work. I went to my house and I set him in the gate of the palace and I said, he will seek after what is good (my son Nadin) whom I have brought up, think on the king Sennacherib, thy father he is wise and according to his counsel and advice will much disquiet the king. Listen as a son, who is not my son; as a son

4 I (Answered) Esarhaddon the king and said: whom my father hath made great, who (ate) the bread of my father thou wilt seek, where thou canst find that old man Aḥikar. He is a wise secretary whether he can corrupt the country against us, after that Assyria; he attached to him two men, in order to see that officer (?) Nabušumiškun, riding upon a swift horse with him after yet three days and the others who were with him, as I was walking in the vineyards. Nabušumiškun, the officer, rent his garment, and lamented the wise Secretary and master of good counsel who by whose counsel and words all Assyria was directed (Nadin, thy son) whom thou hast appointed in the gate of the Palace, hath undone thee.

9 Then was I much afraid, even I Aḥikar; and I answered and said to Nabušumiškun I am he who aforetime saved thee from undeserved death the father of the present king, Esarhaddon, (was angry) with thee I brought thee to my house, thither was I bringing thee

(I treated thee) as a man treats his brother, and I hid thee from the presence of (king Sennacherib). I said, I have killed him, until at another time and after yet many days I presented thee before king Sennacherib, and caused thy sins to pass away before him: and no evil did he to thee. And with me also king Sennacherib was well pleased, because I had preserved thee alive and not slain thee. And now do thou also to me in the same fashion as I did to thee. Slay me not, but bring me into thy house until other days. King Esarhaddon is merciful as one towards another. He will remember me and will long for my advice. Thou wilt then present me before him, and he will suffer me to live. Thereupon answered Nabušumiškun and said to me, Fear not. Thou shalt live, Aḥikar, the father of all Assyria, according to whose counsel Sennacherib and all the Assyrian army were wont to make war. Nabušumiškun, the officer, spake to those two men, his companions, who were with him, (Listen) and I will give you a piece of advice, and it is good advice too. The two men answered and said to him, Tell it us then. And Nabušumiškun answered and said to them, Listen to me. Yonder is Aḥikar, a great man. He is the Great Seal of Esarhaddon. According to his counsel and word is the whole army of Assyria governed. Do not let us kill him. There is a eunuch whom I have, and whom I will give you. He must be killed in the mountain; he shall be a substitute for Aḥikar other people (may come and) see the body of yonder Aḥikar, for the body of the young man, the eunuch, whom I have until our brother Esarhaddon (shall have regret) over our brother and the heart of Esarhaddon I will give you much treasure and the soul (of the officer) was content with his two companions.

11 (And they said,) Do as thou counsellest Thereupon they slew the aforementioned eunuch 12 in the stead of Aḥikar At that time report was made in the king's palace, (and they said) to the king, He hath been slain. Thereupon Nabušumiškun (brought me to his house, and he caused to be supplied to me there (meat and drink) and said, Let these things be furnished to my 13 lord (Aḥikar). Likewise he brought much treasure Thereupon Nabušumiškun, the officer, went to Esarhaddon the king (of Assyria), and informed him, saying, I went my way, (as directed) and I found Aḥikar (walking in his vineyards), and I have put him to death. And do thou, O king, inquire of the two men whom thou didst appoint. So spake he until that Esarhaddon (believed his words).

(This is all of the narrative which has been preserved: the extant portions of the proverbial and allegorical parts of the book are very fragmentary in character, and uncertain as to their restoration, to order, and sense. The most important are as follows:—

- What is stronger than a braying ass?
- The son who is instructed and disciplined, and who has on his feet
- Do not withhold thy son from beating, if thou
- My son, if I beat thee, thou diest not. And if I leave on thy heart

THE STORY OF AHIKAR

Smite the boy, like even so to all thy servants

The lion will be the stag in the secret of his den (?)

And he pours out his blood and eats his flesh

The ass has left and does not carry it. He takes up from his companions, . which was not his.

Watch carefully over thy mouth and make thy heart slow (?), for the word spoken is like a bird, and he who utters it is like a man without the craft of the mouth is mightier than the craft

Do not conceal (?) the word of a king

They deal with trees by fire, with flesh by a knife, and with man

Let not thy heart rejoice in the multitude of children and over their fewness (be not thou discouraged).

(Cf. Armenian sayings, No. 34.)

A king is as a merciful man, also his voice is higher than that of him who stands before him . . .

The king is fair to look on as the sun, and for them that walk the earth, his adornment is costly

(My son,) I have lifted sand, and I have carried salt, but there was nothing heavier than

I have lifted straw and handled (?) the plough and there was nothing lighter than the man who dwells in

The panther met the goat, and it was naked. And the panther answered and said to the goat, Come and I will cover thee with my skin.

The goat answered and said to the panther, Why my skin? Take it not from me

The wolf came to the lambs (?) and I will be silent. The lambs answered and said to him, Take what thou wantest from us

Nothing lies in a man's power, to lift up his foot or to set it down

(Do not bend) thy bow and shoot an arrow at the upright, lest God should and cause it to return upon thyself.

(Thou hast bent) thy bow and shot thy arrow at one who is more righteous than thou. That is a sin against our God.

A loan is heavy, and borrow thou not from a man and if thou contractest a loan, give thy soul no peace until

. in thine ears, for the charm of a man is his trustiness, and his hatred is lying with his lips (?).

The son of my body has spied out my house he has told strangers

He has become a false witness against me :

And who will now declare my righteousness?

With him that is higher than thyself do not

With him that is stronger than thyself, do not

. and be not insolent to thy father

The thorn-bush sent to the pomegranate (and said):

The thorn-bush to the pomegranate. How numerous are thy thorns for him who handles thee!

The pomegranate answered and said to the thorn-bush,

Thou art all thorns for him who handles thee.

THE STORY OF AHIKAR

GREEK VERSION OF THE LEGEND OF AHIKAR.

The following is the portion of the story of Aesop which shows coincidence with Ahiḱar.

Fabulae Romanenses Graece Conscriptae (ed. Eberhard).

c. xxiii Μετὰ δὲ τοῦτο τῆς νήσου ἀπάρας, περιήει τὴν οἰκουμένην, τοῖς ἀπανταχοῦ τῶν φιλοσόφων διαλεγόμενος· ἀφικόμενος δὲ καὶ πρὸς Βαβυλῶνα καὶ τὴν ἑαυτοῦ σοφίαν ἐπιδειξάμενος, μέγας παρὰ τῷ βασιλεῖ Λυκῆρῳ ἐγένετο. κατ' ἐκείνους γὰρ τοὺς χρόνους οἱ βασιλεῖς πρὸς ἀλλήλους εἰρήνην ἔχοντες καὶ τέρψεως χάριν προβλήματα τῶν σοφιστικῶν πρὸς ἀλλήλους γράφοντες ἔπεμπον. ἄπερ οἱ μὲν ἐπιλυόμενοι φόρους ἐπὶ ῥητοῖς πρὸς τῶν πεμπόντων ἐλάμβανον· εἰ δὲ μή, τοὺς ἴσους παρείχον. ὁ τοίνυν Αἴσωπος τὰ πεμπόμενα τῶν προβλημάτων Λυκῆρῳ συνὼν ἐπέλυε, καὶ εὐδοκίμειν ἐποίει τὸν βασιλέα. καὶ αὐτὸς δὲ διὰ Λυκῆρου ἕτερα τοῖς βασιλεῦσιν ἀντέπεμπεν, ὧν ἀλύτων μεόντων, φόρους ὁ βασιλεὺς ὅτι πλείστους εἰσέπραττεν.

c. xxiv Αἴσωπος δὲ μὴ παιδοποιησάμενος, ἕνα τινὰ τῶν ἐγγενῶν, Ἐννον τὴν κλήσιν, εἰσεποίησατό τε καὶ ὡς γνήσιον παῖδα τῷ βασιλεῖ προσενέγκας συνέστησε. μετὰ δ' οὐ πολὺν χρόνον τοῦ Ἐννου τῆ τοῦ θεμένου παλλακῆ συμφθαρέντος, Αἴσωπος τοῦτο γνοὺς, ἀπελαύνειν ἔμελλε τῆς οἰκίας. ὁ δὲ, τῆ κατ' ἐκείνου ὀργῇ ληφθεὶς, ἐπιστολὴν τε πλασάμενος παρ' Αἰσώπου δῆθεν πρὸς τοὺς ἀντισοφιζομένους Λυκῆρῳ, ὡς αὐτοῖς ἔτοιμός ἐστι προστίθεσθαι μᾶλλον ἢ τῷ Λυκῆρῳ, τῷ βασιλεῖ ἐνεχείρισε, τῷ τοῦ Αἰσώπου ταύτην σφραγισάμενος δακτυλίῳ. ὁ δὲ βασιλεὺς τῆ τε σφραγίδι πεισθεὶς καὶ ἀπαραιτήτῳ ὀργῇ χρησάμενος, παραχρῆμα τῷ Ἑρμιππῳ κελεύει, μηδὲν ἐξετάσαντα οἶα δὴ προδότην διαχειρίσασθαι Αἴσωπον. ὁ δὲ Ἑρμιππος φίλος τε ἦν τῷ Αἰσώπῳ καὶ τότε δὴ τὸν φίλον ἐπέδειξεν. ἔν τινι γὰρ τῶν τάφων μηδενὸς εἰδότης κρύψας τὸν ἄνθρωπον, ἐν ἀπορρήτοις ἔτρεφεν. Ἐννος δὲ, τοῦ βασιλέως κελεύσαντος, πᾶσαν τὴν διοίκησιν Αἰσώπου παρέλαβε.

c. xxv Μετὰ δὲ τινα χρόνον Νεκτεναβῶ βασιλεὺς Αἰγυπτίων πυθόμενος Αἴσωπον τεθνηκέναι, πέμπει Λυκῆρῳ παραχρῆμα ἐπιστολὴν, οἰκοδόμους αὐτῷ ἀποστεῖλαι κελεύουσαν, οἱ πύργον οἰκοδομήσουσι μήτ' οὐρανοῦ μήτε γῆς ἀπτόμενον, ἀλλὰ καὶ τὸν ἀποκρινόμενον ἀεὶ πρὸς πάνθ' ὅσα ἂν ἐρωτῆ· καὶ τοῦτο ποιήσαντα, φόρους εἰσπράττειν, εἰ δὲ μή, κατατίθεσθαι. ταῦτα τῷ Λυκῆρῳ ἀναγνωσθέντα εἰς ἀθυμίαν ἐνέβαλε, μηδενὸς τῶν φίλων δυναμένου τὸ πρόβλημα τὸ περὶ τοῦ πύργου συνεῖναι.

After this he set sail from the island, and went c. x about the world, in discourse everywhere with the philosophic; and having reached Babylon, he then also exhibited his wisdom and acquired renown with Lykeros the king. In those days the kings were at peace with one another, and used to amuse themselves by sending one another sophistical questions to answer; and those who could resolve them used to get for their answers tribute from those who proposed them; if, however, they failed, they paid in turn the like amount. So Aesop, who was associated with Lykeros, used to solve the problems which were sent to him, and caused the king to become famous. And he himself sent through Lykeros counter-challenges to the kings, the non-solution of which brought an abundance of revenues to the king.

Now as Aesop himself had no children, he c. x annexed a certain young man of noble birth named Ennus, and brought him to the king, with commendation as his proper son. And when, not long after, Ennus played false with the concubine of his adoptive father, Aesop, becoming aware of it, would have banished him the house. But he, seized with rage against him, and having forged a letter, to wit, from Aesop to the kings who were in contest with Lykeros, to the effect that he was prepared to take their side rather than that of Lykeros, went and put the letter into the king's hands, having first sealed it with Aesop's signet.

So he, being persuaded thereby, and under the influence of implacable anger, forthwith directs Hermippus to make away with Aesop without a trial, on the ground that he was a traitor. Hermippus, however, was a friend of Aesop, and showed himself so at the time. Without any one knowing it, he concealed Aesop in one of the tombs, and secretly maintained him. Meanwhile Ennus, by the king's orders, took over all Aesop's affairs.

Some time after, Nectenabo, the king of the c. Egyptians, having ascertained that Aesop was dead, forthwith sends to Lykeros a letter, commanding him to send builders to construct him a tower that should not touch either heaven or earth, and a man withal who should make him continual answer to all his questions; if thus he would do, he should revenues acquire; but if the contrary, he should pay them over. When these ὁ μέντοι βασιλεὺς καὶ κίονα τῆς ἑαυτοῦ βασιλείας ἔλεγεν ἀπολωλέκειναι τὸν Αἴσωπον. Ἑρμιππος δὲ τὴν τοῦ βασιλέως δι' Αἴσωπον λύπην μαθὼν, προσῆλθε τῷ βασιλεῖ καὶ ζῆν ἐκείνον εὐηγγέλισατο, προσθεὶς ὡς τοῦδε χάριν αὐτὸν οὐκ ἀνεῖλεν, εἰδὼς ὡς μεταμελήσει ποτὲ τῷ βασιλεῖ τῆς ἀποφάσεως. τοῦ δὲ βασιλέως διαφερόντως ἐπὶ τούτοις ἡσθέντος, Αἴσωπος ῥυπῶν καὶ αὐχμῶν ὄλος προσηνέχθη, καὶ τοῦ βασιλέως, ὡς εἶδεν αὐτόν, δακρύσαντος καὶ λούσασθαί τε καὶ τῆς ἄλλης ἐπιμελείας ἀξιωθῆναι κελεύσαντος, Αἴσωπος μετὰ τοῦτο καὶ ὑπὲρ ὧν κατηγορήθη τὰς αἰτίας ἀπεσκευάσατο. ἐφ' οἷς καὶ τοῦ βασιλέως τὸν Ἑννον ἀναιρεῖν μέλλοντος, Αἴσωπος αὐτῷ συγγνώμην ῥητήσατο. ἐπομένως δὲ τούτοις ὁ βασιλεὺς τὴν τοῦ Αἰγυπτίου ἐπιστολὴν τῷ Αἰσώπῳ ἐπέδωκεν ἀναγνῶναι. ὁ δὲ αὐτίκα τὴν λύσιν συνείς τοῦ προβλήματος, ἐγέλασέ τε καὶ ἀντιγράφειν ἐκέλευσει, ὡς ἐπειδὴν χειμῶν παρέλθη, πεμφθῆναι τοὺς τε τὸν πύργον οἰκοδομήσουστας καὶ τὸν ἀποκρινόμενον πρὸς τὰ ἐρωτώμενα. ὁ βασιλεὺς οὖν τοὺς μὲν Αἰγυπτίους πρέσβεις ἀπέστειλεν, Αἰσώπῳ δὲ τὴν ἐξ ἀρχῆς διοίκησιν ἐνεχείρισεν ἅπασαν, ἔκδοτον αὐτῷ παραδοὺς καὶ τὸν Ἑννον. ὁ δὲ Αἴσωπος παραλαβὼν τὸν Ἑννον, οὐδὲν ἀηδὲς αὐτὸν ἔδρασει, ἀλλ' ὡς νῖφ πάλιν προσσχόν, ἄλλους τε καὶ τούτους ὑπετίθει τοὺς λόγους.

things were read to Lykeros, they put him in a sad muse, seeing that none of his friends could understand the riddle about the tower. Whereupon the king was saying that he had lost in Aesop the very pillar of the kingdom. Hermippus, however, when he learned the king's grief over Aesop, came to the king, and gave him the good news that he was yet alive, adding that it was for this very reason that he had not done him to death, because he knew that the king would some time repent him of the sentence. And when the king was mightily pleased thereat, Aesop was brought in to him, all filthy and begrimed, and the king, when he saw him, wept, and bid him to the bath and to be attended with all care, and after this Aesop cleared himself of all the accusations that had been made against him. Whereupon the king would in turn have slain Ennus, but Aesop asked that he would pardon him. Thereafter the king put into Aesop's hand the letter of the Egyptian to read. And he, promptly divining the solution of the riddle, laughed and bid them dispatch a reply to the effect that, on the approach of winter, he would send him both the builders of the tower, and the person who should answer his questions. So the king sent ambassadors to Egypt, and to Aesop he entrusted all his ancient affairs, handing over to him Ennus, to boot. So Aesop took to him Ennus, nor wrought he him any unpleasantness, but dealing with him again as with a son, he imparted to him the following and kindred instructions.

1 'Τέκνον, πρὸ πάντων σέβου τὸ θεῖον; τὸν βασιλέα
2 δὲ τίμα· καὶ τοῖς μὲν ἐχθροῖς σου δεινὸν σεαυτὸν
3 παρασκεύαζε, ἵνα μὴ καταφρονῶσί σου· τοῖς δὲ φίλοις
4 πρᾶον καὶ εὐμετάδοτον, ὡς εὐνουστέρους σοι μᾶλλον
5 γίνεσθαι. ἔτι δὲ τοὺς μὲν ἐχθροὺς νοσεῖν εὐχου καὶ
6 πένεσθαι, ὡς μὴ οἴους τε εἶναι λυπεῖν σε· τοὺς δὲ
7 φίλους κατὰ πάντα εὖ πράττειν βούλου. αἰεὶ τῇ
8 γυναικί σου χρηστῶς ὁμίλει, ὅπως ἐτέρου ἀνδρὸς πειρᾶν
9 μὴ ζητήσῃ λαβεῖν. κοῦφον γὰρ τὸ τῶν γυναικῶν ἐστι
10 φῦλον καὶ κολακευόμενον ἐλάττω φρονεῖ κακά. ὀξείαν
11 μὲν πρὸς λόγον κτῆσαι τὴν ἀκοήν, τῆς δὲ γλώττης
12 ἐγκρατῆς ἔσο. τοῖς εὖ πράττουσιν μὴ φθόνει, ἀλλὰ
13 σύγχειρε· φθονῶν γὰρ σεαυτὸν μᾶλλον βλάψει.
14 τῶν οἰκετῶν σου ἐπιμελοῦ ἵνα μὴ μόνον ὡς δεσπότην
15 σε φοβῶνται, ἀλλὰ καὶ ὡς εὐεργέτην αἰδῶνται. μὴ
16 αἰσχύνου μανθάνειν αἰεὶ τὰ κρείττω. τῇ γυναικί μηδέ-
17 ποτε πιστεύσης ἀπόρρητα, αἰεὶ γὰρ ὀπλίζεται πῶς σου
18 κυριεύσει. καθ' ἡμέραν καὶ εἰς τὴν αὔριον ἀποταμιεύου·
19 βέλτιον γὰρ τελευτῶντα ἐχθροῖς καταλείψαι, ἢ ζῶντα
20 τῶν φίλων ἐπιδείσθαι. εὐπροσήγορος ἔσο τοῖς συναυ-21 τῶσιν, εἰδὼς ὡς καὶ τῷ κυναρίῳ ἄρτον ἢ οὐρὰ προσ-
22 πορίζει. ἀγαθὸς γενόμενος μὴ μετανόει. ψίθυρον
23 ἀνδρα ἔκβαλε σῆς οἰκίας, τὰ γὰρ ὑπὸ σοῦ λεγόμενα
24 καὶ πραττόμενα ἐτέροις φέρων ἀναθήσει. πρᾶττε μὲν
25 τὰ μὴ λυπήσουτά σε, ἐπὶ δὲ τοῖς συμβαίνουσι μὴ
26 λυποῦ. μήτε πονηρὰ βουλευσῆ ποτὲ μήτε τρόπους 27 κακῶν μιμήσῃ.'

'My child,' said he, 'first of all revere the divine, c. xxvi. 1 and honour the king; to thine enemies make 2 thyself dread that they despise thee not: but to 3 thy friends be gentle and generous, that they in 4 turn may be better affected to thyself.'

Further, let it be thy prayer that poverty and 3 sickness may be the lot of thy enemies, that they may not have it in their power to annoy thee; but for thy friends desire good fortune in everything. Ever talk kindly to thy wife, that she 4 may not seek to make experiment of another man. For the female sex is a slight thing, and when flattered makes little of mishap. Keep 5 thine ear attentive to discourse, but be retentive of thy speech. Envy not the prosperous, but be 6 glad with them: for by envying thou wilt rather damage thyself. Have such care of thy servants 7 that they not merely fear thee as lord, but revere thee, too, as benefactor. Take no scorn to be 8 always learning better. Never entrust secrets 9 to the wife, for she ever sets her camp to have mastery over thee. Every day, and for the 10 morrow, do thou store up: for it is better to die and leave one's estate to enemies than to live and 11 be dependent on friends. Be affable to those whom thou meetest, knowing that even for the 12 dog his tail provides him bread. When thou τούτοις τοῦ Αἰσώπου τὸν Ἔννον νουθετήσαντος, ἐκεῖνος τοῖς τε λόγοις καὶ τῇ οἰκείᾳ συνειδήσει οἷά τιμι βέλει πληγείς τὴν ψυχὴν, μετ' οὐ πολλὰς ἡμέρας τὸν βίον μετήλλαξεν.

c. xxvii Αἰσώπος δὲ τοὺς ἰξευτὰς πάντας προσκαλεσάμενος, ἀετῶν νεοττοὺς τέτταρας συλληφθῆναι κελεύει. συλληφθέντας οὖν οὕτως ἔθρεψεν, ὡς λέγεται, καὶ ἐπαίδευσεν, ὅπερ οὐ πάνυ τί με πειθόμενον ἔχει, ὡς παῖδας διὰ θυλάκων αὐτοῖς προσηρητῆμένων βαστάζοντας εἰς ὕψος αἵρεσθαι, καὶ οὕτως ὑπηκόους τοῖς παισὶν εἶναι, ὡς ὅποιπερ ἂν ἐκεῖνοι βούλοιντο ἵπτασθαι ἂν τε εἰς ὕψος ἂν τε εἰς γῆν χαμαζέ. τῆς δὲ χειμερινῆς ὥρας παραδραμούσης καὶ ἡρος διαγελάσαντος, ἅπαντα τὰ πρὸς τὴν ὁδὸν συσκευασάμενος Αἰσώπος, καὶ τοὺς τε παῖδας λαβῶν καὶ τοὺς ἀετούς, ἀπῆρεν εἰς Αἴγυπτον, πολλῇ φαντασίᾳ καὶ δόξῃ πρὸς κατάπληξιν τῶν ἐκεῖ κεκρημένους. Νεκτεναβῶ δ' ἀκούσας παραγεγονέναι τὸν Αἰσώπον, 'ἐνῆδρευμαι,' φησὶ τοῖς φίλοις, 'μεμαθηκῶς Αἰσώπου τεθνηκέμαι.'

c. xxviii τῇ δ' ἐπιούσῃ κελεύσας ὁ βασιλεὺς πάντας τοὺς ἐν τέλει λευκὰς περιβαλέσθαι στολάς, αὐτὸς δὲ κίρραν ἐνεδύσατο καὶ διάδημα καὶ διάλιθον κίταριν. καὶ κατεσθεῖς ἐφ' ὑψηλοῦ δίφρου, καὶ τὸν Αἰσώπον εἰσαχθῆναι κελεύσας, 'τίμι με εἰκάζεις,' εἰσελθόντι φησὶν, 'Αἰσώπε, καὶ τοὺς σὺν ἐμοί;' καὶ ὅς, 'σὲ μὲν ἡλίῳ ἔαρινῶ, τοὺς δὲ περὶ σε τούτοις ὠραίοις στάχυσι.' καὶ ὁ βασιλεὺς θαυμάσας αὐτὸν καὶ δῶροις ἐδεξιώσατο. τῇ δὲ μετ' ἐκεῖνην ἡμέρα πάλιν ὁ μὲν βασιλεὺς στολὴν λευκοτάτην ἐνσκευασάμενος τοῖς δὲ φίλοις φοινικᾶς κελεύσας λαβεῖν, εἰσελθόντα τὸν Αἰσώπον τὴν προτέραν αὐθις πεῦσιν ἐπύθετο. καὶ ὁ Αἰσώπος, 'σὲ μὲν,' εἶπεν, 'εἰκάζω ἡλίῳ, τοὺς δὲ περὶ σε τούτοις ἀκτίσι.' καὶ ὁ Νεκτεναβῶ, 'οἶμαι μηδὲν εἶναι Λυκῆρον πρὸς γε τὴν ἐμὴν βασιλείαν' καὶ ὁ Αἰσώπος μειδιάσας ἔφη, 'μὴ εὐχερῶς οὕτω περὶ ἐκείνου, ὦ βασιλεῦ, λογίζου. πρὸς μὲν γὰρ τὸ ὑμέτερον ἔθνος ἢ ὑμῶν ἐπιδεικνυμένη βασιλεία δίκην ἡλίου σελαγεῖ· εἰ δὲ Λυκῆρῳ παραβληθείη, οὐδὲν ἂν δέοι μὴ τὸ φῶς τοῦτο ζόφον ἀποδειχθῆναι.' καὶ ὁ Νεκτεναβῶ τὴν τῶν λόγων εὐστοχίαν ἐκπλαγείς, 'ἤνεγκας ἡμῖν,' ἔφη, 'τοὺς μέλλοντας τὸν πύργον οἰκοδομεῖν' καὶ ὅς· 'ἔτοιμοί εἰσιν, εἰ μόνον ὑποδείξεις τὸν τόπον.'

c. xxix μετὰ τοῦτο ἐξελθὼν ἔξω τῆς πόλεως ὁ βασιλεὺς ἐπὶ τὸ πεδίον, ὑπέδειξε διαμετρήσας τὸν χῶρον. ἀγαγὼν τοῖνυν Αἰσώπος ἐπὶ τὰς ὑποδειχθείσας τοῦ τόπου γωνίας τέτταρας τοὺς τέτταρας τῶν ἀετῶν ἅμα τοῖς παισὶ διὰ τῶν θυλάκων ἀπηρητῆμένοις, καὶ οἰκοδόμων τοῖς παισὶ hast been kindly do not regret it. Turn the 13 whisperer out of thy house, for he will carry off and deposit with others whatever thou sayest or dost. Do such things as will grieve thee not 14 afterwards, but over things that happen grieve thou not. Devise thou not evil, nor ever imitate 15 the ways of bad men.'

When thus Aesop had admonished Ennus, the latter was compunct in soul as with an arrow at his words, and by his own conscience, and not many days after he departed this life.

Aesop then called to him all the hunters, and c. directed the capture of four eaglets. When these were caught he reared them (so it is said) and trained them (a thing which does not altogether convince me) to carry boys, attached to them by bags, up into the air, and to be so under the boys' direction as to fly wherever they willed, whether to the heaven above or the earth beneath. Winter being now past and smiling spring arrived, Aesop made all things ready for his journey, and taking with him the boys and the eagles, he hied him to Egypt, employing much splendour and great array for the astonishment of the people in that country. Now when Nectenabo heard of the arrival of Aesop, he said to his friends, 'I have been entrapped by the information of Aesop's death.'

On the next day, then, the king bid all his c. officials to robe them in white raiment, whereas he clad him in a suit of orange, with a diadem and a jewelled turban. He took his seat on a lofty throne and bid Aesop to be summoned. To whom entering said he, 'To whom dost thou compare me, Aesop, and those who are with me?' Whereat he, 'Thee to the sun in spring, and them that are around thee to its beauteous ears of corn.' The king marvelled at him, and honoured him, too, with gifts. On the next day the king arrayed him in purest white, and bid his friends be clad in purple, and upon Aesop's entrance he asked him again his former question. Whereat Aesop, 'Thee,' said he, 'I compare to the sun, and them that are about thee to his rays.' Whereat Nectenabo, 'I think,' said he, 'that Lykeros has nothing to compare with this kingdom of mine.' Aesop smiled, and said, 'Reckon not so readily, O king, concerning him. To your people your vaunted kingdom hath indeed the splendour of the sun: but if it should be compared with Lykeros, it would take nothing to convert that light into mirk.' Nectenabo, amazed at his witty words, inquired, 'Hast thou brought us those who are to build the tower?' Said he, 'They are ready, if only you show us the place.'

After that the king went out into the plain, c. x and pointed out and measured the spot. Thereupon Aesop, bringing to the four corners of the place indicated the four eaglets with the boys fastened to them by bags, and giving to the μετὰ χεῖρας δούς ἐργαλεία, ἐκέλευσεν ἀναπτῆναι. οἱ δὲ πρὸς ὕψος γειόμενοι, 'δότε ἡμῖν,' ἐφώνουν, 'λίθους, δότε κοῦιαν, δότε ξύλα, καὶ τᾶλλα τῶν πρὸς οἰκοδομὴν ἐπιτηδείων.' ὁ δὲ Νεκτεναβὼ τοὺς παῖδας θεασάμενος εἰς ὕψος ὑπὸ τῶν ἀετῶν ἀναφερομένους ἔφη· 'πόθεν ἐμοὶ πτηνοὶ ἄνθρωποι;' καὶ ὁ Αἴσωπος· 'ἀλλὰ Λυκῆρος ἔχει· σὺ δὲ θέλεις ἄνθρωπος ὦν ἰσοθέψ ἐρίζειν βασιλεῖ;' καὶ ὁ Νεκτεναβὼ· 'Αἴσωπε, ἦτηται·' xx ἐρήσομαι δέ σε, σὺ δέ μοι ἀπόκρισαι·' καὶ φησὶν· 'εἰσί μοι θήλειαι ὧδε ἵπποι, αἵπερ ἐπειδὴν ἀκούσωσι τῶν ἐν Βαβυλῶνι ἵππων χρεμετιζόντων, εὐθύς συλλαμβάνουσιν. εἴ σοι πρὸς τοῦτο πάρεστι σοφία, ἐπίδειξαι.' καὶ ὁ Αἴσωπος· 'αὔριον ἀποκρινοῦμαί σοι, βασιλεῦ.' ἔλθων δὲ οὐ κατήγετο, αἴλουρον τοῖς παισὶν ἐκέλευσε συλλαβεῖν, καὶ συλληφθέντα δημοσίᾳ περιάγεσθαι μαστιζόμενον. οἱ δὲ Αἰγύπτιοι τὸ ζῶον σεβόμενοι, οὕτω κακῶς πάσχον αὐτὸ θεασάμενοι, συνέδραμον, καὶ τὸν αἴλουρον τῆς χειρὸς τῶν μαστιγούντων ἐκσπασαντες, ἀναγγέλλουσιν ὡς τάχος τῷ βασιλεῖ τὸ πάθος· ὁ δὲ καλέσας τὸν Αἴσωπον, 'οὐκ ἦδεις,' φησὶν, 'Αἴσωπε, ὡς θεὸς σεβόμενος παρ' ἡμῖν ἐστὶν αἴλουρος; ἵνα τί γοῦν τοῦτο πεποίηκας;' καὶ ὅς· 'Λυκῆρον τὸν βασιλέα ἠδίκησεν, ὧ βασιλεῦ, τῆς παρελθούσης νυκτὸς οὗτος ὁ αἴλουρος· ἀλεκτρύονα γὰρ αὐτοῦ πεφόρευκε μάχιμον καὶ γενναῖον, προσέτι μὴν καὶ τὰς ὥρας αὐτῷ τῆς νυκτὸς σημαίνοντα.' καὶ ὁ βασιλεὺς· 'οὐκ αἰσχύνῃ ψευδόμενος, Αἴσωπε; πῶς γὰρ ἐν μιᾷ νυκτὶ αἴλουρος ἀπ' Αἰγύπτου ἦλθεν εἰς Βαβυλῶνα;' κακείνους μειδιάσας φησὶ· 'καὶ πῶς, ὧ βασιλεῦ, ἐν Βαβυλῶνι τῶν ἵππων χρεμετιζόντων αἱ ἐνθάδε θήλειαι ἵπποι συλλαμβάνουσιν;' ὁ δὲ βασιλεὺς ταῦτα ἀκούσας, τὴν αὐτοῦ φρόνησιν ἐμακάρισε.

xi μετὰ δὲ ταῦτα μεταπεμψάμενος τῶν ἀφ' Ἡλίου πόλεως ἄνδρας ζητημάτων σοφιστικῶν ἐπιστήμονας, καὶ περὶ τοῦ Αἰσώπου διαλεχθεὶς αὐτοῖς, ἐκάλεσεν ἅμα τῷ Αἰσώπῳ ἐπ' εὐωχίαν. ἀνακλιθέντων οὖν αὐτῶν, τῶν Ἡλίου πολιτῶν τίς φησι πρὸς τὸν Αἴσωπον· 'ἀπεστάλην παρὰ τοῦ θεοῦ μου πεῦσίν τινα πυθέσθαι σου, ὡς ἂν αὐτὴν ἐπιλύσῃς.' καὶ ὁ Αἴσωπος· 'ψεύδη θεὸς γὰρ παρ' ἀνθρώπου οὐδὲν δεῖται μαθεῖν. σὺ δὲ οὐ μόνον σαυτοῦ κατηγορεῖς, ἀλλὰ καὶ τοῦ θεοῦ σου.' ἕτερος πάλιν εἶπεν· 'ἔστι ναὸς μέγας καὶ ἐν αὐτῷ στῦλος, δώδεκα πόλεις¹ ἔχων, ὧν ἐκάστη τριάκοντα δοκοῖς ἐστέγασται, τούτους δὲ περιάσι δύο γυναῖκες.' καὶ ὁ Αἴσωπος ἔφη· 'τοῦτο τὸ πρόβλημα καὶ οἱ παρ' ἡμῖν ἐπιλύσονται παῖδες· ναὸς μὲν γὰρ ἐστὶν οὗτος ὁ κόσμος, στῦλος δὲ ὁ ἐνιαυτός, αἱ δὲ πόλεις, οἱ μῆνες, καὶ δοκοὶ αἱ τούτων ἡμέραι, ἡμέρα δὲ καὶ νύξ αἱ δύο γυναῖκες, αἱ παραλλὰς ἀλλήλαις διαδέχονται.'

τῇ δὲ ἐφεξῆς ἡμέρᾳ συγκαλέσας τοὺς φίλους ἅπαντας ὁ Νεκτεναβὼ φησὶ· 'διὰ τὸν Αἴσωπον τοῦτον ὀφλήσομεν φόρους τῷ βασιλεῖ Λυκῆρω.' εἰς δὲ τις αὐτῶν εἶπε· 'κελεύσωμεν αὐτῷ προβλήματα φράσαι ἡμῖν, hands of the boys the builders' tools, bid them fly away. But they, mounted on high, kept crying out, 'Give us stones, give mud, give timber, whatever else is proper for building.' Nectenabo, regarding the lads high borne in the air of the eagles, said, 'Whence shall I get me winged men?' But Aesop said, 'Yea! but Lykeros hath such: and wilt thou, a man, strive with a king, the mate of gods?' Whereat Nectenabo: 'I am beaten, Aesop,' quoth he.

'I will, however, ask thee somewhat, and answer thou me.' Says he, 'I have mares here, which, when they hear the horses in Babylon neighing, straightway conceive offspring. If thou hast aught of wisdom for that matter, show it.' Said Aesop, 'To-morrow, O king, I will answer thee.' When he came to his lodging, he bid his boys to catch a cat, and when caught to drag it about in public and whip it. But the Egyptians who reverence that beast, seeing it suffer thus, ran together, and pulling the cat out of the hands of those that were whipping it, report immediately to the king its sufferings. He, then, called Aesop, and said, 'Knowest thou not, Aesop, that the cat is worshipped amongst us as a god? Wherefore hast thou done thus?' Said he, 'This cat, O king, in the past night, did wrong to King Lykeros, for he killed his cock, a game bird and well bred, which, further, used to tell him the hour of the night.' To whom the king: 'Dost thou not blush, Aesop, thus to lie? How came a cat in one night from Egypt to Babylon?' He, smiling, made reply: 'And how, O king, do thy mares here conceive when the horses neigh in Babylon?' When the king heard this, he commended his understanding.

After this he sent for men from Heliopolis, expert in sophist questions, and having discoursed with them about Aesop, he invited them and him to a banquet. When they were set at meat, one of the citizens of Heliopolis says to Aesop: 'I have been sent by my god with an inquiry for thee to resolve.'

'Liar!' said Aesop. 'God needeth not lore from man. Thou accusest not thyself only, but thy god!'

Another again said: 'There is a great temple, and in it is a pillar, it has twelve gates, whereof each is roofed with thirty beams, and round these go two women.' And Aesop replied: 'Even boys in our country can solve that riddle; For the temple is this world, and the pillar is the year, the gates are the months, and their beams are the days: moreover night and day are the two women who succeed one another alternately.'

On the following day, Nectenabo called to him all his friends and said: 'Through this Aesop we shall incur revenue debts to King Lykeros.' But one of them said, 'Let us bid him περὶ ὧν οὐτ' εἶδομεν οὐτ' ἠκούσαμεν.' ἀρεστὸν οὖν τοῦτο τῷ Νεκτεναβῷ δόξαν, καλέσας τὸν Αἴσωπον ἔφη· 'φράσον ἡμῖν, Αἴσωπε, πρόβλημα περὶ οὗ οὐτ' εἶδομεν οὐτ' ἠκούσαμεν.' καὶ ὅς· 'αὔριον περὶ τούτου ὑμῖν ἀποκρινοῦμαι.' ἀπελθὼν οὖν καὶ συνταξάμενος γραμματεῖον, ἐν ᾧ περιείχετο Νεκτεναβὸς ὁμολογῶν χίλια τάλαντα τῷ Λυκῆρῳ ὀφείλειν, πρωίας ἐπανελθὼν τῷ βασιλεῖ τὸ γραμματεῖον ἐπέδωκεν. οἱ δὲ τοῦ βασιλέως φίλοι, πρὶν ἀνοιχθῆναι τὸ γραμματεῖον, πάντες ἔλεγον· 'καὶ εἶδομεν τοῦτο καὶ ἠκούσαμεν, καὶ ἀληθῶς ἐπιστάμεθα.' καὶ ὁ Αἴσωπος· 'χάριν ὑμῖν οἶδα τῆς ἀποδόσεως ἔνεκεν.' ὁ δὲ Νεκτεναβὸς τὴν ὁμολογίαν τῆς ὀφειλῆς ἀναγνοὺς εἶπεν· 'ἐμοῦ Λυκῆρῳ μηδὲν ὀφείλοντος πάντες ὑμεῖς μαρτυρεῖτε;' καὶ οἱ μεταβαλόντες εἶπον· 'οὐτ' εἶδομεν οὐτ' ἠκούσαμεν.' καὶ ὁ Αἴσωπος· 'καὶ εἰ ταῦθ' οὕτως ἔχει, λένεται τὸ ζητούμενον.' καὶ ὁ Νεκτεναβὸς πρὸς ταῦτα· 'μακάριός ἐστι Λυκῆρος τοιαύτην σοφίαν ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ ἑαυτοῦ κεκτημένος.' τοὺς οὖν συμφωνηθέντας φόρους παραδοὺς τῷ Αἰσώπῳ, ἐν εἰρήνῃ ἀπέστειλεν. Αἴσωπος δ' εἰς Βαβυλῶνα παραγενόμενος, διεξῆλθέ τε Λυκῆρῳ τὰ ἐν Αἰγύπτῳ πραχθέντα ταῦτα καὶ τοὺς φόρους ἀπέδωκε. Λυκῆρος δ' ἐκέλευσεν ἀνδριάντα χρυσοῦν τῷ Αἰσώπῳ ἀνατεθῆναι.

¹ Sic! lege πύλας.

THE STORY OF AHIKAR

enounce riddles, of things we never heard nor saw.' This seemed agreeable to Nectenabo, so he called Aesop and said: 'Enounce us, Aesop, a riddle of somewhat we nor heard nor saw.' Said he, 'I will answer thee of this to-morrow.' So he went away and composed a letter in which it was contained that Nectenabo admits that he owes a thousand talents to Lykeros, and on the morrow he returned to the king and gave him the document. But the friends of the king, before the paper was opened, cried out together, 'We both know this and have heard it, and we truly understand it.' Said Aesop, 'Thank you for your answer.' But Nectenabo took and read the admission of the debt. Said he: 'You all bear witness that I owe nothing to Lykeros.' And they took him up and said, 'We neither saw nor heard of it.' Whereat Aesop: 'And if the thing is really so, your inquiry is answered.' To which Nectenabo said, 'Happy is Lykeros who has such wisdom in his kingdom.' So he handed over to Aesop the tribute as agreed, and sent him away in peace.

And Aesop, when he reached Babylon, discoursed to Lykeros of all that had taken place, and delivered to him the tribute. And Lykeros bid that a statue of gold should be set up to Aesop.

FRAGMENTS OF A ZADOKITE WORK

INTRODUCTION

§ I. SHORT ACCOUNT OF THE ZADOKITE PARTY AND INCIDENTALLY OF THE BOOK.

WRITTEN towards the close of the first century B.C. in good Hebrew,¹ our book represents the beliefs and expectations of a body of reformers who sprang up in the second century B.C. within the priesthood, as the Pharisees had within the laity, and called themselves, at all events in the first century, 'the Sons of Zadok'.² The reformation, in which they were the chief movers, was the result of a slow but steady religious revival, which took place between the years 196 and 176 B.C. or thereabouts (i. 6), and which culminated at the close of this period in the formation of a Party within the priesthood. This Party—'the penitents of Israel'—appears to have attempted the reform of irregularities connected with the Temple (§ 10. i), but having failed in the attempt they left Jerusalem and the cities of Israel, either voluntarily or under compulsion, and withdrew to Damascus under the leadership of 'the Star', otherwise designated as 'the Lawgiver' (§ 10. i), where they established the 'New Covenant'—'the Covenant of Repentance'. Thus the first breach of the Party was with their brethren the Sadducean priesthood. After the institution of the New Covenant, the Party appears to have returned from Damascus and made the cities of Israel the sphere of their missionary efforts. For an unspecified period of years till the coming of the Teacher of Righteousness, they were to obey faithfully the interpretation of the Law laid down by the Lawgiver above referred to. It was probably during this period that they first came into open antagonism with the Pharisees—an antagonism which grew in bitterness with the growing years. The most virulent attacks in our book are directed against the Pharisees (§ 10. ii). The ground for these attacks can be best understood from the knowledge of the origin of the Party. The movement that gave them birth was of an intensely ethical and religious character, and naturally tended to lead them to recognize the Prophets as of great worth, even if not of equal worth with the Law, and therein to differentiate themselves from both Pharisee and Sadducee. This was one cause of the breach with the Pharisees. Another arose from the fact that whereas the Pharisees were upholding and developing a vast body of oral tradition, the reformed Sadducees (i. e. our Party) absolutely opposed its acceptance except in a few particulars. They clung fast to the written Law and would have none of the oral. While the Pharisees called their school or college 'the House of Midrash', our Party designated theirs as 'the House of the Law'. Furthermore, since they claimed to represent the true Israel, especially on the priestly side, to them belonged the covenants and the priestly functions, and the rights of teaching and judging Israel—which latter functions had been usurped by the Pharisees; to them also belonged the Temple at Jerusalem as their Sanctuary, to them belonged Jerusalem, 'the holy city' (§ 10. iii).

The precepts of the Law as expounded by the Lawgiver were to be obeyed till the coming of the Teacher of Righteousness. This Teacher was to come 'in the end of the days'. It was probably during this time that the Party assumed the name 'the Sons of Zadok' (§ 10. iv).

After the death of the 'Teacher of Righteousness', whose teaching and activities are not recounted—a fact which points to the defectiveness of our MSS.—a considerable period elapses, much more than forty years. We have now arrived at the date of our author. He is living 'in the end of the days', and the advent of the Messiah 'from Aaron and Israel' is momentarily looked for. If I am right in my interpretation of this phrase, the Messiah was to be a son of Mariamne and Herod (i. e. from Aaron and Israel), and the book was therefore written between 18 and 8 B.C. Herod put his two sons to death in 8 B.C., since they were the popular idols of the nation, and so this hope, like so many that preceded it, failed to reach fulfilment (§ 12).

¹ There are some Aramaisms and Rabbinic expressions in the text, but the Hebrew is good on the whole.

² The Party, though originating apparently with the priests and Levites, came to embrace a strong lay element, just as the Pharisaic party, though in the main a lay movement, came ultimately to embrace a section of the priests.

FRAGMENTS OF A ZADOKITE WORK

The later history of the Sons of Zadok is buried in all but impenetrable gloom. It is, however, not at all improbable that many of their members joined the Christian Church (§ 10. vi). For their appreciation of the Prophets—unparalleled in legalistic Judaism; their insistent preaching on the need of repentance; their constant proclamation of God's readiness to forgive the repentant; their expectation of a Messiah (and just at this period) and of a future life—all these beliefs and hopes prepared them to accept Christianity, and accordingly it is not unreasonable to conclude that they formed part of the 'great company of the priests that became obedient to the faith' (Acts vi. 7).

§ 2. THE TITLE.

Our book, which in its present form is only fragmentary, was most probably called 'The Book of Zadok' or some such designation. We draw this inference from the statements of Kirkisani, a Karaite scholar, who wrote in the tenth century A.D. and appears to have had our book or one closely resembling it before him. In his Kitab al-Anwar ('Book of Lights') he states (1) that Zadok was the first to attack the Rabbinites. This is true of our author, who attacks fiercely the Pharisees of his time. Kirkisani further states (2) that Zadok absolutely forbade divorce: so our author in vii. 1; (3) that Zadok did not support by proofs the laws he laid down save in case of his forbidding a man to marry his niece—the daughter of his brother or sister—on the ground that these connexions were already prohibited in Lev. xviii. 13, being analogous to the forbidden connexion of a man with his aunt on the father or mother's side: so in our author, vii. 9-10.

It is worth observing also that in i. 1*a* there is a play on the name Zadok, also that the Zadokites ascribed to a Zadok the merit of having rediscovered the Law, vii. 6. Who this Zadok was can hardly be determined. In v. 7 'the Priests and the Levites and the sons of Zadok' are mentioned. From the explanation of these words in vi. 1-2 it is clear that the Priests and Levites represent the original priestly founders of the Party, and that the expression 'Sons of Zadok' designates their spiritual successors 'at the end of the days'.

§ 3. THE MSS.

The text is preserved in two MSS. in the University Library, Cambridge, which are designated respectively as T.-S. 10 K. 6 and T.-S. 16. 311. After the precedent of Schechter, who presented them to the Library and issued the editio princeps, they will hereafter be called A and B.

A, which embraces the entire work so far as it exists except ix. 28-54, consists of eight leaves $8\frac{1}{2} \times 7\frac{1}{8}$ in. The first eight pages have twenty-one lines on each page, pages 9-12 have twenty-three lines on each page. As regards 13-16 the number of lines is uncertain owing to the mutilation of the bottom of the pages, but was probably twenty-three—there were at least twenty-two lines on pages 13 and 14. This mutilation extends in a slight degree to the edges of the leaves.

This MS. belongs according to Schechter to the tenth century, but the writing is of a decidedly careless description. ך and ך are frequently confused, and ך is occasionally so large as to resemble ך. ך and ך are likewise confused.

B consists of a single leaf, $13\frac{1}{2} \times 8$ in., of the eleventh or twelfth century and is a more careful reproduction than A. There are thirty-four lines on each page. These two pages contain viii. 20-ix. 3, 10-54, thus preserving ix. 28-54, which has been lost in A, as well as ix. 11. That the MSS. were freely dealt with will be manifest from a comparison of ix. 3, where A gives a quotation from Isa. vii. 17, whereas instead of it B gives a quotation from Zech. xiii. 7.

§ 4. THE HEBREW TEXT AND ITS PHRASEOLOGY.

The text is on the whole fairly preserved, though there are many corruptions. Most of these can be emended with tolerable certainty. The rest can only be tentatively restored.

The language is in itself a witness to an ancient epoch. It is good Hebrew enriched by a few Aramaisms like the Book of Daniel and Sirach, though in a less degree. It contains also a few Mishnaic and Talmudic expressions, but in certain cases the phrases in question bear a different meaning in post-Biblical Jewish literature. The language, as has been generally recognized, is not that of the Mishnah, the Midrashim, or the Talmud.

Like Sirach, our author makes constant use of O. T. diction, but, unlike him, he quotes its text frequently in the name of the writer. At times our text is of the nature of a mosaic of O. T. phrases.

The language is, as we have said, pure Biblical Hebrew, but interspersed with a few phrases which are not Biblical and are not attested save in Mishnaic or Talmudic Hebrew. Those of a Talmudic character may be due to the substitutions of later scribes. Some of these can be supported from Jewish pre-Christian literature. Thus נגלגל השמש 'the sun's orb', xiii. 1, is clearly the Hebrew implied by 1 Enoch lxxviii. 4: חבור ישראל 'the community of Israel', xiv. 8, is supported by the inscription on the Maccabean coins; see note in loc.: להרשותו 'allowing', xiv. 1; cf. Sirach iii. 22, הורשית 'thou art allowed': המוכן 'that which has been prepared', xiii. 8, implied in Jub. ii. 29, 1. 9.

INTRODUCTION

Others which have not such ancient support are פרוש ii. 8 (note), הבריאה 'the creation' vii. 3—a Talmudic word; העריות 'sexual intercourse' vii. 11; למשכים 'on the following morning' xiii. 5 (note); מובה 'entrance' xiii. 16 (see note); ממון 'wealth' xviii. 9 (note); מדוקדק xix. 14 (see note).¹

All the preceding words are authenticated in their use in our text by parallels in earlier or later Jewish literature; but there are some expressions, as might be expected, which are more or less unique in the meaning that must be attached to them in this book. Thus סרך ix. 1, &c., which means 'order', 'arrangement', &c., is unexampled in Hebrew in this sense, but it is found in Aramaic (see note on ix. 1). Again, בית השתחוח 'the house of worship', xiv. 2, is as a name of the Temple or a Synagogue ἀπ. λεγ. Again, the word המבקר 'the censor', x. 10 (note), xvi. 1 (note), is used in Jewish literature, but not in the sense attributed to it in our text. Again, the term מעמר = 'office' (ii. 8 note), has in our text a nuance of its own, but Jewish literature furnishes fairly good analogies.

Finally, the term זמן (see i. 5 note) must, I think with Lévi, Bacher, and Lagrange, be rendered 'period' or 'division of time'. No true parallel for this use of the word appears to occur elsewhere, though it is easy to see how it could mean 'a final period'.

§ 5. THE ZADOKITES WERE A PARTY AND NOT A SECT.

Since there is no question as to the genuineness of the orders of the Zadokite Priests and Levites, and since further their Sanctuary, which is so often referred to (see note on i. 3), is, as Lévi has recognized, the Temple in Jerusalem, it follows that the Zadokites were not a heterodox Sect but a Party within Judaism. They were no more a Sect than the Pharisees. It is true that even the Pharisees are described as a Sect (αἵρεσις) in Acts xv. 5, xxvi. 5, Joseph. Vita 38; the Sadducees in Acts v. 17, Joseph. Ant. xx. 9. 1, and the Christians in Acts xxiv. 5, 14, xxviii. 22; but its application to the two former is a misuse of the term. If, however, we use this term of the Pharisees and Sadducees, there can be no objection to its application in the same sense to the Zadokites. But since the term is in itself misleading we shall only speak of the Party of the Zadokites.

§ 6. DATE OF THE ORIGINAL.

The limits of time between which our book appears to have been written seem clear. Since the Book of Jubilees is referred to (xx. 1) it must have been written after 106 B.C. This forms the terminus a quo. The terminus ad quem is no less obvious; for the Temple is still standing (see note on i. 3, where it is shown that the Sanctuary so often referred to is the Temple).² Thus our book was written between 106 B.C. and 70 A.D.

But it may be possible to define these limits more closely, and fix on one or other of two periods within these limits.

(i) If the nation was free from foreign control, as might be inferred from our entire text, with the exception of the doubtful passage in x. 1, then it was written before Pompey seized Jerusalem in 63 B.C., or before Judaea was made a Roman province by Gabinius in 57 B.C. This would bring the composition of the book within the years 106–57 B.C.

¹ Schechter treats חבו 'incurred guilt', iv. 9, as a Rabbinic term. But it is found in the Piel in Dan. i. 10, and critics read חבתי for סבתי in 1 Sam. xxii. 22, in accordance with the LXX, Vulg. and Pesh. Again, דם זונה 'the blood of her issue', vii. 8, is a Biblical expression (cf. Lev. xv. 19 בנשרה זונה יהיה דם), and not merely a Rabbinic one.

² In addition to the grounds given in i. 3 as proofs that the Temple was still standing when our book was written, is to be mentioned the fact that nowhere is the destruction of the Second Temple so much as hinted at. Had it already occurred our author could not have omitted such an argument in support of his attack on the Pharisees. For it is characteristic of his method to trace the great national calamities of the Jews to their unfaithfulness to God. This, he declares, was the ground of the Captivity in 586 B.C., and the destruction of the First Temple, i. 3 sqq. The same unfaithfulness (ix. 17–19) led to the desolation of Judaea and Jerusalem under Antiochus Epiphanes (ix. 20). And yet, notwithstanding such judgements in the past, 'the builders of the wall' (i.e. the Pharisees), our author complains, persist in their evil ways (ix. 21). Now, if the Second Temple had been already destroyed, this latest and overwhelming judgement could not have been passed over. Our author would have pressed it home as an irresistible proof of their guilt. That he did not do so is no accident. It was an event still in the future.

FRAGMENTS OF A ZADOKITE WORK

Some statements partially support this date. (a) The expectation of the Messiah from Aaron and Israel, ii. 10, viii. 2, ix. 10 (B), 29 (B), xv. 4, xviii. 8. This expectation arose, as we know, in connexion with the Maccabean family, and probably persisted only in connexion with that family. But for the peculiar statement 'from Aaron and Israel', we could with some reason infer that the Maccabees were still ruling. (b) The halacha are severer than those in the Talmud and are closely related in some respects to those in the Book of Jubilees. (c) ix. 39, which speaks of 'the men of war' who marched with 'the man of lies' during forty years, would apply tolerably to Jannaeus, who was rightly an object of unmixed hatred to all the faithful of his time. He was a great warrior and his troops were ever on the march. It may, however, be objected that this king reigned not forty but twenty-six years. But to surmount this difficulty it is only necessary to suppose that the book was written during his lifetime, and that the writer expected an evil period of forty years like that in the wilderness. We have a good parallel in the 'Assumption of Moses', where the author predicts that the sons of Herod would reign for a shorter period than their father. This prediction was falsified.

If the above reasoning were valid, our book was probably written between 106 and 58 B. C. But there are stronger grounds for a later date.

(ii) Our book was most probably written between 18 B. C. and A. D. 70, or possibly between 18 B. C. and 8 B. C. The grounds for these dates are as follows: (a) x. 1 does seem to imply political subjection on the part of the Jews. Hence our author wrote after 63 or 57 B. C. (b) The phrase 'man of lies' receives its most easy explanation as applied to Herod the Great, who reigned forty-one years. The phrase 'man of lies' is eminently fitting for a prince who was wholly devoid of principle and religion. The 'men of war' who went with him were his fierce soldiery—all mercenaries, Galatians, Thracians, Germans—who on the slightest uprising struck down relentlessly on every side.¹ Now, if these identifications are valid, our book was written either during Herod's life, 37 B. C.—A. D. 4, or after Herod's death, accordingly as we take the forty years in our text as a prediction or as recording a fact already past. The next piece of evidence—the peculiar form of the Messianic expectation—favours the former alternative. (c) The Messiah was to arise from Aaron and from Israel. See § 12. This implies that he was not to be purely of Levitic or priestly descent, but to be sprung from Levi (i. e. the Maccabees) and some other tribe of Israel. Now when all the direct male descendants of the Maccabees were put to death directly or indirectly by Herod—Antigonus II in B. C. 37, Antigonus III, the brother of Mariamne, in 35 B. C., Hyrcanus II in 30 B. C.—there remained only Mariamne, the wife of Herod, who represented the royal Maccabean house both on her father's and her mother's side and all its claims, and the two sons of Mariamne and Herod, Alexander and Aristobulus. In 29 B. C. Mariamne was executed on a false charge by Herod, and so her two sons Alexander and Aristobulus might reasonably be described as descended from Aaron and Israel, seeing that Mariamne was of Aaronic descent alike on her father's and her mother's side, and Herod was said to be a Jew (Jos. Ant. xx. 8. 7; cf. xiv. 1. 3), and the Herodian family regarded themselves as Jews, though they were at times reminded that they were only half Jews (Ant. xiv. 15. 2). These two young men were held in high esteem by the nation owing to their descent on their mother's side and their own brilliant qualities (Ant. xvi. 1. 2), and it is quite possible that the Zadokite Party may have cherished the hope that one of them might become the Messiah, just as similar hopes had arisen in connexion with the earlier Maccabees in the second century B. C. If this be so, our book was probably written between 18 B. C. (when these youths returned to Jerusalem after finishing their education in Rome) and 8 B. C., when they were put to death by their father. With their death the hope of a Messiah arising from the Maccabean family must have finally perished.² Hence it is not improbable that our book was written during the lifetime of these young princes.

§ 7. INTEGRITY OF THE TEXT.

(i) Our text is incomplete. This is obvious even on the most cursory examination. Its end is missing, and probably large portions of the rest of the text as at the close of ix. In the case of the ¹ Herod treated the Sadducees with the utmost rigour. He executed forty-five of the ablest and wealthiest of their party, and confiscated their estates (Jos. Ant. xv. 1. 2; xiv. 9. 4; Bell. Jud. i. 18. 4). The hatred of the priesthood for Herod is therefore very intelligible.

² Both Alexander and Aristobulus left sons, the former having married Glaphyra, the daughter of Archelaus, king of Cappadocia, and the latter Bernice, the daughter of Salome. But the descendants of Alexander abandoned Judaism, and the descendants of Aristobulus, being three-fourths Herodian in blood, could not represent the priestly and royal house of the Maccabees, while their infamous character in itself was enough to alienate the few, if any, surviving hopes that attached to this great family.

INTRODUCTION

A text we see that after ix. 28 there is a loss of twenty-six verses, which have happily been preserved in the B text.

(ii) Our text is in great disorder. The question of vows is introduced in ix. 1, and then ignored till xx. 2-12. The enumeration of the laws of the Sabbath is given in xiii. 1-11, broken off in xiii. 12 and resumed in xiii. 13, broken off in xiii. 27 and resumed in xiv. 6. The duties of the Censor are dealt with in xvi. 1-12, and again in xvii. 6-7. The laws as to Uncleanness are scattered here and there throughout chapters xii-xv, i.e. in xii. 1-2, xiii. 12, xiv. 1-3, 7-16, xv. 1-3.

(iii) Our text may be based on an earlier document or documents. This appears to be so in i. 5, where there is a prose insertion in the midst of verse. A still more obvious prose addition is to be found in ii. 8. Yet these prose additions are in character with the later chapters of the book.

§ 8. ATTITUDE OF THE PARTY TO THE O. T. AND OTHER ANCIENT JEWISH BOOKS.

We have here a very interesting question. We have to inquire into the attitude of the Party towards the various sections of the O. T., i.e. the Law, the Prophets, and the Hagiographa. In this inquiry we shall, for the present, take account only of those passages which are introduced by such significant expressions as כאשר אמר, אשר אמר, &c. Afterwards we shall deal with those passages which are actually quotations, but which are not introduced as such. By a study of these two classes of passages, we shall be able to determine the respective values our author set on the three divisions of the O. T.

(i) Quotations from the O. T. introduced as such (a) but without mention of the speaker or writer.

(a) כאשר אמר (= καθὼς εἶπεν John i. 23, vii. 38: cf. καθὼς ἐλάλησε Luke i. 55, 70). This expression is used once of the Law, i.e. Num. xxx. 16 in ix. 1, and three times of the Prophets, i.e. Amos v. 26-7 in ix. 5, Amos ix. 11 in ix. 6, and Hosea iii. 4 in ix. 40. This usage, as we have seen above, is found in the N. T. also.

(b) אשר אמר (cf. προφήται . . . ὅσοι ἐλάλησαν Acts iii. 24, and ὁ λόγος Ἡσαίου . . . ὃν εἶπε John xii. 38). This expression is used twice of the Law, i.e. Lev. xix. 18 in x. 2, and Deut. xxiii. 24 in xx. 4: and twice of the Prophets, i.e. Hos. v. 11 in vii. 1 and Mic. vii. 2 in xx. 11. This usage also belongs to the N. T.

(c) כתוב (= γέγραπται Matt. iv. 4, 6, 7, 10, xxi. 13, &c.). This expression is used once of the Law, i.e. Deut. xvii. 17 in vii. 4, once of the Prophets, i.e. Nahum i. 2 in x. 3, once of the Hagiographa, i.e. Prov. xv. 8 in xiv. 1. It occurs also in xiii. 27, but the quotation is lost. This is the most usual of the N. T. usages.

(d) כאשר כתוב (= καθὼς γέγραπται Mark i. 2; Luke ii. 23; Rom. i. 17, iii. 10, &c.; ὡς γέγραπται Mark vii. 6; Luke iii. 4; καθὼς ἐστὶν γεγραμμένον John vi. 31). This expression is used of the Law, i.e. Num. xxiv. 17 in ix. 8.

(e) כנ (= ככתוב—practically the same as the preceding = κατὰ τὸ γεγραμμένον 2 Cor. iv. 13 (cf. καθάπερ γέγραπται Rom. iii. 4, ix. 13, &c.—Westcott and Hort)). This expression is used of the Law, i.e. Deut. vii. 9 in viii. 21 (B).

(β) With mention of the speaker or writer.

(a) אשר אמר אל (cf. ὃν ἐλάλησεν ὁ θεὸς διὰ στόματος τ. ἁγίων . . . προφητῶν Acts iii. 21). This expression is used twice of the Law, i.e. Deut. xxxii. 33 in ix. 19 and Lev. xix. 17 in x. 5 (אל אשר אמר), and once of the Prophets, i.e. Mal. i. 10 in viii. 11.

(b) אשר אמר משה. This expression is used of the Law, i.e. Deut. ix. 5 and vii. 8 in ix. 23 (A B). In vii. 10 we have ומשה אמר (= Μωυσῆς εἶπεν Mark vii. 10; Acts iii. 22) used of Lev. xviii. 13.

(c) אשר אמר ישעיה in viii. 8 from Isa. liv. 16.

(d) אשר אמר ביד יחזקאל in ix. 11 (B) from Ezek. ix. 4.

(e) אשר כתוב ביד זכריה in ix. 2 (B) from Zech. xiii. 7.

(f) כתוב בדברי ישעיה in ix. 2 (A) from Isa. vii. 17.

If we summarize the above facts, we find that, while the Hagiographa is expressly quoted once, the Law is quoted ten times and the Prophets eleven times. Thus in the eyes of the Zadokite Party the Prophets were at all events not less important than the Law, though theoretically the Law was held in the highest honour: cf. xix. 2, 11, xx. 2, 7. In this respect this Party are at variance with the practice of Judaism as a whole after the year A.D. 70, but not with the Apocalyptic or more spiritual side of Pharisaism before the Christian era. The chief studies of Apocalyptic Pharisaism were devoted to Prophecy, and hence to them the Law and the Prophets were practically of equal worth, however differently they might view this question theoretically. At all events, in the Apocalyptic School of Pharisaism this practical equating of the Law and the Prophets was current, and in this respect the Zadokites approximated to this School, being no doubt influenced by it. We are not surprised, therefore, that in the N. T. the actual phrase 'the Law and the Prophets' is used frequently: cf. Matt. v. 17, vii. 12, xxii. 40; Luke xvi. 16 (xxiv. 44); John i. 45; Acts xiii. 15, xxiv. 14, xxviii. 23; Rom. iii. 21, and in the inverse order in Matt. xi. 13. The N. T. usage represents the culmination of this tendency which was at work in the preceding two centuries and more.

FRAGMENTS OF A ZADOKITE WORK

But in addition to the O. T. books our Party assigned to other writings a canonical or a deutero-canonical value¹. For in vi. 10 we have the expression 'concerning which Levi the Son of Jacob spake' (אשר אמר עליהם לוי בן יעקב), the source being probably the Test. Lev. ix. 9, xiv. 5-6, xvi. 1. In xi. 4 there is a quotation drawn apparently from Jub. xxiii. 11, and the title of this book is given in full in xx. 1. Possibly to both these books a quasi-canonical authority was accorded. Another book—hitherto wholly unknown—is 'the Book of the Hagu' in xi. 2, xv. 5, xvii. 5. From the contexts in which it is mentioned it seems to have contained traditional decisions. The ten judges of each congregation (xi. 1-2) were to be thoroughly versed in it (cf. xv. 5). These judges were both clerical and lay. Associated with this book is another entitled the 'Ordinances (or 'Foundations') of the Covenant' (xi. 2). This work probably contained the statutes of the New Covenant which was drawn up at Damascus. Again, in vii. 19 we have mention of the apocryph entitled 'Jannes and Jambres'. Finally, in ix. 28 A there may be an allusion to two Pseud-epigraphs—'This is the word which Jeremiah spake to Baruch the son of Neriah, and Elisha to his servant Gehazi'.

In these two respects: 1° in the recognition of the Prophets as pretty much on the same level as the Law; 2° in the use and even the quasi-canonical recognition of a body of Pseudepigraphs, the Zadokite Party is like most of the intensely religious parties in Palestine before the Christian era; for all these parties edited Pseudepigraphs.

§ 9. The Zadokite Party had its Origin in the Priesthood (i. e. the Sadducees) but was closely related to the Pharisees.

The Zadokite Party represents an attempt at reform beginning within the ranks of the priesthood and extending outwards so as to embrace a strong lay element (xi. 2, xvii. 1-3), just as the Pharisaic movement was an attempt at reform initiated on the side of the laity but ultimately embracing a large section of the priesthood.

We have already come to the conclusion (§ 5) that the Zadokites formed a Party and not a Sect in Judaism. We have now to determine, so far as we may, the position and affinities of this Party in relation to the Samaritans, Essenes, Pharisees, and Sadducees. In the course of this comparison many of the distinctive teachings of this party will come to light.

1° The Zadokites were not Samaritans. The Zadokites were not Samaritans; for not only did they acknowledge the canonicity of the Prophets and Hagiographa, which the Samaritans denied, but they set on these two divisions of the O. T. a higher value than the legalistic side of Pharisaism.

2° The Zadokites were not Essenes. The Zadokites were not Essenes, since they inculcated the duty of animal sacrifice, xiii. 27; xiv. 1.

3° The Zadokites were related in point of origin and name to the Sadducees, but were not Sadducees in the ordinary sense but a reformed Sadduceeism. The two names are the same in Hebrew, צדוקים. The Zadokites called themselves 'sons of Zadok' בני צדוק, vi. 2, and this was also the name of the priests: cf. Sir. li. 12⁹ (Hebrew) הודו לבוחר בבני צדוק לכהן 'Praise Him who chose the sons of Zadok to be priests'. With this designation in Sirach cf. Ezek. xl. 46, xlv. 15, xlviii. 11; 1 Chron. xxix. 22. Thus the Party did not choose a new name but retained the name to which they had a right as priests and Levites. By so doing they no doubt claimed to be the true 'sons of Zadok' as opposed to the Sadducean priesthood. For, though they belonged in point of origin to the Sadducean priesthood, they came to differ essentially from them through internal reform and the adoption of new tenets. Theirs was a reformed Sadduceeism.

(a) They believed in a blessed future life, v. 6. So also the priestly author of the Book of Jubilees believed.

(b) They believed in the advent of the Messiah, ii. 10 (B), &c.

(c) They cultivated an ascetic form of life, viii. 12-20, as opposed to the self-indulgent life of the Sadducees: and shunned the wealth of the Temple, viii. 12, but the meaning of this passage is doubtful.

(d) They set a value on the Prophets and Hagiographa which the Sadducees would wholly have repudiated.²

¹ In Test. Lev. x. 5 there is an express quotation from 1 Enoch lxxxix. 54. This recognition of Pseudepigraphs was very general before A. D. 70. Whatever the Law was in theory, these books formed the living literature of the most ardent spirits of the time. The Book of Daniel is simply the most prominent member of this class.

² That in our Lord's time the main body of the Sadducees accepted only the Pentateuch as normative is clear from the fact that the only argument He used in favour of a future life in His debate with them was drawn from the Pentateuch. The same argument was used by the Samaritans for the same purpose. See Encyc. Bib. iv. 4240.

INTRODUCTION

(e) They attacked the Hellenizing priesthood, ix. 19-20. 'Their wine is the poison of dragons': i. e. they adopt the ways of the Greeks.

(f) They recognized a certain amount of tradition, whereas the Sadducees rejected all but the written Law. Cf. Jos. Ant. xiii. 10. 6. In the middle of the first century B. C. there was a great strife between the Pharisees and Sadducees, in which the former won the day under the leadership of Simon ben Shetach and Judas ben Tabbai. So overjoyed were the Pharisees over this victory, i. e. of oral tradition over the letter of the written Law, that they instituted a festival to commemorate it (Meg. Taan. iv).

(g) They accused Israel of 'despising the prophets', ix. 7. This charge could not have been brought by a purely Sadducean priest but only by a reformed Sadducean priest.

4° The Zadokites were related in many respects to the Pharisees but were not Pharisees. They were related in many respects; for

(a) They believed in a blessed future life, v. 6.

(b) " " angels and spirits, vi. 9, ix. 12 (ii. 4).

(c) " " the advent of the Messiah, ii. 10, &c.

(d) " " a certain body of tradition.

(e) " " the divine predestination, ii. 6, 10 c, and yet in free-will, iii. 1-2, 7, iv. 2, 10.

(f) They required separation from the people of the land, ix. 18.

But in many respects they were opposed to the Pharisees.

(a) The attack on 'the builders of the wall', vii. 1, ix. 21, 26, can be best explained in reference to the Pharisees and the abnormal growth of oral tradition (see note on ix. 21). The Pharisees 'removed the landmark', viii. 1, and they made the written Law of none effect by their tradition.

(b) The Zadokites forbade divorce, vii. 1-3, which was permitted freely by the Pharisees. Hence the charge of fornication brought against the Pharisees in vii. 1.

(c) The charges of robbing the Temple offerings may have been directed against them. Simon ben Shetach, the chief Pharisee of the reign of Jannaeus, was charged with this offence: see viii. 12 note. But the text may be interpreted differently (see (g) below).

(d) While it was the practice of the Rabbis to derive halacha from the Pentateuch almost universally, the Zadokites, owing to the higher estimation in which they held the Prophets, founded halacha on their writings. Thus halacha are derived, x. 4, from Nahum i. 2; in x. 6 from 1 Sam. 26, 31; in xiii. 16 from Jer. xvii. 21, 22, 24, 27 (cf. Neh. xiii. 19)—a regulation adopted also in the Mishna; in xiv 1 from Prov. xv. 8.

(e) The Zadokites, like the Sadducees ('Erub vi. 2), were opposed to the Pharisaic principle of the 'Erub, i. e. the combination of several private precincts in order to justify the carrying of food and vessels from one house to another on the Sabbath day: see our text xiii. 16.

(f) Our text in xiv. 15 (see note ad fin.) seems to extend the power of contamination from direct to indirect contact. This legislation was due to the Sadducees, Y'ad. iv. 7.

(g) Possibly the difficult words 'to hold aloof . . . from the wealth of the Sanctuary' (viii. 12) may be interpreted as referring to the Sadducean contention that the daily burnt-offering (Num. xxviii. 4) should be offered at the personal cost of the High Priest: whereas the Pharisees maintained that it should be provided as national sacrifice by the Temple treasury.

(h) The Zadokites charged the Pharisees with profaning the Temple through sexual pollution, vii. 8: with allowing a man to marry his niece, vii. 9—an act in which some of the Rabbis actually gloried: with disturbing the Sabbaths and festivals through their revolutionary reforms of the Calendar, v. 2 (see note). Though the details are not given they can be discovered by means of Jubilees and the Talmud. The Pharisees further were charged with usurping (i. 11) the judicial functions of the priesthood, vi. 4. Hence their judgements could not be right.

From the first of these two lists it appears that the Zadokite party were closely related to the Pharisees in their eschatological doctrines (a, b, c), in their acceptance of a limited measure of tradition, (d) in their views on predestination and free-will, and in their insistence on separation from the people of the land (e, f). On the other hand, from the second list it is clear that on several important questions as tradition, divorce, and the source of halacha they were opposed to the legalistic Pharisees, and in certain others mentioned under e, f, (g?), h, they held fast to the positions maintained by the Sadducean priesthood. From these two facts, combined with the facts stated under 3°, the natural conclusion is that *the Zadokites had their origin in the priesthood and formed a party within it but a reforming party, the reformation being due largely to the Apocalyptic side of Pharisaism as is shown by the extreme importance attached to O. T. prophecy and the advanced views on Eschatology.*¹ The fact that they used the literature that supported the claims of the Maccabees (i.e. Test. Twelve Patr. and Jubilees) would in part account for their looking forward to a Messiah sprung from the Maccabees, but see § 12.

¹ The Zadokites, owing to the high estimation they placed on O. T. prophecy, would naturally have been predisposed to accept Christianity, even in a greater degree possibly than the Apocalyptic side of Pharisaism. They may have formed part, at all events, of the 'great company of the priests' that became 'obedient to the faith' (Acts vi. 7).

FRAGMENTS OF A ZADOKITE WORK

§ 10. THE PRINCIPAL EVENTS IN THE HISTORY OF THE ZADOKITE PARTY.

About 390 years after the fall of Jerusalem, i.e. 196 B.C. God had mercy on His people and 'visited them,

And He made to spring forth from Israel and Aaron
A root of His planting to inherit His land' (i. 5).

The order in this statement is remarkable, i.e. not 'from Aaron and Israel', but 'from Israel and Aaron'. If this order is original it seems to indicate that the religious revival referred to in i. 5-6 originated on the side of the laity. In other words, it was the same great lay movement that gave birth to the Pharisaic Party and likewise to the Zadokite, but, whereas in the case of the former the lay element always remained paramount, in the case of the latter the priestly element held unquestioned sway.¹

I will now place under separate heads the chief stages in the actual as well as the expected developments of the Zadokite Party.

(i) Rise of the Party and its breach with the Sadducean Priesthood. When God visited His people about 196 B.C. there ensued a period of spiritual unrest which lasted for twenty years, during which Israel 'groped after the way', and came to know that 'they were guilty men', i. 6. What followed immediately on this religious revival we can gather by reading between the lines. For from their vigorous action later we are justified first of all in inferring that this religious revival led to action, and in the next place, from their subsequent protest, which runs through several chapters, against the profanation of the Temple by the (Hellenizing) priests and others, we may reasonably conclude that the first public act of the Zadokite Party was the denunciation of the irregularities connected with the Temple worship in more scathing and irreconcilable terms than had been used by Malachi the prophet and 1 Enoch. But when in this attempt at reform they failed to gain the support of the people (cf. 1 Enoch xc. 6-7), they migrated either voluntarily or under compulsion to Damascus, vi. 1, possibly soon after 176 B.C., under the leadership of 'the Star', ix. 8, whose advent had been foretold in Num. xxiv. 17.

(ii) The establishment of the New Covenant of Repentance and the subsequent breach of the Party with the Pharisees. 'The Star' just referred to is likewise called 'the Lawgiver' (מחקק), viii. 5, 8, 9. He was not a lawgiver in the sense of Moses, but rather an interpreter of the Law. Of the Star, as of the Lawgiver, the outstanding characteristic is that 'he studied the Law', viii. 8, ix. 8. Under this Lawgiver the religious side of the movement culminated at Damascus in the establishment of 'the new Covenant' (הברית החדשה), viii. 15, ix. 28, 37—the covenant foretold by Jeremiah xxxi. 30 sqq., though this claim is not advanced by our author. This covenant was fittingly called 'the covenant of repentance' (ברית תשובה), ix. 15 (B)), seeing that the Party as a whole originated in a conviction of their sinfulness before God, i. 6, and that they designated themselves as 'the penitents of Israel' (שבוי ישראל), vi. 1, viii. 6, ix. 24; for they 'repented of their transgression', ii. 3, ix. 41; and dwelt frequently on the fact and the marvellousness of the divine forgiveness, ii. 3, v. 5, vi. 6, ix. 54, xviii. 8. To them the words of Ezekiel xlv. 15 were addressed, v. 7, and thus they alone formed the true priesthood of Israel, vi. 1-2.

Under the leadership of the Lawgiver the Party established itself resolutely on the lines of the written Law. In this task he was assisted by the other members of the Party, viii. 5.

'A well the princes digged,
The nobles of the people delved it
By the order of the Lawgiver.'

'The well' here, as our author explains, is 'the Law', and 'they who digged it are the penitents of Israel', viii. 6. But 'the Law' is not to be understood in the narrow sense of the Pentateuch. It embraces the Prophets and the Hagiographa. From the standpoint of the latter can be explained their adoption of certain tenets of the higher theology, which, from the standpoint of unreformed Sadduceism, would have been impossible (see §§ 8 and 9. 3^o).

It was most probably the intensely ethical and religious character of the revival in which the ¹ But it is to be observed that in viii. 3, where the same movement is referred to, its leaders are described as being raised by God 'from Aaron . . . and from Israel'. These words would represent the religious reformation as due to the joint efforts of the priests and the laity.

INTRODUCTION

Zadokite Party originated that led to their recognition of the Prophets as of equal value with the Law. It is this equal recognition of the Law and the Prophets that differentiates the Zadokite Party alike from the legalistic Pharisee and the unreformed Sadducee.

Taking their stand, therefore, on the written word, they charged the Pharisees with raising such a body of tradition (i. e. 'the wall' referred to in vii. 1, ix. 21, 26) round the written Law that it was made void (see § 9. 3°, 4°): with speaking rebellion against the Law and leading Israel astray, viii. 1, and despising the words of the Prophets, ix. 7. As the true representatives of the Law, they designated their Party as 'the House of the Law', ix. 35, 37, though it is possible that this phrase may mean the School or College belonging to their Party in which the Law was taught.¹

(iii) The Party claims to be the true Israel: hence the Temple was their Sanctuary, Jerusalem their holy city, and the cities of Israel the sphere of their missionary effort. The New Covenant was established by the leaders of the Party in Damascus, but from thence they returned to the land of Israel. There is not a hint that Damascus continued to be even one permanent place of sojourn of the Party among others, much less their head-quarters. Cf. viii. 6 with viii. 15, ix. 28, 37. For the true Israel as they claimed to be, heirs of all the divine promises, to whom belonged the Covenants, the priestly functions, the rights of teaching and judging Israel—which latter privileges had been usurped by the Pharisees—the Temple at Jerusalem (i. 3 note), in whose sacrifices they took part,² xiii. 27, and none other could be their Sanctuary, and Jerusalem and none other their Holy City, ix. 46, the city of their Sanctuary, ix. 46, xiv. 4, and all the cities of Israel were theirs to be instructed by them in the Law of God, xv. 1-3.

In all these cities the Zadokites organized themselves in congregations and assemblies, of which there are no less than five distinct Hebrew words used (see note on i. 17). Only the faithful members of the Party were allowed to share in their worship or take part in their counsels. To these a candidate for membership could be admitted only by the Censor, xvi. 6. Should a member of the Party profane the Sabbath or the Feasts he was to be excluded, and not to be restored for a period of seven years after his repentance, xiv. 6.

(iv) Period of obedience to the precepts of 'the Lawgiver' (or 'the Star') till the coming of the 'Teacher of Righteousness'. The Party henceforth called the 'Sons of Zadok'. 'Throughout the full period of the wickedness,' viii. 9 (cf. i. 5. note), the Zadokites were to walk according to the precepts laid down by the Lawgiver in accordance with the Law, viii. 9. All such as disobeyed these precepts were to be expelled from the congregation, ix. 31, and not reinstated until they returned to the degree of holy perfection, ix. 32. But in case they persisted in their apostasy, they and theirs should no longer have a share in the House of the Law, ix. 34-5. Besides these precepts they were to receive no fresh revelation or instruction till the 'Teacher of Righteousness' arose 'in the end of the days', viii. 10, i. 7 note. This last phrase is eschatological and indefinite, and does not help towards fixing the date of this Teacher. At all events, a probably considerable period elapsed between the founding of the New Covenant and his advent. From the fact that we are told nothing about the teaching of this Teacher of Righteousness, we may conclude the defectiveness of our MSS. The task of this Teacher, who was also designated the Unique Teacher, ix. 29, 39, 53, was apparently to prepare the way for the Messiah. Not improbably it was during the time of this Teacher that the Zadokites came to be known as, or assumed the name of, 'Sons of Zadok', for his time synchronizes with that of their assumption of this title—being both 'in the end of the days' (בְּאַחֲרֵית הַיָּמִים), vi. 2, compared with viii. 10.

(v) Period from the death of the Teacher of Righteousness to the expected advent of the Messiah. After the death of the Teacher of Righteousness a fresh interval elapsed before we come to any definite date. In ix. 39-41 a period of 'about forty years' is spoken of. These may count from the death of the Teacher, or they may begin at some year subsequent to his death. In any case we have arrived at a new epoch which is at least forty years after the death of the Teacher, and may be more. Since the Teacher came 'in the end of the days', viii. 10, and at least forty years have already run their course since his removal, it follows that we have now come to our author's own time. During these forty years those 'who repented of transgression in Jacob' had 'observed the Covenant of God', ix. 41, exhorting each other to 'hold fast to the way of God', ix. 42. But as for those who had been faithless, they were to be handed over to the sword when the Messiah³

¹ With this expression we might contrast the expression 'The House of Midrash' (בֵּית הַמִּדְרָשׁ), which meant the (Pharisaic) School or College in which the Law and its problems were studied. In the earlier days it designated the seat of the High Court of Justice, or of the Sanhedrin in the Temple and in Jabne. See Levy, Lex. iii. 34. In opposition to this phrase the Zadokites may have chosen deliberately the above expression 'the House of the Law'.

² On the other hand the Zadokite priests were not allowed to share in the Temple ritual unless under certain conditions, viii. 12-20.

³ The Messiah was apparently called also 'the Sceptre', ix. 9.

FRAGMENTS OF A ZADOKITE WORK

'from Aaron and Israel' comes, ix. 10, 29, xv. 4, xviii. 8. This event is still in the future. Now if I have been right in my interpretation of the peculiar phrase 'from Aaron and Israel' (see § 12), then the author wrote between the years 18 and 8 B.C. It is remarkable that, whereas a Pharisaic work—the Assumption of Moses—written shortly after this date abandoned wholly the hope of a Messiah, the present work, written by a priest, should just on the eve of the Christian era look forward earnestly to a militant Messiah, who should avenge his people, ix. 10, take upon himself the ruling of God's people and the settlement of all disputed questions, xv. 4.

(vi) The later history of the Zadokites can only be surmised. It is not at all improbable that some, if not many, of them joined the Christian Church. Their appreciation—unparalleled in Judaism—of the Prophets, their insistence on the need of repentance, their constant proclamation of the readiness of God to pardon the repentant, their expectation of the Messiah and of a blessed future life—all these beliefs and hopes would prepare them to accept Christianity, and accordingly it is not unreasonable to conclude that they formed part of the 'great company of the priests that became obedient to the faith' (Acts vi. 7).

(vii) Into the possible influence of the Zadokites on the Karaites, a Jewish Sect of the eighth century of the Christian era, we cannot enter here. The whole question is too doubtful to be discussed in the present connexion. Kirkisani, a Karaite scholar and exegete who flourished in the tenth century of our era, was, as we have already pointed out (§ 2), acquainted with our present text or with something very similar to it. That the Zadokites had any direct connexion with the Dosithean Sect is improbable in every way. According to the Ps. Tertullian (Adv. omnes Haereses, i) Dositheus was the first to deny the Prophets. If this statement is trustworthy, it is enough to prove that the Zadokites, who regarded the Prophets as of equal worth with the Law, had nothing whatever to do with the Dositheans. Rabbinical sources make Dositheus the founder of a Samaritan Sect (see Jewish Encyc. iv. 643). If this has any element of truth in it, the Dositheans could claim no affinity with the Zadokites. In fact Zadokites and Dositheans, from whatever source we derive our knowledge of the latter, are widely sundered on characteristic and essential doctrines. Agreement on minor points may be established, but these points of agreement were not peculiar to the two bodies with which we are concerned.¹

§ II. THE CONSTITUTION OF THE PARTY—THE FOUR ORDERS.

The Zadokite Party consisted of four Orders—Priests, Levites, Israelites, and Proselytes, xvii. 3. The governing body in each congregation (i. 17 note) was to consist of ten men chosen from the first three Orders, xi. 2, whose age was to be not less than twenty-five years and not more than sixty. These were to be called 'judges of the congregation', and were to be selected from the tribe of Levi and Aaron and from Israel, four from the former and six from Israel. This body was to be presided over by two men, who belonged to this number or were independent of it. The first of these was to be a priest from thirty to sixty years old, learned in the Book of the Hagu and in the judgements of the Law, xvii. 5, xv. 5. His duty was to number the members of the settlement according to their rank in the Four Orders, xvii. 1-5, to decide in regard to cases of leprosy, xv. 7-8, and generally to bear rule, xv. 5-6.

The second joint authority was the Censor (= מִבְּקֵר). On Jewish officials bearing this title, but with different functions, the reader should consult the notes on x. 10, xvi. 1. In our text this official, whose age was to be between thirty and fifty, xvii. 6, had very extensive duties. It was his task to give instruction to the many in the works of God, xvi. 1; to admit new members into the Party, xvi. 6 (xix. 10 sq.), assigning to each his proper place according to his personal powers and qualifications, xvi. 4; to examine and receive back the lapsed on their repentance, xix. 7-10; to administer the monthly alms of the congregation to those in need, xviii. 2 sqq.; to regulate suits and controversies, xvii. 8, xix. 12; to exercise control over all business with the Gentiles, xvi. 7-8; and to fulfil the functions of supreme judge in the case of capital and other offences, x. 10-13.

This organization was spread over the cities of Israel, xv. 1. Congregations or communities on the above model were formed in these cities, which met together in 'houses of worship', xiv. 2, for divine service. These buildings were secured against ceremonial uncleanness on the part of the worshippers, xiv. 2.

But the centre of the Party was Jerusalem—'the city of the Sanctuary', where the usual burnt sacrifices were offered, xiii. 27. The entire city, as the holy city, ix. 46, was to be kept pure from Levitical impurity, xiv. 4.

¹ On the Dositheans, see 'Dositheus' in Smith's Dict. of Christian Biography, i. 902-4; in Herzog and Plitt's Real-Encycl.; in the Jewish Encycl. iv. 643-4; and the literature cited in these articles; also Schechter, Fragments of a Zadokite Work, pp. xxi-xxvi.

INTRODUCTION

§ 12. THE MESSIAH—EXPECTED TO ARISE FROM AARON AND ISRAEL.

The Zadokite Party expected a Messiah not from Levi simply as in the Test. xii Patriarchs but 'from Aaron and from Israel', ii. 10, viii. 2, ix. 10 (B), 29 (B), xv. 4, xviii. 8. It must be confessed that the form of the expectation is peculiar and needs explanation. Since our author was acquainted with the Test. xii Patr., the fact that he does not simply repeat the expectation there entertained, but differentiates that of his Party from it, leads us to conclude that the difference of phraseology points to a real difference in the nature of the expectation. Since the Messiah was to be descended, not from Aaron simply, but 'from Aaron and from Israel', the additional words 'and from Israel' are surely significant. The priesthood was, of course, an hereditary privilege, and could only be passed on through the male line. As long as the succession from father to son was preserved the descent through the mother was immaterial; for the priests were not confined in their choice of wives to the Tribe of Levi. Not only could they marry any Israelite, but they could marry the daughter of a proselyte.¹ These facts make the phrase 'from Aaron and Israel' all the more strange. In the case of unbroken descent in the male line, the words 'and from Israel' would be wholly superfluous. Hence they cannot point to the maternal ancestry of the expected Messiah. If not to the maternal ancestry, then they can only refer to his paternal ancestry. If this reasoning is valid, it follows that the expected Messiah was to spring from Israel, i. e. from a non-priestly source, on his father's side, and from Aaron, i. e. from a priestly source, on his mother's. Such an expectation could only be explained, so far as I am aware, in reference to the two sons of Mariamne and Herod, i. e. Alexander and Aristobulus. Herod was an Israelite—see § 6. ii—while Mariamne combined in her own person all the royal claims of the Maccabean house. Since Alexander and Aristobulus were descended from Aaron on the spindle side, they could not legitimately inherit the priesthood. But the technically non-priestly character of Mariamne's sons could not stand in the way of the Messianic hopes attached to them by the Zadokite Party, since the all but universal expectation of Israel was directed to a Messiah sprung not from Levi but from Judah. But since the Zadokite Party rejected the expectation of a Messiah from Judah they described their expected Messiah as sprung from Aaron (i. e. from the Maccabees through Mariamne) and from Israel (i. e. from Herod).

But we can go a step further in defining the comprehension of the words 'and from Israel'. Since throughout our text there is a decided animus against Judah and the dynasty of David, we may fairly conclude that the Messiah was not expected to spring from Levi and Judah—which would have been a natural fusion of the two conflicting hopes—but from Aaron and an Israelite, who was not descended from Judah.

This hostility to the Davidic stock and to Judah is not an unmediated and unlooked-for phenomenon. The way had already been prepared for it in the struggles of the Jewish hierarchy to preserve its ancient prerogatives against the encroachments of the Pharisees and their followers. The hostility to the Davidic stock is already apparent in Sirach—the work of a priest or at all events an upholder of the high sacerdotal claims of that period. Lévi (L'Ecclésiastique, I. xxxvi) has drawn attention to Sirach's glorification of the priesthood at the expense of the kings. While only a few verses are assigned to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob (xliv. 19–23), and even to Moses (xliv. 1–5), Aaron and his descendants are the subjects of long and glowing eulogiums (xliv. 6–24). To Aaron God gave the priesthood by 'an everlasting covenant' (xliv. 7, 15), which was to last 'as long as the heaven endureth' (xliv. 15); to the priesthood God had entrusted the charge of His commandments, the power to deal with statutes and judgements, and the right of teaching His people (xliv. 17); and the book practically closes with a lofty panegyric on Simon the High Priest, the son of Onias (I). On the other hand, Sirach depreciates the kingly dynasty. He admits that God had, indeed, made a covenant with David touching the kingdom, but he points out that that was only an ordinary and limited heritage passing from father to son, whereas that of Aaron was an everlasting heritage transmitted to all his posterity (xliv. 25). He is careful, moreover, to point out that the dynasty of David had proved itself unworthy of the divine favour; for that only three of them, including David (xlix. 4), had been faithful to God, and that accordingly they were stripped of the kingship and the government of the nation re-entrusted to the priesthood. Nor could the Messiah arise from such a stock: if a Messiah was to be expected he was to be Elijah reappearing in the flesh (xlvi. 10–11).

¹ The greatest care was taken in regard to the character of the wives chosen by the priests. Their pedigrees, unless known to be unimpeachable, were examined for four generations on both sides in the case of priestly lineage, for five if they were of non-priestly origin. Cf. Qid. iv. 4, 5, 77 ab: Joseph. Contra Ap. i. 7. Though a priest might not marry a proselyte, he could marry the daughter of a proselyte. If both parents of a woman were proselytes, a priest was not allowed to marry her; but if he did so, the marriage was considered legitimate. See Jewish Encyc., x. 195.

FRAGMENTS OF A ZADOKITE WORK

This glorification of Levi over Judah is repeated in Jubilees, which, like Sirach, was written by a priest, but by a priest who had assimilated some of the higher theology such as the doctrine of a blessed future life (xxiii. 31).¹ In Jubilees Levi receives the first blessing (xxxi. 15-17), and Judah the second (xxxi. 18-20). Levi was to be at once the supreme teacher, the sole priest, and the civil ruler of the nation. Judah's blessing dwells on his great military power, which the Gentiles should fear and at which the nations should quake. Thereby he should prove the help of Jacob and the royal dynasty should bring peace to Israel. There is a clause of two or three words in xxxi. 18*d* referring to a Messiah from Judah, but it is most probably an interpolation, since throughout the rest of this long work there is not even the barest hint of such a hope.

The glorification of Levi reaches its climax in the Testaments of the Twelve Patriarchs. Not only is Levi the supreme authority in Church and State: from Levi also is to spring the coming Messiah. In fact the Messiah had already come in the person of John Hyrcanus according to the author of the Testaments, just as according to the earlier writing, the CX Psalm, he had already come in the person of Simon the Maccabee.

The development actually realized and the tendencies in the process of evolution in these books find a not unnatural culmination in our author. The steady glorification of Levi in Sirach, Jubilees, and the Testaments had only served to reduce Judah to the second place of authority and honour in the nation, but not otherwise to depreciate that great tribe. In no case had this process degenerated into a hostile attack on Judah. And yet this and naught else could be the inevitable outcome of the tendencies which were actively at work in the second century before the Christian era.

These tendencies came to a head in the Zadokite Fragments. Therein the glorification of the Zadokite priests is carried out pari passu with the disparagement of the Davidic family and claims and an attack on Judah. David is accused of ignorance of the Law (vii. 5). The title 'king' (מלך) is replaced by that of 'prince' (אִשָּׁר) vii. 4). In ix. 7 the passage from Amos ix. 11, which promises the setting up of 'the tabernacle of David that is fallen', is explained in such a way that all reference to David is got rid of; for 'the king' is said to denote 'the Congregation', and 'the tabernacle of the king' to denote 'the books of the Law'. Having thus explained away the Davidic expectation, a prophecy of the Zadokite Messiah (see ix. 8) is discovered in Num. xxiii. 17.

The princes of Judah are attacked in ix. 13 as being 'like them that remove the landmark' (ix. 13), i.e. the Pharisees. When the time of the end was approaching the Zadokites were to break off all relations with Judah, vi. 7.

§ 13. SOME OF THE TEACHINGS OF THE BOOK.

I shall content myself in the main with referring to my notes on the theological views of the Zadokites.

The Messiah. See § 12.

Doctrine of a future life. See note on v. 6. Some scholars have doubted the reference of this verse to a future life. But even if it were absent it would not affect the question. The Zadokites are the disciples of the Prophets and the Hagiographa, and in these the doctrine of a future life is taught. The Party that regarded the Book of Daniel, the Book of Jubilees, and the Testaments of the Twelve Patriarchs as authoritative could not have questioned the belief in a blessed future life.

Repentance. See note on vi. 1 and references: also Introd., § 10. ii. In this respect they prepare the way for the preaching of John the Baptist.

Predestination and free-will. See ii. 6 note, iii. 7*a*, iv. 2*c*, 10, § 9. 4°.

Divorce. Divorce is absolutely forbidden in our text. See vii. 1.

The Law and the Prophets. It will be sufficient here to refer to § 8 and Index I, to show how profoundly the Zadokites valued the Prophets. The fact to which we have drawn attention elsewhere (see § 9. 4°), that they based halacha on the Prophets, is proof that they regarded the Prophets as of equal authority with the Law. Their attitude in this respect is nearer to that of the Sermon on the Mount than that of any other Party in Judaism.

§ 14. BIBLIOGRAPHY.

(a) Text. As yet there is only one text, since owing to Dr. Schechter's arrangement with the University Library, Cambridge, no scholar is to be allowed to see the MSS. for five years after the publication of ¹ In the time of Josephus apparently only the Sadducees of the highest rank still denied the doctrine of a blessed future life (Ant. xviii. 1. 4). Thus this doctrine seemed gradually to have permeated the main body of the Sadducees by the middle of the first century of the Christian era.

INTRODUCTION

Dr. Schechter's edition. Even if Dr. Schechter's edition were thoroughly satisfactory this extraordinary action on his part could hardly fail to call forth the reprobation of scholars generally. We shall now proceed to pass a few criticisms on his text.

Fragments of a Zadokite Work edited from Hebrew MSS. in the Cairo Genizah Collection now in the possession of the University Library, Cambridge, and provided with an English Translation, Introduction, and Notes, by S. Schechter, M.A., D.Litt., President of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America in New York.

Scholars are indeed grateful to Dr. Schechter for the discovery of these valuable MSS., but they cannot be expected to feel it in such measure for the way in which the text has been edited. It is carelessly done. Thus on eighteen pages of text there are two and a quarter pages of corrigenda and suggestions (pp. lvii–lix). A second list of corrigenda is to be found in the notes on the translation. In a third list (lix–lx) embodying corrections of and additions to the translation and notes a very important correction not included in the former two lists is given. But the above series of corrigenda are not exhaustive. This will be obvious to any student who carefully compares the text of p. 20 with the facsimile of this page. Let us take a few lines beginning with l. 17. In l. 17 if we read אָ there is room only for one letter and not two after it. In l. 18 before אַת אַחֲזִי and after ך a gap is left for seven letters, four of which Dr. Schechter supplies. There is room only for four. In l. 19 after זָכְרֶךָ Dr. Schechter leaves a space for two letters: it should be for four or five. Before לְחֹשֶׁבֶי in the same line ו should be supplied or a gap left for one letter. In l. 21 after חֶסֶד a gap is left for two letters: it should be for four or five. In l. 33 the first word is אַת not אָל.

If Dr. Schechter chooses to edit his text so carelessly that is of course his own concern, but in that case he ought at all events to have published a facsimile of the entire MSS.—only a matter of eighteen pages. To publish such a text and then to deny all scholars access to the original MSS. for five years is strange conduct on the part of a seeker after truth. The world of scholars from Lévi, who first expressed the need of a facsimile, to the latest students of the text, look to Dr. Schechter either to remove this unscholarly embargo or himself to publish a facsimile without delay.

(b) Translations.¹ Schechter, Fragments of a Zadokite Work. The translation of a text for the first time is obviously a piece of pioneer work, and should therefore be treated with all consideration. It betrays, as might be expected, frequent failures to apprehend the meaning of the writer, but on the other hand in many passages Dr. Schechter has shown great insight and his encyclopaedic knowledge of Rabbinic literature has helped to clear up many a difficulty from the outset.

Lévi, 'Un Écrit Sadducéen antérieur à la ruine du Temple' in the Revue des Études Juives, lxi. 161–205, 1911. This masterly translation, accompanied with a few notes, forms a vast advance on the preceding. My obligations to it are mentioned not unfrequently in my notes. Unfortunately I had completed both my translation and notes before I saw either this translation or that which follows, else my notes might have taken a different form.

Lagrange in the Revue Biblique, Avril, 1912, pp. 213–40. While Lévi's translation is racy and idiomatic, Lagrange's translation aims at being a literal reproduction of the text. It shows the influence of Lévi, but in certain passages makes a fresh contribution to the understanding of the text.

(c) Critical Studies. Bacher, Zeitschrift f. hebr. Bibliographie, No. 1, Jan.–Feb. 1911. Leszynski, 'Observations sur les "Fragments of a Zadokite Work" édités par Schechter' in the Revue des Études Juives, lxii. 190–6, with Lévi's rejoinder in pp. 197–200.

Margoliouth (G.) in the Athenæum, Nov. 26, 1911; 'The Sadducean Christians of Damascus' in the Expositor, Dec., 1911, pp. 499–517; March, 1912, pp. 212–35. In these studies Mr. Margoliouth has shown great learning and acuteness in criticizing the views of his predecessors. His own view is that the Zadokites were a type of Christians who regarded John the Baptist as the Messiah and Jesus as the Teacher of Righteousness. I have found myself unable to agree with this thesis.²

¹ A Dutch translation has been published in the Theol. Tijdschrift, but I have not seen it.

² Reviews of the Zadokite Fragments have appeared in The American Journal of Theology, by Dr. Kohler; in the Harvard Theological Review, by Dr. Moore; in the Theol. Literaturzeitung, by Landauer, &c.

1.

1

2

3 10 '1

'

w

T

f

i i i s i

'

FRAGMENTS OF A ZADOKITE WORK

I. Israel sent into Captivity, 3-4. A Root of God's Planting made to spring forth after 200 B.C. and a Teacher of Righteousness raised up, 5-8. Description of Israel's Wickedness in the First Century B.C. or at an earlier date, 9-17.

- 1 Now, therefore, hearken (unto me) all ye who know righteousness,
 2 And have understanding in the works of God.
 For He hath a controversy with all flesh,
 And will execute judgement upon all who despise Him.
- 3 For because of the trespass of those who forsook Him,
 He hid His face from Israel and from His Sanctuary,
 And gave them over to the sword.

I. 1. hearken . . . righteousness. i. e. שמעו כל יודעי צדק. From Isa. li. 7. The mention of צדק may with tolerable certainty be regarded as a play on the name of the Zadokites—הצדוקים. Cf. v. 7 for the מורה צדק 'teacher of righteousness'.

have understanding in the works of God. Same diction in Ps. xxviii. 5 אל מעשה ידיו יבינו . . .

2. hath a controversy . . . with all flesh. i. e. ריב לו עם כל בשר. Based almost verbally on Jer. xxv. 31: 'The Lord hath a controversy . . . He will plead with all flesh.' Cf. Hos. iv. 1.

all who despise Him. Num. xiv. 11, 23.

3. hid His face. Ps. xxii. 24, liv. 8 and passim.

from His Sanctuary. These words are of extreme importance in dealing with our document; for before we can make any real advance in the interpretation of the book we must know whether this sanctuary is the Temple in Jerusalem or a heterodox temple in one of the provinces. That it was the former is clear, I think, from the following evidence. The term 'sanctuary' is used nine times, i. 3, v. 7, vi. 11, vii. 8, viii. 11, 12, ix. 47, xiv. 4 (bis). In xiv. 4 we have the phrase 'the city of the Sanctuary' used twice. Now since in every case only one sanctuary is mentioned, as 'the Sanctuary', or 'His Sanctuary', we must conclude that it is one and the same sanctuary that is referred to in all cases. Is there any evidence to determine what sanctuary this was? Clearly there is in this very verse i. 3, where it is said that God 'hid His face from His Sanctuary'. Now there can be no doubt as to the identity of this sanctuary: it is the Temple in Jerusalem; for the context refers to the time of the Captivity. Nor can there be any doubt as to the identity of 'His Sanctuary' in v. 7; for the phrase occurs in a quotation from Ezek. xliv. 15. Next in viii. 12 it is said that the priests of the Party are 'to hold aloof from the wealth of the Sanctuary'. This could not be said of a small, sectarian provincial and wholly unknown temple. For in the first place such a temple would not have had wealth: and in the next its priesthood could have incurred no blame in accepting support from their own exclusive sanctuary. But an ascetic and puritan Party could most reasonably from their standpoint object to many things in the Temple in Jerusalem, as did Mal. i. 7; 1 Enoch lxxxix. 73; Ass. Moses v. 4, and yet share officially in its worship. Again in viii. 11 the Sanctuary can be none other than the Temple; for Mal. i. 10 is quoted as referring to it. This sanctuary, i. e. the Temple, is still standing vii. 8. Finally 'the city of the Sanctuary' which is twice mentioned in xiv. 4 and in ix. 46 can only be Jerusalem. The very phrase postulates this interpretation when we reflect that the Zadokites accepted not only the Law as binding upon them but also the rest of the scriptures, to which they attributed a higher degree of authority, than the Rabbis of subsequent times. It was the Prophets who made Jerusalem the sacred city, and the altar in Jerusalem the sole altar. Possessing genuine orders also as Priests and Levites they would naturally officiate in the Temple at Jerusalem. They were spread throughout the cities of Israel, xv. 1, just as the Priests and Levites were generally. In these they had their congregations: but they had only one sanctuary and that in Jerusalem. The severe conditions on which they were allowed to discharge their priestly functions in the Temple are given in viii. 11-20. Had the Zadokites disowned the Temple in Jerusalem, it is hardly possible that this matter would have been wholly passed over in silence in a document which criticizes the accepted Jewish authorities so freely—the Hellenizing priests, the Pharisees, and even the historical books of the O.T. (see vii. 7).

From the above conclusion it follows that the present work was written when the Temple was still standing. In other words, we have here the terminus ad quem.

gave them over to the sword (ויחנם לחרב). From Jer. xxi. 31. See preceding verse. Cf. i. 12 ("להסגירם לה"), iv. 9 ("יסגרו לה"), and so also in ix. 4 (A) ("הסגרו לה"), ix. 11 (A and B), but "ימסרו לה" in ix. 10 (B).

- 4 But when He remembered the covenant of the forefathers,
He left a remnant to Israel
And gave them not over to destruction.
- 5 [And in the period of the wrath three hundred and ninety years after He had given them into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar, the King of Babylon He visited them],
And He made to spring forth from Israel and Aaron
A root of His planting to inherit His land,
And to grow fat through the goodness of His earth.
- 6 And they had understanding of their iniquity,
And they knew that they were guilty men,
And had like the blind been groping after the way twenty years.
- 7 And God considered their works ; for they sought Him with a perfect heart
And He raised them up a Teacher of righteousness
To lead them in the way of His heart.

4. remembered the covenant of the forefathers. i.e. וּבִזְכָּרוֹ בְּרִית רֵאשִׁימִים. Cf. viii. 3, ix. 25. From Lev xxvi. 45. Cf. Exod. ii. 24.

left a remnant to Israel (הַשְּׂאִיר שְׂאִרִית). Cf. ii. 9 (הַחֵיִר פְּלִיטָה); Isa. i. 9; Jer. xxxi. 7; Ezek. xiv. 22.

5. in the period of the wrath. (i.e. בְּקֵץ הַרֹוֹן). I have with some hesitation adopted Lévi's rendering of קֵץ as 'period' and not as 'end', as in Sirach xliii. 6. In Job vi. 11 the LXX renders קֵץ by μου ὁ χρόνος (Smend). See our text ii. 8, vi. 1, 7, viii. 1, 9, 12, ix. 10, 11, 47, xv. 4, xix. 7. It is difficult to understand the chronology in this work. 'In the period of the wrath' appears to be the period beginning or else in the course of realization in the year 196 B.C. The phrase 'period of the destruction of the land' apparently refers to the same period. Probably by the phrase 'in the end of the days' (viii. 10) when the teacher of righteousness is to come, a portion of the same period is designed. On the other hand the phrases 'the period of wickedness' (viii. 12, xv. 4), 'the full period of wickedness' (viii. 9, xix. 7), 'the period of the treason of Israel' (ix. 47) appear to refer to the close of the period of the Messianic woes: cf. xv. 4.

three hundred and ninety years, &c. This number appears to be borrowed from Ezek. iv. 5, where the Massoretic text speaks of 390 days, i.e. years. Since in Ezekiel these years refer to the Exile, the Massoretic text is at variance with Ezekiel's real expectation, which is given in iv. 6, according to which it was to last forty years. The right text is preserved in the majority of the LXX MSS., i.e. 190 years. Israel had already been in exile about 150 years: Judah's exile was to last forty: thus the exile of the entire nation was to be about 190 years. But it is clear that our author found 390 in his Hebrew text—a reading that appears, therefore, to be later—possibly considerably later than 200 B.C. If we deduct 390 from 586, the year of the capture of Jerusalem, we arrive at the year 196 B.C. This date in our text would refer to the rise of the Chasidim. For 'twenty years' already the faithful in Israel had been groping after the way (i. 6). It is noteworthy that 1 Enoch xc. 6 assigns the origin of the Chasidim to the same period: see note in my edition in loc. The Chasidim in 1 Enoch spring from the righteous remnant, just as here they are symbolized by a root of God's planting.

wrath. See note on i. 14.

Nebuchadnezzar. This is the later and corrupt spelling for Nebuchadrezzar.

spring forth. Cf. Isa. xlv. 4, lxi. 11 where צִמַח also is used.

A root of His planting. The text here reads שֹׁרֵשׁ מִטְעָה, which I take to be corrupt for שֹׁרֵשׁ מִטְעוֹ. Cf. Isa. lx. 21 נֹצֵר מִטְעוֹ. With the idea, cf. 1 Enoch x. 16, xciii. 5 'the plant of righteousness': also xxvi. 1. The root of God's planting is the company of the Chasidim; see note on 'three hundred and ninety years' above.

6. had understanding . . . and they knew. Cf. i. 1.

had like the blind been groping. The text reads וּכְיִמְנָשִׁים which Schechter, on the basis of Isa. lix. 10 and Deut. xxviii. 29, has rightly emended into מְנַשְּׁשִׁים.

twenty years. The 'twenty years', i.e. 196-176 B.C., may refer to the period during which the Hellenizing high priests were in league with Antiochus IV and the Syrian empire. Then came the great act of repentance often referred to in the text and probably the migration to Damascus: vi. 1, viii. 6.

7. considered their works (וַיִּבְנֶן אֱלֹהִים מַעֲשֵׂיהֶם). From Ps. xxxiii. 15. Cf. text, vii. 16.

sought Him with a perfect heart. Cf. for the thought and diction Ps. cxix. 10, 1 Chron. xxix. 9, Jub. i. 15.

raised them up. Cf. ii. 9, viii. 4, Judges ii. 18.

a Teacher of righteousness. i.e. מוֹרֵה צְדָקָה. See different form of the Hebrew in viii. 10. Cf. Hos. x. 12 יוֹרֵה צְדָקָה. Who is this teacher of righteousness? We know something as to his date; for he is raised up during 'the period of the wrath' (i. 5) which began about 390 years after the capture of Jerusalem in 586 B.C. About this date, i.e. 196 B.C., God made 'a root of His planting to spring forth from Israel and Aaron', i.e. the Chasidim. This teacher may be referred to as 'the teacher' or 'teacher' in ix. 50, and is referred to as 'the teacher of righteousness' in ix. 53, and in viii. 10, according to which passage he is to arise 'in the end of the days'. So far, things are fairly certain. But there are two other titles, 'the unique teacher', ix. 29, 39, and

- 8 And He made known to later generations
What He had done [to a later generation] to a congregation of treacherous men:
Those who turned aside out of the way.
- 9 This was the time concerning which it was written:
As a stubborn heifer
So hath Israel behaved himself stubbornly:
- 10 When there arose the scornful man,
Who talked to Israel lying words,
And made them go astray in the wilderness where there was no way,
[to bring low the pride of the world].
- 11 So that they should turn aside from the paths of righteousness,
And remove the landmark which the forefathers had set in their inheritance:

'the Messiah', ii. 10, viii. 2, ix. 10 (B); 29 (B), xv. 4, xviii. 8. There is no ground against identifying 'the teacher of righteousness' and 'the unique teacher'. If this identification is right, then 'the teacher of righteousness' and 'the Messiah' are two different personages, ix. 29. The former prepares the way for the latter, but does not immediately precede him; for an undetermined interval elapses between them, which is longer than forty years at all events, ix. 40, but in reality nearer one hundred and forty.

lead them in the way of His heart. Cf. Isa. xlii. 16.

8-17. A difficult and important question of interpretation arises here as to the time with which these verses deal. First of all, it seems clear that the phrase 'later generations' refers to the generations subsequent to the coming of 'a teacher of righteousness' in v. 7. But there appears to be no way of determining the incident so vaguely described in v. 8, 'What He had done . . . to a congregation of treacherous men.' In any case this incident belongs to some earlier date. It is mentioned here apparently only in the way of admonition and warning against apostasy or unfaithfulness on the part of the Zadokites. We now come to v. 9. To which of the two periods implied in the preceding verse, i.e. the 'later generations' or the earlier time of judgement on the 'treacherous congregation', do the words 'this was the time concerning which', &c. apply? If we take v. 9 as referring to the period of the 'later generations', the time implied by the 'later generations' can hardly refer to any period earlier than the first century B.C., since the 'Teacher of righteousness' came after 176 B.C., and the 'later generations' must be two or more generations later than his time. If this interpretation is right, then vv. 9-17 would refer to the events of the first century B.C., and the persons attacked would probably be the Pharisees. Against them, at any rate, our author could bring the charge of removing 'the landmark which the forefathers had set', i.e. of introducing innovations in the ritual of the Temple and the interpretation of the Law. It is to be remembered in this connexion that although in the earlier years of Jannaeus the Pharisees were persecuted, in the later years of this king they were on friendly terms with him, whereas the Sadducean priesthood was mercilessly dealt with by him.

8. The fate of former apostates is a warning to those that come after.

[to a later generation], i.e. בדור אחרון. I have bracketed these words as a dittograph of דורות אחרונים congregation. See note on v. 17.

a congregation of treacherous men, i.e. בעדת בוגדים. Cf. עצרת בוגדים in Jer. ix. 2.

turned aside out of the way (סרי דרך). Cf. ii. 4, ix. 14; Exod. xxxii. 8; Deut. ix. 16.

9-17. These verses appear to refer to the sins of Israel after the Captivity: cf. viii. 1, 2 where the phraseology in 9-11 recurs. They deal with the judgements meted out to an earlier generation which were to be a warning to later generations, i. 8.

As a stubborn, &c. From Hos. iv. 16. The 'so' in our text is not in the original. Our author can easily apply these words to post-Exilic times.

10. the scornful man. i.e. איש הלצון. Cf. ix. 36 'the scornful men', i.e. אנשי הלצון. The latter phrase is from Isa. xxviii. 14.

talked . . . lying words. Cf. viii. 2.

talked, i.e. הטיף. Cf. vii. 1, ix. 22; Amos vii. 16; Mic. ii. 6.

lying words. The text reads מימי כזב 'waters of lying', which I have emended into מאמרי כזב and so translated. Cf. ix. 22 (A.) מטוף כזב, and ix. 39 איש הכזב. Is this 'scornful man, who talked to Israel lying words' a collective expression for the wicked leaders who are subsequently referred to in viii. 1?

made them go astray . . . no way. Cf. viii. 1. A quotation from Ps. cvii. 40. Cf. ii. 10 of our text, where the same action is ascribed to God.

[to bring low the pride of the world] = להשח נבחות עולם. Cf. Isa. ii. 11, 17. But these words seem to be interpolated.

11. remove the landmark. Cf. viii. 1, ix. 13, 49. These words may refer to the revolutionary action of the Pharisees as regards law and ritual.

remove the landmark which . . . in their inheritance. From Deut. xix. 14 'Thou shalt not remove thy neighbour's landmark, which they of old time have set in thine inheritance'.

- 12 So as to make cleave unto them
The curses of His covenant,
To deliver them to the sword
That avengeth with the vengeance of the covenant.
- 13 Because they sought after smooth things,
And they chose deceits,
And kept watch with a view to lawless deeds.
- 14 And they †chose the best of the neck,†
And justified the wicked,
And condemned the righteous :
- 15 And transgressed the covenant,
And violated the statute,
And attacked the soul of the righteous.
- 16 And all that walked uprightly their soul abhorred,
And they pursued them with the sword,
And rejoiced in the strife of the people.
- 17 And so the wrath of God was kindled against their congregation,
So that He laid waste all their multitude,
And their deeds were uncleanness before Him.

12. So as to make cleave unto them. Cf. Deut. xxviii. 21.

The curses of His covenant. From Deut. xxix. 21.

deliver them to the sword That avengeth with the vengeance of the covenant. Repeated in ix. 11 (B). We have here a quotation from Lev. xxvi. 25 הרב נקמת נקם ברית. In the same verse the words 'and ye shall be delivered' occur, ונהתם.

13. smooth things . . . deceits (i. e. מהתלות . . . חלקות). These two words—the latter a ἀπ. λεγ. in the O.T.—are drawn from Isa. xxx. 10.

kept watch, i. e. יצפו. Lagrange thinks that the verb here means 'concealed', Schechter proposes ויפרצו which gives a good sense 'brought about breaches' (or 'divisions').

14. †chose the best of the neck†. In the text יבחרו בטוב הצואר—it seems clear that הצואר is corrupt—most probably for הצאון. Cf. xi. 10 (B), where we have 'the poor of the flock'. We should then have 'they chose the best of the flock', i. e. for themselves. This may be right. But possibly the corruption lies deeper, and for the first two words we should read יהרבו מיטב. We should then have: 'they laid waste the best of the flock.'

justified . . . the righteous. From Prov. xvii. 15. The words recur in vi. 4 of our text. Lévi thinks these words refer to the usurpation of judicial powers by the Pharisees in the time of Alexandra the widow of Jannaeus.

15. transgressed the covenant, i. e. יעברו ברית. I have here emended יעבירו into יעברו. Schechter emends the text into יעברו בברית and translates 'transgressed the covenant'. But this means 'entered into a covenant' (cf. Deut. xxix. 11). This clause is practically equivalent to the next.

attacked the soul of the righteous. From Ps. xciv. 21.

16. walked uprightly. Cf. iii. 2. From Ps. xv. 2 : cf. ci. 6 ; Gen. xvii. 1.

their soul abhorred. From Ps. cvii. 18.

pursued them with the sword (וירדפום לחרב). These words refer to the persecution of the Sadducees by Jannaeus or the Pharisees.

rejoiced. I follow Schechter in taking ישישו as יסיסו.

17. the wrath of God was kindled (ויתר אף אל). Cf. Exod. iv. 14, xxxii. 10, &c. This clause recurs frequently in our text : iii. 7, iv. 7, vii. 16, ix. (13), 22, 26, 40. Here the reference is doubtful. In iii. 7 it is directed against the Antediluvians : in iv. 7 against Israel in the wilderness : against Judah after the exile in vii. 16, ix. 13, 22.

their congregation (i. e. עדתם). This term העדה 'the congregation' occurs frequently—thirteen times—in our author : cf. i. 8, iv. 7, ix. 22, 30, 31, xi. 1, 2, 3, xvi. 3, 4, 6, xvii. 7. In ix. 30, 31, xi. 1, 2, 3, xvi. 3, 4, 6, xvii. 7 it is used strictly of the congregation of the Zadokites in each city or village. In i. 17, iv. 7, ix. 22 it is used of Israel at large, and in i. 8 in a bad sense of faithless Israelites. Our text is particularly rich in terms applying to the Zadokites in their sacred capacity as a community or congregation. Thus we have 'assembly' (סוד) in ix. 29, 'congregation' (קהל) in xiv. 3, 'community' (חבור) in xiv. 8. Another designation of their community, and rather a peculiar one, is 'camp' (מתנה), which appears to have simply the meaning of settlement : cf. x. 7, xv. 6, xvi. 1, 6 (bis), 8 (bis), 9, xvii. 1, 6.

their deeds . . . uncleanness before Him (מעשיהם לנדה לפניו). Cf. Ezek. xxxvi. 17.

II. Wisdom is with God and Forgiveness of the repentant, but Wrath for the unrepentant, who are predestined to Destruction on the Ground of the Divine Foreknowledge, 1-7. But there is a Remnant whom He shall teach by the Messiah, 9-10.

- 1 And now, hearken unto me all ye who have entered into the covenant,
And I will disclose to you the ways of the wicked.
- 2 God loveth [knowledge] wisdom :
And counsel He hath set before Him :
Prudence and knowledge minister unto Him.
- 3 Longsuffering is with Him
And plenteousness of forgivenesses
To pardon those who repent of transgression.
- 4 And power and might and great fury with flames of fire [therein are all the angels of destruction]
For them who turned aside out of the way,
And abhorred the statute,
- 5 So that there should be no remnant,
Nor any to escape of them.
- 6 For God chose them not from the beginning of the world,
And ere they were formed He knew their works.
- 7 And He abhorred their generations from of old,
And hid His face from their land till they were consumed.
- 8 [And He knew the years of (their) office and the number and exact statement of their periods for all the things that belong to the ages and have been, moreover whatsoever shall come to pass in their periods for all the years of eternity.]

II. 1. ye who have entered into the covenant. Cf. iv. 8, viii. 11, 15, ix. 12, 15, 49, x. 2; Jer. xxxiv. 10, באו בברית. This is the New Covenant that is spoken of in viii. 15, ix. 28, 37.

I will disclose. The text reads אנכם as in 1 Sam. xx. 2, xxii. 8. Schechter thinks אנכם a corruption of עיניכם and compares iii. 1.

2. knowledge. Bracketed as an interpolation. It occurs in the third line.

3. Longsuffering . . . forgivenesses, i.e. סליחות עמו ורוב סליחות. The text is based on a combination of Exod. xxxiv. 6. ארך אפים ורב חסד and Ps. cxxx. 4. עמך הסליחה. For the plural סליחות cf. Dan. ix. 9; Neh. ix. 17. The last passage contains all the elements of v. 3 ab save 'with Him'.

forgiveness. Cf. v. 5 b, xvi. 2.

To pardon. See v. 5 a note.

who repent of transgression, i.e. שָׁבַי פָּשַׁע from Isa. lix. 20. See ix. 41 and note on vi. 1.

4. fury with flames of fire, i.e. בלהבי אש . . . חמה. Cf. Isa. lxvi. 15 וגערתו בלהבי אש which is probably the source.

therein . . . destruction. Bracketed as an interpolation.

angels of destruction (מלאכי חבל). Cf. 1 Enoch lxiii. 1, &c.

abhorred the statute (מחעבי חק). Cf. Mic. iii. 9.

5. So that there should be no remnant, &c. Contrast i. 4. The words 'no remnant, nor any to escape' are from Ezra ix. 14.

6. We have here the doctrine of divine election. Cf. v. 10 c.

formed, i.e. נוצרו emended by Bacher from נוסדו. Cf. Jer. i. 5.

7. their generations from of old. So I emend דורות מרם into דורות מקדם. Schechter retains דורות and would change מרם into מקדם. Landauer suggests מרים 'rebellious' for מרם.

their land. The text reads ארץ מי, which I take to be a corruption of ארצם, and have translated accordingly. Schechter takes the מי to be a remainder of להשמידם. But in the present MS. there is not space for a single additional letter, and the emendation I have made explains the MS. and satisfies the context.

till they were consumed (עד תומם). Phrase in Deut. ii. 15, xxxi. 24, 30; Joshua viii. 24, &c. But the words make the line too long and may be an interpolation.

8. This verse appears to be an addition of the editor of the whole. The subject-matter belongs to the teaching of the sect, but it is an intrusion in its present context. Verse 9 follows naturally and immediately on v. 7. The Hebrew of this verse is very abnormal.

years of (their) office. With this obscure phrase compare vi. 3 'duration of their office'. The word 'office' (or 'service' or 'function', i.e. מעמד) appears to mean that of the members of the inner council of the sect who in ix. 32 are spoken of as 'men of the perfection of holiness'. We should, perhaps, read מעמדם here as in vi. 3. We find in later Judaism the existence of a body of men called אנשי מעמד (Taanith 15 b) composed of priests, Levites,

- 9 Yet in all of them He raised Him up men called by name,
In order to leave a remnant to the earth,
And to fill the face of the earth with their seed.
- 10 And through His Messiah He shall make them know His holy spirit,
And he is true, and in the true interpretation of his name are their names :
But them He hated He made to go astray.

III-IV. 1. Exhortation to choose God's Will and to shun the evil Inclination, 1-2; through it fell the mighty Men of old, the Watchers and their Children, 3-5; and all Flesh and also the Sons of Noah, 6-iv. 1.

- 3 1 Now therefore, children, hearken unto me,
And I will open your eyes to see,
And to understand the works of God.
And to choose what He approveth,
And to reject what He hateth :
- 2 To walk uprightly in all His ways,
And not to go about in the thoughts of an evil imagination and Israelites exactly as in our text. According to Taanith 15 b these men had to arrange the proper prayers for the various days in order that the sacrifices might be favourably received. The head of this body was called ראש המעמד (Tam. v. 6). In Taanith 27 b it is said that if these duties were not fulfilled heaven and earth would cease to exist (אלמלי מעמדות לא נתקיימו שמים וארץ). Again, in Bikk. iii. 2, these אנשי מעמד, whose chief was called ראש המעמד (Tam. v. 6), are described as having to gather in the firstfruits from the districts under their charge. The country was divided into twenty-four districts, corresponding to the twenty-four orders of the Priests (1 Chron. xxiv. 7-18). The chief city of each such division was called עיר של מעמד. This office existed among the Essenes, amongst whom the ma'amad constituted the district authority: see Jewish Encyc. v. 230. The ma'amad in our text was composed of Priests, Levites and Israelites, as we may fairly assume from the constitution of the party as a whole: cf. xvii. 2, 3, v. 7: it would thus consist of the same elements as the ma'amad in Taanith.
And (with) eyes (full) of fornication.

the number and exact statement of their periods, i.e. מספר ופרוש קציהם. This is very irregular Hebrew. It is found, however, three times in the O.T., i.e. in Isa. xi. 2; Ezek. xxxi. 16; Dan. i. 4. Perhaps the suffix in קציהם refers, as in Aramaic, to what follows לכל שני עולם. This construction may recur at the end of the verse: cf. also v. 1 c note.

exact statement, i.e. פרוש. Cf. פרשה in Esther iv. 7, x. 2. I have rendered the word פרוש variously as 'statement' (vi. 3), 'true interpretation' (ii. 10): פשרו (vi. 10) 'this means' &c.

that . . . have been, i.e. נהיות—referring to the past as in Sir. xlii. 19: so also Lagrange.

moreover whatsoever, i.e. עוד קמה. So I punctuate the text ער מה. Lévi takes it to be the equivalent of the Syriac עדמא.

9. raised Him up. See i. 7.

called by name. Cf. vi. 2 note.

to leave a remnant. See i. 4 note.

fill the face of the earth (למלא פני תבל). From Isa. xxvii. 6.

10. And . . . He shall make them know. So we must render ויודיעם i.e. ויודיעם; for according to ix. 10 (B) the Messiah had not come when our author was writing. But the word משיחו may simply = 'His anointed one', in this case Zadok.

His Messiah. Cf. viii. 2, ix. 10 (B), 29 (B), xv. 4; xviii. 8. See note on i. 7, where it is shown that the Messiah is distinct from 'the teacher of righteousness'.

His holy spirit. Contrast use of the phrase 'holy spirit' in vii. 12, viii. 20. Bacher here proposes to read 'by His holy spirit'.

in the true interpretation of his name. Possibly here the name of the Messiah hinted at may be הצדיק 'the Righteous One'. Cf. 1 Enoch xxxviii. 2, liii. 6. As He is הצדיק, they are the הצדיקים as in 1 Enoch xxxviii. 3, xlvii. 1, 2, 4, &c.

their names. Cf. vi. 3.

them He hated He made to go astray. Cf. i. 10.

III. 1. open your eyes. Cf. ii. 1.

2. walk uprightly. Cf. i. 16 note.

to go about in the thoughts of an evil imagination: i.e. לתור במחשבות יצר אשמה. If we take this line with the next, it would suggest that the writer had Num. xv. 39 in his mind לא תתורו אחרי לבבכם ואחרי עיניכם. But our author has changed the construction. אשר-אתם זנים אתריהם.

the thoughts of an evil imagination: i.e. מחשבות יצר אשמה. The יצר אשמה is here equivalent to the

- 3 For many were led astray by them,
And mighty men of valour stumbled by them from of old [and until this day].
- 4 Because they walked in the stubbornness of their heart the watchers of heaven fell.
By them were they caught because they kept not the commandment of God.
- 5 And their children whose height was like the loftiness of the cedars
And whose bodies were like the mountains fell thereby.
- 6 All flesh that was on dry land perished thereby,
And they were as though they had not been.
- 7 Because they did their own will,
And kept not the commandment of their Maker,
Until His wrath was kindled against them.
- 1 By them went astray the sons of Noah and their families:
Because of them they were cut off.

יער הרע. יצר alone has this meaning in Sir. xv. 14 ויתנהו ביד יצרו . . . ברא האדם . . . אלהים = 'God created man . . . and put him into the hand of his inclination'. On the two inclinations see T. Asher i. 3 (note on my edition): 2 Baruch, pp. 92-3 (in my edition) and the literature referred to there.

eyes (full) of fornication. Reading עיני for עני with Schechter, who compares Sifre 35 a זונה זו עיניכם. We might compare Sir. xxvi. 9 πορνεία γυναικός ἐν μετεωρισμοῖς ὀφθαλμῶν . . . γνωσθήσεται, and xxiii. 4; also T. Issach. vii. 2 'I never committed fornication by the uplifting of my eyes' and T. Benj. vi. 3; Prov. vi. 25; 2 Pet. ii. 14 ὀφθαλμοὺς . . . μεστοὺς μοιχαλίδος. Lévi retains עני and compares Sir. xlii. 8 עונה בזונה and Eccles. i. 13. He renders 'l'attrait de la luxure'.

3. many were led astray by them. The 'them' refers apparently to the 'thoughts of the imagination'. We have close parallels to, if not the actual antecedents of, the text in Sir. ix. 8 ἐν κάλλει γυναικός πολλοὶ ἐπλανήθησαν and T. Reub. iv. 7 'Many hath fornication destroyed; because, though a man be . . . noble . . . he bringeth reproach upon himself': T. Jud. xv. 2 'though a man be a king and commit fornication, he is stripped of his kingship by becoming the slave of fornication'.

by them. The MS. reads במ, but both 'thoughts' and 'eyes' are feminine in Hebrew. Hence here and in the next line I emend במ into בהן. On the other hand, as not infrequently in the O.T., the masc. suffix may refer to these feminine substantives: see note on vii. 2, and Gesenius *Heb. Gram.*² § 135 o. In iii. 4 b, iv. 1 a, b בה should be emended into בהן, or else into בו in all cases. If the latter, the suffix would refer to the evil inclination (i.e. the יצר).

4. The example of the fall of the Watchers through fornication is cited also in the T. Reub. v. 6-7.

walked in the stubbornness of their heart (בלכתם בשרירות לבם). Cf. Jer. xiii. 10, xxiii. 17. Our author is fond of this phrase in various forms. Thus here and in iv. 5, ix. 35 we have the phrase הלך בש" 'to walk in the stubbornness': in iv. 9 "תור אחרי ש" 'to go about after the stubbornness': in ix. 18 "בחר בש" 'to choose the stubbornness': and in ix. 27 "פנה בש" 'to turn away in the stubbornness'.

watchers: i. e. עירי emended by Schechter from עירי. See 1 Enoch vi-xvi and references.

By them: i. e. בהן (i. e. the thoughts of the evil inclination) emended from בה: or we may emend בה into בו and refer it to יצר. Cf. iv. 8.

kept not the commandment of God. Cf. iii. 7 b; iv. 2 b.

5. See 1 Enoch x. 9-10; xii-xvi; Jub. v. 9-11.

whose height was like the loftiness of the cedars (אשר כרום ארזים נבהם). From Amos ii. 9, save that our author reads 'loftiness' רים instead of 'height' גבה. On their height see 1 Enoch vii. 2.

thereby. Text reads כי which I have emended into בהן or בו. See v. 4.

6. thereby. Emended as in last line. Cf. Gen. vii. 22, 23.

they were as though, &c. From Obad. 16: cf. Job x. 19.

7. did their own will (or 'pleasure'). (Cf. iv. 10 a, c, v. 2 c), that is, they followed the evil inclination, or the thoughts of the evil inclination. See iii. 2, note.

did their own will, And kept not the commandment, &c. Cf. iv. 9 a, b, and contrast the conduct of Abraham iv. 2 b, c.

His wrath was kindled. See i. 17, note.

IV. 1. By them. MS. reads בה as in iii. 4 b, which I have emended into בהן. In both cases 'the thoughts of the imagination' are referred to. The same emendation is made in the next line. Of course it is possible that for בה we should read בו as in iv. 8, and thus refer directly to the yesser and not to the 'thoughts' of the yesser (or 'evil inclination'). Schechter thinks that for בה we should read ברם, and that the sin referred to is the eating of blood, but the whole context is against this.

went astray. Schechter has rightly emended תעי into תעי.

sons of Noah and their families. Cf. Gen. x. 32.

cut off. Cf. Lev. xvii. 10, 14.

IV. 2-9. Abraham, Isaac and Jacob walked not after the evil Inclination of the Heart, 2-3; but the Sons of Israel did in Egypt and in the Wilderness and were punished accordingly, 4-9.

- 2 Abraham did not walk in them,
And he was (recorded) friend because he kept the commandments of God,
And chose not the will of his own spirit.
- 3 And he delivered (the commandment) to Isaac and Jacob,
And they observed (it) and were recorded as friends of God,
And members of the covenant for ever.
- 4 The sons of Jacob went astray through them,
And they were punished according to their error.
- 5 And their children in Egypt walked in the stubbornness of their heart,
So that they took counsel against the commandments of God,
And every man did that which was right in his own eyes.
- 6 [And they eat blood], and He cut off their males in the desert (when He said) to them in Kadesh:
Go up and possess (the land, but they hardened) their spirit:
- 7 And they hearkened not unto the voice of their Maker
[The commandments of their Teacher] but murmured in their tents,
And so the wrath of God was kindled against their congregation:
- 8 And their children [perished by it
And their kings] were cut off by it,
And their mighty men perished by it,
And their land was made desolate by it.
- 9 By it the first that entered into the covenant incurred guilt,
And they were delivered unto the sword,

2. in them. MS. reads בה which I have emended into בהן. It could be emended into בו (i.e. 'the evil inclination') as proposed in note on iii. 3.

was (recorded) friend. Cf. Isa. xli. 8; Jub. xix. 9 'friend of God' (note): xxx. 21 'That they should fulfil (the covenant) and be recorded as friends': James ii. 23 φίλος θεοῦ ἐκλήθη. The MS. is defective here, reading according to Schechter הב . . . יע, which he reads as יעשה אהב; but comparing 1 Chron. xxvii. 24, 2 Chron. xx. 34, for the use of עלה in the sense of 'to be recorded', we should here, I think, restore the text as follows יע(לה א)הב. If the ע is uncertain, then we might read יכתב as in v. 3 b, or יקרא as is implied in James ii. 23.

chose not the will of his own spirit. Contrast v. 9 b.

3. recorded as friends. This phrase occurs in Jub. xxx. 21, where the text implies exactly the same Hebrew as here יכתבו אוהבים.

members of the covenant. For the phrase בעלי ברית see Gen. xiv. 13.

4. through them. Read בהן or בו instead of בם. See v. 2 note.

according to. Reading לפי with Schechter for לפני.

5. stubbornness of their heart. See note on iii. 4.

did that which was right, &c. From Judges xvii. 6: cf. Deut. xii. 8: cf. ix. 17 a, v. 2 c, and contrast v. 2 b, c.

6. The original form of this verse seems wholly lost.

[And they eat blood]. I have bracketed this as an interpolation.

eat blood. Cf. 1 Enoch vii. 5; Jub. vi. 9, 12, 13; vii. 28, 29, &c.

(when He said) to them . . . (the land, but they hardened) their spirit. I have with Lévi supplied the words in brackets. את הארץ ויקשו . . . באמר from a comparison of Deut. i. 21, 46; Ps. cvi. 33.

7. and they hearkened . . . Maker (לא שמעו לקול עשיהם). From Ps. cvi. 25 save for the change of יהוה into עשיהם. It is possible that the choice of the latter divine name is due to the fact that it rhymes with באהליהם in the next line.

the commandments of their Teacher. For יוריהם I read with Lévi מוריהם.

murmured in their tents. From Ps. cvi. 25.

wrath of God was kindled against their congregation. Cf. Ps. cvi. 40.

8. The tristich can be restored by excising 'perished by it and their kings' as an interpolation, or a dittograph of line 3. The reference to 'kings' at this period would be an anachronism.

their land was made desolate by it. From Jer. xii. 11. A strange statement in regard to this period.

9. By it, i.e. בו. This must mean the evil inclination as in iii. 4 b, iv. 1, &c.

the first that entered into the covenant. The Israelites at Sinai.

entered into the covenant. See ii. 1 note.

Because they forsook the covenant of God :

- 10 And they chose their own will,
And went about after the stubbornness of their heart,
Every man doing his own will.

V. God confirms the Covenant with the faithful through fresh Revelations, 1-3; when Israel transgressed again God forgave them, 4-6; and confirmed His Covenant with them through Ezekiel, 6-7.

- 1 But with them that held fast by the commandments of God,
[Who were left of them],
God confirmed the covenant of Israel for ever,
Revealing unto them the hidden things
Wherein all Israel had erred :
- 2 His holy Sabbaths and His glorious festivals,
His righteous testimonies and His true ways,
And the desires of His will [the which if a man do, he shall live by them] He opened before them.
- 3 And they digged a well of many waters :
And he that despises them shall not live.
- 4 But they wallowed in the transgression of man,
And in the ways of the unclean woman,
And they said that †it belongs to us†.
- 5 But God wondrously pardoned their sins,
And forgave their transgression, forsook the covenant of God: And they chose their own will. Cf. iii. 7 ab.

10. chose their own will. Cf. iii. 7 a, iv. 2 c, 5 c, 10 c.

went about after. The rare construction תור אחרי which occurs here is found in Num. xv. 39, which we know was in the mind of the author when writing iii. 2 bc. See iii. 4 note.

stubbornness of their heart. Cf. iii. 4 note.

Every man doing, &c. See iv. 10 a note. Cf. Esther i. 8 'to do according to each man's pleasure'.

V. 1. that held fast by, &c., i. e. מחזיקים ב. Cf. ix. 4, 12, 50; Prov. iii. 18; Isa. lvi. 4; T. Naph. iii. 1.

[Who were left of them]: i. e. The Remnant. Cf. i. 4 b, note. But it appears to be an interpolation.

the covenant of Israel. I have, with some hesitation, so rendered בריתו לישראל—an Aramaism, such as we find in ii. 8. But לישראל may be a gloss. In that case we should render 'His covenant'. Schechter gives the natural rendering 'His covenant with Israel', but this does not go properly with the preceding line.

the hidden things: i. e. those in the next verse.

2. His holy Sabbaths and His glorious festivals, &c. It is not improbable that the writer refers here to the Book of Jubilees: cf. i. 14 'they shall go astray as to new moons, and sabbaths, and festivals, and jubilees, and ordinances'. In vi. 33, 34 it is said that, if Israel neglects to observe the right reckoning of the years, 'they will disturb all their seasons . . . and they will neglect their ordinances . . . and . . . the new moons, and seasons, and sabbaths'; in vi. 38 'they will go wrong as to the new moons and seasons, and sabbaths, and festivals': and in xxiii. 19 'they have forgotten commandment, and covenant, and feasts, and months (? 'new moons', i. e. חדשים), and sabbaths, and jubilees, and all judgements'.

the which if a man do, &c. Bracketed as an interpolation from Lev. xviii. 5.

opened before them: i. e. פתח לפניהם. Cf. Luke xxiv. 32 διήγοιγεν . . . τὰς γραφάς.

3. digged a well, studied or rather restudied the Law. See viii. 4-6; ix. 28.

4. wallowed . . . in the ways of the unclean woman. Cf. ix. 15 b.

transgression of man. Cf. Prov. xxix. 6.

†it belongs to us†, i. e. לנו היא.

5. wondrously. The MS. reads ברוי פלאו. Schechter emends the first word into ברוב and renders 'in the abundance of His wonder'. But this gives no sense. I emend the phrase into נפלאות, which gives a possible sense. Or comparing xvi. 1 (נכורות פלאו) it is not improbable that the text read ברחמי פלאו 'by His wondrous mercy'. See text xvi. 2.

pardoned, i. e. כפר בער. This phrase with God as the subject is derived from 2 Chron. xxx. 18. This subject recurs frequently: cf. ii. 3, vi. 6, ix. 54, xviii. 8.

forgave (וישא לפשעם). Cf. ii. 3, xvi. 2.

transgression: cf. ii. 3.

And He built them a sure house in Israel [the like of which never arose from of old nor until this day].

- 6 They who hold fast to Him are for the life of eternity,
And all the glory of man is for them;
As God confirmed it to them through Ezekiel the prophet, saying:
- 7 'The priests and the Levites and the sons of Zadok, that kept the charge of My Sanctuary when the children of Israel went astray from them, they shall bring near unto Me fat and blood.'

VI. Migration of the Penitents to Damascus. Sons of Zadok hold office in the end of the Days, 1-3. Law to be obeyed and relations with Judah broken off in the Period in which Belial is let loose, 4-12.

- 6 1 The priests are the penitents of Israel who went forth out of the land of Judah: and (the 2 Levites are) they who joined them. And the sons of Zadok are the elect of Israel called by 3 the name, that are holding office in the end of the days. Behold the statement of their names according to their generations, and the period of their office, and the number of their afflictions, and the years of their sojournings, and the statement of their works.

- 4 The first saints whom God pardoned,
Both justified the righteous,
And condemned the wicked.

- 5 And all they who come after them must do according to the interpretation of the Law,
In which the forefathers were instructed
Until the consummation of the period of these years.

- 6 In accordance with the covenant which God established with the forefathers built them a sure house (ויבן להם בית נאמן). The phrase is found in 1 Sam. ii. 35, 1 Kings xi. 38. The sure house is the pontifical dynasty of Zadok.

[the like of which . . . this day]. An interpolation.

6. They who hold fast. For phrase, cf. v. 1 a. This line shows that the author believes in a blessed immortality.

7. This verse, which is in prose, is a quotation from Ezek. xliv. 15: והכהנים הלויים בני צדוק אשר שמרו את-משמרת מקדשי בתעות בני ישראל מעלי המה יקרבו אלי . . . להקריב לי חלב ודם. The most important divergence in our text from the Massoretic is the insertion of an 'and' before 'the Levites' and an 'and' after them. But the first 'and' our author probably found in his text; for it is attested in the Syriac and Vulgate Versions, though it is absent (and rightly) from the LXX. The second 'and' may be due to our author. Our author reproduces the above quotation as follows: והכהנים והלויים ובני צדוק אשר שמרו את-משמרת מקדשו בתעות בני ישראל מעליהם יגישו ודם. Here מקדשו is clearly a clerical error for מקדשי and so I have translated.

VI. 1. the penitents. We should here punctuate שבי as שְׁבִי 'penitents': cf. ii. 3; viii. 6; ix. 24 (A & B). Cf. Isa. i. 27 שביה and lix. 20 שבי פשע ביעקב. It could also be punctuated שְׁבִי 'captivity' with Schechter. But the former seems right. The New Covenant was one of repentance: cf. ix. 15 (B).

Israel who went forth out of the land of Judah. Cf. viii. 6. This migration to Damascus possibly took place somewhere about 170 B.C. See notes on i. 6, viii. 1-10.

and they who joined them; i. e. והנלוים עמהם. These words denote the Levites; for our author carefully distinguishes the Priests and the Levites, xv. 5, 6. The word הנלוים 'who joined' seems to be a play on הלויים 'the Levites' in v. 7. I have restored the words in brackets.

2. The Zadokites are the spiritual successors of the 'penitents', but they were not to be known by this name apparently till 'the end of the days'—long after 176 B.C. in the time of the Teacher of Righteousness. See Intro. § 10. iv.

called by the name. קריאי השם. Cf. ii. 9 'called by name'.

that are holding office (i. e. העמרים). We have elsewhere in our text מעמר = 'office'.

in the end of the days, i. e. באהרית הימים. Cf. Gen. xlix. 1; Dan. xii. 13.

3. This verse appears to refer to some record or apocalypse no longer existing in the text.

statement of their names (פרוש שמותיהם). See ii. 10 b. On this meaning of פרוש see ii. 8.

the period of their office (קץ מעמדם). Cf. ii. 8, where the corresponding phrase is 'years of (their) office'.

4. The first saints, i. e. הקדושים (הראשונים). This seems the simplest restoration. Lagrange reads הקדושים and renders: 'they sanctified the years when God pardoned them', and takes the words as referring to the first period of the sect—the reign of the Saints. Schechter emends הקדושים into הראשונים.

justified, &c. Contrast i. 14.

5-6. They were to act according to a certain interpretation of the law to a certain time limit. God will forgive the followers of Zadok as He forgave the forefathers.

5. must do, i. e. לעשות.

In order to pardon their sins,
So shall God make atonement for them.

7 And on the consummation of the period [of the number] of these years
They shall no more join themselves to the house of Judah,
But shall every one stand up against his net.

8 The wall shall have been built,
The boundary been far removed.

9 And during all these years Belial shall be let loose against Israel, as God spake through Isaiah the prophet, the son of Amos, saying: 'Fear and the pit and the snare are upon thee, O inhabitant
10 of the land.' This means the three nets of Belial, concerning which Levi the son of Jacob spake, 11 by which he caught Israel and directed their faces to three kinds of †righteousness†. The first is fornication, the second is the wealth (of wickedness), the third is the pollution of the Sanctuary.

6. In order to pardon, &c. Cf. v. 5 note.

7. When the limit of time referred to in v. 5 was reached, they should break off relations with Judah and withstand its overtures. I have bracketed 'of the number' as an explanatory gloss on 'of the period' (הקין). See v. 5 c.

They shall no more join themselves (אין עור להשתפח). Cf. Isa. xiv. 1.

8. The wall shall have been built, The boundary been far removed (i.e. נבנתה הגרר רחוק החוק). These words are derived from Mic. vii. 11 'In one day thy walls shall be built, in that day thy boundary shall be far removed' (יום לבנות גרריך יום ההוא ירחק חק). I have here, as in Micah, rendered חוק by 'boundary', but it may mean 'statute' or 'decree'. If the above rendering is right, then the sense is that the community will at the end of these years of trouble be securely established and its boundaries extended afar.

9. during all these years. The words refer apparently to the time of the Antichrist.

Belial shall be let loose. Cf. Jubilees i. 20 'Let Thy mercy, O Lord, be lifted up upon Thy people . . . and let not the spirit of Beliar rule over them . . . to ensnare them from all the paths of righteousness': xv. 33: T. Reub. ii. 2 (β). This name for Satan has disappeared from Talmudic literature.

Fear and the pit, &c. Quoted from Isa. xxiv. 17.

10. This means. Literally, 'its explanation is'.

the three nets of Belial. According to our author (v. 11) these three are: fornication, wealth, and pollution of the Sanctuary. This enumeration is not found elsewhere, so far as I know, but a list of three deadly sins is found several times in Jewish literature. In Jubilees vii. 20 they are fornication, uncleanness and iniquity. 'Owing to these three things came the flood upon the earth' (vii. 21). These words of Jubilees may have been in the mind of St. Paul when he wrote: 'No fornicator, nor unclean person, nor covetous man . . . hath any inheritance in the kingdom of Christ and God . . . for because of these things cometh the wrath of God upon the sons of disobedience' (Eph. v. 5-6). According to the Ber. rabba 31, the three causes of the flood were idolatry, incest and murder.

Levi the son of Jacob spake. The words attributed to Levi are not found in the Test. Levi. In ix. 9, however, of that Testament the priests are charged with fornication and pollution of the holy place—two of the deadly sins mentioned here. Further, in v. 16 of the Aramaic and Greek Fragments of an original source of this Testament Isaac warns Levi and his sons against fornication and uncleanness (see my edition of the Test. Twelve Patr., p. 229). Finally, in Test. Lev. xiv. 5-6, the priests are accused of stealing the sacrifices, of covetousness, fornication, and profaning the priesthood and polluting the sacrifices, xvi. 1. Cf. also T. Reub. iv. 7, 11, vi. 3; T. Sim. v. 3; T. Jos. vii. 1; Jub. vii. 21, xx. 3, 5, 6, xxiii. 14, xxv. 7, xxxiii. 20, l. 5.

by which he caught Israel and directed their faces (אשר הוא תפש בהם בישראל ויתנם פניהם). The agent is here Belial. The phraseology, on the other hand, is in part borrowed, as Schechter observes, from Ezek. xiv. 4, 5, where it is said that God 'catches' Israel. This change of agent is typical in later Judaism. The Hebrew of Ezekiel is: ומכשול עונו ישים נכח פניו . . . למען תפש את בית ישראל.

†righteousness†. The text undoubtedly reads צדק here, but it seems to me to be a slip of a scribe for עולה. Hence read 'wickedness'.

11. The first sin, i.e. fornication, is dealt with in vii. 1-7; in vii. 8-17 the third—the pollution of the Sanctuary. The second is referred to in viii. 12; ix. 14.

wealth (הון). In Test. Lev. xiv. 6 the Sadducean priests are charged with 'covetousness,' i.e. πλεονεξία, which in the LXX is the rendering for פִּצְעַ. If the text is original, our author, like a fanatic, makes, not the sinful desire, but the object of the desire a sinful thing in itself. In Jubilees xxiii. 21, where the writer is speaking of the Hellenizing priesthood in the time of the early Maccabees, he states that 'they will exalt themselves to deceit and wealth (i.e. wealth won by wrong) . . . and they will defile the holy of holies . . . with . . . the corruption of their pollution'. Here unrighteous gain is said to be the object of the priesthood. And so it appears to be in our text. For in viii. 12 we have 'the polluted wealth of wickedness' (הון הרשעה הממא) and in ix. 14 'the wealth of wickedness'; also in 1 Enoch ciii. 5 'your sinfully acquired wealth', lxiii. 10 'our unrighteous gains', and see Luke xvi. 9 μαμωνᾶ τῆς ἀδικίας. Hence I have restored 'of wickedness' (הרשעה) to the text. Cf. Targ. on Isa. v. 23 ממון דשקר.

12 He that cometh up from this shall be caught by that, and he that escapeth from this shall be caught by that.

VII. 1-7. The Sin of Fornication. Divorce forbidden.

7 1 The builders of the wall who walk after law—the law it is which talks, of which He said: Assuredly they shall talk—are caught [by two] by fornication in taking two wives during their life-
2, 3 time. But the fundamental principle of the creation is 'Male and Female created He them.' And 4 they who went into the Ark, 'Two and two went into the Ark.' And as to the prince it is written, 5 'He shall not multiply wives unto himself.' But David read not in the Book of the Law that was sealed, which was in the Ark; for it was not opened in Israel from the day of the death of Eleazar and 6 Joshua, and the Elders who served Ashtaroth. And it was hidden (and was not) discovered until 7 Zadok arose: Now they glorified the deeds of David save only the blood of Uriah, and God ‡abandoned them to him‡.

VII. 8-18. The Sin of polluting the Sanctuary.

8 And they also pollute the Sanctuary since they separate not according to the Law, and lie with 9 her who sees the blood of her issue. And they take (to wife) each his brother's daughter or his the pollution of the Sanctuary. I have here, of course, followed Schechter's emendation of טמא into טמאת. The profanation of the sanctuary by the priesthood is a very frequent accusation in the O.T. Cf. Zeph. iii. 4, 'her priests have polluted the sanctuary': also 1 Sam. ii. 12, 17, 22; Ezek. xxii. 26, xlv. 7, 8, &c.

12. He that cometh up from this shall be caught (יחפש) by that, &c. Our author returns to Isa. xxiv. 17 from which he had drawn the quotation in v. 9. The present words are not a quotation but are based on Isa. xxiv. 18 'He who fleeth (הִיָּס) from the noise of the fear shall fall into the pit; and he who cometh up (העולה) out of the midst of the pit shall be taken (יִלְכָּד) in the snare'. These words are reproduced in Jer. xlvi. 44. It will be observed that whereas the participle 'he that cometh up' (העולה) has a fitness in Isaiah as applying to 'the pit' it has lost this fitness in our context.

VII. 1. This verse seems to be directed against the Pharisees and their exposition of the Law. The text seems hopeless בוני החוץ אשר הלכו אחרי צו הצו הוא מטיף אשר אמר הטף יטיבון. בוני החוץ is to be emended into החיין as in ix. 21, 26 (B). The phrase בוני החוץ 'builders of the wall', is borrowed from Ezek. xiii. 10. It recurs in ix. 21, 26. On the meaning of this phrase see note on ix. 21. Possibly צו is corrupt for שווא in both cases. If so, we might translate: 'the builders of the wall who walk after vanity (cf. Hos. v. 11, LXX, Syr.)—the vanity it is which talks of which it is said: &c.' Lévi retains the text and translates: 'Les bâtisseurs de murailles, qui poursuivent çaw (les lois)—et çaw, c'est le bavardage à propos duquel il est dit: "ils ne font que bavarder"—ont été pris dans deux.'

[by two], i. e. בשתי a dittograph from the שתי following.

two wives during their lifetime. Schechter is of opinion that the text is 'not only directed against polygamy but also against divorce which certain Jewish sects forbade'. This is probably right though the suffix, i. e. 'their', is masc.—בחייהם—and if taken strictly would refer to the men. But not infrequently in the O.T. the masc. suffix is used in reference to feminine nouns: cf. Ruth iv. 11 שתייהם referring to Rachel and Leah: see Gesenius Gram. § 135 o. But the reference to David in v. 7 would imply that we have here to do with polygamy only.

2. fundamental principle, i. e. יסוד.

Male and Female, &c. From Gen. i. 27. Cf. Matt. xix. 4; Mark x. 7. As Schechter points out, Aboth d' R. Nathan, p. 5 a, uses the same argument against polygamy but does not give the verse.

4. The word for prince here is נשיא, which is used by Ezekiel. Lévi thinks that it is chosen instead of 'king' to belittle the Davidic dynasty.

He shall not multiply, &c. From Deut. xvii. 17.

5. The explanation of David's polygamy.

Joshua. The text has here a dittograph ויהושע ויהושע.

served Ashtaroth. Judges ii. 13.

6. And it was hidden (and was not) discovered. Here I follow Schechter's emendation of ויטמן נגלה into ויטמן (ולא) נגלה.

Zadok. Some ancient worthy, but who he was cannot be determined.

7. Our author clearly disapproves of the praise of David in 1 Kings xv. 5, which seems to have been in his thoughts.

glorified (or extolled), i. e. יעלו. Cf. Ps. cxxxvii. 6 for this use of the verb. It is a Talmudic use also. Schechter emends יעלו into יעלימו, i. e. 'concealed'.

abandoned them to him. Does this mean: abandoned Israel to the sway and example of David?

8. separate. Here מבריל must of necessity be changed into מברלים.

blood of her issue (דם זובה). Cf. Lev. xv. 19. In the Pss. Sol. viii. 13 the Sadducean priests are charged with similarly profaning the altar and temple, ἐπάτουν τὸ θυσιαστήριον κυρίου ἀπὸ πάσης ἀκαθαρσίας, καὶ ἐν ἀφ᾽ ἑδρω αἵματος ἐμίαινον τὰς θυσίας. But the charge here is brought against the Pharisees.

9. brother's. For אחיהם read אחיהו. There is no need for the two changes made by Schechter.

10 sister's daughter. But Moses said 'Thou shalt not approach thy mother's sister: she is thy 11 mother's near kin'. So the law of intercourse for males is written, and the same law holds for females; and let not the daughter of the brother uncover the nakedness of the brother of her father: he is near of kin.

12 They also polluted their holy spirit and with a tongue of blasphemies they opened the mouth 13 against the statutes of the covenant of God, saying: They are not established. But abominations they speak regarding them.

14 They are all 'kindlers of fire
And setters aflame of firebrands':

15 'The webs of spiders' are their weavings
And 'the eggs of cockatrices' are their eggs:

16 He who comes near them shall not be innocent:
He that chooseth them shall be held guilty [unless he was forced].

17 Aforetime God visited their works,
And His wrath was kindled because of their devices.

18 For 'it is a people of no understanding':
'They are a nation void of counsel,'
[Because there is no understanding in them].

19 For aforetime arose Moses and Aaron through the prince of the Lights. But Belial raised Jochanneh and his brother with his evil device when the former delivered Israel.

10. Thou shalt not . . . kin (i.e. אל אחות אמן לא תקרב שאר אמן היא). This is a free reproduction of Lev. xviii. 13 ערות אחות אמן לא תגלה כי שאר אמן הוא: cf. Jebam. 55 ab.

11. intercourse, i.e. הערייה—a Rabbinic term.

let not the daughter of the brother, &c. The text reads ואם 'and if' which I have emended into ואל 'and let not'. This argument that, if a man must not marry his aunt, a woman must not marry her uncle is found among the Caraites, but it is earlier. Similar reasoning is attributed to the Sadducees in Baba Bathra 115 b, Megillat Taanith 5.

12. their holy spirit, i.e. רוח קדשיהם. Cf. viii. 2 note. Late Hebrew Test. Naph. x. 9 (in my edition of the Test. Twelve Patr. p. 227), 'Blessed is he who does not defile the holy spirit of God which hath been put and breathed into him, and blessed is he who returns it to its Creator as pure as it was on the day when He entrusted it to him.' Schechter compares Wertheimer, ii. 14 בתי מדרשות אשרי אדם שלא יטמא רוח אלהים שבקרבו.

They are not established (לא נכונים). This passage is directed against the Pharisees, who by their casuistry set at naught the Law.

14. all kindlers of fire . . . firebrands (כלם קרחי אש ומבערי זיקות). These words are drawn from Isa. l. 11 though with a change: כלכם קרחי אש מאורי זיקות לבו . . . בזיקות בערתם.

15. The webs of spiders. From Isa. lix. 4.

the eggs of cockatrices. From Isa. lix. 4.

16. He that chooseth them. The text reads the unintelligible כהר ביתו יאשם. Schechter emends the first word into כחרם. Thus we have: 'like a thing accursed shall his house be guilty.' But the parallelism points in a different direction. יאשם 'shall be held guilty' is right; for it corresponds to 'shall not be innocent' in the previous line. We require now a parallel to 'he that cometh near them'—in other words, we expect a participle behind כהר, i.e. בְּהֵר. ביתו is there corrupt for בהם. Thus we arrive at the above. Lévi suggests the change of כהר into מהר = 'speedily', and renders 'bientôt sa maison est vouée à la destruction' and is herein followed by Lagrange, but neither this clause nor yet the clause which follows admits readily of the meaning they attach to them.

unless he was forced (כי אם נלחץ). An obvious gloss. The words כי אם that follow are with Schechter to be rejected as a dittograph. Lévi and Lagrange: 'assuredly it will be destroyed' (referring to the 'house').

18. The first line is verbally drawn from Isa. xxvii. 11. The second and third lines are from Deut. xxxii. 28, but the last line, which I have bracketed as a gloss, diverges slightly, i.e. ואין בהם תבונה whereas Deut.
xxxii. 28 has ואין בהם תבונה.

19. This verse seems to have no connexion either with what precedes or what follows.

prince of the Lights, i.e. שר האורים. This may be the angel Uriel who, according to 1 Enoch, was set over the lights of heaven. Schechter suggests that we should read פנים for אורים. We should then have 'the prince of the Presence' who succoured Moses, against Mastema (i.e. Belial) Jub. xlvi. 2, 9.

Belial, i.e. Satan: cf. ix. 12.

Jochanneh and his brother. These are the two Egyptian magicians, Jannes and Jambres, mentioned in 2 Tim. iii. 8, who withstood Moses, Exod. vii. 11 sq. In Menachoth 85 a they are called יוחני וממרא. See Encyc. Bib. ii. 2327 sqq.

when the former delivered Israel. The text reads בהושע ישראל את הראשונה. Schechter emends את

VIII. When the Land was laid desolate God would raise up wise men who would restudy the Law and go in Exile to Damascus, 1-5; and according to its Precepts the repentant ones should walk till the Teacher of Righteousness arose (i.e. after 176 B.C.), 7-10.

- 8 1 And during the period of the destruction of the land there arose those who removed the landmark 2 and led Israel astray. And the land became desolate because they spake rebellion against the commandments of God through Moses [and also through His holy anointed one], and they prophesied a lie to turn away Israel from God.
- 3 But God remembered the covenant with the forefathers:
And He raised up from Aaron men of understanding,
And from Israel wise men:
- 4 And He made them to hearken,
And they digged the well.
- 5 'A well the princes digged,
The nobles of the people delved it
By the order of the Lawgiver.'
- 6 The well is the Law, and they who digged it are the penitents of Israel who went forth out of the land of Judah and sojourned in the land of Damascus, all of whom God called princes.
- 7, 8 For they sought Him and His glory was not turned back in the mouth of one (of them). And the Lawgiver is he who studies the Law, in regard to whom Isaiah said, 'He bringeth forth an instrument into נת and renders 'when I. was delivered for the first time'. But this would require העת. I emend as follows: בהושע את ישראל הראשונים. On this order of object and subject, cf. Gen. iv. 15; Joshua xiv. 11; 2 Sam. xviii. 29; Isa. xx. 1, &c. The error arose through the transposition of the את. 'The former' are of course 'Moses and Aaron'. Here Lévi and Lagrange render את הראשונה 'pour la première fois'!

VIII. 1-10. The period here referred to seems to be the same as 'the period of wrath' in i. 5 when evil men arose who rebelled against the commandments of God (v. 2). But God raised up men of understanding, who studied the law (4-5) and went forth out of the land of Judah to Damascus (6). In this law and its precepts they should walk till the Teacher of righteousness arose (10). We have already seen (see i. 7 note) that this teacher was raised up 'in the period of the wrath' (i. 5), which began or prevailed about 196 B. C. In v. 10 this period is called 'the end of the days'.

1. the period of the destruction of the land. See i. 5 and preceding note.

who removed the landmark. Cf. i. 11 note; ix. 13, 49. These wicked leaders may be the Hellenizers if the date is early, or the Pharisees if it is late. Perhaps the same as 'the scornful man' spoken of in i. 10; for he 'talked to Israel lying words and made them go astray' (i. 10; cf. viii. 2, 1) so that they 'should remove the landmark' (i. 11; cf. viii. 1).

2. the land became desolate, i. e. through the Syrians.

spake rebellion. Cf. xiv. 5 (i.e. דברו סרה). From Deut. xiii. 6.

and also through His holy anointed one. If these words are genuine they may refer, as Lévi suggests, to Aaron. Moses and Aaron would in this case be conceived as the revealers of God's commands. But since the text reads וגם במשיחו הקורש it would be more natural to translate 'and also through His holy Messiah': cf. ix. 10 (B), 29, xv. 4, xviii. 8. See note on i. 7. There is a difficulty with regard to this phrase in ii. 10.

3. remembered the covenant, &c. Cf. i. 4 note.

Aaron . . . and Israel. Cf. ix. 10 (B); xv. 4; xviii. 8. Schechter may be right in deducing from this verse (viii. 3) the conclusion that the Zadokite Party 'insisted that the lay element should be represented in all important functions'.

made . . . to hearken. The text reads ישמעם, which with Schechter I have emended into ישמיעם. Bacher retains the text and translates 'assembled them' (cf. 1 Sam. xv. 4).

the well. Cf. v. 3. 'The well is the Law (v. 6).

5. From Num. xxi. 18.

the Lawgiver (i.e. המחוקק). A very narrow definition is given to the Lawgiver in v. 8. He is 'a student of the Law'. It is quite in keeping with the absolute autocracy of the Law. The Lawgiver (viii. 8, 9) is in ix. 8 called 'the Star', whose duties are described in the same terms.

6. the penitents of Israel . . . land of Judah. Cf. vi. 1.

land of Damascus. Cf. v. 15; ix. 5, 28, 37.

7. His glory. The text reads הושבה פארתם (= 'their bough was . . . turned back') which I take to be corrupt for הושבה תפארתו = 'His glory was . . . turned back'. This term is used frequently of God in the O.T.

8. the Lawgiver, i. e. המחוקק. He appears to have been the founder of the Party at Damascus.

studies the Law, i. e. דורש התורה.

He bringeth forth, &c. From Isa. liv. 16.

9 for his work.' And the nobles of the people are those who came to dig the well by the precepts in the which the Lawgiver ordained that they should walk throughout the full period of the wickedness.
10 And save them they shall get nothing until there arises the Teacher of Righteousness in the end of the days.

VIII. 11-20. Conditions under which they can act as Priests in the Sanctuary.

- 11 And none who have entered into the covenant shall enter into the Sanctuary to kindle His altar but they shall shut the doors concerning whom God said,
'O that there was one among you to shut the doors,
So that ye might not vainly kindle the fire upon My altar,'
- 12 Unless they observe to do according to the true meaning of the Law until the period of the wickedness, and to sever themselves from the children of the pit, and to hold aloof from the polluted wealth of wickedness under a vow and a curse, and from the wealth of the Sanctuary:

9. in the which. The text reads במה . . . אשר an obvious corruption for בהם "א.
period of the wickedness. Cf. v. 12. In Ezek. xxi. 30 we have 'the time of the wickedness of the end' (עת עון קץ).

wickedness. The text reads רשיע which I have emended into רשעה. This phrase refers to the kingdom of wickedness (מלכות הרשעה) as opposed to the coming Messianic kingdom.

10. From the founding of the Party till the teacher of righteousness arose, i. e. after 196 B. C., no new teaching or light should be given. See note on viii. 1-10.

until there arises, &c. Cf. Ezra ii. 63; Neh. vii. 65 for a like idea.

the Teacher of Righteousness, i. e. יורה הצדק. See i. 7 note.

11-20. These verses form one sentence, in which the conditions are given, on the fulfilment of which the priests can administer their office in the Temple.

11. And none who have entered into the covenant shall enter into the Sanctuary, i. e. וכל אשר הובאו וכל אשר הובאו. I have here, as Schechter suggests, emended הובאו into באו. As regards the translation, there are two possible ways. I have, with Schechter, given the above rendering, but Lévi, citing Jer. xxxiv. 10 לבאתי עבר במ . . . אשר באו בברית לשלח איש את עברו . . . כל השרים and 2 Chron. xv. 12, insists that we must connect the words as in these passages. If this is necessary the translation would run: 'And all those who had entered the covenant not to enter the Sanctuary to kindle His altar, and had shut the doors.' But, if we accept Lévi's rendering, the connexion and grammar of the entire passage are destroyed. In order to carry it out, Lévi is obliged to render לא אם as 'because . . . not' (!) in v. 12, and to make vv. 11-20 a nominativus pendens, which does not find a predicate to v. 21, and which, when it is resumed in v. 21, has quite changed its meaning! Lagrange accepts Lévi's suggestion but avoids rendering לא אם as Lévi has done. He rightly takes these words as meaning 'unless'. But the passage then becomes no more intelligible in his hands. v. 11 is a nom. pendens which is apparently explained in v. 12, which forms the beginning of a long protasis extending from v. 12 to v. 20, and then ends without an apodosis. He tries to get over these difficulties by suggesting that לא אם forms the beginning of an oath. But there is nothing in the text to suggest such an idea.

Hence I conclude that if the passage is to be construed intelligibly, it is to be taken as I have given it. The apodosis of the sentence comes first in v. 11, and the protasis follows in 12-20. For another long sentence where the protasis consists of four verses, see ix. 50-54. No priest of the Zadokite party is to take part in the Temple services (v. 11), unless he fulfils the conditions laid down in 12-20. In case the Zadokite priests fulfil these conditions, they are in v. 21 given the assurance of an everlasting covenant.

none . . . shall enter, i. e. בל . . . לבאתי בוא. This construction recurs in vi. 5, 7 (bis), ix. 2, 12, x. 1, xx. 7.

none . . . shall enter into the Sanctuary to kindle His altar. These words refer to the Temple in Jerusalem: cf. v. 12 where the wealth of the Sanctuary is spoken of, and i. 3 note.

have entered into the covenant. See ii. 1 note.

doors. Text reads דלתו corrupt for דלתים as also in the quotation that follows.

O that . . . upon My altar. From Mal. i. 10, save that our text omits גם and by a slip puts דלתו for דלתים. That it is the Temple in Jerusalem that our text refers to follows inevitably from this quotation.

12. observe to do. Cf. Deut. xii. 1.

until the period of the wickedness, i. e. לקץ הרשע. Perhaps קץ should here have its ordinary meaning of 'end'. Cf. v. 9.

children of the pit, בני השחת. Cf. Jub. x. 3, xv. 26, where the phrase denotes those who refuse circumcision. In xvi. 7 it undoubtedly means the uncircumcised. In Ezek. xxx. 24, &c. 'Sheol' or 'the pit' (בור xxxii. 29 or שחת xxviii. 8) is spoken of as the final habitation of the uncircumcised.

to hold aloof . . . under a vow and a curse, i. e. to take a vow to separate themselves and invoke a curse on themselves in case they failed.

to hold aloof, i. e. להנזר. Cf. Num. vi. 2, 5, 12. The form להזיר is found in viii. 18.

the polluted wealth of wickedness. See note on vi. 11.

13 And in respect to robbing the poor of His people,
So that widows may be their spoil,
And they may murder the fatherless:

14 And to make a difference between the clean and the unclean and to make men discern between 15 the holy and the profane: And to observe the Sabbath according to its true meaning and the feasts and the day of the Fast according to the utterances of them who entered into the New 16 Covenant in the land of Damascus: To contribute their holy things according to the true inter-
17 pretation: To love every one his brother as himself, and to strengthen the hand of the poor 18 and the needy and the stranger, and to seek every one the peace of his brother: To hold aloof from harlots according to the law: and that no man should commit a trespass against his next 19 of kin: To rebuke every one his brother according to the commandment, and not to bear a grudge 20 from day to day, and to separate from all the pollutions according to their judgements. And no man to hold aloof . . . from the wealth of the Sanctuary. Can this be a pregnant expression for 'to hold aloof . . . from robbing the wealth, &c.'? If so, we might compare Test. Lev. xiv. 5 'The offerings of the Lord ye shall rob, and from His portion ye shall steal choice portions'. The chief Pharisee of the time of Jannaeus, i. e. Simon ben Shetach, is said to have appropriated to his own use half the offerings of 300 Nazarites. See Schürer³, i. 279 sq. But the text may mean that the priests of the Party are not to avail themselves of the wealth of the Temple.

from the wealth, &c. Reading מהון instead of בהון. In vi. 11 (see note) evilly-acquired wealth is spoken of. The same charge appears here to be brought against the wealth of the Sanctuary. If this is so, the Sanctuary in question cannot be the sanctuary of the Party; for they would not in any case admit that its (small) wealth was of this nature. Hence the text can only refer to the Temple in Jerusalem.

13. in respect to robbing . . . the fatherless. This verse is a quotation from Isa. x. 2 ולגזול משפט עניי יבוז, but our author omits משפט and changes יבוז into ירצחו, which, as Lévi observes, is drawn from Ps. xciv. 6 ויתומים ירצחו.

in respect to robbing. The text reads לגזול and I have translated accordingly, but this may be corrupt for מגזול = 'from robbing'.

14. This verse is a quotation from Ezek. xxii. 26, save that our author has transposed the two verbs and read: ולהבריל בין הטמא לטהור ולהודיע בין הקודש לחול. In connecting הבריל with the first clause he may have been influenced by Lev. xi. 47 which does so.

15. the day of the Fast, i. e. the Day of Atonement.

utterances. The text reads מצא which I take to be corrupt for מוצאי. But Schechter is possibly right in emending it into מצות = 'command'.

the New Covenant. Cf. ix. 28, 37. See note on ii. 1. The phrase appears to be derived from Jer. xxxi. 31. It was called 'new' because it was a covenant based on repentance, ix. 15 (B) (ברית תשובה). This involved a spiritual transformation, and corresponds to the words in Jer. xxxi. 33 'I will put my law in their inward parts, and in their hearts will I write it'.

the land of Damascus. See viii. 6 note.

16. contribute, i. e. להרים.

their holy things (הקרשים). These words may refer to the tithes of the oxen and the sheep. These are mentioned in Lev. xxvii. 32 and 2 Chron. xxxi. 6 only, but were unknown to Nehemiah (x. 37-39, xii. 44-47, &c.). The literal tithing of the oxen and sheep is maintained in Jub. xxxii. 15 (see my note in loc.), but Rabbinic tradition sought to make it out as merely a tithe of the yearly increase.

17. To love . . . as himself, i. e. לאהוב איש את אחיו כמוהו. In Lev. xix. 18 we have 'neighbour' instead of 'brother'. The question arises here, who is 'the brother'? In Judaism it was always limited to fellow countrymen, and the context here favours this idea. See the Test. Twelve Patr. for the noblest pre-Christian enforcement of this duty: T. Sim. iv. 7; T. Iss. v. 2, vii. 6; T. Gad iv. 2, vi. 1, 3, vii. 7; T. Benj. ii. 3, iii. 3, 4.

to strengthen . . . needy (להחזיק ביד עני ואביון). From Ezek. xvi. 49.

seek . . . the peace (לדרוש . . . את שלום). Cf. Deut. xxiii. 6, 7; Jer. xxix. 7.

18. I have transposed the two clauses of this verse.

harlots. For זונות we should perhaps read זנות 'fornication' with Schechter. Cf. iii. 2, vii. 2.

his next of kin (i. e. שאר בשרו). Cf. ix. 17; Lev. xviii. 6, xxv. 49.

19. rebuke . . . his brother (להוכיח . . . את אחיו). The commandment is in Lev. xix. 17 תכיה את אמתך. Cf. x. 2, 5 of our text.

not to bear a grudge. Cf. ix. 16, x. 1 note.

to separate from all the pollutions. Cf. Ezra vi. 21.

20. no man shall make abominable his holy spirit, i. e. לא ישקין איש את רוח קדשו. This is clearly a reproduction of Lev. xx. 25 with a change of phrase: 'Ye shall not make your souls abominable'. See our text xiv. 12. Thus the 'spirit' (רוח = πνεῦμα) is for our author identical with the soul (נפש = ψυχή) alike in essence and function as in 1 Enoch xxii. 3, 5 &c. See my Eschatology, 195, sq. See vii. 12 note.

shall make abominable (with these) his holy spirit, according as God separated (these) from them.

21 As for all those who walk in these things in the perfection of holiness according to all the ordinances, the covenant of God standeth fast unto them to preserve them to a thousand generations.

Text A.

Text B.

standeth fast unto them to preserve them for thousands of generations. As it is written, 'Who keepeth covenant and mercy with them that love Him and keep His commandments to a thousand generations.'

IX. 1. The Law as to binding and loosing.

1 And if they settle in camps according to the order of the land and take wives and beget children, they shall walk according to the Law, and according to the judgements of the ordinances according to the order of the Law as He spake, 'between a man and his wife, and between a father and his son'.

And if they settle in camps according to the 9 1 statutes of the land which were from of old and take wives according to the custom of the Law and beget children, they shall walk according to the Law and according to the judgements of the ordinances according to the order of the Law as He spake, 'between a man and his wife, and between a father and his son.'

IX. 2-3. Threatened Judgement on those who rejected the Statutes.

2 But as for all them that reject . . . when God will bring a visitation upon the land they shall be requited with the recompense of the wicked; when there shall come to pass the word which is written in the words of Isaiah the son of Amos 3 the prophet, who said: 'He will bring upon thee and upon thy people and upon thy father's house days that have (not) come from the day that Ephraim departed from Judah.'

But as for all them that reject the command- 2 ments and the statutes they shall be requited with the recompense of the wicked; when God will bring a visitation upon the land, when there shall come to pass the word which is written by the hand of Zechariah the prophet: 'O sword, awake 3 against My shepherd and against the man that is My fellow, saith God; smite the shepherd and the sheep shall be scattered, and I will turn Mine hand against the little ones.'

separated (these) from them (הבדיל . . . להם), i. e. separated the unclean things from them. From Lev. xx. 25.

21. As for all those who walk in these things . . . the covenant of God standeth fast unto them. These clauses recur in xvi. 12.

perfection of holiness or 'holy perfection' (תמים קדש). Cf. ix. 30, 33.

ordinances. The text reads יסורי or יסורי (= 'disciplinings'), which must be emended as in ix. 1 (A? and B) into יסורים. Cf. xi. 2.

the covenant . . . standeth fast unto them. Cf. xvi. 12. From Ps. lxxxix. 28 בריתי נאמנת לו. I have changed נאמנות into נאמנת as in the Psalms.

21. B. Who keepeth covenant . . . generations. From Deut. vii. 9. The לאהב and the מצותי are to be read as לאהביו and מצותיו.

IX. 1. camps. According to Lévi the name of the Jewish quarter even at the present day in Persia is 'camp', referring to Elkan Adler גנוי פרס, p. 3.

order (or 'regulation' or 'arrangement'), i. e. סרך a Rabbinic word. It recurs in x. 1, xv. 1, 4, xvi. 1, xvii. 1. Observe that in B we have חוקי, but later in this verse it is found both in A and B. סרך is found in sv. 29, 30 of the Aramaic Fragments of an original source of the Test. Twelve Patr. In the Greek, which is here happily preserved, τάξις appears as the equivalent of סרך. Both the Aramaic and Greek Fragments go back to a Hebrew original. See my Greek Versions of the Test. Twelve Patr., p. 250. Cf. סרבין = 'administrators' in Dan. vi. 3, 4, &c.

ordinances, i. e. יסורים in B and A (?), which latter could also be read יסורים.

between a man and his wife . . . son. From Num. xxx. 16 save that for 'son' (בנו) the O.T. reads 'daughter' (בתו). We have here a summary reference to the law of binding and loosing, which is more fully treated in xx. 2-12.

2. will bring a visitation. This is the visitation through the Messiah: cf. sv. 9-10, 12-13.

they shall be requited with the recompense of the wicked. I am doubtful as to the rendering here. The text reads להשיב גמול רשעים עליהם. This use of the infinitive is frequent in our text. For the phrase cf. Joel iii. 4, 7.

3. The great difference of the two recensions here is to be observed.

3. A. This verse is quoted from Isa. vii. 17. It recurs in part in xvi. 11—a fact which may support the A recension. For יבוא we must read יביא, and לא must be restored before באו as in xvi. 11 and in the O.T.

that have (not) come . . . Ephraim. These words recur in xvi. 11.

3. B. This verse is quoted from Zech. xiii. 7. Our author has changed צבאות יי into אל.

A

IX. 4-9. Foundation of the Zadokite Party and its Expectations: the Law, the Prophets, and the Messiah.

4 When the two houses of Israel separated, [Ephraim departed from Judah, and] all who proved faithless were delivered to the sword, and those who held fast escaped into the land of the North.
5 As He said, 'And I will cause to go into captivity Siccuth your King and Chiun your images,
6 (the star of your god which ye made for yourselves) beyond Damascus.' The books of the Law are the tabernacle of the King, as He said, 'And I will raise up the tabernacle of David that is 7 fallen.' The King is the congregation and Chiun the images are the books of the Prophets, whose 8 words Israel has despised. And the Star is he who studied the Law, who came to Damascus, as it is written, 'There shall come forth a star out of Jacob, and a sceptre shall rise out of Israel.' The 9 sceptre is the prince of all the congregation.

IX. 10-20. The Messiah will destroy those who were faithless to the New Covenant: their moral Derelictions through Hellenizing Influences.

A

B

10	And when he arises 'he shall destroy all the sons of (battle) din' . . . These shall escape during the period of the [first] visitation, but those who proved faithless shall be delivered to the sword.	And 'they that give heed unto Him are the poor of the flock'. These shall escape during the period of the visitation, but the rest shall be handed over to the sword when the Messiah comes from
----	--	--

4. [Ephraim . . . and]. Bracketed as a dittograph from the preceding sentence. So Landauer.
all who proved faithless. Cf. v. 10.
those who held fast. See v. 1 note.
land of the North, i. e. Damascus.

5-9. The extraordinary piece of exegesis which we find in these verses has for its object the removal from the Messianic hopes of the expectation of a Messiah descended from David. No kingly but a priestly Messiah is to be looked for.

5. This verse is quoted from Amos v. 26-27, but with a few changes. Two are accidental and owing to copyists. The first of these is the omission of the clause 'the star of your God which ye made for yourselves'. The second is the corruption of ל מהלאה = 'beyond' into מאהלי 'from the tents of'. The entire context of our author requires the former. The words 'beyond Damascus' denote the destination of the captivity—called 'the land of Damascus' in viii. 6, ix. 28, 38. If our author deliberately changed ל מהלאה into מאהלי he would not have done so unless it was of importance to him. That it was not is patent from the fact that no allusion to 'tents' occurs in what follows.

There is, however, one deliberate change of the text of Amos, namely, the substitution of והגלית 'and I will cause . . . to go into captivity' from v. 27 for ונשאתם 'and ye shall carry' in v. 26.

6. tabernacle. Here סכות 'Siccuth' or 'Saccuth' is read as סכת = 'tabernacle'.

And I will raise up . . . fallen. From Amos ix. 11, save that for אקים our text reads והקימותי.

7. whose words Israel has despised. Cf. Test. Lev. xvi. 2 'Ye shall set at naught the words of the prophets'. The meaning may be, as Lévi suggests, that Israel had treated the books of the Prophets as worthless idols.

8. The Star does not symbolize the Messiah, but the religious leader of the party of penitents that went to the land of Damascus. Hence there is no connexion between the idea in our text and in Test. Lev. xviii. 3; Test. Jud. xxiv. 1, where the Star does symbolize the Messiah, and where both passages are based on Num. xxiv. 17. Since the Star is said to 'study the Law' (דרש התורה) and likewise to have gone forth at the head of the penitents to Damascus, he is the same as the Lawgiver in viii. 5, 8, 9.

There shall come forth a star, &c. Quoted from Num. xxiv. 17.

9. The sceptre appears to denote the Messiah: cf. v. 10 (B). He is a militant Messiah. This reference to the Messiah is proleptic.

10. he shall destroy all the sons of (battle) din. Quoted from Num. xxiv. 17. I have here given one of the most likely renderings of ישת.

The two recensions must be used here to supplement each other. A is wanting in a clause at the beginning, which B preserves.

10 A. shall escape: reading ימלטו for מלטו, as in 10 B.

the period of the [first] visitation. I have bracketed 'first' (הראשון) which should, if correct, be הראשונה (the first visitation). It is not the first but the second or final visitation that is referred to, as is clear from B.

those who proved faithless. Cf. v. 4. Here B has הנשארים 'the rest'.

shall be delivered. Here I emend הסנירו into יסגרו (cf. ימסרו in B). The Hophal הסגרו is found in this sense in v. 11 (B).

10 B. they that give heed . . . flock. This is a quotation from Zech. xi. 11, save that our author has changed אותי = 'Me' into אותו = 'Him'.

A

11 [Lost.]

12 And this also shall be the judgement of all them who have entered into His covenant, who will not hold fast to these (statutes): they shall be visited for destruction through the hand of Belial. This is the day on which God shall visit (as He hath spoken):

'The princes of Judah were (like them that removed the landmark):
Upon them will I pour out (My) wrath (like water).'

14 For they are too sick to be healed,
And they have been at the head of all the rebels.

15 Because they have not turned from the way of traitors,
But have wallowed in the ways of harlots,
And in the wealth of wickedness and (in) revenge.

16 And every man beareth a grudge against his brother,
And every man hateth his neighbour.

17 And they committed trespass every man against his next of kin,
And drew near to unchastity:

B

Aaron and Israel: Just as it was during the period 11 of the first visitation, concerning which He spake through Ezekiel 'to set a mark upon the foreheads of them that sigh and cry', but the rest were delivered to 'the sword that avengeth with the vengeance of the covenant'. And this also 12 shall be the judgement of all them that have entered into His covenant, who will not hold fast to these statutes: they shall be visited for destruction through the hand of Belial. This is the day 13 on which God shall visit, as He hath spoken:

'The princes of Judah were like them that remove the landmark:
Upon them will I pour out (My) wrath like water.'

Because they entered into the covenant of 15 repentance
And yet have not turned from the way of traitors:
But have dealt wantonly in the ways of fornication,
In the wealth of wickedness and in revenge.

And every man beareth a grudge against his 16 brother,
And every man hateth his neighbour.

And they committed trespass every man against 17 his next of kin,
And drew near to unchastity:

from Aaron and Israel. I have here preferred \aleph before both these words in accordance with ix. 29. See note on i. 7.

11. spake. By a slip a scribe inserts 'Ezekiel' as the subject of 'spake'.

set a mark . . . cry (i.e. להתות תיו על מצחות נאנחים ונאנקים). From Ezek. ix. 4 מצחות על מצחות והנאנקים והנאנחים.

that avengeth . . . covenant. Cf. i. 12 d.

12. entered into His covenant. See ii. 1 note.

will not hold fast. Cf. v. 1 note.

they shall be visited, i.e. לפקדם. This idiomatic construction with the infinitive is frequent in our text. See note on viii. 11.

through the hand of Belial. Belial in later pre-Christian Judaism is simply another name for Satan. One of the three functions assigned to satanic spirits in 1 Enoch is that of the punishment of sinners.

13. God shall visit. See v. 2 note.

The princes of Judah, &c. From Hos. v. 10. The text of A is defective and corrupt. For עליהם אשפך עליהם עברתי it reads אשר השפוך עליהם העברה. B agrees exactly with the Massoretic Hebrew, save that it reads עברה for עברתי. For the meaning of 'princes of Judah' in our text see viii. 6.

14. In A only and very corrupt. The text runs וידקמום כל מורדים | כי יהלו למרפא, where I propose to read ויקרמו and emend the vox nulla מרפא into יקרמו. But the text remains a problem. Lévi suggests מ וינקם 'and He will take vengeance on all the rebels'.

15-19. Breaches by the Princes of Judah of the moral conditions laid down in viii. 11 a-19 c. Thus contrast ix. 15 a with viii. 11 a: ix. 15 c with viii. 18 a: ix. 15 d with viii. 12 c: ix. 16 a with viii. 19 b: ix. 16 b with viii. 17 a: ix. 17 a with viii. 18 b: ix. 17 b with viii. 19 c: ix. 18 b with viii. 19 c.

15 B. entered into the covenant. See ii. 1 note.

covenant of repentance, i.e. ברית תשובה. This is the covenant mentioned in Jer. xxxi. 30, 32.

15 A. wallowed, i.e. יתגוללו (A). But B reads יתעללו. Either verb does very well. But v. 4 (A) supports the former.

harlots, i.e. זונות (A). B reads זנות which punctuated זנות = 'fornication', and punctuated זנות = 'harlots'. Since we have abstract expressions following, probably we should read 'fornication' here.

wealth of wickedness. See note on this phrase in vi. 11.

16. beareth a grudge. Lev. xix. 18. See x. 1 note.

hateth his neighbour. Lev. xix. 17.

17. committed trespass. So with Schechter I emend יתעלמו (A, B) into ימעלו as in viii. 18, where this

A

- And exalted themselves with a view to wealth and unjust gain,
And every man did that which was right in his own eyes.
- 18 And they chose every man the stubbornness of his heart,
And they separated not from the people.
- 19 And they cast off restraint with a high hand
To walk in the way of the wicked, concerning whom God said:
'Their wine is the poison of dragons
And the cruel venom of asps.'
- 20 The dragons are the kings of the Gentiles and their wine is their ways, and the venom of asps is the head of the kings of Javan, who came to execute vengeance upon them.

B

- And they made themselves strong with a view to wealth and unjust gain,
And every man did that which was right in his own eyes.
- And they chose every man the stubbornness of his heart,
And they separated not from the people and their sins.
- And they cast off restraint with a high hand
To walk in the ways of the wicked; concerning whom God said:
'Their wine is the poison of dragons
And the cruel venom of asps.'
- The dragons are the kings of the Gentiles 20 and their wine is their ways, and the venom of asps is the head of the kings of Javan, who came to execute vengeance upon them.

IX. 21-23. Neither to these things nor to Moses did the Builders of the Wall give heed.

- 21 But despite all these things they who builded the wall and daubed it with untempered mortar line recurs. But we might retain יתעלמו and change מִשָּׂאָר into מִשָּׂאָר and derive the text from Isa. lviii. 7 and translate 'hid themselves every man from his own flesh'.

exalted themselves with a view to wealth and unjust gain. The text reads יִתְנַכְרוּ לְהוֹן וּלְבָצֵעַ where I have emended יִתְנַכְרוּ into יִתְנַבְּהוּ or יִנְבְּהוּ (cf. B יִתְנַכְרוּ) on the strength of Jub. xxiii. 21, 'They will all exalt themselves with a view to deceit and wealth.' Here the Ethiopic word for 'deceit' is a rendering of πλεονεξία, which in turn is a rendering of בָּצַע in Judges v. 19: or of ἀδικία, which is similarly a rendering of the same Hebrew word in Prov. xxviii. 16: cf. Ps. ix. 24. בָּצַע is also rendered by ἀνομία. Thus our text is clearly dependent on Jub. xxiii. 19, which latter would be better rendered 'they will all exalt themselves with a view to unjust gain and wealth'. In B the verb is יִתְנַכְרוּ, 'made themselves strong', which may be right, though it is not the word implied by Jub. xxiii. 21. Its appearance here may be due to v. 54 c in our text, where it occurs in a good sense.

every man did that which was right, &c. See iv. 5 c. Here B reads אֵת אִישׁ הַיֶּשֶׁר an obvious transposition of אִישׁ אֵת הַיֶּשֶׁר.

18. chose . . . the stubbornness, &c. See iii. 4 note. Possibly we should render here 'chose in the stubbornness', but the translation adopted is more likely.

separated not (לֹא נִזְרָו). This separatist character relates the party so far to the Pharisees. See v. 24.

19-20. The degradation of Israel through Hellenizing influences and their punishment at the hand of Javan, i. e. the Greek rulers of Egypt and Syria.

19. cast off restraint, i. e. יִפְרְעוּ. Cf. 2 Chron. xxviii. 19.

Their wine . . . asps. Quoted from Deut. xxxii. 33

חַמַּת תְּנִינִים יַיִן
וְרֹאשׁ פְּתִינִים אֲסוּר

20. This verse refers to the invasions of Palestine by the successors of Alexander in Egypt and Syria. This equation of Greece and Syria points to the early date of our author.

head, i. e. רֹאשׁ. Our author, as Lagrange recognizes, plays here on the two different meanings of רֹאשׁ.

Javan. Cf. Daniel viii. 21, x. 20, xi. 2.

21. builded the wall. Cf. 26; vii. 1.

the wall (τὸ μεσότοιχον Eph. ii. 14). What is meant by 'the wall'? Does it mean 'the fence' (i. e. סֵיף) which the Pharisees, especially the legalistic side, raised about the Law. In Pirke Aboth i. 1 we have the command: עֲשׂוּ סֵיף לְתוֹרָה 'make a fence to the Torah'. As Taylor (*Sayings of the Jewish Fathers*², p. 134) writes: 'in theory and practice the law required a fence, as a written Torah needs a margin to safeguard the edges of the text.'

But could the Zadokite party object absolutely to 'the fence', seeing they adopted it in principle in reference to the Sabbath, xiii. 1, where it is required that in order to avoid profaning it some of the time preceding it should be kept holy? Besides, this party must have adopted, and in fact did adopt, as we know from this work, a number of the traditional halacha. Hence we conclude that it is not to the principle of 'the fence' in itself, but to its abnormal growth in the form of oral tradition, that they objected. That there were

A

B

22 perceived not— For one who was †perturbed† of spirit and talked lies talked to them— that the wrath of God was kindled against all His congregation:

23 Nor that Moses said, 'Not for thy righteousness or for the uprightness of thine heart dost thou go in to inherit these nations, but because He loved thy fathers and because He would keep the oath.'

perceived not— For one who †walked in wind and weighed storms†, and talked lies to man (talked)— that the wrath of God was kindled against all His congregation:

Nor that Moses said to Israel, 'Not for thy righteousness nor for the uprightness of thine heart dost thou go in to inherit these nations, but because He loved thy fathers and because He would keep the oath.'

IX. 24-27. The Penitents like the Forefathers were loved of God for their Faithfulness to the Covenant, but as He judged the Builders of the Wall, so shall those faithless to the New Covenant be judged.

24 And such is the case of the penitents of Israel (who) turned aside from the way of the people.
25 Owing to the love of God for the forefathers who stirred up (the people to follow) after Him, He loved them that came after them; for theirs is Such is the case of the penitents of Israel (who) turned aside from the way of the people. Owing to the love of God for the forefathers who admonished the people (to follow) after God, He loved them that came after them, for theirs ample grounds for their opposition we learn from the words of Shammai, who lived in the first century B. C. This Rabbi said: 'We have two Toroth, the written Torah (תורה שבכתב) and the oral Torah (תורה שבעל פה).' According to the Jer. Peah ii. 6 the latter are the 'more precious', while Rabbi Jochanan in Jer. Berakoth i. 7 declares that 'the words of the Sopherim are . . . more beloved than words of Torah' (see Taylor, op. cit., p. 14). In Berakh. 8 a, 13, B. Mez. 33 a, Chag 10 a the comparative values of the Torah and the Mishna and Talmud are dealt with, much to the disadvantage of the Torah. In the Aboda Zara 35 a R. Dimi explained Canticles i. 2 as meaning: 'the words of thy loved ones (i. e. the scholars) are better than the wine of the Law' (דברי דודיק יותר מיינה של תורה). In the late work Aboth R. N., Book i, p. 3, the consciousness of this evil is present to the writer, since it is urged that the fence (גדר) was not to be made excessive lest it should overpower the root or plant it was intended to protect (יותר מן העיקר).

Another fact, i. e. our author's use of חייץ instead of סיג, may point in the same direction. The latter means a fence round something and סוג is 'to fence about', but the former is a partition-wall. Now it is quite possible that our author may have deliberately used חייץ instead of סיג. Thus by naming the fence חייץ the Zadokites implied that the Pharisees did not by this means so much protect the Law against profanation from without as create division among the ranks of the faithful within. We might compare St. Paul's designation of 'circumcision' (περιτομή) as mere 'mutilation' (κατατομή) in Phil. iii. 2. It is worth noting in this connexion that whereas our author brands the abnormal growth of the oral law with the name 'partition-wall', St. Paul, in Eph. ii. 14, brands the entire Law—written and oral—with the same designation.

daubed it with untempered mortar (טחי תפל). From Ezek. xiii. 10, 11, 14, 15, xxii. 28.

22. Owing to a false prophet the builders of the party-wall did not perceive that God's wrath was stirred up against all the congregation. For the phrase, 'wrath of God,' &c., cf. i. 17.

†perturbed† of spirit, i. e. מבוהל רוח (A). B reads הולך רוח; and adds ושקל סופות (sic). See Appendix on p. 834 for restored text and rendering.

talked lies (מטיף כזב). So A. In i. 10 we have הטיף מאמרי כזב and in ix. 40 איש הכזב. The text, therefore, is probably sound. B reads מטיף אדם לזכב, where apparently we have a transposition of the preposition as in v. 17 above, and also of the nouns. That is, we should read מטיף כזב לאדם. Hence my rendering. It is hard to say whether the להם or the לאדם is the original. See App. on p. 834.

the wrath of God was kindled. See note on i. 17.

23. Nor that Moses said (ואשר אמר משה). These words are the object of לא הבינו in v. 21. See last lines of Appendix on p. 834.

Not for thy righteousness . . . to inherit these nations. Quoted from Deut. ix. 5, save that our author has changed 'their land' into 'these nations' (הגוים האלה).

but because . . . the oath. From Deut. vii. 8, save that our author has replaced the sacred name י by the pronoun and changed 'you' into 'your fathers'.

24. See v. 18 b.

the case, i. e. המשפט. God loves 'the penitents of Israel' as He loved the forefathers because they kept the covenant. The 'builders of the wall' had forsaken the covenant by introducing illegitimate changes of the Law.

penitents of Israel. See vi. 1 note.

25. stirred up. A reads היעירו (i. e. הִעִירוּ) and B העידו. The latter reading also gives a good sense 'admonished' or 'exhorted solemnly'. After the verb A is defective and B corrupt. Where A gives merely היעירו אחריו B reads על העם אחרי אל. B supplies part of the missing text but the Hebrew is impossible.

A

B

26 the covenant of the fathers. But since He hated the builders of the wall His wrath was kindled.
 27 And such (will be) the case of all who reject the commandments of God, and forsake them and turn away in the stubbornness of their heart.

is the covenant of the fathers. But God hates 26 and abhors the builders of the wall and His wrath was kindled against them and against all who follow after them. And such (will be) the 27 case of all who reject the commandments of God, and forsake them and turn away in the stubbornness of their heart.

IX. 28-39. Excommunication of those who fall away from the New Covenant.

28 This is the word which Jeremiah spake to Baruch the son of Neriah, and Elisha to his servant Gehazi. All the men who entered into the New Covenant in the land of Damascus.

So are all the men who entered into the New 28 Covenant in the land of Damascus and yet turned backward and acted treacherously and departed from the spring of living waters.

B

29 They shall not be reckoned in the assembly of the people, and in its register they shall not be written, from the day when there was gathered in the Unique Teacher until there shall arise the 30 Messiah from Aaron and from Israel. And such is the case for all that enter into the congregation 31 of the men of the perfection of holiness. And as for him who abhors doing precepts of upright men [he is the man who is melted in the furnace], when his deeds become known he shall be expelled from the congregation, as though his lot had not fallen among them that are taught of God.

First of all על cannot stand. Next we might emend העם into בעם and add להלך from a comparison of the last clause in the next verse in B. There God's wrath is kindled against 'all who follow after them' (i.e. the builders of the party-wall). In contrast to these the people are exhorted to follow after God in the present verse.

theirs is the covenant of the fathers. Cf. Rom. ix. 3-4 'Israelites whose . . . are the covenants'.

26. God's wrath against and judgement (cf. v. 27) on the builders of the party-wall.

since He hated. We must here change בשונאי into בשונאו.

the builders of the wall. See vii. 1 note.

His wrath was kindled, &c. See i. 17 note.

27-28. As was the judgement on those who built the party-wall, so shall be the judgement on those who fall away from the New Covenant.

27. in the stubbornness, &c. See iii. 4 note.

28 a (A). I do not know what our author refers to.

B. the New Covenant. See viii. 15.

in the land of Damascus. Cf. viii. 6, 15, ix. 5, 38.

B. The spring of living waters, i.e. the Law. See v. 3 a, viii. 6-8.

29. They shall not be reckoned . . . written. Quoted from Ezek. xiii. 9 but with some slight changes.

לא יחשבו בסוד עם ובכתבו לא יכתבו the Unique Teacher. Cf. ix. 39, where again the death of this teacher is referred to. See i. 7 note.

the Messiah from Aaron and from Israel. See i. 7 note.

30. congregation, i.e. עדה.

the men of the perfection of holiness, i.e. אנשי תמים הקדש. So also in v. 33.

perfection of holiness. See v. 33, viii. 21.

31. And as for him who abhors. The text reads ויקוין, which I have emended into והקין. We have here a nominativus pendens.

precepts of upright men, i.e. פקודי ישרים. This is probably a corruption of פקודים ישרים 'upright precepts'.

he is the man . . . furnace, i.e. הוא האיש הנתך בתוך כור. These words are in substance an interpolation from Ezek. xxii. 20. They are wholly foreign to the text. There is no question here of divine and final punishments, but of ecclesiastical.

when . . . become known. The text reads בהופע, which = 'when . . . shine forth', as in v. 49. But this meaning is impossible here and in v. 33. The word is apparently a corruption of בהורע = 'when . . . become known'. Schechter proposes בהורע = 'deteriorate'. But this is not the point here. The man abhors in thought the precepts, but it is not till his actions become known that judgement can be taken. The clause recurs in v. 33.

as though . . . not, i.e. כמו שלא. This is the only instance where we have י for אשר in our text.

taught of God. In Isa. liv. 13 we have the phrase למודי.

B

32 According to his trespass they shall record him as a perverted man until he come back to stand in 33 the office of the men of the perfection of holiness. And when his deeds become known, in accordance with the midrash of the Law in which walk the men of the perfection of holiness, no man shall consent (to be) with him in wealth and labour; for all the saints of the Most High have 34 cursed him. And such shall be the case of every one who rejects the first and the last, who have 35 placed idols upon their hearts and walked in the stubbornness of their hearts. They have no share 36 in the House of the Law. With a judgement like unto that of their neighbours who turned away 37 with the scornful men, they shall be judged. For they spake error against the statutes of righteousness, and rejected the covenant and the pledge of faith, which they had affirmed in the land 38 of Damascus; and this is the New Covenant. And there shall not be unto them nor unto their 39 families a share in the House of the Law. And from the day when there was gathered in the Unique Teacher until all the men of war were consumed who walked with the man of lies about forty years, 40 [And during this period there shall be kindled the wrath of God against Israel as He said, 'there 41 is no king and no prince' and no judge, and none that rebuketh in righteousness,] Those who 42 repented of transgression (in Jacob) observed the covenant of God. Then they spake each man 43 with his neighbour (to strengthen one) another: 'Let our steps hold fast to the way of God.' And God hearkened to their words and heard, and a book of remembrance was written (before Him) for them that feared God (and) that thought upon His name until salvation and righteousness be revealed

32. record him as a perverted man, i.e. יוכירוהו אנש מענת. The text reads אנשי, which is obviously a slip. Schechter, however, retains it and inserting עם after the verb renders 'record him (with) the men of perversion'. How he can explain this Hebrew construction in אנשי מענת I cannot see.

33. become known. Emended as in v. 31.

midrash, i.e. מדרש. With the expression cf. 2 Chron. xiii. 22 'Midrash of the prophet Iddo', xxiv. 27 'midrash of the Book of Kings'. Midrash in our text means 'right interpretation' probably.

men of the perfection of holiness. See viii. 21 note.

consent, i.e. יאות. I supply להיות.

34. rejects. See v. 27.

the first and the last, i.e. בראשונים ונאחרונים. These appear to be the first recipients of the two covenants—the Law and the New Covenant.

placed idols, &c. In a symbolic sense. Cf. Ezek. xiv. 3, 1 Enoch xcvi. 7.

stubbornness of their hearts. See iii. 4 note.

35. the House of the Law, i.e. בית התורה. This clause, which recurs in v. 38, appears to be a designation of the Party. The Zadokites are par excellence the representatives of the Law. Bacher thinks it designates a school or a place for teaching the Law.

36. the scornful men. Cf. i. 10.

37. spake error (רברו חועה). The phrase is found in Isa. xxxii. 6.

in the land of Damascus. See viii. 6 note.

the New Covenant. See ii. 1 note.

39. when there was gathered in the Unique Teacher. Cf. ix. 29.

the Unique Teacher, i.e. יוריה היחיד. See i. 7 note.

man of lies. See i. 10 note.

40. I have bracketed this verse as an interpolation. Verse 39 is only the protasis of a sentence: the apodosis is to be found in v. 41.

the wrath of God, &c. See i. 17 note.

there is no king and no prince (אין מלך ואין שר). From Hos. iii. 4.

no judge . . . in righteousness, i.e. אין שופט ואין מוכיח בצדק—as Lévi observes, of Isa. xi. 4 ושפט בצדק דלים והוכיח

41. Those who repented of transgression, i.e. שבי פשע. The phrase is from Isa. lix. 20. If we retain v. 40, we should translate 'But those who', &c.

in Jacob. So Schechter supplies the lacuna.

42. Then they spake . . . neighbour (או נרברו איש אל רעהו). From Mal. iii. 16. The letters with dots underneath are uncertain.

(to strengthen one) another. So Lévi restores the text, which reads as follows: ל(החוי)ק איש אל אחיו. Schechter's transcription of the facsimile here is inaccurate.

our steps hold fast (יתמך צעדנו בדרך אל). For the phrase see Prov. v. 5. I have taken צעדם 'their steps' as corrupt for צעדנו 'our steps'.

43. And God hearkened . . . name. From Mal. iii. 16. The words 'before Him' are obliterated in the MS., but there is room for לפניו in the facsimile but not in Schechter's transcript.

be revealed. The MS. reads יגלה and not יעלה as Schechter deciphers.

B

44 for (them that fear God. Then shall ye return and discern) between the righteous and wicked, 45 between him that serveth God and him that serveth Him not. And He showeth mercy (unto thousands) of them that love Him and keep (His commandments) for a thousand generations.
 46, 47 †From the house of Peleg† that have gone out from the holy city. And they trusted in God throughout the period that Israel trespassed and polluted the Sanctuary and returned again to 48 molten images. The people with few words shall all be judged, each according to his spirit in 49 the counsel of holiness. And as for all those who have broken down the landmark of the Law amongst those who entered into the covenant, when there shall shine forth the glory of God to Israel, they shall be cut off from the midst of the camp, and with all those who do wickedly of Judah in the days of its testing.

IX. 50-54. The faithful shall confess their sins and be forgiven and blessed.

50 But all they who hold fast by these judgements in going out and coming in according to the Law, and listen to the voice of the Teacher and confess before God (saying) 51 'We have done wickedly, we and our fathers,
 Because we have walked contrary to the statutes of the covenant,
 And true is thy judgement against us :'
 52 And (who) lift not the hand against His holy statutes, His righteous judgement, and the testimony 53 of His truth ; and are chastised by the first judgements with which the children of men were judged :
 and give ear to the voice of the Unique Teacher of Righteousness : and reject not the statutes of righteousness when they hear them :

44. From Mal. iii. 18. The words in brackets are obliterated, but בין וראיתם וראיתם אל ושבתם may be regarded as having stood in the original.

45. ועשה חסד לאוהביו ולשמריו (מצותיו) לאלה דור. This verse is a combination of Exod. xx. 6 and Deut. vii. 9. The words 'Showeth mercy unto thousands' are from the former and the rest of the verse from the latter. Cf. Dan. ix. 4. After חסד there is a space for six letters, i.e. for לאלפים = 'unto thousands'.

His commandments. Omitted by the scribe by mistake.

46. Two words have been hopelessly obliterated at the beginning of this verse, which is as a whole unintelligible.

47. The Hebrew of this difficult verse is apparently to be read as follows: וישענו על אל בקין מעל ישראל וטמאו את המקדש ושבנו עד אל נסך. If the above rendering is right, the period may be that of Antiochus IV and of the Hellenizing priests before him. Lagrange has seen that נסך is the reading, not נסיק.

48. with few words . . . all. The text reads לם . . מעט. I restore the last two words as follows: מעטים כלם.

49. the landmark. The text refers, apparently, to those who had adopted the views of the Pharisees. Cf. i. 11 note.

entered into the covenant. See ii. 1 note.

who do wickedly of Judah, i.e. מרשיעי יהודה. This phrase might also be rendered 'who dealt wickedly by Judah'. Cf. Dan. xi. 32.

50-53. These four verses form the protasis of the sentence: the apodosis begins with v. 54.

51. Because we have walked. The text reads בלכתם (= 'because they have walked'), but this is clearly corrupt for בלכתנו, since the verse refers to the first person.

53. the first judgements. Temporal judgements.

with which the children of men. The text reads אשר . . בני אנשי היחיד, where אנשי היחיד may be corrupt for אנשים בהם. The בהם goes, of course, with the אשר. The corruption could easily arise from the presence of מורה צדק in the next clause. But rather היחיד has been wrongly transposed from the following clause, where, as in ix. 29, 39, we should read, not 'the Teacher of Righteousness', but 'the Unique Teacher of Righteousness'. In that case אשר can be taken as 'as to which', or we may emend בני into בהם, but the latter is unnecessary.

Unique. This epithet has been restored from the preceding clause, into which it was wrongly transposed. See the preceding note.

reject. The facsimile reads, so far as I can make it out, אלישיבו את not אלישיבו אל as Schechter deciphers it. Hence my rendering. The other construction would be difficult to explain.

the statutes of righteousness, i.e. as set forth by the Unique Teacher.

- 54 They shall rejoice and be glad,
And their heart shall exult,
And they shall make themselves strong against all the children of the world,

And God will pardon them
And they shall see His salvation;
For they trust in His holy name.

A

X. 1-6. A man is not to avenge himself or bear a Grudge.

- 1 Every man who puts under the ban a man [amongst men] according to the ordinances of the Gentiles is to be put to death:
2 And as for that which He hath said: 'Thou shalt not take vengeance nor bear a grudge against the children of thy people,' every man of those who have entered into the covenant, who brings a charge against his neighbour whom he had not rebuked before witnesses, and yet brings it in his fierce wrath or recounts (it) to his elders in order to bring him into contempt,
3 is taking vengeance and bearing a grudge. But naught is written save that, 'He taketh vengeance
4 on His adversaries, and He beareth a grudge against His enemies.' If he held his peace with regard to him from day to day, but in his fierce wrath spake against him in a matter of death, he hath testified against himself because he did not give effect to the commandment of God, Who said to him,
5, 6 'Thou shalt surely rebuke thy neighbour and not bear sin because of him.' As regards the oath, touching that which He said 'Thou shalt not avenge thee with thine own hand', the man who makes (another man) swear in the open field—that is, not in the presence of the judges, or owing to their commands—hath avenged himself with his own hand.

54. exult, i.e. the text reads ויעו which Schechter has rightly emended into ויעלו. make themselves strong. This verb has already occurred in ix. 17 (B).
God will pardon them. See v. 5*a* note.

X. 1. Every man, &c. (כל אדם אשר יחרים אדם מאדם . . . להמית הוא). The construction 'is to be put to death' is found several times in our text. See note on viii. 11. I have bracketed מאדם, i.e. 'amongst men'. But cf. Lev. xxvii. 29 מות יומת . . . מן האדם. This suggests that for יחרים אדם we should read יחרם and translate 'No man who is put under the ban by man', &c.

Schechter thinks that the text contains 'a prohibition against acknowledging the jurisdiction of the Gentiles (ערכאות של גוים), which is also forbidden by Rabbinic law'. But this is very doubtful.

2. Thou shalt not . . . of thy people. From Lev. xix. 18. See viii. 19, ix. 16 of our text.
entered into the covenant. Here מבאי is to be read instead of מביאי. See note on ii. 1. neighbour. The text reads דעהו corrupt for רעהו.

whom he had not rebuked. The text reads לא בהוכח אשר, where the last word is corrupt for הוכח. Or possibly for הוכח or נוכח = 'which was not proved'. The text would then refer to slanders.

brings it, i.e. הביא. Schechter supposes this to be a corruption for הביהו 'smites him'. But this brings in an idea alien to the context, which deals with a charge brought hastily in anger and unsustained by evidence.

3. From Nahum i. 2, save that the divine name י is omitted. The implication here is that no consideration is due to an enemy.

4. If a man knew of his neighbour committing a capital offence and yet did not mention it till overtaken by a burst of passion, he should be accounted guilty.

If he held his peace . . . from day to day, i.e. אם החריש לו מיום ליום. The diction here is from Num. xxx. 15.

testified against himself, i.e. ענה בו. Cf. 1 Sam. xii. 3 for this construction: there is no need to emend ענה into עונו with Schechter.

5. Thou shalt surely . . . because of him. From Lev. xix. 17, save that our author has changed עמיתך into רעך.

6. Thou shalt not avenge thee with thine own hand, i.e. תושיעך ירך לך. The phrase is borrowed from 1 Sam. xxv. 26, 31. This verse in Samuel does not give a command, but this is a small matter in Jewish exegesis.
in the open field (על פני השדה). Cf. Lev. xiv. 7.

in the presence of. The text reads לפנים corruptly for לפני.

owing to their commands. The text reads מאמרם, which can be punctuated as מֵאֲמָרָם = 'owing to their having (so) commanded', or 'owing to their command', but hardly as מֵאֲמָרָם 'their word' (Schechter); for this would give no sense here.

X. 7-9. The law as to lost property.

7 And as for anything that is lost, should it not be known who has stolen it from the property of the 8 camp in which the thing has been stolen, its owner shall proclaim (it) by the oath of cursing, and 9 (that which was lost) shall be given back to him, besides the ram of the guilt-offering to the priest.
 And so everything (that was) lost (and) found and has no owner shall be given to the priests; for he who found it knows not its law. If its owner is not found they shall take charge (of it).

X. 10-17. The Number of Witnesses necessary in the case of Capital and other Offences.
The Character of the Witnesses.

10 If a man in any matter trespasses against the Law and his neighbour and none but he sees it, if it be a matter of death, he shall make it known to the Censor in the presence of the 11 accused in discharging the duty of reproof: and the Censor shall write it down with his own hand: If he do it again before another, he shall return and make it known to the Censor.

7-9. These verses refer to lost property. vs. 7-8 refer to lost property, the owner of which is known:
v. 9 to lost property, the owner of which is unknown. This is clearly the meaning, though the text is corrupt and needs to be emended.

7. According to Deut. xxii. 1-3 restoration of a lost article was to be made to its owner, if a 'brother' or 'neighbour'. According to the Baba Kamma 113*b* (where there is a long discussion on this and kindred questions) such restoration was not to be made to a Gentile. According to the Rabbis there was in Jerusalem a 'stone of decision' (? אבן טוען) to which the losers and finders of property came, and had its ownership settled (Baba Mez. 28*b*).

And as for anything that is lost, i. e. וכל האובד. According to later Hebrew this could be translated 'and as for any one who loses (anything)'. But the context is in favour of the classical meaning of אבד here.
 The question first and foremost is that of lost property, not of the losers of it. The latter question necessarily follows. When property is lost, the loser is either known or unknown.

from the property of the camp, i. e. ממאר המחנה. This extraordinary use of this word recurs in xiv. 10.
 Else I would propose מאדם = 'of the people of the camp'. Lévi feels dissatisfied and suggests מתוך 'from the midst of the camp'.

proclaim, i. e. ישמיע emended from ישביע by Schechter. If we retain the text, render 'shall adjure (the people concerned) by the oath of cursing'.

8. restitution made by him who returns, i. e. אשם משיב. I have here emended מושב into משיב, just as a few words later המושב must be changed into המשיב. The phrase להשיב האשם 'to return the compensation' is found in Num. v. 7, 8.

which has [not] an owner. The negative is here an intrusion. The Hebrew is אשר אין בעלים. The אין was inserted by an unintelligent scribe, in the place of a lost לו or לה. Schechter, Lévi, and Lagrange have failed to observe this intrusion and therefore to see the meaning of the text.

<that which was lost> . . . to the priest. The MS. reads לו לבר מאיל האשם הכל, which Schechter accepts and translates 'and it shall all belong to him besides the ram of the guilt-offering'. But this is manifestly wrong. The priest in neither case became the owner of the lost property. Where the owner was unknown they were to take charge of it till he was discovered: where the owner was known it was, of course, to be restored to him. The priest's share in such a case was the ram of the guilt-offering. Now in the text it is clear, first of all, that הכל is corrupt for לכהן. Thus we get 'besides the ram of the guilt-offering to the priest'.
 The preceding words then must refer to the owner of the lost property, but the restoration of the original is doubtful. Possibly we might retain the text לו והיה and translate 'and it (i. e. the lost property) shall become his', i. e. that of the man who lost it. But the property could not well become his since it was his already.
 Accordingly in my translation I have supposed that האובד has fallen out before לבר and emended והיה into ונתן or ושוב. It is also possible that the text ran ונתן לאובד לבר 'and it shall be given back to him that lost it', &c. Lévi emends הכל into הכפורים and Lagrange excises it. But the emendation I have suggested appears to satisfy every requirement.

9. shall be given. The text reads והיתה 'shall belong', which I have emended into ונתנה.

10-12. Three witnesses required in the case of a capital offence.

10. the Censor (המבקר). This official corresponded to the ἐπιμελητής of the Essenes and to the ἐπίσκοπος of the Early Christians. See note on xvi. 1.

in the presence of the accused in discharging the duty of reproof, i. e. לעיני בהוכיח. But the words may be corrupt for לעיני הנוכח 'in the presence of the impeached'.

11. If he do it. The text reads ער עשותו, which I have emended into אם יעשהו as at the beginning of the next verse.

another. The text reads אהר, which I have emended into אהר. Cf. v. 12.

13 If he shall be caught again before another, his judgement shall be executed. And if they are two and they witness against him (each) on a different thing the man shall be only excluded from the Purity, provided that they are trustworthy, and that on the day on which they have seen the man they make it known to the Censor. And according to the statute (they shall) accept two trustworthy witnesses, and not one to exclude the Purity †. And there shall arise no witness before the judges to cause a man to be put to death at his mouth, whose days have not been fulfilled so as to pass over unto those that are numbered (and who is not) a man who fears God. None shall be believed as a witness against his neighbour who transgresses a word of the commandment with a high hand until they are cleansed through repentance.

XI. Regulations as to the Judges of the Zadokite Party.

1. 2 And this is the order in reference to the judges of the congregation. (They shall amount) to ten men selected from the congregation according to the time (defined); four of the tribe of Levi and Aaron, and six of Israel learned in the Book of †the Hagu† and in the Ordinances of the Covenant, 3 from five and twenty years old even unto sixty years old. But none shall be appointed when he is

13. If only two witnesses appear and their testimony relates to different charges, the man is to undergo a form of excommunication. Yet see v. 15.

14. (they shall) accept. Only the letters בלו or בלו survive. But probably Schechter is right in restoring יקבלו.

and not one. So Lagrange well emends the text ועל אחד into ואל אחד. Cf. Deut. xix. 15.

15. The meaning of this verse is somewhat doubtful. If it refers to a witness it means that a certain age and character were required in a witness.

there shall arise no witness (אל יקום עד). The words are from Deut. xix. 15. For עד the text corruptly reads עור. But it is possible that עור should be retained, and the verse understood of the qualification of a judge. 'None, moreover, shall become (יקומו) which is possibly the real reading of the MS.) judges to put a man to death at his word whose . . . and who do not fear (ולא יראים) instead of (ירא) God.' The other rendering is more probable.

at his mouth (על פיהו). Cf. Deut. xvii. 6.

to pass over unto those that are numbered (לעבור על הפקודים). The phrase is from Exod. xxx. 13, 14. It seems here to denote the age at which a man attained his political majority—in other words, was reckoned in the census of the males of the nation.

(and who is not) (ולא). Supplied with Schechter.

16. with a high hand (ביר רמה). Num. xv. 30.

XI. 1. order. See ix. 1.

2. according to the time (defined), i. e. לפי העת. This may mean the period of office or the date of election. Or, again, the phrase might be translated 'according to the circumstances' (Lévi), the number 'ten' not being always necessary.

tribe of Levi and Aaron. Cf. Ps. cxxxv. 19 sq. for a like terminology.

the Book of †the Hagu†, i. e. ספר ההגו. Cf. xv. 5, xvii. 5. I have, with some hesitation, marked this phrase as corrupt. It was possibly a secret book of halachic decisions or, at all events, a book the knowledge of which was necessary for the rulers of the Party. Nothing is known of Hagu. It is possible that we have in ההגו a corruption of חגי, i. e. Haggai. Now we know that a number of halachoth are attributed in the Talmud to Haggai, Zechariah, and Malachi as the last three prophets, Naz. 53 a, Chull. 137 a, just as certain legal decisions were assigned to Moses; nay, more, we know that at times the name of Haggai alone was put forward as the source of certain traditions, Kidd. 43 a, and that it was claimed by teachers of later generations that they sat in his actual chair, Jeb. 16 a. Certain decisions are traced to him: that it was permissible to bring sacrifices independently of the existence or presence of the Temple, Mid. iii. 1; Zeb. 62 a (?) מקריבין אף על פי (שאינן בית), Jer. Naz. ii. 7: that the month Adar should be intercalated, Rosh ha-Shanah 19 b. Besides these several others are attributed to him. See Jew. Encyc. vi. 146.

It is possible, therefore, that a book may have circulated under Haggai's name, which contained traditional lore, seeing that in after times many traditions were said to be derived from Haggai. If there was such a book it is not improbable that it is that referred to in our text. That the book in our text was not the prophetic book of Haggai is clear; for the books of the prophets are freely quoted, whereas the knowledge of this book is committed to the leaders of the Party, and it is probably, therefore, a secret book containing traditional decisions: cf. xvii. 5.

Lévi suggests that the book in question was a treatise commencing with the word הגו 'mediate'.

Ordinances (or 'Foundations'), i. e. יסודי. Cf. viii. 21.

from five and twenty years old, &c. This was the age at which the Levites began to serve: cf. Num. viii. 24.

4 sixty years old and upward to judge the congregation. For through the trespasses of man his days were minished, and when the wrath of God was kindled against the inhabitants of the earth, He commanded their intelligence to depart from them before they completed their days.

XII. Levitical Law as to Bathing.

12 1 As to being cleansed in water. No man shall wash in water (that is) filthy or insufficient for a 2 man's bath. None shall cleanse himself in the waters of a vessel. And every pool in a rock in which there is not sufficient (water) for a bath, which an unclean person has touched, its waters shall be unclean like the waters of the vessel.

XIII. 1—11. Laws regarding the Sabbath.

13 1 As to the Sabbath, to observe it according to its law, no man shall do work on the sixth day from the time when the sun's orb in its fullness is still without the gate, for it is He who has said, 'Observe the Sabbath day to keep it holy.'
2, 3 And on the Sabbath day no man shall utter a word of folly and vanity. No man shall lend aught
4, 5 to his neighbour. None shall dispute on matters of wealth and gain. None shall speak on matters
6 of work and labour to be done on the following morning. No man shall walk in the field to do the 7 work of his business. On the Sabbath none shall walk outside his city more than †a thousand†

4. trespasses, i.e. מעל.

his days. ימיו is to be read instead of ימו.

his days were minished. Cf. Jub. xxiii. 9 'After the Flood (the days of the forefathers) began to grow less . . . by reason of the wickedness of their ways'.

commanded their intelligence to depart from them, &c. אמר לסור את דעתם עד לא ישלימו את ימיהם. Cf. Jub. xxiii. 11. 'Their knowledge will forsake them by reason of their old age' (? or 'their godlessness').

XII. 1. insufficient for a man's bath. The text reads מעוטים מדי †מרעיל† איש. I have emended the impossible מרעיל into מרחין. Schechter emends into מטביל, and translates מעוטים מדי מטביל איש 'not sufficient for the immersion of a man'. But is this rendering possible?

waters. MS. reads במה corrupt for במי.

2. every pool . . . in which there is not sufficient water. According to Yoma 31 a the cubical contents of such a pool should be one cubit wide, three cubits long, and one cubit deep—the size of an average human body—שבכל גופו עולה בהן. Cf. Lev. xv. 13. See also Erub. 4 b, Pes. 109 a, Suk. 6 a.

for a bath. The text reads מרעיל, which I have emended into מרחין.

like. ב of the MS. is to be changed into כ.

XIII. 1. This verse deals with the time before and after the Sabbath that should be observed as the Sabbath. Technically it was called the תוספת 'addition'. This view is practically enforced in Shabb. 150 a, where it is forbidden to carry on work to the very beginning of the Sabbath or renew it at its very close. In Yoma 81 a the addition before and after the Day of Atonement is treated of. The object is given in the words מיסיפין מחול על הקדש.

sun's orb, i.e. גלגל השמש. In Talmud חמה. Cf. 1 Enoch lxxviii. 4 (= κύκλος τοῦ ἡλίου), which postulates this very phrase.

in its fullness . . . gate. That is, the gate where it sets. On the various gates where the sun sets, see 1 Enoch lxxii. The text reads רחוק מן השער מלואו. And the literal translation is: 'is distant from the gate as to its fullness.' This means just before the sun touches the horizon.

Observe the Sabbath . . . holy. From Deut. v. 12.

2. a word of folly and vanity, i.e. דבר נבל ורק, where רק, as Lévi has pointed out, is corrupt for ריק. Schechter compares דברי חול, i.e. matters of a secular nature, and refers to Shabb. 150 a. The source of the regulation is found in Isa. lviii. 13 'Call the Sabbath a delight . . . not speaking (thine own) words'. Perhaps we should, with Bacher, read ריק הכל as in Isa. xxx. 7.

3. No man shall lend aught to his neighbour. אל ישה ברעהו כל. The phraseology is from Deut. xv. 2, but not the sense. According to Shabbath 148 a a man might ask wine or oil from his neighbour on the Sabbath, provided he did not say 'lend them to me'. Lévi rightly observes that this prescript is not in place here, and proposes ישה instead of ישה = 'let no man complain aught of his neighbour'. It is strange that both Schechter and he mistranslate ישה as 'exact a debt'.

5. on the following morning, i.e. למשכים. This use of the words is Mishnaic: it occurs in Bikk. iii. 2.

6. to do. לעשות. Perhaps we might render 'to prepare' or 'to provide for'. Cf. Oxf. Heb. Lex. 794 b.

of his business. The text reads חפצי, which with Lagrange (cf. xiii. 11) I have changed into חפצו.

7. †a thousand†. Here אלף is corrupt for אלפים. Cf. v. 14. 2,000 cubits was the limit of a Sabbath day's journey: cf. Erubin iv. 3, v. 7. See Jub. l. 8 note.

8 cubits. No man shall eat on the Sabbath day aught save that which is prepared or perishing (in the field). Nor shall one eat or drink unless in the camp. (If he was) on the way and went down to wash he may drink where he stands, but he shall not draw into any vessel. No man shall send the son of a stranger to do his business on the Sabbath day.

XIII. 12. Laws as to unclean Garments.

12 No man shall put on garments that are filthy or were brought by a Gentile unless they were washed in water or rubbed with frankincense.

XIII. 13-27. Laws regarding the Sabbath.

14 No man shall fast of his own will on the Sabbath. No man shall walk after the animal to pasture it outside his city more than two thousand cubits. None shall lift his hand to smite it with (his) fist. If it be stubborn he shall not remove it out of his house. No man shall carry anything from the house to the outside or from the outside into the house, and if he be in the vestibule he shall not carry anything out of it or bring in anything into it. None shall open the cover of a vessel that is pasted on the Sabbath. No man shall carry on him spices to go out or come in on the Sabbath. None shall lift up in his dwelling house rock or earth. Let not the nursing father take the sucking child to go out or to come in on the Sabbath. No man shall provoke his manservant or his maid-servant or his hireling on the Sabbath. No man shall help an animal in its delivery on the Sabbath day. And if it falls into a pit or ditch, he shall not raise it on the Sabbath. No man shall

8. save that which is prepared. See Jub. ii. 29, l. 9 note; Beza i. 2.

(in the field) (i. e. בשרה). Only two out of the four letters are to be made out.

10. (If he was). We must with Lévi understand אם היה. What follows is at the beginning of a new page in the MS. and there may be a gap here.

he shall not draw into any vessel. The same command is given in Jub. l. 8.

11. Cf. Shabbath 150 a, where a man is not allowed to commission his neighbour to do what he might not do himself on the Sabbath. Here of course it is a non-Jew that is referred to.

12. Gentile. The text reads גו, which Schechter emends into גוי.

13. fast. The text reads יתערב, to which Leszynsky proposes to attach the meaning 'to set an 'erub'. I propose יתענה 'shall afflict himself by fasting', 'shall fast'. It was forbidden to go without food till noon on the Sabbath, Jer. Taan. iii. 11; Judith viii. 6. In Jub. l. 12 fasting is strictly forbidden on the Sabbath and feasting enjoined, l. 9-10. It was the duty of every good Israelite to take three or four meals on the Sabbath, Shabb. 117 b, and these of the best food procurable, op. cit. 118 b. Lévi, Bacher, and Kohler propose יתרעב.

14. See v. 7.

16. Cf. Jub. ii. 29.

No man shall carry anything, &c. This law is derived from Jer. xvii. 21, 22, 24, 27. Cf. Neh. xiii. 19. It is enforced in Jub. ii. 29, l. 8. It is also a Rabbinic law: cf. Shabbath vii. 2.

carry . . . bring. Read יוציא and יביא instead of יוצא and יבא respectively. The natural difficulties brought about by this law were got over by the Pharisees by the principle of 'Erub or the merging of several private precincts into one in order to transfer food or vessels to any distance desirable beyond the 2,000 paces, which was called the Sabbath limit (תחום השבת). This regulation is worked out in the Mishnah Tractate Erubin.

the vestibule (or 'entrance'), i. e. מוכה, which may be corrupt for the Hebrew מבוא or the late Hebrew מבוי.

17. open. For פתח we must read יפתח.

18. This law is found in Shabbath vi. 3 (? 3).

19. his dwelling house. The MS. reads בית מושבת. The second word is corrupt for מויטבו. The phrase is found in Lev. xxv. 29. Schechter emends מושבת into ביום יבת. If this were the idea then it would be best to restore בשבת as in the next verse.

20. the nursing father . . . child, i. e. ישא האומן את היונק. From Num. xi. 12. According to Shabbath xviii. 2, a woman might lead a child out on the Sabbath only on the condition that the child makes certain movements with its feet.

21. his hireling. We must change שוכרי into שכירו.

22. This regulation is found in Shabbath xviii. 3 in reference to a feast day—אין מילדין את הבהמה ביום טוב—but it is added that notwithstanding 'they give help' (אבל מסעדין), and then the various kinds of help are enumerated.

23. This regulation has a close parallel in Shabb. 128 b, where Rabba Jehuda in the name of Rab says that if an animal falls into a well it is lawful to provide it with food if possible; but, if not, mattresses and cushions are to be placed under it that it might get out by its own exertions. The implication here is that it might not be raised by human agency from the pit as in our text. Yet other views are advanced. Cf. Beza iii. 4, where it is said that, 'if a firstling fall into a pit . . . a wise man will descend and . . . raise it up.'

25 rest in a place near to the Gentiles on the Sabbath. No man shall suffer himself to be polluted [the 26 Sabbath] for the sake of wealth or gain on the Sabbath. And if any person falls into a place of 27 water or into a place of . . . he shall not bring him up by a ladder or a cord or instrument. No man shall offer anything on the altar on the Sabbath, save the burnt-offering of the Sabbath, for so it is written † 'Excepting your Sabbaths' †.

XIV. 1-4. Levitical Laws as to Uncleanness.

14 1 No man shall send to the altar burnt-offering or meat-offering or frankincense or wood through the hand of a man (that is) unclean through any of the uncleannesses allowing him to defile the altar, for it is written: 'The sacrifice of the wicked is an abomination, but the prayer of the righteous'
2 is like an offering of delight.' And none of those who enter into the house of worship shall enter 3 when he is unclean even though washed. And when the trumpets of the Congregation sound, it shall be (done) before or after, and they shall not put an end to the whole service: (the Sabbath) is holy.
4 No man shall lie with a woman in the city of the Sanctuary to defile the city of the Sanctuary by their impurity.

XIV. 5. Law as to Necromancy.

5 Any man who is ruled by the spirits of Belial and speaks rebellion shall be judged by the judgement of the necromancer and wizard.

Cf. Yoma viii. 6, 7, where it is said that the question of life takes precedence of other questions. The teaching in our text conflicts strongly with Luke xiv. 5.

24. rest. ישבית must be changed into ישבות. Schechter notes that a similar law prevailed among the Samaritans and Karaites, comparing Wreschner, p. 14 sq.

25. suffer himself to be polluted, i. e. יחל—that is, ritually by contact with the dead (Lev. xxi. 4). In Lev. xxi. 1-4 the exceptions are enumerated in which a man might submit to such defilement. What our text seems to demand is that even in these cases defilement should not be incurred on the Sabbath.

[the Sabbath]. A scribe's slip. Schechter would emend יחל into יחלל in order to explain this phrase. But the sense would then be unsatisfactory.

26. If the text is complete as it stands, then its teaching is in conflict with Yoma 84 b, where it is distinctly taught that life should be saved on the Sabbath תנו רבנן מפקחין פקוח נפש בשבת. The following instances are given: if a child fall into the sea, it may be saved by means of a net; if into a pit, by a ladder. Apparently the person might be saved if he could be saved without resort to the means just mentioned.

27. This verse is corrupt.

†Excepting your Sabbaths†. Cf. Lev. xxiii. 38. The meaning here given to מלכר is found in the LXX and Vulg. Our author attaches quite a different meaning to Lev. xxiii. 38 in his interpretation of it.

XIV. 1. allowing him, i. e. להרשותו. Lévi compares Sir. iii. 21 הורשית.

The sacrifice . . . but the prayer. These words are from Prov. xv. 8. The words 'of the righteous . . . of delight' (צדק(י)ם כמנחת רצון) are a partial paraphrase of the words that follow in Prov. xv. 8 'of the upright is His delight'.

2. the house of worship, i. e. אל בית השתחות. Though this phrase is, so far as is known, never applied to a Jewish place of worship, there is no inherent reason why it should not. In Shek. vi. 1 it is stated that thirteen bows or prostrations were made (generally) in the Temple שלש עשרה השתחויות היו במקדש and fourteen by the houses of Gamaliel and Hananiah. Cf. Isa. lxvii. 15. Lévi defends it as applied to the Temple, but suggests that possibly the text may be corrupt for אל בית אל להשתחות 'into the house of God to worship'. Bacher takes it as referring to a synagogue. We might compare Zech. xiv. 16, where it is said that all that remain of the Gentiles shall go up to Jerusalem to worship (להשתחות).

though washed (כבוס). Cf. 2 Chron. xxiii. 19. Schechter inserts בלי before this word and so obtains 'without washing'. Cf. Lev. xv. 10. Probably the latter is right.

3. Congregation, i. e. קהל, as in v. 6.

4. This verse is not directed against lawful cohabitation, but against carnal union that was accompanied by some ceremonial impurity; for the word for 'impurity' here is נדה. This impurity was due to the menstruation of the woman. In the Pss. Sol. viii. 13 the Sadducean priests are charged with approaching the altar when stained with this defilement. See note on vii. 8. There is no ground for proposing the violent emendation of it into ביום השבת. We might compare Isa. xlvi. 2, lii. 1 עיר הקדש.

5. Cf. Lev. xx. 27; Deut. xviii. 11.

ruled by the spirits of Belial. For the idea and expression cf. Jub. i. 20, x. 3.

speaks rebellion, i. e. דבר סרה, from Deut. xiii. 6. Cf. our text, viii. 2.

necromancer and wizard, i. e. האוב והידעוני.

XIV. 6. Law as to the Sabbath.

6 And he whom he leads astray into profaning the Sabbath and the Feasts shall not be put to death ; but it shall be the duty of the sons of man to watch him ; and should he be healed of it, they shall watch him seven years and then he shall come into the Congregation.

XIV. 7-11. Laws as to Intercourse with the Gentiles.

7 None shall stretch out his hand to shed the blood of any man from among the Gentiles for the 8 sake of wealth or gain. Nor shall he take aught of their wealth lest they blaspheme, unless by 9 the counsel of the Community of Israel. No man shall sell an animal or bird that is clean to the 10 Gentiles, lest they sacrifice them. Nor shall he sell them aught from his threshing-floor or his 11 winepress for all his property. Nor shall he sell them his manservant or maidservant who entered with him into the covenant of Abraham.

XIV. 12-16. Laws as to unclean Foods and Causes of Uncleanness.

12 No man shall make himself abominable with any living creature or creeping thing, by eating of 13 them : or of the defilements of bees or of any living creature that moveth in the waters. Nor shall 14 fish be eaten unless they were split alive and their blood was shed. But all the locusts after their kind shall come into fire or into water whilst they are still living, for this is the manner of their 15 creation. And all wood and stones and dust which are polluted by the uncleanness of man are

6. he whom he (i. e. Belial) leads astray into profaning, i. e. כל אשר יתעה לחלל. We have here the case of all but involuntary sins through demonic influence. With the text cf. Isa. xxix. 24 תעי רוח ; xxviii. 7. We may also translate : 'he who goes astray so as to profane.'

it shall be the duty of the sons of man to watch him, i. e. על בני האדם משמרו. For the construction cf. 1 Chron. ix. 27, where we have משמרת.

8. Community, i. e. חבור. Cf. the phrase on the coins of the Maccabees חבר היהודים.

9. The Jews were forbidden to sell large cattle or calves, provided they were 'undamaged' (שלמים), to the Gentiles, Abod. Zarah i. 6, on the ground that they might be made to work on the Sabbath, op. cit. 15 a. It was forbidden to sell hens to Gentiles when it was suspected that they were required for idolatrous worship, 14 ab.

10. for all his property, i. e. בכל מאדו. That is, when the Gentile would give all that he had for it. See note on x. 7.

11. The Gentile who had become a Jew could not be sold to a Gentile.

12. No man shall make himself abominable with any . . . creeping thing. From Lev. xi. 43. See our text, viii. 20.

by eating of them (לאכל מהם). Cf. Lev. xi. 42.

or of the defilements of bees. The text reads מעגלי הדבורים. Since ער follows, it would seem that we have here the idiom ער . . . מן, i. e. 'both . . . and', or in this context 'or . . . or'. Besides, מעגלי is meaningless. Nor is עגלי better. Accordingly, I have emended מעגלי into מנעלי or rather מנאלי. Hence the above rendering. Schechter simply takes "מעגלי הר" in the sense of "כוורות הר" 'beehives'. But there seems to be no ground for this identification, and even if it were just, it would be of no service ; for one does not eat a beehive. Schechter himself suggests here that as the bee was an unclean insect, Bechoroth 7 b, the text may refer 'to particles of the bees which are mixed up with the honey', and that 'though Rabbinic Judaism had no scruples in this respect and allowed the honey as it came from the beehives (see Shulchan Aruch, Joreh Deah, § 81) . . . the Karaites . . . insisted on a preparation of the honey (through filtering)'. This suggestion supports the above emendation.

or of any living . . . waters. From Lev. xi. 46 with the change of הרמשת into תרמוש.

13. Schechter thinks that this regulation is 'directed against the Rabbinic opinion permitting the eating of the blood of the fish. See Sifra 39 a, and Kerithoth 20 b.' The Samaritans 'forbade the eating of fish that died in the water or were found dead on the shore'. Lévi points out that in the Pirke R. Eliezer ix the blood of fish must be shed.

14. In the Pirke R. Eliezer ix (Lévi) it is said that locusts are not created from water. Schechter compares Chullin 27 b and deduces from it the conclusion that the mode of killing should be connected with the element out of which the animal was created.

15-16. Our text declares unconditionally that the wood, stones, dust, nails, and pegs in a house are made unclean by the uncleanness of the man. Schechter says that this regulation is in contradiction to the Rabbinic law. But this is only partially true. For according to Kelim xii. 7, unfinished wooden vessels, unless the wood was box, were capable of pollution, and likewise tent-pegs (יתרות המשוחות), op. cit. xiv. 3. According to Kelim vi. 1, if three stones were secured together with lime to support a pot on the floor, they were subject to pollution. Similarly with regard to two stones. But if one stone was secured with lime and the other not, it was not subject to pollution. As to whether a nail (מסמר) under certain conditions, Kelim xii. 5, was capable of pollution or not, Rabbi Aqiba and the wise were at variance. But all were agreed that, if a nail was driven in with a view to fastening an object, it was capable of pollution. In short, in place of all this hair-splitting and 16 polluted like them. According to their uncleanness shall be unclean he who toucheth them. And every instrument, nail, or peg in the wall which is with the dead in the house shall be unclean, like the uncleanness of an instrument of work.

XV. 1-3. Summary Reference to Laws of Uncleanness.

15 1 The regulation of the dwellers in the cities of Israel, according to these judgements, that a difference may be made between the unclean and the clean, and to make known (the difference) between the 2 holy and the common. And these statutes are to give instruction so that the whole nation may 3 walk in them according to the Law always. And according to this law shall walk the seed of Israel, and they shall not be cursed.

XV. 4-6. The Ruler to be a Priest or a Levite.

4 And this is the regulation of the dwellers (according to which they should) act during the period of the wickedness until there arises the Messiah (from) Aaron and Israel, up to ten men at least,
5 to thousands and hundreds and fifties and tens. And when there arise ten, the man who is a priest learned in the Book of †the Hagu† shall not depart. According to his word shall they all be ruled.
6 And if he is not expert in all these, but a man of the Levites is expert in these, the lot shall be that all those that enter into the camp shall go out and come in according to his word.

XV. 7-8. Law as to Leprosy.

7 And if there be a judgement regarding the law of leprosy which is in a man, then the priest shall 8 come and stand in the camp, and the Censor shall instruct him in the true meaning of the law. And (even) if he is lacking in understanding he shall shut him up; for unto them (i.e. the priests) is the judgement.

XVI. The Duties of the Censor.

16 1 And this is the regulation of the Censor of the camp. He shall instruct the many in the works of endless casuistry, our text simply declares that the uncleanness of a man affects the uncleanness of the objects he touches or is near. It is not certain, however, whether our text implies direct or indirect contact. It is probably the latter. If so, its teaching would agree with that of the Sadducees (as against the Pharisees), who extended the power of pollution from direct to indirect contact, Yad. iv. 7.

15. are polluted like them. The text reads לגאולי שמו בהם, which Schechter has emended into ינואלו כמוהם.
16. like. For ב we must read כ.

XV. 1. This verse is of the nature of a title and a fresh statement.
regulation. See note on ix. 1.

dwellers in the cities, i.e. מושב עירי. I have here taken the first word in a collective sense: cf. 2 Sam. ix. 12; 1 Kings x. 5, &c. But see v. 4, xvi. 9.

according to. פי is to be supplied after על with Schechter.

that a difference . . . between the unclean and the clean. Quoted from Lev. xi. 47.

between the holy and the common. From Lev. x. 10.

2. to give instruction. למשביל is to be emended into להשביל with Schechter.
always, i.e. ועת (עת). So Schechter restores the text.

4. dwellers (מושב) or 'settlement' as Schechter renders it. Cf. xv. 1, xvi. 9.

(according to which . . .) act. According to Schechter the text runs: . . . תהל, which may, with Lévi and Lagrange, be restored (אשר י) תהל (כו בן).

the period of the wickedness. See i. 5 note.

the Messiah. See on i. 7.

up to . . . thousands. For עך Lagrange suggests מן and ער in place of ל before אלפים, and so arrives at the rendering, 'from ten at least to a thousand'.

5. Book of †the Hagu†. See xi. 2 note.

According to his word shall they all be ruled, i.e. על פיהו ישקו בולם. This doubtful Hebrew is modelled on the equally doubtful Hebrew in Gen. xli. 40.

6. shall go out and come in according to his word. From Num. xxvii. 21.

8. The priest was to act in any case.

A similar law, Schechter points out, is to be found in Neg. iii. 1.

lacking in understanding, i.e. פתי.

XVI. 1. the Censor, i.e. המבקר. See x. 10. In Judaism there were officials who went under this name. Their duty was to examine the bodies of the animals brought for sacrifice in order to guard against blemishes. See Keth. 106 a; Jer. Bez. ii. 61 c.

God, and shall make them understand His wondrous mighty acts, and shall narrate before them the things of the world since its creation. And he shall have mercy upon them as a father upon his children, and shall for(give) all that have incurred guilt. As a shepherd with his flock he shall loose all the bonds of their knots . . . oppressed and crushed in his congregation. And every one who joins his congregation, he shall reckon him according to his works, his understanding, his might, his strength, and his wealth. And they shall record him in his place in accordance with his position in a lot of the (camp). No man of the children of the camp shall have power to bring a man into the congregation (without) the word of the Censor of the camp. Nor shall any man of them who have entered into the covenant of God do business (with) the children of the pit (un)less hand to hand. No man shall do (a thing as buying) and sell(ing) un(less he has spoken) to the Censor of the camp, and he shall do (it in the ca)mp and not . . . and so to him who casts forth . . . they, and he who is not connected with . . . And this is the settlement of the camps. All . . . shall not succeed to settle in the land. . . . that have not come from the day that Ephraim departed from Judah. And as for all who walk in these the covenant of God standeth fast unto them to save them from all the snares of the pit, for suddenly. . . .

XVII. 1-5. The four Orders of the Community.

And the regulation of the dwellers of all the camps is: They shall be numbered all by their names, the Priests first, the Levites second, the children of Israel third, and the proselyte fourth. And they shall be recorded by their names one after another, the Priests first, the Levites second, the children of Israel third, and the proselyte fourth. And so they shall be seated and so they shall ask with regard to every matter. And the Priest who numbers the many (shall be) from thirty years old even unto sixty years old, learned in the Book (of the Hagu and) in all the judgements of the Law to direct them according to their judgements.

His wondrous mighty acts, i.e. גבורות פלאו. The text reads the second word as פלאי. On the phrase cf. v. 5. things, i.e. נהיות. Cf. ii. 7.

since its creation. The text reads בפרתיה 'in detail', which I have emended into מברייתו.

2. forgive. The text is imperfect, i.e. . . . ויש, which I complete as ישלח, i.e. יסלח: cf. ii. 3, where the noun (פליחות) derived from this verb occurs. See also v. 3. This forms a good parallel to 'have mercy' (ירחם) in the preceding clause.

all that have incurred guilt, i.e. כל המחכים. So I emend בל מרהובם. Perhaps the original was simply כל חובם 'all their guilt'.

3. As a shepherd does his flock. From Isa. xl. 11.

loose . . . their knots (יתר כל חרצובות קשריהם). Cf. 1 Enoch v. 10; Dan. v. 12 משרא קטרין. Also Isa. lviii. 6 (Lévi) חרצובות רשע התר.

oppressed and crushed. Deut. xxviii. 33. These words are in the masc. sing.

5. position. The text reads כפי יהותו which I take to be a corruption of כפי היותו, which I find Lévi has already proposed.

of the (camp), i.e. ה(מחנה). So also Lévi.

6. shall have power, i.e. ימשול.

without. There is a gap here. Supply בלא.

7. entered into the covenant of God. See ii. 1 note.

Nor . . . do business, i.e. the Rabbinic phrase אל ישא ואל יתן. Cf. Shabb. 31 a, B. Mezia 48 a.

children of the pit. So Laszynsky emends בני השחר 'sons of the morning' into בני השחת. Cf. viii. 12. Schechter proposes בני הנכר as in xiii. 11.

8. a thing as buying or selling. So Schechter restores the text דבך למקח ולמכר.

him who casts forth, i.e. מַגְרֵשׁ, which could mean also 'common land' if differently pointed.

9. settlement. See xv. 4 note.

11. This fragment of Isa. vii. 17 has already been quoted in ix. 3 and with the same divergence from the Massoretic text, i.e. למיום for מיום.

12. And as for all . . . standeth fast unto them. These words have already occurred in viii. 21.

suddenly. The following letters ונענו are legible, which Lévi would complete as ונענו 'shall be wounded'.

XVII. 5. the many. The Hebrew reads אש before these words corruptly for את.

from thirty years . . . sixty years old. These words could be connected with 'the many', i.e. the congregation as a whole, but the next verse is in favour of making them refer to the priest.

learned in the Book (of the Hagu). See note on xi. 2.

learned, i.e. מבוּנן as in xi. 2.

to direct them, &c. לרברם כמשפטם.

XVII. 6-8. Duties of the Censor.

6 And the Censor who is over all the camps shall be from thirty years old even unto fifty years
7 old, a master in every counsel of men, and in every tongue . . . According to his word shall come 8 in those who enter the congregation every man in his due order. And as regards any matter on which it shall be incumbent for any man to speak, he shall speak to the Censor in regard to any suit or cause.

XVIII. 1-5. Almsgiving.

18 1, 2 And this is the regulation for the many in order to provide for all their needs. The wages of two days every month is the rule. And they shall give it into the hands of the Censor and the 3 judges. From it they shall give . . . and (from) it they shall strengthen the hand of the poor and 4 the needy. And to the aged man who . . . to the vagrant and him (who) was taken captive of 5 a strange people. And to the virgin who has (no dot) (and to him whom) no man careth for: every 6, 7 work . . . and not . . . And this is the explanation of the settlement . . . And this is the 8 explanation of the judgements which . . . (The Messiah from) Aaron and Israel. And He will 9 pardon our sins . . . in money and he shall know . . . punishment six days and who shall 10 speak . . . against Mos(es) . . .

XIX. Laws as to Oaths.

19 1 . . . (Shall not swe)ar either by Aleph Lamed or by Aleph Daleth, but by the oath (written) in

6. from thirty years old, &c. The Levites were to enter on office the thirtieth year according to Num. iv. 3, 23, 30; 1 Chron. xxiii. 3: the twenty-fifth according to Num. viii. 23-26: the twentieth according to Ezra iii. 8; 1 Chron. xxiii. 24, 27; 2 Chron. xxxi. 17.

a master in every counsel, i.e. בעל בכל סוד. Here I have changed the MS. reading בעול into בעל. Lagrange has here anticipated me. Lévi emends into בחון 'expert'.

7. Cf. xvi. 4, 6.

in his due order, i.e. בְּתָרוֹ. Cf. Esther ii. 12 for the idiom.

8. suit or cause. 2 Sam. xv. 4.

XVIII. 1. the regulation for the many. סֵרֶךְ הַרְבִּים.

to provide for, &c., i.e. לְהַכִּין כָּל הַפְּצִיחָם.

2. two days, i.e. שְׁנֵי יָמִים. This is one possible way of reading the MS. according to Schechter. The other, he says, is תְּרוּמַתָּן הֵם. But this, though he translates it, is not possible in itself, nor does it, even if corrected, give any fitting sense.

the rule, i.e. הַמְּשָׁפֵט.

3. give . . . The MS. is torn and faded here. Schechter thinks that עם . . . בעד can be made out, and suggests בעד עניים 'for the poor'. But as the phrase עני ואביון occurs immediately after, this is unlikely. Possibly the original was בעד לויים 'on behalf of the Levites'. But the matter is wholly uncertain.

and from it. The text reads מני ו. מני.

strengthen the hand of the poor and the needy, i.e. מִמְּנוּ יִחְזְקוּ בִיד עֲנִי וְאֲבִיוֹן. From Ezek. xvi. 49.

4. the vagrant, i.e. אֲשֶׁר יִנּוּעַ. But the reading is doubtful.

to him who. Text reads . . . לֹא, i.e. (לֹא) שֶׁר.

5. and to him whom. (וְלֹאִישׁ) ר is to be read here; for after the preceding words there is room for four letters. For the clause, see Jer. xxx. 17.

7. (The Messiah from). See note on i. 7.

8. And He will make atonement. Since in the other four passages where atonement is mentioned God is the agent, we conclude that it is so here. See v. 5 note.

9. money, i.e. מָמוֹן. Cf. Aboth ii. 12 יהי ממון חברך חביב עליך כשילך for the earliest use of this term.

10. Mos(es). Doubtful. The next line, which is the last of the page in the MS., is lost.

XIX. It is quite uncertain whether this chapter, which begins with the top of the next page, follows immediately on what precedes. One or more folios may be lost.

1. swear. There is room for ישבע at the beginning of the line, but only ע remains.

by Aleph Lamed or by Aleph Daleth, i.e. וְגַם בְּאַלְפֵי וְגַם בְּאֲלָפִי וְדַלְתָּ. That is, the first two letters respectively of the divine names, אֱלֹהִים of אֱלֹהִים (Elohim) and אֲדֹנָי of אֲדֹנָי (Adonai). The divine names were used freely in oaths by the Jews. In Shebuoth iv. 13 it is said that if a man adjure another by the divine names, Aleph Daleth, Jod-He Shaddai, &c., he is under obligation; but not if he adjures by the terms 'by heaven and earth'. מִשְׁבִּיעַ אֲנִי עֲלֵיהֶם . . . הָרִי אֱלֹהֵי חִיבִין; בְּשָׁמַיִם וּבָאָרֶץ הָרִי אֱלֹהֵי חִיבִין . . . בְּכֶלֶן חִיבִין. They were allowed to swear by the Temple, Jerusalem, or their own heads. See Lightfoot on Matt. v. 33-36. The Samaritans, according to Jer. Sanh. 28 b (Schechter), were accustomed to use the sacred name of Yahweh in their oaths.

but by the oath. This restrictive clause shows that no form of the divine name was to be used in taking

3 the curses of the covenant. But the Law of Moses he shall not mention, for . . . And if he swears
 4 and transgresses he profanes the Name. And if by the curses of the covenant . . . the Judges.
 5 And if he transgress he shall be held guilty: but if he confess and make restitution he shall 6 not bear (the penalty) of death. And whosoever in all Israel shall enter into the covenant by a statute
 7 for ever, together with their children who are (not of an age) to pass over into the number of those 8 who are enrolled by the oath of the covenant, shall confirm it on their behalf. And this is also 9 the law throughout the entire period of the wickedness for every one who returns from his corrupt
 10 way. On the day when he speaks with the Censor of the many they shall enrol him by the oath 11 of the covenant that Moses established with Israel—the covenant to re(turn to the Law of 12 M)oses . . . with all (his) heart . . . (and with all his) soul: as regards that which there is found 13 to be done †by them† . . . And no man shall make known to him the laws until he stand before the 14 Censor (who) shall search out concerning him when he examines him. And when he imposes it upon him to return to the Law of Moses with all his heart and all his soul . . . of him if . . .
 And every thing that was revealed of the Law with regard to a suit . . . in him . . . the Censor him and shall command him . . . until . . . killed him . . . and the madman and all . . . (loss of five lines) covenant with you and with the whole of Israel. Therefore the man shall impose it upon himself to return to the Law of Moses; for in it everything is accurately treated.

XX. 1. Reference to the Book of Jubilees.

1 And as for the exact statement of their periods to put Israel in remembrance in regard to all these, behold, it is treated accurately in the Book of the Divisions of the Seasons according to their Jubilees and their Weeks.

an oath. Only the oath of the covenant was allowed. In 2 Enoch xlix. 1–2 swearing by heaven or earth or any other 'created thing' was forbidden. The Essenes forbade all swearing: cf. Jos. B. I. ii. 8. 6; Philo ii. 458.

written. So Lévi supplies the lacuna.

2. This seems to mean that a man is not to swear by the Law.
 for. There is a loss of ten to twelve letters here.

3. ואם ישבע ועבר וחלל את השם. This verse is a paraphrase of Lev. xix. 12. A false oath is a profanation of the divine name.

4. covenant. Schechter proposes to fill up the lacuna by יובא לפני 'shall be brought before'.

5. he shall be held guilty. Cf. the concluding words of Lev. v. 2, 3, 4. confess. Cf. Lev. v. 5.

the penalty. I restore the lost word by עניש. Cf. Prov. xix. 19.

6. This verse is difficult. The rendering I have given is purely tentative. The text seems to be corrupt.

The lacuna is possibly to be supplied as follows: אשר (לא).

together with their children, i.e. את בניהם. We have only הבא before = 'he who enters', but this is taken as the plural.

pass over into the number of those who are enrolled, i.e. לעבור על הפקודים. This phrase is from Exod.
 xxx. 13 or 14. With these words we should perhaps connect 'by the oath of the covenant' as in v. 8.

shall confirm it. The text reads יקמו, which is to be emended to יקימו 'shall confirm'. —

7. period of the wickedness. See i. 5 note.

8. enrol. See note on v. 6.

—the covenant. The text is grammatically impossible.

9. to return to the Law of Moses. The text is to be restored as in v. 11 לש(וב) ל(תורת מ)שה.

10. search out. The MS. is torn in the middle of the word, which, according to Schechter, looks like יחפוזר, and which he emends into יחפוש. So I have rendered. It is worth noting that the two verbs חפש and דרש are combined in Lam. iii. 40.

11. imposes it upon him, i.e. יקים אותו עליו. Cf. Esther ix. 21, 31. It could also be reflexive: i.e. 'imposes it upon himself'. Cf. Esther ix. 27, 31.

to return to the Law of Moses. Cf. v. 14, xx. 2.

12. a suit. Cf. xvii. 8. Of the next two lines only odd words survive, and the remaining eight (?) lines are wholly lost.

14. impose it upon himself. Here I emend יקום into יקים and נפשו into נפשך. See v. 11 note.

to return to the Law, &c. See v. 11.

accurately treated. i.e. מדוקדק. A Talmudic term.

XX. the exact statement of their periods. This phrase has already occurred in ii. 8.

to put Israel in remembrance in regard to all these. The text reads לעורון יש" מכל אלה which I have emended into להזכיר יש" בכל אלה.

the Book of the Divisions of the Seasons according to their Jubilees and their Weeks. This appears to be the Book of Jubilees, though, among the many titles under which this book was known, this title nowhere appears. (See my edition, p. xiv sq.) It recalls the Prologue to this book, which runs: 'This is the XX. 2-12. Laws as to Oaths and Vows.

2 And on the day on which the man imposes it upon himself to return to the law of Moses the 3 angel of Mastema will depart from him if he make good his word. Therefore Abraham was 4 circumcised on the day of his knowing it. As to what he said, 'That which is gone forth from 5 thy lips thou shalt keep' to make it good—No binding oath, which a man imposes upon himself with a view to perform a commandment of the law, shall he cancel even at the risk of death.
 6 Nothing which a man (imposes) upon himself with a view to (frustrate the la)w shall he make 7 good even at the risk of death. (As for) the oath of the woman, whose oath Mos(es sa)id should 8 be disallowed, no man shall disallow an oath which no man knew. It is to be confirmed. And whether it be to disallow or to transgress the covenant, he shall disallow it and not confirm it.
 9 And so is also the law for her father. As to the law of the of(fer)ings no man shall vow anything 10 for the altar under compulsion. Nor shall the (pr)iests take anything from the Israelites . . .
 11 (Nor) shall a man dedicate the food . . . this is what he said, 'They hunt every man his brother 12 with a net.' Nor shall de(vote) . . . of all . . . his possession . . . holy . . . shall be punished he . . . who takes a vow . . . to the judge . . .

history of the division of the days . . . of the events of the years, of their weeks, of their jubilees.' Here, as in our text, 'the weeks' are 'weeks of years'.

2. imposes it upon, &c. See xix: 11, 14. The text reads יקום here, which may be right, i.e. 'stand upon himself to return to'. But it may be best to read יקים.

angel of Mastema. Cf. Jubilees x. 8, xi. 5, 11, xviii. 9, &c.

4. That which is gone forth, &c. Quoted from Deut. xxiii. 24.

5. binding oath, i.e. שבועת אסר. This phrase is from Num. xxx. 13.

cancel. The text יפרהו 'redeem' is emended into יפרהו as Schechter suggests.

risk of death, i.e. מחיר מות.

6. imposeth, i.e. יקים of which only the מ survives.

to frustrate the law, i.e. ל(ה)פר ה(ח)ו רה.

7. (As for). We may supply על here as in v. 9 and xiii. 1.

Moses said, i.e. אמ(ר) מ(ש)ה.

should be disallowed. Cf. Num. xxx. 6-9.

which no man knew, i.e. לא (י)דע(נה) א(ד)ם.

It is to be confirmed. i.e. להקים הוא. Cf. viii. 12 on this construction.

8. The same rule holds with regard to the law and the covenant.

9. offerings, i.e. ה(נ)דב(ו)ת.

under compulsion. Cf. 2 Cor. ix. 7 'Not grudgingly nor of necessity'.

10. the priests, i.e. ה(כ)הנים.

11. They hunt every . . . net. The text reads איש את ע. דו . . . דו חרם, which is to be restored in accordance with Micah vii. 2 איש את אחיהו יצודו חרם.

12. The fragments here translated are all that survive of eight (?) lines of the MS.

APPENDIX ON IX. 22 a.

THIS clause is clearly derived from Mic. ii. 11 והיה מטיף העם הזה . . . לו איש הלך רוח ושקר כזב. Our author says that the Pharisees heed neither the facts of the present as to God's wrath against the nation nor the words of Moses in the past owing to a false prophet. The clause referring to this false prophet is corrupt both in A and B, but by a comparison of the two we can in some measure recover the original. A and B are as follows—the words dependent on Micah, whether corrupt or not, being underlined—

A	מבוהל רוח ומטיף כזב הטיף להם
B	הולך רוח ושקר [מופת סופות] ומטיף אדם לכזב

Here מבוהל in A is a wrong emendation of הולך which B has preserved. Next, שקל in B is corrupt for שקר as in Mic. ii. 11. But the corruption שקל led to the addition of סופות in order to give some meaning to שקל. מופת is a dittograph of סופות. Again, כזב as object of מטיף in A seems right and not לכזב. Further, אדם cannot be right, whereas להם can stand. Hence we would restore as follows:

הולך רוח ושקר ומטיף כזב הטיף להם and translate: 'For one who walked in the spirit of falsehood and talked lies talked to them.'

Of course, it would be possible to translate בכל אלה, which I have rendered 'despite all these things', as meaning 'all these things', and render thus: 'But all these things they . . . perceived not . . . (i.e.) that the wrath of God . . . Nor that Moses said . . .'

INDEX TO VOLS. I AND II

SYMBOLS AND ABBREVIATIONS EMPLOYED IN THE INDEX

THE references are to chapter and verse in the case of references to the Text, to the chapter and verse under which the note is given in the case of references to the notes, and to sections in the case of references to the Introductions to the various books.

§ prefixed to a number indicates that the reference is to a section in the Introduction to the Book in question.

† prefixed to a word or name indicates a corrupt reading.

		VOL.	PAGES
A. & E.	Books of Adam and Eve	II	123-154
Add. Esth.	Additions to Esther	I	665-684
Ah.	Aḥiḳar	II	715-784
Apoc. Mos.	Apocalypse of Moses (text given in Books of Adam and Eve)	II	138-154
Arist.	Letter of Aristeas	II	83-122
Ass. Mos.	Assumption of Moses	II	407-424
Azar.	Prayer of Azariah and Song of the Three Children	I	625-637
1 Bar.	First Book of Baruch, Apocryphal Baruch	I	569-595
2 Bar.	Second Book of Baruch, Apocalypse (Syriac) of Baruch	II	470-526
3 Bar.	Third Book of Baruch	II	527-541
Bel	Bel and the Dragon	I	652-664
1 En.	First Book of Enoch, Ethiopian Enoch	II	163-281
2 En.	Second Book of Enoch, Slavonic Enoch	II	425-469
Ep. Jer.	Epistle of Jeremy	I	596-611
1 Esd.	First Book of Esdras	I	1-58
4 Ez.	Fourth Book of Ezra	II	542-624
Jub.	Book of Jubilees	II	1-82
Judith	Judith	I	242-267
1 Macc.	First Book of Maccabees	I	59-124
2 Macc.	Second „ „	I	125-154
3 Macc.	Third „ „	I	155-173
4 Macc.	Fourth „ „	II	653-685
Mart. Is.	Martyrdom of Isaiah	II	155-162
P. A.	Pirkē Aboth, or Sayings of the Fathers	II	686-714
P. Man.	Prayer of Manasses	I	612-624
Ps. Sol.	Psalms of Solomon	II	625-652
S. A. & E.	Slavonic Vita Adae et Evae. See A. & E.	II	134-136
Sib.	Sibylline Oracles (Jewish)	II	368-406
Sir.	Sirach or Ecclesiasticus	I	268-517
Sus.	Susanna	I	638-651
Test.	Testaments	II	282-360
T. A.	Testament of Asher	II	342-345
T. B.	„ „ Benjamin	II	354-360
T. D.	„ „ Dan	II	332-335
T. G.	„ „ Gad	II	339-342
T. Iss.	„ „ Issachar	II	325-328
T. Jos.	„ „ Joseph	II	346-354
T. Jud.	„ „ Judah	II	315-325
T. L.	„ „ Levi	II	304-315
T. N.	„ „ Naphtali	II	335-339
T. R.	„ „ Reuben	II	296-300
T. S.	„ „ Simeon	II	300-303
T. Z.	„ „ Zebulun	II	328-332
Test. App. I	First Appendix to the Testaments, i. e. Late Hebrew Testament of Naphtali, containing Fragments of the Original Testament	II	361-363
Test. App. II	Second Appendix to the Testaments, i. e. Aramaic and Greek Fragments of an Original Source of the Testament of Levi and the Book of Jubilees	II	364-367
Tob.	Tobit	I	174-241
Wisd.	Book of Wisdom	I	518-568
Zad.	Zadokite Fragments	II	785-834

INDEX

Aaron, 1Esd. 8² Sir. 45^{6-22,25}
 Wisd. 18²¹ 1En. 80^{18,31,37} 2Bar.
 59¹ 4Macc. 7¹² P.A. 1¹² Zad.
 8³; glory of, Sir. 45²⁰; seed of, 1Macc. 7¹⁴; son of, 4Macc.
 7¹²; sons of, 1Esd. 1^{13,14} 5⁵
 Tob. 17⁽⁶⁾ Sir. 50^{13,16}.
 — and Israel, judges from, Zad.
 11^{1,2}; Messiah from, 9¹⁰ (B)
 29(B) 15⁴ 18⁸; religious revival from, 15⁸. See Messiah, Zadokite Party.
 — Levi and, Zad. 11²; cf. 15⁶.
 See Levi.
 — Moses and, arose through
 Prince of Lights, Zad. 7¹⁹.
 Ab. the month, Ah. 3^{9,11} (Syr.).
 Abadias, 1Esd. 8³⁵.
 Abal, Bel. 2.
 Abba Shaul, P.A. 2¹¹.
 Abdera, Arist. 31.
 Abel, Jub. 4^{1,2,4,7,31} A. & E.
 22^{3,4,5} 23^{1,2} 48^{4,6} Apoc. Mos.
 1³ 2² 3^{1,3} 40³ 43¹ 1En. 22^{6,7}
 85^{3,4,6} T. Iss. 5⁴ T.B. 7⁴ 4Macc.
 18¹¹.
 Abel-Maul, T.L. 2^{3,6}(β).
 Abelsjail, 1En. 13⁹.
 Abestan, wife of Ahikar, Ah.
 4^{6,8,12,16} 6^{3,6} (Arm.). See Esh-fagni.
 Abhorred. See Nations.
 Abietes, Arist. 50.
 Abikam, feigned name of Ahikar,
 Ah. 6^{9,10} (Arm.) 6^{9,10,11,12,13}
 (Syr.) 6^{12,14,15-24} (Arab.).
 Abila, T.L. 6¹.
 Abimelech, Jub. 24^{8,13,17,26}.
 Abimelech, 3Bar. Prol. 2.
 Abiram, 4Macc. 2¹⁷. See Dathan.
 Abisue, 1Esd. 8².
 Abodes, God's four on earth,
 = Garden of East; Mount of East; Mount Sinai; Mount
 Zion, Jub. 4²⁶.
 Abomination, Sir. 13²⁰ 15¹³ 19²³;
 of desolation set up on the altar, 1Macc. 15⁴ n.; pulled down, 6⁷.
 Abominations, Sir. 27³⁰ 49² P.
 Man. 10.
 Abraeus, Arist. 48.
 Abraham, 1Macc. 2⁵² 12²¹
 2Macc. 1² Tob. 4¹² 14⁷ Judith 8²⁸ Sir. 44¹⁹⁻²¹ 51¹² x Wisd.
 10⁵ 1Bar. 2³⁴ Azar. 12, Add.
 Esth. C^{8,30} Jub. 17^{6,18,19} 15^{7,11}, 15,17,18,22-24,26,30 16^{1,2,7,10,13-15}, 30 17^{1,2,4-6,8,15-17} 18^{1,10,12-14,17}
 19^{1,3,8,10,11,16,16} 20¹ 21¹ 22^{1,4,5}, 16,23,26 23^{2-7,9,10} 24^{1,2,10,18,22,23}
 25^{5,7,17} 26²⁴ 27^{11,22} 29^{4,16,17,19}
 31^{5,7,25,32} 32^{22,23} 33²¹ 35¹⁴ 36¹⁻³,
 6,12,20 39⁶ 41²⁸ 44⁵ 45^{3,15} 48⁸
 1En. 89¹⁰ 93⁵ T.L. 6⁹ 8¹⁵ 9¹²
 15⁴ 18^{8,14} 19⁵ T.Jud. 17^{6(a)} 25¹
 T.D. 7² T.N. 1¹⁰ T.A. 7⁷ T.
 Jos. 6⁷ T.B. 1² 10^{4,8} Test.
 App. I 8^{3,8} 9⁶ 10² II 11, 17, 22,

57 Ass. Mos. 3⁹ 2Bar. 4⁴ 57¹
 4Ez. 6⁸ 7¹⁰⁶ Ps. Sol. 9¹⁷ 18⁴
 4Macc. 7¹⁹ 9²¹ 13¹⁷ 14²⁰ 15²⁸
 16^{20,25} 17⁶ 18^{1,21,23} P.A. 3¹⁶
 5^{3,4,9,22} 6¹¹ Zad. 4^{2,3} 20³; beloved of God, Azar. 12; burns idols, Jub. 12¹²; chose not his own will, Zad. 4²; chose the Lord for his God, and kept holy Hebrew language, Test.
 App. I 8^{3,6}; circumcised on day he knew the Law, Zad.
 20³; death of, Jub. 23¹⁻⁸;
 delivered the commandment to Isaac and Jacob, Zad. 4³; dying commands of, Jub. 21 n.
 T.L. 9¹² Test. App. II. 16,
 17; faithful in temptation,
 1Macc. 2⁵²; great exploits of,
 Jub. 11¹⁹⁻²³; house of, Jub.
 22²⁴; judgement of, Jub. 41²⁸;
 last words to, and blessing of,
 Jacob, Jub. 22¹⁰⁻³⁰; learns Hebrew, Jub. 12²⁵⁻²⁷; loves
 Jacob more than Esau, Jub.
 19¹⁵⁻³⁰; = plant of righteous judgement, 1En. 63⁵; prayers of, Jub. 11¹⁷ 12¹³⁻²¹ 22⁵⁻⁹; recorded friend (of God), Zad.
 4²; resisted the evil inclination,
 Zad. 4²⁻³; seed of, Ps. Sol. 9¹⁷
 18⁴; Shield of, i.e. God, Sir.
 51^{12x}; sons of, 4Macc. 6^{17,22}
 18²³; Spartans of stock of,
 1Macc. 12²¹; tower of, Jub.
 29^{16,17,19} 36²⁰; trials of, Jub.
 17^{17,18}—ten, 19⁸ P.A. 5⁴; = white bull, 1En. 89¹⁰; words of, Jub. 25⁵ 39⁶. See Abram.
 Abraham, an elder, Arist. 49.
 Abram, Terah's uncle, Jub. 11¹⁴.
 Abram = Abraham, Terah's son,
 Jub. 11^{15,18-20,23,24} 12^{1,9,12,13,16}
 13^{1,11,13-16,13,21,23-25,28,29} 14^{1,12}, 13,18,20-24 15^{1,3,7}; name changed to Abraham, 15⁷.
 Absalom. See Jonathan.
 — See Mattathias.
 — envoy of Maccabaeans, 2Macc. 11¹⁷ ? cf. 1Macc. 13¹¹.
 'Absolution' pronounced by priest, Sir. 50²¹ n.
 Abstinence from wine and flesh,
 T.Jud. 15⁴ T. Iss. 7³.
 Abtalion, P.A. 1^{10,11}.
 Abu Samik, the executioner,
 Ah. 4⁹ 5⁸⁻¹⁰ 7^{24,25} (Arab.). See Ibn Samik, Nabusemakh, &c.
 Abubus. See Ptolemy, son of A.
 Abusmaq, the executioner, Ah.
 4^{8,9,11,12} 5^{8,9,10} 7⁷ (Arm.).
 See Nabusemakh, Nabušmiškun.
 Abydos, Sib. 5⁸⁶.
 Abyrus, river, 3Bar. 4⁷.
 Abyss, the, Sir. 24⁵ n. 2En. 28³
 2Bar. 59⁵.
 — or depths, dried by the look of God, 4Ez. 8²³ n.

Abyss, in 1En.—217; of complete condemnation, 1En. 54⁵;
 of fire, 1En. 10¹³ 18¹¹ 21⁷ 54⁵ 90²³⁻²⁶; of the earth, 1En. 88³;
 a great, = place of destruction for the earth, 1En. 83^{4,7}; a narrow, deep, horrible, and dark, 88¹; in the midst of the earth, 90²⁶, cf. 26¹; place of punishment, see Gehenna.
 Abysses, 1En. 77³ T.L. 3⁹; of the earth, 1En. 89⁷; of the ocean, 60⁷; of the sea, 60⁹.
 See also Chasm, Deep, Depth,
 Ravine, Valley.
 Accaba, 1Esd. 5³⁰.
 Accepting person, Sir. 4²⁷.
 Accos. See Eupolemus.
 Accursed, the, 1En. 22¹¹ 27².
 See Valley.
 Accusation, false, Sir. 26⁵.
 Achar, 4Ez. 7¹⁰⁷.
 Achbor, Jub. 38^{22,23}.
 Acheron, 1En. 17⁶ n. Sib. 5⁴⁸⁶.
 Acherusian lake, Apoc. Mos.
 37³.
 Achilles, Sib. 3⁴²⁷.
 Achior, leader of Ammonites,
 Judith 5^{5,22} 6^{1,2,5,10,13,16,20} 11⁹
 14^{5,6,10}.
 Achipha, 1Esd. 5³¹.
 Achish, king of Persia, Ah. 3⁷
 (Arab.). See Akhi, Shah.
 †Achor, T.Jud. 3^{3,4}(β).
 Achuzan, 2En. 64² 68⁵.
 Acting presumptuously. See Presumptuously.
 Acub, 1Esd. 5³¹.
 Acud, 1Esd. 5³⁰.
 Ada, Reuben's wife, Jub. 34²⁰.
 Adaeus, Arist. 47.
 Adam, Tob. 8⁶ Sir. 33¹⁰ Wisd.
 7¹ 10¹ Jub. 2²³ 3^{1-3,6,8,9,15,21,25},
 27,30,32 4^{7,10,29} (death) 16⁸
 19^{24,27} 22¹³ A. & E. 2² 3¹⁻³ 4²
 5¹ 6¹ 7^{1,2} 8¹ 9² 10³ 12^{1,2} 13^{1,2}
 14³ 17^{1,3} 18¹ 19³ 20^{1,3} 21² 22¹,
 2,4,5 23^{2,3} 24^{1,2} 25¹ 30^{1,4} 31²
 32¹ 35^{1,3} 36¹ 40^{1,2} 41³ 42^{2,5} 43¹
 44¹ 45^{1,2} 46² 48^{1,4,5,6} 49¹ S.A.
 & E. 28^{1,2} 32^{1,2} 33^{1,3} 34²⁻⁴
 35^{1,2} 36^{1,3,4} 37¹ 39¹ 40¹ Apoc.
 Mos. 1^{1,2} 2^{1,2,4} 3^{2,3} 4^{1,2} 5^{1,4} 6³
 7¹ 8¹ 9¹⁻³ 13^{2,3} 15³ 21^{1,3} 22²
 23^{1,4} 24¹ 27^{2,4} 28¹⁻³ 29^{2,4,5} 31¹,
 3 32⁴ 33³ 34² 35⁴ 36¹ 37^{2,3} 39¹
 1En. 32⁵ 37¹ 85³⁻⁷ Sib. 3²⁴
 5²²⁸⁻²⁴⁶ n. 2En. 30¹⁰⁻¹³ 31^{1,3,6}
 33¹⁰ 41¹ 58¹⁻³ 2Bar. § 10, 4³ 17²
 18² 23⁴ 48⁴² 54^{16,19} 56⁵ 3Bar.
 4^{8,16} 9⁷ 4Ez. 3^{10,21,26} 4³⁰ 6^{54,56}
 7^{11,70,116,118}; = angel, a second, 2En. 30¹¹ n.; animals subjected to, 2En. 58³; buried by angels,
 A. & E. 48⁴⁻⁶; created alone,
 Wisd. 10¹ n., of earth, Sir. 33¹⁰; creation of, 2En. 30¹⁰⁻¹²; fall of, Jub. 3²¹ Sib. 5²²⁸⁻²⁴⁶ n.; four letters of, 2En. 30¹³ n. Sib. 3²⁴;

God came to earth for his sake at creation, 2En. 58^{1,2,3}; handwriting of, 33¹⁰; in Eden, 31¹
 —five and a half hours in Paradise, 32¹; lord on earth, 31³;
 named from the four quarters of the world, 30¹³ n.; pre-eminence of, Sir. 49¹⁶ n.; Satan's designs against, 2En. 31⁸;
 source of death, physical, 2Bar.
 23⁴ n.; premature, 54¹⁶ n. 56⁶; spiritual, 48⁴² n.; transgression of, brought death, physical and psychical declension, spiritual evil, 2Bar. § 10, 4Ez. § 10 (1).
 Adam of own soul, each is,
 2Bar. 54¹⁹.
 Adam, Apocalypse of. See
 Adam, Testament of.
 Adam, Second, the, doctrine of,
 Sir. 49¹⁶ n.
 Adam, Testament or Apocalyptical of, A. & E. § 4.
 Adam and Eve, in place of punishment, 2En. 41¹; penance of, A. & E. 1¹⁻¹¹ 3.
 Adam and Eve, Books of, account, § 1; author, a Jew of Diaspora, § 7; bibliography, § 10; composite text, § 6; date of original text, § 5, of versions, § 5^a; influence on later literature, § 8; MSS., § 3; relation of to 2Enoch, 2En.
 § 4; theology of Apoc. Mosis,
 A. & E. § 9; titles, § 2; Versions, ancient, § 4.
 Adam and Eve, Conflict of, A. &
 E. §§ 4, 8; Life of, Slavonic,
 A. & E. § 4²⁰.
 Adam, city, Jub. 13²³.
 Adar, month, 1Esd. 7⁵ 1Macc.
 7^{43,49}; twelfth month, 2Macc.
 15³⁶; Add. Esth. B⁶ E²⁰ F¹⁰.
 Adar-Sheni, intercalary month,
 1Macc. 9³ n.
 Adasa, 1Macc. 7^{40,45}.
 Adataneses, city, Jub. 7^{15,17}.
 Adath, son of Barad, Jub. 38^{19,20}.
 Adath, Jub. 38²³.
 Addi, 1Esd. 9³¹.
 †Addition, a feast, Jub. 32^{27,29}.
 Addo, i.e. Iddo, 1Esd. 6¹.
 Addus, 1Esd. 5³⁴.
 Adiaphotos = Cain, Apoc. Mos.
 1³.
 Adibaa, Jub. 34²⁰.
 Adida, city, 1Macc. 12³⁸ 13¹³.
 Adin, 1Esd. 8³².
 Adinu, 1Esd. 5¹⁴.
 Adnarel, 1En. 82¹⁴.
 Adoil, 2En. 25^{1,2} (A) Idoil (B).
 Adonikam, 1Esd. 5¹⁴ 8³⁹.
 Adora, 1Macc. 13²⁰. See Aduram.
 Adoran the Aramaean, Jub. 38³.
 See Aduram.
 Adu, 2Bar. 5⁵.
 Aduel, Tob. 1¹.

- Adullam, own, 2Macc. 12³⁸
T.Jud. 8².
- Adullamite, Jub. 41¹⁴.
- Adultery, Sir. 23²³; danger of, 9⁹; death penalty for, Sus. 22; procedure in case of, 32, 34 n.
- Aduram, place = Adora, Jub. 38⁵.
- Aduram, of Aram, Jub. 37⁹.
See Adoran.
- Adversity, Sir. 12⁸ 20⁹ 40²⁴; advantageous, 20⁹.
- Advocate for Israel = Moses, Ass. Mos. 11¹⁷.
- Aedias, 1Esd. 9²⁷.
- Aeneas, descendants of, Sib. 3⁴¹².
- Aeon, the mighty, a Stoic conception, Sib. 3⁹².
- Aesop, Ah. §§ 2, 3. See vol. II, 780 sqq.
- Aesora, Judith 4⁴.
- Aetolia, Sib. 3⁴³⁵.
- Aferag = Phrygia (?), Jub. 8²⁷.
- Afflicted, the, Sir. 4^{3,4,8}.
- Affliction, day of, Sir. 3¹⁵ 6¹⁰; time of, 2¹¹ 2²³. See Day.
- Afra = Africa, Jub. 8¹⁵.
- Agagite, Add. Esth. A¹⁷ⁿ.
- Agar, sons of, 1Bar. 3²³.
- Agathocles section of Polybius' history, 3Macc. § 5, 15²⁵⁻³³.
- Age, coming, 4Ez 7⁴⁷ 8^{1,52}, delight to few but torment to many, 7⁴⁷, hope of, in divine compassion ultimately, 7¹³²⁻¹⁴⁰, not yet awake, 7³¹, solution of all difficulties, 4²²⁻³²ⁿ, symbolized by Jacob, 6⁸; consummated, 1En. 16¹, see Consummation; first, 4Ez. 6⁷; passing, 6²⁰; present, 7¹¹² 8^{1,2}, hastening to its end, 4²⁶, hopeless, 4²⁷, symbolized by Esau, 6⁹; world-age, divided into twelve parts, 14¹¹.
- Aged, the, Sir. 8^{6n.9} 25⁶ 32 (G 35)³, cf. 6³⁴; advice to learn from, 8⁹; respect for, 8⁵; wisdom of, 25³⁻⁶.
- Ages, two, 4Ez. 7⁵⁰.
- Aggaba, 1Esd. 5³⁰.
- Aggaeus, i.e. Haggai, 1Esd. 6¹ 7³.
- Agia, 1Esd. 5³⁴.
- Agrippa, farm of, 3Bar. Prolog. 2 n.
- Aguaron = Gomorra, Mart. Is. 2¹⁶ⁿ. Read Samaria.
- Ahab, Mart. Is. 2^{12,13,15}.
- Ahaziah, son of Ahab, Mart. Is. 2¹³⁻¹⁵.
- Ahikar, Tob. 1^{21,22} 2¹⁰ 11¹⁸ 14¹⁰ § 8 iii; dependence of Tobit upon, § 8 iii; parallels of, with Sirach, Sir. § 7 (b); references to in Tobit, originality of, Tob. § 9.
- Ahikar, story of, account of, Ah. § 1; antiquity of, § 2; materials for critical determination of text, § 4; (a) Aramaic papyrus, Story of Sudhana Avadana; (b-g) Versions, Arabic, Armenian, Ethiopic, Greek, Slavonic, Syriac; quotations and references, § 3; (a) Democritus; (b) Tobit parallels; (c) Testaments of Twelve Patriarchs; (d) O.T.; (e) N.T.; (f) Koran. Ahitob, 1Esd. 8².
- Ahitophel, P.A. 6³.
- Ahitub, Judith 8¹.
- Ahuzzath, Jub. 24²⁶.
- Ai, Jub. 13^{5,15}.
- Air, Satanail's place in, 2En. 29⁵.
- Akabia ben Mahalalel, P.A. 3¹.
- Akae, 1En. 69¹⁵.
- Akatan, 1Esd. 8³⁸.
- Akhi, king of Persia and Elam, Ah. 3⁷ (Syr.). See Achish, Shah.
- Akiba, Rabbi, 1Bar. § 9 ii P.A. 3¹⁸⁻²⁰.
- Akkos, 1Esd. 5³⁸.
- Akrabbatine, 1Macc. 5³.
- Akrabbim, †forest of, Jub. 29¹⁴.
- Alagar Zagar = Salmanassar, Mart. Is. 3².
- Alcimus, 1Macc. 7^{5,9,12,20,21,23,25} 9^{1,54-57}; desires to be high priest, 7⁵ⁿ; gets high-priesthood, 7⁵⁻⁹ 2Macc. 14^{3,13,26}; dies, 1Macc. 9⁵⁶; pulls down wall of sanctuary's inner court, 9⁵⁴.
- Alema, 1Macc. 5²⁶.
- Alexander and Aristobulus, sons of Herod, Zad. §§ 1, 6, 12. See Messiah.
- Alexander Balas, Sib. 3³⁸⁸⁻⁴⁰⁰ⁿ; 'a side-shoot', 3³⁹⁷; Alexander Epiphanes, i.e. Balas, 1Macc. 10^{1n,4,15,18,23,47,48,49,51,59,68,88} 11^{1,2,8,9,12,14,15,16,17,39}; killed, 11¹⁷.
- Alexander the Great, 1Macc. 1^{1,7} 6² 1En. 89⁶⁹ⁿ. 90¹ⁿ Sib. 4⁶⁷⁻⁹⁶ 5⁴⁻⁷; divides his empire, 1Macc. 1⁶.
- Alexander Jannaues, 1En. 38⁵ⁿ. 103^{14,15n}. T.L. 14⁵ⁿ.; dispute of, with Pharisees, Sus. § 7.
- Alexandra, 1En. § 7.
- Alexandria, 3Macc. 3¹ Arist. 22, 109, 173 Sib. 5⁸⁸; Jewish community at, Arist. 308, 310; Jews at, rulers of, of Sadducean type, Wisd. 1¹ⁿ. See Temple.
- Alexandrian citizenship, 3Macc. 2³⁰ 3²¹.
- Alexandrine Canon included Sirach, Sir. § 8; doctrine absent from Add. Esth. § 7; ideas in 2 Enoch § 3; literature, 3Macc. § 7; theology, 4Ez. 7¹⁰²⁻¹¹⁶ⁿ.; views of immortality, Wisd. § 9 4Macc. § 9. See Immortality.
- All Flesh. See Flesh.
- All-king, i.e. God, Sir. 50¹⁵.
- Allar, 1Esd. 5³⁶.
- Allegorizing tendency, Arist. 150n.; in Wisdom, Wisd. § 9.
- Allon, 1Esd. 5³⁴.
- Alms, Tob. § 10 B (2), 1^{3,16} 2¹⁴ 4^{7sq.,16} 12^{9sq.} 14¹⁰ Sir. § 4, 3³⁰ 4⁴ 7¹⁰ⁿ. 12⁷ 29⁸ P.A. 1² Zad. 181-5.
- Almsgiving, atones for sin, Sir. 3³⁰ Tob. 12³, see Atonement; a duty, Sir. 4⁴; = bestowal of kindnesses, P.A. 1²; = righteousness, Sir. 7¹⁰ⁿ.; to evil not meritorious, 12⁷. See Giving, Pharisees, Poor.
- Alphabet, Jewish, Arist. 11, cf. 3, 30. See Characters.
- Alphas, 3Bar. 4⁷.
- Altar rebuilt, 1Esd. 5⁴⁸; of burnt offering, polluted, 1Macc. 1⁵⁴; pulled down, 4^{45,46}; new built, 4⁴⁷. See Altar of sacrifice.
- Altar of incense, 2Bar. 6⁷; preserved and hidden by Jeremiah, 2Macc. 2⁵.
- of sacrifice, new, and fresh fire, for rededicated Temple, 2Macc. 10³.
- Amada = Imlah, Mart. Is. 2¹²ⁿ.
- Amalek, T.S. 6³.
- Amama, mountains of, Jub. 82¹ 9⁴.
- †Amanisakir. See Maanisakir.
- Amarias, 1Esd. 8².
- Amaseqa, Jub. 38²⁰.
- Amram, T.L. 12^{2,4}. See Amram.
- Ambri, children of, 1Macc. 9^{86n.37}.
- Amen, liturgical use of, P.Man. 15 n. Tob. 8⁸ Judith 13²⁰.
- Amilabes = Abel, Apoc. Mos. 1³ 2².
- Amman, Ass. Mos. 1⁴.
- Ammidoi, 1Esd. 5²⁰.
- Ammon, Judith 1¹² 5^{2,5} 6⁵ 7^{17,18} Jub. 38⁵; children of, 1Macc. 5⁶ Jub. 29¹⁰ 37¹⁰.
- Ammon. See Zeus.
- Ammonite(s), 2Macc. 4²⁶ 5⁷ Judith 14⁵; = 'foxes' in 1En. 89^{42,55}.
- Amnon, P.A. 5¹⁹.
- Amorite kings, defeat of, Jub. 34²⁻⁹ T.Jud. 3-7.
- Amorites, Judith 5¹⁵ Jub. 14¹⁸ 29¹¹ 34^{2,5} T.Jud. 7² 12² Ass. Mos. 11¹⁶.
- Amos, Tob. 2⁵.
- Amram, Jub. 46¹⁰ 47⁹ Test. App. II 74-76, see Amram; stays in Palestine, Jub. 46¹⁰.
- Amraphel, Jub. 13²².
- Amulets, 2Macc. 12⁴⁰.
- Anael, Tob. 1²¹.
- Anan, 1Esd. 5³⁰.
- Ananel, 1En. 6⁷.
- Ananias, son of Bebai, 1Esd. 9²⁹.
- Ananias, son of Emmer, 1Esd. 9²¹.
- Ananias, 1Esd. 9⁴³.
- Ananias, 1Esd. 9⁴⁸.
- Ananias, Tob. 5^{13(12),14(13)}.
- Ananias, Judith 8¹.
- Ananias, an elder, Arist. 48.
- Ananias, Mart. Is. 2⁹.
- Ananias, Azar. 66 4Macc. 13⁹ 16²¹ 18¹². See Children, Three.
- Anathema, 1En. 95⁴.
- Anathoth, 1Esd. 5¹⁸. See John of A.
- Andreas, Arist. 12, 18, 40, 43, 123, 173.
- Andronicus, deputy of Antiochus Epiphanes, 2Macc. 4³¹; murderer of Onias, 4³⁴; death, 4³⁸.
- Andronicus, governor at Gerizim, 2Macc. 5²³.
- Aner, Jub. 13²⁹.
- Angel, Tob. 5^{4,17,22} 6^{4sqg.} 12¹⁵, see Raphael; brings seven tablets from heaven in Levi's vision, Jub. 32²¹; destroying, Wisd. 18²⁵; fiery, smites congregation, 4Macc. 7¹¹; good, to save Israel, prayer for, answered, 2Macc. 11⁶, cf. 10^{29,30} 15²³ 4Macc. 4¹⁰; of Abraham, T. Jos. 6⁷; of death, 2Bar. 21²³ⁿ.; of God, A. & E. 31¹ 36² Apoc. Mos. 31³ T.R. 5¹⁵ 5³ T.S. 2⁸ T.L. 2⁶ T.Jud. 10³ 15⁵ 21⁵ T.Iss. 2¹ T.D. 5⁴; of God, with Israel, Ep. Jer. 7; of God, once referred to in Add. Esth. D¹³; of humanity, Apoc. Mos. 32³; of the Lord cast fire on false witnesses, Sus. § 9, 60-62, brings Habakkuk miraculously to feed Daniel, Bel 36-39; of Mastema, Zad. 20², cf. Jub. 49²; of might, T.Jud. 3¹⁰; of peace, T.D. 6⁵ T.A. 6⁸ T.B. 6¹, meets soul of righteous at death, T.B. 6¹ⁿ.; of the powers, 3Bar. 1⁸ⁿ.; of the presence, the, Jub. § 15, 12^{7,29n}. 2¹, cf. T.Jud. 25², 1En. 40² (probably Michael, Israel's guardian angel, 1En. 20⁵ 2En. 22⁵); who intercedeth for Israel and the righteous, T.L. 5^{6,7} T.D. 6². See Archangels.
- Angelic mediation, Tob. § 10.
- Angelic patrons of nations (except Israel), Sir. 17¹⁷ⁿ. See Angels, guardian.
- Angelology of Jubilees, parallels of, with N.T., Jub. § 15.
- Angels, Sir. 16⁷ (see Princes) 4Macc. 4¹⁰; anguish of, over fall of Zion, 2Bar. 67²; armies of, 2Bar. 48¹⁰ 51¹¹ⁿ. 59¹⁰; created on first day, Jub. 2² 2Bar. 21⁶ⁿ.; Cherubim, Seraphim, and Ophanim, created from fire on second, 2En. 29^{1,3n}.; fall of, Sir. 16⁷ 1En. 61⁶ⁿ. 15³ 69^{4,5} 86^{1,3} 106¹³ 2En. 18^{3,7} 2Bar. 56¹¹⁻¹³ⁿ., see Demonology; fallen, ask Enoch to intercede, 2En. 71⁵⁻⁶; food of, Wisd. 16²⁰ A. & E. 4²; frighten Apollonius, 4Macc. 4¹⁰; guardian, Jub. 35^{17A}. & E. 33¹; guardian, of the nations, seventy, Test. App. I. 84⁶; help Eve, A. & E. 21¹; = hosts of heaven, P.Man. 15; intercession of, for Adam, A. & E. 9³ Apoc. Mos. 35²; mediation of, Tob. § 10 3Bar. § 10, 2—three classes of mediating angels, § 10, 2; only reference to in 3Macc., 6¹⁸ⁿ.; orders of, ten, 2En. 20^{1,3n}.; powers of, A. & E. 48⁵; symbolized by shepherds, 1En. 89⁵⁹⁻⁹⁰ 25, stars, 86^{1,3} 88¹, white men, 87², cf. 90^{21,22}; titles of—children or sons of heaven; children of (the) heaven, 1En. 6² 14³; elect and holy children... from the high heaven, 39¹; sons of heaven, 13⁸; holy ones (or 'the holy'), 9³ 12² 14²³ 39⁵ 47² 57² 60⁴ 61^{8,10,12} 65¹² 69¹³ 71⁸ 81⁵ 106¹⁹; holy ones of heaven, 9³, cf. 57², 61¹²; holy angels, 20¹⁻⁸ 21^{5,9} 22³ 24⁶ 27² 32⁵ 71⁸ 93²; host of heaven, host of the heavens, powers of the heavens, see Heaven, Heavens; sons of God, 1En. 61¹⁰ 104⁶, cf. 1⁹ 60¹ 60^{4,5}, of the God of heaven, 106⁵; holy sons of God, 71¹; spiritual ones of the heaven, 1En. 15⁷; spirits of the heaven,

INDEX

- 15¹⁰—of the glory of the presence, T.L. 18⁵, see Angels of the presence; of God, Sir. 1²² crit. note, marry daughters of men, Jub. 5¹, punishment of them and their children, 5⁵⁻⁹, final judgement, 5¹⁰⁻¹⁶; of the moon, 3Bar. 9⁵; of natural phenomena, Jub. 2² 4Ez. 8²¹*n.*, do not observe Sabbath, Jub. 2¹⁸; of the presence, Jub. § 15 1²⁷, (one writes history for Moses), who went before the camp of Israel, 1²⁹, spoke to Moses, 2¹, observe Sabbath, 2¹⁸, see 31¹⁴ T.L. 3^{5(β)}; 7: of punishment, 1En. 40⁷*n.* 53³ 56¹ 62¹¹ 63¹ 2En. 10³*n.*; of sanctification, Jub. 2^{2,18}, observe Sabbath, 2¹⁸; of the spirit of the clouds and darkness, 2²; of the spirits of cold and heat, creatures in the heavens, 2²; of the spirit of fire, of the voices, of thunder and lightning, of the winds, of winter and the seasons, 2²; of sun, 2En. 11^{4,5} 3Bar. 6¹³ 8⁴; vision of, 3Macc. 6¹⁸.
- Angels. See Gabriel, Michael, Phamael, Phanuel, Raguel, Raphael, Remiel, Sammael, Saraqael, Sarasael, Uriel, Zotiel, Powers, Spirits, Virtues.
- Anger, T.D. 2¹⁻⁴. See Wrath.
- Anguish. See Day.
- Animal worship, Wisd. 12²⁴ 15¹⁸.
- Animals, treatment of, see Man, Strangling; in delivery on Sabbath, 13²²; fallen into pit on Sabbath, 13²⁸; kindness to, T.Z. 5¹; under man's dominion, 2En. 58³; will not perish till great judgement, when they will accuse their oppressors, 58⁵*n.*
- Anna, Tob. 1²⁰ 2^{1,11} 10⁴ 11⁵ 14¹²
- Annas, 1Esd. 9³².
- Annis, 1Esd. 5¹⁸.
- Anniversary of martyrdoms, 4Macc. 1¹⁰ 14⁹.
- Annus, 1Esd. 9⁴⁸.
- Annuus, 1Esd. 8⁴⁸.
- [Anointed one, holy (= Aaron?), Zad. 8².]
- Anointed One = Messiah. See Christ, Messiah.
- Anoniram, T.Jud. 9³.
- Anos, 1Esd. 9³⁴.
- Anthropology of 2 Enoch, 2En. § 6.
- Antichrist, Test. § 16, T.D. 5⁶*n.* See Beliar, Dan.
- Antigone, city, Sib. 3³⁴⁷.
- Antigonos of Socho, P.A. 1³.
- Antigonus, 1En. 100²*n.*
- Antigonus Gonatas, naval victory over, Arist. § 1, 180.
- Antilibanus, Judith 1⁷.
- Antioch, 1Macc. 3³⁷*n.* 4³⁵ 6⁶³ 10⁶⁸ 11^{44,56} Sib. 3³⁴⁴ 4¹⁴⁰; citizenship of, 2Macc. 4⁹*n.*
- Antiochenes, 2Macc. 4⁹.
- Antiochis, mistress of Antiochus Epiphanes, 2Macc. 4³⁰.
- Antiochus III, the Great, 1Macc. 1¹⁰ 8⁶ 3Macc. 1¹; victories of, Sir. 10⁸*n.*
- Antiochus IV, Epiphanes, 1Macc. 1^{10,16,20} 3²⁷ 6^{1,16,55} 2Macc. 1¹⁴*n.* 2²⁰ 4^{7,21,37} 5^{1,5,17,21} 9¹⁻¹⁰ 13¹³ Azar. 9^{n.} 1En. 46⁶*n.* 100⁷*n.* Sib. 3³⁸⁸⁻⁴⁰⁰*n.* 4Macc. § 1, 4^{15,21} 5^{1,4,5,16} 10¹⁷ 17²³ 18⁵; attacks Egypt a second time, 2Macc. 5¹; conquers Egypt, 1Macc. 1¹⁶⁻¹⁹; death of, 1Macc. 6¹⁻¹⁷ 2Macc. 9²⁸ 10⁹; defeated at Persepolis, 2Macc. 9^{1,2}; desecrates Temple, 1Macc. 1²¹⁻²³ 2Macc. 5^{15,21}; disease, loathsome of, 2Macc. 9⁵⁻¹⁸; largesses of, 1Macc. 3³⁰*n.*; letter to Jews, 2Macc. 9¹⁹⁻²⁷; not the foreign conqueror of Ps.Sol. § 5 (see Pompey); persecution of, = a second visitation, Ass. Mos. 8¹ 9⁷; promise to restore sacred vessels, 2Macc. 9¹⁶, and to become a Jew, 9¹⁷; repentance of, 2Macc. 9¹²⁻¹⁸; = a sinful shoot, 1Macc. 1¹⁰, cf. Sir. 40¹⁵; supplication of, 2Macc. 9²⁵⁻²⁷.
- Antiochus V, Eupator, son of Antiochus Epiphanes, 1Macc. 3³³ 6^{15,17,55} 7² 2Macc. 2²⁰ 9^{25,29} 10^{10,13} 11^{23,28} 13^{1,3,4} 14²; accession, 1Macc. 6¹⁻¹⁷ 2Macc. 9²⁵; death, 14².
- Antiochus VI, son of Alexander Balas, 1Macc. 11^{39,54,57} 12³⁹ 13³¹; killed 13³¹*n.* (date?).
- Antiochus VII, Sidetes, son of Demetrius I, 1Macc. 15¹*n.* 2¹⁰, 11^{13,25} Bel § 5.
- Antiochus. See Numenius.
- Antipater, son of Jason, 1Macc. 12¹⁶ 14²².
- Anti-Semitism, 3Macc. §§ 5, 6.
- Anxieties of poverty and riches, Sir. 31¹⁻⁴.
- Apame, 1Esd. 4²⁹.
- Aphaerema, i.e. Ephraim or Ephron, 1Macc. 11³⁴*n.*
- Apherra, 1Esd. 5³⁴.
- Aphphus. See Jonathan.
- Aphrodite, Sib. 3¹²².
- Aphrodite, the planet, 2En. 30³*n.*
- Apocalypse of Moses, older than Vita Adae et Evae, A. & E. §§ 6, 7, 9.
- Apocalypse of Paul, Sir. 4¹⁰*n.*
- Apocalypse of Peter, Sir. 4¹⁰*n.* 1En. 10(c).
- Apocalyptic, a Party at one time among Rabbis favourable to, 4Ez. 14*n.* See Pharisaism, Reveal, Revelations.
- Apocalypists, begin survey with creation, 4Ez. 3⁴*n.*; calculations of, 4³⁶⁻³⁷; imply predestination, 4³⁶⁻³⁷*n.*
- Apocryph. See Jannes and Jambres.
- Apocrypha, original connotation of, a secret revelation, Jub. 1²⁶*n.* 4Ez. 12³⁷*n.* 14⁵, cf. 1En. 107³.
- Apollonius, 'a chief collector of tribute' (= son of Menestheus?), 1Macc. 1²⁹*n.* 3^{10,12}; killed, 3¹².
- Apollonius, general of Demetrius II, 1Macc. 10^{69,74,75,77,79}.
- Apollonius of Tarsus, 2Macc. 3^{5,7}; governor of Syria, 4Macc. 4^{2,4,8,10,11,13,14}.
- Apollonius, son of Gennaeus, 2Macc. 12².
- Apollonius, son of Menestheus, 2Macc. 4^{4,21}; Mysian commander, 5²⁴; massacres Jews, 5²⁴.
- Apollophanes, 2Macc. 10³⁷.
- Apostasy, 1Macc. 1⁵² 2¹⁵ 7²⁴ 9⁵⁸ Wisd. 2¹² 1En. 91⁷ Zad. 8² 9³⁶.
- Apostate deeds, 1En. 93⁹; generation, 9³⁹; nation, Sir. 16⁶.
- Apostates, 3Macc. 2³¹ 3²³ 7¹⁰ Azar. 9, 2Bar. 41³*n.*
- Apostolical Constitutions, Sir. § 8; contain P. Man., P. Man. § 3.
- Apparitions, 2Macc. § 3, 3²⁴*sq.* 5²*sq.* 11⁸ 15¹¹*sq.*
- Appearances often deceitful, Sir. 20⁹⁻¹⁷.
- Appendices to Testament of Twelve Patriarchs. See Levi, Naphtali.
- Appendix to Sirach, Sir. 51¹⁻³⁰; a Prayer, 51¹⁻¹²; a Poem, 51¹³⁻³⁰; a Thanksgiving, 51¹² i-xvi.
- Appetites, 4Macc. 1³⁵ 3².
- Apples of Sodom, Wisd. 10⁷.
- Aquarius, Sib. 5⁵²⁷.
- Aquilo, A. & E. 32².
- Ara, city (of Chaldees), Jub. 11³. See Ur.
- Arabia, 1Macc. 11¹⁶ Judith 2²⁵ Arist. 119.
- Arabian Nights, Ah. § 1.
- Arabian(s), 1Macc. 5³⁹ 11^{17,39} 12³¹ Sib. 3⁵¹⁷.
- Arabs, Jub. 20¹³; defeat of, 2Macc. 12¹⁰⁻¹².
- Aradus, 1Macc. 15²³.
- Arakiba, 1En. 6⁷.
- Aram, Jub. 7¹⁸ 9⁵ 34²⁰ 37^{6,9} 41¹.
- Aramaean, Jub. 38³.
- Aramaic original of 1En. 6-36, 1En. §§ 1, 9.
- Aramaic version of Tobit, Tob. § 4a.
- Araquel, 1En. 8³.
- Arara, land of, Jub. 9⁵.
- Ararat, Tob. 1²¹ Jub. 5²⁸ 7¹ 8²¹ 10^{15,19}.
- Aravat, 2En. 20³.
- Aravoth, the tenth (? seventh) heaven, 2En. 22¹*n.*
- Arbatta, place, 1Macc. 5²³.
- Arbela, 1Macc. 9². See also Rabael, Robel.
- Arbelite, P.A. 16⁷. See Nittai.
- Arbonai, river, Judith 2²⁴.
- Archangel, A. & E. 25² Apoc. Mos. 3² 22¹ 38¹.
- Archangels, 1En. 20, 40, 2En. 19³ 20¹ 21³ 22¹¹; as intercessors on behalf of mankind, T.L. 3^{5(a)}n. See Angels, Intercession, Mediation.
- Archas, 2En. 26^{1,2} (A. 'Aruchas' B).
- Ard, Jub. 44²⁵.
- Ardat, field of, 4Ez. 9²⁶⁻²⁸*n.* 12⁴⁹⁻⁵¹*n.* 13⁵⁷*n.* 14³⁷*n.*
- Areios, King of Sparta, 1Macc. 12⁷*n.* 20.
- Areli, Jub. 44²⁰.
- Ares, 1Esd. 5¹⁰.
- Ares, Sib. 3⁴³⁷ 5³³⁴; the planet, 2En. 30³.
- †Aresa, Jub. 34^{4,7} (= Asser, Tob. 1²) (= Hazor, 1Macc. 11⁶⁷).
- Aretan, T.Jud. 5¹.
- Aretas, Arabian prince, 2Macc. 5⁸.
- Ariarathes, king of Cappadocia, 1Macc. 15²².
- Aries, Sib. 5⁵²¹.
- Arioch, king of Elymaeans, plain of, Judith 1⁶.
- Arioch, king of Sellasar, Jub. 13²².
- Aristeas, Arist. 19, 40, 43.
- Aristeas, Letter of, author, a Jew of Alexandria with Pharisaic tendencies, § 4; character, § 1; contents and purpose, § 2; date, § 3; editions, § 8; influence on later literature, § 9; MSS., § 7; relation of 3Macc. to, 3Macc. § 4; sources, Arist. § 5; theology and ethical teaching, § 6.
- Aristobulus I, 1En. 38⁶*n.* 100²*n.*
- Aristobulus II, Ps. Sol. § 6. See Alexander.
- Aristobulus, King Ptolemy's teacher, 2Macc. 1¹⁰.
- Ariukh. See Orioch.
- Ark, the, in the Deluge, 4Macc. 15³¹ Wisd. 14⁵.
- Ark, the, of covenant, preserved and hidden by Jeremiah, 2Macc. 2⁵, see 2Bar. 67*n.*; spoiled, 4Ez. 10²²*n.*
- Armaros, 1En. 67 83 69².
- Armen, 1En. 69²
- Armenia, Sib. 4¹¹⁴.
- Armies ordained for day of judgement, T.L. 3³.
- Arodi, Jub. 44²⁰.
- Arom, 1Esd. 5¹⁶.
- Arpachshad, Jub. 7¹⁸ 8¹ 9^{4,13} 10³⁵.
- Araphad, Judith § 6, 12^{5,13,15}. See Arpachshad.
- Aisaces, king of Persia, 1Macc. 14²*n.* 3 15²².
- Arsamos, Arist. 49.
- Arsamos, Arist. 50.
- Arsinoe, 3Macc. 1¹⁴.
- Arsinoe, wife of Ptolemy Philadelphus, Arist. 41.
- Arsiphurith, 1Esd. 5¹⁶.
- Artaqifa, 1En. 69².
- Artaxerxes, 1Esd. 2^{16,17,30} 7⁴ 8^{1,5,8,9,19,28}; decree of, § 1 88-24.
- Artaxerxes Ochus, Judith § 1.
- Artaxerxes = Xerxes I, Add. Esth. A^{1,13} B¹ E¹; letter of, directing destruction of Jews, B¹⁻⁷; decree of, revoking previous edict, E¹⁻²⁴.
- Artemis, Sib. 5²⁹³.
- Artisan inferior to Scribe, Sir. 38²⁴⁻³⁰. See Craftsman.
- Aruchas. See Archas.
- Arzareth, 4Ez. 13⁴⁵*n.*
- Asadias, 1Bar. 1¹.
- Asael, 1En. 6⁷.
- Asam, Jub. 38^{18,19}.
- Asana, 1Esd. 5³¹.
- Asaph, sons of, 1Esd. 1¹⁵ 5^{27,59}.
- Asara, 1Esd. 5³¹.
- Asbasareth, i.e. Esarhaddon, 1Esd. 5⁶⁹.
- Asbeal, 1En. 69⁵.
- Ascalon, Judith 2²⁸. See Askalon.
- Ascension, Tob. 12²⁰*sq.*; of Baruch, 2Bar. 46⁷; of Isaiah, see Isaiah, Martyrdom of; of

INDEX

- Raphael, compared with Christ's, Tob. 12⁶⁻²²ⁿ.
- Asceticism, as preparation for visions, Mart. Is. 2¹¹ⁿ. 4Ez. 5¹⁴⁻¹⁹. See Chastity, Eating herbs, Fasting.
- Aseas, 1Esd. 9³².
- Asebebias, 1Esd. 8⁴⁷.
- Asebias, 1Esd. 8⁴⁸.
- Asenath, Jub. 34²⁰ 44²⁴ T.Jos. 20^{3(a)}.
- Aser. See Arcsa.
- Asfael, 1En. 82⁵⁰.
- Ashbel, Jub. 44²⁵.
- Asher, Jub. 28²¹ 33²² 34²⁰ 38⁶ 44^{19,20} T.R. 1⁴ T.Jud. 25² T.A. 1^{1,2}.
- Ashdod, Arist. 117. See Azotus.
- Ashtaroth, Zad. 7⁵.
- Ashtaroth, city, Jub. 29¹⁰.
- Asia, 1Macc. 8⁶ 11¹³ⁿ. 12³⁹ 13³¹ 2Macc. 3⁸ Sib. 3^{163,342,350,351,353,384,367,381,388,391,450,599,611} 4^{1,71,76,79,146,148} 5^{99,118,287,292,443,449,461,465} 4Macc. 3²⁰.
- Asibias, 1Esd. 9²⁶.
- Asiel, Tob. 1¹.
- Asipha, 1Esd. 5²⁹.
- Asitho. See Asteho.
- Askalon, 1Macc. 10⁸⁶ 11⁶⁰ 12³³ Judith 2²⁸ Arist. 115.
- Asmodeus, Tob. 3^{8,17}.
- Asmonean, 1Macc. 2¹ⁿ.
- Asom, 1Esd. 9³⁸.
- Asonja, 1En. 78².
- Asores = Assyrians, Ah. 4² (Arm.).
- Asorestan = Assyria, Ah. 4¹² &c. (Arm.).
- Asphar, pool, 1Macc. 9³³.
- Aspharasus, 1Esd. 5⁸.
- Aspis, mountain, i. c. Sirion or Hermon, T.L. 6¹ⁿ.
- Ass, wild = Ishmael, 1En. 89¹¹.
- Assamias, 1Esd. 8⁶⁴.
- Assaphioth, 1Esd. 5³³.
- Assaracus, Sib. 5⁸.
- Assemblies of Jacob, Sir. 24²³.
- Assembly, the, Sir. 1³⁰ 4⁷ 7⁷ 15⁵ 21¹⁷ 23²⁴ 41¹⁸ 42¹¹ Zad. 9^{29(B)}; of the elders, Sir. 6³⁴ 7¹⁴; in the gate, Sir. 7⁷ 42¹¹; of the Most High, 24²; of the people, . . . of Israel, Ps.Sol. 10^{7,8} 17⁴⁸; of the wicked, Sir. 16⁶ 21⁹; precedence in, Sir. 38³³.
- Asser = Hazor, Tob. 1². See Aresa.
- Asses, = a species of giants, 1En. 86⁴; wild = Midianites, 1En. 89^{11,13,16}.
- Asshur, Judith 2¹⁴ 5¹ 7^{17,20,21} 8¹³ 13¹⁵ 14^{2,3,12,19} 15⁶ Jub. 7¹⁸ 9^{3,6} 10^{26,35}; land of, 82¹ 9³; mountains of, 82¹ 9^{5,6}.
- †Asshur, Jub. 13¹.
- Associate = haber, P.A. 1⁶ⁿ. 4^{15,23}. See Friend.
- Associating, danger of, with rich, Sir. 13²⁻⁸; with rulers, 13⁹⁻¹³; with one's opposites, 13¹⁵⁻²⁰; with women, see Women.
- Associating with wise, Sir. 9¹⁴; with ungodly, 8¹⁴⁻¹⁹ 11⁹ 12¹³ 13¹⁷.
- Assumption of Moses, 2Macc. § 6; relation to 2Bar., Ass. Mos. 3¹⁰⁻¹³ⁿ. See Moses, Assumption of.
- Assyria, Tob. 1¹⁰ 14^{4,15} Sir. 48²¹ Jub. 46⁶ Mart. Is. 3²; in Ahiqar passim, usually as 'Assyria and Nineveh', cf. Tobit.
- Assyrian, Sib. 3^{160,303,809}.
- Assyrian court, 4Macc. 13⁹.
- Assyrians, 1Esd. 5⁶⁹ 3Macc. 6⁵ Tob. 1^{2,3} 14⁴ Judith 1^{1,7,11} 2^{1,4} 4¹ 8⁹ 10¹¹ 1En. 89^{55,66} T.N. 5⁸ Sib. 3^{207,268} 4⁴⁹ 5³³⁶ 4Ez. 13⁴⁰; = tigers in 1En. 89^{55,66}.
- Astad, 1Esd. 5¹³.
- Astath, 1Esd. 8³⁸.
- Asteho, T.Jos. 7⁵.
- Astrology, Sib. 3²²⁷⁻²²⁸ 4Macc. 14³ⁿ.
- Astronomy, Wisd. 7¹⁸ P.A. 3²³.
- Astyages, Bel 1.
- Astypalaea, Sib. 3³⁴⁵.
- Asur, 1Esd. 5³¹.
- Asudi, Jub. 44²⁸.
- Atar, 1Esd. 5²⁸.
- Atel, Jub. 8²².
- Ater, 1Esd. 5¹⁵.
- Atergatis, temple of, 2Macc. 12²⁶.
- Ateta, 1Esd. 5²⁸.
- Athanasius, Sir. § 8.
- Athenagoras, 1En. § 10(c).
- Athenian, 2Macc. 6^{18,24}.
- Athenobius, 1Macc. 15^{28,32}.
- Athens, Jews to be equal to citizens of, 2Macc. 9¹⁵.
- Athletic contest, the martyrdom of the seven brothers compared to, 4Macc. § 7.
- Athur = Assyria, Ah. passim (Syr.). See Nineveh.
- Atipha, 1Esd. 5³².
- Atonement, Sir. 3³ⁿ. 5⁵ⁿ; almsgiving atones for sin, 3³⁰ⁿ; by fasting, for sins of ignorance, Ps. Sol. 3⁹; false doctrine of, warning against, Sir. 7⁸⁻¹⁰; to man, 20²⁸ (gifts do not atone to God, they do to man); impossible for unforgiving, 28⁵; made by martyrs, 4Macc. 6²⁸ 9²⁴ 12¹⁸ 17^{20sq.}; man makes by honouring his father, Sir. 3^{3,14}; no, Jub. 33¹⁷; through suffering, sickness, and death, Sir. 18²⁰ⁿ.
- Atonement, Day of, Jub. 5¹⁷⁻¹⁸; instituted on tidings of Joseph's loss, Jub. 34^{18,19}.
- Attalus, king of Pergamos, 1Macc. 15²²ⁿ.
- Attharates, i.e. the Tirshatha, 1Esd. 9⁴⁹.
- Attharias, i.e. the Tirshatha, 1Esd. 5⁴⁰. See Attharates.
- Attus, 1Esd. 8²⁹.
- Auaran. See Eleazar.
- Augia, 1Esd. 5³⁸.
- Augustine, Sir. § 8.
- Aulis, Sib. 3⁴⁸⁸.
- Auranus, 2Macc. 4⁴⁰ⁿ.
- Ausonians, Sib. 5²⁷.
- Auteas, 1Esd. 9⁴⁸.
- Avaran. See Elcazar.
- Avith, city, Jub. 38¹⁹.
- Awan, Jub. 4^{1,9}.
- Axis, Sib. 5²⁰⁷.
- Azael, 1Esd. 9¹⁴.
- Azaelus, 1Esd. 9³⁴.
- Azai, ben, P.A. 4^{2,3}.
- Azaraias, 1Esd. 8¹.
- Azariah, Prayer of, and Song of Three Children: account, § 1; bibliography, § 9; composition, § 6; date, § 6; influence on later literature, § 7; MSS., § 3; original language, Hebrew, § 5; theology, § 8; title, § 2; versions, § 4.
- Azariah, the writer of Prayer of Azariah, Azar. § 6.
- Azariah, Azar. 2, 26, 66. See Hananiah.
- Azarias, 1Esd. 9⁴⁸.
- Azarias, 1Esd. 9⁴³.
- Azarias, a Maccabean leader, 1Macc. 5^{18,56,60}.
- Azarias, Tob. 5¹³ 6^{7,14} 7^{1,10} 9².
- Azarias = Azariah, 4Macc. 13⁹ 16²¹ 18¹². See Children, Three.
- Azaru, 1Esd. 5¹⁵.
- Azazel, 1En. 6⁶ⁿ. 8^{1,2} 8³ (G.) 9⁶ 10^{4,8} 13¹ 54⁵ 55⁴ 69² 86¹ⁿ. 88¹ⁿ; all sin ascribed to, 10⁸; bound in desert of Dudael, 10⁴; hosts of, judged, 54⁵ 55⁴.
- †Azazel, 1En. 69².
- Azetas, 1Esd. 5¹⁴.
- Azotus, city, 1Macc. 4¹⁶ 5⁶⁸ 10^{77,78,83,84} 11⁴ 14³⁴ 16¹⁰ Judith 2²⁸; burned by Jonathan, 1Macc. 10⁸⁴. See Ashdod.
- †Azotus, mount, 1Macc. 9¹⁵.
- Azrial, Jub. 4²⁷.
- Azuchan. See Uchan.
- Azura, Jub. 4^{8,11}.
- Azurad, Jub. 8⁷.
- Baal, Mart. Is. 2¹².
- Baalsamus, 1Esd. 9⁴³.
- Baana, 1Esd. 5⁸.
- Babel, Wisd. 10⁵; Jub. 82¹ 10²⁵; confusion of tongues at, Jub. 10¹⁸⁻²⁷; builders of, in second heaven, 3Bar. 3⁵⁻⁸. See Overthrow.
- Babi, 1Esd. 8³⁷.
- Babylon, 1Esd. 140,41,45,54,56 215 44,57,61 57 615,16,17,21,23,26 83,6,28 ; 1Macc. 6⁴; Tob. 14⁴; 1Bar. 12^{4,9,11,12} 22^{2,4}; Ep. Jer. 1, 2, 3, 4; Sus. 1, 5; Bel 2, 23, 28, 34, 35, 36; Add. Esth. A³: Jub. 10²⁶ 20¹²; Sib. 3^{104,160,301,303,307,384,809} 4⁹³ 5^{6,23,143,159,434}; 2Bar. 8⁵ 10² 77^{12,17,19} 79¹; 4Ez. 3^{1,2,31}; Zad. 1⁵; captivity of Jews in, for seventy generations, Ep. Jer. § 2; idolatry of, Ep. Jer. § 1; name of, intruded into text of Susanna, Sus. § 6; = Rome, Sib. 5¹⁴³ⁿ. 2Bar. 11¹.
- Babylonia, 1Esd. 4⁵³ 6¹⁸ 8¹³ 2Macc. 8²⁰ 3Macc. 6⁶.
- Babylonian Sibyl, Sib. 3¹⁶²⁻²⁹⁴ⁿ.
- Babylonians, Ep. Jer. 1, 2 Bel 3, 23; = lions in 1En. 89⁵⁵⁻⁶⁶.
- Bacchides, 1Macc. 7^{8,12,19,20} 9^{1,12,14,25,26,29,32,34,43,47,49,57,58,63,68} 10¹² 2Macc. 8³⁰; and Alcimus sent against Jews, 1Macc. 7⁸⁻²⁰.
- Bacchurus, 1Esd. 9²⁴.
- Bacchus, worship of, 3Macc. 2²⁹ⁿ.
- Bactra, Sib. 4⁹⁵.
- Baeon, children of, 1Macc. 5⁴ⁿ.
- Baelunan, Jub. 38^{22,23}.
- Bag-Bag, ben, P.A. 5²⁵.
- Bago, 1Esd. 8⁴⁰.
- Bagoas, Judith 12^{11,13,15} 13^{1,3} 14¹⁴ Add. Esth. A¹⁷ⁿ.
- Bagoi, 1Esd. 5¹⁴.
- Baiterus, 1Esd. 5¹⁷.
- Balaam, P.A. 5^{9,22}.
- Balak, son of Beor, Jub. 38^{16,17}.
- Balamon, Judith 8³.
- Balchira, Mart. Is. 5^{2,3,5,8,12}. See Belchira.
- Baliayn, one of the king's sons who question Ahiqar, Ah. 2¹⁰¹ (Arm.). See Houday.
- Balnuus, 1Esd. 9³¹.
- Baltasar, king of Babylon, son of Nebuchadnezzar, 1Bar. § 4 11ⁿ. 12.
- Ban, Zad. 10¹. See Devote.
- Ban, 1Esd. 5³⁷.
- Banaias, son of Nooma, 1Esd. 9³⁵.
- Baneas, an elder, Arist. 50.
- Bani, 1Esd. 5¹³.
- Banias, 1Esd. 8³⁶.
- Bannas, 1Esd. 5²⁶.
- Banneas, 1Esd. 9²⁶.
- Bannus, 1Esd. 9³⁴.
- Banquet. See Messianic.
- Banquet, behaviour at, Sir. 32 (35)¹⁻¹³; hall, P.A. 4²¹; master, rules for, Sir. 32¹⁻³; symbol of world to come, P.A. 3²⁰.
- Bar Cocheba, revolt of, 1Bar. § 9 ii.
- Barad, Jub. 38¹⁹.
- Baraka, Jub. 4¹⁶.
- Barakiel, Jub. 4¹⁵.
- Barakiil, Jub. 4²⁶.
- Baraqel, 1En. 6⁹.
- Baraqijal, 1En. 6⁷ 8³.
- Barca, Sib. 5¹⁸⁷.
- Barchus, 1Esd. 5³².
- Baris, Sib. 4⁹⁹.
- Barnabas, Epistle of, relation of to 2Enoch, 2En. § 4.
- Barodis, 1Esd. 5³⁴.
- Barrenness, Wisd. 3¹³.
- Barbaba, T. Jud. 8².
- Bartacus, 1Esd. 4²⁹.
- Baruch, 1Bar. 1^{1,3} 2Bar. passim 3Bar. Prolog. 1² 1^{1,7} 4^{1,9,16} 5¹ 7^{2,6} 8⁴ 9^{2,6} 10⁵ Zad. 9²⁸, see Pseudepigrapha; to be preserved till consummation, 2Bar. 13³ 25¹ 76²; to die natural death, 44² 78⁵ 84¹; various books of, 2Bar. § 2; relation of 2Baruch to 3Bar., 3Bar. § 4; of Rest of Words of Baruch (= 4Bar.), 3Bar. §§ 4, 8.
- Baruch, 1 Book of, account, § 1; author, § 7; bibliography, § 12; composite character, § 3; contents, § 2; critical investigation, § 4; date, § 7; documents—A & B, Hebrew original, § 5; C. Greek original (Hebrew, Gen. Ed.), § 6; their redaction, § 8; influence on Christian and Jewish literature, § 10; MSS., § 9; theology, § 11; versions, § 9.
- Baruch, 2 Book of, account, short, § 1; bibliography, § 12; books of Baruch, various, § 2; different elements in 2Bar., § 7; lost epistle to two and a half tribes, § 8; MSS., Syriac, § 3; relation to 4Ezra, § 9; to N.T., § 11; theology, § 10; Version, Syriac, date of, § 4; translated from Greek, Greek, from Hebrew, §§ 5, 6.
- Baruch, 3 Book of, account, short, § 1; author, § 7; bibliography, § 11; composite nature

INDEX

- of text, § 6; Christian redactor, § 8; date, § 9; MSS., § 3; relation to other Baruch literature, § 4; to other apocalyptic literature, § 5; theology, § 10; title, § 2.
- Basaloth, 1Esd. 5³².
- Bascama, place, 1Macc. 13²³.
- Baseas, Arist. 47.
- Bashan, Sir. 47³ Jub. 8²¹.
- Bassah, 1Esd. 5¹⁶.
- Basthai, 1Esd. 5³¹.
- Batarel, 1En. 6⁷.
- Bath-qôl, the, 2Bar. 22¹ⁿ. P.A. 6²; to John Hyrcanus, T.L. 18⁶ T.Jud. 24².
- Bathing, law of, Zad. 12^{1,2}.
- Bathshua, T.Jud. 8^{2(β)} 10^{6(β)} 13^{3(β)} 16^{4(β)} 17^{1(β)}. See Betasuel.
- Bealoth, Jub. 13¹⁰.
- Beasts, wild = Gentiles, 1En. 85-90ⁿ.
- Beautiful, three things, Sir. 25¹; wisdom of aged, 25³⁻⁶.
- Beauty, God the author of, Wisd. 13³.
- Bebai, 1Esd. 8³⁷.
- Bebai, sons of, 1Esd. 5¹³ 9²⁰.
- Bebai, city, Judith 15⁴.
- Becher, Jub. 44²⁵.
- Bectileth, Judith 2²¹.
- Bedsuel, Jub. 41⁷. See Betasuel.
- Beelesath, T.Jud. 3⁷.
- Beelsarus, 1Esd. 5⁸.
- Beeltethmus, a Samaritan, 1Esd. 2^{16,25}.
- Beersheba, Jub. 17⁹ 18¹⁷ 22². See Well of the Oath.
- Beggar, his life no life, Sir. 40²⁸⁻³⁰.
- Beginning, the, meaning of in Sirach, Sir. 14¹ⁿ.
- Behaviour. See Banquet, Table.
- Behemoth and Leviathan, 1En. 60^{7,8,24} 2Bar. 29⁴ⁿ. 4Ez. 6^{49,51}; reserved for Messianic banquet, 4Ez. 6⁵².
- Bel, Ep. Jer. 41 Bel 3-4, 6, 8-11, 14, 18, 21, 22, 28; the Assyrian god, Ah. 6¹⁶ (Syr.) Ah. 6^{16,23} (Arab.). See Belshim.
- Bel and the Dragon, account, short, § 1; author, § 5; contents, § 2; date, § 5; integrity, § 6; MSS., § 3; original language, § 4; place of origin Alexandria, § 5; theology, § 7; title, § 1; versions, § 3.
- Bela, Jub. 44²⁵.
- Belachira, Mart. Is. 2⁵.
- Belchira, Mart. Is. 2¹²ⁿ. 3^{1,6,12} 5⁴. See Balchira.
- Belemus, a Samaritan, 1Esd. 2¹⁶.
- Belial, destruction through hand of, Zad. 9¹²; let loose against Israel, 6⁹; three nets of, 6¹⁰; raised Jochanneh (against Moses), 7¹⁹; spirits of, man ruled by, 14⁶. See Beliar.
- Beliar, Jub. 12⁰ 15³³ Mart. Is. 1^{8,9} 2⁴ 3¹¹ T.R. 2^{2(β)} 4^{7,11} 6³ T.S. 5³ T.L. 3³ 18¹² 19¹ T. Jud. 25³ T. Iss. 6¹ 7⁷ T.Z. 9⁸ (bdg) T.D. 1⁷ 4⁷ 5^{1,10,11} T.N. 2⁶ 3¹ T.A. 1⁸ 3^{2,6} T. Jos. 7⁴ 20² T.B. 3^{3,4,8} 6^{1,7} 7^{1,2} Sib. 3^{63,73}, see Belial; angel of lawlessness, ruler of this world, Mart. Is. 2⁴; chief of evil spirits, Mart. Is. 1⁸; coming and destruction of, Sib. § 6 3⁶³⁻⁹² (? = Antichrist, ? Simon Magus) 3^{63n,67n}; has no power over the pure, T.R. 4¹¹; men to be delivered from, T.Z. 9^{8(bdg)}, cf. T.D. 5^{10,11}; to be bound by Messiah, T.L. 18¹²; to be cast into the fire, T. Jud. 25³; sons of, Jub. 15³³; spirit(s) of, T.L. 3³ T. Jud. 25³ T. Iss. 7⁷ T.D. 1⁷; spirit of, rules, accuses, ensnares, Jub. 1²⁰; will of, T.N. 3¹; works of, T.L. 19¹ T.N. 2⁶.
- Beliar, servant of Ahiqar, Ah. 7⁸ (Arm.). See Nebuhal.
- Belmain, Judith 4⁴ 7³.
- Beloved of the Lord, the, Mart. Is. 1^{7n,13}.
- Belshazzar. See Baltasar.
- Belshim, a god appealed to by Ahiqar, Ah. 1⁴⁶ 16¹⁶ (Arm.).
- Belt, the constellation, Sib. 5⁵²².
- Ben Sira, Sir. 51³⁰; his right to give instruction, Sir. 33¹⁶⁻¹⁸ (36^{16a} 35²⁵⁻²⁷); how he acquired Wisdom, 51¹³⁻³⁰.
- Benase, 1En. 78².
- Benedicite, the, Azar. § 1, 35-65.
- Benefactor, title of, Add. Esth. E2¹³ⁿ.
- Benevolence, danger of indiscriminate, Sir. 12¹⁻⁷.
- Benjamin, 1Esd. 2⁸ 5⁶⁶ 9⁵ Add. Esth. A1 Jub. 3^{23,33} 33²² 34^{3,20} 38⁸ 42^{4,9,10,21,23} 43^{2,7,16} 44^{23,25} Mart. Is. 3^{6,11} T. Jud. 25^{1,2} T.B. 1^{1,6} 2^{7(A)} 12^{2(β)} Test. App. I. 3^{9,11,12}; sees Joseph in vision, T.B. 10¹; as a ravaging wolf, T.B. 11¹.
- Benjamite, 2Macc. 3⁴.
- Benuzardan, Nadan's younger brother, Ah. 3⁶ (Arab.).
- Beon, Jub. 29¹⁰ (1Macc. 5^{4,5}). See Baeon.
- Beor, Jub. 38¹⁶.
- Berachel, son of = Jacob, Test. App. I 4⁸.
- Berea, a place, 1Macc. 9⁴.
- Beriah, Jub. 44²¹.
- Berkael, 1En. 82¹⁷.
- Beroea, custom of execution at, 2Macc. 13^{4,5}.
- Beroth, i.e. Beeroth, 1Esd. 5¹⁹.
- Betane, Judith 1⁹.
- Betasuel, wife of Judah, Jub. 34²⁰, cf. Bathshua, Bedsuel.
- Betenos, Jub. 4²⁸.
- Beth ha-Midrash, (Jellinek) book quoted, T. Jud. 3-7 n.
- Bethha-Midrash, i.e. house of instruction, Sir. 51^{23n,29n}. See Yeshibah.
- Bethasmoth, 1Esd. 5¹⁸.
- Bethbasi, 1Macc. 9^{62n,64}.
- Bethdagon, idol's temple at Azotus, 1Macc. 10⁸³ⁿ.
- Bethel, 1Macc. 9⁶⁰ Tob. 2⁶ Jub. 13^{5,15} 27^{19,26} 31^{1,3,30} 32^{1,9} 44² 45⁴ T.L. 7⁴ 9^{2,3} Test. App. II 10.
- Bethoron, 1Macc. 3^{16,24} 7³⁹ 9⁵⁰ Judith 4⁴ Jub. 34⁴; battle at, 1Macc. 3^{16,24}.
- Bethlehem = Ephrath, Jub. 32³⁴ Mart. Is. 2^{7,8,12} 3¹ T.R. 3¹³.
- Bethlomon, 1Esd. 5¹⁷.
- Bethshan, 1Macc. 5⁵²ⁿ. 12⁴⁰; = Scythopolis, Jub. 29¹⁴ⁿ. 2Macc. 12²⁹.
- Bethsura, 1Macc. 4^{29,61} 6^{7,26,31}, 49,60 9⁵² 10¹⁴ 11⁶⁵ 14^{7,33} 2Macc. 13^{19,22}; (or Bethsuron), siege of, 2Macc. 11⁶ⁿ.
- Bethuel, Jub. 19¹⁰ 27^{10,12} Test. App. II 62.
- Bethulia, Judith, § 6 4⁶ⁿ. 6^{10,11} 7^{1,3,6,13,20} 8^{3,11} 10⁶ 11⁹ 12⁷ 13¹⁰ 15^{3,6} 16^{21,23}.
- Bethzacharias, 1Macc. 6³³.
- Betolion, 1Esd. 5²¹.
- Betomesthaim, Judith 4⁶ 15⁴.
- Bezeth, 1Macc. 7¹⁹.
- Bilhab, Jub. 28^{9,17,18,19} 33^{2,3,8,22} 34^{15,16} 44²⁷ T.R. 3^{11,13} T. Jud. 13³ T.N. 1^{6,9,12} T.G. 1⁶ T. Jos. 20^{3(β)} T.B. 1³ Test. App. I. 1¹.
- Biqa, 1En. 69¹³.
- Birthdays, king's, 2Macc. 6⁷.
- Bithynia, Sib. 5¹²⁴.
- Blasphemy, 1En. 91^{7,11} 94⁹ 96⁷ Zad. 7¹² 14⁸.
- Blessed, ten types of men who are, Sir. 25⁷⁻¹¹.
- Blessing, 1En. 10^{16,18} 41⁸ 45^{4,5} 59^{1,2,3} 76^{4,13}.
- Blessing of the Lord, Sir. 50²⁰ⁿ.
- Blind of eye better than blind of heart, Ah. 2⁴⁸ (Syr. A).
- Blindness, Tob. 2¹⁰ 3¹⁷ 5¹⁰ 6⁹ 14².
- Blood, 1En. 9^{1,9} 15⁴ 100¹; of flesh, 15⁴; righteous, 47^{2,4}; sinners, 100³; drink, 15⁴; eating of forbidden, Jub. 67¹¹⁻¹³ 72⁸⁻³³ 11² 1En. 98¹¹ [Zad. 4⁶], to Isaac by Abraham, Jub. 21⁷; shedding of, a sin, Jub. 67-13 72⁸⁻³³ 11² 1En. 9¹ 99⁶ (of Gentiles, Zad. 14⁷); proper use of in sacrifice, Jub. 61^{1,14}.
- Boar, black wild = Esau, 1En. 89¹².
- Boars, wild = Edomites, 1En. 89^{12n,42-49,66}; = Samaritans, 89⁷² 90¹³ⁿ.
- Boccas, 1Esd. 8².
- Body, the, an encumbrance, Wisd. 9¹⁵; no resurrection of in 2Enoch, 2En. § 3 50² 65⁶; to be restored by the earth, 2Bar. 42⁸ⁿ; resurrection of, 2Bar. 49²⁻⁵ 1; resurrection of, not believed in by Alexandrian Jews, 4Macc. § 9. See Resurrection.
- Bones flourish, Sir. 49¹⁰ⁿ.
- Book, deeds written in, P.A. 2¹ 3^{3,20}.
- Book, the = Scriptures, Arist. 316.
- Book, the holy = Scriptures, read by Eleazar before battle, 2Macc. 8²³.
- Book of discipline of children of men, Jub. 36¹⁰; of the Division of the Seasons (= Book of Jubilees), Zad. 20¹; of the †Hagu†, Zad. 11²ⁿ. 15⁵ 17⁵; of the histories of the kings of Judaea, 1Esd. 1³³; of the kings of Israel and Judah, 1Esd. 1³³; of life, 1En. 108³ Jub. 36¹⁰, cf. Books of the living; of the memorial of - life, Test. App. II 59; of remembrance, Zad. 9⁴³; of the seventy shepherds, 1En. 89⁶⁸⁻⁷⁷ 90^{17,20}; of unrighteousness, 81⁴, cf. 98^{7,8} 104⁷; of the words of righteousness, 14¹; of zeal and wrath, disquiet and expulsion, 39¹.
- Book, sealed, 1En. 89^{70,71}. See Books, opened.
- Books, the holy, 1En. 103² 108³. See Tablets, heavenly, and cf. 108⁷.
- Books of deeds of righteous and wicked, opened, 4Ez. 6²⁰ 1En. 47³ⁿ; of Enoch's revelations, to be transmitted to generations of world, 2En. 33^{9,10}, see Apocrypha, Revelations; of fathers, Abraham learns Hebrew from, Jub. 12²⁷; of heathen writers, 1En. 104¹⁰; of Jacob and his fathers given to Levi, Jub. 45¹⁶ⁿ; of the Law, Zad. 9⁶; of the living, 1En. 47³ⁿ, cf. 104¹ and Book of life; of the Prophets, Zad. 9⁷; recording sins, opened, 1En. 90²⁰ 2Bar. 24¹ 4Ez. 6²⁰.
- Borrowing. See Lending.
- Boser, Jub. 38¹⁷.
- Bosor, place, 1Macc. 5^{26,36}.
- Bosora, i.e. Bozrah, 1Macc. 5^{26,28}.
- Botany, Wisd. 7²⁰ Jub. 10¹²⁻¹⁴ 1En. 7¹ 8³.
- Boudan, Nadan's brother in Ah. 3⁵ (Arm.).
- Branding, 3Macc. 2²⁹.
- Brazen serpent, Wisd. 16⁶.
- Bread of dead, Tob. 4¹⁷.
- Breastplate of High Priest, Wisd. 18²⁴.
- Breastplate of understanding, T.L. 8².
- Britains, Sib. 5²⁰⁰.
- Brother = Jew, Tob. § 9.
- Brotherly love, Tob. 4¹³.
- †Bugacan, Add. Esth. A17ⁿ. (read Agagite).
- Builders of the wall (= Pharisees), Zad. 7¹ 9^{21,26}.
- Bull, symbolically used, 1En. 85³⁻⁹ 86³ 89^{1,9-12}; white = Messiah, 90³⁷.
- Bundle of life, Sir. 61⁶ⁿ.
- Burial, 1Macc. 2⁷⁰ 13²⁵ Tob. 1^{17sq.} 4^{3sq.} 6¹⁵ 12^{12sq.} A. & E. 48⁴⁻⁷ Apoc. Mos. 40¹⁻⁴³.
- Burnt-offering alone to be offered on Sabbath, Zad. 13²⁷; to be sent by the clean only, 14¹.
- †Busasejal, 1En. 60².
- Byzantium, Sib. 3⁴³⁷.
- Caeserin, Tob. 11¹.
- Cain, Wisd. 10³ Jub. 4^{1,2,4,7,9,31} A. & E. 21³ 22³⁻⁵ 23^{1,2} Apoc. Mos. 1³ 2² 3^{1,2} 4² 40⁴ 1En. 22⁷ 85³⁻⁵ T.B. 7^{3,5} 4Macc. 18¹¹; death, by a stone, Jub. § 15 4³¹; spiritual death of Cain on Abel's murder, Wisd. 10³ⁿ; vengeance on, sevenfold, T.B. 7^{3,4}.
- Cainan, 1En. 37¹ 2En. 33¹⁰.
- Calamolalus, 1Esd. 5²².
- Caleb, 1Macc. 2⁵⁶ Sir. 46^{7,9} 2Bar. 59¹.
- Calebites, 1Esd. § 5(c)(sr).

Calendar, Jewish, Jub. § 15, 6^{29-30,32} 15¹ notes.
 Calf, golden, Tob. 1⁵.
 Caligula, 4Macc. § 1.
 Calitas, 1Esd. 9⁴⁸. See also Colius.
 Callisthenes, 2Macc. 8³³.
 Camarina, in Greece, Sib. 3⁷³⁶.
 Camarina = Ur, Sib. 3²¹⁸.
 Camels = a class of giants, 1En. 86⁴.
 Camp, Censor of the, Zad. 16^{1,6,8} 17^{8,8} 18²; children of the, Zad. 16⁶; cut off from (see Excommunication), Zad. 9⁴⁹; eat and drink in, on Sabbath, 13⁹; enter into the, 15⁶.
 Campanians, Sib. 3⁴⁷⁵.
 Camps, dwellers of, Zad. 17¹; settle in, 9¹ 16⁹.
 Canaan, 1Macc. 9³⁷ Judith 5^{3,9,10} 1Bar. 3²² Sus. 56 Jub. 7^{10-12,13} 9¹ 10²⁹ 22²¹ 29² 46^{9,11} T.S. 6³ T.L. 12⁵ T.Jud. 10^{2,6} 11³ T.Z. 5⁵ T.Jos. 12² 13^{1,8} 15² T.B. 12^{3(β),4(β)}: daughter(s) of, Jub. 20⁴ 25^{1,4,5} 27^{8,10} 41²; king of, 46^{9,11}; land of, Judith 5^{9,10} Jub. 10³⁴ 12^{15,28} 13¹ 15¹⁰ 29² 34⁴ 39¹ 42^{4,9,13} 43⁴ 44^{4,34} 45¹⁵ 46^{3,6,7,13} 47¹ 49¹⁸ 50⁴ Test. App. II 78; seed of, Sus. 56 Jub. 20⁴ 25⁹ T.S. 6³; son of Ham, 7¹³.
 Canaanite, Judith 5¹⁶ Jub. 34²⁰ Mart. Is. 2⁵.
 Canaanite marriages forbidden, Jub. 20⁴ 25^{1-3,5}.
 Canaanites, 1Esd. 8⁶⁹ Wisd. 12³ Jub. 14^{7,18} 30²⁵ T.L. 7¹ T.Jud. 3¹ 7¹⁰ 11¹. See Amorites.
 Canaanitish war, T.B. 12^{3(β)}.
 Cancer, constellation, Sib. 5⁵²⁴.
 Canon, Hebrew, threefold division implied in Sirach, Sir. Prologue 11.
 Canon, no fixed idea of, in Sirach, Sir. 24³³ⁿ.
 Capharsalama, 1Macc. 7³¹.
 Caphira, i.e. Chephirah, 1Esd. 5¹⁹.
 Caphthorim = Philistines, Jub. 24³⁰.
 Cappadocians, T.S. 6³ Sib. 3⁵¹⁷.
 Capricorn, Sib. 5^{207,518,519}.
 Captain, chief, T.Jos. 2¹ 16^{2(β)}.
 Captivity of Israel due to forsaking God's ordinances, festivals, Sabbaths, holy place, Jub. 1¹⁰. See Israel.
 Carabasion, 1Esd. 9³⁴.
 Carchemish, war at, 1Esd. 12²⁵.
 Cardinal virtues, Wisd. 8⁷.
 Caria, 1Macc. 15²³.
 Carians, Sib. 3^{170,209,472} 4^{90,149} 5²⁸⁸.
 Carmel, Judith, 1⁸.
 Carmi, Jub. 44¹².
 Carnaim, 1Macc. 5^{26,43,44} 2Macc. 12^{21n,26}.
 Carthage, Sib. 3⁴⁸⁴ 4¹⁰⁶.
 Casphor, 1Macc. 5^{26,36}.
 Caspin, siege of, 2Macc. 12¹³⁻¹⁶.
 Catena on Pentateuch, an old, quoted, Ass. Mos. § 21¹.
 Cathua, 1Esd. 5³⁰.
 Cattle, duty to, Sir. 7²².
 Cebren, Sib. 3³⁴³.
 Cedron, valley of, 2Bar. 5⁵ 21¹ 31² See Kedron.

Celtic mountaineer = Trajan, Sib. 5⁴³.
 Celts. See Qelt.
 Cendebaeus, 1Macc. 15^{38,40} 16^{1,4,8}.
 Censor, Zad. 10¹⁰ⁿ, see Camp; duties of, 16¹⁻¹² 17⁶⁻⁸; of the many, 19⁸; to command, 19¹²; to examine, 19¹⁰; to instruct priest in law of leprosy, 15⁷; to receive alms, 18²; to receive accusations, 10¹⁰⁻¹³ 17⁸.
 Chabrias, Arist. 48.
 Chabris, son of Gothoniel, Judith 6¹⁵ 8¹¹ 10⁶.
 Chabu, Arist. 50.
 Chadiasiai, 1Esd. 5²⁰.
 Chaereas, brother of Timotheus, 2Macc. 10^{32,37}.
 Chalcedon, Sib. 3⁴³⁴.
 Chaldaean astrology, Sib. 3²²⁷.
 Chaldaeans, 1Esd. 15² 4⁴⁵ 6¹⁵ Judith 5^{6,7} 1Bar. 1² Ep. Jer. 40 Azar. 25.
 Chaldees, Jub. 9^{4,5} 11^{3,7,9,21} Sib. 3²¹⁸; army of, 2Bar. 8⁴; race of, Sib. 5⁴⁴⁰.
 Chalkydri, 2En. 12¹ⁿ 15¹.
 Chalphi. See Judas, son of.
 Chambers in heaven, Sir. 48¹²ⁿ; of souls of righteous, 4Ez. 4^{35n,7⁹⁵}—in intermediate state, not before birth, 4⁴¹ⁿ, cf. habitations of spirits (or 'winds') 5³⁷ⁿ; of sun and moon, 1En. 4¹⁵; of winds, hail, mist, and clouds, 41⁴; of winds, 60¹²; cf. '†places of rest†' of thunder, 60¹⁴.
 Chanukka, feast of, 2Macc. § 1 § 4 Judith § 8a, 16²⁵ 4Macc. § 8. See Dedication.
 Chanunets, 1Esd. 8⁴⁸.
 Chaos, 1En. 18¹² 20⁵ 21^{1,2} 108³.
 Chaphenatha, 1Macc. 12³⁷.
 Charaathalan, 1Esd. 5³⁶.
 Characters, new = new Hebrew script, square or 'Assyrian characters', 4Ez. 14⁴²ⁿ.
 Charax, 2Macc. 12¹⁷. See Tubieni.
 Charea, 1Esd. 5³².
 Chariot of God, Sir. 49⁸ⁿ.
 Charity. See Alms.
 Charme, 1Esd. 5²⁵.
 Charmis, son of Melchiel, Judith 6¹⁵ 8¹¹ 10⁶.
 Chaseba, 1Esd. 5³¹.
 Chasid policy,—passive resistance, Ass. Mos. 9ⁿ; alliance with Maccabees temporary, 9ⁿ.
 Chasidim, 1Macc. 2⁴²ⁿ. Sir. § 3iii 1En. § 1 Test. §§ 1, 16 Ass. Mos. 9¹ Zad. 17ⁿ; a company of, support Mattathias, 1Macc. 2³⁹⁻⁴⁸ 2⁴²ⁿ; warlike, 3^{43,44} 2Macc. 14⁶; peaceful, 1Macc. 7¹²⁻¹⁴; = saints, 7¹⁷ⁿ; welcome Alcimus, 7¹³; existed as a party before the Maccabean rising, 1En. 90⁶⁻¹⁷ⁿ; symbolized by 'lambs' in 90⁶⁻⁹. See Hasidaeans.
 Chasm of the abyss of the valley, 1En. 56^{3,4}.
 Chasms of the earth levelled up, 1En. 89⁷. See Abyss, Ravine, Valley.
 Chastening for sin, Ps. Sol. 10¹⁻³ 13⁵⁻⁹ 16¹¹; endurance of, Ps.

Sol. 10² 14¹ 16^{13,15}; of Israel, 2Bar. 1⁵, as son, Ps. Sol. 18⁴; of Jewish nation, through martyrs, 2Macc. 7³³⁻³⁸.
 Chastisement, great, 1En. 91^{6,7}; day of, 102⁵; visions of, 13⁸.
 Chastity, T.Jos. 4^{1,2} 6⁷ 9^{2,3} 10^{2,3}; an aid to prayer, 4Ez. 6³²ⁿ.
 Chedorlaomer, king of Elam, Jub. 13²².
 Chelod, son of, Judith 1⁶.
 Chellians, Judith 2²³.
 Chellus, Judith 1⁹.
 Chermion, 2En. 5⁷².
 Cherubim, Sir. 49⁸ⁿ. Azar. 32 Apoc. Mos. 19² 22³ 32² 38³ 1En. 14^{11,18} 20⁷ 61¹⁰ 71⁷ Sib. 3¹ 2En. 12¹ⁿ. 19⁶ 20¹ 21¹ 22² 29^{3(B)}. See Angels, Chalkydri.
 Chian, Sib. 3⁴²².
 Childbirth, Tob. 4⁴.
 Children of the camp, Zad. 16⁶; of the covenant = Jews, Ps. Sol. 17¹⁷; of destitute, 1En. 99⁵; of earth = men, 12⁴ 15³ 86⁶ 105¹; = sinners, 100⁶ 102³; of fornication, 10⁹; of heaven = watchers, 6² 14³; = righteous, 101¹ⁿ; of men, 6^{1,2} 10^{7,21} 12¹ 15^{4,12} 22^{3,5} 39¹ 40⁹ 42² 64² 69⁶⁻¹⁴ Sir. 17³⁰ Judith 8¹² Zad. 9⁵²; of people (= Israel), 10²; of the pit (= uncircumcised), 8¹² 16⁷; of righteousness, 1En. 91³ 93²; unlawfully begotten, Wisd. 4⁶; of uprightness, 1En. 105²; of Watchers, 10⁹⁻¹² 12⁶, cf. 14⁶ Zad. 3⁵; of the world, 9⁵⁴. See Sons.
 Children, curse of sinful, Sir. 16¹⁻⁵ 22³⁻⁶; duty to, 7²³⁻²⁵; elect and holy = watchers, 1En. 39¹; training of, Sir. 30¹⁻¹³. See Daughters.
 Children, Israel will be God's, Jub. 1²⁴. See Father.
 Children, the Three, 1Macc. 2⁵⁹ 3Macc. 6⁸ Azar. 28, 66, 4Macc. 13⁹ 16²¹.
 Chislew, month, 1Macc. 15⁴ 4^{52,59}; month, 2Macc. 1^{9,18} 10⁵.
 Chittim = the islands and coastlands of Greece, 1Macc. 1¹ⁿ. 8⁵. See Kittim.
 Chiun your images (= the books of the Prophets), Zad. 9^{5,7}.
 Choba, Judita 4⁴.
 Chobai, Judith 15^{4,5}.
 Choice of guardian angels and intercessors given to nations, Test. App. I 9¹⁻⁵.
 Choice, moral, 2Bar. 19^{1,2}.
 Choir, martyrs as a, 4Macc. 8⁴ 13⁸ 14⁷.
 Chola, Judith 15⁴.
 Chorbe, 1Esd. 5¹².
 [Christ, A. & E. 42^{2,5}.]
 Christ, or Anointed One, title of Messiah, 1En. § 11 48¹⁰ 52⁴. See Anointed.
 Christian additions to Martyrdom of Isaiah, Mart. Is. 1⁷; to Testaments, Test. § 13; doctrine of Return of Christ to judge the world, denied in, 4Ez. 5⁵⁶⁻⁶⁶ⁿ, cf. 7³³⁻⁴⁴; influence in Syriac version of Sirach, Sir. § 5i; interpolations, A. & E. 29^{2,7} 42²⁻⁵; interpolation concerning vine, 3Bar. 4⁹⁻¹⁵ 13⁴ 15⁴; redactor of 3Baruch, 3Bar. § 8.

 Chronicles. See Book.
 Chronicles of the Kings, 1Esd. 1⁴².
 Chronology, Jub. 46⁶⁻⁹ T.G. 8⁵ Ass. Mos. 1^{2,3n}. See Seleucid era.
 Chrysostom, Sir. § 8, 4Macc. § 8.
 Chusi, Judith 7¹⁸.
 Cibra, Sib. 5³¹⁷.
 Cilicia, 1Macc. 11¹⁴ 2Macc. 4³⁶ Judith 17¹² 22^{1,25} 4Macc. 4².
 Circe, Sib. 3⁸¹⁴.
 Circumcision, Jub. § 15, 15^{14,26,29} 16¹⁴; by force, 1Macc. 2⁴⁶; enjoined on Abraham's sons, Jub. 20³; forbidden, 1Macc. 1⁴⁸; punished, 1Macc. 1⁶⁰ 2Macc. 6^{10,11} 4Macc. 4²⁵; severer and later rules concerning, Jub. 15¹⁴ⁿ; token of an eternal covenant, 15⁹⁻¹¹. See—Uncircumcision.
 Cisterns at Jerusalem, Arist. 89.
 Citadel at Jerusalem, Arist. 100n. 100-104.
 Cities of the plain, Wisd. 10⁶.
 Citizenship, offered to Jews, 3Macc. 2³⁰ 3²¹. See Alexandria, Antioch, Athens.
 City = Jerusalem, 4Ez. 3^{24,25} 10⁴⁶ = New Jerusalem, 8⁵² 10^{27,42}, 44⁵⁴; Holy = Jerusalem, Sir. 24¹¹ 36¹¹ 49⁶ Azar. 5 Ps. Sol. 8⁴ Zad. 9⁴⁶; of the sanctuary, 14⁴.
 Clean, see Heart; and unclean, Zad. 8¹⁴ 15¹; meats, see Forbidden.
 Cleanse Israel, God will, Jub. 1²³.
 Cleaned, from sin, by confession, Ps. Sol. 9¹²; by God's chastening, 10¹ 18⁶; in water, Zad. 12¹; through repentance, 10¹⁶.
 Clement of Alexandria, Sir. § 8.
 Cleopatra, married to Alexander Balas, 1Macc. 10^{57,58}; given to Demetrius II, 11¹².
 Cleopatra, Add. Esth. F¹¹ⁿ.
 Cloud, pillar of, Wisd. 19⁷; with black and white waters, vision of, 2Bar. 53.
 Clouds, angel or spirit of. See Angels.
 Cnidus, 1Macc. 15²³.
 Cock, heavenly, 3Bar. 6¹⁵.
 Cocytus, 1En. 17⁶ⁿ.
 Coelesyria, 1Esd. 2^{17,27,27} 4⁴⁸ 6²⁹ 7¹ 8⁶⁷ 1Macc. 10⁶⁹ⁿ. 2Macc. 3^{5,8} 4⁴ 8⁸ 10¹¹ 3Macc. 3¹⁵. See also Phoenicia.
 Cohabitation, instrument of, Tob. 7¹³.
 Cohortatio ad Graecos, relation of to Aristaeus's Letter, Arist. § 9.
 Cold and heat, angel or spirit of. See Angel.
 Colius, called Calitas, 1Esd. 9²³.
 Colophon, Sib. 3³⁴³.
 Commandment, Sir. 15¹⁵ⁿ.
 Commandments, the two great, Test. § 16.
 Community, of Israel, Zad. 14⁸;

INDEX

- four orders of Zadokite, 17¹⁻⁵.
See Congregation.
- Companions of Messiah. See Messiah.
- Competitors in games, martyrs like, 4Macc. 11²⁰ 15²⁹ 17¹² sq.
- Confess before God, Zad. 9^{50(B)}; to priest, 10⁸.
- Confessio Esdrae, two texts of, 4Ez. 8²⁰⁻⁴⁰ n.
- Confession, brings cleansing from sin, Ps.Sol. 9¹² n.; of exiles in 'Babylon', 1Bar. 1¹⁵⁻³¹⁸; of Israel's sins, Azar. 1-15 Add. Esth. C¹⁷; of sin, Jub. 1²² P.Man. 8-13; and forgiveness, for sick, Sir. 7³⁵ n.; = turning from sins, Sir. 4²⁶ n.
See Repentance.
- Conflict of Adam and Eve. See Adam and Eve.
- Congregation (= Israel or synagogue, P.A. 2^{n.}); the, P.A. 2^{2,5} 4⁷ Zad. 1^{8,17} n. 4⁷ 9^{9,22} 11¹⁻³ 16⁶; come into the, 14⁶; enter the, 9⁹⁰ 17⁷; his (censor's), 16^{3,4}; judges of, 11¹; of the elect and holy, 1En. 6²⁸; of the righteous, 38¹; of the Righteous and Elect One, 53⁶; of men of perfection of holiness, Zad. 9³⁰; of treacherous men, Zad. 1⁸; prince of all the, 9⁹; trumpets of, 14³; the, smitten by the fiery angel, 4Macc. 7¹¹. See Community.
- Conscience, T.R. 4⁹ n. T.Jud. 20⁵; = the higher self, Wisd. 17¹¹ n.
- Consciousness, man's, of his perishing nature, contrasted with brutes' ignorance, 4Ez. 7⁶²⁻⁷²; man's, of law, condemns him, 7⁷²; of right and wrong in all men, 2Bar. 48⁴⁰ n.
- Consummation, 1En. 10¹² 16¹, see Day and cf. 19¹ Zad. 6^{6,7}; = final judgement, 2Bar. 30³ n. 7⁶², see End; = time of kingdom, Ass. Mos. 1¹⁸ 2Bar. 27¹⁵ 29⁸; of the age, 2Bar. 69⁴ 83⁷; of all things, 83²²; of God's judgement, 82²; of the times, T.R. 6⁸ n.
- Contentment, advantage of, Sir. 29²¹⁻²³.
- Corinth, Sib. 3⁴⁸⁷ 4¹⁰⁵ 5²¹⁴.
- Corruption, the present world the sphere of, 2Bar. 21¹⁹ n. 40³.
- Cos, 1Macc. 15²³.
- Council of nation, later developed into Sanhedrin, 1Macc. 12⁶ n.; of the pious, Ps. Sol. 4¹. See Synagogues.
- Counsellor, God needs no, Sir. 42²¹ 2En. 30⁴.
- Counsellors, true and false, Sir. 37⁷⁻¹⁵.
- Counterparts, all things have, T.A. 5^{1,2}.
- Covenant, Ps. Sol. 9¹⁸; children of = Jews, Ps. Sol. 17¹⁷; eternal, Ps. Sol. 10⁵; the holy, repudiated, 1Macc. 1¹⁵; in Zad.—1^{4,12,15} 2¹ 4⁹ 6⁶ 7¹² 8^{3,21}; and mercy, 82^{1(B)}; of the forefathers, 1⁴ 9²⁶. cf. 6⁶; of God, 4¹⁰ 7¹² 8²¹ 9⁴¹ 16^{7,12}, cf. God established with the forefathers, 6⁶; God remembered,

- 8³; of Israel, 5¹, cf. that Moses established with Israel, 19^{8,13}; of repentance, 9¹⁵ (B); curses of, 1¹² 19^{1,4}; oath of, 19^{6,8}; ordinances of, 11², see Ordinances; members of, for ever, 4³; rules for, § 10 iv.; statutes of, 7¹² 9⁵¹; vengeance of, 1¹² 9¹¹; enter into, 2¹ 4⁹ 8¹¹ 9^{12,15} (B) 9^{28,49} 10² 16⁷ 19⁶; reject, 9³⁷; stand fast, 8²¹ 16¹²; transgress, 1¹⁵ 20⁸; new, drawn up in the land of Damascus, §§ 1, 8, 10, 8¹⁵ 9^{28,37}; those who were faithless to, to be destroyed by Messiah, 9¹⁰⁻²⁰; to be judged, 9²⁶⁻²⁷; excommunicated, 9²⁸⁻³⁹. See Faithful.
- Craftiness, how different from wisdom, Sir. 19²⁰⁻³⁰.
- Craftsman, indispensable but not fit for highest office, Sir. 38³¹⁻³⁴. See Artisan.
- Crates, viceroy of Cyprus, 2Macc. 4²⁹.
- Created, definite number of the, 2Bar. 23⁴⁻⁵ n.
- Creation, P.A. 5¹ 6¹² Zad. 7² 16¹; all corrupted, Jub. 5²⁻³; apocalypstics begin survey with, 4Ez. 3⁴ n.; ex nihilo, 2Bar. 21⁴ n.; fashioned anew at Exodus, Wisd. 19⁶; God and Wisdom in, Wisd. § 9; hymn in praise of, Sir. 39¹²⁻³⁵; new (when heavens and earth renewed), Jub. 1²⁹ 1En. 4^{5,4,5} n. 5^{14,5} 7²¹ 9^{15,16} 2Bar. 32⁶ n. 44¹² 57² 4Ez. 5⁴⁵ 7⁷⁵; out of (pre-existing) matter, Wisd. 11¹⁷; teaching of 2Enoch on, 2En. § 6; transformed, 2Bar. 32⁶ 51 52, see Transformation; twenty-two acts of, Jub. 2¹⁻¹⁶; wisdom as seen in, Sir. 16²⁴⁻³⁰, cf. 42¹⁵⁻⁴³ ²⁵; works of, 4Ez. 6³⁸⁻⁵⁹. See Nature, Seven Days, World.
- Creatures in heavens, spirits of. See Angels.
- Cretan, Sib. 3¹⁴⁰.
- Crete, 1Macc. 10⁶⁷ Sib. 3⁵⁰⁴ 5⁴⁵⁰.
- Crobuzi, Sib. 3⁴⁷⁴.
- Cronos, Sib. 3^{110,121,127,129,131,148,150,152,157,200,201,383}.
- Croton, Sib. 4⁸².
- Crown, P.A. 1¹³ 4^{7,17} 6⁶; of righteousness, Arist. 280 T.L. 8².
- Crowns of glory, T.B. 4¹.
- Cud, chewing the, symbolizes memory, Arist. 153.
- Cup of Inspiration. See Inspiration.
- Curse, power of a, Sir. 4⁵ n.
- Curses of God's covenant, Zad. 1¹² 19^{1,4}.
- Cush, Jub. 7¹⁵ 9¹ 10³⁰.
- Cutha, 1Esd. 5³².
- Cyagra, Sib. 3³⁴⁴.
- Cyamon, Judith 7³.
- Cycle, metonic, 2En. 16^{5,8} n., cf. 1En. 74¹³.
- Cymaeans, Sib. 5³¹⁴.
- Cyme, Sib. 5³⁰⁸.
- Cyprus, 1Macc. 15²³ 2Macc. 4²⁹ 10¹³ 12² Sib. 3⁴⁵⁷ 4^{129,143} 5^{450,454}.
- Cyrene, 1Macc. 15²³ Sib. 5¹⁹⁸.
- Cyros, Sib. 3⁴⁷⁷.

- Cyrrhus, Sib. 4¹⁴².
- Cyrus, 1Esd. 2^{1,2,3,13,11} 4^{44,57} 5^{55,71,73} 6^{17,18,22,24} 7⁴ Bel 1 1En. 89⁵⁹ n. Sib. 3²⁸⁶; decree of, permitting Temple to be rebuilt, 1Esd. § 1, § 6(a) 2¹⁻⁷.
- Cyzicus, Sib. 3^{436,442} 4⁹⁹.
- Dacians, Sib. 3⁵¹³.
- Dacubi, 1Esd. 5²⁸.
- Daisan, 1Esd. 5³¹.
- Dakis, Arist. 47.
- Dalan, 1Esd. 5³⁷.
- Damascus, Judith 17¹² 22⁷ 15⁵ Zad. §§ 1, 8, 10, see Covenant, Migration, North, Penitents; not permanent headquarters of Zadokites, § 10iii; beyond, Zad. 9⁵; land of, 8^{6,15} 9^{28,37}; the Star came to, 9⁸.
- Dammasek, Jub. 14².
- Dan, Tob. 1⁵ Jub. 28¹⁸ 33²² 34²⁰ 38⁶ 44²⁷⁻²⁹ T.R. 67 T.Jud. 7^{2(β)} 6²⁵ 2⁷ T.Z. 2^{1(α)} 3² 4^{2(α)} 7¹³ T.D. 1² 7³ T.A. 7⁶ Test. App. II 3; and Antichrist, T.D. 5⁶ n.
- Dan, city, Jub. 13²³.
- Dan, land of, 1En. 13⁷; waters of, 13⁷.
- Danaba, Jub. 38¹⁶.
- Danel, Jub. 4²⁰.
- Danel, 1En. 67.
- Daniel, 1Macc. 2⁶⁰ 3Macc. 67 Sus. § 1, § 2, 45, 48, 51, 52, 55, 59, 61, 64 Bel 2, 4, 5, 7, 9-12, 14, 16, 17-19, 21, 22, 24-27, 29, 30, 32, 34, 37-42 4Ez. 12¹¹ 4Macc. 16^{3,21} 18¹³; semi-angelic figure still in time of Alexander Jannaeus, Sus. § 6 Bel. §§ 1, 2; son of Abal, a priest, Bel 2 (LXX).
- Daniel, Arist. 49.
- Daniel, Additions to. See Azariah, Prayer of; Bel and the Dragon; Susanna.
- Danjal, 1En. 69².
- Daphne, sanctuary near Antioch, 2Macc. 4³³.
- Dardanus, sons of, Sib. 3⁵⁰⁹.
- Darius, King, 1Esd. 2³⁰ 3^{1,3,5,7,9} 4⁴⁷ 5^{2,5} 6^{1,6,7,8,23,34} 7^{1,4,5}. See Temple, Zerubbabel, Sources of 1Esdras.
- Darius, Codomannus, king of the Persians and Medes, 1Macc. 1¹.
- Darkening the mind, T.R. 3⁸ T.L. 14⁴ T.D. 2⁴ T.G. 6². See Light.
- Darkness, curse of sinners, as light the blessing of righteous. 1En. 41⁸ n. 10^{4,5} 11^{6,7} 41⁸ 46⁶ 58⁶ 60¹⁹ 62¹⁰ 63^{6,11} 74³ 77³ 80^{4,8} 92⁵ 94⁹ 102⁷ 103⁸ 104⁸ 108^{11,14}.
- Darkness, plague of, Wisd. 17².
- Date in Prologue of Sirach, Sir. § 6ii(b).
- Dathaeus, Arist. 50.
- Dathan and Abiram, Sir. 45¹⁸ 4Macc. 2¹⁷.
- Dathema, a stronghold, 1Macc. 5⁹.
- Daughters, care of, Sir. 42⁹⁻¹⁴, cf. 7²⁴⁻²⁵ 26¹⁰⁻¹².
- David, 1Esd. 1^{3,5,15} 5^{5,60} 8^{29,49} Tob. 1⁴ Sir. 45²⁵ 47^{1,2,22} 48¹⁶ 49⁴ 51^{12v11} 2Bar. 61¹ 4Ez. 2²³ 7¹⁰⁸ (10⁴⁶) 12³² Ps. Sol. 17^{5,8,23}

- 4Macc. 3⁶ sq. 18¹⁵ P.A. 5¹⁹ 6³; = a lamb, raised to being a ram, 1En. 89⁴⁶⁻⁴⁶; books of, 2Macc. 2¹³; city of, made into a citadel (by Apollonius), 1Macc. 1³³ 2³¹ 7³² 13³⁶; deeds of, 1Macc. 2⁵⁷ 4³⁰; glorified, Zad. 7⁷; Psalmist, 4Macc. 18¹⁵; read not in the sealed Book of the Law, Zad. 7⁵; son of = Messiah, Ps.Sol. 17²³; thirst of, 4Macc. 3^{6,7,15}.
- Davidic line, animus against, Zad. § 12, cf. Judah; Messiah, expected in Ps.Sol. § 7, 17²³ n. Sir. § 3iii, 51¹². Contrast Sir. 36, 44-48.
- Day of affliction, 1En. 48^{8,10} 50²; of consummation, 1En. 10¹² 16¹; of cursing and chastisement, 102⁵; of darkness, 94⁹; of death of giants, 16¹; of decision = of judgement, Wisd. 3¹⁸; of destruction, 1En. 16¹ 98¹⁰; of judgement, 22^{4,13} 97³ 100⁴, great, 54⁶; of judgement and consummation, 10¹²; of the great judgement, 10⁶ 19¹ 94⁹ 98¹⁰ 99¹⁵ 104⁵; of great shame, 98¹⁰; of judgement, the great, 22¹¹ 84⁴, see Judgement; of judgement, 4Ez. 7^{38,39,102,104,105,113} 12³⁴, no prayer or atonement on, 4Ez. 7¹⁰⁴⁻¹⁰⁵, souls of righteous guarded in chambers till, see Intermediate state; of slaughter, 1En. 16¹ 94⁹; of unceasing bloodshed, 99⁶; of suffering and tribulation, 45² 63⁸; of tribulation, 1¹ 96²; and pain, 55³; unrighteousness, 97¹; of wrath, Sir. 5⁸.
- De montibus Sina et Sion, cited under 2En. 30¹³.
- Dead, the, Tob. 5¹⁰, see Sacrifice, Sheol; burial of, Tob. § 6 § 8ii § 10B(4); duty to, Sir. 7³³; Fable of the Grateful, Tob. § 8ii; guarded, 2Bar. 23⁴ n. 4Ez. 7^{95,121}, see Chambers; mourning for, Sir. 38¹⁶⁻²³; pollution by, Zad. 14¹⁶; prayers for, 2Macc. 12⁴⁴; respect for, Sir. 87; sacrifices for, 2Macc. 12^{43,45}; sacrifices of the, P.A. 3⁵ n.; sacrifices to, Jub. 22¹⁷ Tob. 4¹⁷ n.; sin offerings for, 2Macc. 12⁴³.
- Death, Tob. 4¹⁰ 12⁹ sq. (see Sheol) 1En. 94^{2,3} 98¹⁶ 102¹⁰ 4Ez. 8⁵³; abolished, for righteous, 2En. 65¹⁰ 4Ez. 8⁵³, see Hades; came through Eve, 2En. 30¹⁸ n.; certain, Sir. 14¹⁷; day of, P.A. 2^{6,14} 3¹ 4²⁹; due to the devil, Wisd. 2²⁴; to sin, 2En. 30¹⁶ n.; to sin or rather to sinful unrighteous knowledge, 1En. 69¹¹; = eternal rest, Sir. 30¹⁷ n.; = long sleep (for the righteous), 1En. 100⁵; physical and spiritual, Wisd. § 9; pronounce no man happy before, Sir. 11²⁸; traced to Adam, 2Bar. 23⁴, see Adam; views on, two, Sir. § 1, 41¹⁻⁴. See End.
- Deborah, Tob. 8⁸.
- Deborah, Jub. 31³⁰ 32³⁰.

INDEX

- Deceit, 1En. 91⁸ 93⁴ 94⁶ 104¹⁰.
See Spirits.
- Dedication, Feast of, 1Macc. 4⁵² sq. 2Macc. 1⁹ n.; instituted, 2Macc. 10¹⁻⁸.
- Deep, the, = subterranean waters, Sir. 1³ n. 16¹⁸; or abyss, God's look dries up, 4Ez. 8²³; mouth of, 1En. 17⁸; see Abyss, Depth; shut up and sealed by Name of God, P. Man. 4.
- Deification of kings, 2Macc. 11²³ Wisd. 14¹⁷.
- Deliberation, clear, 4Macc. 1¹⁵ n.
- Delos, 1Macc. 15²³ Sib. 3³⁶³ 4⁹².
- Deluge, Jub. 5¹⁹⁻³² 1En. 10² 54⁷⁻¹⁰ 65¹ 89³⁻⁵ 91⁵ 106¹⁵ 2Bar. 56¹⁵ 4Macc. 15³¹; foretold to Noah, 1En. 65¹; held in check, 1En. 66².
- Demeter, Sib. 3¹²³.
- Demetrius I, Soter, son of Seleucus, 1Macc. 7^{1,4} 8³¹ 9¹ 10^{2,3,15,22,25,48-50,52} 2Macc. 14^{1,4,5,11,26} Sib. 3³⁸⁸⁻⁴⁰⁰ n.; accession, 1Macc. 7¹⁻²⁰; death, 10⁵⁰ n.; privileges alleged to be granted to Jews by, 1Macc. § 7ii (b) 10²⁵⁻⁴⁵—Jerusalem to be holy and free; feast days to be observed; immunity and release for Jews during feasts; Jews to have own laws; taxation largely remitted; Temple to receive large gifts.
- Demetrius II, Nicator, 1Macc. 10⁶⁷ n. 69 11^{9,12,30,32,38-42,52,55,63} 12^{24,34} 13^{34,35} 14^{1-3,38} 15²² 2Macc. 17; king, 1Macc. 11¹⁹.
- Demetrius of Phalerum, Arist. § 1 9 n., 11, 28, 29, 301, 308, 309, 312, 317.
- Democritus, Greek proverbial philosopher, Ah. § 2; references by, to Ahikar, Ah. § 3a.
- Demon, Tob. 3¹⁷ 6^{8,14} 8³.
- Demonology of 1Enoch, 1En. § 11 (d): fallen watchers, 6 69^{2,3} 86 106^{13,14}; demons proper, 15^{8,9,11} 16¹ 19 69¹² 99⁷; of jubilees reappears largely in N.T., Jub. § 15; demons attack men and rule over them, Jub. § 15, 10^{3,6}; corrupt and lead astray and destroy the wicked, 10⁸; subject to prince Mastema or Satan, 10⁸; sacrificed to, as gods, 22¹⁷; their activities cease on the judgement of Mastema, 10⁸, or setting up of Messianic Kingdom, when Satan is no longer able to hurt mankind, 23⁹.
- Demons, see Demonology, Spirits; children sacrificed to, Jub. 11¹; destroy without incurring judgement until consummation, 16¹; = evil spirits, see Angels of punishment, Satans; impure spirits, 99⁷; lead astray Noah's sons, Jub. 10^{1,2}; men sacrifice to, as gods, 1En. 19¹ 99⁷; restrained on Noah's prayer, Jub. 10^{9,13}; sacrificing to, 1Bar. 4⁷; = spirits of the giants, 1En. 15^{8,9,11} 16²; to punish men, 3Bar. 16³.
- Demophon, 2Macc. 12².
- Deny. See Name.
- Depth, 1En. 60¹¹; uttermost, 17³; depths made fast, 69¹⁹.
See Abyss, Deep.
- Desert, demons of, 4Macc. 18⁸ n.
- Desire. See Will.
- Desolation. See Abomination.
- Destiny, Wisd. 19⁴; of righteous, § 9.
- Destroyer = Demetrius I, Sib. 3³⁹⁶; = destroying angel, Wisd. 18²⁵.
- Destruction, Sir. 20²⁵ Ps.Sol. 9⁹ 16⁵; (or pit), eternal, Ps.Sol. 2³⁵; for ever, 3¹³; Sheol, darkness and, 14⁹; mark of, see Mark.
- Dentonomy, Ass. Mos. 1⁵.
- Devil, Wisd. 2²⁴; A. & E. 10² 11^{1,2} 12¹ 13¹ 17² 33² S.A. & E. 33¹ 34¹⁻⁴ 35¹ 38¹ 39¹ Apoc. Mos. 15³ 16^{1,2,5} 17⁴ 21³; envy of, for Adam, Wisd. 2²⁴ 2En. 31³ 3Bar. 4⁵, see Death; fall of, A. & E. 12¹⁻¹⁷ 3.
- Devils, 4Macc. 18⁸ n.
- Devote; Zad. 20¹². See Ban.
- Diadem of priesthood, T.L. 8¹⁰.
- Diaspora, Add. Esth. § 1; addressed in 1Bar. 3⁹⁻⁴, 1Bar. § 4; § 7; duty of, to Law and Temple, Tob. § 7, see Dispersion; gathering of, 1Bar. 5⁵.
- Didache, cites Sirach, Sir. § 8; relation of, to Sirach, Sir. § 7 (a).
- Didactic sections in Tobit, Tob. § 9.
- Didascalia, Sir. § 8; contains P. Man., §§ 3, 4, 5, 6, 7.
- Dinah, Jub. 28²³ 30^{2,3,4,12,24} 33²² 34^{15,16} 44¹⁸; ravishing and avenging of, Judith 9² T.L. 2² 5³ 6⁸.
- Dinah, daughter of Barakiel, Jub. 4¹⁵.
- Dione, Sib. 3¹²³.
- Dionysia, festival of, 2Macc. 6⁷.
- Dionysus, 2Macc. 6⁷, 14³³; and Hades, Wisd. 1¹⁶ n.; feast of, 3Macc. § 6; worship of, 3Macc. 2²⁹.
- Dioscurus, month, 2Macc. 11²⁴ n.
- Dis, Arist. 15.
- Discernment attained by experience, Sir. 36¹⁸⁻²⁰⁽²³⁻²⁵⁾.
- Discretion, Tob. 4¹⁴.
- Dispensation from heaven to assist Jacob's deceit, Jub. 26¹⁸.
- Dispersed of Israel, gathering together of, Ps.Sol. 8³⁴ 11³ 17¹⁹ n. 28, 50; by Messiah, 17²⁸.
See Ten Tribes.
- Dispersion, the return from, 2Bar. 77⁶ 78⁷ n.; restoration of, Sir. 48¹⁰. See Diaspora.
- Disputes with evil men, danger of, Sir. 8¹⁴⁻¹⁹. See Quarrels.
- Divinations, vanity of, Sir. 34 (31)¹⁻⁸.
- Divinities, heathen. See Gods.
- Division of earth among Noah's sons, Jub. 8^{10,11} Sib. 3¹¹⁴ n.
- Divorce forbidden in Zad. §§ 2, 9⁴⁰ 13. See 7¹ n.
- Djemchid, king, and the Devas, Persian story of, Mart. Is. § 8.
- Dodona, Sib. 3¹⁴⁴.
- Dog, Tob. § 9, 6² 11⁵.
- Dog-star, the, Sib. 5²⁶.
- Dogs = Philistines, 1En. 89⁴²⁻⁴⁹.
- Dok, a stronghold, 1Macc. 16¹⁵ n.
- Dominion. See Power.
- Domitian, 4Ez. 11²⁴ n.
- Dor, 1Macc. 15^{11,13,25}.
- Dorotheus, Arist. 182, 183, 186.
- Dorylaeum, Sib. 3⁴⁰⁶ n.
- Dosa ben Harchinas, P.A. 3¹⁵.
- Dositheans. See Zadokite Party.
- Dositheus, Maccabean leader, 2Macc. 12^{19,24}.
- Dositheus, man of Tubieni, 2Macc. 12³⁵.
- Dositheus, priest, Add. Esth. F¹¹.
- Dositheus, son of Drimylus, 3Macc. § 5, 1³.
- Dositheus, an elder, Arist. 50.
- Dosthai ben Jannai, P.A. 3¹¹.
- Dotaea = Dothan, Judith 3⁹.
See Dothaim.
- Dothaim = Dothan, Judith 4⁶ 7^{3,18} 8³. See Dotaea.
- Dothan, Jub. 29¹⁴ 34¹⁰ T.S. 2⁹.
- Double-faced men, T.A. 3² 4¹⁻⁴, guilty of double sin, T.A. 6²; — heart, Sir. 1²⁸ 1En. 91⁴; — tongued, Sir. 5¹⁴ 6¹.
- Doxologies, Enochic, 1En. 22¹⁴ 25⁷ 27⁶ 36⁴ 39⁹⁻¹³ 48¹⁰ 81³ 83¹¹ 84 90⁴⁰.
- Doxology, Tob. 13¹⁸ Sir. 51³⁰; (Thine is the glory), P. Man. 15 n.
- Drachma, Tob. 5¹⁵.
- Dragon, Bel. § 2, 23 sq.
- Dragon, the, constellation, Sib. 5²².
- Dragon, the = Pompey, Ps. Sol. 2²⁹ n.
- Dragons, 2Bar. 10⁸ n.; = Kings of the Gentiles, Zad. 9^{19,20}; vision of, Add. Esth. A. 5¹¹.
- Dream of Mordecai. See Mordecai.
- Dream-Visions, of Enoch, 1En. 83-90; first, 83²; second, 85¹; of Ezra, 4Ez. 10⁵⁹.
- Dreams and divinations, vanity of, Sir. 34 (31)¹⁻⁸.
- Dress, importance of, Sir. 11⁴ n. 19³⁰.
- Drimylus, 3Macc. 1³.
- Drunkards, sin and doom of, 3Bar. 4^{16,17}.
- Drunkenness, Tob. 4¹⁵; evils of, T. Jud. 16; warnings against, T. Jud. 14.
- Dudael, 1En. 10⁴.
- Dues remitted by Demetrius I, 1Macc. 10²²⁻³⁰.
- Duidain, 1En. 60⁸.
- Dumb, brutes struck, when Adam was driven from Eden, Jub. 3²⁸ n.
- Duty, filial, Sir. 3¹⁻¹⁶; of reproving a friend, 19¹³⁻¹⁷; of wealthy, 14³⁻¹⁹; to cattle, 7²²; to children, 7²³⁻²⁵; to dead, 7³³; to friend, 7¹⁸ 22¹⁹⁻²⁶, see Friend; to God and His ministers, 7²⁹⁻³¹; to mourners, 7³⁴; to parents, 7^{27,28}; to poor, 7^{32,33}; to servant and slave, 7²⁰⁻²¹; to sick, 7³⁵, see Visiting; to wife, 7^{19,26}.
- Dwell on the earth, those that, 1En. 37⁵ n.; in good sense, 37² 40^{6,7} 48⁵ (in genuine passages); in interpolations of parables, 37-71—in bad sense, 54⁹ 55¹ 60⁵ 65^{6,12} 66¹ 67⁸; merely geographical, 43⁴ 46⁷ 53¹ 54⁶ 55² 67⁷ 69^{1,7} 70¹. See Inhabitants.
- Dwelling-place, of the Elect One, 1En. 39⁷; of God (= temple), 1Esd. 1⁵⁰; of the holy, 1En. 39⁴ n. 7, 8 71¹⁶. See Abodes, Chambers, Mansions, Dystrus, Tob. 2¹².
- Eagle, 4Ez. 11 14¹⁷; = fourth kingdom which appeared to Daniel, 4Ez. 10⁶⁰ 12³⁵ n.; = Rome, Israel to overcome, Ass. Mos. 10⁸; -vision, 4Ez. 10⁶⁰⁻¹² 35; interpretation of, 4Ez. 12³⁻³⁹.
- Eagles = Greeks or Macedonians, 1En. 90²⁻¹⁶.
- Eagles' Dale, Ah. 3^{9,14,15} (Syr.).
See Nisrin, plain of.
- Earth, ends of, see Ends; middle of = Jerusalem, 1En. 26¹; midst of, abyss in = Gehenna, 1En. 9c²⁶; pillars of, 1En. 57²; cleansed, 1En. 10^{20,22}; healed, 1En. 10⁷; shall rejoice, 1En. 51³; renewed, Jub. 1²⁹, see Creation, Heavens; elect shall inherit, 1En. 5⁷, walk thereon, 51⁵; righteous shall dwell upon, 51⁵; transformed by God, 45⁵.
- Earth-born, Test. App. I 1¹ 4Ez. 4⁶.
- East, help from, i. e. Jews of Babylon, 1Bar. 4³⁶ 5⁵.
- Eating and drinking, see Table; herbs, 4Ez. 9²³⁻²⁵ n.
- Eber, Jub. 8⁷ Test. App. I 8⁶.
- Ebionism, half-way between Christianity and Judaism, 3Bar. § 8.
- Ebla, 1En. 78².
- Eblaen, T.L. 6⁹.
- Ecbatana, 1Esd. 6²³ 2Macc. 9³ Tob. 3⁷ 5⁶ 6¹⁰ 7¹ 14¹² sq. Judith 12¹⁴.
- Ecclesiastes, relation of Wisdom to, Wisd. § 8.
- Ecclesiasticus. See Sirach.
- Eddinus, a singer, 1Esd. 1¹⁵.
- Eden, garden of, Jub. 3^{9,12,15,26,29,32,35} 4^{23,25} 8^{16,19,23} T. Jud. 25² T.D. 5¹² 2En. 31¹ P.A. 5^{22,24}; land of, Jub. 4²⁴ 8¹⁶, is holy of holies, 8¹⁰. See Garden, Paradise.
- Eden of blessing, Sir. 40²⁷.
- Eder, T.R. 3¹³.
- Edna, Tob. 7^{2,3,8} 10¹².
- Edna, daughter of Azrial, Jub. 4²⁷.
- Edna, wife of Enoch, 1En. 85³, cf. 83². See Edni.
- Edna, Terah's wife, Jub. 11¹⁴.
- Edni, wife of Enoch, daughter of Danel, Jub. 4²⁰. See Edna.
- Edom = Esau, Jub. 24⁶ 38^{8,14}.
- Edom, land, Jub. 36¹⁹ 37¹⁰ 38^{15,16,24}; to sin a complete sin unto death and be rooted out, Jub. 26³⁴; subdued, T. Jud. 9⁷⁻⁸.
- Edomites, 1Esd. 4⁴⁵ 8⁶⁹; = semi-Edomite population among the

INDEX

Jews of the Return, 1Esd. § 5 (c); breach with Edomites, § 5 (f); = wild boars in 1En. 89¹²ⁿ. 42-72 90¹³ⁿ; ? = kites, 90¹¹.
 Edos, 1Esd. 9³⁵.
 Effulgence, Wisd. 7²⁶ⁿ.
 Eglā, Jub. 34²⁰.
 Ego, the, Wisd. 8²⁰ⁿ.
 Egypt, 1Esd. 1^{23,26,35,37,38} 1Macc. 5⁵³ 3³² 10^{61,57} 11^{1,13,59} 2Macc. 1^{1,10} 4²¹ 5^{1,8,12} 6²⁹ 3Macc. 2²⁵ 3¹² 7¹ Judith 1^{9,10,12} 6⁵ Sir. Prologue 15, 1Bar. 1^{19,20} Add. Esth. C⁹ F¹¹ Jub. 1¹ 9⁴ 1C³³ 13^{11,12,15} 17¹³ 24^{8,9} 32²³ 34^{9,11} 38¹³ 39^{2,14} 40^{1,3,4,6,8,9,12} 42^{2,4,9,13,14,20} 43¹⁹ 44^{2,5,6,8,10,18,20,24,29,31,33} 45^{6,8,9} 46^{1,3,5-11,12,14,16} 47² 48^{1,2} 49^{2,5,6,23} Arist. 4, 6, 12, 13, 20, 22, 23, 35 T.R. 7² T.S. 4³ 9^{2(β)} T.L. 11⁸ 12⁵ T.Jud. 9⁸ 12^{11,12} T.Z. 3⁶ 6³ 8⁴ T.D. 5⁸ T.Jos. 11^{4,5} 17⁴ 20^{5,6(c)} T.B. 2¹ 10¹ 12^{1(β),3(β),4} Test. App. I 1¹⁰ II 7^{2-7,3}, 80 Sib. 3^{46,161,193,208,249,255,314,348,608,614} 7² 5^{57,60,73,112,179,279,458,460,488,489,501,505,507} Ass. Mos. 3¹¹ 4Ez. 9²⁹ 14^{3,29} Ps. Sol. 2³⁰ 4Macc. 4²² Zad. 4⁵; conversion of, Sib. 5⁴⁸⁴⁻⁵⁰³; exodus from, 1En. 89²¹⁻²⁷; Jewish garrisons in, see Jewish; Jews in, Arist. 12, 310; King of, see Pharaoh; plagues of, 1En. 89²⁰ Wisd. 16-19; river of, Judith 1⁹ Jub. 10²⁹ 14¹⁸; subdued by Antiochus Epiphanes, 1Macc. 1¹⁶⁻²⁰ temple to God built in (Onias'), Sib. 5⁵⁰¹⁻⁵⁰³, destroyed, 5⁵⁰⁷; Tobit written in, Tob. § 7; upper parts of, Tob. 8³.
 Egyptian, Jub. 17² 34²⁰ 39^{3,4,11} Sib. 3¹⁵⁹ 5³³⁸ T.Jos. 4^{5(β)} 5^{1(β)} 7^{2(β)} 8^{1(β)}; maid, Jub. 14^{22,23}; priests, Arist. 140; sea, Jub. 8¹⁴; woman, T.R. 4⁹ T.Jos. 5⁶ 4³⁽³⁾ 8^{1(β),5} 16⁵.
 Egyptians, 1Esd. 8⁶⁹ Judith 5¹² Jub. 12¹ 42^{3,13} 45¹⁰ 46^{2,6} 47^{10,11} 48^{3,9,12,13,16-18} Arist. 11, 36, 138 T.S. 8²⁻⁴ Sib. 3⁵⁹⁷ Ass. Mos. 6⁶; and Canaanites, war between, Jub. 46⁶⁻⁹ⁿ; chastened lightly first for reformation, then severely for punishment, Wisd. 12¹ⁿ; punishment of fits sin, Jub. § 15, 48¹⁴; = wolves in 1En. 89^{13-27,55}.
 Ehi, Jub. 44²⁵.
 Ekrebel, Judith 7¹⁸.
 Ekron, 1Macc. 10⁸⁹.
 El El wa Abirer, Jub. 40⁷ⁿ.
 Ela, 1Esd. 9²⁷.
 Ela, mountains of, Jub. 9².
 Elam, Jub. 7¹⁸ 8^{1,21} 9² 10³⁵ 13²² Ah. 3⁷ (Syr.). See Persia.
 Elam, a returning exile, 1Esd. 5¹² 8³³.
 Elamites, T.N. 5^{8(β)}.
 Elasa, a place, 1Macc. 9⁵.
 Elda, land of, Jub. 3³².
 Elder, Sir. 6³⁴ 8^{6,19} 25⁴ 32³. See Aged.
 Elders, the, P.A. 1¹; the rulers of the stars, 2En. 4¹; who served Ashtaroth, Zad. 7⁵.
 Eleazar, son of Levi, 1Esd. 8²; and Joshua, Zad. 7⁵.
 Eleazar, 1Esd. 8⁴³.

Eleazar, 1Esd. 8⁶³.
 Eleazar, 1Esd. 9¹⁹.
 Eleazar, 1Esd. 9²⁶.
 Eleazar, a scribe, 2Macc. 6¹⁸ (martyred, 6¹⁸⁻³¹) 3Macc. 6¹ 4Macc. 1⁸ 5^{4,14} 6^{1,5n,14,16} 7^{1,5,12} 9⁵ 10¹⁵ 17¹³; = Taxo, Ass. Mos. 9¹ⁿ; Eleazar, not Judas, the true hero in Ass. Mos. § 1.
 Eleazar, an elder, Arist. 50.
 Eleazar, 1Macc. 8¹⁷.
 Eleazar, the High Priest of the Jews, Arist. 1, 33, 35, 41, 50, 83, 96, 112, 123, 125, 172, 173, 320.
 Eleazar, oldest of Jewish priests, present, Arist. 184.
 Eleazar Avaran, a Maccabee, 1Macc. 2⁶ 6⁴³; death, 6⁴³; play on name 'God's Help', 2Macc. 8²³.
 Eleazar ben Arach, P.A. 2^{10-13,18}.
 Eleazar ben Azariah, P.A. 3^{21,22}.
 Eleazar ben Judah, P.A. 3⁹.
 Eleazar ben Shammua, P.A. 4¹⁵.
 Eleazar ha-Kappar, P.A. 4^{28,29}.
 Eleazar Hisma, P.A. 3²³.
 Eleazar the Modiite, P.A. 3¹⁶.
 Eleazar. See Jeshua, son of Eleazar; Phinehas, son of Eleazar.
 Elect, blessings of covenant for, 1En. 60⁶; dwell in garden of life, 61¹², with elect, 61⁴; God will protect, 1⁸; in light of eternal life, 58³; inherit the earth, 1En. 5⁷; light, grace, and peace shall be to, 5^{7a}; live and never again sin, 5⁸; mansions of, 41²; Son of Man revealed to, 62⁷; stand before Son of Man, 62⁸; tree of life, fruit for, 25⁶; wisdom bestowed on, 5⁸; walk on renewed earth, 1En. 51⁵; of Israel, Zad. 6², share in Messianic Kingdom, Jub. 1²⁹; titles and attributes of: Elect, 1En. 1^{3,8} 5⁷ 25⁵ 40⁵ 41² 48¹ 51⁵ 56⁸ 58¹⁻³ 61^{4,12,62,7,8} 93²; Elect ones, His, 1En. 56⁶ 62^{11,12}; Mine, 45^{3,5} 48⁹; The Elect One (title of Messiah peculiar to part of parables, 40⁵ⁿ.) 1En. 40⁵ⁿ. 49^{2,4} 51^{3,5} 52^{6,9} 53⁶ 61^{6,8,10} 62¹; of righteousness and faith, 39⁶; Mine Elect One, 45^{3,4} 55⁴; and holy, 62⁸; and righteous, 1⁶⁰ 60⁸; of the world, 93¹; who hang upon the Lord of Spirits, 40⁵, see Holy, Righteous; see too Messiah; (of children of Watchers) and beloved ones, 56^{3,4}; (of Watchers) and holy children, 39¹; works, (of righteous), 38².
 Election, the Divine, Zad. 2⁶. See Foreknowledge, Predestination.
 Elements, four primal, 4Ez. 4¹⁰ⁿ 8⁸ⁿ; interchanged (metabolism), Wisd. § 9, 19¹⁸; worshipped, 13².
 Elephants = a class of giants, 1En. 86⁴; in war, 1Macc. 3³⁴ⁿ. 6³⁴ⁿ. 2Macc. 11⁴ 13²ⁿ. 15²⁰ 3Macc. 5¹ &c.
 Eleutherus, river, 1Macc. 11⁷ⁿ. 12⁵⁰.
 Elew, city, Jub. 34¹¹.

Eliab, Judith 8¹.
 Eliadas, 1Esd. 9²⁸.
 Eliali, 1Esd. 9³⁴.
 Eliaonias, 1Esd. 8³¹.
 Eliasib, 1Esd. 9¹.
 Eliasibus, 1Esd. 9²⁴.
 Eliasimus, 1Esd. 9²⁸.
 Eliasis, 1Esd. 9³⁴.
 Eliezer, Jub. 14².
 Eliezer ben Hyrcanus, P.A. 2¹⁰⁻¹⁴.
 Eliezer ben Jacob, P.A. 4¹³.
 Elihu, Judith 8¹.
 Elijah, 1Macc. 2⁵⁸ Sir. 48¹⁻¹² Mart. Is. 2¹¹ 1En. 89⁵²ⁿ. 93⁸ 2Bar. 77²⁴ 4Ez. 7¹⁰⁹.
 Elijah, greatness of, in Jewish legend, Sir. 48¹¹ⁿ; to turn fathers' heart to children and to restore the tribes of Israel, 48¹⁰.
 Elim, Jub. 50¹.
 Elionas, 1Esd. 9²².
 Elionas, 1Esd. 9³².
 Eliphalat, 1Esd. 8³⁹.
 Eliphalat, 1Esd. 9³³.
 Elisha, Sir. 48¹²⁻¹⁶ Zad. 9^{28(A)}.
 Elisha, an elder, Arist. 47.
 Elisha, an elder, Arist. 48.
 Elisha, an elder, Arist. 50.
 Elisha ben Abuiiah, P.A. 4²⁵.
 Eljo, Jub. 7²².
 Elkiah, Judith 8¹.
 Elnathan, 1Esd. 8⁴⁴.
 Elomeel, 1En. 82¹⁴.
 Elon, Jub. 44¹⁷.
 Elul, month, 1Macc. 14²⁷.
 Elymaeans. See Arioch.
 Elymais, 1Macc. 6¹ⁿ. 2Macc. 1^{13,14} Tob. 2¹⁰.
 Emadabun, 1Esd. 5⁵⁸.
 Ematheis, 1Esd. 9²⁹.
 Emmaus, 1Macc. 3^{40,57} 4³ 9⁵⁰.
 Emmer, 1Esd. 9²¹.
 Emmeruth, 1Esd. 5²⁴.
 Emzara, Jub. 4³³.
 Enaim, T. Jud. 12¹.
 Enasibus, 1Esd. 9³⁴.
 Enchantments, 1En. 7¹ 8³, cf. 65⁶.
 End, 4Ez. 6^{6,7,15} 7^{33,112} 12^{32,34}, see Consummation; of all generations, 1En. 10¹⁵; description of, 4Ez. 6^{13-20,23-24}; = destruction of world, 1En. 10² 65⁶, first, 93⁴; eeqeb, Sir. 16³; latter, of men manifests their character, T.A. 6⁴⁻⁷ Sir. 3²⁶; man known by latter end, 11²⁸; remember last end, 7³⁶; of the age, 4Ez. 12³⁴ⁿ; of the days, 4Ez. 13³² Zad. § 10. iv, 6² 8¹⁰ (see Times); sons of Zadok hold office in, 6², Teacher of Righteousness to arise in, 8¹⁰; of heaven and earth, 1En. 18¹⁴, see Ends; of heavens, 1En. 39³; of man = death, is evil, Sir. 18¹²; of the righteous, 1En. 102¹⁰; of time, 2En. 33¹¹; of ungodly contrasted with honoured name of righteous, Sir. 41⁵⁻¹³; signs of the, Sib. 3⁷⁹⁶⁻⁸⁰⁸ 4Ez. 4⁵¹⁻⁵³ 6¹¹⁻²⁸ 8⁶³⁻⁹¹²; to come through God alone, 6⁶ⁿ; visions of, vouchsafed to Abraham, 4Ez. 3¹⁴.
 Endemias, Arist. 49.
 Ends, of all, 1En. 19³; of earth, 1En. 1⁵ 18⁵ 23¹ 33^{1,2} 34¹ 35¹ 36¹ 65² 76¹ 106⁸; of heaven, 36² 54⁹ 57² 60^{11,20} 71⁴ 93¹²; of the seasons, 4Ez. 14⁵.

 Endurance, Sir. 2¹⁴ⁿ. See Chastening.
 Eneus, 1Esd. 5⁸.
 Ennatan, 1Esd. 8⁴⁴.
 Enoch, Sir. 44¹⁶ 49^{14,16} Wisd. 4¹⁰ Jub. 4^{16,22} 7^{33,39} 10¹⁷ 16^{24,27} 21¹⁰ 1En. 1^{1,2} 12^{1,3} 13¹ 14²⁴ 15¹ 19³ 21^{5,9} 25¹ 37¹ 39² 60¹ 65^{2,5,9} 66³ 67⁴ 68¹ 69²⁹ 80¹ 81¹ 85² 91³ 92¹ 93^{1,2,3} 106^{7,13} 107³ 108¹ T.S. 5⁴ T.L. 10⁵ⁿ. 14^{1(β)} 16^{1(β)} T.Jud. 18^{4(β)} T.Z. 3^{4(β)} T.D. 5⁶ T.N. 4¹ T.B. 9¹ 10⁶.
 Enoch, 1 Book of, account, short, § 1; bibliography, § 12; canonicity, § 3; different elements in, and their dates, §§ 6, 7; influence on (a) Jewish, (b) N.T., (c) Patristic literature, § 10, on N.T. doctrine, § 11; MSS., Ethiopic, § 4; original language of 6-36 Aramaic, of 1-5, 37-104 Hebrew, § 9; poetical element in, § 8; title, § 2; Versions, Ancient-Greek, Latin, Ethiopic, § 5; Sections—I, 1-36; II, 37-71; III, 72-82; IV, 83-90; V, 91-104; additional fragments, 105-8; appendix, 108.
 Enoch, Hebrew Book of, 2En. §§ 1, 4.
 Enoch, 2 Book of, account, short, § 1; authorship, § 5; bibliography, § 8; date, § 5; language, § 3; place of writing, § 3; relation to Jewish and Christian literature, § 4; value for religious thought, § 7; Versions, two Slavonic, § 2; views on creation, anthropology, and ethics, § 6; 2 Book of cites Sirach, Sir. § 7 (b); relation of 3Baruch to, 3Bar. § 5.
 Enoch, admonition of, to his children, 2En. 30¹-51⁵ 54-63⁴ 65¹-66⁸; ascent of, into heavens, 2En. 3¹-21⁶ 68¹; conducted to Garden of Eden, Jub. 4²³; early removal from the world, a blessing, Wisd. 4¹⁰, figure of, in apocalyptic, Sir. 44¹⁶ⁿ; foretold the future, Jub. 4¹⁹; functions of, transferred to Moses, 2Bar. 13³ⁿ. 59⁵⁻¹¹ⁿ; heavenly scribe, Jub. 4²³; knows wisdom, Jub. 4¹⁷; led by Michael before the Lord's face, 2En. 2²¹; lives on earth thirty days to give instruction, 2En. 36^{1,2}; miracle of knowledge (or an example of repentance) to all generations, Sir. 44¹⁶ⁿ; recounted weeks of jubilees and Sabbaths of years, Jub. 4¹⁸; the scribe, 1En. 12³, of God's works, 2En. 23¹⁻⁴ 68², of men's deeds, 2En. 40¹³ⁿ. 53² 64⁵; scribe of righteousness, 1En. 12⁴ 15¹; testified to sons of men, Jub. 4¹⁸, to Watchers, Jub. 4²²; translation of, in a vision, 1En. 14^{8,9}, in sleep, 1En. 13^{7,10} 14², in reality, 1En. 39³ 52¹ (cf. 'hidden', 12¹), final ('name raised aloft'), 70¹ 2En. 67² 68³, in spirit, 1En. 71^{1,5,6}; was with angels of God six jubilees of years, Jub. 4²¹; words of, Jub. 21¹⁰ 1En. § 2; writes signs of heaven, Jub. 4¹⁷.

 Enoch, Cain's son, Jub. 4⁹.
 Enoch, Reuben's son, Jub. 38⁸ 44¹².
 Enos, Jub. 4^{11,13} 19²⁴ 1En. 37¹ 2En. 33¹⁰.
 Envy, warning against, T.S. 3¹ 6² T.G. 7^{1,2,7}; cure of, T.S. 3^{4,6} 4⁷ T.G. 5³; evils of, T.S. 3²⁻³ 4⁸⁻⁹; not to, another's prosperity, T.G. 7¹⁻². See Eye.
 Ephesus, Sib. 3^{343,459} 5^{293,296}.
 Ephraim, Judith 6² Sir. 47^{21,23} Zad. 9³; departed from Judah, 9³[9⁴] 16¹¹.
 Ephrath = Bethlehem, Jub. 32³⁴ T.R. 3¹³.
 Ephron, city, taken by Judas M., 1Macc. 5⁴⁶; siege of, 2Macc. 12²⁷ sq.
 Ephron the Hittite, Jub. 36².
 Epicurean, P.A. 2¹⁸; tenets, Wisd. 2¹ⁿ.
 Epicureanism, Sir. § 1.
 Epiphanius, relation of his account of LXX Translation to Aristeas's Letter, Arist. § 9(B).
 Epiphany of God, 3Macc. 5^{8,51}. See Theophanies.
 Epiphi(s), month, 3Macc. 6³⁸.
 Epistle to Two and a Half Tribes. See Tribes.
 Epitaph suggested for martyrs, 4Macc. 17⁹.
 Er, Jub. 41^{1,3} 44³⁴ T. Jud. 1c^{1,2}.
 Erae, 1En. 78².
 Erasmus, 4Macc. § 8.
 Eretria, Arist. 201.
 Eri, Jub. 44²⁰.
 Eridanus, Sib. 5³¹⁸.
 Ermis. See Hermes.
 Ermon, 2En. 18⁴. See Hermon.
 Ermon = Heroopolis, Jub. 46⁶.
 'Erub, Pharisaic principle of, Zad. § 9⁴⁰.
 Erythraean Sea, 1En. 32².
 Erythraean Sibyl, Sib. § 6, 3⁹⁷⁻²⁹⁴.
 Esarhaddon, Tob. 1^{21,22} 2¹. See Sarhadum, Asbasareth.
 Esau, Jub. 15³⁰ 19^{12-16,19,31} 24³, 4, 6, 7 25¹ 26^{1,3-5,8,11,16,18,19,25,27}, 29, 31-33, 35 27^{1,2,8} 29^{13,17,18} 31¹ 35^{9,13,17,18,25-27} 36^{1,14,18,19} 37¹, 15, 17, 18 38² T. Jud. 9¹⁻⁴ T.G. 7⁴ T.B. 10¹⁰ 4Ez. 3¹⁶ 6^{8,9}, see Edom; and Jacob to love one another, Jub. 35²⁰⁻²⁴ 36³⁻⁴; wars between, 37¹⁻³⁸ 24; = black wild boar, 1En. 89¹²; children of, 1Macc. 5^{3,65} Judith 7^{8,18}; slain by Jacob, Jub. 38² T. Jud. 9³; sons of, their sins foreseen by Isaac, Jub. 35¹³⁻¹⁶; symbolizes present corrupt age, 4Ez. 67⁻¹⁰ⁿ.
 Esau (one of Nethinim), 1Esd. 5²⁹.
 Eschatological pictures, Sib. 3⁴⁸⁹⁻⁸⁰⁸.
 Eschatology of Tobit, Tob. § 10A(3), of Wisd. § 1, 1-6⁸, of Zad. 9⁴⁰.
 Eschlemias, Arist. 47.
 Eschol, Jub. 13²⁹.

Esdrae, Confessio. See Confessio.
 Esdraelon, plain of, Judith 1⁹ 3⁹ 4⁶ 7³.
 Esdras, i. e. Ezra, 1Esd. 8^{1,3,7,8}, 9, 19, 23, 25, 91, 92, 96 9^{1,7,16,39,40,42,45}, 46, 49; priest and reader of the law of the Lord, 1Esd. 8^{8,9,19}.
 Esdras, 1 Book of—sources, 1Esd. § 6: (a) Sheshbazzar—Cyrus Tradition, (b) Zerubabel—Darius Tradition, (c) (a) and (b) combined, (d) Ezra story; title, 1Esd. § 2: (1) 1 Esdras, (2) 2 Esdras, (3) 3 Esdras, (4) 3 Paraleipomenon, (5) Tertius Neemiae; an independent version older than LXX of Canonical books of Ezra and Nehemiah, § 2; value of, 1Esd. § 7: (1) light on contemporary thought, (2) help to criticism of canonical books.
 Esdris, 2Macc. 12³⁶ⁿ.
 Eserebias, 1Esd. 8⁵⁴.
 Eshfagni, Ahikar's wife, Ah. 4^{6,8} 6^{3,6} (Syr.). See Abestan.
 Essenes, 1En. 108n. Ass. Mos. § 8. See Zadokite Party.
 Essenism, Sib. 4²⁷ 4Ez. 14³⁹ⁿ.
 Esther, Add. Esth. C¹² D⁹ E¹³ F⁴; additions to: author, § 5, F¹¹; bibliography, § 8; character of, § 1; date of, § 4, F¹¹; influence on later literature, § 6; MSS., § 2; theology, § 7; versions, § 3; appearance before king, Add. Esth. D¹⁻¹⁵; Canonical, discrepancies between Add. Esth. and, Add. Esth. § 1; deliverance of Jews in time of, 2Bar. 68^{2,3}; Fast of, 1Macc. 7⁴⁹ⁿ; mourning and fasting of, Add. Esth. C¹³; prayer of, C¹²⁻³⁰.
 Etyelus, ruler of the temple, 1Esd. 1⁸.
 Eternal, destruction, 1En. 84⁵; goodness and grace, 92³; hope, Jub. 31³²; house = tomb, 36¹; judgement, 1En. 91¹⁵, cf. 91⁹; King, see God; land = Palestine, Sib. 5⁴¹¹; law, 1En. 99²; life, 1c¹⁰ 15^{4,6} 37⁴ 40⁹ 58³, cf. 5¹, see Life; in light of the Lord, Ps. Sol. 3¹⁶; according to God, 4Macc. 15³; for martyrs, 5³⁷ 17¹⁸ 18²³, see Patriarchs; light, 1En. 92⁴; place (= heaven), 12⁴; plant, 93¹⁰, see Plant; punishment, 2En. 10⁶ 4Macc. 9^{9,32} 10^{11,15} 11²³ 12¹² 13¹⁵ 15^{8,22} (fire and worms, Judith 16¹⁷); rest = death, Sir. 30¹⁷; sanctuary, not at Bethel, Jub. 32²²; seed, 1En. 84⁶; sleep, Jub. 36¹⁸; uprightness, 1En. 92⁴.
 Eternity, life of, Zad. 5⁶ [years of, 2⁸].
 Ethical teaching of 2Enoch, 2En. § 6.
 Ethiopia, Judith 1¹⁰ Add. Esth. B¹ E¹ Sib. 3³²⁰.
 Ethiopian, Sib. 5¹⁹⁴.
 Ethiopians, Arist. 13 Sib. 3¹⁶⁰, 208, 516 5^{206,213,505}; = hyenas in 1En. 89⁵⁵.
 Etna, Sib. 4⁸¹.

Euergetes II, Physcon, Sir. § 6 ii (b).
 Euergetes, king of Egypt, Sir., Prologue 15.
 Euhemerism, Arist. § 6.
 Eumenes II of Pergamos, 1Macc. 8⁸.
 Euna, T.N. 1¹¹.
 Eunuch, Wisd. 3¹⁴.
 Eupator. See Antiochus V.
 Euphrates, 1Esd. 1^{25,27} 1Macc. 3^{32,37} Judith 16²⁴ Sir. 24²⁶; = the River, Sir. 39²² 44²¹ Jub. 9^{4,5} 1En. 77⁶ⁿ. Sib. 4⁶¹, 120, 139 5^{115,437}, 2Bar. 77²² 78¹.
 Eupolemus, son of John, son of Accos, 1Macc. 8¹⁷; envoy to Romans, 2Macc. 4¹¹.
 Europe, Sib. 3^{346,368,382,450} 4¹.
 Europus, river, Sib. 3¹⁴⁵.
 Eusebius, Sir. § 8.
 Eve, Tob. 8⁶ Jub. 3³³ 4¹⁰ A. & E. 2² 3^{2,3} 4² 5¹ 6¹ 7¹ 9¹ 10^{1,3} 11¹ 18¹ 20¹⁻³ 21^{1,2} 22^{1,3,4} 24¹ 35^{2,3} 36¹ 37^{2,3} 38^{1,2} 43³ 44⁵ 46¹ 49¹ 5c³ S.A. & E. 28² 35^{1,2} 38² 40¹ Apoc. Mos. 1¹⁻³ 2¹ 3³ 4^{1,2} 9^{2,3} 10^{1,2} 11¹ 13¹ 14^{1,2} 15¹ 17² 31¹ 32^{1,3,4} 33¹ 34¹ 36² 42^{3,4} 43¹ 2En. 30¹⁸ 4Macc. 18^{7,8}; created and brought to Adam, Jub. 3⁴⁻¹⁴, see Adam; history of, 1En. 85³⁻⁷; led astray by a Satan, 1En. 69⁶; originated sin and death, Sir. 25²⁴; seduced by Satan, 2En. 31⁶, see Adam; sins, Jub. 3¹⁷⁻²⁹.
 Eve, Gospel of, A. & E. § 5^a.
 Eves of Sabbaths, observed, Judith 8⁶.
 Evil, 1En. 10¹⁶ 15^{8,9} 16³ 69²⁹ 94⁵ 99¹¹ 101¹ 103⁹ 108²; germ, 4Ez. 3²²; heart of Adam, 4Ez. 3²¹; of descendants, 3^{20n,26}; in heaven, 2En. 10¹⁻⁶ⁿ; principle, P.A. 2¹⁵ 4^{1,29n}; seed, grain of, 4Ez. 4³⁰; thought innate in man, 7⁹², see Inclination, Yetzer; spirits and idols, Jub. 22¹⁷ⁿ; spirits flee from good men, T. Iss. 7⁷ T.D. 5¹ T.B. 5², see Beliar; to be overcome with good, T. Jos. 18² T.B. 4³; to perish, Sir. 40¹⁰⁻¹⁷; worst forms of, Sir. 25¹³⁻¹⁵; of wicked woman, 25¹⁶⁻²⁶.
 Evils of men, P. Man. 7n.
 Exalted, abased, Sir. 11⁶.
 Example of the martyrs, effect of, 4Macc. 1¹¹ 17²³ sq.
 Excommunication, Zad. 9²⁸⁻³⁸; = 'exclude from the Purity', 10¹³; = 'be watched seven years', 14⁶.
 Exile's prayer, Tob. 13¹⁻¹⁸.
 Existent created from non-existent, 2En. 24² 25¹.
 Exodus, Jub. 1¹ Ass. Mos. 1⁴. See Egypt.
 Explanation, of the Zadokite settlement, Zad. 18⁶; of the judgements, Zad. 18⁷. See Interpretation, Meaning, Midrash.
 External soul. See Soul.
 Eye, cause of sin, Sir. 31¹⁴ⁿ; envious, Sir. 14⁸⁻¹⁰; good, Sir. 14¹⁰; lustful glance of, T.R. 5³ T. Iss. 7² T.B. 6³; singleness of, T. Iss. 3⁴.

Ezbon, Jub. 44²¹.
 Ezekiah, Arist. 47.
 Ezekiah, Arist. 47.
 Ezekias, 1Esd. 5¹⁵.
 Ezekias, son of Thocanus, 1Esd. 9¹⁴.
 Ezekias, 1Esd. 9⁴³.
 Ezekiel, Sir. 49^{8,9} 4Macc. 18¹⁷ Zad. 5⁶ 9^{11(β)}. See Faithful.
 Ezekiel, an elder, Arist. 50.
 Ezeqeel, 1En. 67⁸³.
 Ezora, 1Esd. 9³⁴.
 Ezra, 1En. 89⁷²ⁿ. 4Ez. [3¹] 6¹⁰ 7^{2,25} 8² 14^{2,38,49}, see Esdras; omitted from Sirach's list of worthies in Sir. 44-48, Sir. § 4. — in 1 Esdras, companions of, 8²⁸⁻⁴⁰; reading of Law by, § 1 9³⁷⁻⁵⁵, see 1 Esdras, sources of; return of, §§ 1, 4, 6, 8¹; work of, 8¹⁻⁹⁶. — in 4Ezra, assumption of, to be with God's Son, till times be ended, 4Ez. 14ⁿ. 14⁹; five companions of, 4Ez. 14²⁴; = scribe of the knowledge of the Most High for ever, 4Ez. 14⁵⁰ⁿ; translation of, to Messiah, 4Ez. 14ⁿ; writings of, twenty-four published books, = O.T. 4Ez. 14⁴⁵ⁿ; seventy secret = Apocrypha, 4Ez. 14⁴⁶ⁿ. 14ⁿ.
 Ezra, 4 Book of, abbreviations employed, § 12; account, short, § 1; bibliography, § 12; composite nature of text, § 6; date, § 8, 14⁴⁸ⁿ; Eschatology, § 10; Greek text of, lost, § 4; Hebrew original, § 5; relation of to 1Enoch, 1En. § 10(a); to 2Baruch—each the work of a rival school, using similar sources, 4Ez. § 9 2Bar. § 1; to N.T.—no direct dependence, but resemblances in thought and diction, § 11; sources, §§ 1, 7, 8; Salathiel-Apocalypse; Eagle Vision; Son of Man Vision; Ezra Legend; Ezra Apocalypse (signs); text, Hebrew original, § 5, composite character of, § 6; theology of, § 10; title, § 2; versions, Arabic (two), Armenian, Ethiopic, Syriac, Latin, § 3, Greek lost, § 4.
 Ezra-Apocalypse. See Ezra, 4 Book of.
 Ezril, 1Esd. 9³⁴.
 Face, of Elect One, 1En. 61⁹ 62²; of God, 14²¹ 52⁹ 53² 63⁹ 84⁶ 89^{22,26,30} 103⁴, cf. Appearance 89³⁰; Presence, 84³ 90³⁴.
 Faces of Angels, 1En. 51⁴ 71¹.
 Factions. See Jewish.
 Faith, 1En. 39⁶ⁿ. 43⁴ 58⁵ 61^{4,11} 2Bar. 54²¹ⁿ. Zad. 9^{37,47,54}; = religious faith, 4Macc. 15²⁴ 17²; and works combined as complementary, 4Ez. 9^{7,8} 13²³; = faithfulness to law, 5¹ 6^{5,28} 7^{34,77n}; Elect One of, 39⁶; heritage of, 58⁵; measures given to, 61⁴; spirit of, 61¹¹. See Messiah, Works.
 Faithful, 1En. 46⁸; confess sins, are forgiven and blessed, Zad. 9⁵⁰⁻⁵⁴; God confirms covenant with, through fresh revelations, Zad. 5¹⁻³; through Ezekiel, 5⁶⁻⁷.

INDEX

 Faithfulness to God, Sir. 2¹⁻³.
 Faithless, delivered to the sword, Zad. 9^{4,10} woes against, Sir. 2¹²⁻¹⁴.
 Fall, teaching concerning, 3Bar. §10, 3.
 Fara, Jub. 8²⁷.
 Fast, the, Zad. 8¹⁵.
 Fasting, Tob. § 10B T.R. 1¹⁰ T.S. 3⁴ T.Jud. 15⁴ 19². T.Iss. 7³ T.Jos. 3⁴, see Prayer; and adultery, T.A. 2⁸ 4³; and chastity, T.Jos. 9²; and prayer and obedience bring answers to petitions, Ah. 2⁴⁹ (Arm.); atonement by, see Atonement; forbidden on Sabbath, Zad. 13¹³.
 Fasts, 2Bar. 5⁷ⁿ 9²ⁿ; of seven days, 4Ez. 3¹ Intro. n. 5¹³; four fasts followed by revelation in 4Ez. 5²⁰ 6³⁵ 9^{26,27} 12⁵¹.
 Fates, the three, Sib. 5^{215,230,245}.
 Father, God will be, of Israel, Jub. 1²⁴ⁿ, see Children (cf. P.A. 3¹⁹ Wisd. 18¹³; of righteous individual, Sir. 23¹, cf. Wisd. 2¹⁶); in heaven, P.A. 5²³. See God, titles of.
 Fatherhood of God, Sir. § 9i.
 Fathers of old, praise of, Sir. 44¹⁻¹⁵; of Enoch and Noah, 44¹⁶⁻¹⁸; Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, 44¹⁹⁻²³; Moses, 44²³⁻⁴⁵ 5¹⁻⁵; Aaron, 45⁶⁻²²; Phinehas, 45²³⁻²⁶; Joshua and Caleb, 46¹⁻¹⁰ Judges, the, 46^{11,12}; Samuel, 46¹³⁻²⁰; David, 47¹⁻¹¹; Solomon, 47¹²⁻²²; Elijah, 48¹⁻¹²; Elisha, 48¹²⁻¹⁶; Hezekiah and Isaiah, 48¹⁷⁻²⁵; Josiah, 49¹⁻³; Jeremiah, 49⁷; Ezekiel, Job, and Twelve Prophets, Sir. 49⁸⁻¹⁰; Zerubbabel, Joshua son of Josedech, and Nehemiah, 49¹¹⁻¹³; Enoch, Joseph, Shem, Seth, Enoch, and Adam, 49¹⁴⁻¹⁶.
 Fear, defined, Wisd. 17¹²; of God, Arist. 159, 189 T.B. 3^{3,4}, see Love to God, Wisdom; of the Lord, greatest good of all, Sir. 40¹⁸⁻²⁷; is life, 50²⁹; is true wisdom, 11¹⁻²⁰ 21¹¹; the Lord, those who, are blessed, 27¹¹, characteristics of, 2¹⁵⁻¹³, none greater than, 10²⁴; of sin, P.A. 2⁶ 3¹².
 Feast, a, ordained by Simon the Maccabee, 1Macc. 13⁵², see Tabernacles; of Tabernacles, Jub. § 15, 16²⁹; of Weeks, Jub. § 15, 6¹⁷.
 Feasts, Zad. 8¹⁵; profane the, 14⁶; and covenant, despising of, P.A. 3¹⁶, see Minim; and eves kept by Judith, see Pharisaic teaching; the four great, Jub. 6^{23,24}.
 Fence for Torah, P.A. 1¹; for words, 6⁶; for separation, wisdom, 3¹⁸.
 Festivals, and Sabbaths recognized by Demetrius I, 1Macc. 10³⁴; to be kept, 2Bar. 84⁸; commemorative, of Jews, Add. Esth. E^{21,22}; of God's covenant, Jub. 10¹⁴; God's glorious, Zad. 5²; Maccabean, bond of union between Jews of Palestine and Egypt, 2Macc. § 3; institution of, 3Macc. 6⁵⁶ 7¹⁹; cf. 2Macc. § 3 and see Feast; true order of, Jub. 6³⁴.

 Fewness of saved, 4Ez. 7⁴⁵⁻⁷⁴ 8³ 9¹³⁻²².
 Fig-tree, unfruitful, parable of, parallel idea to, in Ah. 8³⁵ (Syr.).
 Filial duty and its reward, Sir. 3¹⁻¹⁶.
 Fire, 1En. 10⁶ 14^{12,17,19,22} 17^{1,5} 21⁷ 39⁷ 54¹ 71²⁻⁶ 72⁴ 90^{24,26} 91⁹ 100⁹ 108³; Angel or Spirit of, see Angel; abyss of, 1En. 10¹³ &c., see Abyss, Gehenna; columns of, 1En. 18¹¹ 21⁷ 90²⁴; flames of, 71¹ 72⁷ 103⁸ 108^{4,5}; furnace of, 98³; mountain range of, 24¹; pillar of, Wisd. 18³; river of, 1En. 17⁵; streams of, 14¹⁹ 17⁵ 67⁷ 71^{2,6}; eternal, for drunkards, 3Bar. 4¹⁶; ever-burning, 1En. 67¹³; grievous, 102¹; of West, 17⁴ 23²; and worms for ever, Judith 16¹⁷; and the worm, Sir. 7¹⁷ⁿ; Beliar cast into, T.Jud. 25³; the final abode of the wicked, 2Bar. 44¹⁵ⁿ 48^{39,43} 59²ⁿ; of the altar, hidden till Nehemiah came, 2Macc. 11³⁵⁻³⁶; Jeremiah, prophet, bids the captivity take some of fire, 2¹; snow and ice, T.L. 3²; ungodly punished in, Sib. 4⁴³ 2En. 10¹⁻⁶ 4Macc. 9⁹ 12¹².
 Firmament, 1En. 18^{2,12}.
 Firstborn, death of, Wisd. 18¹⁰.
 First-fruits, feast of, celebrated by Abraham, Jub. 15^{1,2}; by Abraham, Isaac, Ishmael, and Jacob, Jub. 22¹; by Jacob before going to Egypt, Jub. 44⁴; and tithes, Judith 11¹³.
 Five possessions of God, P.A. 6¹¹.
 Flavian Emperors, 4Ez. 11¹ⁿ. 12³⁻³⁹ⁿ.
 Flesh, 1En. 19⁷ 5¹⁴ 14²¹ 15⁸ 16¹ 17⁸ 61¹² 84⁶ 106¹⁷ 108¹¹ Zad. 3⁶, see Inclination; and blood, Sir. 14¹⁸ⁿ. 17³¹ 1En. 15⁴; of man, 84^{4,5}; of righteousness, 84⁶.
 Flint, use of, 2Macc. 10³.
 Flood, the, 3Macc. 2⁴ Sir. 44¹⁷ Wisd. 10⁴ Jub. 5¹⁹⁻³² 23⁹ 4Ez. 3¹⁰.
 Fool = guileless, is without sins, Sir. 19²³.
 Foolish, wisdom harsh to, Sir. 6²⁰⁻²²; warning against associating with, 8⁴; how differs from wise, 21^{12-17,18-28}; futurity of, 20¹⁴⁻¹⁷ 22⁷⁻¹⁸ 33 (36)^{5,6}; speech of, 20²⁰ 27¹¹⁻¹³.
 Forbidden meats, 4Macc. 1³³ 5^{3,14} sq. 13². See Clean.
 Forced service, P.A. 3¹⁷.
 Forehead. See Mark.
 Foreknowledge of God, 4Ez. 7¹³² Zad. 2⁶. See Election.
 Foresight, need of, in men, Sir. 18¹⁹⁻²⁶.
 Forethought, need of, Sir. 32 (35)¹⁸⁻²⁴ 33 (36)⁴.
 Forgetfulness, P.A. 3¹¹.
 Forgive, Zad. 5⁵. See Pardon.

Forgiveness, P.Man. 7 1En. 5⁶ 12⁵ 13^{4,6}; count not upon, Sir. 5⁵, see Atonement, Confession; duty of, Sir. 27³⁰⁻²⁸⁷; of God, 16¹¹ 17²⁹ 18^{11-14,20n}; for the repentant, Zad. 2³, see Pardon; of God, a reason for forgiveness of man, Ah. 8³⁴ (Syr.) 8²⁴ (Arm.); of thy neighbour, Sir. 28²ⁿ; essential, includes restoration to communion, in Test. and N.T., Test. § 11, § 13, T.G. 6³⁻⁷; God's, of man, T.G. 7⁵.
 Fornication. Zad. 3² 6¹¹ 7¹ 9¹⁵, cf. 8¹⁸ T.R. 1⁶ 6⁴ T.S. 5³; danger of, Sir. 9⁶ 19²; evils of, T.R. 4⁶⁻⁷ T.S. 5^{3,4} T.Jud. 14² 15¹⁻² 18²⁻⁶; in taking two wives, Zad. 7¹, see Polygamy; punishment of fire for, Jub. 20⁴; warnings against, T.R. 5⁶ 6¹.
 Forty days of instruction, 2Bar. 76⁴, cf. 4Ez. 14²³.
 Foundations of the Covenant. See Ordinances.
 Fountain, figurative, of life, 1En. 96⁶; of the righteous and holy, 65¹²; of righteousness, 48¹; of wisdom, 48¹.
 — literal, beneath the earth, 1En. 54⁷; opened, 89³; produces lead and tin, 65⁸. See Spring.
 Four types of men, P.A. 5¹³⁻¹⁸.
 Foxes = Ammonites in 1 En. 89^{42,55}.
 Free-will, Sir. 15¹¹⁻²⁰ 20²¹⁻²³ 2Bar. § 10, 15⁵⁻⁸ 19¹⁻² P.A. 3¹⁹; and fate, 2Bar. 54¹⁵⁻¹⁹; co-ordinated with foreknowledge of God, P.A. 3¹⁹ⁿ; doctrine of, in Sirach, Sir. § 9iv; in 2 Bar. § 10 18²ⁿ. 54¹⁵ⁿ; implied, Zad. §§ 9⁴⁰ 13, 3¹ 4^{2,10}, see Will; man's, 2En. 30¹⁵ⁿ Ps. Sol. 9⁷.
 Freedom offered to informers, 3Macc. 3²⁸.
 Friend, chaber, Sir. 6¹⁰ⁿ; (court title), 1Macc. 2¹⁸ 10^{16,19,20,60,65} 11^{26,57} 12⁴³ 13³⁶ 14³⁸ 15²⁸ 2Macc. 7²⁴ 8⁹ 10¹³ 14¹¹ Add. Esth. E⁵ⁿ. Arist. 45ⁿ; bosom friend, 9²⁹; chief friends, 1Macc. 10⁶⁵ 11²⁷; duty to, Sir. 7¹⁸ 9¹⁰ 22¹⁹⁻²⁶; of God, used of Abraham, Jub. 19⁹. See Abraham, Isaac.
 Friends of God, Wisd. 7²⁷ⁿ.
 Friendship, true and false, Sir. 6⁵⁻¹⁷ 12⁸; rules as to making, 9¹⁰⁻¹⁶ 11²⁹⁻³⁴ 12⁹⁻¹³ 13¹; how dissolved, 22¹⁹⁻²⁶; good and bad, 37¹⁻⁶.
 Fruit, laws about, Jub. 7^{36,37}.
 [Furnace, the man who is melted in the, Zad. 9³¹.]
 Future life, Wisd. 3¹; belief in a blessed, Zad. §§ 9³⁰ 13, 5⁶ⁿ; conception of, developing in Sirach, Sir. 7¹⁷ⁿ; idea of, absent in, 11²⁸ⁿ. 17^{27,28}; life continues in name, 39⁹ 41¹¹⁻¹³, see Spirit; no reference to in Add. Esth. § 7; of righteous, inconsistent views of in Wisdom, Wisd. § 9. See Life.
 Future punishment, Sir. 5⁸ 7¹⁷ n.

11²⁶ 28¹; eternal, Judith 16¹⁷; for ungodly, decay, Sir. 7¹⁷ (later 'fire and worm', 7¹⁷ⁿ). See Eternal punishment.
 Gaas or Gaash, Jub. 34^{4,7} T. Jud. 7¹.
 Gabadaeans, Arabians, 1Macc. 12³¹.
 Gabael, Tob. 1^{1,14} 4^{1,20} 5⁶ 9^{2,5} 10².
 Gabatha, eunuch, Add. Esth. A¹².
 Gabbe, 1Esd. 5²⁰.
 Gabri, Tob. 1¹⁴ 4²⁰.
 Gabriel, Apoc. Mos. 40¹ 1En. 9¹ 10⁹ 20⁷ 40⁹ 54⁶, see Angels, Archangels; sent to Enoch, 2En. 21^{3,5}; seated on left of God, 2En. 24¹.
 Gad, Jub. 28²⁰ 33²² 38⁵ 44^{19,20} T.R. 1⁴ T.Jud. 5² 7^{2(a)} 9⁶ 25² T.Iss. 5⁸ T.Z. 2¹ 3² 4² T.G. 1¹ T.A. 7⁶; exploits of, T.G. 1³.
 Gaddis. See John.
 Gadir, Jub. 8^{23,26} 9¹².
 Gadreel, a Satan, 1En. 69⁶.
 Gaia, Sib. 3^{111,122}.
 Gaidad, 2En. 1¹⁰ⁿ. 57².
 Gains, unrighteous, Sir. 5⁸, cf. 1En. 63¹⁰.
 Gait shows the man, Sir. 19³⁰.
 Galatians, 1Macc. 8² Sib. 3^{485, 509,599} 5³⁴⁰; battle of, in Babylonia, 2Macc. 8²⁰ⁿ.
 Galilee, 1Macc. 5^{14,15,17,20,21,23,55} 10³⁰ 11⁶³ 12^{47,49} Tob. 1⁵ Judith 1⁹ 15⁵; of Gentiles, 1Macc. 5¹⁵; upper, Tob. 1².
 Gall, Tob. 6⁵; the, T.N. 2⁸.
 Gamael, 1Esd. 8²⁹.
 Gamaliel I, P.A. 1¹⁶.
 Gamaliel III, P.A. 2².
 Garden (i.e. Eden), Jub. 8²² 1En. 61¹²; of Eden, 2En. 8⁶. 31^{1,3}, see Eden; of Righteousness, 1En. 32³ 77³; of the Righteous, 1En. 60²³; where the elect and righteous dwell, 1En. 60⁸ 61¹², cf. 65² 70³ 89⁵². See also Paradise.
 Garment of truth, T.L. 8².
 Garments, Tob. 4¹⁶; cleansing of, Zad. 13¹²; law of, Jub. 3³⁰⁻³¹; of God's glory, 2En. 22⁸, cf. 1En. 62¹⁵; of life, 62¹⁶, cf. 108¹²; white, 71¹.
 Gas, name, 1Esd. 5³⁴.
 Gathering of Israel, 4Ez. 13¹²ⁿ. 40-48. See Dispersed.
 Gauls, Sib. 5²⁰⁰.
 Gaza, 1Macc. 11^{61,62} Sib. 3³⁴⁵ Arist. 115, 117.
 Gazara, near Azotus, 1Macc. 7⁴⁵ 9⁵² 13^{43,53} 14^{7,34} 15^{28,35} 16^{1, 19,21}; a stronghold (= Gezer or Jazer?), 2Macc. 10³²ⁿ.
 Gazera, 1Esd. 5³¹ 1Macc. 4¹⁵. See Gazara.
 Geba, Judith 3¹⁰.
 Gebal, T.L. 6¹.
 Gedaliah, 2Bar. 5⁵ⁿ. 44¹.
 Geddur, 1Esd. 5³⁰.
 Gehazi, Zad. 9²⁸.
 Gehenna, Ass. Mos. 10¹⁰ 2Bar. 59¹⁰ P.A. 1⁵ 5^{22,24}; furnace of, 4Ez. 7³⁶; in view of righteous in heaven, Ass. Mos. 10¹⁰ⁿ; inherit, P.A. 1⁵; (1) place of corporal and spiritual punishment in the presence of the righteous (a) for ever, 1En. 27^{2,3} 90^{26,27}, (b) for a time only, 1En. 48⁹ 62^{12,13}, i. e. in 37-70 (Parables); (2) place of spiritual punishment only, 1En. 98³, cf. 103⁸, i. e. in 91-104 (Section V). See also Abyss, Fire, Punishment, Sheol, Valley.

Gel, 3Bar. Prol. 2.

Gemarias of Mount †Joel, Mart. Is. 2¹⁵.

Genizah fragments of Sirach, Sir. § 3(a).

Gennaëus. See Apollonius.

Geunesar, waters of, 1Macc. 11⁶⁷ⁿ.

Genile nations, seventy, Jub. 44³⁴ Test. App. I 8⁵.

Gentiles. 1Esd. 8⁶⁹ 1Macc. 1¹³, 14¹⁵ 2^{40,44,48,68} 3^{10,45,48,52,58} 4⁷, 11^{14,26,45,54,58,60} 5^{1,9,10,19,21,22,33}, 43^{57,63} 6^{18,53} 7²³ 11³⁸ 12⁵³ 13⁶ 14³⁶ Tob. 13³⁶ 2Macc. 14^{3,38}

Judith 822 Jub. 1^{9,13,15,19} 3³¹ 6³⁵ 15³⁴ 16¹⁷ 23^{23,24} 24²⁸ 30^{11,13,14} 31¹⁸ 44³⁴ T.S. 7² T.L. 4⁴ 8¹⁴ 9¹⁰ 10⁴ 14^{1,3(a),4,6} 15¹ 16⁵ 18⁹ T. Jud. 22² 23^{2,5} 24⁶ T. Iss. 6² T. Z. 9^{6,8(bdg)} T. D. 5^{5,8} 6^{7,9} T. N. 3³ 4¹ 8^{3,4,6} T. A. 7³ T. Jos. 19¹¹ T. B. 3⁸ 9^{2,4} 10^{5,9,10} Ass. Mos. 4⁹ 8³ 10⁷ 4Macc. 4¹¹ 18⁵; boasting of, 2Bar. 5¹ 7¹ 6^{7,6-7n} 8c³; bread of, Tob. 1^{10,11}; conversion of, 1En. 50²⁻⁵ 90³⁰ⁿ 91¹⁴; customs of, 1Macc. 1¹³; destiny of, 2Bar. 7^{2,4-6n}; feasts of, Jub. 6³⁵; hope for, no, in final judgement, Jub. § 15; intermarriage forbidden, = fornication or giving to Moloch, Jub. 30⁷ⁿ; Israel will walk after, Jub. 1⁹, be scattered amongst, 1¹³, will turn to God from amongst, 1¹⁵, God will gather from, 1¹⁶; kings of, Zad. 9²⁰; no clean animal or bird to be sold to, Zad. 14⁹; no Israelite to be sold to, 14¹¹; no man to rest near, on Sabbath, 13²⁴; ordinances of, Zad. 10¹; to be saved, T.L. 4⁴ (8¹⁴?) 18⁹ T. Jud. 22² 24⁶ T. Z. 9^{8(bdg)} T. D. 6⁷ [T. N. 8^{3,4}] T. A. 7³ [T. Jos. 19¹¹ T. B. 3⁸] 9² [9⁴] 10^{5,10} [11^{2,3}]; shedding blood of, Zad. 14⁷; the Son of Man, the light of, 1En. 48⁴, spirits placed in authority over, to lead astray, Jub. 15³¹ (contrast Israel); = wild beasts, 1En. 85-90n.

Geometry, P.A. 3²³.

Gera, Jub. 44²⁵.

Gerar, 2Macc. 13²⁴ⁿ Jub. 16¹⁰ 24^{8,12,17,19}

Gericus, 3Bar. 4⁷.

Gerizim, 2Macc. 5²³ 6².

Gersam, T.L. 11² 12¹.

Gershon, Jub. 44¹⁴ Test. App. II 63, 74. See Gersam.

Gerson, 1Esd. 8²⁹.

Giants, 3Macc. 2⁴ⁿ 36 sqq.

Judith 167 Sir. 16⁷ⁿ Wisd. 14⁶ 1Bar. 3²⁶, Jub. 5¹ 7²², see Eljo: 1En. 7^{2,4} 9⁹ 15^{8,11} 16¹. cf. 86⁴ 88²; judgement of the, Jub. 20⁵.

Gidaijal, 1En. 82²⁰.

Gideon, Judith 8¹.

Gifts blind the eyes of wise, Sir. 20²⁹.

Gihon, Sir. 24²⁷ (? = Nile 24²⁷ⁿ) Jub. 8^{15,22,23}.

Gilead, 1Macc. 5^{9,17,20,25,27,36}, 45⁵⁵ 13²² Judith 1⁸ 15⁵ Jub. 29^{4,5,7,9,12}, see Witness, heap of; Mart. Is. 2¹⁴.

Gilgal, 1Macc. 9²ⁿ.

Gilgamesh epic, quoted, Sir. § 1.

Girdle, T.L. 8⁷ T. Jud. 12⁴ 15³.

Girgashites, Judith 5¹⁶ Jub. 14¹⁸.

Giving, right spirit in, Sir. 18¹⁵⁻¹⁸; to evil, to be avoided, 12³⁻⁷. See Almsgiving.

Glaphyra, Zad. § 6 ii. (c)n.

Glory, garments of. See Garments: of God, Tob. 3¹⁶ Zad. 8⁷ 9⁴⁹; of the Great One, 1En. 104¹; of the Lord, Tob. 12^{12,15}; of man, Zad. 5⁶; the Great, 1En. 14²⁰, 102³ T.L. 3⁴. See God, titles of.

Gnostic literature, influence of 1Enoch on, 1En. § 10(c).

Gnostos, father of Sibyl, Sib. 3⁸¹⁵.

God, acknowledged by heathen, Wisd. 12²⁷; all things in hand of, Sir. 11¹⁴⁻²⁸; alone brings in End, 4Ez. 5⁵⁶⁻⁶⁶ n., judges, 7^{33,37,38}; and His ministers, duty to, Sir. 7²⁹⁻³¹; author of beauty, Wisd. 13³; cause of sin, Sir. 15¹¹ⁿ; covenant of, Zad. 4⁹ 7¹² 82¹ 9⁴¹ 16^{7,12}; doctrine of, Sir. § 9i—one, Creator, eternal, holy, God of Israel, of world, Father; Father of Israel, loves them, Jub. 1^{24,25}; scatters them among Gentiles, Jub. 1¹³; gathers from amongst, 1¹⁵; will descend and dwell with them for ever, 1^{17,26}, will appear to eyes of all, 1²⁸; Father of all children of Jacob, Jub. 1²⁸; first coming of, to earth, 2En. 58¹, second, 32¹ⁿ; friends of, Zad. 4³, see Friend; giver of souls, 4Macc. 13¹³ 18²³; glory of, Zad. 9⁴⁹, see Glory of God; greatness of, Sir. 16¹⁷⁻²³ 18¹⁻¹⁴; help of, see Eleazar; Himself as Judge, Sib. § 8; holy spirit of, Wisd. 9¹⁷; knowledge of, is immortality, 15³; love of, 11²⁴ Zad. 9²⁵, to His creatures transcends man's, 4Ez. 5³⁸ⁿ 84⁷; mercy of, Sir. 18¹¹⁻¹⁴; name of, not mentioned in 1 Macc., see § 5; rules the world, Sir. 10⁴, the individual, 10⁵; search for, Wisd. 13⁶; praise of, as Nature's Lord, Sir. 42¹⁵⁻⁴³ 33, His might, 43¹⁻²⁶; transcendence of, in Tobit, § 10; will dwell with men, 1En. 25³ 77¹ 1En. 91-104; wrath of, Ass. Mos. 10³ Zad. 11⁷ 4⁷ 9^{22,40-4} 11⁴, see Wrath; of peace, T. D. 5²; of the righteous, P. Man. 8.

GOD, names and titles of: Adversary, the, P.A. 4²⁹; All might and all power, who has, 3Macc. 6¹²; All-King, Sir. 50¹⁵; All-seeing God, 2Macc. 9⁵; and Saviour, Add. Esth. D³; All-surveying God, E⁴, see Beholds; All-powerful Lord, 2Macc. 3^{22,30}; and merciful God, A. & E. 27¹; All-wise God, the, 4Macc. 1¹²; Almighty, 1Esd. 9⁴⁶ 2Macc. 5²⁰ 7³⁸ 8^{11,24} 15^{8,32} 3Macc. 2^{2,8} 6¹⁸ Sib. Frag. 1⁸ 3Bar. 1³; Almighty God, 2Macc. 7³⁵ 8¹⁸ 3Macc. 6² Arist. 18, 19, 45, 139, 168, 184 Sib. 3⁷¹; living God of heaven, 3Macc. 6²⁸; Lord, 5⁷ Judith 15¹⁰ 16⁶; Alone exists from age to age, Sib. Frag. 1¹⁶; Arrays Himself against a king, 2Macc. 1¹¹; Artificer, the, Wisd. 13¹; Author of all good things, Arist. 205.

Beauty, first Author of, Wisd. 13³; Beginnings of the ages serve, whose word, 2Bar. 54³; Beholds all things, who, 2Macc. 12²² 3Macc. 2²¹, see All-seeing; Beholds the depths, Azar. 32; Benefactor of the whole world, Arist. 210, cf. 281; Blessed for ever, He who is, 1En. 77¹; Blessed Heavenly One, Sib. 3¹; Bountiful, 4Ez. 7¹³⁶; Breathed into man a vital spirit, that, Wisd. 15¹¹; Brought you (Israel) up, that, 1Bar. 4⁸; Brought us (Israel) up out of Egypt, who, 2Bar. 75^{7,8}; Brought these plagues upon you (Israel), that, 1Bar. 4^{18,27,29}; Buildeth His city and His sanctuary, Sir. 5^{12vii}.

Called thee (Jerusalem) by name, that, 1Bar. 4³⁰; Called from the beginning of the world that which did not yet exist, that has, 2Bar. 21⁴; Careth for all, Wisd. 12¹³; Causes the rain and dew to descend, who, Jub. 12⁴; Causes the drops of rain to rain by number on the earth, who, 2Bar. 21⁸; Chambers are in the air, whose, 4Ez. 8²⁰; Champion (of Jews), 2Macc. 8³⁶, see Fighteth; Cherubim, that sits upon, Azar. 32, who has, as throne, Sib. 3¹; Chief of all, 5^{277,499}; Chose sons of Zadok for the priesthood, that, Sir. 51^{12ix}; Chose Zion, that, 51^{12xiii}; Commanded the air by Thy nod, that has, 2Bar. 21⁵; Commandment is strong and enactment terrible, whose, 4Ez. 8²³; Compassionate, 7¹³²; Created, who, 2Bar. 10¹⁹; all things, 3Macc. 2³; everything by His word, Jub. 12⁴; heaven and earth, the God who, Bel 5; and all things, who, Jub. 7³⁶ 36⁷ 2En. 66 Preface; me, 2Bar. 54⁹; us (Israel) 78³; the world out of formless matter, Wisd. 11¹⁷; the world was, who said and, Test. App. I 9⁵; Creator, Sir. 3¹⁶ Jub. 7²⁰ 10⁸ 16²⁶ 22⁶ 1En. 81⁵ 94¹⁰ Test. App. I 8⁶ 10^{2,8,9} Sib. 3⁷⁰⁴ Ass. Mos. 10¹⁰ 2En. 10⁶ 5¹⁴ 2Bar. 14¹⁵ 44⁴ 48⁴⁶ 4Ez. 5⁴⁴ P.A. 4²⁹; Creator of all things, 2Macc. 1²⁴ Sir. 24⁸ Jub. 2^{31,32} 11¹⁷ 17³ 22^{4,27}

45⁵ 2En. 51^{4(B)} 4Macc. 11⁵; of all created things, Ah. 1⁵ (Arab.); of great Temple, Sib. 5⁴³³; of heavens and earth, 3⁷⁸⁶ Ah. 1⁵ (Arab.); of waters, Judith 9¹²; of world, 2Macc. 7²³ 13¹⁴ 4Macc. 5²⁵; who has planted His sweet Spirit in us all, Sib. Frag. 1⁵.

Deep, who hast shut up, and sealed it, P. Man. 4; Deliverer of Israel, 3Macc. 7²³; our, Ps. Sol. 17³, see Saviour of Israel; Delivered them (Israel, Lord who, Wisd. 19⁹; Delivereth them that trust in Him, Sir. 51⁸; Delivereth out of every evil, that, Wisd. 16⁸; Depths come as the heights, to whom the, 2Bar. 54³; Discerner, the, P.A. 4²⁹; Divine, the (II, page 781, c. xxvi. 1); Does everything upon the earth, who, Jub. 12⁴; Does everything easily by a nod, 2Bar. 54²; Dread, whom all things, P. Man. 5.

Educated us, He who, 2Bar. 78³; Eternal, the, 3Macc. 6¹² Sib. Frag. 3¹⁷ Sib. 3^{15,101,301,328}, 394, 601, 616, 631, 672, 676, 679, 708, 711, 721, 733, 758, 766; and supreme God, A. & E. 28¹; Creator, Sib. 3¹⁰; Father of all men, 3⁶⁰⁴; God, Sir. 36¹⁷ Jub. 12²⁹ 13⁸ 1En. 1⁴ Sib. 3^{56,742} Ass. Mos. 10⁷ 2En. 1⁸; Immortal God, Sib. 5⁶⁶; King, Apoc. Mos. 20⁴ 1En. 25^{3,5,7} 27³ Sib. 3⁷¹⁷; Lord, 1En. 58⁴ 2En. 1^{8(B)}; Ruler, 64³; Saviour, of Israel, 3Macc. 7¹⁶; who created heaven and earth, Sib. 3³⁵; Ever, God whose Being is for, 5¹⁷⁴; Everlasting, the, 1Bar. 4^{10,14,20,22,24,35} 5² Sib. 5³⁶⁰; your Saviour, 1Bar. 4²²; God, Tob. 14⁷ 1Bar. 4⁸ Sus. 42; King, Tob. 13^{6,10}; Lord, 13¹³; Exalted One, the, 4Ez. 4³⁴; Existence, the One, Sib. Frag. 1³⁵; Exists from age to age, who alone, 1¹⁶. See God who is, God whose Being is for ever, One who is.

Fashioner, the, of men, 4Ez. 7⁹⁴; Faithfulness standeth eternal, whose, 8²³; Father, 3Macc. 5⁷ 6⁸ Sir. 23¹ Wisd. 2¹⁶ 14³ Jub. 12^{4,25} T.L. 18⁶ Sib. 5^{360,500}; as a, 3Macc. 7⁶; Holy, the, T. Jud. 24²; invisible, Apoc. Mos. 35³; of all, 35² 37⁴ Sib. 3⁵⁵⁰ 5³²⁸; of all the children of Jacob, Jub. 1²⁸; of all holy, among the holy ones, 3Macc. 2²¹; of all within whom is the breath of God, the Great, Sib. 5⁴⁰⁶; of light, the, Apoc. Mos. 36³; our, Tob. 13⁴ Sib. 3⁷²⁶; my, Sir. 51¹⁰; which is in heaven, P.A. 5²³; who alone is excellent, Sib. 5²⁸⁴; who is from everlasting, Sib. 5⁴⁹⁸; Fighteth for our nation, He who ever, 2Macc. 14³⁴, see Champion; Firmament, Thou that hast fixed, by thy word, 2Bar. 21⁴; Forgiving, 4Ez. 7¹³⁹; Formed him (Moses), He who, 2Bar. 17⁴; man by . . . wisdom, Wisd. 9²; man in womb, who, Test. App. I 9⁵; them (works), Wisd. 13⁴; Formeth all, He that, Sir. 51^{121v}. See Creator.

Gathereth the outcasts of Israel, He that, Sir. 51^{12v}; Glorious, greatly, 3Macc. 6¹⁸; Glorious One, 6¹³; Glory, great, the, 1En. 14²⁰ 102³ T.L. 3⁴; Glory is inconceivable, whose, 4Ez. 8²¹; Glory of God, the, Tob. 3¹⁶ 12^{12,15} 3Bar. 4¹⁶ 7² 11²; God (my, thy, &c.), Tob. 11¹⁸ 13^{4,7} Judith 2^{9,12,18,19,21} 6³ 7²⁸ 9⁴ 11^{10,11,13,23} 12^{11,17} 16^{2,13} Jub. 1¹⁷ 7³⁴ 10⁵ 12^{19,20,21,24} 13^{8,16} 15¹⁰ 19²⁸ 22⁹ 27²⁷ 33^{11,13} 41²⁵ Arist. 42 Apoc. Mos. 35³ T.S. 2⁸ T.Jos. 1⁶ 8^{5(a)} 2En. 67³ (B) Ps.Sol. 5⁶ 6⁷ 8³⁶ 9¹⁶ 15¹⁵ 17^{3,4,15}, 30,42 18^{8,11} (II, page 779, line 23 from bottom); my and thy God, Jub. 21²⁵; God, a, to thee and to thy seed, 22¹⁵; Almighty, 15⁴ 27¹¹ 2En. Prolog.; and King, Add. Esth. C⁸; Himself, Sib. 4^{181,183} 5³⁵²; our Father, 3⁷²⁶; God Most High, 1Esd. 9⁴⁶ Sir. 22²³ 39⁶ 47^{5,8} 48²⁰ Jub. 12¹⁹ 22¹¹ [T.Jud. 24⁴] P.A. 6¹¹ Ah. 6¹⁵ (Arab.); of Abraham, Add. Esth. C⁸ Jub. 24^{22,23} 31²⁵ 35¹⁴ Ass.Mos. 3⁹; and of Isaac, Jub. 29⁴ 31³¹ 44⁵ 45³; and Isaac and Jacob, and of their righteous seed, P.Man. 1; of afflicted, Judith 9¹¹; of ages, Jub. 25¹⁵ 1En. 9⁴; of all, Sir. 36¹ 45²³ 50²² Jub. 22^{10,27} 30¹⁹ 31^{13,32} Apoc. Mos. 32² 42⁸; of all power and might, Judith 9¹⁴; all rule, Apoc. Mos. 42⁵; of Daniel, Bel 41; of . . . father, Judith 9¹² Mart. Is. 2² T.Jos. 6⁶; of father Isaac, Jub. 44¹; of . . . fathers, 1Esd. 1⁵⁰ 4⁶⁰ 8^{25,58} 9⁸ 3Macc. 7¹⁶ Tob. 8⁵ Judith 10⁸ Wisd. 9¹ P.Man. 1 Azar. 3, 29 Jub. 31³¹ 44⁵ T.R. 4¹⁰ T.S. 2⁸ T.Jud. 19³ T.D. 1^{9(a)} T.G. 2⁵ T.Jos. 1⁴ 6⁷ Test. App. I 1¹⁰ 8³ Ass. Mos. 9⁶ 4Macc. 12¹⁸ P.A. 5²⁴; of gods, Azar. 68 Jub. 8²⁰ 23¹ 1En. 9⁴; of glory, 1En. 25⁷; of heaven, 3Macc. 7⁶ Tob. 7¹² 8¹⁵ Judith 5⁸ 11¹⁷ Jub. 12⁴ 20⁷ 22¹⁹ 1En. 106⁵ T.R. 1⁶ 6⁹ Sib. 3^{174,286} 4¹³⁵ 5⁷⁶ Ass. Mos. 2⁴ Ah. 6¹⁶ (Syr.) Ah. 6²⁶ (Arab.); and earth, T. Iss. 7⁷, see Almighty living God of heaven; of Hebrews, T.Jos. 12³; of hosts, 1Esd. 9⁴⁶; of inheritance of Israel, Judith 9¹²; of Isaac, Jub. 27²² 29⁴ Ass. Mos. 3⁹, see God of Abraham; of Israel, 1Esd. 1⁴⁸ 2^{48,67} 6¹ 7^{4,9,15} 8^{3,65,72} 9³⁹ 2Macc. 9⁵ Tob. 13¹⁸ Judith 4¹² 6²¹ 10¹ 14¹⁰ 1Bar. 2¹¹ 3¹ Jub. 1²⁸ T.Jos. 2² Ps.Sol. 4¹ 9¹⁶; of Jacob, Ass. Mos. 3⁹ Ps.Sol. 15¹; of Jacob our father, T.D.

1⁹ (BAS¹); or justice, Sir. 35¹²; of my life, 23¹; of my salvation, 51¹; of peace, T.D. 5²; of praises, Sir. 51¹²¹; of requital, 35¹¹; of righteous, P.Man. 8; of righteousness, Jub. 25²¹ T.Jud. 22²; judging Israel with chastening, Ps.Sol. 8³²; of Sabaoth, 2En. 52¹; of spirits of all flesh, Jub. 10³; of the whole world, 1En. 84²; of them that repent, P.Man. 13; of truth, 1Esd. 4⁴⁰; the Creator, Ah. 1¹ (Arab.); the Father, Apoc. Mos. 43⁵ Sib. 5³⁶⁰; the Great King, 3^{499,616}; the High and the Mighty, Ah. Aeth. Frag. 1; the just judge, A. & E. 29¹⁰; the Lord, 3² 13² 14² 16¹ 33¹; the merciful, 2Macc. 11⁹; their King, A. & E. 29⁸; who bestows on all kings glory &c., Arist. 224; ever is, Sib. 3³³; fulfils all your desires, Arist. 283; gave them (Israel) their law, 15; has endowed you with these qualities, 290; is, 4Macc. 5²⁴; made us (Adam and Eve), A. & E. 4⁹; makes you care for these things, Arist. 282; maintains your kingdom, 15; overlooks you, Sib. Frag. 1³; who oversees all things, 3⁴²; rules and preserves us, Arist. 157; whom they knew, Judith 5⁸; Godhead, the, T.L. 3⁷ (A^a); Good, 4Ez. 7¹³⁸; Governest all creation, who, 3Macc. 6²; whole world, 2³; Grace, that showest, upon the earth, Ah. 4¹⁸ (Syr.); Gracious, 4Ez. 7¹³³; Gracious One, 8³²; Great Eternal God, Sib. 3⁶⁹⁸ 5⁵⁰⁰; Great Father, 3²⁹⁶ 5⁴⁰⁶; Great God, the, 3Macc. 7²² Arist. 05 Sib. 3^{162,297,556,557,702,773,776} 4¹⁶³; Great Holy One, the, 1En. 97⁶; Great Lord, the, 81³; Great One, the, 14² 103^{1,4} 104¹; Great Sovereign, the, 2Macc. 5²⁰; of the world, 12¹⁵; Guards all, who, Sib. 3³³.

Hater of insolence, 3Macc. 6⁹; Hateth iniquity, that, Judith 5¹⁷; He (Him), 1Macc. 2⁶¹; He above, Sib. 3⁷⁶⁰, cf. Lord above us; He that hath kept me alive, Ah. 8⁴⁰ (Syr.); He that is, Wisd. 13¹, see Exists; Head of days, One who had a, 1En. 46¹; Head of days, the, 46² 47³ 48² 55¹ 60² 71¹⁰, 12,13,14; Heaven, 1Macc. 2^{21,37} 3^{18,19,60} 4^{24,55} 16³ 2Macc. 2¹⁸ 3Macc. 6³³ (Tob. 9⁶) Sus. 9, 35 (θ) Jub. 26¹⁸ (30¹?) (T.B. 3⁸) Ass. Mos. 3⁸ P.A. 1^{3,11} 2^{2,18} 4^{5,14,15} 5²⁰; Heaven, abode is the, whose, Sib. Frag. 1¹¹; dwelling is in, whose, Sib. 3^{11,807}; dwells in, God who, 5²⁹⁸; Heaven, dwells in, who, 2Macc. 3³⁹; is in, God which, Tob. 5¹⁷; Heaven, that has made firm the height of the, by the spirit, 2Bar. 21⁴;

Heavenly and true God, the, Sib. Frag. 1¹⁰; God, the, Sib. 4⁵¹ 3Bar. 11⁹; King, T.B. 10⁷ (A); One, the, Ass. Mos. 10³; Sovereign, 2Macc. 15²³; Heavens, whose are the highest, 4Ez. 8²⁰; Helper of the oppressed, Judith 9¹¹; Highest, the, A. & E. 15³; Holdeth all things together, that which, Wisd. 1⁷; Holy among the holy ones, 3Macc. 2²; and faithful, Jub. 21⁴; and Righteous One, A. & E. 27¹; God, 3Macc. 6¹ 7¹⁰ Sib. 3⁴⁷⁷; (and) Great One, 1En. 1³ 10¹ 14¹ 25³ 84¹ 92² 98⁶ 104⁹; Holy King, 3Macc. 2¹³; Holy Lord, 2Macc. 14³⁶ [Apoc. Mos. 43⁵]; One, Sir. 4¹³ 23⁹ 39³⁵ 43¹⁰ 1Bar. 4^{22,35} 5⁵ Apoc. Mos. 33⁵ Sib. 3⁶⁸⁸; of Israel, Sir. 50¹⁷ 1En. 1² 37² 93¹¹ T.D. 5¹³ Sib. 3⁷⁰⁹ P.A. 3^{1,4} 4²⁹ 5⁶ 6^{11,12}; One of the holy ones, T.L. 3⁴ (A^a); Honoured One, the, 1En. 103¹, see Name; Hope and refuge of the poor, Ps.Sol. 15²; Hope, in whom ye (Israel), 2Bar. 77⁷; Hosts stand trembling, before whom, 4Ez. 8²¹.

Immortal, the, Sib. Frag. 1¹¹ Sib. 5¹¹⁰; and eternal, 5²⁷⁷; Father of gods and of all men, 3²⁷⁸; God, 3^{276,283,600,628,693} 5^{298,360,490,497}; loud-thundering God of heaven, 5⁷⁶; One, 3⁵⁸²; Incorruptible Creator, Sib. Frag. 3¹⁷; Incorruptible, the, 4Ez. 3¹¹; Indignation melteth the mountains, whose, 4Ez. 8²³; Ineffable, Sib. 3¹¹; Inspired into man an active soul, He that, Wisd. 15¹¹, see Spirit; Invisible God, the, Sib. 5⁴²⁷ 2En. 67³; Invisible yet seeing all Himself, Sib. Frag. 1⁸.

Jael, Apoc. Mos. 29⁴ 33⁵; Jealousy, an ear of, Wisd. 1¹⁰; Judge, the, 2Bar. 5³ 48³⁹ P.A. 4²⁹; holy, Jub. 10³²; Judge, righteous, 2Macc. 12⁵ Sir. 35¹⁷; a righteous, Ps.Sol. 2¹⁸; the sovereign righteous, Sib. 3⁷⁰⁴; Just and righteous, Ah. 4¹⁸ (Syr.); Justice, Wisd. 1⁸ 11²⁰ 14³¹ 4Macc. 8¹⁵; divine, Sib. 3²⁶⁰ 4Macc. 12¹²; lover of, Arist. 209.

Keepeth Israel, He that, Sir. 5¹² 11¹; King, 51¹ 1En. 84²; great, 1En. 84⁵ 91¹³ Ps.Sol. 2³⁶; of ages, 1En. 12³; of all, Tob. 10¹³; of every creature, Judith 9¹²; glory for ever, 1En. 81³; of gods, Add. Esth. C²³; of great power, 3Macc. 6²; of heaven, 1Esd. 4^{46,58} Tob. 13^{7,11,16} T.B. 10⁷ (C B S¹); of heavens, 3Macc. 2²; of kings, 2Macc. 13⁴ 3Macc. 5³⁵ 1En. 9⁴ 84², cf. 63⁴; of kings of kings, Sir. 51^{121v} P.A. 4²⁹; of world, 2Macc. 7⁹; on Mount Zion for all eternity, Jub. 1²⁸; on the lofty throne, Ass. Mos. 4²; our, Add. Esth. C¹⁴ Sib. Frag. 3⁴² Sib. 5^{352,499};

Ps.Sol. 5²¹ 17¹; that ruleth over all, Add. Esth. C²; Knew that thou wast wronged, Ah. 5¹⁴ (Arab.); (?) Know, One whom the many do not, 4Ez. 5⁷; Knows all, who, Sib. Frag. 1⁴ 1Bar. 3³²; all things before they come into being, who, Sus. 35^a, 42; the consummation of the times before they come, who, 2Bar. 21⁸; the secrets, Sus. 42; what is hidden, God who, Ah. 6²⁹ (Arab.).

Lawgiver, 4Macc. 5²⁶; Life, all, is from before His face, Jub. 12⁴; Life, all things are endowed with, through whom, Arist. 16; Life and deathless endless light, He who is, Sib. Frag. 3³⁴; Life and Spirit, Lord of, 2Macc. 14⁴⁶; Life for them (men), He who prepared, 4Ez. 8⁶⁰; Life, living, the, A. & E. 28²; Light, everlasting, Wisd. 7²⁶; of righteousness, T.Z. 9⁸; of the Universe, the, Apoc. Mos. 36⁸; the True, A. & E. 28²; Liveth for ever, God that, Tob. 13¹; He that, Sir. 18¹ 1En. 5¹ 106^{3,11} (Lat. Frag.); Living God, Bel 5, 25, Add. Esth. E¹⁶ Jub. 1²⁵ 21⁴ Sib. 3⁷⁰³, see Almighty living God; Lord, 2Macc. 7³² 15⁴; One, the, Ah. 1¹ (Arab.); Lofty One, who has no respect of persons, 2Bar. 13⁸; Longsuffering, 4Ez. 7¹³⁴.

Lord, Almighty, Judith 4¹³ 8¹³ 16¹⁷ 1Bar. 3^{1,4} P.Man. 1, in heaven, P.Man. 1; above us, 4Ez. 8⁶; and Creator of the Universe, Arist. 15; Creator, Jub. 10⁸ S. A. & E. 30²; my Creator, 28²; for evermore, Jub. 8²⁰; Lord God, 1Esd. 8⁹² 2Macc. 1²⁴ 7⁶ 3Macc. 5³⁵ Tob. 14¹⁵ Judith 7²⁹ 8³⁵ 9² 13¹⁸ Bel 39, 41 Jub. 2¹ 6¹⁰ 9¹⁵ 12²⁵ 19²⁹ 25¹² A. & E. 2² 6² 9² 14¹ 15² 20² 22² 28¹ 30² 34¹ 30¹ 40² 46³ T.S. 2¹³ 6⁵ T.L. 8¹⁰ 9¹⁴ 2En. 22^{4,8} (B) 42¹⁴ (B) 43¹ (B) 44¹ (B) 45³ (B) 58^{1,2} (B) 64¹ (B) 3Bar. 1^{3,5,7} 4^{7,8} 4Ez. 8⁴⁵ Ps. Sol. 5¹; God Most High, 1Esd. 9⁴⁶; of Abraham, Add. Esth. C³⁰ Jub. 36⁶, and the God of Isaac, 27²²; of all power, Judith 13⁴; of . . . father, 9²; of . . . fathers, Jub. 49⁶; of heaven, Judith 6¹⁹; and earth, T.B. 3¹; of Israel, Judith 12⁹ 13⁷ Add. Esth. C¹⁴ Jub. 45³ Ps.Sol. 16³; of Shem, Jub. 8¹⁸; sole and glorious over the whole world, Azar. 22; who forsakes not those who love him, Bel 38; Lord Himself, the, Ps.Sol. 17^{38,51}; Lord, Lord, Jub. 14²; Lord . . . God, 1Esd. 1⁴ 5⁷⁰ 8^{14,15,27,79} Tob. 4^{19,21} Judith 4² 7^{19,29} 8^{14,16,25} 1Bar. 1^{10,13,15,18,19,21,22} 2^{5,6,12,16,19,27,30} 3^{6,8} Sus. 3⁵ Jub. 1^{18,19} 3⁵ 4⁶ 6¹³ 7⁵ 10^{3,7,22} 13¹⁵ 15²⁶ 19²⁸ 26¹ 5 33^{18,20} 45⁴ 48^{14,17} 50^{7,9,11}

INDEX

A. & E. 17¹ 29⁵ 35² T.S. 6⁵
 T.L. 13¹ T.Z. 10⁵ T.N. 4³
 Test. App. I 8³ Ps.Sol. 4²⁸ 6³
 P.A. 3¹⁹ 5²⁴ Ah. 1⁴ (Syr. A);
 Lord Most High, P.Man. 7
 1En. 98¹¹ Test. App. II 51, 58
 2Bar. 6⁶; Lord (my, thy, his,
 &c.), 1Esd. 2⁵ 8^{46,47,50,52,53}
 Tob. 8⁴ 13⁴ Judith 5²¹ 16^{2,12}
 Add. Esth. C¹⁴ A. & E. 27¹
 49³ 1En. 22¹⁴ 84⁶; LORD my Lord, 2Bar. 3¹² 14^{8,16} 16¹
 23¹ 38¹ 48³⁵ 4Ez. 3⁴ 5^{23,38} 7^{17,58}
 12⁷ 13⁵¹ (of angel? 4Ez. 4³⁸ 6¹¹); Lord of ages, 1En. 9¹; of all, Ass.Mos. 4²; of all the ages, Jub. 31¹³; of all reputation, Arist. 269; of . . . fathers,
 1Esd. 4⁶² Judith 7²⁸; of glory.
 1En. 22¹⁴ 25³ 27^{3,5} 36⁴ 40³ 63²
 75³ 83⁸; of heaven, Tob. 7^{11,17}
 1En. 106¹¹ Test. App. II 13
 Sib.Frag. 1³⁵ Ass.Mos. 4⁴; and earth, Tob. 10¹³ Judith 9¹²; of hosts, Apoc.Mos. 38³ [43⁵]
 P.A. 6^{8,11}; of Israel, 1Esd. 2^{3,5}
 5⁷¹ 6¹⁵ 8^{13,89}; of judgement, 1En. 83¹¹; of kings, 63^{2,4}; of light, 2En. 18³; of lords, 1En.
 9⁴ Ass.Mos. 9⁶; of majesty,
 1En. 12³; of mercy, 2Macc.
 8²⁹; of mighty, 1En. 63²; of rich, 63²; of righteousness,
 Tob. 13⁶ Jub. 25¹⁵ 1En. 22¹⁴
 90⁴⁰ 106⁸; Lord of sheep,
 8^{9,16,22,26,29,33,36,42,45,50,51,52,54,} 57,70,71,75,76 90^{14-20,29,33}; Lord of Spirits, 3^{7,22,4} 38^{2,4,6} 39^{2,7,8,} 9,12 40^{1,2,4,5,6,7,10} 41^{2,6,7} 43⁴
 45^{1,2} 46^{3,6,7,8} 47^{1,2,4} 48^{2,3,5,7,10}
 49^{2,4} 50^{2,3,5} 51³ 52^{5,9} 53⁶ 54^{5,7}
 55^{3,4} 57³ 58^{4,6} 59^{1,2} 60^{6,8,24,25}
 61^{3,5,8,9,11,13} 62^{2,10,12,14,16} 63^{1,2} 71² 65^{9,11} 66² 67^{8,9} 68⁴ 69^{24,29}
 70¹ 71^{2,17}; of universe, Arist.
 195; of whole creation of the world, 1En. 84²; of wisdom,
 63²; of world, Jub. 25²³ 1En.
 81¹⁰ Ass.Mos. 1¹¹; our Saviour,
 Ps.Sol. 8³⁹; over all dominion,
 Add. Esth. C²³; Ruler of Sabaoth, 2En. 21¹; that dwells eternally, 4Ez. 8²⁰; that dwells in Jerusalem, 1Esd. 2⁵; that brought thee (Abraham) out of Ur of Chaldees, Jub. 14⁷, cf. 22²⁷; that wrought in thee
 those great and wonderful things, Arist. 155; the eternal God, Sus. 35⁰; the God of gods, Bel 7; the Great King,
 Tob. 13¹⁵; the Most High
 God, Jub. 21²⁰; which made heaven and earth, 1Esd. 6¹³; who created the heaven and the earth, Jub. 32¹⁸; who hath holy knowledge, 2Macc.
 6³⁰; whose name has not been sent into this world, Mart.Is.
 1⁷; Look drieth up the depths, whose, 4Ez. 8²³; Looks on all, who, Sib.Frag. 1⁴; Loved us (Israel) from of old and never hated us, who, 2Bar. 78³;
 Lover of souls, Wisd. 11²⁶.
 Made, who, 2Bar. 10¹⁹; all things, Jub. 31²⁹; all things by . . . word, Wisd. 9¹; (all) from the beginning, Sib.Frag.
 3¹⁶; earth, 2Bar. 21⁴; heaven and earth, P.Man. 1² Sib.Frag.

 3³⁻⁵, ct. 2En. 2²; Israel, 1Bar.
 4⁷ 2Bar. 60²; them (men) 4Ez.
 8⁶⁰; them (stars), 1Bar. 3³⁴;
 us, 2Bar. 79²; Maker, man's,
 Sir. 10¹² 32¹³ 46¹³ 47⁸ Wisd.
 16²⁴ Apoc.Mos. 31⁴ 32⁴ 2Bar.
 82² P.A. 4²⁹; nature's first, Wisd. 13⁵; Maketh a horn to sprout for the house of David,
 He that, Sir. 51^{12v11i}; Master,
 Tob. 3¹⁴ Azar. 13 Apoc.Mos.
 19² 23² 42⁵; Merciful, Sir.
 50¹⁹; One, Ah. 4¹⁷ (Arab.);
 God, 3Macc. 5⁷ Tob. 3¹² 1Bar.
 3¹; Lord, 2Macc. 13¹²; Mercy, who keeps, Wisd. 9¹; who shows, Ah. 5¹⁴ (Arab.);
 Mighty, Sib. 3⁷³⁵; God, the,
 3^{91,97,194,246,274,284,306,489,549,565,}
 575,584,632,656,657,665,671,687,740,781, 784,818 4^{6,25} 5¹⁸⁶ 2Bar. 6⁸ 7¹ 13^{2,4};
 Heavenly God, 3¹⁹; King,
 3^{56,560,808}; One, the, Sir.
 35¹⁸ 2Bar. 21³ 25⁴ 32^{1,6} 34¹
 44⁶ 46^{1,4} 47¹ 48^{1,38} 49¹ 54^{1,11}
 55⁶ 56³ 59³ 61⁶ 6^{3,5,6,8,10}
 64^{3,4} 65¹ 66^{1,5,6} 67² 70² 77^{11,26}
 81⁴ 82⁵ 84^{1,6,7,10} 85^{2,3} 4Ez.
 63² 9⁴⁶ 10²⁴ 11⁴³ 12⁴⁷ 13²³;
 in dominion, the, 1En. 103¹;
 of Israel, T.S. 6⁶; of Jacob, Sir. 51^{12x11}; works for salvation of Israel, who has,
 3Macc. 6¹³; Most exalted of all, Sib.Frag. 3³, see Exalted; Most High, 2Macc.
 3³¹ 3Macc. 6² Tob. 1¹³ 4¹¹
 Sir. 63⁷ 9¹⁵ 17²⁶ 19¹⁷ 23^{18,23}
 24^{2,3} 28⁷ 34^{6,19} 35⁶ 39^{1,5} 41⁴
 42² 44^{2,20} 49⁴ 50^{7,14,15,16,17}
 Wisd. 5¹⁵ 6³ Add.Esth. E¹⁶
 Jub. 16¹⁸ 22²⁷ 1En. 9³ 1c¹ 46⁷
 60^{1,22} 62⁷ 77¹ 94⁸ 97² 98^{7,11}
 99^{3,10} 100⁴ 101^{1,6,9} T.S. 2⁵ 6⁷
 T.L. 3¹⁰ 4^{1,2} 5^{1,7} 8¹⁵ [16³] 18⁷
 T.Iss. 2⁵ T.G. 3¹ T.A. 2⁶ 5⁴ 7³
 T.Jos. 1⁴ 3¹⁰ 9³ 10³ T.B. 4⁵ 9²
 (cBS¹) Test. App. I 10¹ Sib.
 Frag. 1⁴ Sib. 3^{519,574,580} Ass.
 Mos. 10⁷ 2Bar. 17¹ 24² 25¹
 54^{9,17} 56¹ 64^{6,8} 67^{3,7} 69² 70⁷
 71³ 76¹ 77^{4,21} 80^{1,3} 81^{2,4} 82^{2,6}
 83¹ 85^{3,12} 4Ez. 3³ 4^{2,11,34} 5^{4,22,34}
 63^{2,37} 7^{19,23,33,37,42,50,70,73,77,78,79,} 81,83,87,88,89,102,122,132 81,48,56,59
 92,4,5,25,28,44 1c^{24,38,49,52,54,57,58,} 59 11^{38,43,44} 12^{4,6,23,30,32,36,39,47}
 13^{13,23,26,29,44,47,56,57} 14^{42,45,50};
 Most High God, 1Esd. 6³¹
 81^{9,21} 3Macc. 19¹⁶ 31¹ 4¹⁶ 5²⁵
 7⁹ Judith 13¹⁸ Sir. 7⁹ 41⁸ 46^{5,6}
 Jub. 7³⁶ 13^{16,29} 16²⁷ 20⁹ 21^{20,22,}
 23,25 22^{6,13,19,23,27} 25^{3,11,21} 27¹⁵
 32¹ 36¹⁶ 39⁶ Test. App. II
 13, 30 Sib. 3⁷¹⁹ Ass.Mos. 6¹
 Ah. 1^{1,5} 3⁷ 4¹⁷ 5¹⁵ 6^{2,7,10} 7¹⁹
 (all Arab.), see God Most High; Most High Lord, 1Esd.
 2³; Most Mighty, Add.Esth.
 E¹⁶; Moulded (man), that,
 Wisd. 15¹¹.
 Name, the, P.A. 4⁵ 5¹¹;
 (? called upon us (Israel)), 4Ez.
 10²²; glorious and honoured,
 &c., which created heavens and earth and all things, Jub.
 36⁷; His, 2Bar. 67³ P.A. 3³;
 holy, the, Jub. 25¹²; My, 2Bar.
 5²; of Heaven, P.A. 1¹¹ 2^{2,16}

4⁵ 5²⁰; of Him that made them, 4Ez. 8⁶⁰; of his God,
 Ps.Sol. 6⁷; of the Lord, Test.
App. I 9⁴ Ps.Sol. 6²; Thy, 7⁵;
 Thy Great, 2Bar. 5¹; Nourishes all, who, Sib.Frag. 1⁵; Nothing is too hard, Thou for whom, 2Bar. 54².
 One, Sib.Frag. 3³ 2Bar. 48²⁴;
 Almighty God, the, Arist. 139;
 God, Arist. 132 Sib.Frag. 1^{7,32}
 Sib. 3⁵⁷¹ 4³⁰ 5²⁸⁴; Sovereign
 God, 3¹¹; that judgeth alone,
 P.A. 4¹⁰; who is and was . . .
 and shall be, Sib. 3¹⁶; Only Ruler, 3Macc. 2². See Sole.
 Possessor of heaven and earth,
 P.A. 6¹¹; Power, divine, the, Arist. 236, 252 Ah. 1¹ (Syr. A) excellent in, Sib.Frag. 1⁷; Infinite, Mighty, A. & E. 28²;
 (supreme), the, Wisd. 1³;
 some, 4Macc. 5¹³; Pours forth upon men gladness, who, Sib.
 Frag. 3³⁵; Praise of all His pious ones, Sir. 51^{12xv}; Prepared the earth, that, 1Bar.
 3³²; Prince of the world, Sib.
 Frag. 1¹⁵; Promised, on our behalf . . . that He will never forget or forsake us, who always, 2Bar. 78⁷; Protector of all, 3Macc. 6⁹; of the forlorn, Judith 9¹¹; Providence, Wisd.
 14³ Arist. 201 Sib. 5²²⁷; divine, 4Macc. 17²²; divine and all-wise, 13¹⁹; eternal, the, Wisd.
 17²; God's, Sib. 5³²³; just,
 that watched over our fathers,
 4Macc. 9²⁴.
 Reason, Source of, Ah. 1¹
 (Arab.); Receives not gifts, who, Jub. 33¹⁸; Redeemer of Israel, Sir. 51^{12v}; Redeemed them (Israel), the Lord who, Ps.Sol. 9¹; Redeemeth and saveth Israel, One who, 1Macc.
 4¹¹, see Saviour of Israel;
 Redemeth from all evil, Sir.
 51⁸; Reigns for ever, who,
 Sib. 3⁵⁹³; Respects not persons, who, Jub. 33¹⁸ Ps.Sol. 2¹⁸, cf.
 P.A. 4²⁹; Revealest to those who fear Thee what is prepared for them, 2Bar. 54⁴;
 Rich in mercy, 3Macc. 6⁹;
 Righteous beyond all, Jub. 21⁴;
 Righteous Ruler, 3Macc. 3³;
 Rock of Isaac, Sir. 51^{12xi};
 Ruler and Lord of the universe,
 Arist. 16; Ruler of all, 3Macc.
 5²⁸ 6³⁹, cf. Sib.Frag. 1¹⁷, see King, Only Ruler, Righteous
 Ruler; of all creation, 3Macc.
 2⁷; of all power, 5^{7,51} 7⁹;
 Rules for ever, who, 1En. 22¹⁴ (E); over all, Add.Esth. E^{18,21}; over the world, 1En. 22¹⁴ (G⁵);
 the world, Ass.Mos. 4²; with great thought the hosts which stand before Thee, 2Bar. 21⁶.
 Saved all His people, who,
 2Macc. 2¹⁷; thee (Aḥīkar),
 Ah. 5¹⁴ (Arab.); Saves them that hope in Him, who, Sus.
 60; Saviour of all, Wisd. 16⁷; of Israel, 1Macc. 4³⁰ 3Macc.
 6³², eternal, 7¹⁶; of them that are without hope, Judith 9¹¹;
 Sea, who has bound the, by the word, P.Man. 3; See, One whom none can, from earth,

 Sib. 4¹⁰; Seen those things which are to be, Thou that hast, 2Bar. 21⁵; Seeth all, who, 2Macc. 7³⁵, see All-seeing; Self-sprung, Sib.Frag.
 1¹⁷ Sib. 3¹²; Sends forth the light, that, 1Bar. 3³³; rain, winds, famines, &c., Sib.Frag.
 1³²⁻³⁴; Sent it (the word), who, 2Bar. 56⁴; me (Baruch), who, 84⁷; Shechinah, P.A. 3⁸, see Shechinah; Shield of Abraham, Sir. 51^{12x}; Sky, dwelling in the, Sib.Frag. 3¹⁷;
 whose dwelling is in the, Sib.
 3⁸¹; Sole Potentate, 3⁷¹⁸;
 Souls, God who gave us our,
 4Macc. 13¹³; Souls, Sustainer of, Sib. 5⁵⁰⁶; Sovereign, 2Macc.
 12²⁸; Sole, Sib.Frag. 1⁷;
 Sovereign in heaven, 2Macc.
 15^{3,4}; Sovereign Lord, 5¹⁷ 6¹⁴
 15^{22,29} Wisd. 11²⁶ 13^{3,9}; of all,
 Wisd. 6⁷ 8³; of all creation, 3Macc. 2², see Ruler; of earth, Sib.Frag. 1³⁵; of spirits, 2Macc. 3²⁴; of the world, sole,
 Sib. 5¹⁸⁶; Sovereignty over all flesh, who has, Bel 5; Spirit and soul, who placed in man, Test. App. I 9⁵; Strength of my life, Sir. 51¹; Supreme God, 2Macc. 3³⁶ Arist. 19, 37.
 Teacher, Sir. 51¹⁷; Throne is beyond imagination, whose, 4Ez. 8²¹; Thunder, delight is in the, whose, 5⁶², cf. 5⁷⁶; Scnder of, 5⁴³³; Thunders from on high, He who, Sib. 3¹ 5³⁰²; True, the, 5⁴⁹⁹;
 and eternal God, Sib.Frag.
 1²⁰; and everlasting God,
 3⁴⁶; God, the, 3Macc. 6¹⁸
 Wisd. 12²⁷ Arist. 140, Sib. 5⁴⁹⁵
 2En. 66²; Truth, lover of the,
 Arist. 206.
 Unbegotten, Sib.Frag. 1^{7,17};
 Upholder of the weak, Judith 9¹¹; Unseen yet seeing all Himself alone, Sib. 3¹², see Invisible.
 Watcher of all from heaven,
 Sib. 5³⁶²; Wisdom, guideth, that, Wisd. 7¹⁵; Who hath made . . . perfect in, Ah. 7⁴ (Arab.); Wise, Sib. 5³⁶⁰; Wise, correcteth, One that, Wisd.
 7¹⁵; Witness, the, P.A. 4²⁹; Witnesses all, who, Sib.Frag. 1⁴; Wonders, doer of, 3Macc. 6³²; worker of, 2Macc. 15²¹; Word is sure and behest constant, 4Ez. 8²²; World-Ruler, the,
 Sib. 3¹⁹; Worship, whom ye
 (Israel), 2Bar. 77⁷.
 Godless, 1En. 1¹ 5⁷ 16¹ 38⁸ 81⁹
 91¹⁴ 94¹¹ 98¹⁵ 99^{8,10}.
 Godlessness, 1En. 10²⁰ 104⁹.
 Godly man is wise, Sir. 21¹¹, 18-28; receives discipline, and is blessed, 32(35)¹⁴⁻¹⁷.
 Gods of heathen, dead, Sib.
 Frag. 1²² 3⁵⁴⁵ sgg.; impossibility of, Frag. 2¹⁻³ Frag.
 3¹⁻³²; = demons, see Demonol-ogy; strange, Israel turns to,
 Jub. 1⁸.

INDEX

- See Ashtaroth, Bel, Belshim, Dis, Zeus.
- Gog, Jub. 8²⁵; and Magog, land of = Ethiopia, Sib. 3³¹⁹, 512.
- Gold, lay up, Tob. 12⁹; proved in fire, Sir. 2⁵ Wisd. 3⁶. 'Golden Rule,' Tob. 4¹⁵.
- Goliath, Sir. 47⁴.
- Gomer, Jub. 7¹⁹ 9⁸.
- Gomorrah, Jub. 16⁵ 20⁶ Mart. Is. 3¹⁰. See Agaron.
- Good man, the, T.B. 4²⁻⁵.
- Goodness abides for ever, Sir. 40^{12,17}.
- Gorgias, 1 Macc. 3³⁸ 4^{1,5,18} 5⁶⁹ 2 Macc. 8⁹ 10¹⁴ 12^{32,35,37}; Judas' victory over, 1 Macc. 4¹⁻²⁵.
- Gortyna, 1 Macc. 15²³.
- Goshen, land of, Judith 1¹⁰; land of, Jub. 44⁹ 45^{1,2,6}.
- Gotholias, 1 Esd. 8³³.
- Government, attitude to, P.A. 1¹⁰ 2³.
- Grace alone accounts for election and salvation of Israel, Ass. Mos. § 9.
- Graeco-Egyptians = 'vultures' and 'kites' in 1 En. 90². Cf. 90^{11,13,14}.
- Grape-gatherer, Ben-Sira claims to be only a, Sir. § 1, 33¹⁶⁻¹⁸.
- Grateful dead. See Dead.
- Grave, Tob. 8^{10,18}.
- Greece, 1 Macc. 8⁹ Sib. 3⁸¹³ 4⁹⁶. See Hellas.
- Greek, 2 Macc. 13² Sib. 3¹⁹³; cities compel Jews to hellenize, 2 Macc. 6⁹, cf. 11⁹; fashions, 4¹³; influences in Tobit, 2¹² 5¹⁵; kingdom, i.e. the Seleucid era, 1 Macc. 1¹⁰; language, Arist. 38; speculation condemned, Sir. 3²⁴; text of Ecclesiasticus, divergence in order from Old Latin version, Sir. § 4, 30-36; ways of life, 2 Macc. 4¹⁰ 6⁹. See Hellenizing.
- Greeks, 1 Macc. 6² 8¹⁸ 2 Macc. 4³⁶ 11³ Arist. 121, 137 Sib. 3^{171,202,520,536,553,609} 5²⁶⁴ 4 Macc. 18²⁰; favour Jews, 3 Macc. 3⁸; or Macedonians = 'eagles' in 1 En. 90²⁻¹⁶.
- Greetings in letters, 3 Macc. 3¹³ 7¹.
- Gregory Nazianzen praises Maccabaeans martyrs, 4 Macc. § 8.
- Grigori (i.e. 'the Watchers'), 2 En. 18^{1,3,7,9}.
- Grosseteste, Test. § 1.
- Guardian angels, A. & E. 33¹, see Virtues; belief in, Jub. 35¹⁷; of Esau, Jub. 35¹⁷; of Jacob, 35¹⁷. See Angelic patrons.
- Guardians of the gates of hell, 2 En. 42¹.
- Guilt, incur, Zad. § 4, 4⁹ 16².
- Guilt-offering, Zad. 10⁹.
- Guilty, against the soul, P.A. 3^{6,10,11}; held, Zad. 10⁷ 19⁵.
- Guni, Jub. 44³⁰.
- Gymnasium built in Jerusalem, 1 Macc. 1¹⁴ 2 Macc. 4^{9,12}.
- Habakkuk, prophecy of, Bel 1(G), 33-37, 39; Mart. Is. 2⁹.
- Habitations of souls, 4 Ez. 7⁸⁰, 85, 101, 121.
- Hades, 2 Macc. 6²⁸ Sir. 17²⁷ 21¹⁰ 28²¹ Wisd. 1¹⁴ 16¹³ Azar. 66 Add. Esth. B⁷ (i.e. Sheol), T.R. 4⁶ T.L. 4¹ T.B. 9⁵ Sib. Frag. 1²² 3^{393,458} 5¹⁷⁸ 3 Bar. 4^{4,6} 5³ 4 Ez. 4^{7,8} 8⁶³; abolished for righteous, 4 Ez. 8⁵³, cf. 2 Bar. 21⁹, see Death; deities in, Sib. Frag. 1²²; gates of, Wisd. 16¹³; god of death, Wisd. 1¹⁶; perish in, Sir. 17²⁷; pit of, Sir. 21¹⁰, see Pit, Sheol; relation to Dragon, 3 Bar. 4⁹; Haemus, mountains, Sib. 3⁴⁷⁴.
- Hagar, Jub. 14^{22,23} 17^{2,8,11,17} 19¹¹.
- Haggai. See Aggaeus.
- Haggi, Jub. 44²⁰.
- Hagiographa, Sir. Prologue 1*n*.; once quoted in Zad. § 8.
- †Hagu. See Book, References.
- Haiqar, Arabic name of Aḥīkar, passim.
- Halacha, earlier than those in the Mishnah, enunciated in Jubilees, Jub. § 15; none in Pirkē Aboth, P.A. § 2, 2, see Rule; severer in Zad. than in Talmud, Zad. § 6. See 7¹¹ n.
- Halachoth of Zadokites based on Prophets, Zad. § 9⁴⁰.
- Halaphta ben Dosa, P.A. 3⁸.
- Halicarnassus, 1 Macc. 15²³.
- Hallel, the, Wisd. 18⁹.
- Ham, Jub. 4³³ 7^{8,13} 8^{10,22,24,30} 9^{1,13} 10^{28,30} 22²¹ T.S. 6⁴; lot of, Jub. 8²². See Canaan.
- Hamadathus, Add. Esth. A¹⁷ E^{10,17}.
- Haman, Add. Esth. A¹⁷ B^{3,6} C^{5,28} E^{10,17} F⁴.
- Hamath, 1 Macc. 12²⁴ Jub. 10³³ 13².
- Hamor, Jub. 30² T.L. 2² 5⁴ 6^{3,4}.
- Hanselim, father of the king of Persia and Elam, Ah. 3⁷ (Syr.). See Achish, Akhi.
- Hananel, 1 En. 69².
- Hananiah, Azariah and Mishaël, 1 Macc. 2⁵⁹. See Three Children.
- Hananiël, Tob. 11⁸.
- Hanina, deputy of the priests, P.A. 3².
- Hanina ben Dosa, P.A. 3¹²⁻¹⁴.
- Hanina ben Hachinai, P.A. 3⁶.
- Hanina ben Teradion, P.A. 3³.
- Hanukka. See Chanukka.
- Haran, brother of Abraham, Jub. 12^{10,14,30} 13¹; land of, 12¹⁵, 28 13¹ 27^{3,19} 35^{10,12} (44¹ read Hebron) T.L. 2¹ T. Iss. 1⁶.
- Hares symbolize double livers, T.A. 2⁹.
- Harvest of evil, 4 Ez. 4^{28,29,30}; of good will be greater, 4 Ez. 4²⁹⁻³¹.
- Hasidaeans led by Judas Maccabaeus, 2 Macc. 14⁶. See Chasidim.
- Hasmonaean monarchy attacked, Ps. Sol. § 6, 17^{7,8} n.
- Hastening of times, 2 Bar. 20¹ 83¹.
- Hateful, three things, Sir. 25².
- Hatred, cure of, T.G. 5^{3,4}; evils of, 3²⁻⁵ 4⁶.
- Hazor, T.Jud. 3¹ 4³; plain of, 1 Macc. 11⁶⁷ n. See Aresa.
- Head, and not tail, Israel to be, Jub. 1¹⁶ 1 En. 103¹¹.
- Head of days. See God.
- Healing, 1 En. 95⁴; of body, 67³; of earth, 10⁷.
- Health, good, a blessing, Sir. 30¹⁴⁻²⁰.
- Heap. See Sea, Witness.
- Heart, 1 En. 14² 47⁴ 48⁴ 68³ 93⁶ 94⁵ 95¹ 96⁴ 98⁷ 99^{8,16} 104⁹; T.N. 2^{6,8}; clean, Jub. 12¹; double, 1 En. 91⁴; perfect, Zad. 17; place idols upon, 93⁴; stubbornness of, 3⁴ 4^{5,10} 9¹⁸, 27³⁴; uprightness of, 9²³; way of God's, 17.
- Heathen, conversion of, Tob. § 10 A (3), 13⁷⁻¹⁸ 14⁴⁻⁶; Conversion of, 2 Bar. 72⁴⁻⁶ 4 Ez. 13¹³ Ps. Sol. 17³²; lost because they openly spurn Law, 4 Ez. 72⁴; marriages, Tob. § 9, Wisd. 1¹ n., detested, Add. Esth. C²⁷; none saved, 4 Ez. 13³⁸ n.; wives put away, 1 Esd. 9⁹⁻³⁶. See Orgies, Unclean-ness.
- Heaven, 1 En. 6² 14^{3,11} 18³ 21^{2,3} 33² 45⁴ 47³ 55² 57² 61^{6,12} 69¹⁶ 78¹⁷ 79¹ 80^{1,2} 83^{3,11} 86^{1,3} 93^{12,14} 101^{1,8} 104^{2,6} 108^{5,10} T.R. 16⁵ 7⁶ T.S. 6⁴ T.L. 2⁶⁻⁹ 31⁹ 5¹ 13⁵ 14³ 18³⁻⁶ T.Jud. 21^{3,4} 24² 25² T. Iss. 7⁷ T. Jos. 12³ 19^{6(A)} T.B. 3^{1,8} 9⁵ 10⁷; children of = angels, 6² 14³; = righteous, 101¹; end of, 18¹⁴, see Ends; first, 91¹⁶, contrast New; five men from, appear to help Judas in battle, 2 Macc. 10^{29,30}, cf. 11⁶; = God, P.A. 1^{3,11} 4^{14,15}, cf. name of, 2^{2,16} 4⁵ 5²⁰; high, 12⁴ 39¹; high, holy, and eternal, 15³; host of, 104⁶, see Host; new, 1 En. 91¹⁶, see Creation; of heavens, 1⁴ 60¹ 71⁵; old Semitic conception of, 2 En. 10¹ n.; second, contains fallen Watchers ib., builders of Babel, 3 Bar. 3⁵⁻⁸; sins prevent looking up to, P. Man. 9; third, Paradise in, Apoc. Mos. 40². See Angels, God, Prophecy, Sacrifices, Sea, Temple.
- Heavenly archetypes of things on earth, Wisd. 9⁸ n.; bodies, observe their order, Sir. 16²⁷⁻²⁸, cf. 1 En. 2¹, Ep. Jer. 60 Ps. Sol. 18¹²⁻¹⁴; dispensation, to assist Jacob's deceit, Jub. 26¹⁸; hosts, ten orders of, 2 En. 20³ n.; Jerusalem, vision of, 4 Ez. 9²⁶⁻¹⁰⁶, ? = great mountain (or rock), 13^{6,7,35}, belongs to eternal order, available for righteous after Final Judgement, 8⁵², see Sion, revealed as a builded city, 10^{27,42,44}; ordinance to slay Shechemites, Jub. 30⁶; pattern of Holy City, 4 Ez. 10⁴⁹. See Luminaries, Tablets, Vision.
- Heavens, 1 En. 1² 18¹⁰ 39³ 41¹ 42¹ 47² 61¹⁰ 71^{1,8} 84⁴ 91¹⁶ 98⁶; and earth renewed, Jub. 1²⁹, see Creation; host of, 1 En. 61¹⁰; opened, T.L. 18⁶ T.Jud. 24²; plurality of, implied, 4 Ez. 3¹⁹ n.; powers
- of, 1 En. 91¹⁶, see Angels; seven, belief in, in Test. XII Patr., 2 Enoch, Ascension of Isaiah, 3 Baruch, Chagigah 12, 3 Bar. § 10; seven, 2 En. 3-21; first, 3-6; second, 7; third, 8-10; fourth, 11-17; fifth, 18; sixth, 19; seventh, 20, 21; (eighth to tenth, 21¹⁻²²); seven, T.L. 2⁷⁻³ (βΑβ); three, 2⁷⁻³ (αΑα).
- Hebrew, Abraham learns, Jub. 12^{26,27}; characters, Arist. 30, see Jewish; language, holy, Test. App. I 8⁶; Testament of Naphtali, see Naphtali; Text of Zadokite Frag., Zad. § 4; tongue, Arist. 38 4 Macc. 12⁷ 16¹⁵ Jub. 43¹⁵; the tongue of the creation, learnt by Abraham, see Abraham, Books of the fathers; translation from, difficulties of, Sir. Prologue 11 n. See Intros. to Books.
- Hebrew(s), 2 Macc. 7³¹ 11¹³ 15³⁷ Judith 10¹² 12¹¹ 14¹⁸ Jub. 39¹⁰ 47⁷ T. Jos. 12² 13³ Sib. 3⁶⁹ 5^{161,258} 4 Macc. 4¹¹ 5^{2,4} 8² 9^{6,18} 17⁹.
- Hebron, 1 Macc. 5⁶⁵ Jub. 13¹⁰, 12²¹ 14¹⁰ 16¹⁰ 19^{1,2,5} 22³ 24¹ 29¹⁹ 36²⁰ 37¹⁵ 45¹⁴ 46¹⁰ (see Haran) T.R. 7² T.S. 8² T.L. 9⁵ 19⁵ T.Jud. 2⁶ 4³ n. 26^{3,4} T. Iss. 7⁸ T.Z. 10⁷ T.N. 9¹ T.G. 1⁵ 8⁵ T.A. 81² T. Jos. 20^{6(C)} T.B. 12^{1(β)} 3 2 Bar. 47¹; as a seat of prophetic inspiration, 2 Bar. 47¹ 4 Ez. 9²⁶⁻²⁸ n.
- Hebron, son of Kohath, T.L. 12² Test. App. II 74.
- Hecataeus of Abdera, relation of Aristaeus' Letter to, Arist. § 5, 31 n.
- Hector, Sib. 3⁴²⁷.
- Heel, 1 En. 82²⁰.
- Hegemonides, 2 Macc. 13²⁴.
- He-He, ben, P.A. 5^{26,27}.
- Helemmelek, 1 En. 82^{13,16}.
- Helen and Paris, Sib. 2⁴¹³ n.
- Heliodorus, 2 Macc. 3^{7,8,13,22,25}, 26, 31-33, 35, 37, 40 4¹ 5¹⁸.
- Heliopolis, priest of, Jub. 40¹⁰ 44²⁴ T. Jos. 18³.
- Helkias, i.e. Hilkiah, a ruler of the temple, 1 Esd. 1⁸.
- Helkias, 1 Esd. 8¹.
- Helkias, ancestor of Baruch, 1 Bar. 1¹.
- Helkias, father of high priest Joakim, 1 Bar. 1⁷.
- Helkias, Sus. 2, 7, 29, 63.
- Hell, 1 En. 51¹ n. Sib. 4¹⁸⁶; and destruction, Ah. 8³⁸ (Arab.); or Hades, 2 En. 40¹³ n. 41¹ 42¹; the very lowest, 40¹² n. See Abyss, Gehenna, Sheol.
- Hellas, Sib. 3^{510,537,545,564,598,639}, 732, 810 4^{70,83} 5¹³⁷. See Greece.
- Hellenic tracts in Sirach, Sir. § 1.
- Hellenism, pioneer of evils to mankind, Sib. 3⁵⁵³.
- Hellenization of Jews enforced, 2 Macc. 6¹⁻³¹ 3 Macc. 2²⁸ n. Ass. Mos. 8³⁻⁵, cf. 1 Macc. 1¹⁰⁻¹⁵, 41-53; given up, 2 Macc. 11²⁵⁻²⁶; under Jason, 4 Macc. 4¹⁸⁻²⁰.
- Hellenizing, details of in 1 Macc.

INDEX

- gymnasium built, 1¹⁴; uncircumcision, 1¹⁵; circumcision forbidden, 1^{60,61}; covenant repudiated, 1¹⁵; sacrificing to idols, 1⁴³; sacrificing swine, &c., 1⁴⁷; unclean things eaten; profaning Sabbaths and feasts, 1^{43,45}; Law—books burned, 1⁵⁶, practices forbidden, 1^{43,67}; abomination of desolation set up, 1⁵⁴; influences, Zad. 9¹⁰⁻²⁰; priesthood attacked, §§ 9³⁰ 10i. Hellespont, Sib. 4⁷⁰ 5³³⁶. Hera, Sib. 3¹³⁶ 5¹⁴⁰. Heracles, Sib. 5⁸⁷; festival of at Tyre (high priest Jason sends money for sacrifice to), 2Macc. 4¹⁹. Heraclitus' views, Wisd. 1^{16n,2n}. Hereditary taint of character, Wisd. 3¹² 4³⁻⁶ⁿ. Heredity, 4Macc. 1⁵⁴ⁿ. Hermes, Sib. 5^{87,356}; the planet, 2En. 30³ⁿ. Heron, man, 3Macc. 5¹ &c. Hermon, mountain, Jub. 29¹⁰ 1En. 6⁶ⁿ 13⁷; where the angels who fell descended, 2En. 18⁴ (Ermon), cf. 1En. 62⁻⁶. See Aspis. Herod, 1En. 67⁸ⁿ. Ass. Mos. § 7; = an insolent king, Ass. Mos. 6²; =? Man of lies, Zad. § 6ii(b); sons of, § 6, see Alexander; successors of, Ass. Mos. 67ⁿ.; suppresses priesthood and Sadducees, Ass. Mos. 62ⁿ. Heshbon, Judith 5¹⁵. Hestia, Sib. 3¹²³. Heth, children of, Jub. 19^{4,5} 27⁸. See Hittite. Hexaemeron, fragment of an, 2Bar. 29⁴ⁿ. Hexapla. See Origen. Hezaqa, Jub. 34²⁰. Hezekiah, king of Judah, 2Macc. 15²² Sir. 48^{17,22} 49⁴ 2Bar. 63^{1,3,5} Mart. Is. 1^{1,7,10,12,13} 2^{1,3} 3^{3,4,5} (In 2¹² read Zedekiah) 4Ez. 7¹¹⁰; Testament of, Mart. Is. §§ 1, 5. Hezron, Jub. 44¹². Hierapolis, Sib. 3³⁴⁵ 5³¹⁸. Hiereel, 1Esd. 9²¹. Hieremoth, 1Esd. 9²⁷. Hieremoth, 1Esd. 9³⁰. Hiermas, 1Esd. 9²⁶. Hieronymus, 2Macc. 12². High, the Most. See God, titles of. High places, Jub. 1¹¹. High priest, Sir. 49¹⁵⁻⁵⁰ 24 1Bar. 1ⁿ. Arist. 1, 11, 32, 35, 41, 121; political power of, Sir. 45²⁴ⁿ.; succession, hereditary 45²⁵ⁿ. High-priesthood, hereditary, conferred on Simon Maccabaeus, 1Macc. 14⁴¹; confirmed by Demetrius II, 14³⁸. High priests, Maccabaeans, adopt title of Melchizedek, 'priest of the Most High God', Jub. 32¹ⁿ. T.L. 8¹⁴ Ass. Mos. 6¹. Hilkiah. See Helkias. Hillel, line of, P.A. § 1. Hilujaseph, 1En. 82¹⁷. Hinnom, valley of, 1En. 26^{4,5}. See Gehenna. Hippodrome at Alexandria, 3Macc. 4¹¹ &c. Hippodrome, the, T. Jos. 20^{3(B)}. Histories. See Book. History, earlier and later. See Moses. Hittite, Jub. 36². See Heth. Hittites; 1Esd. 8⁶⁹ T.S. 6³. Hivite, Jub. 30². Hivites, Jub. 14¹⁸. Holiness, counsel of, Zad. 9⁴⁸; perfection of, see Perfection. Hollow places (= Sheol), 1En. 22^{2,3,5}. Holofernes, Judith § 6 2^{4,14} 3⁵ 4¹ 5^{1,22,24} 6^{1,10,17} 7^{1,6,16,26} 10^{17,18} 20,21 11^{1,20,22} 12^{3,5,6,7,10,13,15,16} 17,20 13^{2,6,9,15} 14^{3,6,11,13,19} 15¹¹ 16¹⁹; slain by Judith, 13⁹. Holy, 1En. 1⁹ 9³ 12² 38⁵ 39^{1,4,5} 41² 43⁴ 45¹ 47^{2,4} 48^{1,9} 50¹ 51² 57² 58^{3,5} 60⁴ 61^{8,10,12} 62⁸ 65¹² 103² 106¹⁹; and common, Zad. 15¹; and profane, 8¹⁴; Holy City = Jerusalem, Sir. 24¹¹ 36¹³ Ps. Sol. 8⁴, see City; Land protects those who dwell in it, 2Bar. 29²ⁿ.; sanctified by God—the scene of Messianic salvation, 4Ez. 9⁸ⁿ. 12³⁴ 13^{48,49} 2Bar. 29² 40²; One, Sir. 4¹⁴ⁿ. 23⁹ 43¹⁰ 47⁸ 48²⁰ 1Bar. 4²² 5⁵—blessed be He, P.A. 4²⁹ 5⁶ 6^{11,12}, see God, titles of; one = Jacob, Azar. 12; ones of God = angels, Sir. 42¹⁶ T.L. 3³ Ps. Sol. 17⁴⁹; = angels of sanctification, Jub. 31¹⁴; of the Lord = Israel, Jub. 33¹² T.S. 6²; Place (= Jerusalem or Temple?), Jub. 1²⁰ Sib. 3³⁰⁸, see Sanctuary; Spirit, Mart. Is. 5¹⁴; of God bestowed on man, to be returned as pure as when received, Test. App. I 10⁹, see Spirit; things (= tithes), Zad. 8¹⁶, see Anointed One, City, Name, Sabbath, Spirit; in 1En.: used of angels, see Angels; Watchers, 1En. 15^{4,9}; of God: Holy, holy, holy, 1En. 39¹², Lord, 91⁷, name (of God), 9⁴ 108¹², One, see God; of heaven: heaven, 1En. 15³, eternal place, 1En. 12⁴; of men: and elect, 1En. 50¹, righteous and elect, 1En. 38⁴; of Temple: holy place, 1En. 25⁵. (Contrast 'holy eternal place' = 'heaven'.) Homer, borrowed from Sibyl, Sib. 3⁴¹⁹ⁿ 419-431. Honour, 1En. 50¹ 103⁶ 108^{11,12}; to whom due, Sir. 10¹⁹⁻²⁵; paid to wisdom, not wealth, 10³⁰⁻¹¹. Hoof, divided, symbol of discrimination, Arist. 150. Horeb, Sir. 48⁷. Horites, Jub. 37¹⁰ 38⁸. Horn, the great = Judas Maccabaeus, 1En. 90⁹ⁿ. Host (array) of heaven, P. Man. 2n.; = angels, P. Man. 15n.; of the heavens, 1En. 61¹⁰ 104⁶, cf. 1⁹ 60¹. See Angels. Hosts of Azazel punished, 1En. 54⁵ 55⁴; of God = angels, Sir. 24² 42¹⁶; of heaven, 17³². Houday, one of the king's sons who question Ahikar, Ah. 2¹⁰¹ (Arm.). See Baliayn. Hours, 1En. 89⁷²ⁿ, cf. 'periods', 1En. 90¹; 'times', 90⁵. See Times. House, build a sure, in Israel, Zad. 5⁵; of God = universe, 1Bar. 3^{24,25}; of instruction, Sir. 51²³ⁿ.; of Israel, the two houses of, Zad. 9⁴; of the Law = school or college, Zad. § 10 ii. 9^{35,38}; = Temple: of the Eternal, Sib. 3³²⁸; of the Great God, 3^{772,776}, see Temple; for the Great King, 1En. 91¹³, Lord of the Sheep, 1En. 89^{36,40}; of dominion, 1En. 93⁸; glory and dominion, 93⁷; of the sheep, 1En. 89⁵⁰⁻⁵⁶ 90²⁶; a new, 1En. 90²⁹; of worship = Temple or synagogue, Zad. § 4, 14². Hrotitz, Armenian month, Ah. 3^{9,12} (Arm.). See Ab, Nisan. Human flesh eaten, Wisd. 12⁵. Humble, Ps. Sol. 5¹⁴. Humility, P.A. 4^{3,4,12} 5²²; need of, Sir. 3¹⁷⁻²⁵; exhortation to, 7⁴⁻⁷. Hupim, Jub. 44²⁵. Hushim, Jub. 44^{28,29}. Hydaspes, Judith 1⁶. Hyenas = Ethiopians or (?) Syrians, 1En. 89⁵⁵ⁿ. Hymn in praise of Creation, Sir. 39¹²⁻³⁵. Hypocrite, Sir. 1²⁹ 32(35)¹⁵ⁿ. See Double-heart. Hyrcanus, John, 1En. 38⁵ⁿ. 103^{14,15n}.; king, establisher of new priesthood, and prophet, T.R. 68¹²ⁿ. T.L. 8¹⁴⁻¹⁵ notes; new priesthood of, T.L. 18² sqq., see Bath-qol, Messianic; regarded as Messiah in T. Lev. 18. See T.R. 6 T.L. 8. Hyrcanus II, Zad. § 6ii(c). Hyrcanus, son of Tobias, 2Macc. 3¹¹ⁿ. Iadinus, 1Esd. 9⁴⁸. Iapetus, Sib. 3¹¹⁰. Iassus, Sib. 3³⁴². Iberians, Sib. 5¹¹⁶. Ibn Samik, executioner, Ah. 4⁴ (Arab). See Abu Samik, Nabusemakh, &c. Idleness, Tob. 4¹³. Idol. See Adoil. Idol, command to offer to, Ah. 2⁷⁰ (Syr.); Bel, Ah. 6¹⁶ (Arab.). Idol temple, Bel 10n. Idolatry, 3Macc. 4¹⁶ 6¹¹ Wisd. 13-15; attacked, Arist. § 6, 134-7; commanded by Antiochus, 1Macc. 1⁴³; denounced, Wisd. § 1 Bel 5 Sib. Frags. 1, 3; by Abraham, Jub. 12¹⁻⁸ 21¹⁻⁶ 22¹⁷⁻²²; by Isaac, 36⁵; of Babylon, denounced in Ep. Jer. § 1; of Israel, Jub. 1¹¹; punished eternally, 2En. 10⁶; rise of, Jub. 11⁴⁻⁷; vanity of, Ep. Jer. 4-73. Idols, Zad. 9³⁴. Iduel, 1Esd. 8⁴³. Idumaea, 1Macc. 4^{15,61} 5³ 6³¹ Idumaeans, Arist. 107 2Macc. 10^{15,17}. Ieddias, 1Esd. 9²⁶. Ignorance, 4Macc. 15ⁿ.; and sin, 2En. 30¹⁶; an evil in itself, 30¹⁶ⁿ. Ijaka, Jub. 44²⁸. Ijasaka, Benjamin's wife, Jub. 34²⁰. Ijaska, Jub. 11⁹. Ijona, Jub. 34²⁰. Ijusasael, 1En. 82¹⁴. Iliadun, 1Esd. 5⁵⁸. Ilium, Sib. 3^{423,432}. Images, 1En. 65⁶ 99⁷, see Chiun; molten, Zad. 9⁴⁸. See Idolatry. Imagination, evil, Zad. 3². See Inclination, Yetzer. Imalkue the Arabian, 1Macc. 11³⁹ⁿ. [Immanuel. See Jesus Christ.] Immortality, Wisd. 3⁴ 4¹ 15³; denial of, 2²; of animals, 2En. 58⁵ⁿ.; of soul, Alexandrian Jews' doctrine of, 4Macc. § 9—righteous enter bliss at death, 10¹⁵ 13¹⁷ 16¹³ 17^{4,18} 18²³; wicked enter on eternal torture, 9^{9,32} 10^{11,15} 12¹⁹ 13¹⁵ 18^{5,22}; subjective, Wisd. 3¹⁵ⁿ. See Eternal, Future Life, Intermediate State, Treasures. Innah, Jub. 44²¹. Impurity, wickedness of, Sir. 23¹⁶⁻²⁷. Imputed Righteousness. See Merits, Righteousness. Incense, Tob. 6¹⁷ 8² Sir. 24¹⁵ⁿ. Incest, Zad. 7⁹⁻¹¹ 9¹⁷; laws concerning, Jub. 33¹⁰⁻²⁰; punished by burning, 41^{25,26,28}. Inclination, the, T. Jud. 18 T.N. 2⁵ T.G. 5³ T.A. 3² T. Jos. 2⁶ T.B. 6^{1,4}; of flesh and blood, Sir. 17³¹, see Tendency, Yetzer; the evil, to be shunned, Zad. 3¹⁻²; Watchers, all flesh, and Noah's sons fell through it, 3³⁻⁴; Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob walked not after, 4²⁻³; but sons of Jacob did, 4⁴⁻¹⁰. Inclinations, the two, good and evil, T.A. 13ⁿ. 15⁻⁹. See Yetzer. Independence, advantage of, Sir. 29²⁴⁻²⁸; not to be surrendered, 33¹⁹⁻²³ (30²⁸⁻³²). India, 1Macc. 8⁸ Add. Esth. B¹ E¹ Jub. 82¹ 92³. Indian, 1Macc. 6³⁸. Indians, Sib. 5^{195,206}. Individual responsibility. See Soul. Indocolpita, T. Jos. 11². Indus, 1En. 77ⁿ. Infanticide, Wisd. 12⁶; condemned, Sib. 3⁷⁶⁵. Informers, reward of, 3Macc. 3²⁸. Inhabitants of the earth, Zad. 11⁴ 2Bar. 25¹ⁿ. See Dwell. Inscription relating to sun and stars, discovered by Kainam, Jub. 8⁸. Insincerity hateful, Sir. 27²²⁻²⁴. Inspiratio = disembodied soul. See Souls. Inspiration, cup of, 4Ez. 14³⁹; intensifies natural faculties, 14⁴⁰. Intercession by departed, Onias and Jeremiah, 2Macc. 15¹²⁻¹⁶; by departed saints for the living denied, 2En. 53¹*n.*; by Moses, for Israel, Ass. Mos. 12⁹*n.*; no, on Day of Judgement, 4Ez. 7¹⁰²⁻¹¹⁵; of fathers, prophets, or righteous, 2Bar. 85¹². See Angels, Archangels, Prayer.

INDEX

Intercourse, danger of, with evil men, Sir. 9¹¹⁻¹³ 11²⁹⁻³³ 12¹³⁻¹³; with strangers, 11³⁴, see Associating; unnatural, Sib. 3^{185,596} 4³⁴ 5¹⁵⁶; Israel guilty of, Ps. Sol. 2¹⁵ 8¹⁰.

Intermediate agencies, not employed in bringing in the End, 4Ez. 5⁵⁶⁻⁶⁶*n.*; not allowed between departing soul and God, 7¹⁰²⁻¹¹⁵*n.* See Mediation, Transcendence.

Intermediate place, of happiness, 2Bar. 21²³*n.* 59¹⁰*n.*; of torment, 30⁵ 36¹¹ 52^{1,2}n. See Chambers, Immortality, Paradise.

Intermediate state, of righteous, souls in peace and joy, guarded in chambers, 4Ez. 7⁸⁸⁻⁹⁹ 89⁹*n.*; of wicked, souls in torment await Judgement, 4Ez. 7⁸¹⁻⁸⁷.

Interpretation, Zad. 2¹⁰ 6⁵ 8¹⁶. See Law, Meaning, Messiah, Midrash.

Involuntary birth and death, 2Bar. 14¹⁰ 48¹⁵ 4Ez. 8⁵.

Ioanit stations of light, 2En. 20¹*n.*(A). See Ostanim.

Ionians, Sib. 5²⁸⁸.

Iram, T. Jud. 8¹.

Isaac, 2Macc. 1² Tob. 4¹² Judith 8²⁶ Sir. 44²² 51¹²⁴¹ Azar. 12 Jub. 17⁶¹⁹ 15^{19,21} 16^{3,13,16,17} 17^{1,4,6,16} 18^{2,3,5,6,8} 19^{10,12,15,19,31} 20^{1,11} 21¹ 22^{1,2,3,5} 23^{4,5,7} 24^{1,14,15,19,20,25,27,28} 26^{1,3,5,14} 16-18, 21, 25, 27-29, 31-33 27^{8,9,12,14}, 18, 22 28²⁵ 29^{4,15,17,18} 31^{3-5,8,9}, 22, 25-27, 31, 32 32^{22,23,31} 33^{1,21-23} 34³ 35^{9,13} 36^{1,15,18} 37¹ 40¹² 44⁵ 45³; death of, 40¹²; T.R. 3¹³ T.L. 9^{1,6} 15⁴ 18^{6,14} 19⁵ T. Jud. 17^{5(dA)} 25¹ T.D. 7² T.N. 5² T.A. 7⁷ T.B. 1² 10^{4,6} Test. App. I 10² II 11, 12, Ass. Mos. 3⁹ 4Ez. 3¹⁶ 4Macc. 7^{14,19} 13^{12,17} 16^{20,25} 18¹¹; and Jacob, recorded as friends of God, members of the covenant for ever, Zad. 4³; sacrifice of, Wisd. 10⁵ 4Macc. 13² 16²⁰ 18¹¹; = 'a white bull', 1En. 89¹¹.

Isaac, an elder, Arist. 48.

Isaac, an elder, Arist. 49.

Isaelus, Arist. 50.

Isaiah, Sir. 48^{20,22} Mart. Is. 1^{2,6,7,11,13} 2^{7,10} 3^{1,6,8,12} 5^{2-4,7-9}, 11, 14 4Macc. 18¹³ Zad. § 8, 6⁹ 8⁹ 2A. Contrast 9^{2(B)}, which quotes Zechariah.

Isaiah, Martyrdom of: account, short, § 1; authorship, § 7; bibliography, § 9; date, § 6; extent, § 5; in Jewish and Christian literature, § 8; oriental influences in, § 8; original language, Hebrew, § 7; title, § 2; versions, § 3; their relations, § 4.

Isaiah, Vision of, Mart. Is. §§ 1, 5.

Isdael, 1Esd. 5³².

Isnbak, Jub. 19¹¹.

Ishmael, Jub. 14²⁴ 15^{18,20,23,30} 17^{2,4,17} 20^{1,11,12} 22^{1,3,4} 23^{6,7} 29¹⁸; children of, Judith 2²³; = wild ass in 1En. 89¹¹.

Ishmael ben Elisha, P.A. 3¹⁷.

Ishmael ben Johanan ben Berokah, P.A. 4⁶.

Ishmael ben Jose, P.A. 4^{9,10}.

Ishmaelites, Jub. 20¹³ 34¹¹ T.S. 2⁹ T.Z. 2⁸ 4^{3(a)} T.G. 2³ T.Jos. 10⁶ 11² 13^{3,7} 15¹ 16² T.B. 2³.

Ishvah, Jub. 44²¹.

Ishvi, Jub. 44²¹.

Isis, Sib. 5^{53,484}.

Islands, the Seven Great, 1En. 77³.

Isles = Gentiles, Sib. 3⁷¹⁰.

Ismael, 1Esd. 9²².

Ismaerus, 1Esd. 9³⁴.

Israel, ancestor of Judith, Judith 8¹.

Israel = Jacob, 1Esd. 8⁴⁷ Jub. 32¹⁷ 34¹⁶ 42^{15,17} 44^{1,8,9,12} 45^{1,3,6}, 13, 14 T.L. 14² Test. App. I 10¹⁰.

Israel = people, 1Esd. 1^{3,20,21,24}, 32, 33, 48 2³ 3^{37,41,46,48,60,61,71} 61, 14, 15 7, 4, 8, 9, 15 83, 7, 13, 59, 65, 69, 72, 89, 92, 96, 97, 37, 39 1Macc. 1^{11,20,25,30,36,43}, 62, 64 2^{15,42,46,55,70} 3^{1,8,10,35} 4¹¹, 25, 26, 30, 31 5^{3,45,59,63} 6^{18,21} 7^{5,22}, 26, 27 8¹⁸ 9^{20,21,23,27,51,73} 10^{46,61} 11^{23,41} 12⁵² 13^{41,42,51} 14^{11,26} 16² 2Macc. 1^{25,26} 4⁸ 5⁵ Tob. 1^{4,5,8} 5⁵ 14^{4,5,7} Judith 4^{9,11,12,15} 6^{2,17}, 21 8^{1,34} 9^{12,14} 12⁸ 13^{7,11,14} 14^{4,5}, 10 15^{4,9,10,12,13} 16^{1,8,24} Sir. Prologue 2, 17 17²⁴ 24⁸ 36¹² 44²³ 45^{5,11} 46¹ 47^{2,11,23} 48¹⁰ 50¹³ 51^{12,11,v} 1Bar. 2^{1,11,26,35} 3^{1,4,9,10,24,37} 4⁵, 5 7⁹ Add. Esth. C 2^{6,11,14,16} F 6, 10 Jub. 1²⁹ 3¹⁴ 15^{27,30,32} 16^{29,30} 18¹⁹ 23²³ 30^{5-10,13,14,16-18} 31^{15,19} 33^{14,18} 41¹⁷ (45³) 48^{5,7,8,13,14} 49⁶ 50^{5,9-11} Mart. Is. 2^{6,10,12} 3⁷ T.R. 10^{6,8,11} T.S. 6^{2,5} 7² T.L. 2¹⁰ 4³ 5^{2,6,7} 6^{3(β)} 7³ 8¹⁶ 10^{2,3} 14^{3,6(β)} 17⁵ 18⁹*n.* T. Jud. 12⁸ 17⁵ 21⁵ 22^{1,2} 25^{1,5} [T. Iss. 5⁸] T.Z. 4¹² 9⁵ T.D. 1⁹ 5^{4,13} 6^{2,4-7} 7³ T.N. 5⁸ 7¹⁸¹⁻³ T.G. 2⁵ 8¹ T.A. 7³ T.Jos. 12^{2(β-ad)} 18⁴ 19¹¹ 20^{5,6(c)} T.B. 10^{8,10,11} 11^{2(β)} 12^{3(β)} Test. App. II. 67, 72 Ass. Mos. 3⁸ 10⁸ 4Ez. 3¹⁹ 4²³ 5^{17,35} 7^{11,107} 8¹⁶ 9³⁰ 12⁴⁶ 14²⁸ Ps. Sol. 2²⁴ 4¹ 5²¹ 7⁸ 8^{32,34,40} 9^{1,2,16,19} 10⁸ 11^{2,7,8,9} 14³ 16³ 17^{5,23,47,50,51} 18^{1,4,6} 4Macc. 17²² (cf. 15²⁹) Zad. 1³⁻¹⁰ 5^{1,5,7} 6¹⁻¹⁰ 8¹⁻⁶ 9^{4,7,8,23-29,40-49} 11² 14⁸ 15^{1,3} 17³ 19^{8,13} 20¹. See Jacob.

Israel, a holy people and a blameless seed, Wisd. 10¹⁵*n.*; assemblies of, Ps. Sol. 10⁸; chastened as firstborn, only-begotten son, Ps. Sol. 18⁴; children of, 1Esd. 1^{5,19} 5⁴⁷ 7⁶, 10, 13 8⁵ 1Macc. 3^{15,41} 1Bar. 2²⁸ Judith 4^{1,8} 5²³ 6¹⁰ 7^{1,4,6,10,17,19} 10⁸ 15^{3,5,7,8} 16²⁵ Sir. 4^{16,17}, 22, 23 5¹ 12^{xvi} Jub. 1¹ 2^{26,27,29,33} 5¹⁷ 6^{11,13,19,20,22,32,34} 15^{29,34} 28⁷ 30^{11,21} 33¹³ 34¹⁸ 38¹⁵ 41²⁶ 44³⁴ 46^{1,2,5,9,12,13} 47^{1,10,11} 48¹⁴⁻¹⁶, 18, 19 49^{8,10,13-15,18,22} 50¹³; cities of, Zad. 15¹; congregation of, Jub. 49¹⁶; covenant with whole of, Zad. 19³; daughter(s) of, Sus. 48, 57 Jub. 30⁵; dispersed of

Ps. Sol. 83⁴ 9²; elect of, Jub. 1²⁹; glorious history of, Wisd. 11²⁻¹⁹; God forgave, Zad. 5⁴⁻⁶; God the sole ruler of, Jub. 15³²; contrast Gentiles; God's Firstborn, Sir. 36¹² Jub. 2²⁰ 4Ez. 6⁵⁸ Ps. Sol. 18⁴, own people, Ass. Mos. 1¹², portion, therefore under His direct rule, Sir. 17⁷*n.*, servant, Ps. Sol. 12⁷; history of, in Test. xii Patr.: to be redeemed, T.D. 6⁶; restored to own land, T.Z. 9⁸ T.A. 7⁷; cast away a second time, T.L. 15 T. Jud. 22² T.Z. 9⁹ T.N. 4⁵ T.G. 8², and again restored, T.L. 16⁵ T. Jud. 23⁵ T.N. 4⁵ T.A. 7⁴⁻⁷; all in Palestine under John Hyrcanus, T.R. 6⁸*n.*; captivity among Gentiles, T.L. 15¹ T. Jud. 23³ T.Z. 9⁶ T.D. 5⁸; dispersed among Gentiles, T.L. 10⁴ 16⁶ T. Iss. 6² T.A. 7^{2,6} T. Jos. 19²; go after abominations of Gentiles, T.D. 5⁵ T.N. 4¹ T.G. 8²; scorn of Gentiles, T.L. 10⁴ 14¹; rebellion of, foreseen, Jub. 1⁷, does not frustrate God's love, or nullify His covenant, 1⁵; turn to strange gods, 1⁸; walk after the Gentiles, and their uncleanness, 1⁹, see Captivity; house of, Ps. Sol. 9¹⁹ 10⁸; Jerusalem and Moses predestined for, Ass. Mos. 1^{14,17,18}; parties within, i. the righteous, poor, humble, god-fearing, &c., Ps. Sol. § 5; ii. the men-pleasers, profane, sinners, transgressors, unrighteous, § 5 notes; prayer for, Sir. 36¹⁻¹⁷ (33^{1-13a} 36^{16b-22}); righteous compared with heathen, Ps. Sol. 1² 2³⁷⁻⁴⁰; sceptre shall rise out of, Zad. 9⁸; seed of, Jub. 30⁹ Ps. Sol. 7⁸, solidarity of, in merit before God, Sir. 47¹²*n.*; sons of, Sus. 48; titles: a nation of righteous men, Add. Esth. A⁶; an evilly disposed people, B⁴; children of God, Sib. 5²⁰²; chosen people, Add. Esth. E²¹; God's firstborn, only-begotten, beloved, Sir. 36¹² Jub. 2²⁰ 4Ez. 6⁵⁸ Ps. Sol. 18⁴; people whom God made, Sib. 5⁵⁰²; sons of the Great God, Sib. 3⁷⁰²; sons of the Most High, Add. Esth. E¹⁶; unique,—elect of God 4Ez. § 10, 5²³⁻²⁷ 6⁵⁸ 8¹⁶; have covenant with God, 3¹⁴; Law given to, 3¹⁹ 9³¹; Law accepted by, alone, 7^{23,24,72}; love of God for, 5³¹⁻⁴⁰; world created for sake of, 4Ez. 6⁵⁵*n.* 59 7¹¹ Ass. Mos. 1¹² 2Bar. 14¹⁸ 15⁷ 21²⁴.

Israel and Aaron. See Aaron, Messiah.

Israelites, 1Macc. 1⁵⁸ Sus. 7, 28 4Macc. 18¹ Zad. 20¹⁰.

Issachar, Jub. 28²² 33²² 34²⁰ 38⁷ 44¹⁶ T. Jud. 25^{1,2} T. Iss. 1^{1,15}; single-hearted husbandman, T. Iss. 3-6*n.*

Issachar, son of Kohath, T.L. 12². Issues, the two, of action, T.A. 1³⁻²⁸.

Istalcurus, 1Esd. 8⁴⁰.

Isthmus, Sib. 5²¹⁶.

Italian, Sib. 3³⁵³ 4^{103,141}.

Italians, Sib. 3³⁵⁴.

Italy, 3^{464,470} 4^{104,116,119,130} 5¹³⁸, 160, 342, 448. See Latin, Rome.

Ithamar, 1Esd. 8²⁹.

Iv, Jub. 44^{30,31}.

Izhar, Test. App. II 74.

Jabbok, Jub. 29¹³.

Jabish, 2Bar. 5⁵.

Jachin, Jub. 44¹³.

Jacob, 2Macc. 1² Tob. 4¹² Judith 8²⁶ Sir. 23¹² 24^{8,23} 36^{11a} 45⁵ 46^{10,14} 47²² 49¹⁰ 51^{12x11} Wisd. 10¹⁰ 1Bar. 2³⁴ 3³⁷ 4³ Sus. 62 Jub. 17²³ 20²³ 61⁹ 19^{12-16,17,19,21,23,26,27,31} 22^{4,5,10}, 11, 16, 19, 20, 23, 26, 28 23¹⁻⁴ 24³⁻⁸ 25¹, 4, 12, 14 26^{5,7,10-13,15,17,18,25,30,35} 27^{1,4,6-9,12,13,18,19,22,25-27} 28²⁻⁶, 8, 9, 11, 13-16, 17, 19, 20, 22, 23, 25, 26, 28-30 29^{2,4-7,12,13,18,20} 30^{1,3,6,12,17,24} 31^{1,2,4-6,8,15,19,23,26,27,30,31} 32^{2,3}, 3, 16, 17, 20, 21, 25, 31, 34 33^{1,7-9,15,21-23} 34^{1,3,4,12,18} 35^{1,2,7-10,12,13,15-17}, 20, 22, 23, 25, 27 36^{1,14,18,20,23} 37^{1,2}, 12-16, 24 38^{1,2,9,12,14} 39^{1,2,5} 42^{4,10} 44^{2,5,18,19,23,27,33} 45^{2,3,5,15} 46^{1,2} T.R. 1⁶ T.S. 1^{2,7} 6² T.L. 7¹ 9¹ &c. Test. App. I 1²⁷ 3^{2,13} 4^{2,4,5}, 7, 9, 13 6² 10² II 1-9 Ass. Mos. 3¹ 4Ez. 3^{16,19,32} 5³⁵ 6^{8,9} 8¹⁶ 9³⁰ 12⁴⁶ Ps. Sol. 7⁹ 15¹ 4Macc. 2¹⁹ 7¹⁹ 13¹⁷ 16²⁵ Zad. 4^{3,4} 6¹⁰ 9⁴¹, see Isaac, Israel; a star out of, Zad. 9⁸; = 'a white sheep' in 1En. 89¹²; death of, Jub. 45¹⁵; descendants, number of, Jub. 44¹²⁻³³*n.*; house of, 1Macc. 1²⁸; i.e. people of Israel, 1Macc. 3^{7,45} 5²; seed of, 2Bar. 17⁴ 31³; sons of, Jub. 30^{6,12,23,26} 31^{9,15,16,18}, 21, 22 33^{22,23} 34^{12,20} 38^{9,10,13} 42⁴ 44^{11,18} 46⁹; symbolizes future age of incorruption, 4Ez. 6⁷⁻¹⁰*n.*

Jacob, an elder, Arist. 48.

Jacob, an elder, Arist. 49.

Jacob, Rabbi, P.A. 3¹⁰ 4^{21,22}.

Jacobus, 1Esd. 9⁴⁸.

Jaddus, 1Esd. 5³⁸.

Jahleel, Jub. 44¹⁷.

Jahziel, Jub. 44³⁰.

Jairus, 1Esd. 5³¹.

Jairus, Add. Esth. A¹.

Jambri. See Ambri.

James, Epistle of Saint, relation of to Sirach, Sir. § 7(a).

Jamin, Jub. 44¹³.

Jamnia, 1Macc. 4¹⁵ 5⁵⁸ 10⁶⁹ 15⁴⁰ 2Macc. 12^{8,32,40}; idols of, 12⁴⁰; sea of, T.N. 6¹. See Jemnaan.

Jannaeus. See Alexander.

Jannai, P.A. 4¹⁹.

'Jannes and Jambres,' quoted, Zad. § 8. See Jochanneh.

Japheth, Jub. 4³³ 7^{9,12,15} 8^{5,10}, 12, 25, 29 9⁷ 10³⁵; lot of, 8²⁵.

Japheth, borders of, Judith 2²⁵.

Jared, Jub. 4^{15,16} 1En. 6⁶ 37¹ 106¹³ 2En. 33¹⁰.

Jarimoth, 1Esd. 9²⁸.

Jasaelus, 1Esd. 9³⁰.

Jashar, Book of, quoted, T. Jud. 3-9 notes.

Jason, son of Eleazar, 1Macc. 8¹⁷.

Jason, 2Macc. 17^{4,8,10,13,18,22-24}, 26

INDEX

- 5^{5,6}; brother of Onias, supplants him in priesthood, 4⁸ⁿ; attacks Jerusalem, 1⁷ 5^{5,6}; high priest, 4Macc. 4^{16,17,18}; builds gymnasium, 4¹⁸.
- Jason of Cyrene, Maccabaeon history of in five books, 2Macc. an abridgement of, 2Macc. § 1 2²³.
- Jason, an elder, Arist. 49.
- Jason, an elder, Arist. 49.
- Jason. See Antipater.
- Jasub, Jub. 44¹⁶.
- Jasubus, 1Esd. 9³⁰.
- Javan, Jub. 7¹⁹ 9¹⁰ Test. App. I 9⁴; kings of = asps, Zad. 9²⁰.
- Jaxartes, 1En. 77⁷ⁿ.
- Jazer, 1Macc. 5⁸.
- Jebusite, Judith 5¹⁶.
- Jebusites, 1Esd. 8⁶⁹ Jub. 14¹⁸.
- Jechonias, king, Add. Esth. A³ 1Bar. 1^{3,9}. See Jeconiah.
- Jechonias, son of Jeelus, 1Esd. 8⁹².
- Jeconiah, king, 2Bar. 1¹ⁿ. See Jeconias.
- Jeconias, captain over a thousand, 1Esd. 1⁹.
- Jeddu, 1Esd. 5²⁴.
- Jedeus, 1Esd. 9³⁰.
- Jeeli, 1Esd. 5³³.
- Jeelus, 1Esd. 8⁹².
- Jehoahaz (Joachaz), king of Judah, 1Esd. 1³⁴.
- Jehoiachin, king of Judah, 1Esd. 1⁴³ (Joakim).
- Jehoiakim (Joakim), king of Judah, 1Esd. 1^{37,38,39}.
- Jehoshaphat, valley of, 1En. 26³ 53¹ⁿ. See Valley.
- Jemnaan = Jamnia, Judith 2²⁸. See Jamnia.
- Jemuel, Jub. 44¹³.
- Jephunneh. See Caleb.
- Jeon, 1En. 60⁴.
- Jerahmeel, Chronicles of, Bel § 4; quoted, T.Jud. 3-9 notes.
- Jerechu, 1Esd. 5²³.
- Jeremiah, Sir. 49⁷ 2Bar. 2¹ 5⁵ 9¹ 10^{2,4} 33¹ Zad. 9²⁸; accompanies captivity to Babylon in B², 10²ⁿ. 33²; does not accompany captivity in B¹, 10²ⁿ. 77¹²ⁿ; good works and prayers of, support Jerusalem, 2Bar. 2²; hides ark, tabernacle, and altar of incense, 2Macc. 2¹⁻¹²; lover of brethren, prayeth fervently for people and holy city, 15^{14sqg}. See Jeremy.
- Jeremiah, an elder, Arist. 50.
- Jeremias, son of Baani, 1Esd. 9³⁴.
- Jeremiel, i. e. Remiel, archangel, 4Ez. 4³⁶ⁿ.
- Jeremy, i. e. Jeremiah, 1Esd. 1²⁸, 32, 47, 57 2¹ Ep. Jer. 1.
- Jeremy, Epistle of, account, § 1; date, § 2; original language, Hebrew, § 3.
- Jericho, 1Macc. 9⁵⁰ 16^{11,14} 2Macc. 12¹⁵ Judith 4⁴ Sir. 24¹⁴.
- Jeroboam, Tob. 1⁵ 2Bar. 62¹ P.A. 5²¹; curse on, Sir. 47²³.
- Jerome, Sir. § 8; condemns apocryphal books of Esdras, 1Esd. § 2.
- Jerusalem, 1Esd. 1^{21,31,35,37,39,44}, 46, 49, 55 2^{4,5,7,8,10,15,16,18,27} 4^{43,47}, 48, 52, 57, 53, 63 5^{8,44,46,56,57} 6^{2,2,8,18}, 19, 20, 21, 24, 26, 30, 33 8^{5,6,10,12,13,14}, 15, 17, 25, 61, 81, 91 9^{3,5,37} 1Macc. 1^{14,20,35,44} 2^{1,6,18,31} 3^{34,35,45} 6^{7,12}, 26, 48 7^{17,19,27,39,47} 8²⁰ 9^{3,50,58} 10^{7,10,31,32,39,43,45,66,74,87} 11^{7,20}, 34, 41, 51, 62, 74 12^{24,35} 13^{2,10,39,49} 14^{18,36,37} 15^{28,32} 16²⁰ 2Macc. 1^{1,10} 3^{6,9,37} 4^{19,22,25} 5^{2,25} 6² 8³¹ 9⁴ 10¹⁵ 11^{5,8} 12^{9,29,43} 14²³ 15³⁰ Tob. 1^{4,6,7} 5¹⁴ 13^{8sq.16,5q.} 14^{4,5,7} (see New) Judith 1⁹ 4^{2,6,8} 5¹⁹ 10⁸ 11^{13,14,19} 13⁴ 15⁵, 8, 9, 18 Sir. 24¹¹ 36¹³ 47²³ 1Bar. 1^{2,7,9,15} 2^{2,23} 4^{8,30} 5^{1,5} Add. Esth. A³ F¹¹ Jub. 1^{28,29} Arist. 32, 35, 52 (cf. 'city'), 105 Mart. Is. 1⁹ 2^{4,7} 3^{1,3,4,6,10} 5⁸ T.L. 10^{3,5} T.Z. 9⁸ T.D. 5^{12,13} T.N. 5¹ 3Bar. Prolog. 2, 1³ 4Ez. 10^{20,48} Ps.Sol. 2^{3,13,14,20} 8^{4,17,19,21,23,26} 11^{2,3,8,9} 17^{16,17,24,33} 4Macc. 4^{3,22} 18⁵; attacked by Antiochus, 1Macc. 1²⁰; by Apollonius, 1²⁹; centre of earth, Jub. 8¹⁹ 1En. 26¹ Sib. 5²⁵⁰; citadel of, 1Macc. 13⁴⁸ 15²⁸; description of, Arist. 83-107; destruction of, a problem to the pious, 2Bar. and 4Ezra passim; earthly, removed for a time, 2Bar. 1⁴ⁿ. 6⁹ 32¹ 4Ez. 9³⁸⁻¹⁰²⁴ⁿ, to be restored in B¹, 2Bar. 1⁴ⁿ. 78⁷ⁿ, not to be restored in B², 1⁴ⁿ, symbolized by son of Disconsolate Woman, 4Ez. 10²⁹⁻⁵⁷ⁿ; Fall of, in A. D. 70, problem in 4Ezra, § 10(3), due to sins of both Judah and Israel, 2Bar. 77¹⁰ⁿ; heavenly, 2Bar. 4²⁻⁷, called 'mother', 3¹ⁿ, = pattern of Zion, 59⁴, shown to Abraham and Moses, 4^{4,5}, see New; holy, to be, Jub. 1²⁸; invaded, 4Macc. 4⁵⁻²³; lament over desecration of, 1Macc. 2⁶⁻¹⁴; New, Tob. 13⁷⁻¹⁸ 14⁵ T.D. 5¹²; = a new house, 1En. 90²⁹; to be the Heavenly City, 4Ez. § 10, 7²⁶ 10^{25sqg.}; is builded for the righteous, 8⁵²; offerings at, after destruction of Temple, 1Bar. §§ 4, 8; Philopator's visit to, 3Macc. 1^{9sq.} 3^{16sq.} 5⁴³; predestined as the place of worship to God, Ass. Mos. 1^{17,18}; sanctity of, 3Macc. 2⁹ 6⁵; sanctity of, recognized by Demetrius I, 1Macc. 10³¹; sons of, Ps.Sol. 2³; titles of = the city of my righteous, 1En. 56⁷; the holy city, Ps.Sol. 8⁴; = the holy place, 1En. 2⁵ⁿ; = the house (of the sheep), 89^{50,51,56} 90²⁶; the uppermost, ? = the heavenly, Enoch's eternal inheritance, 2En. 55². See City, David, Solyma.
- Jerusalemite, 2Macc. 14³⁷.
- Jerusalemites, 2Macc. 4⁹ 8³⁶.
- Jeshua Ben-Sira, the author of Sirach, Sir. § 6; a scribe and teacher of wisdom, had travelled, § 6i.
- Jeshua, son of Eleazar, son of Sira, Sir. 50²⁷ⁿ, cf. 51³⁰. See also Simeon, son of Jeshua.
- Jeshua (Jesus), son of Josedek, Sir. 49¹².
- Jeshurun, i. e. Israel, Sir. 37²⁵ⁿ.
- Jesias, 1Esd. 8³³.
- Jesias, Arist. 49.
- Jesse, Sir. 45²⁵.
- Jesus, grandson of Sira, Sir. Prologue. See Jeshua.
- Jesus = Jeshua, son of Josedek, 1Esd. 5^{5,48,56,58,68,70} 6² 9¹⁹.
- Jesus, 1Esd. 5⁸.
- Jesus, 1Esd. 5¹¹.
- Jesus, 1Esd. 5²⁴.
- Jesus, 1Esd. 5²⁶.
- Jesus, a priest, 1Esd. 8⁶³.
- Jesus, 1Esd. 9⁴⁸.
- Jesus, father of Habakkuk, Bel 1.
- Jesus, an elder, Arist. 48.
- Jesus, an elder, Arist. 49.
- [Jesus Christ . . . Immanuel, 3Bar. 4¹⁵.]
- Jetrel, 1En. 69².
- Jew, 1Macc. 2²³ 2Macc. 6⁶ 9¹⁶ Bel 28 Add. Esth. A².
- Jewish additions to Testaments, Test. § 12; books, Arist. 28; captives, 4, 22, 33; characters, 3, 30, see Hebrew; community, 310; envoys, guests, 182, 183; factions, 4Macc. 4¹; garrisons in Egypt, 3Macc. 3²¹ⁿ; high priest, Arist. 11; literature, 121, post-Biblical and pre-Christian, Zad. § 4; marriages, Tob. 4¹²; nation, 2Macc. 10⁸; people, 2Macc. 5²²; population of Alexandria, Arist. 308; priests, 184; race, 6, 15; religion, 4Macc. 5⁶; residents, 12³; slaves, 2Macc. 8¹¹; soldiers, 1Macc. 11⁴⁷; subjects, 2Macc. 11²⁴.
- Jewry, i. e. Judaea, 1Esd. 1³² 4⁴⁹ 5^{7,8,57,61} 8⁸¹ 9³ Bel 33.
- Jews, 1Esd. 1²¹ 2^{18,23} 4^{49,50} 6^{1,5}, 8, 27 7² 8¹⁰ 1Macc. 4¹ 8^{20,23,24,27}, 29, 31 10^{23,25,33,34,36} 11^{30,33,47,49}, 50, 51 12^{3,8,21} 13³⁶ 14^{20,33,34,36,37}, 40, 41, 47 15^{1,17} 2Macc. 1^{1,7,10} 2²¹ 3^{30,32} 4^{11,35,36} 5^{24,25} 6^{1,8} 8^{10,35,36} 9^{4,7,15} 10^{12,14,15,24,30} 11^{2,15,16,17}, 30, 34 12^{1,4,8,17,28,30,34} 13^{9,18,21,23,25} 14^{5,6,14,15,37,39} 15^{2,12} Tob. 11¹⁸ Sus. 4 Add. Esth. E^{15,19} F⁵ Arist. 1, 3, 11, 12, 22-24, 30, 35, 38, 53, 83, 182, 305 Sib. 4¹²⁶ 5²⁸; Antiochus promises to make equal to citizens of Athens, 2Macc. 9^{15,18,19}; apostate, 3Macc. 2³¹ 3²³ 7¹⁰; charges against, 3^{3sq.}; Egyptian, persecution of, 2²⁸ &c.; deliverance of, 6^{16sq.}; embassy of, to Philopator, 1⁸; fidelity of, to Ptolemies, 3^{3,21} 5³¹ 6^{25sq.} 7^{7sq.}; numbers of, in Egypt, 4¹⁷; of Joppa, massacred, 2Macc. 12¹⁴; of Jamnia, 12⁸, see Tubieni, 12¹⁷; political subjection of, Zad. § 6ii; prevent Philopator entering the Temple, 3Macc. 1^{11sq.}.
- Jezebel, 2Bar. 62³.
- Jezelus, 1Esd. 8³².
- Jezer, Jub. 44³⁰.
- Jezielus, 1Esd. 9²⁷.
- Joab, 1Esd. 5¹¹.
- Joab, 1Esd. 8³⁵.
- Joachaz, i. e. Jehoahaz, son of Josiah, 1Esd. 1³⁴. See Jehoahaz.
- Joadanus, 1Esd. 9¹⁹.
- Joakim, i. e. Jehoiachin, 1Esd. 1⁴³ 1Bar. 1³.
- Joakim, i. e. Jehoiakim, king, 1Esd. 1^{38,39}.
- Joakim, son of Zorobabel, 1Esd. 5⁵.
- Joakim, Sus. 1, 4, 7, 8, 28, 29, 63.
- Joakim, high priest, 1Bar. 1⁷.
- Joakim the high priest, Judith § 6, 4^{6,8,14} 15⁸.
- Joannes, 1Esd. 8³⁸.
- Joarib, sons of, 1Macc. 2¹ 14²⁹.
- Job, Sir. 49⁹ⁿ.
- Jobab, son of Zara, Jub. 38^{17,18}.
- †Jobel, T.Jud. 6¹.
- Jochanan, Sir. 50¹ⁿ.
- Jochanan ben Zaccai, 1Bar. § 7. See Johanan.
- Jochanneh and his brother, raised by Belial (to oppose Moses), Zad. 7¹⁹. See Jannes.
- Jochebed, Jub. 47⁸ T.L. 11⁸ 12⁴ Test. App. II 72, 75, 77.
- Joda, 1Esd. 5⁵⁸.
- Joel, archangel, S. A. & E. 31¹ 32^{1,2} Apoc. Mos. 43⁵.
- †Joel, mount, Mart. Is. 2¹⁵ⁿ.
- Joel, prophet, Mart. Is. 2⁹.
- Johanan ben Berokah, P.A. 4⁵.
- Johanan ben Zaccai, P.A. 2⁹⁻¹³. See Jochanan.
- Johanan the sandal-maker, P.A. 4¹⁴.
- John, surnamed Gaddis, a Maccabee, 1Macc. 2⁹ 9^{36,38}.
- John, father of Eupolemus, 2Macc. 4¹¹.
- John Hyrcanus I, son of Simon, 1Macc. § 4, 13⁵³ 16^{1,2,9,19,21,23}; breach with Pharisees, Test. §§ 1, 10; escapes massacre, 1Macc. 16²²; a History of, mentioned by Sixtus Senensis, 16²⁴ⁿ; Messianic hymns to, Test. § 1. See Hyrcanus.
- John, the Maccabee. See Joseph.
- John, envoy, 2Macc. 11¹⁷.
- John, an elder, Arist. 47.
- John, an elder, Arist. 49.
- John, an elder, Arist. 50.
- John of Anathoth, Mart. Is. 2⁵.
- Jokshan, Jub. 10¹¹.
- Jomjael, 1En. 6⁷.
- Jonah, 3Macc. 6⁸.
- Jonas, 1Esd. 9¹.
- Jonas, 1Esd. 9²³.
- Jonathan, 1Esd. 8³².
- Jonathan, son of Azael, 1Esd. 9¹⁴.
- Jonathan, son of Saul, 1Macc. 4³⁰ P.A. 5¹⁹.
- Jonathan, son of Absalom, 1Macc. 13¹¹.
- Jonathan Maccabaeus, called Aphphus, 1Macc. 2⁵ 5^{17,24,55} 9^{19,28,31,33,37,43,58,60,62,65,70,73} 10³, 7, 9, 10, 15, 18, 21, 29, 46, 59, 62, 66, 69, 74, 76, 79, 80, 84, 86, 87, 88 11^{5,6,7,20-23,28-30}, 37, 41, 42, 44, 53, 57, 60, 62, 63, 67, 69, 71, 74 12^{1,3,5,6,24,27,28,30,36,40,44,49,52} 13¹⁴, 15, 23, 25 14^{16,18,30} (killed, 13²³) 2Macc. 8²² 1En. 90⁸ⁿ; succeeds Judas as leader, 1Macc. 9²³⁻³¹; struggle of, with Bacchides, 9³²⁻⁷³; has centre of government at Michmash, 9⁷³ⁿ; victory of, over Apollonius of Coelesyria, 10⁶⁷⁻⁶⁹; secures favour of Demetrius II, 11²⁰⁻³⁷;

INDEX

assists him against Tryphon, 11³⁸⁻⁵³; makes friends with Antiochus VI, 11⁵⁴⁻⁷⁴; renews alliance with Rome, allies himself with Sparta, defeats Demetrius's men, 1Macc. 12¹⁻³⁸; captured by treachery, 12³⁹⁻⁵³; buried at Modin, 13²⁵⁻³⁰.

Jonathan, a high-priest, 2Macc. 1²³.

Jonathan, an elder, Arist. 48.

Jonathan, an elder, Arist. 49.

Jonathan, P.A. 4¹¹.

Jonathes, Arist. 50.

Joppa, 1Esd. 5⁵⁵ 1Macc. 10^{75,76} 11⁶ 12³⁴ 13¹¹ 14^{5,34} 15^{28,35} 2Macc. 4²² 12^{3,4,7} Arist. 115 Sib. 5²⁵¹.

Joram, captain over a thousand, 1Esd. 1⁹.

Jordan, 1Macc. 5^{24,52} 9^{34,42,43,45,48,49} Judith 1⁹ 5¹⁵ Sir. 24²⁶ Jub. 10²⁹ 16⁵ 29¹⁴ 50⁴ Arist. 116 A. & E. 6² 7² 8¹ [42³] S. A. & E. 36⁴ 39¹ Ass. Mos. 1⁴; = 'a stream of water', 1En. 89³⁷ⁿ.

Joribus, 1Esd. 8⁴⁴.

Joribus, 1Esd. 9¹⁹.

Josab, son of Isaiah, Mart. Is. 1^{2,6} 2⁹.

Josabudus, 1Esd. 8⁶³.

Josaphias, 1Esd. 8³⁶.

Jose ben Halaphta, P.A. 4⁸.

Jose ben Joezer, P.A. 1⁴.

Jose ben Johanan, P.A. 1^{4,5}.

Jose ben Judah, P.A. 4²⁶.

Jose ben Kisma, P.A. 6¹⁰.

Jose the Priest, P.A. 2^{10,12,13,16}.

Josedek. See Jesus, Jeshua.

Joseph, patriarch, 1Macc. 2⁵³ Sir. 49¹⁵ Wisd. 10¹³ Jub. 28²⁴ 29¹ 33²² 34^{3,10,12,13,15,17,18,20} 39^{2-5,7,11-18} 40^{2,5,8-13} 41²² 42^{5,10,13,21,25} 43^{1,2,8-10,14,23,24} 44^{3,6,9,23,24,32} 45^{2,3,6-9,12,14} 46^{1,2,3,8,9} (death of, 46⁹) 1En. 89¹³ⁿ T.R. 1² 4⁸ 6⁷ T.S. 1¹ 2^{6,13,14} 4^{2,4,5} 5¹ 8^{3,4} T.L. 12⁷ 13⁹ T.Jud. 12¹¹ 25^{1,2,5(a)} T.Z. 1^{1,5,6} 2^{1,5,6,8} 3^{1,2(β)5,6} 4^{2,9,11} 5⁴ 8⁴ T.D. 1^{4,7,8} T.N. 1⁸ 5⁷ 6⁶ 7²⁻⁴ T.G. 1^{4,6,8,9} 3³ 5^{6,11} 6² T.Jos. 1^{1,2} 20^{6(c)} T.B. 1⁴ 2¹ 3^{1,3,6} 5⁵ 10¹ Test. App. I 1^{8,10} 2⁷ 3^{1-4,7,9,11-13} 4¹³⁻¹⁵ 5²⁻⁵ 6^{4,8} 7⁴ II 82, 90 4Macc. 2² 18¹¹; bias against, in Late Hebrew Test. of Naphtali, Test. App. I 1⁸ 4¹⁴ 5⁵ 6^{4,8} 7^{4,6}; cause of bondage in Egypt, Test. App. I 1¹⁰; death of, T.R. 1² T.S. 1¹ T.L. 12⁷; example, held up as, or praised, T.R. 4⁸ T.S. 4^{4,6} 5¹ T.L. 13⁹ T.Z. 8⁴ T.D. 1⁴ T.N. 1⁸ T.B. 3^{1,6-7} 5⁵; rides on bull, and demands ten staves (= tribes) from Judah, Test. App. I 3¹⁻⁸; shuns shaming his brethren, T.Jos. 10⁶ 11² 15³ 17¹; sons of, cause Israel to sin, Test. App. I 1¹⁰; steers ship of Jacob and wrecks it, Test. App. I 5¹⁻⁵; suppresses truth to save eunuch, T.Jos. 16⁶; three days and three nights in the pit, T.Z. 4^{4(βAS1)}; virtue of, 4Macc. 2² 18¹¹.

Joseph, son of Zacharias, a Maccabean leader, 1Macc. 5^{18,56,60}.

Joseph, i.e. John the Maccabee, 2Macc. 8²²ⁿ 10¹⁹.

Joseph, son of Oziel, Judith 8¹.

Joseph, an elder, Arist. 47.

Joseph, an elder, Arist. 47.

Joseph, an elder, Arist. 49.

Joseph, an elder, Arist. 50.

Josephus, son of Ezora, 1Esd. 9³⁴.

Josephus, 1Macc. § 7iii(c); relation of 3Macc. to, 3Macc. § 5; 4Maccabees attributed to, 4Macc. § 7.

Josephus, 'the Hebrew', 4Macc. § 8.

Joshua, Moses' successor, 1Macc. 2⁵⁵ 2Macc. 12¹⁵ Sir. 46¹ Ass. Mos. 1^{6,9} 10^{11,15} 11^{1,3} 12^{1,3,8} 2Bar. 59¹ 4Ez. 7¹⁰⁷ P.A. 1¹ Zad. 7⁵; and the Judges, the time of, 1En. 89³⁹ⁿ.

Joshua, the high priest, 1En. 89⁷²ⁿ.

Joshua ben Hananiah, P.A. 2^{10,12,13,15}.

Joshua ben Levi, P.A. 6².

Joshua ben Perahiah, P.A. 1⁶.

Josiah, king of Judah, 1Esd. 1^{1,7,18,21,22,23,24,25,28,32,33,34} Sir. 49^{1-3,4} 1Bar. 1⁹ 2Bar. 66¹ 4Ez. 13⁴⁰; Passover of, 1Esd. 1¹⁻²².

Josias. See Josiah.

Joy, 1En. 10¹⁶ 47⁴ 51⁵ 69²⁶ 103³ 104⁴.

Jozabudus, 1Esd. 9²³.

Jozabudus, 1Esd. 9²⁹.

Josabudus, 1Esd. 9⁴⁸.

Jubilees, Book of, 1En. 7^{2,5n} 16ⁿ 98¹¹ⁿ Testaments, Appendix II notes Zad. §§ 6, 8, 12, 20ⁿ; abbreviations and symbols in, Jub. § 18; account, § 1; author and his object, § 2; bibliography, § 16; date, § 9; influence on N.T., § 15; MSS., § 3; relation of to 1Enoch, 1En. § 10(a); relation of to Massoretic text of Genesis, § 8; textual affinities, § 7; theology, § 16; title, § 2; versions, § 4, Eth. and Latin from Greek, § 5; Greek from Hebrew, § 6.

Jubilees, Jub. Prologue, 1¹⁴ and passim.

Jubilees, laws regarding, Jub. 50¹⁻⁵.

Judaea (see also Jewry), 1Esd. 1^{26,33,37,39,46} 2^{4,5,16} 4⁴⁵ 5⁷² 6^{8,27,28} 8¹² 1Macc. 3³⁴ 4^{29,35} 5^{8,18,23,59} 6^{48,53} 7^{24,46} 9^{50,60,63} 10^{38,45} 11^{20,28,34} 12³⁵ 13³³ 14³³ 15^{30,39,40} 16¹⁰ 2Macc. 1^{1,10} 5¹¹ 8⁹ 10²⁴ 11⁵ 13^{1,13} 14^{12,14} Tob. 1¹⁸ Judith 1¹² 3⁹ 4^{1,3,7} 8²¹ 11¹⁹ Add. Esth. A² Arist. 4, 12, 83, 107, 318 Mart. Is. 1⁹ Sib. 5^{263,329}.

Judah, land of, 1Esd. 1^{33,35} Judith 14⁷ Sir. 48¹⁵ 49⁴; Zad. 6^{1,7} 8⁶ 9³ [9⁴] 9⁴⁹; animus against in Zad. Frag. § 12, cf. 9¹³; Ephraim departed from, 9³ 16¹¹; house of, no more join, 6⁷; land of, go forth out of, 6¹ 8⁶; princes of, 9¹³; daughter of, Sus. 22, 56, 57 1Bar. 1^{3,8,9,15} 2^{1,23,26} Mart. Is. 1¹ 2^{6,7} 3^{3,6,7,10,11} 5⁸; 1Macc.

1²⁹ 2^{6,18} 3^{8,39} 5^{45,53,68} 6^{5,12} 7^{10,22,49} 9^{1,57,72} 10^{30,33,37} 12^{4,46,52} 13^{1,12}; son of Jacob, T.R. 1⁴ 6^{7,11} T.S. 2^{9,11} 5⁶ 7^{1,2} T.L. 2¹¹ 8¹⁴ 9¹ T.Jud. 1^{1,3} 13¹ 17³ 18² 26^{4(β)} T.Iss. 5⁷ T.Z. 4² T.D. 5^{4,7,10} T.N. 5³⁻⁵ 6⁶ 8² T.G. 1^{6,9} 2^{3(a)} 8¹ T.Jos. 19^{8,11} T.B. 11^{2(c)} Test. App. I 1⁸ 2⁴ 3⁴⁻⁹ 4^{3,12} 5³⁻⁵ 6^{2,4} II 3 Jub. 28^{15,17} 31^{5,9,12,18,31} 33²² 34^{3,20} 38^{1,5} 41^{1-4,6-9,13,14,16,19,23,27,28} 42¹⁹ 43¹¹ 44^{9,15,34}; blessing of, Jub. 31¹⁸⁻²⁰; exploits of, T.Jud. 2-7; forgiven for sin of ignorance, Jub. 41²⁵; sins with Tamar, T.Jud. 12; to be king, T.S. 7² T.Jud. 1⁶ 17⁵⁻⁶ 22³.

Judah, tribe of, 1Esd. 2⁸ 5^{5,66} 9⁵ Sir. 42²⁵; Levi and, see Levi.

Judah ben Illai, P.A. 4¹⁶.

Judah ben Tabbai, P.A. 1⁸ Zad. § 9³⁰.

Judah ben Tema, P.A. 5^{23,34}.

Judah the Holy. See Rabbi.

Judaism, 2Macc. 8¹ 14³⁸; and apocalyptic, 1En. § 1.

Judas, 1Esd. 9²³.

Judas, 2Macc. 1¹⁰.

Judas, an elder, Arist. 47.

Judas, an elder, Arist. 49.

Judas, an elder, Arist. 50.

Judas ben Tabbai. See Judah.

Judas, son of Chalphi, 1Macc. 11⁷⁰.

Judas Maccabaeus, 1Macc. 2^{4,66} 3^{1,10,12-14,16-18,25,26,42,55,58} 4^{3,5,6,8,11,16,19,21,23,29,35,36,41,59} 5^{3,10,16,17,19,24,27,31,38,40,42,44,45,48,49,53,55,62,63,65,68} 6^{19,32,42} 7^{6,10,23,25,28,29,30,31,35,40} 8^{1,17} 9^{5,7,10,12,14,16,18,19,22,23,26,28,29,31} 13⁹ 14¹⁸ 2Macc. 2¹⁹ 5²⁷ 8^{1,12} 12^{5,11,12,14,15,21-23,26,36,38,39,42} 13^{1,10,12,20,23} 14^{1,6,10,11,13,14,17,18,24-26,30,33} 15^{1,6,15,17,26} 1En. 90⁹ⁿ 10⁻¹²; Macca-baeus, 1Macc. 8²⁰ 2Macc. 8^{5,16} 10^{1,16,18,21,25,29,33} 11^{6,7,15} 12^{19,20} 13²⁴ 14^{27,30} 15^{7,21}; campaigns of, 10⁹⁻³⁸ 12¹⁻⁴⁵; collects books, 2¹⁴; death of, 1Macc. 9¹⁸, result of, 9²²; regarded as Messiah in 1En. 83-90; revolt and early successes of, 2Macc. 8¹⁻³⁶; song in praise of, 1Macc. 3¹⁻⁹; victories over Apollonius and Seron, 3¹⁰⁻²⁶, Gorgias, 4¹⁻²⁵, Lysias, 4²⁶⁻³⁵, Edomites and Ammonites, 5¹⁻⁸, in Gilead, 5⁹⁻⁶⁸.

Judas, son of Simon the Maccabee, 1Macc. 16^{2,9,14}.

Jude, Saint, Epistle of, Ass. Mos. §§ 2, 10 1En. § 10(β), 1⁹.

Judge, judgement, P.A. 1^{1,6,8,18} 3²⁰ 4^{9,10,29}.

Judge, no, Zad. 9⁴⁰; the, 20¹².

Judgement, according to works, Sir. 16¹⁴; at end of Messianic kingdom, before spiritual bliss of righteous, Jub. 23³⁰ⁿ; by sword at beginning of Messianic age, Wisd. 4¹⁸ⁿ; conceptions of in 1Enoch: (1) First World Judgement:—over men = Deluge, 1En. 54⁷⁻¹⁰; 'a great chastisement', 91⁵; 'the first end', 93⁴; earth and dwellers thereon destroyed, 10² 106¹⁵;—over fallen angels and giants, 10^{4,6,12,15}; (2) Judgement of the sword at the beginning of the Messianic kingdom when righteous destroy the wicked, 50² 90¹⁹ 91¹² 95⁷ 96¹ 98¹²; (3) Final World Judgement at the beginning of the Messianic kingdom;—over Azazel and his hosts, 54⁶ 55⁴;—over their elect and beloved children, 56³;—over the fallen stars, the seventy shepherds, and the blinded sheep, 90²⁰⁻²⁷; 'the great day', 22¹¹ 54⁶; 'the great judgement', 10⁶ 16¹ 19¹ 22⁴; 'the judgement that is for ever and ever', 10¹²⁰; (4) Final World Judgement at the close of the Messianic kingdom:—'great judgement', 94⁹ 98¹⁰ 100⁴ 103⁸ 104⁵; (2) and (3) are combined in 48⁸⁻¹⁰; (2) and (4) are combined in 99^{9,15}, see also Day, Messianic Kingdom, Punishment; conceptions of, in 4Ez.; according to works, 8³³; by God Himself, 7³³; day of, no intercession on, 7¹⁰²⁻¹¹⁵; Final, 7³³⁻⁴⁴ 6¹⁸ 8³⁸; predestined by God, 7⁷⁰; sets in at once after death, 7⁷⁵⁻¹⁰¹, see Intermediate State; conceptions of, in Jubilees:—final, at close of Messianic kingdom, Jub. § 15, 23³⁰; embracing human and superhuman worlds, 5^{10,14}; impartial, according to opportunities, 5¹⁵; Lex talionis observed by God in this world, 4³¹ (Cain), 48¹⁴ (Egyptians); punishment to follow at once on transgression in some cases, 37¹⁷; retribution, individual and national in this world and next, § 15; day of, Judith 16¹⁷; Wisd. 3¹⁸ 4²⁰ (by righteous, 3⁷; by God Himself, 5¹⁷) Jub. 22²¹ 23¹¹ 36¹⁰ T.L. 3³ 3Bar. 1⁷ⁿ Ps. Sol. 15¹³; definite reckoning for, 2Bar. 27¹⁻²⁸ 2En. 32²⁻³³ 67⁷⁻¹⁰; eternal, 1En. 91¹⁵ 104⁵, cf. 10¹²; final, 2Bar. 48³⁹ 59⁸ T.L. 4¹ T.B. 10⁸⁻¹⁰; great, 1En. 16¹ 22⁴ 25⁴ 91¹⁵ 94⁹ 98¹⁰ 100⁴ 103⁸ 104⁵; grievous, 91⁹; of angels, 6⁸²; of fire, 91⁹; of God, 1^{7,9} 14⁴ 22^{10,11,13} 45⁶ 47² 50⁴ 60^{6,25} 63^{8,12} 65¹⁰ 66¹ 67¹⁰, 12,13 68^{2,3,5} 69^{1,27} 81⁴ 83¹¹ 84⁴ 90^{24,31} 91⁷ 93⁵ 91^{14,15} 95^{2,3} 96⁸ 97^{3,5} 98^{8,10} 99¹⁵ 100¹⁰ 103^{6,8} 104³ 108¹³ 4Ez. 7^{44,70,73,115} 8¹⁸ 14³⁵ Ps. Sol. 2^{16,18,36,37} 8^{7,38} 9¹⁰ 15^{13,14} Ah. 2⁹¹ Zad. 1² 9^{12,36,48,51,52} 10¹² A. & E. 29^{7,10}, certain, Sir. 35^{17,18}, denounced on Antiochus, 2Macc. 7³⁵, on Nicanor, 8¹¹ 15²⁸⁻³⁵, forms of, Sib. § 8; of Mighty God, 3⁶⁸⁷; = assizes of the world, 4⁴¹, follows on destruction of world, 4¹⁷⁹⁻¹⁹²; of secrets, 1En. 68²; righteous, 27³ 60⁶ 61⁹ 91¹⁴; true, 27³. See Reckoning.

Judgements, two, one by water, and one by fire, A. & E. 49³.

Judges, duty of, P.A. 1⁸; of the earth = rulers of Jewish community at Alexandria, Wisd. 1ⁿ. 6ⁿ.; of the congregation, Zad. 11^{1,2}, cf. 15^{4,5}. Judges, the, Sir. 46¹¹. See Joshua.

INDEX

Judging, hasty, Sir. 11²⁻¹³.

Judith, Book of, account of, short, § 1; author, a Pharisee, § 7; date of original and versions, circa 150 B.C., § 5; historical framework of text, § 6; integrity of text, § 6; later use of, § 8; MSS. of, § 3; theology, § 9; title, § 2; versions, ancient, of, § 4; Greek, Syriac, Vulgate, 'Chaldee', see Pharisaic teaching.

Judith, daughter of Merari, Judith 8^{1,4,9} 9¹ 10^{10,23} 11⁶ 12⁴, 14, 16, 18 13^{2,3,4,11} 14^{1,7,8,14,17} 15^{8,11} 16^{1,2,7,13,20,21,25}; a Simeonite, 9²; (?) festival of, Judith 16²⁵*n*.; prayer of, 9²⁻¹⁴; slays Holofernes, 13⁹; song of, 16²⁻¹⁷.

Juel, son of Baani, 1Esd. 9³⁴.

Juel, son of Nooma, 1Esd. 9³⁵.

Julian emperors, 4Ez. 11²*n*. 12³⁻³⁹*n*.

Julius Africanus, Sus. § 5, 54-59*n*. 1En. 10(c).

Justice, Wisd. 1⁸ 11²⁰ 14³¹.

Justification, by the Law, 2Bar. 51³ 67⁶ 75⁷; by works and faith, 4Ez. 9⁷ 13²³ Sir. 16¹⁴*n*.; doctrine of in 2Baruch and 4Ezra, 2Bar. 21⁹*n*. See Faith.

Justify, various meanings of, 2Bar. 21⁹*n*.

Justin Martyr, 1En. 8^{8,9}n. 15⁸*n*.; quoted, 2Bar. 29³*n*.

Kaber, Jub. 11⁷.

Kabratan, land of, Jub. 32³².

Kadesh, Zad. 4⁶ Jub. 16¹⁰ Judith 1⁹; -Barnea, 5¹⁴.

Kadmiel, 1Esd. 5²⁶.

Kadmiel, 1Esd. 5⁵⁸.

Kadmonites, Jub. 14¹⁸.

Kaftur, Jub. 8²¹.

Kainam, Jub. 8¹.

Kamaturi, islands of, Jub. 9¹³.

Karaïtes. See Zadokite Party.

Karasa, Jub. 8¹³.

Kariatharius, i.e. Kiriath-jearim, 1Esd. 5¹⁹.

Karnaim, Jub. 29¹⁰. See Carnaim.

Kasbeel, 1En. 69¹³.

Kasdeja, 1En. 69¹².

Kedesh, in Galilee, 1Macc. 11⁶³*n*.⁷³; Naphtali, Tob. 1².

Kedron, 1En. 26³*n*. 1Macc. 12³⁷*n*. 15^{39,41} 16⁹. See Cedron.

Keel, 1En. 82²⁰.

Kenan, Jub. 4¹³.

Kenites, Jub. 14¹⁸.

Kenizzites, Jub. 14¹⁸.

Keras, 1Esd. 5²⁹.

Kesed, Jub. 8⁶ 11^{1,3}.

Ketab, 1Esd. 5³⁰.

Keturah, Jub. 19¹¹ 20^{1,11,12} 23⁷.

Keys of Kingdom of Heaven, 3Bar. 11².

Khikar, Armenian name for Aḥikar, Ah. passim.

Khons, Tractate of, Tob. §§ 7, 8.

Kilan, 1Esd. 5¹⁵.

Kin. See Marriage.

King of king of kings, P.A. 3¹. See God, titles of.

King = the congregation, Zad. 9⁷; no king, Zad. 9⁴⁰.

Kingly dignity depreciated, Zad. § 12.

Kingdom, kingship, P.A. 3^{2,7} 4¹⁷ 6⁸; and priests, Israel to be, Jub. 16¹⁸*n*.; future, eternal, on this earth in Testaments, Test. § 16; of Heaven, 3Bar. 11²; righteous to receive, Wisd. 5¹⁶; theocratic, under Angel first, then under God alone, Ass. Mos. 10¹⁻¹⁰. See Messianic Kingdom.

Kings, Zad. 4⁸; after Solomon, wickedness of, Sir. 47²³⁻²⁵; and the mighty, 1En. 38⁵ 62¹⁻⁹ 63¹⁻¹² 67^{8,12}; of Gentiles = dragons, 9²⁰; of Javan = asps, 9²⁰; twelve = twelve Caesars, 4Ez. 12¹⁴*n*.; four, 12²¹*n*.

Kinsman, like 'father', 'friend', a title of honour, 1Macc. 11³¹*n*.

'Kinsmen', a court title at Philopator's court, 3Macc. 5^{39,44}.

Kirama, 1Esd. 5²⁰.

Kirjath-Arba, Jub. 19¹.

Kirkisani, a Karaite scholar, Zad. § 2.

Kiseus = Kish, Add. Esth. A¹.

Kites, = Egyptians under the Ptolemies, 1En. 90²*n*.; = (?) Edomites, 1En. 90¹³*n*.

Kittim, Jub. 24^{28,29} 37¹⁰. See Chittim.

Knowledge, limit to human, Sir. 3²¹*n*.-23 4Ez. 4¹⁻¹¹.

Kohath, Jub. 44¹⁴ T.L. 11^{3,6} 12² Test. App. II 66, 74.

Kokabel, 1En. 8³ 69².

Kokabel, 1En. 6⁷.

Konae, Judith 4⁴.

Koran, parallels in with Aḥikar, Ah. § 3*f*.

Kozeba, T. Jud. 6¹.

Krasos, Sib. 3⁴³⁹.

Kronos, the planet, 2En. 30³*n*.

Kruno. See Kronos.

Kuchavim, the ninth heaven, 2En. 21⁶*n*.

Kush, Test. App. I 9³.

Laban, Jub. 19¹⁰ 25⁶ 27^{3,10,12} 28^{1-4,6,8,9,25,26,28,30} 29^{1,2,4,6,7,12} 31² T. Jud. 9¹ T.N. 11¹ Test. App. II 62.

Labana, 1Esd. 5³⁰.

Labourer inferior to scribe, Sir. 38²⁴⁻³⁰.

Laccunus, 1Esd. 9³¹.

Lacedaemonians, 2Macc. 5⁹.

Ladder of Tyre. See Tyre.

Lagus. See Ptolemy.

Lamb = Samuel, David, 1En. 89⁴⁵.

Lambs = Chasids, 1En. 90⁶⁻¹⁷*n*.

Lamech, Jub. 4^{27,28} 7³⁸ 1En. 10¹ 106^{1,4,10,12,18} T.B. 7⁴.

Lamp, Tob. 8¹³; of Temple service extinguished, 4Ez. 10²².

Land (= Palestine), blessed, 1En. 27¹; of His elect ones, 56⁶; pleasant and glorious, 89⁴⁰; special sanctity of, 2Bar. 29²*n*.

Landmark, remove the, Zad. 11¹ 81⁹ 9¹³; of the Law, break down, Zad. 9⁴⁹.

Laodicea, on Lycus, Sib. 3⁴⁷¹ 4¹⁰⁷ 5²⁹⁰.

Lapithae, Sib. 5¹³³.

Last, days, 4Ez. 13¹⁸; time, 13²⁰; times, varying conceptions of in 4 Ezra, 4Ez. 8⁵⁰*n*.; they who live at the, 4Ez. 8⁵⁰ 14²². See Times.

Lasthenes, 1Macc. 11³¹*n*.³².

Latin, Sib. 3⁶¹ 5¹⁶⁸; Version, Old, of Sirach, variation of order from LXX, in chaps. 30-6, Sir. §§ 4, 5ii.

Latins, Sib. 3⁵⁹⁷.

Latium, Sib. 3³⁵⁶ 5¹.

Law, the, 1Macc. 1^{49,53,56,57} 2²¹, 26, 27, 42, 48, 50, 58, 64, 67, 68 3^{48,56} 4^{42,45}, 47, 52 10^{14,61} 11²¹ 13⁴⁸ 14^{14,29} 2Macc. 13¹⁰ 4Macc. 17^{7,34} 28^{9,9}, 10, 13, 23 3²⁰ 4^{19,23,24} 5^{16-21,25,30,34} 6^{22,28} 7^{7,8,15} 8²⁵ 9^{2-4,15} 11^{5,12,27} 13^{13,22,24} 15^{10,29} 16¹⁶ 17¹⁶ 18^{1,10} Sir. Prologue 9, 20, 11¹⁵ 15¹ 19²⁴ 24²³ 26²³ 32^{15,17,24} 33³ 34⁸ 39^{1,8} 41⁸ 42² 45⁵ 49⁴ Sus. 3, 62 Jub. 30¹² Arist. 171, 313 1En. 93⁶ 106¹⁴ 108¹, cf. 5⁴ 99¹⁴ T.L. 13³ 14¹ 16^{2,3} T.N. 8⁷ T.A. 2⁶ 4Ez. 3^{19,20,22} 7^{17,20,72,81,94} 8^{29,56} 9^{11,31,32,36,37} 13^{38,54} 14^{21,22}; and books of Law, attacked, 1Macc. 1^{49,53,56,57} defended, 2^{21,26,27}, 48, 50, 58, 64, 67, 68 3⁴⁸ 13³; and Messianic expectation two centres of Jewish thought, alternately one or other becomes more prominent, 2Bar. § 10, 15⁵*n*.; and Prophets, Sir. Prologue 1, 5, 13 Zad. §§ 8, 10, 13, see 9⁴⁻⁹, read before battle, 2Macc. 15⁹, cf. Book, holy; and Temple, duty of Diaspora to, Tob. § 7; books of, Arist. 30; devotion to the, 3Macc. 3⁴ 7¹¹ Ass. Mos. 9⁶; disobedience to, Wisd. 2¹²; eternal, Sir. § gii 1En. 99², lamp of, 2Bar. 59², cf. 19³; everlasting, no atonement for, Jub. 33¹⁷; filled with, Sir. 2¹⁶; for sinners, 1En. 93⁴; he that taketh hold of, i.e. Scribe, Sir. 15¹*n*.; holy, Sib. 3^{276,284}; Israel will forget, Jub. 1¹⁴; Israel's eternal and inalienable glory, 1Bar. § 7, 4¹⁻³; Jewish, to be universal, Wisd. 18⁴; loyalty to, brings own reward, Sir. 33 (36)¹⁻³; not mentioned in Add. Esth. § 7; of eternal covenant, Ps. Sol. 10⁵*n*.; of God, T.R. 3⁸ T.L. 13^{2,3(β-d)} T. Jud. 18³ T. Iss. 5¹ T.D. 6^{9,10(β)} T.N. 3² T.G. 4⁷ T.A. 7⁵; of the Lord, T.R. 6⁸ T.L. 9⁶ 13¹ 19^{1,2} T. Jud. 26¹ T.Z. 10² T.D. 5¹ T.N. 2⁶ T.G. 3² T.A. 6³ T. Jos. 4^{5(β)} 11¹ T.B. 10³; of the Most High, T.G. 3¹; of lawgiver, 4Ez. 7⁸⁹; of life, Sir. 17¹¹*n*. 4Ez. 14³⁰; of Lord, 1Esd. 1^{33,48} &c.; of luminaries, 1En. 72^{1,2}; moon, 73¹ 74¹; stars, 79¹; sun, 72³⁵; twelve portals, 76¹⁴; of Moses, T.Z. 3⁴ (or scriptures) of our fathers = written covenants, 4Ez. 4²³; reading of, by Ezra, 1Esd. § 1, 9³⁷⁻⁵⁵; renewed study of, and renewal of mankind, Jub. 23²⁶⁻³¹; retaliation, Jub. 4³¹, see Lex talionis; seek, those who, persecuted, Jub. 1¹²; son of, 2Bar. 46⁴; supremacy of, Sir. § gii; teaching concerning, in Aristeas, Jewish, purpose and function of, Arist. § 2, 128-171; called Scripture. § 3; divine, 3, 313, holy, 5, of Jewish race, 15; oracles of God, 158, 177; reasonableness of, 128; sacred, 313; value of, § 6, see Lawgiver; teaching concerning, in 2 Baruch and 4 Ezra, 2Bar. 15⁵*n*. 38²*n*.; in 2 Baruch: abideth, 77¹⁵; accepted by man, 15⁵; alone left to Israel, 85³; a more excellent, given to Israel than to all peoples, 77³; and Zion to be remembered, 84⁸; exacts its rights, 48²⁷; glorified in proportion as Messianic and national hopes fail, 15⁵*n*.; importance of, in 2 Bar., esp. in B¹, but most in B², 2Bar. § 10; is light, 18^{1,2}; is life, 38²; Israel's unconditional possession, 85³*n*.; one, from One, 48²⁴; by one (Moses), 85¹⁴*n*. rejected by Gentiles, 48⁴⁰*n*.; will aid Israel, 48²⁴; will requite sinners on God's Day, 48⁴⁷; with Israel, 48²²; in 4 Ezra: = i, written scriptures of O.T., 4Ez. 14²², burnt, 14²¹; ii, oral, transmitted by Moses to the wise, 14²⁶*n*.; brings terror by its condemnation, and drives to appeal to God's mercy and forgiveness, 7^{182-83,36}; fidelity to = 'faith', see Faith; gift of God to Israel, 3¹⁹ 9³¹ sqq.; imperishable, 9³⁷*n*.; offered to all nations, accepted by Israel, 7^{23,24,72}; refused by heathen, 7²⁴; Son of Man destroys enemies by, 13³⁸; teachers of = Scribes, 82⁹; Ten Tribes restored on seeking again, 13⁴¹ sqq.; unique, 5²⁷; weakness of, as redemptive power, § 10; teaching concerning, in Jubilees: a revelation in time of what was timeless and eternal, Jub. §§ 12, 15; the ultimate and complete expression of absolute truth—this precluded any further revelation by prophecy—spiritual interpretation of, § 15; teaching concerning, in Sirach: eternal; identified with wisdom Sir. § gii; teaching concerning, in Zad.: Book of, hidden till Zadok arose, 7⁵; custom of, 9¹; House of, 9^{35,38}; interpretation of, 6⁵, midrash, 9³³; order of, 9¹; study of, 8⁸ 9⁸, true meaning of, 81²; = well, 8⁶; to be kept, 2Macc. 1⁴ 2³ 4¹⁷ 6^{1,23,28} 7^{23,30}; unwritten, the, 2Bar. 57²; wisdom identified with, Sir. § 1; witnesses to God's mercy, Ps. Sol. 10⁵*n*.

Lawgiver, see Leader, Star; = Moses, Arist. 131, 139, 148, 153.

INDEX

Laws about fruit, Jub. 7³⁷.
 Lawyers. See Scribes.
 Leader, 1En. 82²⁰; of day and night, 75³; of sheep, 80⁴⁶; of stars, 72³ 74² 80¹ 82^{10,11}; of Zadokites, first = Star or Law-giver; second = Teacher of Righteousness, Zad. § 10ii,iv.
 Leah, Jub. 28^{3-5,9-14,16,17,20-22} 29² 33^{1,22} 36^{21,22} T.S. 2² T.Jud. 1³ T.Iss. 1^{4,7,9,15} 2²; death of, Jub. 36²¹.
 Leba Nasr = Salmanassar, Mart. Is. 2¹⁴.
 Lebanon, Sir. 39¹⁴ 50^{8,12} (see Libanus) Jub. 82¹ 9⁴ 10^{29,33} 12¹⁵ 1En. 13⁹.
 Leisure needed for study, P.A. 2⁶.
 Lending and suretyship, Sir. 8¹²⁻¹³; and borrowing, 29¹⁻¹³.
 Length of days, 1En. 10⁹ 71¹⁷, cf. 13⁶. See Life.
 Leo, Sib. 5^{116,523,525}.
 Leprosy, law of, Zad. 15⁷⁻⁸.
 Lesbos, Sib. 5^{121,316}.
 Lessau, village, 2Macc. 14¹⁶.
 Letters, in 1 Maccabees, 1 Macc. § 7: i. (a) from Jews in Gilead to Judas, 5¹⁰⁻¹³; (b) from Jonathan to Spartans, 12⁶⁻¹⁸; (c) from Areios of Sparta to Onias, 12²⁰⁻²³; ii. (a) from Alexander Balas to Jonathan, 10¹⁸⁻²⁰; (b) from Demetrius I to Jewish nation, 10²⁵⁻⁴⁵; (c) from Demetrius II to Jonathan, 11³⁰⁻³⁷; (d) from Antiochus VI to Jonathan, 11⁵⁷; (e) from Demetrius II to Simon, 13³⁶⁻⁴⁰; (f) Antiochus VII to Simon, 15²⁻⁹; iii. (a) from Romans, 8²³⁻³²; (b) from Spartans to Simon, 14²⁰⁻²²; (c) from Lucius, Roman consul, to Euergetes II of Egypt, 15¹⁶⁻²¹.
 Letters of Philopator, 3 Macc. 3^{12,59} 7^{1,59}.
 Levi, 1Esd. 8⁴⁷ Tob. 1⁷ Bel 1 Jub. 28^{14,17} 30^{4,18} 31^{5,9,12,13,16,31} 32^{1,3,8,9} 33²² 34^{3,20} 38⁶ 44¹⁴ 45¹⁶ T.R. 6^{5,7,8,10} T.S. 5⁴⁻⁶ 7^{1,2} T.L. 1¹ 2^{1,6} 5² 8¹¹ 19⁴ T.Jud. 5² 21¹ 25^{1,2} T.Iss. 5⁷ T.D. 5^{4,6,7,10} T.N. 5³⁻⁵ 6^{6,8} 8² T.G. 8¹ T.Jos. 19¹¹ T.B. 11^{2(c)} Test. App. I 2⁴ 3⁸⁻¹⁰ 4^{5,8,11,12} 5³ 6^{1,4} II 61, 83 Ass. Mos. 9¹ 4Macc. 2¹⁹; blamed for slaughter of Shechemites, 2¹⁹; in Jubilees, Levi blessed by Isaac, given the primacy, Jub. 31¹³⁻¹⁷; chosen for priesthood because of slaughter of Shechemites, Jub. 30¹⁸⁻²³; dream of, at Bethel, 32¹; chosen to priesthood as tenth son, 32^{2,3}; receives books of Jacob, 45¹⁶; receives tithes from Jacob, 32⁴⁻⁹; vision of, sees future on seven tablets from heaven, 32²¹; in Test. XII Patr. (in original Testaments) as high priest, T.R. 6^{8,10-12} T.S. 7² T.L. 2¹⁰; as king, T.R. 6⁷⁻¹² T.L. 8¹⁴ 18³; as law-giver, T.R. 6⁸; as prophet, T.L. 2¹⁰ 8¹⁵ T.B. 9²; as son of God, T.L. 4²; as warrior of God, T.R. 6¹² T.S. 5⁵; destroys Shechem, T.L. 5^{3,4} 6⁴; ordained by God Himself, 2¹⁰, to new priesthood, 8¹⁴ 18², with a new name, 8¹⁴; pre-eminence above Judah, T.R. 6⁵⁻¹² T.S. 5⁶ 7^{1,2} T.L. 8¹¹⁻¹⁷ 18² sqq. T.D. 5¹⁰ T.N. 5⁴ 8² T.G. 8¹ T.Jos. 19¹¹; Reuben, Simeon, Dan, will attack, T.R. 6⁵ T.S. 5^{4,5} T.D. 5⁴; visions of, T.L. 2⁵ sqq. 8¹ sqq.; shield given to, 5³ 6¹, see Priesthood, Maccabees; (in first century B. C. additions to Testaments), T.L. 10¹⁴⁻¹⁶ T.D. 5⁶⁻⁷; Messiah expected from, Zad. § 12, see Aaron, Messiah; priest and king—reflects Maccabean priest-kings, Test. § 10; recognized as priest by Jacob, Test. App. II 9; recognized as priest by Isaac, 13.

 Levi, Testament of, original source of, Aramaic and Greek Fragments of, Test. App. II; Test. Levi quoted, Zad. 6¹⁰.
 Levi, tribe of, Sir. 45⁶ Bel 1; and Aaron, Zad. 11², see Aaron; and Judah, Naphtali bids his sons follow, Test. App. I 18; salvation to arise from, T.S. 7¹ T.L. 2¹¹ T.N. 8² T.G. 8¹ T.Jos. 19¹¹.
 Levi, an elder, Arist. 48.
 Leviathan, 1En. 60⁷ 2Bar. 29⁴ n. 4Ez. 6^{49,52}; reserved for Messianic banquet, 6⁵².
 Levis, 1Esd. 9¹⁴.
 Levitas of Jabneh, P.A. 4⁴.
 Levite, Add. Esth. F¹¹.
 Levites, 1Esd. 1^{3,7,9,10,14,16,21} 2⁸ 4⁵⁵ 5^{26,46,58,59,63} 7^{6,8,10,12} 8^{5,10}, 22,42,49,59 8^{60,63,69,96} 9^{23,37,48,49,53} Jub. 30¹⁸ Zad. 5⁷ 6¹ 15⁶; are they who joined the penitents (= priests), 6¹.
 Levitical laws of purification, Jub. 3⁸⁻¹¹; priests = servers of the Holy One, Sir. 4¹⁴ n.
 Lex talionis, see Judgement, Retribution in kind; exemplified in Cain, Jub. 4³¹.
 Liar to be destroyed, Sir. 20²⁴⁻²⁶.
 Libanus, 1Esd. 4⁴⁸ 5⁵⁵ Judith 1⁷ Sir. 24¹³ (see Libanon) T.S. 6².
 Libations on tombs, Ah. 2¹⁰ (Syr. A).
 Libnai, Test. App. II 74.
 Libya, Sib. 3^{208,323} 5¹⁹⁷.
 Lies, man of (= Herod?), Zad. § 6, 9³⁹.
 Life, book of memorial of, Test. App. II 59, see Book; bundle of, see Bundle of; = eternal life in heaven, 4Ez. 7^{129,137} 8¹³ n., see Eternal; everlasting, 2 Macc. 7⁹; everflowing, 7³⁶; future, in 1 Enoch, 1En. 5^{5,9} 14¹³ 22¹⁰ 38⁶ 48⁷ 56⁴ 58³ 61^{7,12} 62¹⁶ 67² 96⁶ 98¹⁴ 103^{9,10} 108¹⁰; elect, 94⁴; eternal (= everlasting), 15^{4,6} 37⁴ 40⁹ 58³; eternal (= 500 years), 10¹⁰; long, 25⁶; = a blessed immortality of the soul (not body) after death, Jub. 23³¹; first found in Jubilees in last two centuries B.C.; next in 1En. 91-104, Jub. § 15; law of, see Law; lay up with the Lord, Ps. Sol. 9⁹; of eternity (not in Sadducean sense), Zad. 5⁶; of individual continued in children, Sir. 30⁴ n.; of world to come, P.A. 2⁸, cf. portion in world to come, 3¹⁶; perpetual, Ah. 4¹ (Arab.); rope of, Sib. 3⁴⁵; pious inherit, Ps. Sol. 14⁷; tree of, see Tree; trees of = pious, Ps. Sol. 14². See Garments.

 Light, creation of, 4Ez. 6⁴⁰; generation of, 1En. 108¹¹; of endless world, 2Bar. 48⁵⁰; of Gentiles, 1En. 48⁴; of the Law, Wisd. 18⁴ n. T.L. 14⁴; of Righteousness, T.Z. 9⁸.
 Lightning, 1En. 14^{11,17} 17³ 41³ 43¹⁻² 44⁵⁹ 59^{1,3} 60¹³⁻¹⁵; symbolizes the Messiah, 2Bar. 53⁸ n.
 Lights, 1En. 59¹³; feast of, 1 Macc. 4⁵² n.; of heaven, righteous shine as, 1En. 104²; prince of (i.e. Uriel?), Zad. 7¹⁹.
 Like consorts with like, Sir. 13¹⁵⁻¹⁷.
 Like thee, those, 2Bar. 13⁵ 24² = righteous surviving in last days, 13⁵ n. 4Ez. 4³⁶ 85¹ n. 62 14^{9,49}.
 Lilin, 2Bar. 10⁸ n.
 Linen, wearing of, urged, Ah. 2¹⁰².
 Lion, which came out of wood, = Messiah whom God has reserved for the End, 4Ez. 10⁶⁰⁻¹²³ n.
 Lions, = Babylonians, 1En. 89⁵⁵ n.; den of, Bel 31.
 Lists of sins, in 3Baruch, 3Bar. § 6; in Testaments of Twelve Patriarchs, T.R. 3³⁻⁶ T.Jud. 16¹; in Wisdom, 14²⁵ sqq.
 Live, 1En. 10¹⁷ 98¹⁰; unto God, 4Macc. 7¹⁹, cf. Divine life, 7⁷. See Eternal life.
 Liver, the, T.N. 2⁸.
 Living, 1En. 47³, see Waters; creatures . . . beneath throne, 2Bar. 51¹¹.
 Locros, Sib. 3⁴³³.
 Locusts, law of preparing as food, Zad. 14¹⁴.
 Loddeus, 1Esd. 8^{45,46}.
 Logos doctrine, Wisd. § 5, 9¹ 16¹² 18¹⁵.
 Lomna, Jub. 10¹⁵.
 Lomni, T.L. 12¹.
 Longsuffering, T.D. 2¹ 6⁸ T.G. 4⁷ T.Jos. 17² 18³ 1En. 60⁵ 61¹³ P.A. 4¹ 5^{2,3} 6^{1,6} Zad. 2³.
 Lord. See God.
 Lord of the word = Moses, Ass. Mos. 11¹⁶.
 Lost. See Property.
 Lot, Wisd. 10⁶ Jub. 12^{10,30} 13^{1,14,17,19,23} 16⁷ 17³; wife of, Wisd. 10⁷.
 Lothasubus, 1Esd. 9⁴⁴.
 Love, P.A. 3¹⁹ 5^{4,19} 6¹; God, Zad. 9⁴⁵; God, those that = Jewish people, Sir. 1¹⁰; the Lord, 2^{15,16}; of God for His creatures, 4Ez. 8⁴⁶⁻⁶² n.; to man, Wisd. 11²⁴; to the brethren enjoined, T.R. 6⁹ T.S. 4⁷ T.G. 6^{1,3} 7⁷ T.Jos. 17² T.B. 3^{3,4} Zad. 8¹⁷; to God and one's neighbour, T.Iss. 5² 7⁶ T.D. 5³; to neighbour, T.B. 3^{3,4}. See Fear of God.

 Lowly exalted, Sir. 11^{5,12-13}.
 Lozon, 1Esd. 5³³.
 Lubar, Jub. 5²⁸ 7^{1,17} 10¹⁵.
 Lucifer, Sib. 5^{516,527}.
 Lucius, consul, 1Macc. 15¹⁵.
 Lucus, Sib. 3⁴⁷².
 Lud, Judith 2²² Jub. 7¹⁸ 9^{6,10,11}.
 Luminaries, 1En. 17³; heavenly, 23⁴ 72^{1,2} 79⁶ 82⁷; objects of worship, Wisd. 13²; renewed for healing, peace, and blessing, Jub. 12⁹; world of the, 1En. 20⁴.
 Luminary, the great, the sun, 1En. 72^{4,35,36}; the smaller, the moon, 73¹.
 Lunar year, Sir. 43⁶⁻⁸ n. Jub. 6⁸⁶ 1En. 74; disturbs true order of feasts, Jub. 6³⁶⁻³⁸.
 Lust, sin of, Ah. 2⁵ (Syr. A).
 Lustful passions, warning against, Sir. 6²⁻⁴.
 Luz = Bethel, Jub. 27^{19,26}.
 Lycia, 1Macc. 15²³ Sib. 3^{433,439} 5^{126,129}.
 Lycian, Sib. 4¹⁰⁹.
 Lycians, 3⁵¹⁴ 5⁴⁶¹.
 Lydda, 1Macc. 11³⁴ n.
 Lydia, 1Macc. 8⁸.
 Lydian, Sib. 3⁴⁴⁹.
 Lydians, Sib. 3^{170,515} 5^{288,292,340} 6^{6,17,55} 7²; sent to war against Jews, in absence of Antiochus, 3²⁷⁻³⁷; sends army into Judah under Ptolemy, Nicanor, and Gorgias, 3³⁸⁻⁶⁰; defeated by Judas, 4²⁶⁻³⁵; governor of Coele Syria and Phoenicia, 2Macc. 10¹¹ 11^{1,12}, 13,15-17,23,35 12^{1,27} 13^{2,4,26} 14²; death of, 14²; and Eupator make terms with Jews, 13¹⁻²⁶.
 Lying condemned, T.Iss. 7⁴ T.D. 2^{1,4} 4⁷ 5¹ 6⁸.
 Lysimachus, brother of Mene-laüs the high priest, 2Macc. 4^{29,39,40,41}.
 Lysimachus, son of Ptolemaeus, Add. Esth. F¹¹.
 Maani, 1Esd. 5³¹.
 †Maanisakir (or Amanisakir) i.e. Camps of Shakir, Jub. 34^{4,7}. See Makir.
 Maaseas, 1Bar. 1¹.
 Maasmas, 1Esd. 8⁴³.
 Macalon, 1Esd. 5²¹.
 Maccabean army, 2Macc. 10³⁵; family, Zad. § 6; high priests not referred to in Ass. Mos. 5^{3,4}, but in 6¹; kings, Jub. 31¹⁵ n.; denunciation of, Test. § 1; praise of, § 1; policy, change of after Judas' death, 1Macc. 9²² n.; priesthood to be called by new name, T.L. 8¹⁴, see High priests, Levi; revolt, commencement of, 1Macc. 2¹⁵⁻²⁸; rising, censured by implication in Ass. Mos. 9¹⁻⁷; times, Azar. § 6; victories, Jub. 29⁹ sqq.; victories reflected in account of Jacob's wars, 34²⁻⁸ n. 37⁹⁻¹⁰ n.; wars, 24²⁸⁻³² n.

INDEX

- Maccabaeans, at zenith of power, Test. § 1; and Pharisees, 4Macc. § 8; later, attacked, T.L. 10ⁿ. 14-16ⁿ. T. Jud. 21⁶-23; rise of, 1En. 90⁶ⁿ.
- Maccabaeus, 1Macc. 5³⁴ &c. See Judas.
- Maccabees, 1 Book of, author, a Sadducee, § 3; contents, § 2; date, § 4; Greek MSS., § 8; original language, Hebrew, § 6; sources, § 7; (i) letters of Jewish origin; (ii) letters from Syrian kings to Jewish leaders; (iii) letters from rulers of foreign states, see Letters; style, § 5; theology, § 5; title, § 1; versions, Syriac and Latin, § 9. 2 Book of: authorship, § 5; bibliography, § 8; contents and characteristics, § 1; date, § 3; influence on later literature, § 6, MSS. § 2; text, integrity and composite nature of, § 4; theology, § 7; versions, § 2, Greek, Latin, and Syriac; discrepancies in, § 4; less primitive than 1Macc., 2Macc. § 1; letters in, do not belong to Jason source, § 4; parallelisms with 1Macc., 2Macc. § 1; relation of 3Macc. to, 3Macc. § 4, see Jason of Cyrene. 3 Book of: bibliography of, § 10; contents of, § 1; date and origin, § 4; historical basis of, § 5; integrity, § 6; MSS., § 3; relation of, to Aristaeus's Letter, § 4, Josephus, § 5, 2Maccabees, § 4, Philo, § 4, Polybius, § 5, Ptolemy of Megalopolis, § 5; style, § 7; theology, § 8; title, § 2; use of, by later writers, § 9; versions, § 3. 4 Book of: account, § 1; authorship, § 7; bibliography, § 10; comparison with 2Macc., § 10 app.; date, § 5; influence, § 8; integrity, § 6; MSS., §§ 3-4; theology, § 9; title, § 2; versions, ancient, §§ 3-4.
- Macedonia, Sib. 3^{172,190,381}. 4¹⁰² 5^{338,373,461}.
- Macedonian, 1Macc. 6² Add. Esth. E¹⁰.
- Macedonians, Sib. 3^{161,610} 4^{88,95} Add. Esth. E¹⁴; battle at Babylon with Galatians, 2Macc. 8²⁰. See Greeks.
- Macron. See Ptolemy Macron.
- Madai, Jub. 7¹⁹ 8⁵ 9⁹ 10^{35,36}. See Media.
- Maender, Sib. 4^{149,151} 5³²¹.
- Maedai, Jub. 8²¹.
- Maelus, 1Esd. 9²⁶.
- Maotic sea, Sib. 3³³⁸.
- Magdaladraef, Jub. 33¹.
- Magian influences in Tobit, non-Zoroastrian, in Egyptian form, Tob. § 8v.
- Magic art, Wisd. 17⁷.
- Magnesia, Sib. 3³⁴⁷.
- Magnesians, Sib. 3³⁴⁹.
- Magog, Jub. 7¹⁹ 9⁸. See Gog.
- Mahalelel, Jub. 4^{14,15} 19²⁴ 1En. 37¹ 83^{3,6}. See Mahalelel.
- Mahalath, daughter of Ishmael, Jub. 29¹⁸.
- Mahalelel = Mahalalel, 2En. 33¹⁰.
- Mahli, Test. App. II 74.
- Maiannas, 1Esd. 9⁴⁸.
- Maitabith, Jub. 38²³.
- Maka, Jub. 34²⁰.
- Makamaron, king of Canaan, Jub. 46⁶.
- Maked, 1Macc. 5^{26,36}.
- Maker. See God.
- †Makir, T. Jud. 6³. See Maaniasakir.
- Makom = God, P.A. § 5. See Maqom.
- Malchira, Mart. Is. 1⁸ⁿ. See Sammael.
- Mallus, city, 2Macc. 4³⁰.
- Maltanneus, 1Esd. 9³⁵.
- Mam dai, 1Esd. 9³⁴.
- Mammon, Sir. 31⁸ⁿ; worship, perils of, 31(34)⁵⁻¹¹. See Gains.
- Mamnitaneus, 1Esd. 9³⁴.
- Mamre, man, Jub. 13²⁹; oak of, 14¹⁰.
- Mamre, i. e. Hebron, Jub. 19⁵.
- Mamuchus, 1Esd. 9³⁰.
- Man, a danger to angels, and to own soul, 2Bar. 56¹⁰; = angelic being, later heavenly Messiah, 4Ez. 13¹⁻⁵⁸ⁿ, see Son of Man, Whitemen; creation of, Sir. 17¹; from seven substances, 2En. 30⁸ⁿ; with seven natures, 30⁹ⁿ; with freewill and knowledge of good and evil, 30^{15,16n}; Creator of, is God, Test. App. I 10⁵⁻⁹; final abode of, prepared, 2En. 49² 58⁵; foolish by nature, Wisd. 13¹; freewill of, Sir. 15¹⁴; God's gifts to, 17¹⁻¹⁴; insignificance of, before God, 16¹⁷⁻²³ 18¹⁻¹⁴; senses and powers of, Test. App. I 10⁶; Son of, see Son; taught good and evil, Sir. 17⁷; time in this world pre-ordained, 2En. 49²; to be judged for his treatment of animals, 58^{5,6n}; works ordained before his creation, 53². See Predestination.
- Man from the Sea = Messiah, vision of, 4Ez. 13¹⁻⁵⁸.
- Man of lies = Jannaeus or Herod, Zad. § 6.
- Manasseas, 1Esd. 9³¹.
- Manasseh, Mart. Is. 1^{1,7,9,11,12} 2^{1,2,4,5} 3^{1,11} 5^{4,8,12} 2Bar. 64^{1,6,7} 65¹; idolatry, prayer and repentance of, P.Man. § 2; repentance of, unreal, and finally unavailing, 2Bar. 64⁷⁻¹⁰ 65¹. See Prayer of Manasses.
- Manasses, husband of Judith, Judith 8² 10³ 16²²⁻²⁴.
- Manasses, son of Asom, 1Esd. 9³³.
- Mandrakes, T. Iss. 1^{2,3,8} 2^{2,4}.
- Manes, 1Esd. 9²¹.
- Mani, 1Esd. 9³⁰.
- Manifestation of God. See Epiphany, Theophanies.
- Mankind, lit. 'creatures', P.A. 1¹²ⁿ. 3¹⁴ 4¹ 6²; woes of, Sir. 40¹⁻⁹.
- Manlius, Titus, Roman ambassador, 2Macc. 11³⁴.
- Manna, Wisd. 16²⁰ 3Bar. 6¹¹; substance remained, but 'accidents' transformed, Wisd. 16²¹ⁿ; to be restored again, Sib. Frag. 3⁴⁹ⁿ. 3⁷⁴⁶ 2Bar. 29⁸.
- Man-pleaser = Sadducee, Ps. Sol. 4^{10,21}; lays waste houses, 4^{13,23}.
- Mansions, 1En. 41². See Dwelling-places.
- Many created, few saved, 4Ez. 8³; lost, 7^{47,51,61,132}-86²ⁿ, see Fewness; to be saved, 2Bar. 21¹¹ⁿ. Contrast 4Ezra.
- Maqom (rendered by God), P.A. § 5, 2¹⁷ 3^{5,14} 6^{1,6}.
- Mardocheus, 1Esd. 5⁸.
- Mardocheus = Mordecai, Add. Esth. A^{1,11,12,15-17} C¹ E¹³ F¹. See Mordecai.
- Mariamne, Zad. § 6ii(c).
- Marioch, 2En. 33^{11(B)}.
- Marisa, 1Macc. 5⁶⁶ⁿ. 2Macc. 12³⁵.
- Mark, on forehead, Zad. 9^{11(β)} — of sinners, of destruction, Ps. Sol. 15¹⁰.
- Market-place, Tob. 2³.
- Marmoth, 1Esd. 8⁶².
- Marriage, agnatic, Tob. §§ 6, 9; document, § 6; feast, Tob. 8²⁰ 9^{2,5sq.} 10⁷ 12^{1(11¹⁹)}; no bar to vision, 1En. 83²ⁿ; of daughters, a duty, Sir. 7²⁵ⁿ; of elder daughter first, a heavenly ordinance, Jub. 28⁶; restrictions — forbidden with near of kin, uncle or annt, Zad. 7⁹⁻¹¹; with niece, §§ 2, 9⁴⁰. See 7¹¹ⁿ.
- Marriages, Jewish, Tob. 4¹²; inculcated as opposed to pagan, § 9, see Heathen; mixed absolutely prohibited, Jub. § 15, 20⁴ 22²⁰ 25¹⁻¹⁰.
- Marsians, Sib. 3⁵¹³.
- Martyr stories of 2Macc., §§ 5, 6, 7.
- Martyrdom of seven Sons and Mother. See Seven Sons.
- Martyrs, Maccabean, 4Ez. 8²⁷ 2Macc. §§ 1, 6, 6^{10sq.} 18^{sq.} 7^{1sq.} 4Macc. 1⁸ 5^{1sq.} 8³. See Anniversary, Atonement, Competitors, Epitaph, Eternal life, Example, Mother, Painting.
- Marvels and portents—signs of Messiah's coming, 2Bar. 29⁶ⁿ.
- Marzifan, slave substituted for Ahikar at the execution, Ah. 4¹⁰ (Syr.). See Seniqar.
- Maseq, son of, Jub. 14².
- Masias, 1Esd. 5³⁴.
- Massagetae, Sib. 5¹¹⁷.
- Massias, 1Esd. 9²².
- Mastema, Jub. 10⁸ 11^{5,11}; angel of, will depart from penitent, Zad. 20²; chief of demons, see Demonology; powers of, Jub. 49²; prince, 11^{5,11} 17¹⁶ 18^{9,12} 48^{2,9,12,15}; put to shame, 18¹²; seeks to slay Moses 48¹⁻³; spirits of, 19²⁸; suggests the sacrifice of Isaac, 17¹⁶.
- Mastick tree and holm tree, Sus. 54-59ⁿ.
- Matanbuchus, Mart. Is. 2⁴.
- Matarat, Jub. 38²³.
- Mathelas, 1Esd. 9¹⁹.
- Mathusal. See Methuselah.
- Mattathias, son of Asom, 1Esd. 9³³.
- Mattathias, 1Esd. 9⁴³.
- Mattathias, 1Macc. 2^{1,14,16,17,19,} 24,27,39,45,49; the real leader of Maccabean revolt, 2Macc. § 1.
- Mattathias, son of Absalom, 1Macc. 11⁷⁰.
- Mattathias, son of Simon the Maccabee, 1Macc. 16¹⁴.
- Mattathias, envoy of Nicanor, 2Macc. 14¹⁹.
- Mattathias, an elder, Arist. 47.
- Matter, formless, Wisd. 11¹⁷ⁿ; creation out of, 11¹⁷, see Creation; inherently evil (?), weighs down soul, § 9.
- Matthanias, 1Esd. 9²⁷.
- Matthanias, 1Esd. 9³¹.
- Matthia ben Harash, P.A. 4²⁰.
- Mauk, sea of, Jub. 8^{22,26}.
- Mazitias, 1Esd. 9³⁵.
- Meaning, Zad. 8^{12,15} 15⁷.
- Meat, sea, Jub. 8^{12,27} 9⁸.
- Mebri, mountains, Jub. 9².
- Mechembechus, Mart. Is. 5³.
- Medaba, city, 1Macc. 9³⁶.
- Medan, Jub. 19¹¹.
- Medes, Judith 1² 16¹⁰ Mart. Is. 3² T.N. 5⁸ Sib. 3¹⁶⁰ 4^{54,62,63} 5^{23,147,441}.
- Media, 1Esd. 3^{1,14} 1Macc. 8⁸ 14¹ Tob. 1^{14,15} 3⁷ 4^{1,20} 5^{2,4,5,6,7,10,11} 6¹⁰ 14^{4,12sq.} 15¹⁵ Jub. 10³⁶. See Madai, Persia.
- Mediation of angels, Jub. 1²⁷ⁿ. 3Bar. § 10, 2.
- Mediator between God and man, T.D. 6², see Intercession; Moses as, Ass. Mos. 1¹⁴ⁿ.
- Medicament, Tob. 2¹⁰ 6⁵ 11^{12,13}.
- Medicines, a gift of God, Sir. 38⁴.
- Meedda, 1Esd. 5³².
- Mefusailom. See Methuselah.
- Megiddo, battle of, 1Esd. 1²⁹.
- Meir, Rabbi, P.A. 3¹¹ 4¹² 6¹.
- Melca, Jub. 19¹⁰.
- Melcha, T.L. 11¹. See Melka, wife of Levi.
- Melchias, 1Esd. 9²⁶.
- Melchias, 1Esd. 9³².
- Melchias, 1Esd. 9⁴⁴.
- Melchizedek, priesthood of, § 15, 13²⁵ⁿ.
- Melejal, 1En. 82¹³.
- Melka, Jub. 8⁵.
- Melka, daughter of Kaber, Jub. 11⁷.
- Melka, wife of Levi, Jub. 34²⁰. See Melcha, Milcah.
- Melkejal, 1En. 82¹⁵.
- Memeroth, 1Esd. 8².
- Memmins, Quintus, Roman ambassador, 2Macc. 11³⁴.
- Memorial, 1En. 103⁴, see Testimony; = name, 1Bar. 4⁵ⁿ; of God in heart, Ps. Sol. 16⁶; stone, 4Macc. 17⁸ⁿ.
- Memphian woman, T. Jos. 12¹ 14^{1,5(β)} 16¹.
- Memphis, Judith 1¹⁰ T. Jos. 3⁶ Sib. 5^{16,17,60,63,180}.
- Men, children of, Sir. 17³⁰ Judith 8¹² &c.; of war, Zad. § 6, ii; white, = angels, 1En. 87².
- Menedemus of Eretria, Arist. § 1, 201.
- Menelaus, high priest. 2Macc. 4^{23,24,27,29,32,34,39,43,45,46,50} 5^{3,15,33} 11^{29,32} 13^{3,7} Ass. Mos. 5^{3,4n}; intrigues of, 2Macc. 4²³⁻⁵⁰; put to death at Beroea, 13⁷.

INDEX

Menestheus. See Apollonius.
 Merari, Judith 8¹ 16⁷.
 Merari, Jub. 44¹⁴ T.L. 11⁷ 12³
 Test. App. II 69, 74.
 Merchant, liable to sin, Sir.
 26²⁹.
 Mercy, 1En. 61¹³; and fraud,
 T.A. 2⁵; and perjury, 2⁶; enjoined, T.Z. 5^{1,3} 7^{2,3} 8¹, to both man and beast, 5¹; no,
 1En. 5⁶ 50⁵; of God, P.Man.
 6-7, 14; -seat, the, 2Bar. 67.
 Merit, P.A. 1⁶ 2² 6⁶; doctrine of, Sir. 3^{3n.15}; of the fathers,
 Sir. 47^{12n.} P.A. 2² 2Bar. 14^{7n.}
 84¹⁰; doctrine of, repudiated, 1Bar. 2^{19n.}; of good works, even of dead, avails for nation,
 2Bar. 14⁷ 84¹⁰.
 Merits of righteous, 3Bar. 11⁹
 12⁵; of no avail for sinners in Israel, 4Ez. 8²⁰⁻⁴⁰; presented by Michael to God, 3Bar. 14²; = treasures of faith, won by righteous, 4Ez. 6⁵.
 Meropea, Sib. 3³⁴⁶.
 Merran, 1Bar. 3²³.
 Mesaloth, place, 1Macc. 9^{2n.}
 Mesech = Meshech, Test. App. I
 9⁴.
 Meshech, Jub. 7¹⁹ 9¹².
 Mesopotamia, Judith 2²⁴ 5^{7,8}
 8²⁶ Jub. 9⁵ 2^{7,10,12,13} 29^{12,18} 44¹⁸
 T.Jud. 9¹ 10¹.
 Messenger of God, 1Esd. 1^{50,51}.
 Messiah, coming of, signs of,
 Jub. 31^{18-19n.} In 2 Baruch:
 29³ 30¹ 41¹; and the Law,
 15^{5n.}; in A¹ has passive rôle,
 29^{3n.}; in A² and A³ has active rôle, 29^{3n.} 40^{1n.} 72^{4-6n.}; principate of, revealed, 39^{7n.}; return of, to heaven, 30¹; whence revealed, 29^{3n.}; will summon all nations, and slay some and spare some, 72². In 1 Enoch:
 doctrine of, § 11^(b) 38^{2n.} 46^{2,3n.}
 48^{10n.} 90^{37n.}; titles of, § 11;
 Anointed (God's), 52⁴; Elect
 One, 45^{3,4} 49^{2,4} 51^{5,13} 52^{6,9} 55⁴ 61^{5,8,10} 62¹; of righteousness and faith, 39⁶; Righteous One, 38²; and Elect One, 53⁶; Son of Man, 46^{2,3,4} 48² 62^{5,7,9,14} 63¹¹ 69^{26,27,29} 70¹ 71^{14,17}, see
 Son; Son, My (God's), 105².
In 4 Ezra: death of, in common with all men, 7³⁰; earthly, 12^{32n.}; gathers together peaceable multitude, 13^{12n.}; God's Son, 7^{28,29} 13⁵² 14^{9n.}; heavenly, 12^{32n.}; heavenly pre-existence of, 7^{26-30n.}; immortal companions of, 6^{26n.} 7²⁸ 13⁵²
 14⁴⁹; = Baruch, Elijah, Enoch,
 Ezra, Jeremiah, 6^{26n.}; = Lion,
 12³²; = Man from the Sea,
 13²⁵; not meant by son of Disconsolate Woman, 10^{29-57n.}; pre-existence of, in heaven,
 12^{32n.} 14^{9n.} 2Bar. 30¹; rule of 400 years, 7²⁸. In Jubilees:
 no rôle of importance assigned to, 31¹⁸; expected from Judah, § 15, see Hyrcanus, Judas Maccabaeus, Simon. In Ps.
Sol.: anointed of the Lord,
 17³⁶; conceived as in Psalm 2, 17²³⁻²⁷; gathers dispersed of Israel, 17²⁸⁻³¹; judges tribes,

17⁴⁸; pure from sin, 17⁴¹;
 purges Jerusalem, 17^{32,34}; rules heathen, 17³³; wise, 17⁴². In
Sib. Or.: a holy prince, 3⁴⁹; advent of, 3^{652sqq.}; comes from heaven to assume kingdom,
 5⁴¹⁴⁻⁴³³; intervenes to save
 Jerusalem from Nero redivivus, 5¹⁰⁸. In Test. XII Patr.:
 from Judah, Test. § 16 T.Jud.
 24⁵⁻⁶. T.L. 8^{14(a)}; from Levi,
 Test. § 16, T.R. 67-12 T.L. 8¹⁴
 18 T.Jud. 24¹⁻³ T.D. 5¹⁰ T.Jos.
 19^{5-9n.}; delivers Beliar's captives, T.Z. 9⁸ T.D. 5¹¹; free from sin, T.Jud. 24¹; opens Paradise to righteous, T.L.
 18¹⁰ T.D. 5¹²; walks in meekness and righteousness, T.Jud.
 24¹; wars against Beliar, T.L.
 18¹² T.D. 5¹⁰; prerogatives and powers of, in Testaments, full summary of, Test. § 16;
 to be free from sin; a priest,
 T.L. 8; prophet, T.L. 8¹⁵; king, T.R. 6^{11,12} T.L. 8¹⁴; to war against Israel's foes, T.R.
 6¹². In Zad. Frag.: 2^{10n.}, see 17^{n.}; from Aaron and Israel, expectation of, §§ 6, 9⁴ 12, 9^{10(β)} 9^{29(β)} 15⁴ 18⁸, so not of pure Levitic or priestly de-scendent, but partly from Levi and partly from another tribe, i.e. the sons of Herod and Mariamne, Alexander and Aristobulus, §§ 6ii(c), 12; hope of, abandoned in Ass. Mos.,
 Zad. § 10v; militant Messiah expected, § 10v; = prince of all the congregation, Zad. 9⁹;
 = sceptre, 9^{8,9}; through him
 God will make the 'remnant' know His Holy Spirit, 2¹⁰; to destroy faithless, 9¹⁰⁻²⁰; true interpretation of name (Zadok?), 2¹⁰; will know punishment,
 Zad. 18⁹; will teach Remnant,
 2^{9,10}.
 Messianic banquet, Behemoth and Leviathan reserved for, 4Ez. 6⁵²; bliss, 2Bar. 73¹⁻⁷⁴ 4;
 element absent in 1 Baruch,
 1 Bar. § 11; hymns to John Hyrcanus, Test. § 1 T.L. 18²⁻¹⁴
 T.Jud. 24¹⁻⁶ T.D. 5¹⁰⁻¹³; kingdom, -in Ass. Mos. § 9; ushered in by day of repentance—to include Ten Tribes as well as Two—Israel finally exalted to heaven, § 9. In 2 Baruch: hope of with Messiah, A¹ A² A³; without Messiah in B¹; no hope of either in B² B³. § 10; temporary,
 2Bar. 73^{1,2,7} 74¹; at close Messiah returns to heaven, 30¹; righteous rise to blessed life, 30² 54¹⁵ 59²; unrighteous cast into fire, 54⁴ 55⁷ 59^{2,10}. In 1 Enoch: 5⁶⁻⁹ 10¹⁶⁻¹¹² 27⁴⁻⁶
 38¹⁻³⁹ 45³⁻⁶ 46⁴⁻⁵² 53^{6,7} 58,
 61, 62, 69²⁶⁻²⁹ 71¹⁴⁻¹⁷ 90³⁸ 91
 12-15; doctrine of, 1En. § 11^(a); eternal, on earth, after final judgement, 1-36; temporary on earth, followed by final judgement, 91-104; eternal, on earth and in heaven, initiated by final judgement, 37-

71. In 4 Ezra: ends in death of all for seven days, 4Ez.
 7²⁹⁻³¹; initiated by overthrow of Rome, 12³⁴; initiated by revealing of Messiah and his immortal companions, 7²⁰⁻²⁸; lasts 400 years, 7²⁸; no room for in 4Ez. 6⁷⁻¹⁰; placed in Palestine, 9^{8n.} In Jubilees: immediately expected in Jub. §§ 1, 15, 1²⁹ 23^{30,31}; limited to elect of Israel, 1²⁹; ruled by a Levite, see Messiah; to be gradually realized on earth by an ethical and physical transformation, see Heaven, New. Then all sin and pain disappear. Men have long life—1,000 years, and after death, spiritual immortality; regarded as already set in, § 15, cf. 1En. 83-90; when set up, Satan no longer able to injure mankind, Jub.
 § 15, 23²⁰; when at close, final judgement to be held, see Judgement. In Sib. Or.: § 8, 3⁷⁶⁷⁻⁷⁸⁴ 5⁴¹⁴; coming of, 3⁴⁶⁻⁶²;
 peace and plenty in, § 8, 5²⁶⁰⁻²⁸⁵; prophets take away sword in, 3⁷⁶⁷⁻⁷⁸⁴. In Sirach:
 hope of, Sir. 44²¹ 45²⁵ 47^{11,22}
 48^{10,24,25} 49¹² 50²⁴ 51¹² 1-xvi.
In Tobit: on earth of pious,
 Tob. 14⁷. In Wisdom: view of, Wisd. § 9; saints rule in,
 Wisd. 3⁸ 5¹⁶, -teaching of O.T.
 absent from 2 Enoch, 2En. § 3; woes, 2Bar. 27^{n.} Jub. 23¹¹⁻²⁵ 4Ez. § 10, 4⁵² 5¹³ 6¹⁸⁻²⁴; and bliss, Sib. 3⁴⁸⁹⁻⁸⁰⁸.
 Metabedzaab, Jub. 38²³.
 Methosalam, 2En. 56¹ &c. See Methuselah.
 Methuselah, Jub. 4^{20,27} 7³⁸ 1En.
 76¹⁴ 81⁵ 82¹ 83^{1,9} 85² 91^{1,2}
 106^{1,4,8} 107³ 2En. 1^{1,10}; awaits return of Enoch, 38¹⁻³; wishes to prepare food for Enoch, 56^{1,2}; is bidden to summon his brethren, 57¹⁻³; erects altar, 68⁵.
 Metonic cycle. See Cycle.
 Micaiah the prophet, Mart. Is.
 2⁹; son of Amada, 2^{12,13,16}.
 Michael, A. & E. 13² 14^{1,2} 15²
 21² 22² 25¹ 28^{3,4} 29¹ 41¹ 43²
 45¹ 46² 48^{1,4,6,7} 51¹ S. A. & E.
 31¹ Apoc. Mos. 3² 13² 22¹ 37^{4,6}
 40¹ 43^{1,2} 1En. 9¹ 10¹¹ 20⁵ 24⁶
 40⁹ 54⁶ 60^{4,5} 67¹² 68^{2,3,4} 69^{14,15}
 71^{3,8,9,13} T.L. 5^{6n.} T.D. 6²
 Test. App. I 8⁴ 9^{1,5} En. 22^{6,8,9}
 33¹⁰ 3Bar. 11^{2,4,6,7,8,9} 12^{1,7,8}
 13^{2,3,5} 14^{1,2} 15¹; functions of, 3Bar. 11^{2n.}; guardian of Israel,
 'advocate of the Jews', Sir.
 17^{17n.}; holds keys of Kingdom of Heaven, 3Bar. 11²;
 leads Israel against foes, Ass.
 Mos. 10²; presents merits of righteous to God, 3Bar. 14²; receives prayers of men, 11⁴.
See Angels, Archangels.
 Michael, priest, 1Esd. 8³⁴.
 Michmash, rival centre of government under Jonathan, 1Macc. 9^{73n.}.
 Middle of earth = Jerusalem or Palestine, Test. App. I 8¹.
See Jerusalem, centre of earth.

Midian, Jub. 19¹¹ 38¹⁹ 46¹;
 children of, Judith 2²⁶.
 Midianites, T.B. 10¹⁰; = asses,
 1En. 89^{13,16}.
 Midrash of the Law, Zad. 9³³.
 Midrash Wajjissau, T.Jud. 3-9
notes.
 Mighty, avoid quarrels with,
 Sir. 8¹. See Rulers.
 Migrain, Test. App. I 9⁴.
 Migration of the penitents (= Zadokites) from Judah to Damascus, Zad. 6¹ 8⁶; from Jerusalem, 9⁴⁶.
 Milcah, wife of Levi, Test.
App. II 62. See Melka.
 Miletus, Sib. 5³²⁵.
 Milkiel, 1En. 89¹³.
 Millenarianism, 2Bar. 29⁵.
 Millennial day, Millennium,
 2En. 33^{1,2n.}.
 Minim = Christians, formula against, P.A. 3^{16n.}.
 Miracle, Jews saved by, 3Macc.
 2²¹ 6¹³.
 Miriam, Jub. 47⁴ 2Bar. 59¹.
 Misael, 1Esd. 9⁴⁴.
 Misael, Azar. 66. See Mishael.
 Mishael, 4Macc. 13⁹ 16^{3,21} 18¹².
See Hananiah, Three Children.
 Mishnah, the, P.A. § 1; origin and growth of, P.A. § 2.
 Misur, Jub. 29¹⁰.
 Mithradates, treasurer of King
 Cyrus, 1Esd. 2¹¹.
 Mithradates, a Samaritan, 1Esd.
 2¹⁶.
 Mitzvah, Sir. 8^{9n.} See also Commandment.
 Mizpeh in Gilead, 1Macc. 5³⁵.
 Mizpeh, near Jerusalem, 1Macc.
 3⁴⁶.
 Mizraim, Jub. 7¹³ 9¹ 10³⁰.
 Moab, Judith 1¹² 5^{2,22} 7⁸ Jub.
 37^{6,10} 38⁶; field of, 38¹⁹.
 Moabites, 1Esd. 8⁶⁹.
 Mochmur, Judith 7¹⁸.
 Modin, 1Macc. 2^{1,15,23,70} 9¹⁹
 13^{25,30} 16⁴ 2Macc. 13¹⁴; Maccabaeans sepulchre at, 1Macc. § 4.
 Moeth, 1Esd. 8⁶³.
 Moeloch, Jub. 30¹⁰.
 Momdis, 1Esd. 9³⁴.
 Money, Tob. 4¹ 5^{3,19}; love of, warnings against, T.Jud. 17¹
 18² 10^{1,2}.
 Monotheism, Sib. Frag. 1¹⁻³⁵; Frag. 3³⁻⁴⁶ Sib. 3¹¹⁻¹⁶. See
 God, titles of.
 Month, 1En. 74^{4,5}; first =
 Nisan (?), 1Macc. 9³.
 Months. See Ab, Adar, Dystrus,
 Epiphi, Pachon, Xanthicus, &c.
 Mooli, 1Esd. 8⁴⁷ T.L. 12³.
 Moon, Sir. 43⁶⁻⁸ 1En. 83⁴ 41^{5,7} 60¹² 69²⁰ 72³ 72³⁷⁻⁷⁴ 75^{3,6} 78²⁻⁶ 80^{1,4} 82³ 83¹¹ 100¹⁰; course of the, 2En. 16⁵⁻⁷ 3Bar.
 9¹⁻⁸; Feasts determined by,
 Sir. 43⁷; names of, 1En. 78²;
 punished, 3Bar. 9⁷; signs in,
 at last day, Ass. Mos. 10⁵.
 Moors, Sib. 3⁵¹⁶.
 Moossias, 1Esd. 9³¹.
 Mordecai, day of, 2Macc. 15³⁶;
 discovers eunuchs' plot, Add.
 Esth. A¹²⁻¹⁷; dream of, A¹⁻¹¹, interpreted, F¹⁻⁸; prayer of,
 C¹⁻¹⁰. See Mardocheus.
 Moses, 1Esd. 1^{6,11} 5⁴⁹ 7^{6,9} 8³ 9³⁹

- 2 Macc. 1²⁹ 2^{4,10,11} 7^{6,30} Tob. 1⁸ 6¹³ 7^{11,12sq.} Sir. 24²³ 45¹⁻⁵ 46^{1,7} Wisd. 10¹⁶ 1 Bar. 1²⁰ 2^{2,28} Jub. Prologue, 1^{1-4,19,22,27} 2¹ 23³² 30¹¹ 33^{13,18} 49²² Arist. 144 (see Lawgiver) Mart. Is. 3^{8,9} 1 En. 89^{16-18,29-38} T.S. 9² T.Z. 3⁴ Sib. 3²⁵³ Ass. Mos. 1^{1,4,5} 3¹¹ 11^{1,2,4,14,17,19} 12^{1,2} 2 Bar. 3⁹ 4⁵ 17⁴ 59¹ 84^{2,5} 4 Ez. 7^{106,129} 14³ 4 Macc. 2¹⁷ 9² 17¹⁹ 18¹⁸ P.A. 1¹ Zad. 7¹⁹ 9²³ 20⁷; burial of, opposed by Satan, performed by Michael, Ass. Mos. § 2*n.*, twofold presentation of, after, § 2*n.*; 'Greatness of', relation of, to 2 Enoch, 2 En. § 4. In Ass. Mos.: intercessor for Israel in spiritual world, 12⁶; mediator, 1¹⁴ 3¹²; pre-existent, 1¹⁴; unique relation of, to Judaism, § 9. In 2 Bar.: revelations made to Moses, 2 Bar. 59⁴⁻¹¹; functions of Enoch transferred to, 2 Bar. 59^{5-11*n.*} In Jubilees: receives tables of Law, and also a special revelation = Jubilees, on Mount Sinai, Jub. 1^{4sqq.}, and a revelation of Messianic bliss at the end of time, 1²⁶; regarded as taught by God the later as well as the earlier history, 1⁴. In Zad.: and Aaron, 7¹⁹; commandments of God through, 8²; covenant that M. established with Israel, 19⁸; delivered Israel, 7¹⁹; Law of, 19^{2,9,11,14} 20²; speak against M., 18¹⁰;—law of, 2 Macc. 7³⁰ Sus. 3, 62, &c.; other books of, Ass. Mos. § 3; song of, 2 Macc. 7⁶ 4 Macc. 18¹⁹; Testament of, Ass. Mos. § 2.
- Moses, Assumption of, account, § 1; author, a Pharisaic Quietist, § 8; bibliography, § 11; date, § 7; influence on N.T., § 10; not really Assumption, but Testament, of Moses, § 2; other books of Moses, § 3; theology, § 9; version, Latin from Greek, Greek from Hebrew, §§ 4, 5, 6; relation of, to 1 Enoch, § 10(a).
- Mosollamus, 1 Esd. 8⁴⁴.
Mosollamus, 1 Esd. 9¹⁴.
- Mother of the Maccabean martyrs, 4 Macc. 8³ 15^{14sq.}; speeches of, 12⁷ 16^{6,16} 18⁶; death, 17¹.
- Mount (Sinai), Jub. 1^{1,2,4}; the, Jub. 4²⁵; of the East, Jub. 4²⁶; of the fathers, 4 Macc. 4²⁰.
- Mourners, duty to, Sir. 7³⁴.
- Mourning for dead, Sir. 38¹⁶⁻²³.
- Mouses, T.L. 12³.
- Mozarabic Psalter contains P. Man. § 13*n.* (text given).
- Muak, Jub. 8⁶.
- Mualeleth, Jub. 4¹⁴.
- Muppm, Jub. 44²⁵.
- Muratorian Fragment, Wisd. § 7; ? refers to Sirach, Sir. § 8.
- Murine, Sib. 3³⁴⁴.
- Mushai, Test. App. II 74.
- Muzaloth, the eighth heaven, 2 En. 21^{6*n.*}.
- Mycenae, Sib. 3³⁴⁷.
- Myndos, 1 Macc. 15²³.
- Myra in Lycia, Sib. 4¹⁰⁹.
- Mysian commander, 2 Macc. 5^{24*n.*}.
- Mysian(s), 3^{170,483,514}.
- Mysteries, Wisd. 2²² 6²² 14²³ 1 En. 7¹ 8^{1,3} 16³ 106¹⁹; syncretism of Greek philosophy and Hebrew religion among Alexandrian Jews, Wisd. 6^{22*n.*}.
- Mystery, 1 En. 103² 104¹⁰; cult = secret sins, Wisd. 17^{3*n.*}.
- Naaman, son of Benjamin, Jub. 44²⁵.
- Naathus, 1 Esd. 9³¹.
- Nabarias, 1 Esd. 9⁴⁴.
- Nabataeans, 1 Macc. 5²⁵ 9³⁵.
- Nabuchodonosor, i. e. Nebuchadnezzar, 1 Esd. 1^{40,41,45,48} 2¹⁰ 5⁷ 6^{15,18,26} 1 Bar. 1^{9,11,12} Ep. Jer. 2 Add. Esth. A³. In 1 Bar. = Vespasian, 1 Bar. § 7.
- Nabusemakh, executioner, Ah. 4^{6,7ac} 5^{8,9,10} 7²³ (Syr.).
- Nabušumiškun, name of executioner in Papyrus of Ahikar, Ah. 4¹ et passim (II, p. 778).
- Nadab, Tob. 11¹⁸ 14¹⁰.
- Nadabath, city, 1 Macc. 9³⁷.
- Nadan, adopted son of Ahikar (Syr. and Arab.), Ah. 1⁶ et passim.
- Nadin, adopted son of Ahikar in Papyrus of Ahikar, 1¹⁵ et passim.
- Nahor, Jub. 11⁸ 12^{11,31} (II, p. 778) 19¹⁰.
- Nahum, prophet, Tob. 14⁴.
- Naidus, 1 Esd. 9³¹.
- Name, called by the, Zad. 6²; good name, P.A. 2⁸ 4¹⁷; men, called by, Zad. 2^{9,10}, numbered by their names, 17², recorded by, 17³; of God, profaning of, Jub. 30¹⁶ P.A. 1¹¹ 4⁵ 5¹¹, supernatural efficacy ascribed to, P. Man. § 8, 3; to profane, Zad. 19³; to think upon, 9⁴³; to trust in, 9⁵⁴; of Heaven, P.A. 2^{2,16} 4^{5,14} 5²⁰; of the Lord, deny, 1 En. 41² 45² 46⁷; saved in, 48⁷; swear by, 1 Esd. 1⁴⁸; Holy, Sir. 50^{20*n.*} Wisd. 10²⁰; incommunicable, 14²¹; of Messiah, Zad. 2¹⁰; = person (of Enoch), 1 En. 65¹² 70^{1,2}. See Righteous.
- Names, 1 En. 5⁶; blotted out of book of life, 108³; call by, 43¹ 69²¹; play on, T.S. 2² T.L. 6¹ 11^{2,5-6,7,8} T. Jud. 1³ T. Iss. 1¹⁵ 5⁸ T.Z. 1³ T.N. 1^{6,12} T.A. 1² T.B. 1⁶; written, 1 En. 104¹.
- Nanaea, temple of, 1 Macc. 6^{2*n.*} 2 Macc. 1^{13*n.*} 14⁴.
- Naphidim, sons of Watchers, Jub. 7²².
- Naphil, Jub. 7²².
- Naphisi, 1 Esd. 5³¹.
- Naphtali, Tob. 1^{1,4} 7³ Jub. 28¹⁹ 33²² 38⁶ 44^{27,30} T. Jud. 25² T.N. 1^{1,5,6} 9³ Test. App. I 1¹ 10¹⁰; Testament of, late Hebrew, see Appendix I to Testaments of Twelve Patriarchs.
- Naphtha, Azar. 23. See Nephthai.
- Narel, 1 En. 82¹³.
- Nasi, 1 Esd. 5³².
- Nathan, 1 Esd. 8⁴⁴.
- Nathan, Tob. 5¹⁴.
- Nathan, Sir. 47¹.
- Nathan, adopted son of Ahikar, Ah. 1⁶ et passim (Arm.).
- Nathanael, captain over a thousand, 1 Esd. 1⁹.
- Nathanael, 1 Esd. 9²².
- Nathanael, Judith 8¹.
- Nathanas, 1 Esd. 9³⁴.
- Natthaeus, Arist. 49.
- Nations have angelic patrons, Sir. 17^{17*n.*}; three abhorred,—Seir, Philistia, and Sichem, Sir. 50^{25,26}.
- Natives, rank of (λαογραφία); 3 Macc. 2^{28*n.*}.
- Natural phenomena, angels of, see Angels; obedience of, Ep. Jer. 61-63; personified under names of gods, Wisd. 13².
- Nature, changes not, T.N. 3², cf. 1 En. 2; God as Lord of, see Praise; on the side of the righteous, Wisd. 5¹⁷ 16¹⁷⁻²⁴ (18²⁴) 19⁶; worshipped, 13².
- Nazarites, 1 Macc. 3⁵⁰.
- Nebaioth, Jub. 17¹⁴.
- Nebrod, Jub. 8⁷.
- Nebuchadnezzar, 1 Esd. 1^{40,41,45,48} Tob. 14¹⁵ Judith § 6, 1^{1,5,7,11,12} 2^{1,4,19} 3^{2,8} 4¹ 6^{3,4} 11^{1,4,7,23} 12¹³ 14¹⁸ 2 Bar. 79¹ 3 Bar. 1¹ Zad. 1⁵; wild condition of, parallel to, in Ah. 5¹¹. See also Nabuchodonosor.
- Nebuhah, servant of Ahikar, Ah. 7²⁷ (Arab.).
- Nebuzardan, Nadan's younger brother, Ah. 3⁵ (Syr.). See Benzardan, Boudan.
- Neck, branding of, Ps. Sol. 2^{6*n.*}.
- Necromancy, Zad. 14⁵.
- Neelatamauk, city of Ham, Jub. 7^{14,17}.
- Negeb, the, Ps. Sol. 8².
- Nehemiah, 1 Esd. §§ 1, 4 iii., 5⁸ (see Nehemias) 2 Macc. 1¹⁸, 20, 21, 23, 31, 33, 35 2¹³ Sir. 49¹³ 1 En. 89^{72*n.*}; memoirs of, 2 Macc. 2¹³; overshadowed by Ezra, 1 Esd. § 1; praised, but no mention of Ezra, Sir. 49^{13*n.*}.
- Nehemiah, 1 Esd. 5⁴⁰. See Atharias.
- Nehemiah, an elder, Arist. 47.
- Nehemias, 1 Esd. 5⁸. See Nehemiah.
- Nehorai, P.A. 4¹⁸.
- Nehunia ben ha Kanah, P.A. 3⁷.
- Nekodan, 1 Esd. 5³⁷.
- Nemean flower, Sib. 5⁴⁵.
- Nemesis, Sir. 27²⁵⁻²⁹. See Reward.
- Nephtalim, Tob. 1⁵.
- Nephthai or Nephthar = Naphtha, 2 Macc. 1^{36*n.*}.
- †Neqaal, 1 En. 69².
- Neria, 1 Bar. 1¹ 2 Bar. 1¹ 78¹.
- Nero, deeds and impieties of, Sib. 5^{28-34,137-152,203,218}; redi-vivus, 3^{63*n.*} 4^{119-122,139} 5^{93-107,363-377}, destroyed at gates of Jerusalem, 5¹⁰⁸.
- Nestag, Jub. 119.
- Net, Zad. 67¹⁰ 20¹¹; three nets of Belial, Zad. 6¹⁰.
- Netophas, 1 Esd. 5¹⁸.
- New Covenant, Zad. 8¹⁵. See Covenant.
- New Creation, Wisd. 19⁶. See Creation, Heaven, House.
- New Jerusalem, Tob. 137-184.
- New Testament, influence of 1 Enoch on, 1 En. § 10(b), § 11; parallels with Ahikar, Ah. § 3 e.; relation of, to 2 Enoch, 2 En. § 4.
- New world, 2 Bar. 44¹².
- Next of kin, Zad. 8¹⁸ 9¹⁷.
- Nicaea, Sib. 3³⁴³.
- Nicanor, 1 Macc. 3³⁸ 7^{26*n.*} 31, 32, 33, 39, 43, 44, 47, 9¹ 2 Macc. 8^{9,10,12,14,23,24,34} 9³ 14^{12,14,15,17,18,23,26-28,30,37,39} 15^{1,6,26,28,30,32,33,35,37}; son of Patroclus, 2 Macc. 8⁹; governor of Cyprus, 12²; threatens Temple, 14³³; intrigues and threats of, 2 Macc. 14¹⁻⁴⁶; death of, 1 Macc. 7⁴³ 2 Macc. 15²⁸.
- Nicanor's day, 2 Macc. § 1, 1 Macc. 7^{49*n.*}.
- Nicanor, an Egyptian, Arist. 182.
- Nicanor, = Seleucus N., 4 Macc. 3²⁰.
- Niiman, Jub. 34²⁰.
- Nile, Sir. 24²⁷ 39²² 47¹⁴ Arist. 116 Sib. 4⁷⁴ 5^{56,92,484}.
- Nimrod the wicked, Test. App. I 9³.
- Nineveh, Tob. 1^{3,10,17,19,22} 7³ 11^{1,15sq.} 18 14^{1,4,8,15} Judith 1^{1,16} 2²¹ Jub. 9³ Ah. 1¹ 3^{8,9} &c. See Asorestan, Assyria, Athur.
- Niphis, 1 Esd. 5²¹.
- Nisan (month), 1 Esd. 5⁶ Add. Esth. A¹ (Nisa) Ah. 6^{13,14} (Syr.) 6^{22,26} (= April) &c. (Arab.).
- Nisrin, a plain near Nineveh, Ah. 3^{8,9,11,14,15} (Arab.). See Eagles' Dale, Sis.
- Nittai the Arbelite, P.A. 1^{6,7}.
- Noah, Tob. 4¹² Sir. 44¹⁷ Wisd. 10⁴ Jub. 4^{28,33} 5^{5,19,21,22} 6^{2,10,15,18,24,27} 7^{1,8,10,16,19,20} 8^{4,8,9,11,18} 9¹⁴ 10^{1,2,10,12,13,15,32} 11² 14²⁰ 19^{24,27} 22¹³ 1 En. 10² 65^{1,2} 67¹ 106¹³ 107³ T.B. 10⁶ Sib. 3⁸²⁴ 2 En. 35^{1*n.*} 3 Bar. 4¹⁵ 4 Ez. 3¹¹ 4 Macc. 15³¹; prays against demons, Jub. 10³⁻⁶; sons of, Zad. 4¹; words of, Jub. 21¹⁰.
- Noah, book of, Test. App. II 57; Book of, = 1 En. 6-11, 54⁷⁻⁵⁵ 60, 65-69²⁵ 106-107 1 En. §§ 1, 6; date of fragments in 1 En. § 7.
- Noam, Jub. 4¹³.
- Nobles of the people, Zad. 85⁹.
- Noeba, 1 Esd. 5³¹.
- Nooma, 1 Esd. 9³⁵.
- Note of hand, Tob. 5³.
- North, land of the = Damascus, Zad. 9⁴.
- Number, definite, of created, 2 Bar. 23^{4-5*n.*}; of Kasbeel, 2 Bar. 69¹³; of mankind, 2 Bar. 21¹⁰ 23^{4,5}; of righteous, 1 En. 47⁴ 4 Ez. 4^{36*n.*}, cf. 2 Bar. 21¹⁰ 48⁴⁶; of stars, 1 En. 93¹⁴; of those who pass away, cared for, 2 Bar. 48⁶; without number—angels, 1 En. 71⁹, cf. 71⁸; days of holy, 58³; fountain of righteous, 65¹²; times, 108¹³; weeks, 91¹⁷.
- Numbers used for names (number = value of initial letter of name), Sib. 5¹² &c.
- Numenius, son of Antiochus,

INDEX

1 Macc. § 7iii(c) 12¹⁶ 14^{22,24} 15¹⁵.
 Nun. See Joshua.

Oabdius, 1 Esd. 9²⁷.

Oak, the, 2 Bar. 6¹ⁿ 7⁷¹³; where Ezra received inspiration, 4 Ez. 14¹ⁿ.

Oath, 1 En. 69^{13-21,25} Zad. 9²³ 10⁶ 19¹; binding, 20⁵; of the covenant, 19^{6,8}; of cursing, 10⁷; of the woman, disallowing of, 20⁷.

Oaths, false, Wisd. 14²⁹.

Obdia, 1 Esd. 5³⁸.

Obedience to Law and Rabbis enforced, 2 Bar. 46⁵.

Obeth, 1 Esd. 8³².

Ocean, Sib. 3²²³ 5^{26,530}; stream, 1 En. 17⁵ⁿ.

Ochielus, captain over a thousand, 1 Esd. 1⁹.

Ocidelus, 1 Esd. 9²².

Ocina, Judith 2²⁸.

Odoarres. See Odomera.

Odomera, 1 Macc. 9⁶⁶.

Offering, none offered for three thousand years in Sion, 4 Ez. 10⁴⁵.

Offerings, Sir. 7³¹. See Sacrifice.

Office, Zad. § 4 [2⁸] 6³ 9³².

Officials, titles of, at Philopator's court, 3 Macc. 5^{1,14} 6³⁰ 7¹.

Ohad, Jub. 44¹³.

Oil, given by Michael to angels with full baskets, 3 Bar. 15²; holy, T.L. 8⁴; of fragrance, Apoc. Mos. 40²; life, A. & E. 36²; mercy, A. & E. 40¹; of mercy or of glory, 2 En. 22^{8,9} 56².

Ointment, sweet, 2 En. 22⁸, cf. Apoc. Mos. 9³ 13¹.

Olamus, 1 Esd. 9³⁰.

Old age, Wisd. 4⁸. See Aged.

Old Testament, attitude of Zadokites to, Zad. § 8; relation of Tobit to, Tob. § 8 iv.

Olives, Mount of, T.N. 5¹.

Onan, T. Jud. 10⁴ Jub. 41^{4,5} 44³⁴.

Onias I, high priest, 1 Macc. 12^{7n,8,21}. See Spartans.

Onias III, high priest, 2 Macc. 3^{1,5,31,33,35} 4^{1,3,33,34,35,36,38} 15^{12,14}; killed, 4³⁵; Judas sees in vision, 15¹²⁻¹⁴ 1 En. 90⁸ⁿ. 4 Macc. 4^{1,13,15}.

Onias IV, temple of, at Heliopolis, Sib. 5⁵⁰¹ⁿ.

Onus, 1 Esd. 5²².

Onyx, Sir. 24¹⁵ⁿ.

Ophanim, 1 En. 61¹⁰ 71⁷ 2 En. 29^{3(B)}.

Ophir, gold of, Sir. 7¹⁸ 2 Bar. 10¹⁹.

Opportunity, judgement according to. See Judgement.

Oppressed, cry of, God hears, Sir. 35¹²⁻²⁰ (35¹⁴⁻²⁶). See Poor.

Opus Imperfectum in Matthaeum, Mart. Is. §§ 5, 6, 1-2¹ⁿ; uses Testaments, T. Jud. 10¹.

Ora, Jub. 11¹.

Oracle of God, Arist. 97.

Oral. See Tradition.

Orders of Angels. See Angels.

Ordinances, Zad. 8²¹ 9¹; (or Foundations) of the covenant, 11²; of the Gentiles, 10¹.

Orgies, heathen, Wisd. 12⁵ 14²³.

Origen, Sir. § 8 T.R. 2¹ⁿ 1 En. 10(c) 19³ⁿ; Hexapla of, 1 Esdras in, 1 Esd. § 2.

Original sin, in 2 Baruch and 4 Ezra, 2 Bar. 18²ⁿ 23⁴ⁿ 54¹⁵ⁿ. 4 Ez. 3²⁰. See Evil, Free-will, Inclination.

Orioch, an angel, 2 En. 33^{11(B)}.

Orion, Sib. 5^{520,524}.

Orjares, 1 En. 7⁸¹.

Ornaments, wearing of, forbidden, T.R. 5⁵, cf. 1 En. 8¹.

Ornias, Arist. 47.

Orphans and widows, care of, Tob. 1⁸ Sir. 4¹⁰, cf. Zad. 18⁵.

Orthosia, 1 Macc. 15³⁷.

Osaias, 1 Esd. 8⁴⁸.

Ostanim, shining station of, 2 En. 20^{1(B)}. See Ioanit.

Othonias, 1 Esd. 9²⁸.

Ouranos, Sib. 3¹¹¹.

Overcometh, he that, 4 Ez. 7^{115,128}, cf. 'Contest', 7¹²⁷.

Overthrow, i.e. Babel, Jub. 10²⁶ 12²⁵.

Ox, son of Joseph, Judith 8¹.

Oxus, 1 En. 77¹ⁿ.

Oxyrhynchus Greek Fragment of 2 Baruch, given in 2 Bar. 12¹⁻¹⁴ 14³.

Ozeel, T.L. 12².

Ozias, 1 Esd. 5³¹.

Ozias, 1 Esd. 8².

Ozias, son of Micah, a Simeonite, ruler of Bethulia, Judith 6^{15,16,21} 7^{23,30} 8^{9,11,28,35} 10⁶ 15¹³ 14⁶ 15⁴.

Oziel, Judith 8¹.

Pachon, month, 3 Macc. 6³⁸.

Painting, suggested by the martyrdoms, 4 Macc. 17⁷.

Palaea Historica of Vassiliev, Ass. Mos. § 2.

Palestine, description of, Arist. 107-120; = Eternal Land, Sib. 5⁴¹. See Holy Land.

Pallu, Jub. 44¹².

Pamphylia, 1 Macc. 15²³.

Pamphylia, Sib. 3^{169,209,515} 5^{340,460}.

Pandonia, Sib. 3³⁴³.

Paphos, Sib. 4¹²⁸.

Papyri, 3 Macc. §§ 1, 4. Arist. 12⁷ⁿ.

Papyrus, Aramaic, of Ahikar, Ah. § 4 (II p. 777sq.).

Parable, 1 En. 12³ 38¹ 43⁴ 45¹ 57³ 58¹ 60¹ 68¹ 69²⁹.

Parables, the, 1 En. 37-71; first, 38¹; second, 45¹; third, 58¹; the Book of, 68¹.

Parables, Sir. 47¹⁷ⁿ Ah. 81-41; and proverbs, Sir. 39^{2,8}; of N.T., parallels to in Ahikar, see Fig-tree, Prodigal Son, Unfaithful Steward; of wicked servant and unfruitful fig-tree, relation of to Tobit and Ahikar, Tob. § 11 B i.

Paradise, A. & E. 1¹ 3^{1,2} 4¹ 9⁴ 10⁴ 25^{1,3} 28³ 31¹ 32¹ 36¹ 37¹ 40¹ 48⁶ S.A. & E. 31² 33³ Apoc. Mos. 1¹ 6² 9³ 13¹ 15² 16³ 17^{1,3,5} 22^{2,3} 26³ 27¹ 28¹ 29¹⁻⁴ 37⁵ 40^{2,7} 42³ 1 En. 20⁷ Sib. Frag. 3⁴⁸ 2 Bar. 4^{3,6} 59⁸ 4 Ez. 3⁶ 4^{7,8} 7^{36,123} 8⁵²; the earthly, 2 En. 8^{5n,6(A)} 8^{1,3,8(B)}; = Garden of Eden, earthly, created before world, 4 Ez. 3⁶ⁿ; heavenly, 2 En. 8^{1-4,5n}. 42³ 65¹⁰ 4 Ez. 4^{7,8} 7¹²³ 8^{20n,52n}; of delight, 7³⁶, see Refreshment; opened for the righteous, 8⁵²; its unfailing table, 9¹⁹ⁿ; in third heaven, Apoc. Mos. 40² 2 En. 8¹⁻⁴; of the Lord = trees of life = His pious ones, Ps. Sol. 14²; of righteousness, A. & E. 25³; to be opened to righteous, T.L. 18¹⁰; of vision, A. & E. 28³.

Paran, wilderness of, Jub. 17¹² 20¹².

Pardon (of God only), Zad. 2³ 5⁵ 6^{4,6} 9⁵⁴ 18⁸.

Parents and children, 4 Macc. 13¹⁹ 14¹³ 15^{1sq.} 16⁸; duty to, Sir. 7^{27,28}.

Paronomasiae in 2 Baruch, 2 Bar. § 6³⁰. See Names, play on.

Parthian land, Sib. 4¹²⁴.

Parthians, Sib. 5⁴³⁸; and Medes, 1 En. 56⁵.

Party. See Pharisees, Sadducees, Zadokite Party.

Passions, 4 Macc. 1^{3sq.}; classified, 1²⁰ⁿ. 2^{15sq.} 20ⁿ.

Passover, 1 Esd. 1¹⁻²² (see Josiah) Wisd. 18⁹; regulations regarding, Jub. 49¹⁻²³; wine drunk at, 49⁶ⁿ; time of sacrifice, 49¹²ⁿ.

Patara, Sib. 3⁴⁴¹ 4¹¹².

Path to future life, narrow and difficult, 4 Ez. 7¹⁻⁹. See Ways.

Pathens, 1 Esd. 9²³.

Paths, good, 1 En. 91⁴; of death, 94⁴; peace, 94⁴; righteousness, Jub. 1²⁰ 1 En. 91^{18,19} 92³ 94¹ 99¹⁰ Zad. 1¹¹, see Ways; unrighteousness, 1 En. 91¹⁹ 94¹; uprightness, 91¹⁴ 104¹³ 105²; violence, 91^{18,19}; wickedness, 94³.

Patience, T. Jos. 2⁷ 10^{1,2}.

Patriarchs, immortal life of, 4 Macc. 7¹⁹ 13¹⁷ 16²⁵ 18²³.

Patristic literature, influence of 1 Enoch on, 1 En. § 10(c).

Patroclus. See Nicanor.

Pattern, heavenly. See Heavenly.

Paul, Saint, referred to (?), T.B. 11^{1,2n}; relation of, to Wisdom, Wisd. §§ 5, 8.

Paul, Apocalypse of, relation of to 3 Baruch, 3 Bar. § 5; uses 2 Enoch, 2 En. § 4.

Peace, 1 En. 5^{7,9} 10¹⁷ 11² 58⁴ 71^{15,17} 92¹ P.A. 1^{12,18} 3²; no peace, 1 En. 1⁸ 5⁴ 11² 12⁶ 13¹ 16⁴ 94⁶ 98^{11,15} 99¹³ 101³ 102³ 103⁸.

Pedias, 1 Esd. 9³⁴.

Peleg, Jub. 8⁸ 10¹⁸. See Phaleg.

†Peleg, house of, Zad. 9⁴⁶.

Peleus, Sib. 3⁴²⁷.

Pella, Sib. 5⁴.

Peneius, Sib. 3¹⁴⁶ 5¹³⁵.

Penemue, 1 En. 69⁸.

Penitence, 1 Bar. passim; a sacrifice, Azar. 16, 17.

Penitent, respect for, Sir. 8⁵.

Penitents of Israel (= Zadokites), Zad. 6¹ 8⁶ 9²⁴; all called princes, 8⁶; leave Judah, 6¹ 8⁶; sojourn in Damascus, 8⁶. See Repent.

Pentapolis = cities of plain, Sib. 5¹⁹⁶; = Cyrenaica, Wisd. 10⁶.

Pentecost, feast of, 2 Macc. 12³² Tob. 2¹. See Feast of Weeks.

Pentephari, T. Jos. 12¹ 13^{1,3,4,5} 15⁶.

Perez, Jub. 41²¹ 44¹⁵.

Perfection of holiness, walk in, Zad. 8²¹; men of, 9^{30,32,33}.

Pergamus, Sib. 5¹¹⁹.

Period, Zad. § 4, 1⁵ⁿ. [2⁸] 6^{3,5,7} 8¹ [9⁴⁰] 9⁴⁸; of the destruction of the land, 8¹; of the visitation, 9^{10,11}; of the wickedness (i. e. till Messiah arises), § 10 iv, 8^{9,12} 15⁴ 19⁷; [of the wrath, 1⁵].

Periods. See Hours.

Perizzite, Judith 5¹⁶.

Perizzites, Jub. 14¹⁸ 30²⁵ 1 Esd. 8⁶⁹.

Perjury, Wisd. 14²⁹. See Oaths.

Persecution, of Jews by Antiochus, 4 Macc. 4^{23sq.}; of the righteous, Wisd. 2¹⁰. See Antiochus Epiphanes.

Persepolis, city, 2 Macc. 9².

Persens, of Macedonia, 1 Macc. 8⁵.

Persia, 1 Esd. 3^{1,9,14} 5⁶ 8⁸⁰ 1 Macc. 3³¹ 6^{1,5} (and Media 6⁵⁶) 14² 2 Macc. 1^{12,19} 9^{1,21} Judith 1⁷ Sib. 3⁴⁴⁹ Ah. 3⁷ (Arab., Syr.).

Persian, Add. Esth. E¹⁰ Bel 1 Arist. 13 Sib. 5^{93,113,247}; rule, Arist. 119, 120.

Persians, 1 Esd. 1⁵⁷ 2^{1,2,3,11,16,30} 5^{56,71} 7⁴ 8¹ 2 Macc. 1³³ Judith 16¹⁰ Add. Esth. E^{14,23} Arist. 35 T.N. 5⁸ Sib. 3^{159,169,207,291} 4^{62,63,65,87} 5^{22,101,116,147,441} 4 Macc. 1⁸⁵; and Medes, 1 Macc. 1¹ &c.

Pessimism, 4 Ez. § 10, 3²⁰ⁿ. 4²⁷ 7¹² 9³⁶; of 2 Baruch B² B³, 2 Bar. § 10.

Pestilence, Ps. Sol. 7⁴ⁿ. 15⁸.

Petasis, use of, 2 Macc. 4¹².

Peter, Apocalypse of, 1 En. 106¹⁰ⁿ.

Phaath Moab, 1 Esd. 5¹¹ 8³¹.

Phacareth, 1 Esd. 5³⁴.

Phaisur, 1 Esd. 9²².

Phakorites, Jub. 14¹⁸.

Phalaris, 3 Macc. 5^{20,42}.

Phaldens, 1 Esd. 9⁴⁴.

Phaleas, 1 Esd. 5²⁹.

Phaleg = Peleg, Test. App. I 8³.

Phalerum, Arist. 9.

Phalias, 1 Esd. 9⁴⁸.

Phaltiel, captain of the people, 4 Ez. 5¹⁶.

†Phamael = Phanuel, angel, 3 Bar. 2⁵.

Phanuel (only in Parables), 1 En. 40⁹ 54⁶ 71^{8,9,13}, see Angels, Archangels: = Ramiel(?), 3 Bar. 2⁵ⁿ.

Pharakim, 1 Esd. 5³².

Pharaoh, 1 Macc. 4⁹ 3 Macc. 2⁶ 6⁴ Sir. 16¹⁵ Jub. 13^{13,15} 34¹¹ 39^{2,14,17,18} 40^{1,3-6,8,9,11} 41²² 43^{19,21} 45^{6,8} 46¹⁴ 47^{2,5,9} 48^{4,9} 49² T.Z. 3⁶ T. Jos. 2¹ 8⁴ 13⁵; daughter of, Jub. 47^{5,9}; (= Neco) fights with Josiah at Megiddo, 1 Esd. 1²⁵.

Pharathon, city, 1 Macc. 9⁵⁰.

Phares, 1 Esd. 5⁵.

Pharida, 1 Esd. 5³³.

Pharisaic affinities of, 2 Macc. § 5; exclusiveness, 1 En. 97⁴

INDEX

- 104⁶; insertions in Sirach, Sir. § 4; Quietist, early type of = Chasid, Ass. Mos. § 1; recension of Sirach, Sir. § 4; teaching of Judith, Judith § 9; —Law, strict observance, Sabbath and new moon and eves kept, fasting (8^{5,6}), tithings, future life, § 9.
- Pharisaism, Apocalyptic or spiritual side of, directed its studies to the Prophets, Zad. §§ 8, 9.
- Pharisees, attacked in Zad. Frag. §§ 2, 9, 10, 12; as a party, § 5, see Zadokite Party; = builders of the wall, § 9⁴⁰, see Wall; = they that remove the landmark, § 12, see Landmark; breach of with John Hyrcanus, Test. §§ 1, 10; = 'children of heaven', 1En. 101¹; positive work of, Sir. § 4; referred to, 2Bar. 42⁵ⁿ; religious and literary strife with the Sadducees or Hellenistic party, 1En. 98¹⁵ⁿ, 102⁴-104¹³; = righteous in Ps. Sol. § 5; struggle of against Jannaeus, Sus. § 7; varying relations with the Maccabees, see Chasidim; views of, are reflected in Test. § 11; watchwords of almsgiving, repentance and prayer, Sir. § 4 (I, p. 283).
- Pharmak, Jub. 9².
- (Pharos, Arist. 301.)
- Phaselis, 1Macc. 15²³.
- Phasiron, children of, 1Macc. 9⁶⁶.
- Phassurus, 1Esd. 5²⁵.
- Pherezites, 1Esd. 8⁶⁹. See Perizzites.
- Phicol, Jub. 24²⁶.
- Philadelphus II, Arist. 115ⁿ.
- Philip, bosom friend of Antiochus, 2Macc. 9²⁹; chancellor in Antioch, 13²³ (? 1Macc. 6⁶⁵); courtier ('Friend') of Antiochus, 1Macc. 6^{14,55,63}.
- Philip the Macedonian, 1Macc. 1¹.
- Philip V of Macedonia, 1Macc. 8⁵.
- Philip, a Phrygian, 2Macc. 5²²; governor of Jerusalem, 6¹ 8⁸.
- Philip, Sib. 5⁶.
- Philistia, Jub. 37^{6,10}; abhorred, Sir. 50²⁶.
- Philistines, 1Macc. 3^{24,41} 4^{22,30} 5^{66,68} Sir. 46¹⁸ 47⁷ Jub. 24^{8,14} 15^{16,18,25,28} 38⁷ (see Caphtorim) 4Macc. 3⁷; = dogs in, 1En. 89⁴²⁻⁴⁹; fierce hatred of, in Maccabean wars, Jub. 24²⁸⁻³²ⁿ; final rooting out, and punishment in Sheol of, 24²⁸⁻³².
- Philo, and 3 Macc., 3Macc. § 4; quoted, Wisd. 19¹⁸ⁿ. 2Bar. 21⁴ⁿ; relation of, to Letter of Aristeas, Arist. § 9; to Wisdom, Wisd. §§ 5, 7; views of, 2En. 23⁵ⁿ. 24²ⁿ. 30⁸ⁿ.
- Philocrates, Arist. I, 120, 171, 295, 322.
- Philopator. See Ptolemy IV.
- Philosophy, 4Macc. 1¹ 5^{4sq.} 7^{7,21}.
- Phineas, the zealous priest, 4Macc. 18¹². See Phinehas, Phinees.
- Phinees, i. e. Phinehas, 1Esd. 5⁵ 8^{2,28}.
- Phinees, a priest, 1Esd. 8⁶³.
- Phinehas, son of Eleazar, Sir. 45²³ 50²⁴ 1Macc. 2^{26,54}; obtained covenant of everlasting priesthood, Sir. 50²⁴ 1Macc. 2⁵⁴. See Phineas.
- Phinoe, 1Esd. 5³¹.
- Phoebus, Sib. 4⁴ 5^{324,326}.
- Phoenice, Sib. 5¹²⁵.
- Phoenicia, 1Esd. 2^{17,24,25,27} 4⁴⁸ 6^{3,7,27,29} 7¹ 8^{19,23,67} 2Macc. 3^{5,8} 4^{4,22} 8⁸ 10¹¹ 3Macc. 3¹⁵ Arist. 12, 22 Ass. Mos. 1³ Sib. 5⁴⁵⁶ 4Macc. 4². See Coelesyria, Syria.
- Phoenicians, Sib. 3^{168,492,597}.
- Phoenix, belief in, 3Bar. 6⁴ⁿ. 10⁷.
- Phoenixes, 2En. 12¹ⁿ. 15¹ 19⁶.
- Phogor, Tob. 1².
- Phoros, 1Esd. 5⁹ 8³⁰ 9²⁶.
- Phurrai, i. e. Purim (?), Add. Esth. F¹¹.
- Phrygia, Sib. 3^{140,401,407}.
- Phrygians, Sib. 3^{169,205,514} 4⁷¹ 5¹³⁰.
- Phua, Jub. 44¹⁶.
- Phylarches, 2Macc. 8³².
- Physcon stories, 3Macc. § 5.
- Physician, Sir. 10¹⁰ 18¹⁹; ordained by God to be resorted to in sickness, Sir. 38¹⁻¹⁵.
- Physicians, Tob. 2¹⁰.
- Pious, Ps. Sol. 3¹⁰ 4^{1,7,9} 8^{28,40} 9⁶ 10⁷ 12^{5,8} 13^{9,11} 14^{2,7} 15⁹ 17¹⁸.
- Pirkē Aboth, account, short, P.A. § 1; bibliography, § 6; historical and critical account, § 2; influence on later literature, § 4; MSS., § 3; theology, § 5; relation of, to Sirach, Sir. § 7(6).
- Pisces, Sib. 5⁵²³.
- Pisidians, Sib. 5³⁴⁰.
- Pison, Sir. 24²⁶.
- Pit, Ps. Sol. 16ⁿ. (see Destruction) Sir. 4¹⁰ 9⁹ 48⁶ 51², see Hades, Sheol; children of, see Children; snares of, Zad. 16¹²; of destruction, P.A. 5²²; of Hades, Sir. 21¹⁰; of torment, 4Ez. 7³⁶. See Gehenna.
- Pitane, Sib. 5¹²⁰.
- Pithom, Jub. 46¹⁴. See also Python.
- Place. See High, Holy.
- Place prepared for repose of each soul, 2En. 49². See Chambers.
- Planets, 2En. 27³ 30³ⁿ.
- Plant (= Israel or the righteous), of righteousness and truth, 1En. 10¹⁵ⁿ; of righteousness, 93⁵, = Israel, Jub. 16²⁶ⁿ. 36⁶; of righteousness, the eternal, 1En. 93¹⁰; of righteous judgement, 93⁵; of uprightiness, 93², = Israel, Jub. 1¹⁶; of the eternal seed, 1En. 84⁶.
- Planting of pious, rooted for ever, Ps. Sol. 14³; root of God's (= Zadokites), Zad. 1⁶.
- Platonism, influence of, in Wisdom, Wisd. § 9.
- Pleiad, Sib. 5⁵²².
- Pluto, Sib. 3¹⁴³.
- Political problems, Arist. § 6, 5.
- Pollute, one's holy spirit, Zad. 7¹², cf. 8²⁰; sanctuary, 7⁸ 9⁴⁸, cf. 6¹¹; wealth, 8¹².
- Pollution, of holy things, i. e. Temple, Ps. Sol. 1⁸ 2³ 8¹³; of the nations, 1Esd. 1⁴⁹; of the sacrifices, T.L. 16ⁿ.
- Polybius, relation of 3 Macc. to, 3Macc. § 5.
- Polygamy denounced, Zad. 7¹⁻⁴.
- Pompey, Zad. § 6; invades Judaea, 1Bar. § 7; the foreign conqueror in Ps. Sol. § 5; alien, 17⁹; boasting of, 23³⁻³⁵; comes from West, 17¹⁴; desecrates Temple, 2² 7²; enters Jerusalem in peace, 8¹⁸⁻²⁰; lawless one, 17¹³; slain dishonourably in Egypt, 23^{30sq.}; the insolent one, 23⁰; = the dragon, 2²⁹.
- Poor and oppressed, right conduct towards, Sir. 4¹⁻¹⁰; anxieties of, 31 (34)¹⁻⁴; cannot associate with rich, 13¹⁸⁻²⁰; duty to, Sir. 7^{32,33}; how treated by world, 13²¹⁻²³; of the flock = they that give heed to God, Zad. 9^{10(β)}; robbery of, Zad. 8¹³, brings pestilence, P.A. 5¹²; strengthen hand of (almsgiving), Zad. 8¹⁷ 18³.
- Portents in Nature, signs of the end, 4Ez. 5⁴⁻⁹ 6^{21,22}.
- Porters at temple-gates, 1Esd. 1¹⁶.
- Poseidon, Sib. 3¹⁴² 5¹⁵⁷. See Thunderer.
- Posidonius, 2Macc. 14¹⁹.
- Potiphar, Jub. 34¹¹ 39² 40¹⁰ 44²⁴. Potter and clay, T.N. 2²⁻⁴.
- Power, angels of. See Angels.
- Powers, of heaven, 1En. 82³; on earth, 61¹⁰; over water, 61¹⁰.
- Powers = angels, 3Bar. 1⁸ⁿ; of the Lord, Azar. 39.
- Praise of Fathers of old, see Fathers; of God, see God; of Simeon, high priest, son of Jochanan, Sir. 49^{15b-50²⁴}; of wisdom, Sir. 24¹⁻³⁴, see Wisdom.
- Pravuil, an archangel, 2En. 22^{11,12}(A) 23². See Vretil.
- Prayer, Tob. § 10 B (2) 3¹⁶ 12⁵ Sir. 51¹⁻¹² Arist. 196-197 P.A. 2¹⁷; almsgiving and fasting, Tob. § 10 B(2); and fasting, T. Jos. 3⁴ 4⁸ 10^{1,2} T.B. 1⁴; at dawn, Wisd. 16²⁸; for deliverance, 3Macc. 5^{6sq.} 6^{1sq.}; for Israel, a, Sir. 36¹⁻¹⁷ (33^{1-13a} 36^{16b-22}); for sanctity of Temple, 3Macc. 2sq.; for sins, Sir. 21¹; hours of, 2En. 51⁴; memorial of, Tob. 12¹²; need of, in all things, Sir. 37¹⁵; of Ezra, see Confessio Esdrae; of the poor, efficacy of, Sir. 35¹⁴⁻¹⁷; of righteous, 1En. 47^{1,2,4} 97^{3,5} 99³ Zad. 14¹, heard by God, Ps. Sol. 6⁸; prominence of, in Test. XII Patr.; Jacob's, for Reuben, T.R. 1⁷ 4⁴; Judah, T.Jud. 10²; Gad, T.G. 5⁹; Benjamin, T.B. 10¹; ten eldest sons, T.B. 3⁶; Levi's, T.N. 6⁸; Rachel's, T.B. 1⁴; Simeon's, T.S. 2¹⁸; Simeon's mother's, T.S. 2²; Joseph's, T. Jos. 3³ 6⁷ 7⁴ 8¹.
- Prayer of Manasses, date of composition, § 6; description, § 1; history, literary, of, § 3; language, original, of, § 7; MSS., Latin, of, § 13ⁿ; origin of, § 2; preservation, § 4; summary, § 13; text, § 12; theology, § 8; title, § 5; versions of, §§ 9, 10, 11, 13—English, § 13; Greek and Latin, § 9; other, § 11, Syriac, § 10.
- Prayers, for dead, 2Macc. 12^{42, 43n}; of Judith, Judith 9²⁻¹⁴ 13⁷; of men, received by Michael, 3Bar. 11⁴.
- Precept, P.A. 2¹ 4^{2,13}; reward of, P.A. 2^{1,2,18,20} 3⁴ 4².
- Precepts, on right-doing, Sir. 4²⁰⁻²⁸; for everyday life, 4²⁹⁻⁵³, see Duty; for conduct, 7¹¹⁻¹⁷.
- Predestination, Sir. 33 (36)⁷⁻¹⁵ Ass. Mos. 1^{13,14} 12¹³ (see Pre-existence) 2En. 49² 50¹ (see Man, works of) Zad. §§ 9⁴⁰ 13, 2^{6,10}, see Election; and Free-will in Judaism, 2Bar. 54^{16, 19n}; in 4 Ezra, of duration of age and time of end, 4³³⁻⁴³ 6¹⁻⁶; of harvest of evil, 4²⁸⁻³¹; of number of righteous, see Number; Judgement, 7⁷⁰.
- Pre-existence, Wisd. 8¹⁹ⁿ; heavenly, of Messiah, 4Ez. 13²⁶ⁿ. 1En. 48², see Messiah; of Moses, Ass. Mos. 1¹⁴ⁿ; of souls, 2En. 23⁵ⁿ, see Souls.
- Preferences, God's, in Man and Nature, Sir. 33⁷⁻¹⁵. See Predestination.
- Pre-Maccabean elements in 1 Enoch, 1En. § 1; high priests, Ass. Mos. 5^{3,4n}.
- Preparedness, need of, Sir. 18¹⁹⁻²⁶. See Foresight, Forethought.
- Presence, angels of, see Angels; presences, the four, 1En. 40¹⁻⁸, see Angels.
- Present, enjoy the, Sir. 14¹⁴⁻¹⁶.
- Presumptuously, acting, Sir. 3¹⁶.
- Priam, Sib. 3⁴²⁷.
- Pride, ruinous in rulers, Sir. 10⁶⁻¹⁸.
- Priest, Zad. 15^{5,7} 17⁵; confess to, 10⁸; duty to, Sir. 7²⁹⁻³¹; of God, purity required in, Ah. 2⁶³ (Syr. A); of Most High God, title claimed by Maccabean high priests, Jub. 32¹ Ass. Mos. 6¹.
- Priesthood, above the kingdom, T.Jud. 21^{3,4}; robes, staff, diadem, anointing, &c. of, T.L. 8²⁻¹⁰; rules of, Test. App. II 15-57—purity, 16-22, 53-55; wood for sacrifice, 23-25; sacrifice, method of, 25-47; salt, 26, 29, 37, 52. See Melchizedek.
- Priests, Jewish, in Egypt, 3Macc. 6¹ 7¹³.
- Prince, Zad. 7⁴; no prince, 9⁴⁰; of all the congregation = the sceptre, 9⁹; of lights, see Lights.
- Princes = the penitents of Israel, Zad. 8⁵; digged a well, 8⁵; of Judah, 9¹⁵ⁿ, see 8⁶; of old,

INDEX

- i. e. angels, who fell, Sir. 16⁷.
See Giants.
- Prodigal Son, parable of, parallel phrasing in Ah. 8²⁴ (Arm.).
- Profane. See Holy, Name, Sabbath, Sanctuary.
- Profane man, Ps. Sol. 4¹ⁿ. See Pollution.
- Property, lost, law as to, Zad. 10⁷⁻⁹; of camp, 10⁷.
- Prophecy, Sir. 24³³ⁿ; of heaven, T.B. 3⁸; of Moses in Deuteronomy, Ass. Mos. 1⁵.
- Prophecy a lie, Zad. 8².
- Prophet, Zad. 5⁶ 6⁹ 9², see Ezekiel, Isaiah, Zechariah; expected, to decide on polluted altar, 1 Macc. 4⁴⁶; Messianic, T.B. 9²; no longer any, implied in 1 Macc. 9²⁷ⁿ; of God, the, = Moses, Ass. Mos. 11¹⁶; of the Most High, i. e. John Hyrcanus, T.L. 8¹⁵.
- Prophets, 1 En. 108⁶ P.A. 1¹; books of = Chiun your images, Zad. 9⁷, ten times quoted in Zad. §§ 8, 9³⁰, 10, see Halachoth, Law and Prophets; Job among, Sir. 40⁹ⁿ; made by Wisdom, Wisd. 7²⁷ⁿ; shall take away sword, be judges, Sib. 3⁷⁶¹; the Twelve, Sir. 49¹⁰. See Law and Prophets.
- Prophets, works of, pulled down, 1 Macc. 9⁶⁴.
- Propitiation = forgiveness, Sir. 18²⁰ⁿ.
- Propontis, Sib. 3⁴⁴².
- Proselyte, Zad. 1⁷³.
- Proselytes, Tob. 1⁸ 2 Bar. 41⁴ⁿ. 42⁵ 48¹⁹.
- Proselytizing, 2 Bar. 1⁴.
- Proseuche, place of prayer, in Egypt, 3 Macc. 7²⁰.
- Prosperity of wicked, Sir. 11¹⁸⁻²².
- Proverbs, the Book of, relation of to Wisdom, Wisd. § 5; of Ahikar, Ah. 2¹⁻¹⁰⁵; various, Sir. 8⁸ 13²⁴⁻¹⁴² 18²⁹.
- Providence, Arist. 201. See God, titles of.
- Provinces, one hundred and twenty-seven, Add. Esth. B¹ⁿ.
- Prudence, evil sort of, Sir. 19²³.
- Psalms of Solomon, account, short, § 1; character, § 5; date, § 5; MSS., Greek, § 2; origin, § 5; original language, Hebrew, § 4; references to, § 5; relation of Ps. Sol. 11 to 1 Bar. 4³⁶⁻⁵⁹, 1 Bar. § 6; Syriac version, from Greek, § 3.
- Psalter, Canticles appended to contain P. Man., P. Man. § 4.
- Psammetichus, Arist. 13.
- Pseudepigrapha, 1 En. § 1; implied in Zad. Frag. 9²⁸ (A), (Jeremiah's word to Baruch, Elisha's to Gehazi); recognized largely until A.D. 70, Zad. § 8.
- Pseudo-Cyprian, 1 En. 1⁹ⁿ.
- Pseudonymous publication, 1 En. § 1.
- Psychology, Arist. § 4 (6), 155-156, 160, 213-216, see Heart, Inclination, Senses; heart be changed and converted to a different spirit, 4 Ez. 6²⁶; of mind, sprung from dust, 7⁶²; mind grows with us, 7⁶⁴; heart and understanding, 8⁶.
- Ptolemaeus, Add. Esth. F¹¹. See Lysimachus.
- Ptolemais, 1 Macc. 5^{15,21,55} 10^{1,39,56-58,60} 11^{22,24} 12^{46,48} 13¹² 2 Macc. 13^{24,25} Arist. 116; 'at the harbour,' 3 Macc. 7¹⁷.
- Ptolemy I, son of Lagus, Arist. 13, 14.
- Ptolemy II, Philadelphus, Arist. 35, 41 Arist. § 1.
- Ptolemy IV, Sir. 10⁹⁻¹¹ⁿ. 3 Macc. §§ 1, 5, 1¹ⁿ. et passim.
- Ptolemy VI, Philometor, 1 Macc. 1¹⁸ 10^{51n,55,57} (11¹) 11^{3,8,13,15-18} 2 Macc. 4²¹ 9²⁹ 10¹³ Sib. 3^{192n,316,388-400,608n}. 4 Macc. 4²².
- Ptolemy VII, Energetes II Physcon, 1 Macc. 15¹⁶.
- Ptolemy, king. See Aristobulus.
- Ptolemy VIII (Lathyrus) and Cleopatra, Add. Esth. F¹¹ⁿ.
- Ptolemy Macron, son of Dorymenes, 1 Macc. 3³⁸ⁿ. 2 Macc. 4^{45,46} 6⁸ 8⁸; governor of Coele-syria and Phoenicia, 8⁸ 10¹²; suicide, 10¹³.
- Ptolemy of Megalopolis, history of, 3 Macc. § 5.
- Ptolemy, son of Abubus, son-in-law of Simon, murders Simon, 1 Macc. 16^{11n,15,16,18}.
- Punishment, P.A. 5¹¹; after death, no mention of in Sirach, Sir. § 9v, see Future; appropriate, Wisd. 11¹⁶; differentiated, 6⁶ 11¹⁰; eternal, see Destruction. In 1 En., 41²ⁿ. 60⁶ 80⁸ 106¹⁷; earth cleansed from all, 10²²; of kings, 1 En. 56⁷; on the earth, great, 106¹⁷; of (from) Lord of Spirits, 54⁷ 60²⁵; (? Messiah shall know, Zad. 18⁹;) mild recommended, Arist. § 6, 188, 208; of Jerusalem, 4 Macc. 4^{21sq.}; place of, Adam and Eve in, 2 En. 41¹ⁿ; remedial, Wisd. § 9; temporal, Sir. 9^{8,12,13}. See Angels, Chastisement, Eternal, Future, Judgement, Wrath.
- Pupils, class of, i. e. Yeshibah, Sir. 51²⁹ⁿ; rules for, by schools of Shammai and Hillel, Sir. 51²³ⁿ.
- Purgatory, belief in, 4 Ez. 7¹³⁷ⁿ.
- Purification, Levitical laws of, Jub. 3⁴⁻¹⁴; of Jerusalem, by martyrs, 4 Macc. 1¹¹ 18¹¹.
- Purim, feast of, Add. Esth. F¹¹ⁿ.
- Purity, exclude from Zad. 10^{13,14}. See Excommunication.
- Put, Judith 2²³ Jub. 7¹³ 9¹ Test. App. I 9⁴.
- Pyramus, Sib. 4⁹⁷.
- Python = Pithom, Sib. 5¹⁸²ⁿ.
- +Qafratef, Jub. 34¹⁵.
- Qelt, Jub. 8²⁶.
- Quarrels, warnings against, Sir. 28⁸⁻¹²; with powerful, rich, and boastful, warnings against, 8¹⁻³. See Disputes.
- Quarters, the Four, 1 En. 77¹⁻³.
- Quietism, Ass. Mos. § 9.
- Quotations from O.T., how introduced in Zad. Frag., Zad. § 8; include Law, Prophets, and Hagiographa, § 8; from an apocryph, 'Jannes and Jambres,' § 8.
- Raaboth, Jub. 38²¹.
- Raamses, Jub. 46¹⁴.
- Rabael, i. e. Arbela, T. Jud. 7⁹. See Robel.
- Rabbi = Judah the Prince, or the Holy, P.A. 2¹ⁿ. 4²⁷ 6⁹.
- Rabbinic citations of Sirach, Sir. § 3 ii.
- Rabbinites attacked in Zad. Frag. § 2.
- Rabbis, party among, favourable to apocalyptic, 4 Ez. 14ⁿ.
- Rabshakeh, Sir. 48¹⁸.
- Rachel, Jub. 28^{1,3-5,8-10,12,16,17,19,20,24} 20^{1,2} 31² 32^{3,33,34} 33^{2,22} 34¹⁶ 36²³ 44^{23,26,27,32} T. Iss. 1^{3,6-8,10,14(β-δ)} 2^{1,2,4} T.N. 1⁶⁻⁹ T. Jos. 20³ T.B. 1³⁻⁵ Test. App. I 1¹; death of, Jub. 32³⁴.
- Rafa, mountain range, Jub. 8^{12,16,28}.
- Ragan, Judith 15¹⁵.
- Rages, Tob. 4^{1,20} 5⁶ 6¹³ 9².
- Raguel, Tob. 1¹.
- Raguel, Tob. 3^{7,17} 6^{11,13} 7^{1,6}.
- Raguel, an angel, 1 En. 20⁴ 23⁴.
- Raguil, an angel, 2 En. 33⁶ (A, 'Rasuil' B), cf. Raguel, 1 En. 20⁴.
- Rahab, monsters of, Sir. 43²⁵.
- Rakeel, Jub. 4³³.
- Ram = Chasidim, 1 En. 90^{10,11}; David, 80⁴⁵⁻⁴⁹; Elijah, 90³¹; Judas Maccabaeus, 90¹³⁻¹⁶; Saul, 89⁴³⁻⁴⁷.
- Ramathaim, 1 Macc. 11³⁴ⁿ.
- Rameses, Judith 1¹⁰ Jub. 45⁶.
- Rameel, 1 En. 6⁷.
- Ramiel, 1 En. 6⁷.
- Ramiel = Remiel, 2 Bar. 55^{3n,636}.
- Ransom for sin, martyrs' death as, 4 Macc. 17²².
- Raphael, Tob. 3¹⁷ 5⁴ 6^{10,14,18} 9⁵ 12¹⁵ 1 En. 9¹ 10⁴ 20³ 22^{3,6} 32⁶ 40⁹ 54⁶ 68^{2,3,4} 71^{8,9,13}, see Angels, Archangels; functions of, in Tobit, later attributed to Michael, Tob. § 10.
- Raphael, Tob. 1¹.
- Raphaim, Judith 8¹.
- Raphia, battle, 3 Macc. 1¹⁻⁶.
- Raphon, city, 1 Macc. 5³⁷.
- Rasses, children of, Judith 2²³.
- Rasueja, Jub. 8¹.
- Rasuil. See Raguil.
- Rasujal, Jub. 4¹⁶.
- Rasuu, Jub. 34²⁰.
- Rathumus, the story-writer, a Samaritan, 1 Esd. 2^{16,17,25,30}.
- Ravenna, Sib. 5²⁰⁵.
- Ravens = Syrians, 1 En. 90⁸⁻¹².
- Ravine, deep and dry (= valley of Hinnom), 1 En. 26^{4,6}; deep and narrow (= Kedron or valley of Jehoshaphat), 1 En. 26³. See Abyss, Chasm, Valley.
- Razis, an elder at Jerusalem, commits suicide, 2 Macc. 14³⁷.
- Reason (Inspired), in 4 Macc. 1^{1sq.} 2^{2sq.} 3^{1sq.} 5³¹ 6^{31sq.} 13^{1sq.} 16^{1sq.}; definition of, 4 Macc. 1¹ⁿ. 1¹⁵; as master-gardener of the mind, 1²⁹; compared to a harbour-mole, 13⁶; guide of the virtues, 1³⁰; not extirpator, but antagonist of the passions, § 1, 1⁶ 3⁶; not master over forgetfulness, &c., 1⁵ 2²⁴ 3¹; is a spark, Wisd. 2²ⁿ.
- Rebecca, Jub. 10^{10,12,16,26,31} 22⁴ 23⁴ 25^{1,4} 26^{3,5,7,9,10,11} 27^{1,6,7,8,12,13,18} 28¹ 29¹⁶ 31^{3,5,6,30} 32^{30,31} 33²¹ 35^{1,18} 36²¹ T.L. 6⁸.
- Rebellion. See Israel.
- Rebuke, in righteousness, Zad. 9⁴⁰; one's brother, 8¹⁹; neighbour, 10^{2,5}. See Reproof.
- Recensions, two—of Daniel—of Hebrew Psalm, Ps. Sol. 11 and 1 Bar. 4⁵⁻⁹—of Zadokite Fragments (A and B), 1 Bar. § 6n. 5⁰.
- Reckoning up of sins, Wisd. 4²⁰.
- Recompense, of God to those who serve Him, Sir. 17¹⁵⁻²⁴; of the wicked, Zad. 9².
- Record, Zad. 4^{2,3} 16⁵ 17³.
- Rectitude (ἀπλότης), T.R. 4¹ T.S. 3²ⁿ. 4⁵ &c. See Singleness.
- Red Sea, 1 Macc. 4⁹ Judith 5¹³ Jub. 8²¹ 9^{2,4} Ass. Mos. 3¹¹.
- Reelias, 1 Esd. 5⁸.
- Reem, the, Test. App. I 3¹.
- References, in Zad. Frag. to 'Book of the Hagu', Zad. 11² &c., see Hagu; 'Jannes and Jambres,' 7¹⁹; Jubilees, 20¹; 'Ordinances of the Covenant,' 11²; Testaments of XII Patriarchs, 6¹⁰. See § 8.
- Refreshment, place of, 4 Ez. 7^{36,38}. See Paradise.
- Regim, 2 En. 1¹⁰ 5².
- Register, Zad. 9²⁹ (B).
- Registration of Egyptian Jews, 3 Macc. 2³² 4^{14sq.} 7²².
- Regulation, in Zad. Frag.: as to almsgiving, Zad. 18¹⁻⁵; as to judges, 11¹⁻⁴; for the many, 18¹; of Censor of camp, 16¹; of dwellers in cities of Israel, 15^{1,4}; of dwellers of all the camps, 17¹.
- Reins, the, T.N. 2⁸.
- Remembrance. See Book.
- Remiel, 1 En. 20⁸ 2 Bar. 55³ 3 Bar. 2⁵ⁿ, see Ramiel; = Jeremiel, angel, 4 Ez. 4³⁶ⁿ.
- Remnant, Zad. 1⁴ 2^{5,9}; to be taught by Messiah, 2^{9,10}.
- Remorse of ungodly, Wisd. 4²⁰⁻⁵¹⁴.
- Renew. See Creation, Earth, Heaven, Luminaries.
- Repay evil with good, Ah. 2²¹ (Syr. B).
- Repent, 1 En. 50² 55¹; of transgression, Zad. 2³ 9⁴¹, cf. 9¹⁵. See Penitents, Return.
- Repentance, Sir. § 4 Wisd. 12¹⁹ P.A. 4^{13,22} 5²¹; and confession, Sir. 4²⁶ⁿ. 17²⁵⁻³² 18²¹; appointed by God for some (as Manasseh), P. Man. 7, and not for others (as Abraham), § 8; call to, Wisd. 11²³ 12^{10,19}; cleansed through, Zad. 10¹⁶; covenant of, Zad. 9¹⁵ (B); day of, Ass. Mos. 1¹⁸; example of, Sir. 44¹⁶ⁿ; exhortation to, Sir. 17²⁵⁻³²; God's mercy leads to, Wisd. 11²³; meritorious, Sir. 17²⁴ⁿ. 18²¹ⁿ; of individual, T.R. 1⁹ 2¹ T.S. 2¹³ T. Jud. 15⁴ T.G. 5⁶⁻⁸ T. Jos. 6⁶ T.B. 5⁴; of nation, T. Jud. 23⁵ⁿ. T.Z. 9⁷

T.D. 6⁴; necessary to coming of kingdom, Ass. Mos. 1¹⁸u.; one day before death, i.e. at once, P.A. 2¹⁴u.; place of, Wisd. 12^{10,20} 4Ez. 9¹²; place of, no, 2Bar. 85¹²; = return to Law, 4Ez. 7¹³³, cf. Zad. 19^{9,11,14} 20²; unto hope, 1En. 40⁸. Contrast 'No place of repentance', 1En. 65¹¹, and 63¹⁻¹¹.

Rephaim, Jub. 14¹⁸ 29⁹.

Reproof of friend, duty of, Sir. 19¹³⁻¹⁷.Zad. 10¹⁰.

Resaias, 1Esd. 5⁸.

Resignation to God's Will, Sir. 2⁴⁻⁶.

Rest, a, 4Ez. 85²; for souls of righteous, not of wicked, 4Ez. 7^{80,91,95}.

Restitution, Zad. 10⁸ 19⁶.

Resurrection, 2Macc. 12⁴³ 1En. § 11(c), 5¹u. 5⁷ 22¹³ 51¹ 61⁵ 90³³ 91¹⁰ 100⁵ T.Jud. 25^{1,4} T.Z. 10² T.B. 10⁶⁻⁸ 2En. 50²u. 65⁶; at close of temporary Messianic kingdom, 2Bar. 30²; belief in, 2Macc. 7⁸⁹. 12⁴⁴; for judgement, 2Bar. 50⁴; in 1Enoch, differing conceptions of: (a) to earthly Messianic kingdom of eternal duration of soul (spirit) and body, 1En. 6-36, 83-90; (b) to spiritual kingdom, in which the righteous have a spiritual body, 37-71; (c) resurrection of spirit only, 91-104, cf. 91¹⁰ 100⁵; not referred to in 1Bar. § 11; of body, 2En. 65⁶ 2Bar. 50-51u., not expected in Jubilees, Jub. § 15, nor in 4 Ezra, § 9; of godly, Sib. 4¹⁸⁷⁻¹⁹¹; of good and evil deeds, 4Ez. 7³⁵; of life and spirit, 2Macc. 14⁴⁶; of martyrs to life everlasting, 7^{9,11,14}, see Life; of patriarchs, then of righteous, Test. § 16 T.B. 10⁶⁻⁸; postulated for participation of pious dead in blessedness of final age, 4Ez. 5⁴¹u.; of righteous only with bodies, 2Macc. 7^{11,23} 14⁴⁶; to life eternal, i.e. participation in Messianic kingdom on earth, 2Macc. § 7; spiritual, of righteous, Jub. 23³¹.

Retribution, P.A. 17²¹⁸⁻²⁰ 4¹², 13,19 5^{1,2,11,26} 6⁵; doctrine of, in Sirach, Sir. § 9v, 21¹⁰u.; confined to this life, 41^{3,4}; individual, 2^{8,11} 9¹² 11²⁶ 12²; continued in fortunes of descendants, 11²⁸u.; 23²⁴⁻²⁸ 40¹⁵ 41⁶ 44¹¹⁻¹³, see Sheol; future, Wisd. 19¹⁵u.; in kind, § 1, 11^{6,16}; national and individual, 1En. § 11; on the sinner, Sir. 3²⁶⁻²⁸ 16⁶⁻¹⁴, see Punishment, Wrath; theory of, 2Macc. 6¹²⁻¹⁶. See Judgement.

Return, from corrupt way, Zad. 19⁷; to law of Moses, 19^{9,11,14} 20².

Return to Jerusalem, first, under Cyrus, 1Esd. 2⁸⁻¹⁵ (Sheshbazar); second under Darius, 5¹⁻⁴³ (Zerubbabel), register of, 5⁷⁻⁴⁶; under Artaxerxes, 8¹⁻⁴⁰ (Ezra).

Reu, Jub. 10¹⁸ 11¹.

Reuben, Jub. 28^{1,17} 33^{2,4,7,8,9,15,22} 34²⁰ 38^{7,8} 42¹⁸ 44¹² T.R. 11²⁵ 3⁹ 7¹ T.S. 2^{9,10} T.L. 6³ T.Jud. 5² 9⁷ 13³ 25² T.Iss. 13⁴ T.Z. 2⁷ 4^{6,7} T.G. 1⁶ Test. App. II 3; defiles Jacob's bed, T.R. 1⁶ 3¹⁴; punished, T.R. 17.

Reveal, hidden things wherein all Israel had erred, Zad. 5¹; salvation and righteousness, 9⁴³.

Revealed, everything that was of the law, Zad. 19¹².

Revelation. See Apocalyptic, Apocrypha.

Revelations, gained by Adam after eating of tree, A. & E. 29²⁻¹⁰; of Enoch, to be handed down, 2En. 33⁹; and kept till the end of time, 33¹¹; revealed to faithful in due time, 35²; preceded by fasting, see Fasts; to be kept secret = Apocrypha, 1En. 82¹ 104¹¹⁻¹³ Ass. Mos. 1¹⁶ 10¹¹ 11¹ 4Ez. 12³⁷u. 14^{26,46,47}. See Faithful.

Revenge forbidden, Ah. 2^{17,18,21} (Syr. B). See Forgiveness.

Reward, P.A. 2^{1,2,19,20} 3⁴ 4¹ 5¹ 6⁵; for faithful, 4Ez. 7⁸³; laid up with Most High, 13⁵⁶; of filial duty, Sir. 3¹⁻¹⁶; of loyalty to the law, 33(36)¹⁻³; of righteousness and sin, 27⁸⁻¹⁰; of righteous, 32⁹⁻³¹ 11²² 16^{13,14}; of those who seek Wisdom, 4¹¹⁻¹⁹; of wise, 20^{27,28}. See Nemesis, Recompense, Retribution.

Rewards of precepts. P.A. 2¹u.

Rhea, Sib. 3^{122,132,135,138,143,148,150,402} 5¹³¹.

Rhodes, 1Macc. 15²³ Sib. 3⁴⁴⁴.

Rhodians, Sib. 4¹⁰¹.

Rhodocus, a traitor, 2Macc. 13²¹.

Rhodophorus, title of Ptolemais, 3Macc. 7¹⁷.

Rhvndacus, Sib. 3⁴⁴³.

Rich, avoid quarrels with, Sir. 8²; avoid associating with, 13²⁻⁸; and poor cannot associate, 13¹⁸⁻²⁰; how treated by world, 13²¹⁻²³; anxieties of, 31(34)¹⁻⁴; fool, parable of, 11¹⁹u.; Lord of. See God, titles of.

Riches, Tob. 12⁸ 1En. 46⁷ 94⁸ 96⁴ 97¹⁰ 100⁶, cf. 98³ 103⁵. See Mammon, Wealth.

Right-doing, precepts on, Sir. 4²⁰⁻²⁸.

Righteous, 1En. 1⁸u. 5⁶ 10^{17,21} 25⁴ 38³⁻⁵ 39⁴ 43⁴ 45⁶ 47^{1,2,4} 48^{1,7,9} 50² 53⁷ 56⁷ 58^{3,5} 60² 61³ 62³ 82⁴ 91¹⁰ 94^{3,11} 95^{3,7} 96^{1,8} 97^{1,3,5} 98¹²⁻¹⁴ 99³ 100^{5,7,10} 102^{4,10} 103¹ 104^{1,6,12,13} Ps. Sol. 2³⁸ 3^{3-8,14} 4⁹ 10³ 13⁵⁻⁸ 14⁶ 15⁸ 16¹⁵; good name of, lasts for ever, Sir. 41¹¹⁻¹³, see Reward; observed faithfully the law, 4Ez. 7^{89,94}; One, see Messiah; only seem to die, Wisd. 3²; = Pharisees or Chasidim in Ps. Sol. § 5, hope in future life, 13⁹⁻¹¹ 14³ 15¹⁵ 17¹⁻³, Messianic expectation, spiritual, 17²³ 18⁶, oppose non-Davidic, i.e. Hasmonaean monarchy, 17^{7,8}; pious, § 5, 3¹⁰ &c.; political Quietists, 12⁶; poor, 10⁷ 15² 18³; prayer of, 1En. 47^{1,2,4} 97^{3,5} 99³ Zad. 14¹; risen, the, 2Bar. 51¹⁰u.; soul of, attacked, Zad. 15⁵; to shine as light of stars, 2Bar. 51¹⁰ 4Ez. 7⁹⁷.

Righteousness, Tob. 4^{5,6} 12⁸; = almsgiving, Sir. 7¹⁰u.; by the Law, 2Bar. 67⁶; imputed, denied, 4Ez. 7¹⁰²⁻¹¹⁵u., see 820-40u.; Messiah and, 1En. 39⁶ 46³ 53⁷ 61⁴ 62³ 71^{14,16}; various conceptions of, 2Bar. 24¹u.; week of, 1En. 91¹². See Paths, Statutes, Teacher.

Rim. See Rimman.

Riman, 2En. 57² (A, 'Rim' B).

River = Euphrates, 4Ez. 13^{43,44,47}.

River, fiery, 2En. 10²u, cf. 1En. 14¹⁹.

Rivers, the seven, 1En. 77⁶⁻⁷.

Robe, of priesthood, T.L. 8²; of righteousness from God, 1Bar. 5².

Robel, i.e. Arbela, Jub. 34⁸.

Rock of Isaac, i.e. God, Sir. 51^{12x1}.

Roimus, 1Esd. 5⁸.

Roman, Sib. 4¹²⁵; conquest of Judaea, 1Bar. § 1; destruction of Jerusalem, Jews suffer terribly in, 1Bar. § 7; emperors, history of, Sib. 5¹²⁻⁶⁰; Empire = eagle of 4Ez. 10⁶⁰⁻¹²³⁵; doom of, 11⁴¹⁻⁴⁵.

Romans, 1Macc. § 7iii (a)(c) (letters to, 81⁻³²u., see Letters) 81^{23,27,29} 12¹⁶ 14⁴⁰ 15¹⁶ 2Macc. 4¹¹ 810³⁶ 11³⁴; letter of, 11³⁴, historicity of, § 1. See Gabinus, Judaea, Pompey.

Rome, 1Macc. 10⁷ 18^{17,19,24,26,28} 12^{1,3} 14^{16,24} 15¹⁵ Sib. 3^{46,52,161,350,352,356,364} 4^{123,138,145} 5^{139,443,463}; already feared in Sib. 3¹⁷⁵⁻¹⁹³; conquest of Greece by, 3⁶²⁰sqg.; doom of, 5³⁸⁶⁻⁴⁰²; great disaster to, in Asia, 3³⁵⁰⁻³⁶²; wickedness concentrated in, in Eagle Vision, 4Ez. 11-12, § 10; will fall under Messiah, 12³².

Root. See Planting.

Rosh, Jub. 44²⁵.

Rotheus, T.N. 1¹⁰.

Royal treasury, Tob. 1²⁰.

Rude man, i.e. bor, P.A. 2⁶u. 5¹⁰.

Rufinus, Sir. § 8.

Rule, i.e. halachah, P.A. 3^{16,23} 5^{10,11}.

Ruler of Zadokites, to be Priest or Levite, Zad. 15⁴⁻⁶. See Judges.

Rulers, need of wisdom in, Sir. 9¹⁷⁻¹⁰⁶; pride in, ruins nations, 10⁶⁻¹⁸; avoid associating with, 13⁹⁻¹³. See Mighty.

†Rumael, 1En. 69².

Rumjal, 1En. 69².

Rust, of wickedness, Sir. 12^{10,11}; treasures not to, 29¹⁰.

Sabbataean, an elder, Arist. 49.

Sabbatarianism, 2 Macc. 8²⁶sq. 12³⁸ 15⁴.

Sabbath, 2Macc. 5²⁵ 6^{5,11} 8²⁸ 15^{1,3} Jub. 2^{1,17-21,24,28-31} 4¹⁸ 2En. 32²; carefully observed by Judas Maccabaeus, 2Macc. 8²⁶⁻²⁹; day, 1Macc. 2^{32,33,38}; massacre of faithful Jews on, 2³³⁻³⁸ 9^{34,43} 10³⁴; by Apollonius, 2Macc. 5²⁴⁻²⁷. In Jubilees: § 15, 2¹⁷⁻³¹; appointed as a sign for all God's works, not observed by lower orders of angels, as by higher, § 15, 2^{1,17,32}; observed by highest angels. 2¹⁸; by Israel also later, 2^{20-24,27-33}; fasting on, 50¹²; journey on, 50⁸u.; laws regarding, 50⁶⁻¹³; strict observance of, 50⁸u.; war on, 50¹². see 1Macc. 2³¹⁻³⁸ 2Macc. 6¹¹ 15¹. In Zad. Frag.: holy, Zad. 13¹ 14³; journey, limit to, 13^{7,14}; laws regarding, 13^{1-11,13-27}; observe, 8¹⁵ 13¹; profane, 14⁶; keeping of, permitted by Demetrius I, 1Macc. 10³⁴; meaning of, in Lev. 23^{15,16}, (i) = feast day, (ii) = seventh day of unleavened bread, (iii) = weekly Sabbath, Jub. 15¹u.; mourning on, forbidden, Apoc. Mos. 43³u.; not to be kept, 2 Macc. 6⁵; profaning of, 1Macc. 14^{3,45} 23⁴u.; profaning of, tolerated, 1Macc. § 3, 2⁴¹u.; sign of resurrection and rest of age to come, A. & E. 51²; strict observance of, leads to massacre of Jewish fugitives, 1Macc. 2²⁹⁻³⁸.

Sabbaths, Jub. 1^{10,14} 23¹⁹ 50^{1-3,6,7,9,10-13}; and festivals, God's holy, Zad. § 9⁴, 5².

Sabbatical year, 1 Macc. 6⁴⁹u.

Sabbeus, 1Esd. 9³².

Sabi, 1Esd. 5²⁸.

Sabias, 1Esd. 1⁹.

Sabie, 1Esd. 5³⁴.

Sacrifice, acceptable, Sir. 35¹⁻¹¹ (32¹⁻¹³), and unacceptable, 34¹⁸⁻²⁶ (31²¹⁻³¹); animal, abhorred, Sib. 4^{29,30}; Jews compelled to, 3Macc. 2²⁸; penitence as a, Azar. 17; to the dead, Tob. 4¹⁷.

Sacrifices, animal, T.L. 9^{7,13}; ceased, 1Macc. 14⁵ Azar. 15; depreciated, 2En. 45¹⁻³; directions as to, 45³u. 59^{2,3}u. 61^{4,5}u. 66²; in heaven, T.L. 3⁶; of righteousness, Sir. 7³¹; polluted, 1En. 89³⁷; to idol, vain, 30^{18,19}; unclean, offered, 1Macc. 14⁷. See Pollution.

Sacrificial system. See Offering.

Sadducee, Ass. Mos. § 8. See Sceptic.

Sadducees, Wisd. 1¹u. 1En. 38⁶ 94⁶ 95³ 98¹⁵ 103^{14,15}; accepted O.T. but not tradition and scribe law, Sir. § 4; = 'children of earth', 1En. 100⁶; devourers of goods of poor, Ass. Mos. 7⁶, cf. Ps. Sol. 4¹¹ &c.; had set up non-Davidic, i.e. Hasmonaean monarchy, Ps. Sol. 17^{7,8}u. § 5; in control of law-courts, Sus. § 7; referred to, in Ass. Mos.

INDEX

7³⁻¹⁰; severity of, in judgment, Ps.Sol. 4¹ⁿ; Sirach expresses standpoint of, Sir. § 4; support O.T. view of Sheol and of retribution in this life, 1En. 102⁴⁻¹⁰⁴. See Sceptic. Sadduceism, unreformed, Zad. §§ 9³⁰ 101. See Zadokite Party. Sadduk, 1Esd. 8². Saints and meek-hearted, Azar. 65; of the Most High, 9³³; whom God pardoned, Zad. 6⁴. Salamiel, Judith 8¹. Salamis in Cyprus, Sib. 4¹²⁸ 5⁴⁵². Salasadai, Judith 8¹. Salathiel, 1Esd. 5^{5,48,56} 6². Salathiel, 4Ez. § 6; [= Ezra, 4Ez. 3¹]. Salathiel-Apocalypse. See Ezra, 4 Book of. Salem, 1Esd. 8². Salem, Jub. 30¹; valley of, Judith 4⁴. Salimoth, 1Esd. 8³⁶. Sallumus, 1Esd. 9²⁵. Salman, Jub. 38^{20,21}. Salmanasar, 2Bar. 62⁶, 4Ez. 13⁴⁰. See Alagar Zagar, Leba Nasr. Saloas, 1Esd. 9²². Salom, 1Bar. 1⁷. Salt of the covenant, Jub. 21¹¹. Salt Sea, Jub. 13²². See Siddim, Vale of. Salum, 1Esd. 5²⁸. Salvation, Zad. 9^{43,54}; in temporal sense, Sir. 3¹; security of righteous dead in intermediate state, 4Ez. 8³⁹ⁿ; to arise from Levi and Judah, see Levi and Judah, Works. Samaias, 1Esd. 1⁹. Samaias, 1Esd. 8³⁹. Samaias, 1Esd. 8⁴⁴. Samaria, 1Esd. 2^{16,25} 1Macc. 3¹⁰ 10^{30,38} 11³⁴ (added to Judaea 10^{30,38}) 2Macc. 15¹ Tob. 14⁴ Judith 1⁹ 4⁴ Arist. 107 Mart. Is. 12^{2,13,14,16n}. 3^{2,3}. See Sebaste. Samaritan, Mart. Is. 3¹. Samaritans, 1En. 90⁷²ⁿ; hospitality of, 2Macc. 6²; oppose rebuilding of temple, 2¹⁸⁻²⁴ 5⁶⁶; relations with returning Jews, 1Esd. § 5(a). See Zadokite Party. Samatns, 1Esd. 9³⁴. Samellius, 1Esd. 2^{16,17,25,30}. Sameus, 1Esd. 9²¹. Samians, Sib. 3⁴⁵². Samjaza, 1En. 69². See also Semjaza. Sammael, Angel of Death, Sir. 25²⁴ⁿ. Sammael, angel, 3Bar. 4⁸ 9⁷; led Adam astray, 4⁸; planted vine, 4⁸; used serpent as disguise, 9. Sammael Malchira, Mart. Is. 1^{8n,11} 2¹. Sammus, 1Esd. 9⁴³. Samon, Jub. 44²⁸. Samos, 1Macc. 15²³ Sib. 3³⁶³ 4⁹¹. Sampsames, 1Macc. 15²². Samsapeel, 1En. 6⁷. See also Shamsiel and Simapesiel. Samuel, the prophet, 1Esd. 1²⁰

Sir. 46¹³⁻²⁰ 1En. 82^{41,44n}. 4Ez. 7¹⁰⁸. Samuel, an elder, Arist. 47. Samuel, an elder, Arist. 49. Samuel, an elder, Arist. 50. Samuel, the Small, P.A. 4²⁴. Samuil, an angel, 2En. 33⁶ (A, 'Semil' B). Sanaas, 1Esd. 5²⁴. Sanabassar, Sanabassar, governor of Judaea. See Sheshbazzar. Sanasib, 1Esd. 5²⁴. Sanctification, angels of. See Angels. Sanctified, see Holy Land: peoples, tribes, Ps. Sol. 17^{48,49}. Sanctuary, Sir. 50⁵ 51^{12vii}; the, P.A. 5⁸ 6¹¹, see Temple; built by God, will be, Jub. 1¹⁷; built unto all ages, 1²⁷ 2⁵²¹; burnt, rebuilt, A. & E. 29^{5,6}; desecrated by Antiochus, 1Macc. 1²¹, by Apollonius, 1³⁷; idols in, Ass. Mos. 2⁸. In Zad. Frag.: 1³ⁿ. 5⁷ 6¹¹ 7⁸ 8^{11,12} 9⁴⁷ 14⁴; city of the, 14⁴; entering, conditions of, 8¹¹; of God, 1³ 5⁷; of Zadokites, § 5; pollution of, 6¹¹ 7⁸ 9⁴⁷; wealth of, 8¹²; keys of, cast up to the Lord, 2Bar. 10¹⁸; of the Lord, in world to come, Wisd. 3¹⁴; pollution of, 1Macc. 1⁴⁶ 3^{45,51,58}, see Pollution; profaning of, Jub. 30¹⁵; tower of, Ass. Mos. 2⁴, see Tower. Sanhedrin, 2Macc. 1¹⁰⁶ (see Senate) Judith 11¹⁴ⁿ. See Council. Sanherib. See Sennacherib. Sanir mountains, Jub. 8²¹ 9⁴. Saphat, 1Esd. 5⁹. Saphat, 1Esd. 5³⁴. Saphatias, 1Esd. 8³⁴. Sapphuthi, 1Esd. 5³⁴. Sarabias, 1Esd. 9⁴⁸. Sarah, Tob. 3^{7,17} 6^{11sq.} 7⁸. Sarah, Jub. 15^{15,17,19,21} 16^{1,2,12,15,16,19} 17^{4,6} 19^{2,7,11} 23⁷ 35^{20,21,27} 36²¹ T.L. 6⁸. Sarai, Jub. 12⁹ 13^{1,13,15} 14²¹⁻²³; name changed to Sarah, 15¹⁵. Saraias, i.e. Seraiah, 1Esd. 5⁵. Sarapis, Sib. 5⁴⁸⁷. Saraqael, 1En. 20⁶. Sarasael, angel, 3Bar. 4¹⁵. Sardis, Sib. 5²⁸⁹. Sardo, Sib. 3⁴⁷⁷. Saregan or Seragan, Jub. 34^{4,7}. Sarhadum, Ah. 1^{1,13} (Syr. Arab.); father of Sennacherib in Syr. Arab. Versions for most part; but rightly son of Sennacherib in Papyrus 1³ (= Esarhaddon), passim. Sariel, 1En. 6⁷ 8³. Sarothie, 1Esd. 5³⁴. Satan, Mart. Is. 2^{2,7} A. & E. 9¹ Apoc. Mos. 17¹ 1En. 54⁶ T.D. 3⁶ 5⁶ 6¹ T.G. 4⁷ T.A. 6^{4(B)} Ass. Mos. 10¹ (= Satomail, Sotona, 2En. 29^{4,5n}. 31⁴⁻⁷); (= the Serpent), 4Macc. 18⁸; and the Satans, 1En. § 11(d); appears as angel, Apoc. Mos. 17¹, as serpent, 17⁴; chief of demons, Jub. § 15, see Demonology; no Satan, or evil one, 23²⁹ 40⁹ 46² 50⁵ Ass. Mos. 10¹.

Satanail, 2En. 18³ⁿ. 29^{4,5n}. 31⁴. Satans, 1En. 65⁶; accuse as in O.T., 40⁷; punish, 53³ 56¹ 62¹¹ 63¹; tempt, 69^{4sq.}. Satarel, 1En. 6⁷. Sathrabuzanes, i.e. Shetharbozenai, 1Esd. 6²⁷ 7¹. Satomail. See Satan. Saul, 1En. 89⁴³ⁿ. 4Ez. 7¹⁰⁸. Saul of Raaboth, Jub. 38^{21,22}. Saved, many to be, 2Bar. 21¹¹. See Fewness, Many. Saviias, 1Esd. 8². Scales, the, constellation, Sib. 5⁵²⁰. Scalping, 2Macc. 7⁴. Sceptic denies God's intervention, Sir. 16²⁰⁻²³, cf. 1En. 98⁷; disbelieves in angels, 16²²ⁿ. Sceptre = Messiah, prince of all the congregation, Zad. 9⁹; to rise out of Israel, 9⁸. Schatzhöhle, Die, A. & E. §§ 4, 8. Schedia, 3Macc. 4¹¹. Scornfulness, Tob. 4¹³. Scorpio, Sib. 5⁵²⁵. Scribe, ideal, described, Sir. 39¹⁻¹¹; = reader, Prologue, 3n.; superior to labourer and artisan, 38²⁴⁻³⁰; of the knowledge of the Most High, 4Ez. 14⁵⁰, cf. Enoch. See 1Esd. 8⁸. Scribes, activity of, Sir. Prologue 4, 9 notes; degeneracy of, § 4; handlers of the Law⁷, 15¹ⁿ; position and character of, in time of Sirach, Sir. 38²⁴⁻³⁹ 11n.; = teachers of Law, 4Ez. 8²⁹. Scriptures, Arist. 56, 154, 168. Scythed chariots, 2Macc. 13². Scythian cruelty, 3Macc. 7⁵; fashion, 4Macc. 10⁷. Scythians, 2Macc. 4⁴⁷ 4Macc. 10⁷. Scythopolis = Bethshan, Judith 3¹⁰ 2Macc. 12^{29n,30}. Sea, a great, in heaven, T.L. 2⁷; Great, = the Mediterranean, Jub. 9⁶; 1En. 77^{5,7,8} Test. App. I 4²; man from the, see Man; †of the heap, Jub. 29¹⁴; power which came up from, = Rome, 4Ez. 11¹ⁿ. Seal of Sion, reference to coinage (?), 4Ez. 10²³; of truth, 7¹⁰⁴ⁿ. Sealing, of righteous, 4Ez. 6⁵ⁿ; = closing, of the age, 6²⁰. Seasons, Angels or Spirits of, Jub. 2². See Angels. Sebaste = Samaria, Sib. 3⁶³; or = Augustus' family, 3⁶³ⁿ. Sebat, month, 16¹⁴ⁿ. Sechenias, 1Esd. 8²⁹. Sechenias, 1Esd. 8³². Secret revelation, 4Ez. 12³⁷ⁿ, see Apocrypha; sins = mystery cults, Wisd. 17³ⁿ. Secrets, betrayal of, Sir. 27¹⁶⁻²¹ 1En. 41³ 65¹¹ 68^{1,2} 71³, cf. 40² 46² (evil) 69⁸; eternal... in heaven, 9⁶, cf. 10⁷ 16³; of angels, 65^{6,11}; clouds, 41³; depths, 61⁵; of God, 63⁸; the heavens, 41¹; ends of heaven, 71⁴; the holy, 106¹⁹, see Mysteries; lightning, 59³, see Thunder; the righteous, 38³; righteousness, 49² 58⁵ 71³; of sin, 83⁷; thunder and lightning, 41³ 59¹⁻³; winds, 41³; wisdom, 51³ 69⁸. Secularization of Pharisaism, Ass. Mos. § 1. Sedekias, king, 1Bar. 1⁹ 1Esd. 1⁴⁶. See Zedekiah. Sedekias, 1Bar. 1¹. Sedeqetelebab, city, Jub. 7^{16,17}. Seir, abhorred, Sir. 50²⁶ T. Jud. 9³; land of, Jub. 29¹³; mount, 29¹⁸; mountains of, 36¹⁹ 38^{9,10}. Selemias, 1Esd. 9³⁴. Selemias, an elder, Arist. 49. Selencia, port of Antioch, 1Macc. 11⁸. Seleucid era. See Greek kingdom. Seleucidae, 1En. 90²ⁿ; empire of, Sir. 10⁸ⁿ. Seleucus. See Demetrius I. Seleucus IV, king of Asia, 2Macc. 3³ 4⁷ 5¹⁸; Nicanor, 4Macc. 3²⁰ⁿ. 4^{3,4,13,15}. Self-control, need of, Sir. 18³⁰⁻¹⁹ 3²² 22⁷⁻²³ 23⁶. See Tongue. Self-esteem, right and wrong kind of, Sir. 10²⁶⁻²⁹. Sellasar, Jub. 13²². Selo = Shiloh, Jub. 34^{4,7}. Semei, son of Asom, 1Esd. 9³³. Semei, T.L. 12¹. Semeias, Add. Esth. A¹. Semeis, 1Esd. 9²³. Semelias, Tob. 5¹⁴. Semiazaz, 1En. 6⁷. Semil. See Samuil. Semitic original of 1 Esdras, 1Esd. § 2. Semjaza, 1En. 6³ 8³ 9⁷ 10¹¹. See also 6⁷ 69² and Samjaza, Semiazaz. Senate = Sanhedrin, 2Macc. 1¹⁰⁶, Judith 11¹⁴; of Rome, description of, 1Macc. 8^{15,19}. Seneqereim = Sanherib in Ah. 1¹ et passim (Arm.). Seneser, 1En. 13⁹. Seniqr, criminal substituted for Ahikar, Ah. 4^{10,11} (Arm.). See Marzifan. Sennacherib, 2Macc. 8¹⁹ 15²²; 3Macc. 6⁶ Tob. 1^{15,18,22} Sir. 48¹⁸ 2Bar. 63^{2,4} 4Ez. 7¹¹⁰; or Sanherib, king of Assyria, Ah. 1¹ et passim. Senses, seven, T.R. 2³⁻⁹ Sir. 17⁴ crit. n.; five, T.N. 2⁸ Sir. 17⁵ⁿ. Cf. 2En. 30⁹. Separate according to the Law, Zad. 7⁸. Sephantiphans = Zaphnath-paaneah, Jub. 40¹⁰. Seragan or Saregan, Jub. 34^{4,7}. Serah, Jub. 44²¹. Seraphim, Apoc. Mos. 33³ 1En. 61¹⁰ 71⁷ 2En. 12¹ⁿ. 19⁶ 29^{3(B)}. See Angels. Serar, 1Esd. 5³². Sered, Jub. 44¹⁷. Seriah, 2Bar. 5⁵. Sermon, in synagogue(?), 4Macc. = a, 4Macc. § 6. Seroh, Jub. 11^{1,5}. Seron, 1Macc. 3^{13,23}. Serpent, Ps. Sol. 4¹¹; bites Seth, A. & E. 37¹; tempts Eve, Jub. 3¹⁷ 4Macc. 18⁸; punished, 3²³. See Satan.

- Serpent worship, Wisd. 11¹⁵
15¹⁸ Bel. § 2.
- Serpents, the, 1En. 20⁷.
- Serug, Jub. 11⁶.
- Servant and slave, duty to, Sir.
7²⁰⁻²¹; how to treat, 4³⁰ 33²⁴⁻³¹ (30³³⁻⁴⁰).
- Servants of the Lord = Levites(?), Azar. 63.
- Serve the Holy One, used of Levitical priests, Sir. 4¹⁴ⁿ.
- Service, the, P.A. 1².
- Sesis, 1Esd. 9³⁴.
- Sesthel, 1Esd. 9³¹.
- Seth, Sir. 49¹⁶ Jub. 4^{7,11} 19²⁴
1En. 37¹ A. & E. 23³ 24² 25¹ 29²
31^{1,3} 36¹ 37¹ 39^{1,2} 40¹ 41³ 43¹⁻³
44¹ 46^{1,2} 48^{1,6} 49¹ 51^{1,3} Apoc.
Mos. 4¹ 5³ 6^{1,3} 9³ 10¹ 12^{1,2}
13^{1,2} 14^{1,2} 34^{1,2} 35^{1,3} 36^{1,3} 37¹
38^{4,5} 42³ 43^{1,2} 2En. 33¹⁰; =
'a great white bull', 1En. 85⁹;
seed of Seth (or Sheth?),
Jub. 22¹²ⁿ.
- Seven, 1En. 18⁶ⁿ. 61¹¹ⁿ. 77⁸ⁿ.
&c.; brethren and mother martyred, 2Macc. 7¹⁻⁴²; days of creation, 4Macc. 14⁸ⁿ, see Heavens; men, i.e. angels, or-dain Levi, T.L. 8^{2sqq.}; natures, 2En. 30⁹ⁿ; powers of man,
30⁹; senses, see Senses; sons and mother, martyrdom of, 4Macc. 8³⁻¹⁸²³; spirits of deceit, see Spirits; substances, man formed from, 2En. 30⁸ⁿ;
ways of souls of righteous and wicked, 4Ez. 7⁸¹⁻⁹⁹; orders, i.e. emotions, 7⁹¹ⁿ.
- Seventh-year periods, 4Macc.
2⁹ⁿ.
- Seventy—and seven years' captivity, Ass.Mos. 3¹⁴ⁿ; nations, have seventy languages and seventy ministering angels,
Test. App. I 85⁶; weeks, T.L.
16¹; years' captivity, reinterpreted as seven generations, cf. Ep. Jer. § 2, 3n. See Gentile.
- Shah, father of king of Persia,
Ah. 3⁷ (Arab.).
- Shallum, son of Naphtali, Jub.
44³⁰.
- Shalmaneser, Tob. 1^{2,12,15,16}.
- Shame, moral duties inculcated under category of, Sir. 41¹⁴⁻ 42⁸; right and wrong, 4²¹.
- Shamin, a god, Ah. 1⁴ (Arm.).
See Bel.
- Shammai, P.A. 1^{12,15} 2⁹ 5²⁰;
school of, views on after-life,
4 Ez. 7¹³⁷ⁿ.
- Shamsiel, 1En. 8³. See Sam-sapeel.
- Shaul, son of Simeon, Jub.
44¹³.
- Shebet. See Sebat.
- Shechem, city, Jub. 13¹ 30^{1,3-} 5,24,26 31² 34^{1,7,10} T.S. 2⁹ T.L.
2¹ 6^{8(β)} 7² T.Jud. 4¹ Test.
App. II 3.
- Shechem, person, Jub. 30^{1,2,3,24}
Test. App. II 78.
- Shechemite, Judith 5¹⁶.
- Shechemites, Jub. 30^{5,12,17} Test.
App. II 1-3, 4Macc. 2¹⁹; slaughter of, Judith 9³, ordained in heaven, Jub. 30⁶, reckoned for righteousness to Simeon and
- Levi, 30¹⁷; circumcision of,
not referred to, 30²⁻⁶ⁿ.
- Shechinah, the, 4Ez. 7¹¹²ⁿ.
P.A. 3^{3,8}; a mode of referring to God, P.A. 3³ⁿ: 'the divine dwelling', 4Ez. 10⁴⁷.
- Shedim, 2Bar. 10⁸ⁿ.
- Sheep, blinded, 1En. 90²⁶;
white (= Jacob), 89¹²; Lord of, see God, titles of.
- Shem, Sir. 49¹⁶ Jub. 4³³ 7^{9,11,12,16}
8^{10,12,17,18,21,30} 9² 10^{14,31} 19^{24,27}
T.B. 10⁶ Test. App. I 8⁶; lot of, Jub. 8¹²; seed of, Jub. 19¹⁷.
- Shema, the, P.A. 2¹⁷ⁿ.
- Shemaiah, P.A. 1¹⁰.
- Shemoneh Esreh, relation of, to Sirach, Sir. § 7 iv.
- Sheol, Tob. 3^{6,10} 4¹⁹ 13² Sir.
14¹⁶ 41⁴ 48⁵ 51^{2,5,6,19} Jub. 5¹⁴
7²⁹ 22²² 24³¹ 2Bar. 11⁶ⁿ. 52²ⁿ.
56⁶ⁿ. 83¹⁷ Ps.Sol. 4¹⁵ 14⁶ 15¹¹ 16², see Hades, Pit; abode of souls of wicked dead, 4Ez.
4⁴¹ⁿ; and darkness and destruction, Ps.Sol. 14⁶; conception of, in 1 Enoch: 1En. 22(n.)
51 56⁸ 63¹⁰ⁿ. 99¹¹ⁿ. 102⁴ⁿ.—
104⁵ⁿ; (i) O.T. conception—the goal of all, involving social, not moral distinctions, 63¹⁰ⁿ. 102¹¹; (ii) the intermediate state of the righteous and the wicked involving moral distinctions, 22 51¹ 63¹⁰ⁿ.
102⁵, cf. 100⁵; three hollow places in, 22; (iii) the intermediate state of the wicked, 63¹⁰ⁿ; (iv) the final abode of the wicked = hell, 63¹⁰ⁿ. 99¹¹ⁿ.
103⁷ⁿ, see Gehenna. In Sirach: Sir. 21¹⁰ⁿ; eternal rest, 31¹⁷; life in. no organic connexion with life on earth—no account of past life on earth —no reproaches in, 41⁴; no delight of life, 14¹⁶; no light for those who dwell there, 22¹¹;
no recognition of God, 17²⁸;
see Hades; gates of, Ps.Sol.
16²; life in, O.T. teaching of reproduced in 1 Bar. 2^{16,17};
New Testament meaning of,
first found in 1En. § 11(c); Old Testament doctrine of,
opposed in 102⁴⁻¹⁰⁴.
- Shepherd, censor as, Zad. 16³;
smite the . . . &c., 9(B).
- Shepherds of Israel perished, 2Bar. 77¹³; to be found in the Law, 77¹⁵; the Seventy, 1En.
82⁵⁹ⁿ.—90¹ 90^{13,17,25}.
- Sheshbazzar, governor of Judaea, 1Esd. 2^{12,15} (Sanabassar) 6^{18,20};
return of, § 1, § 6(a) 2¹⁵ⁿ.
- Shelah, Jub. 8^{5,6}.
- Shelah, Jub. 41^{6,7,20} 44¹⁵ T.Jud.
10⁶ 11³.
- Sheth. See Seth.
- Shetharbozenai. See Sathra-buzanes.
- Shield of Abraham, i.e. God,
Sir. 51^{12x}.
- Shiloh. See Selo.
- Shimei, Test. App. II 74.
- Shimil, a god, Ah. 1⁴ (Arm.).
See Bel.
- Shimron, Jub. 44¹⁶.
- Shinar, Jub. 9³ 10^{18-20,25-21}
13²².
- Ships, Jews to help Romans with, 1Macc. 7²⁶.
- Shuah, Jub. 19¹¹.
- Shuni, Jub. 44²⁰.
- Shur, Jub. 16¹⁰; wilderness of, 49²³.
- Sibyl, the, Sib. § 2, 3⁸¹⁵ 4²²;
daughter of Gnostos, 3⁸¹⁵;
daughter-in-law of Noah, 3⁸²⁷;
prophetess of the Mighty God, 3⁸¹⁸ 4⁶.
- Sibylline Oracles, the (Jewish), account of, § 6; bibliography,
§ 9; MSS., § 7; Sibyl, the,
§ 2; Sibylline verses, earliest,
§ 3, general character of, § 1;
Jewish, § 4, in later history,
§ 5; Roman collection of, §§ 3,
5; theology of, § 8.
- Siccuth = the tabernacle, Zad. 9⁶.
- Sichem, foolish nation that dwelleth in, Sir. 50²⁶; abhorred, 50²⁶.
- Sicily, Sib. 4⁸⁰ 5¹⁶.
- Sick, duty to, Sir. 7³⁵. See Visiting.
- Sickness. See Physician.
- Sicyon, 1Macc. 15²³ Sib. 3⁴⁸⁷.
- Siddim, Vale of, Jub. 13²².
- Side, 1Macc. 15²³.
- Sidon, 1Esd. 5⁵⁵ 1Macc. 5¹⁵
Judith 2²⁸ Sus. 56 Mart.Is. 5¹³.
- Sidonians, Sib. 3⁴⁵¹ 5²⁰³.
- Sign, 1En. 55².
- Signs of Zodiac, 1En. 48³ 72^{13,19}
75³; of the days, 82^{16,19}.
- Signs of the End, 4Ez. 4⁵¹⁻⁵¹³
6²⁰⁻²⁴ 8⁶³⁻⁹¹².
- Silence, P.A. 1¹⁷ 3¹⁸; primeval, 2Bar. 3⁷, return to, for seven days, 4Ez. 7³⁰; times for, Sir.
20¹⁻⁸.
- Siloah, 1En. 26².
- Simapesiel, 1En. 69². See Samsapeel.
- Simeon ben Eleazar, P.A. 4²³.
- Simeon ben Gamaliel, P.A. 1¹⁸.
- Simeon ben Hillel (?), P.A. 1¹⁷.
- Simeon ben Johai, P.A. 3⁶ 4¹⁷ 6⁸.
- Simeon ben Judah, P.A. 6⁸.
- Simeon ben Menasia, P.A. 6⁹.
- Simeon ben Nathaniel, P.A.
2^{10,12,13,17}.
- Simeon ben Shetach, P.A. 1^{8,9}.
See Simon ben Shetach.
- Simeon the Just, P.A. 1².
- Simeon, Jub. 28^{13,17} 30⁴ 33²²
34²⁰ 38⁸ 42^{6,9,10,22} 44¹³ 4Macc.
2¹⁹ T.S. 1^{1,2} 2^{1,2} 8¹ 9¹ T.L. 2²
6⁴ T.Jud. 6⁵ 25^{1,2} T.Z. 2¹ 3²
4^{2,11} T.G. 2^{3(β)}; jealous of Joseph, T.S. 2^{6,14}; tribe of, to be dispersed, 5⁶; and Levi, see Shechemites, slaughter of.
- Simeon, 1Macc. 2¹.
- Simeon, 1Macc. 2⁶⁴. See Simon
Maccabaeus.
- Simeon, son of Jeshua, called Ben Sira—son of Jeshua, son of Eleazar, son of Sira, Sir.
51³⁰.
- Simeon, son of Jochanan, the priest, Sir. 49¹⁵ⁿ.—50²⁴; whether Simon I or II, Sir. § 6 ii.
- Simon, an elder, Arist. 47.
- Simon, an elder, Arist. 48.
- Simon, an elder, Arist. 49.
- Simon II (?), high priest, 3Macc.
2¹ⁿ.
- Simon ben Shetach, Sus. §§ 6, 7
Zad. § 9^{30,40}. See Simeon ben Shetach.
- Simon, a Benjamite, 2Macc.
3^{4,11} 4^{1,2,4,6,23} 4Macc. 4^{1,5};
and Jason, intrigues of, over high-priesthood, 2Macc. 3⁴⁰⁻ 4²².
- Simon Chosameus, 1Esd. 9³².
- Simon Maccabaeus, called Thassis, 1Macc. § 4, 2³ 5^{17,20,21} 5⁵⁵
9^{19,33,37,62,65,68} 10^{74,82} 11^{59,64,65}
12^{33,38} 13^{1,13,14,17,20,27,33-35,42,}
45,47,50,53 14^{4,17,20,23-25,28n}. 29,32, 35,40,41,48,49 15^{1,17,21,24,26,32,33,36}
16^{1,2,13,14,16} 2Macc. 8²² 10^{19,20}
14¹⁷; = heaven-sent king, Sib.
3⁶⁵²ⁿ; panegyric on, 1Macc.
§ 7i(d); prosperity of Jews under, Sib. 3⁵⁷³ⁿ; regarded as Messiah, Jub. § 15, see Messiah; history of, elected leader, 1Macc. 13³; defeats Tryphon, 13¹²⁻²⁴; treaty of,
with Demetrius II, 13³¹⁻⁴²; captures Gazara and the citadel of Jerusalem, 13⁴³⁻⁵³; ode in praise of, 14⁴⁻¹⁵; renews alliance with Rome, 14¹⁶⁻²⁴; hereditary high-priesthood conferred on, 14²⁵⁻⁴⁹; three titles of, 14⁴¹ⁿ;
asked to help Antiochus VII, 15¹⁻⁹; alliance of, with Rome renewed, 15¹⁵⁻²⁴; covenant with, broken by Antiochus
VII, 15²⁵⁻⁴¹; sons of, defeat
Cendebaeus, 16¹⁻¹⁰; murder of, by Ptolemy, son of Abubus, 16¹¹⁻²⁴; threefold title bestowed on: prince of people of God, 14²⁸ⁿ; leader and high-priest for ever, 14⁴¹; captain and governor, 14⁴⁷; victory of, in Galilee, 5⁹⁻²³.
- Simon Magus, Sib. 5²¹⁷. See Beliar.
- Sin, Tob. 4⁵ P.A. 1¹⁷ 2^{1,2,6} 3¹ 4²
5²¹ 6¹; author of 4Ez. conscious of, 7^{48,63,118,126} 8^{17,31}; bear,
Zad. 10⁵; confession of, 3Macc.
2¹³ 6¹⁰, see Cleansed, Confession; consists in alienation from God, 4Ez. 7⁴⁸, unfaith-fulness to Law, 9³⁶; doctrine of, in Sirach, Sir. § 9 iv; due to demons, 1En. 15^{8,9,11} 16¹;
to fall of angels, and the knowledge they imparted to mankind, 1En. § 11, 7⁵ 9^{1,6,8} 10⁸ⁿ.
16³, cf. 69¹¹; to man, 98⁴; to Satans, 40⁷ 69⁶; God the cause of, 15¹¹ⁿ; man of himself has created, 1En. 98⁴; nature of, Sir. 21¹⁻¹⁰; no doctrine of, in Arist. § 6, 3;
of Adam, 1En. 32⁶; of Eve, 69⁶; of fornication, Zad. 7¹⁻⁴;
of polluting Sanctuary, 7⁸⁻¹⁸;
original; 2Bar. § 10, see Original; originated with Eve,
Sir. 25²⁴; Stoic doctrine of, 4Macc. 5²⁰; to come to an end, T.L. 18⁹; traced to evil heart of Adam, 4Ez. 3²⁰⁻²² 4³⁰ 7¹¹⁶⁻¹²⁰; transmitted to descendants, 3²⁵⁻²⁶, see Yetzer;
unconsciousness of, T. Iss. 7¹
T.Z. 1^{4,5}; universal, 4Ez. 3^{35,36} 7¹¹⁶⁻¹³¹ 8³⁵, cause of ills of this age, 4^{27,28} 7⁴⁸ 8³¹.

INDEX

- Sina, Mount, Sib. 3²⁶⁶. See Sinai.
- Sinaar, Jub. 10¹⁸.
- Sinai, Judith 5¹⁴ Sir. 48⁷ Jub. Prologue 1⁶ 4²⁶ 8¹⁹ 48² 50^{1,2} 1En. 1⁴ 89^{29,32,33n} 4Ez. 3¹⁷ 14⁴; centre of desert, Jub. 8¹⁹; desert of, 50¹.
- Singers. See Asaph, sons of.
- Single-minded man, T.Iss. 4²⁻⁵.
- Singleness, T.Iss. 3¹ⁿ, see Rectitude; of heart, Wisd. 1¹ T.R. 4¹ⁿ T.Iss. 3¹ⁿ.
- Sinners, danger of associating with, Sir. 8¹⁰⁻¹¹. In 1En.: 5⁶ 22^{10,13} 38¹⁻³ 41² 45^{2,5,6} 50² 53^{2,7} 62^{2,13} 69²⁷; caused to pass away, 69²⁷; destroyed by sword, 91¹¹; judged for sins, 38¹; judgement impending for, 45⁶; shall not set foot on new earth, 45⁶; tempt men to evilly entreat wisdom, 94⁶. In Ps.Sol. = Sadducees, Ps.Sol. § 5; charged with sensual sins, Ps.Sol. 2¹³⁻¹⁵ 4⁴ 89²⁴; profanation of sanctuary and sacrifices, 1⁸ 2³ 8^{12,26}, so connected with the Temple services; hypocrites, Ps.Sol. 4^{7,22}; wealthy, 12⁴ 15⁷. See Righteous, Poor.
- Sinope, Sib. 3³⁴⁴.
- Sins, great and small, equally heinous, Stoic view, 4Macc. 5²⁰ⁿ; of ignorance, T.L. 3⁵; chastening of, Ps.Sol. 13⁶ 18⁵; cleansed by confession, 9¹²; fasting atones for, 3⁹; lists of, see Lists; three cardinal, fornication, uncleanness, iniquity, Jub. 7²¹ 1En. 7¹.
- Sion, i.e. Zion, 1Esd. 8⁵¹ 1Macc. 4^{37,60} 5⁵⁴ 6^{48,61} 7³³ 10¹¹ Sir. 36¹⁴ 1Bar. 4^{9,14,24} Jub. 18¹³ 4Ez. 3^{2,28,31} 5²⁵ 6⁴ [6¹⁹] 10^{7,20,23,44} 12^{44,48} 13^{35,36} 14³¹; footstool of, 6⁴; mother of us all, 10⁷ⁿ; new, 10⁴⁴; seal of, i.e. independence of, 10²³ⁿ. See Zion.
- Sira. See Ben Sira, Jeshua.
- Sirach, Zad. §§ 4, 9³⁰; Book of, abbreviations, Sir. § 10; account, short, § 1; authorship, § 6i; canonicity and use in Early Church, § 8; date, § 6ii; influence on later literature, § 7: (a) on N.T., (b) Tobit, (c) Jewish non-Rabbinic literature, (d) Rabbinic literature; original Hebrew text, § 3: (a) recovery of lost Hebrew original, (b) value and authenticity of fragments, relation to each other and to versions, (c) secondary Hebrew recension, (d) reconstruction of original Hebrew text; symbols used in notes, § 10; theology, § 9: (i) doctrine of God, (& § 4), (ii) the Law, (& § 4), (iii) Wisdom, (iv) Sin, (v) Future Life; title, § 2; versions, Greek, and secondary Greek text, Pharisaic recension, § 4; versions, other ancient, § 5: (i) Syriac, (ii) Old Latin, (iii) Syro-Hexaplaric, (iv) Sahidic, (v) Ethiopic, (vi) Aramaic, (vii) Slavonic, (viii) Arabic; relation of Tobit to, Tob. § 8iv.
- Sirens, 1En. 19² 2Bar. 10⁸ⁿ. 4Macc. 15²¹; as spirits of lamentation, Sib. 5⁴⁶⁷ 2Bar. 10⁸.
- Sirion. See Aspis.
- Sirocco, Sir. 34¹⁶.
- Sis, a rock near the plain of Nisrin, Ah. 3¹¹ (Syr.). See Nisrin.
- Sisinnus, i.e. Tattenai, 1Esd. 6^{3,7,27} 7¹.
- Sivan, month, 1Bar. 1⁸ 2En. 48² 68^{1,3}.
- Slave-trade, 2Macc. 8¹¹.
- Slay, 1En. 60²⁵ 62² 98¹² 99¹⁵; slain in Sheol, 99¹¹; spirits not slain, 22¹³; spirits slain, 108³.
- Sleep, meaning of, Sir. 47²³ⁿ; not, those who, see Watchers.
- Sloth despicable, Sir. 22¹⁻².
- Smyrna, Sib. 3^{344,365} 5^{122,306}.
- Social problems, Arist. § 6, 5.
- Sodom, Jub. 13^{17,23,28} 16^{5,6,9} 20⁶ 22²² 36¹⁰ Mart.Is. 3¹⁰ T.L. 14⁶ T.N. 3⁴ 4¹ T.A. 7¹ T.B. 9¹ 4Ez. 7¹⁰⁶; destruction of, 3Macc. 2⁵; fruit of, Wisd. 10⁷; = Jerusalem, Mart.Is. 3¹⁰; men of, punished in the judgement, Wisd. 19¹⁵ⁿ; punished, Sir. 16⁸.
- Sodomites, Jub. 16⁶ 20⁶.
- Solar year, Jub. 6^{29,30} 1En. 74; necessary to right observance of feasts, Jub. 6³²⁻³⁴. See Year.
- Solomon, 1Esd. 1^{3,5} 5^{33,35} 2Macc. 2^{8,12} Sir. 47¹³⁻²³ A. & E. 5¹³ Appendix Sib. 3^{167,214} 2Bar. 61¹ 77²⁵ 4Macc. 18¹⁶ 4Ez. 7¹⁰⁸ 10⁴⁶ⁿ. (read David). See Psalms of.
- Solyma = Jerusalem, Sib. 4^{115,125}.
- Someis, 1Esd. 9³⁴.
- Son, Ahikar's prayer for a, Ah. 1^{4,6}; [of Man], in Son of Man Vision, 4Ez. 13:—destroys enemies without labour by the Law, 13³⁸; restoration of lost Ten Tribes under, 13⁴¹ sqq.; of Man, in 1Enoch:—1En. 46² 48²; all judgement committed to, 69²⁷; pre-existence of, 48²ⁿ; to sit on God's throne, 51³; universal dominion of, 62¹; various phrases for, 1En. §§ 9(b), 11(b), see Messiah; of man = Enoch, 1En. 60¹⁰.
- Son of God [A. & E. 42^{2,3,5}]; Messiah as, 1En. 105² (contrast 'Sons of God'); 4Ez. 7^{28,29} 13^{32,37,62} 14⁹.
- Son of the Law, 2Bar. 46⁴ⁿ.
- Sons of (battle) din, Zad. 9¹⁰(A). See Seth, seed of.
- Sons of God, 1En. 69^{4,5} 71¹, see Angels; of the God of heaven, 1En. 106⁶; of heaven, 13⁸; Jacob, Zad. 4⁴; man, 14⁶; Noah, 4¹; of Watchers, 1En. 10¹² 14⁶, see Children; Zadok, Zad. 5⁷.
- Sorites, Wisd. 6¹⁷.
- Sorrow, and care, to be dismissed, Sir. 30²¹⁻²⁵; three things that cause, 26²⁸.
- Sosibius of Tarentum, Arist. 12, 19.
- Sospater, Maccabean leader, 2Macc. 12^{19,24}.
- Sostratus, 2Macc. 4^{27,29}.
- Sotona, 2En. 31⁴. See Satan.
- Soul, active, Wisd. 15¹¹, see Spirit; a good, fell to lot, Wisd. 8¹⁹; external, belief in, Sir. 6¹⁶ⁿ; greatly vexed, 1Bar. 2¹⁸; hungry, 2¹⁸; in anguish, 3¹; lent to man, Wisd. 15⁸, cf. 15¹⁶; individual, personal responsibility of, 4Ez. 7¹⁰²⁻¹¹⁶ⁿ; = influence, Sir. 47¹⁵ⁿ; invisible, 1En. 93¹²; living, and pure spirit given by God to man, Test. App. I 10⁸; of man 'a transient individualization of the one primitive substance or force', Wisd. 2²ⁿ.
- Souls, created before the foundation of the world, 2En. 23⁵ⁿ; God the giver of, 4Macc. 13¹³ 18²³; disembodied (= inspirations), state of, 4Ez. 7⁸⁰⁻¹⁰¹; holy, Wisd. 7²⁷; of dead, 1En. 9¹⁰ 22³; of flesh, 16¹; of men, 9³; of righteous, 102⁴, cf. 102¹¹, in chambers, see Chambers, in fourth heaven, 3Bar. 10⁶; pure and immortal, received from God, 4Macc. 18²³; pre-existence of, Wisd. § 9, 8^{19,20} 2En. 23⁵ⁿ. 4Ez. 4⁴¹ⁿ. 4Macc. 18²³; treasures of, 2Bar. 21²³, see Chambers; unborn, 4Ez. 4⁴¹ⁿ.
- Spain, 1Macc. 8³.
- Spartans, 1Macc. 12^{2,5,6,20,21n}. 14^{16,20,23} 15²³; league with, 12²; letter of, to Onias, 12²¹ⁿ; Jews brethren of, stock of Abraham, 12²¹. See Letters.
- Speculations, Greek, Sir. 3²⁴ⁿ.
- Speech, need of straightforwardness in, Sir. 5⁹⁻⁶¹; times for, and silence, 20¹⁻⁸; unseasonable, 20¹⁸⁻²⁰; varieties of, 27¹¹⁻¹⁵; of wise and foolish, 27¹¹⁻¹³.
- Speeches composed to suit characters, 4Macc. 5⁵ⁿ.
- Spheres, orderly ministration of, 1En. 2¹ 2En. 30^{2,3} 2Bar. 48⁹ Ps.Sol. 18¹²⁻¹⁴; a witness to men, 2Bar. 19³. See Heavenly Bodies.
- Spirit, and soul, 1En. 22³; each judged according to his, Zad. 9⁴⁸; evil, see Demons; God's—His sweet, Sib. Frag. 1⁵; Holy, Wisd. 9¹⁷ [A. & E. 42⁴] Mart.Is. 5¹⁴ 4Ez. 14²² Ps.Sol. 17⁴², of God, Test. App. I 10⁹ Zad. 2¹⁰, (of man, Jub. 1^{21,23} Zad. 7¹² 8²⁰); My, Jub. 5⁸; of God, T.S. 4⁴ T.B. 8² (cBS¹) [9⁴] Sib. 3⁷⁰¹ P.A. 3¹⁴; of the Lord, Wisd. 1⁷ 1En. 67¹⁰; which speaketh in me, Mart.Is. 1⁷. In 1Enoch: 1En. 13⁶ 15¹⁰ 22^{6,7,9-13} 39^{8,12} 60^{4,14,15,17} 67^{8,9} 68² 70² 71^{1,5,11} 91¹ 92² 93¹² 98^{3,7,10} 102¹¹ 103^{8,9} 106¹⁷ 108^{3,7}; evil, 15^{8,9,12} 16¹ 20⁶ 69¹²; of Abel, 22⁷; angels, 19¹; dead, 22^{5,9}; dew, 6²⁰ 7⁵; earth, 15¹⁰; faith, 61¹¹; giants, 15^{11,12} 16¹; good, 108¹¹; good-
- ness, 61¹¹; of hail, 60¹⁷; heaven 15¹⁰; hoar-frost, 60¹⁷; insight, 49³; judgement, 61¹¹; life, 61⁷; light, 61¹²; lightning and thunder, 60^{14,15}; man, 98⁷; men, 20³ 22⁵ 41⁸; mercy, 61¹¹; mist, 60¹⁹; patience, 61¹¹; peace, 61¹¹; power, 71¹¹; rain, 60²¹; reprobate, 10¹⁵; righteous, 22⁹ 41⁸; righteousness, 62²; sea, 60¹⁶; sinners, 22¹³ 108⁶; snow, 60¹⁷; souls of dead, 22³; those who died in righteousness, 49³ 103^{3,4}; thunder, 60¹⁴; understanding and might, 49³; water, 69²²; winds and zephyrs, 69²²; wisdom, 49³ 61¹¹. In Test. XII Patr.: of deceit (to be trodden under foot), T.S. 6⁶ T.L. 18¹² T.Z. 9⁸; desire, T.Jud. 16¹; envy, T.S. 3¹ 4⁷; fighting, T.R. 3⁴; filthy lucre, T.Jud. 16¹; fornication, T.R. 3³; hatred, T.G. 1⁹ 3¹; injustice, T.R. 3⁶; insatiableness, 3³; jealousy, T.Jud. 13³ T.S. 2⁷ T.D. 1⁶; lust, T.Jud. 16¹; lying, T.R. 3⁵; obsequiousness, 3⁴; pride, 3⁵; profligacy, T.Jud. 16¹; sleep, T.R. 3^{1,7}; truth, T.Jud. 20^{1,5}; understanding, T.L. 2³ 18⁷ T.Jud. 20²; vain-glory, T.D. 1⁶; wickedness, T.D. 5⁶, see T.S. 5¹ T.N. 2²; (= angel) of firmament, 4Ez. 6⁴¹; of man, borrowed, Wisd. 15¹⁶; vital, 15¹¹, see Soul; of wisdom, a, 7⁷ Ps.Sol. 18⁸; †perturbed of, Zad. 9²²; = principle of life, Sir. 34¹³ⁿ; punishment of, 1En. 67⁸; sacred, = Moses, Ass. Mos. 11¹⁶; slaying of, 1En. 22¹³ 108³; troubled, 1Bar. 3¹; upright, Jub. 1²⁰.
- Spirit(s) of Beliar, T.Iss. 7⁷ T.D. 1⁷ T.Jos. 7⁴ T.B. 3^{3,4}. See Beliar, Mastema, Satans.
- Spirits, and souls of the righteous, i.e. the living, Azar. 64; evil, haunt desert, 4Macc. 18⁸ⁿ; four evil, T.Jud. 16¹; invisible, T.L. 4¹; of the retributions (i.e. plagues), 3²; over natural phenomena, 1En. 60¹²ⁿ, see Angels, Powers; seven, of deceit, T.R. 2¹⁻²ⁿ. 3³⁻⁶ T.L. 3³; which serve before God (= angels), created on first day, Jub. 2².
- Spleen, T.N. 2⁸.
- Spring, bright, of water, for righteous, 1En. 22⁹. See Water.
- Star, a, out of Jacob, Zad. 9⁸; is he who studied the Law, who came to Damascus, 9⁸; = leader and lawgiver of Zadokites, § 10ii. See Leader.
- Stars, Sir. 43⁹⁻¹⁰; = angels (?), 2En. 30⁴ⁿ; battle of, Sib. 5⁵¹²⁻⁵³¹; conscious existence of, 1En. 41⁵ⁿ; obedience of, 1Bar. 3³⁴, see Spheres; punished (the seven), 18¹³⁻¹⁶ 21¹⁻⁶; shooting, 44²; symbolize angels, 86^{1,3}; men, 43⁴ 46⁷. Statute, Zad. 1¹⁶ 2⁴ 7¹² 9²(B), 12, 37, 51, 52 10¹⁴ 15².

INDEX

- Statutes of righteousness, Zad. 9^{37,53}.
- Stoic doctrine taught, T.R. 2³⁻⁹; ideas in Wisdom, Wisd. 1⁷ⁿ. 2²ⁿ. 7²⁷ⁿ. 18¹⁹ⁿ; philosophy, influence of, in Wisdom, § 9; teaching of five senses, Sir. 17⁵ⁿ.
- Stoicism, 4Macc. §§ 8, 9; doctrine of sin, 5²⁰.
- Strangers, intercourse with, danger of, Sir. 11³⁴.
- Strangling of animals forbidden, 2En. 59⁴.
- Stubbornness of heart, Zad. 3⁴ⁿ. 4^{5,10} 9^{18;27,34}.
- Study, P.A. 1¹⁷ 3^{10,11} 6^{2,6}.
- Stygian stream, Sib. 3¹⁴⁶.
- Styx, 1En. 17⁶ⁿ.
- Sua, 1Esd. 5²⁹.
- Subai, 1Esd. 5³⁰.
- Subas, 1Esd. 5³⁴.
- Submission to foreign conqueror inculcated in 1Bar. 1-3⁸, 1Bar. § 7.
- Subscription to Sirach, by Jeshua, Sir. 50²⁷⁻²⁹.
- Substance, Wisd. 16²¹ⁿ.
- Substitute for sins, Sir. 3¹⁴. See Merit.
- Sud, river, 1Bar. 1⁴.
- Sudhana Avadana, story of, Ah. § 4.
- Sudias, 1Esd. 5²⁶.
- Suffering, undeserved, problem of, Wisd. § 9; deserved, remedial and chastening, § 9.
- Suicide, morality of, 4Macc. 17¹ⁿ; of Ptolemy Macron, 2Macc. 10¹³; of the elder Razis, 14⁴².
- Sun, the, Sir. 43²⁻⁵.
- Sun's course, 1En. 72²⁻⁷³ 2En. 13ⁿ. 14ⁿ. 16² 3Bar. 61-8⁷; crown of fire, 61⁸⁴; defilement by beholding earth's sins, 8⁵; orb, Zad. 13¹.
- Sur, Judith 2²⁸.
- Suretyship, Sir. 8¹²⁻¹³ 29¹⁴⁻²⁰.
- Susa, Add.Esth. A² E¹⁸ Sib. 4⁹⁶.
- Susan, Jub. 8¹.
- Susan, land of, Jub. 8²¹ 9².
- Susanna, account, short, § 1; author, § 7; bibliography, § 10; composite nature or integrity of text, § 6; date, § 7; influence on later literature, § 8; MSS., § 3; original text, § 5; theology, § 9; title, § 2; versions, ancient, § 4.
- Susanna, Sus. 2 n., 7, 22, 24, 27-31, 42, 63.
- Swearing condemned, 2En. 49¹ⁿ.
- Sword, Zad. 1^{3,12,16} 4⁹ 9^{3(B)} 4^{10,11}; given to sheep, 1En. 90¹⁹ 91¹²; period of, 38⁵ 98¹² 99^{4,6}; used figuratively, 62¹² 63¹¹.
- Syene, Sib. 5¹⁹⁴.
- Synagogue, the Great, P.A. 1¹ⁿ.
- Synagogues of the pious, Ps.Sol. 17¹⁸. See Congregation, Council.
- Syncellus, 1En. 6²ⁿ.
- Syria, 1Esd. 2²⁵ 6^{3,7,27} 8^{19,23} 1Macc. 3^{13,41} 7³⁹ 3Macc. 3¹⁵ Judith 1¹² 8²⁶ Arist. 22 Sib. 4¹²⁵ 5^{125,204} 4Macc. 4². See Coelestria.
- Syriac, 2Macc. 15³⁶.
- Syrian, Jub. 27¹².
- Syrians, T.N. 5⁸; = ravens, 1En. 90⁸⁻¹².
- Tabaet, 1En. 69¹².
- Tabaoth, 1Esd. 5²⁹.
- Tabellius, a Samaritan, 1Esd. 2¹⁶.
- Tabernacle, Sir. 24¹⁵, see Tent; of the King = books of Law, Zad. 9⁶; of David, 9⁶.
- Tabernacles, feast of, 1Macc. 10²¹ⁿ. 2Macc. 1¹⁸ⁿ. Jub. 32²⁷⁻²⁹; instituted, Jub. 16²⁰⁻³¹.
- Table, behaviour at, Sir. 31. (34)¹²⁻²⁴. See Banquet.
- Tablets of brass, treaties preserved on, 1Macc. 8²²; heavenly, 1En. 81^{1,2} 93² 103² 106¹⁹, cf. 47³ⁿ. T.L. 5⁴ T.A. 7^{5(B)}; in Jubilees, record laws Levitical and criminal, 3⁸⁻¹⁴ 4⁵ 6¹⁷⁻¹⁸, 30,35 15²⁵ 16^{9,16-29} 18¹⁸⁻¹⁹ 24³³ 28⁶ 30⁹ 32²⁻¹⁵ 33¹⁰ 49 50⁶⁻¹³; a contemporary event, 18¹⁸⁻¹⁹ 19⁹ 30^{9,20} 31³² 32²²; predictions, 5¹³ 23³⁰⁻³² 30²¹⁻²². See 1En. 47³ⁿ.
- Tabshelim, one of the flying boys, Ah. 6⁵ (Syr.) See Ubael.
- Tahpanhes, Judith 1¹⁰.
- Talking, avoid overmuch, Sir. 19⁴⁻¹².
- Talmudic citations of Sirach, Sir. § 3.
- †Tamaini, 1En. 82¹⁵.
- Tamar, Jub. 41^{1,6,9,16,19} T.Jud. 10^{1,2} 12¹ 13³ 14⁵.
- Tamar, P.A. 5¹⁹.
- Tamiel, 1En. 6⁷.
- Tamnatares = Timnath, Jub. 34⁸.
- Tanagra, Sib. 3³⁴⁶.
- Tanais, Jub. 13¹².
- Tanis, Judith 1¹⁰.
- Taphu (= Tephon, 1Macc. 9⁵⁰), king of, Jub. 34^{4,7}. See Tephon.
- Tappuah, T.Jud. 3² 5⁶.
- Tarentum, Arist. 12.
- Targum Ps. Jonathan, borrows from Testaments, T.Z. 3²ⁿ. 4⁶ⁿ.
- Tarphon, P.A. 2¹⁹⁻²⁰.
- Tarsus, 2Macc. 3⁵ 4³⁰. See Apollonius.
- Tartarus, 1En. 2c² Sib. 4¹⁸⁶. See Hell.
- Tattenai. See Sisinnus.
- Tauri, Sib. 5¹³².
- Taurus, Sib. 5^{208,518,519}.
- Taxo = Eleazar the scribe, Ass. Mos. 9¹ⁿ.
- Tazon = Gozan, Mart.Is. 3²ⁿ.
- Teacher, i.e. God, Sir. 51¹⁷; of Righteousness, Zad. § 10iv, 1⁷ 8¹⁰, relation to Messiah, 1⁷ⁿ; Unique, 9⁵³, gathered in, 9^{29(B)} 3^{9(B)}; voice of, 9⁵⁰. See also 4⁷.
- Tebon in Gilead, Mart. Is. 2¹⁴.
- Tekoah, wilderness of, 1Macc. 9³³ⁿ.
- Temai, Jub. 38¹⁸; wisdom of, 1Bar. 3²².
- Temperance, a gift of God, Arist. 237, 248.
- Temple, Tob. 1⁴ 14⁵ Sir. 36¹⁴ 49¹² 50^{1,7} Wisd. 9⁸ Arist. 53, 88 Sib. 3^{294,302,703,718} 4^{116,118,125} 5¹⁵⁰, see Holy Place, House, Tower; altar and vessels lately sanctified after profanation, Judith 4³ⁿ; and altar, Add. Esth. § 7; beauty of, 3Macc. 1¹⁰; cleansing of, 2Macc. 10^{5sq.}; deposits in, 3^{6sq.}; description of, Arist. 84-99; desecration by Antiochus, 1Macc. 1²⁰⁻²⁴ (see Vessels) Sib. 3²⁷; by Pompey, due to Israel's sin, P.Sol. 2¹⁻¹⁵; destroyed by fire, 1Bar. § 7; destruction of, Sib. 5^{398,401n}. 4^{116,119,125} 5¹⁵⁰; earthly, to be restored, and so sacred vessels preserved, 4Ez. 10²²ⁿ; furniture hidden by Jeremiah, 2Macc. 2⁴⁻¹²; honoured by heathen kings, e.g. Seleucus, 2Macc. 3¹⁻⁴, till Heliodorus attempted to plunder treasury, 3⁷⁻²⁵; = Lord's dwelling, 2En. 51⁴; miraculous intervention to protect, 2Macc. 3²⁴⁻³⁰; music and services, Sir. 50¹⁸; of God, T.B. 9²; Philopator's attempt to enter, 3Macc. 1^{9sq.} 3¹⁷; profanation of, 2Macc. 5^{16sq.} 6⁴; by Antiochus Epiphanes, 2Macc. 5¹⁻²⁷; allowed by God owing to sin of Jews, 5¹⁷⁻²⁰; profaning of, Zad. §§ 9⁴⁰ 10, see Sanctuary; purified and rededicated, 1Macc. 4³⁶⁻⁶¹ 2Macc. 10¹⁻⁸; rebuilding of: Cyrus' decree for, § 1, 2¹⁻¹⁵, in 538 B.C. 5⁴⁶, forbidden by Artaxerxes, 2²⁵⁻²⁸, completed by Darius's intervention, § 1, 6-7, in 520-516 B.C., Samaritans hinder, § 1, 2¹⁶⁻³⁰, whether done by Ezra or Nehemiah, § 5(e); restoration of, but 'not like the first', Tob. 14⁵; low esteem of worship of, Ass. Mos. 4⁸ⁿ. 1En. 89^{73,74} 2Bar. 68⁶; sanctity of, 3Macc. 1^{11sq.} 2^{9sq.}; second, destruction of, Zad. § 6in.; second, low reputation of, 2Bar. 68⁶ⁿ; still standing, Zad. § 6i, 1³ⁿ; treasures, 4Macc. 4³, an object of attack to Epiphanes, 1Macc. 3³¹ⁿ; veil of, see Veil; Warden of, 2Macc. 3⁴ⁿ; worship, importance of, in Sir. 44-49n. See Sanctuary.
- Temple, Heavenly, Azar. 31; = the holy, T.L. 5¹; of glory, 18⁶.
- Temple, heathen, Bel. 8.
- Temple, Messianic, Sib. 5⁴²³.
- Temple of Onias at Alexandria, 1Esd. § 1.
- Temples, use of, disowned, Sib. 4²⁷.
- Temptations, the, T.Jos. 2⁷; of trade, Sir. 26²⁹⁻²⁷; power of, Wisd. 4¹².
- Tempting God, wickedness of, Sir. 5⁴⁻⁸.
- Ten, series of: generations, P.A. 5^{2,3}; sayings, world created by, 5¹; things created between the suns, 5⁹; trials of Abraham, 5⁴; wonders in Egypt, 5⁵; in Sanctuary, 5⁸.
- Ten tribes, Ass. Mos. § 6 4Ez. 13⁴⁰; Return of, 13⁴⁰⁻⁴⁸.
- Tendency, the natural, Sir. 21¹¹ⁿ. See Inclination, Yetzer.
- Tent, Sir. 50⁵. See Tabernacle.
- Tenth, first and second, Tob. 16⁷. See Tithes.
- Tephon, city, 1Macc. 9⁵⁰. See Taphu.
- Terah, Jub. 11^{10,12,14} 12^{1,14,15,29} 34²⁰.
- Tergal, king of nations, Jub. 13²².
- Territory added to Judaea by Demetrius I, 1Macc. 10^{30,38}.
- Tertullian, 1En. 8¹ 15^{8,9} 19¹ 99^{6,7} (notes).
- Testaments of the Twelve Patriarchs, account of, § 1; additions, Jewish, § 12, Christian, § 13; author, § 11; bibliography, § 17; brackets, symbols, and abbreviations, § 18; date of original Hebrew, § 10; integrity of, § 11; influence on Jewish and Patristic literature, § 14, on N.T., § 15; MSS., Armenian, § 4, Greek, § 3; original language Hebrew, § 8; recensions of, two, in Armenian, § 6, Greek, §§ 7, 9, Hebrew, § 9, Slavonic, § 5; relation to 1 Enoch, 1En. § 10(a); 2 Enoch, 2En. § 4; sources, § 11; theology of, § 16; title, § 2; versions of, Armenian, § 6; Greek, § 7, translated from Hebrew, § 8; Slavonic, § 5. See Zad. §§ 8, 12, Levi, References.
- Testament of Moses, Ass.Mos. 1¹. See Moses.
- Testament, title of, Test. § 2.
- Testimony, 1En. 67¹² 89^{63,76} 96⁴ 97⁴ 99³, cf. 89⁵³ 103⁴.
- Testing of character, Sir. 2¹⁻⁶ 4^{17,18}; of friends, Sir. 6⁷.
- Teuchira, Sib. 5¹⁹⁵.
- Thamna, T.Jud. 7^{4,9} (Timnath, 1Macc. 9⁵⁰).
- Thanksgiving, a, Sir. 51^{121-xv1}.
- Tharmuth, daughter of Pharaoh, Jub. 47⁵.
- Tharra, eunuch, Add. Esth. A¹².
- Thassis. See Simon.
- Thebes, Sib. 4⁸⁹ 5¹⁸⁹.
- Thelesas, 1Esd. 5⁸⁶.
- Theodektes, tragic poet, Arist. 316ⁿ.
- Theodosius, Arist. 47.
- Theodosius, an elder, Arist. 49.
- Theodosius, an elder, Arist. 50.
- Theodotus, 2Macc. 14¹⁹.
- Theodotus, a deserter from Ptolemy, 3Macc. 1²ⁿ.
- Theophanies referred to, T.S. 6⁵ T.L. 2¹¹ 5² 8¹ T.Jud. 22² T.Z. 9⁸ T.D. 5¹³ T.N. 8³ T.A. 7³.
- Theophilus ad Autolycom, Sib. § 1.
- Theophilus, an elder, Arist. 49.
- Theophrastus, Ah. § 2.
- Theopompus of Chios, Arist. 314ⁿ.
- Therapeutae, Wisd. 4⁸.
- Theras, river, 1Esd. 8^{41,61}.
- Thermeleth, 1Esd. 5⁸⁶.
- Thermodon, Sib. 5³²⁰.
- Thessalian land, Sib. 5¹³⁴.
- Thevan or Thevad, month, 2En. 48².

INDEX

- Third period or kingdom. See 4Ez. 5⁴ⁿ.
- Thisbe, Tob. 1².
- Thmouis, Sib. 5⁸⁶.
- Thocanus, 1Esd. 9¹⁴.
- Thomei, 1Esd. 5³².
- Thrace, Sib. 3^{508, 516}.
- Thracian, 2Macc. 12³⁵ Sib. 3⁴⁷⁴.
- Thracians, Sib. 5^{333, 337, 467}.
- Three Children, Song of, 4Macc. 13⁹. See Azariah, Prayer of; Hananiah, Mishael.
- Throne, of God, 1En. 25³; of glory, T.L. 5¹; Elect One sits on, 1En. 45³ 55⁴ 62^{3, 5}.
- Thrones, T.L. 3⁸; of the elect, 1En. 108¹².
- Thummim. See Urim.
- Thunder, 1En. 59², see Lightning; and lightning, angel or spirit of, see Angels.
- Thunderer, Sib. 3⁴⁰⁵. See Poseidon.
- Tiber, Sib. 5¹⁷⁰.
- Tigers = Assyrians, 1En. 89⁵⁵ⁿ.
- Tigris, Tob. 6² Judith 1⁶ Sir. 24²⁵ Jub. 9^{2, 5} A. & E. 6¹ 7¹ 9¹ S.A. & E. 36¹ 1En. 77⁶ⁿ Sib. 4⁶⁴.
- Time, observe the, Sir. 4²⁰ⁿ; watch closely, 27¹².
- Times and seasons, 4Ez. 14⁵ⁿ; ended, Ass. Mos. 7¹; end of, 11³⁹ 12⁹ 14⁹; of Most High, ended, 4Ez. 11⁴⁴ⁿ, see Last time; the last, T.Iss. 6¹. See Hours.
- Timnath, 1Macc. 9⁵⁰ Jub. 41⁸⁹. See Tamnatares.
- Timotheus, an Ammonite, 1Macc. 5^{6, 11, 34, 37, 40}.
- Timotheus, general, 2Macc. 8^{30, 32} 9³ 10^{24, 32, 37}; death, 10³⁷.
- Timotheus, governor, 2Macc. 12^{2, 10, 18, 19, 20, 21, 24}.
- Tina, river, Jub. 8^{12, 16, 25, 28} 9^{2, 7}.
- Tiras, Jub. 7¹⁹ 9¹³ Test. App. I 9⁴.
- Tirshatha, the. See Attharias.
- Titan, Sib. 3^{110, 121, 129, 149}.
- Titans, Judith 16⁷ Sib. 3^{132, 138, 147, 156, 157, 199}.
- Tithes and tolls, on Temple revenues, 1Macc. 10³¹; law of, 13²⁵⁻²⁷ 32¹⁰⁻¹⁵; of oxen and sheep, 32¹⁵, see Holy Things, Tenth; paid by Jacob to Levi, Jub. 32⁴⁻⁹.
- Tithing, Jub. § 15, 32¹⁰.
- Titus, Sib. 5^{408, 411}.
- Tobia the Canaanite, Mart. Is. 2⁵.
- Tobiadae, the, Sir. 45²⁵ⁿ.
- Tobias. See Hyrcanus.
- Tobiel, Tob. 1¹.
- Tobit, Book of, abbreviations used, § 13; account of, short, § 1; bibliography, § 12; date of, pre-Maccabaeon, § 6; influence on later literature, § 11; integrity of, § 9; MSS. and Papyrus, Greek, § 3 (for non-Greek, see Versions of); original language, Greek or Semitic, § 5; place of composition, Egypt, § 7; purpose, § 7; religious and moral teaching, § 10; sources, § 8: (i) Tractate of Khons; (ii) Fable of Grateful Dead; (iii) Story of Aḥikar; (iv) O.T. and Apocrypha, esp. Sirach; (v) Magian influences; title, § 2; versions, non-Greek, § 4; (A) Aramaic; (B) Latin—Old Latin and Quotations, Vulgate; (C) Hebrew Versions, Münster, Fagius, London, Gaster; (D) Syriac, two; (E) Ethiopic; parallels of, with Sirach, Sir. § 7(b), with Aḥikar, Ah. § 3(b).
- Tola, Jub. 44¹⁶.
- Tolbanes, 1Esd. 9²⁵.
- Tolman, 1Esd. 5²⁸.
- Tomas, 1En. 78¹.
- Tongue, control of, Sir. 23⁷⁻¹⁵; mischief wrought by wicked, 28¹³⁻²⁶. See Double-tongued.
- Tongues, two, T.B. 6⁵.
- Torah, P.A. 1^{1, 2, 5a, 12, 15} 2^{2, 8, 9, 16, 18, 20} 3^{3-7, 8, 16, 18, 21} 4^{8, 11, 12, 17, 18} 5^{11, 24} 6^{1-4, 6, 7, 10, 11}; the chief concept of Aboth, P.A. § 5.
- Torah and Mitzvah, Sir. 8⁹ⁿ.
- Torture, 2Macc. 6^{19sq.} 7^{4sq.} 13^{5sq.}; instruments of, 4Macc. 8^{13n.} 10^{6sq.} 11^{9sq.}
- Tower of sanctuary, Ass. Mos. 2⁴ⁿ.
- Tower = Temple, 1En. 89⁵⁰ⁿ. 54, 56, 67, 73.
- Trade, temptations of, Sir. 26²⁹⁻²⁷.
- Tradition, P.A. 3¹⁸ⁿ; of the elders = Halachah, P.A. § 2; oral, Sir. 8⁸ⁿ; recognized only to small extent by Zadokites, Zad. § 9^{30, 40}.
- Trajan, 4Ez. 11^{32n.} 12^{3-39n.}
- Trallis, Sib. 3⁴⁵⁹ 5²⁸⁹.
- Transcendence of God, 1Macc. § 5.
- Transformation of nature, Sib. 3⁷⁷⁷; of world, moral and physical, gradual, Jub. 1²⁹ⁿ.
- T.L. 18 (contrast 1En. 45⁴ 91¹⁶ 2Bar. 32⁶ 67² 4Ez. 7⁷⁵); of world, spiritual—it becomes undying, 2Bar. 51³; incorruptible, 74², see World; of righteous at resurrection, 51^{1-3, 7}; and of condemned, 51⁴⁻⁶. See Creation.
- Translations of Enoch and Elijah, 4Ez. 6²⁶, see Messiah, companions of; of Ezra, 4Ez. 14³, see Enoch.
- Translators of Septuagint, Arist. 47-50.
- Treasure of works. See Works.
- Treasure-house of natural forces, Sir. 43¹⁴.
- Treasure-houses of snow, dew, &c., 2En. 5¹ 6¹.
- Treasures of immortality, 4Ez. 8⁵⁴.
- Treasuries of good deeds, 2Bar. 24^{1n.}; of righteousness, 24^{1n.}, see Works, good; of souls, 21^{23n.} 23⁴, see Chambers; of the stars, 1En. 17¹; of the winds, 18¹ 4Ez. 4^{5n.} 5^{37n.}
- Treasury of manna, 2Bar. 29⁸.
- Tree, dismembered = Israel, 1En. 26¹; of life, 24⁴ 25⁴⁻⁶ Apoc. Mos. 19² 22³ 28^{2, 4} T.L. 18¹¹ 2En. 8^{3n.} 4Ez. 7¹²³ 8^{52n.}; of mercy, i. e. of life, A. & E. 36² 40² 2En. 85^(B), cf. 22^{8(B)}; of wisdom, 1En. 32^{3-6n.}
- Trees, desirable, 1En. 10¹⁹; fourteen evergreen, 3; fragrant, 24³ 29² 30³ 32¹; with branches abiding and blooming, 26¹.
- Trees of gladness = saints, as in Ps. Sol. 14² (?), 12³, but cf. 11⁷.
- Trees of life = God's pious ones, Ps. Sol. 14². See Planting.
- Trespass, Zad. 1³ 8¹⁸ 9^{17, 32, 48} 10¹⁰ 11⁴; against next of kin, 9¹⁷; against Law, 10¹⁰.
- Trials, P.A. 5^{4, 7}. See Abraham, Testing.
- Triballi, Sib. 5⁵⁰⁴.
- Tribes, the nine and a half, 2Bar. 62⁵ 77¹⁹ 78¹; the ten, 1², see Ten; the Twelve, T.B. 9².
- Tribes, two and a half, lost Epistle to, 2Bar. § 8, 77^{12, 17, 19}.
- Tripolis, 2Macc. 14¹.
- Tripolis by Maender, Sib. 5³²¹.
- Troglodytes, T.Z. 4⁶.
- Troy, Sib. 3^{206, 405} 5⁹.
- True, he is, Zad. 2¹⁰. See Interpretation, Judgement, Messiah.
- Trumpet, announces coming woe, Ps. Sol. 8¹; proclaims Final Judgement, 4Ez. 6²³, cf. 5⁴ⁿ. See Voice of God.
- Truth, Tob. 4⁶ 12⁸; praise of, 1Esd. § 1, 3¹⁻⁴⁶ 3¹ⁿ.
- Truthfulness enjoined, T.R. 6⁹ T.D. 2¹ 5² 6⁸ T.A. 6¹ T.B. 10³; as a virtue, T.Iss. 7^{4, 5} T.D. 1³.
- Tryphon, 1Macc. 11^{39n.} 54, 56 12^{39, 42, 49} 13^{1, 12, 14, 20-24, 31, 34} 14¹ 15^{10, 25, 37, 39} Sib. 3^{388-400n.}
- Tsivan. See Sivan.
- Tubal, Jub. 7¹⁹ 9¹¹ Test. App. I 9⁴.
- Tubias, place, 1Macc. 5¹³ⁿ.
- Tubieni, Jews so styled at Charax, 2Macc. 12^{17, 35}.
- Tumael, 1En. 69².
- †Turael, 1En. 69².
- Turel, 1En. 67 69².
- †Turel, 1En. 69².
- Turn away. See Apostasy.
- Twenty-two acts of creation, Jub. 2¹⁵; heads of mankind from Adam to Jacob, 2²³.
- Twins, the, Sib. 5^{208, 521}.
- Tyrannus. See Auranus.
- Tyre, 1Esd. 5⁵⁵ Judith 2²⁸ Mart. Is. 5¹³ Sib. 4⁹⁰ 5⁴⁵⁵ 2Macc. 4^{18, 32, 44}; games at, 2Macc. 4¹⁸; Ladder of, 1Macc. 11⁵⁹.
- Tyrians, Sib. 4⁹⁰.
- Ubael, one of the flying boys, Ah. 6⁵ (Syr.). See Tabshelim.
- Uchan, 2En. 57² (A, 'Azuchan' B).
- Unchastity, Zad. 9¹⁷.
- Uncircumcised (= children of the pit), Zad. 8¹² 16⁷; marriage with, Add. Esth. C²⁶.
- Uncircumcision, an eternal error, no forgiveness for, Jub. 15³⁴; submitted to, 1Macc. 1¹⁵ⁿ. See Hellenizing.
- Unclean, Zad. 5⁴ 8¹⁴ 12² 14^{1, 2, 6} 15¹, see Clean; foods, abstinence from, 4Macc. 5²⁶ⁿ; woman, Zad. 5⁴.
- Uncleanness, 1En. 10^{11, 20} 91⁷. cf. 106¹⁷, see Sin; Zad. 1¹⁷ 14^{1, 15, 16}, see Impurity; heathen, Wisd. 14²⁴; laws of, Zad. § 7.
- Underworld, i. e. infernum = abode of souls of wicked dead, 4Ez. 4⁴¹ⁿ.
- Unfaithful steward, parable of, parallel to, in, Ah. 3¹⁻².
- Unforgiving, no atonement for, Sir. 28⁵.
- Ungodly, end of, Sir. 41⁵⁻¹³.
- Unique. See Teacher.
- Unity of God, Sir. § 9i Sib. Frags. i & iii 2Bar. 48²⁴ 4Ez. § 10i.
- Universal salvation, T.S. 6⁵ T.L. 2¹¹ Test. § 16.
- Unleavened bread, Feast of, Jub. 49²².
- Unrighteous, 1En. 62^{2, 13} 96² 103¹¹, see Sinners, Wicked; gains, 1En. 63¹⁰, see Wealth.
- Upper chamber, Tob. 3¹⁷.
- Upper Galilee, Tob. 1².
- Upright, see Spirit.
- Uprightness, see Plant; of heart, T.Iss. 3^{1n.} 4⁶ T.G. 7⁷.
- Ur, son of Kesed, Jub. 11^{1, 3}.
- Ur of Chaldees, city, Jub. 11^{7, 8} 12^{14, 15, 21} 13⁷ 14⁷ 22²⁷ Sib. 3²¹⁸. See Camarina.
- Urias, 1Esd. 8⁶² 9⁴³.
- Uriel, A. & E. 48^{4, 6, 7} Apoc. Mos. 40¹ 1En. 9¹ 10¹ 19¹ 20² (over Tartarus) 21^{5, 9} 27² 33⁴ 72¹ 74² 75^{3, 4} 78¹⁰ 79⁶ 80¹ 82⁷ (see Angels, Archangels) 4Ez. [4¹] 5²⁰ 10²⁷; archangel of fire and of Gehenna, 4¹ⁿ; sent as messenger to Salathiel, 4¹.
- Urim, Law faithful as, Sir. 33³.
- Urim and Thummim, 1Esd. 5⁴⁰.
- Usury, Sir. 29²ⁿ.
- Uta, 1Esd. 5³⁰.
- Uthi, 1Esd. 8⁴⁰.
- Uzziel, Test. App. II 74.
- Valley, accursed (= Gehenna), 1En. 27²; burning, among metal mountains, 67⁴, cf. 67⁷, see 54⁷⁻⁵⁵ⁿ; deep with burning fire, 54^{1, 2}; deep with open mouths, 53¹; full of water, 30¹.
- Valleys, cinnamon, 1En. 30³; of the earth, 10¹². See Abyss, Chasm, Deep, Depth, Gehenna, Ravine.
- Value, true of a man, how tested, Sir. 27⁴⁻⁷.
- Varns, quelled Jewish rebellion in 4 B. C., Ass. Mos. 6⁸.
- Veil of Temple, T.L. 10³ T.B. 9⁴.
- Vengeance, 4Macc. 9^{24, 32} 10²¹ 11²³ 12¹⁹ Zad. 9²⁰ 10^{2, 3, 6}; belongs to God alone, Sir. 27³⁰⁻²⁸⁷; of the covenant, Zad. 1¹² 9¹¹.
- Venom = head, Zad. 9²⁰.
- Versions. See under each Book.
- Vespasian and Titus = Nabuchodonosor and Baltasar, 1Bar. § 7.
- Vessel = body, 4Ez. 4^{10n.} 7⁸⁸ⁿ.
- Vessels of Temple, see Temple; holy, hidden by angel till last times of Messianic restoration, 2Bar. 6⁴⁻¹⁰ new ones made for rededicated Temple,

INDEX

- 1 Macc. 4⁴⁹; of the Lord, removed by Nebuchadnezzar to Babylon, Ass. Mos. 3², first some, 1 Esd. 1⁴¹; again others, 1⁴⁵; all taken, 1⁵⁴; restored (?) by Cyrus, 2¹⁰ⁿ, 6¹⁸; by Darius, 4^{44,57,62}; by Artaxerxes, 8¹⁷; of Temple, restored to Jerusalem by captives at Babylon, 1 Bar. 1⁸ⁿ; removed from Temple by Antiochus Epiphanes, 1 Macc. 1²¹⁻²³.
- Vesuvius, 1 Bar. 4³⁵ⁿ.
- Vicarious suffering of martyrs, 2 Macc. 7³³⁻³⁸ 4 Macc. 6²⁸.
- Vine, planted by angel Samael, the forbidden tree, 3 Bar. 4⁸ⁿ.
- Violence, 1 En. 6⁵⁶ 9^{15,6,8,11,18,19} 9⁴² 10²¹⁰ 10⁴⁶; denunciation of, Sib. 5²²⁸⁻²⁴⁶. See Oppressed.
- Virgo, Sib. 5^{209,621}.
- Virtues, cardinal, Wisd. 8⁷; = guardian angels, A. & E. 2¹¹, cf. 3³¹; philosophical, 4 Macc. 1^{25sq.} 5^{23sq.}—forms of wisdom, 1¹⁸; obtained by training under the Law, 5²³.
- Vision, Tob. 12¹⁹; of angels, Jews saved by, 3 Macc. 6¹⁸; of the cedar and the vine, i.e. A², 2 Bar. 36-40; of the cloud and the lightning, i.e. A³, 2 Bar. 53-74; heavenly, 1 En. 93²; of the Holy One, 1²; of chastisement, 13⁸; of cherubim, 14¹⁸; of wisdom, 37¹; of Levi, T.L. 2^{5sq.} 8^{1sq.}; Jacob, T.Jud. 3¹⁰; Naphtali, T.N. 5, 6; Joseph, T.Jos. 19. cf. T.B. 10¹.
- Visions, 1 En. 13⁸ 14^{4,8,14} 19³ 37¹ 83¹⁻⁷ 85^{2,3} 87² 88³ 89^{7,70} 90^{2,8,40,42} 93² 106¹³, see Dream Visions; of Naphtali, Test. App. I 2¹⁻³ 4¹⁻⁶.
- Visit (of God), Zad. 1⁶ 7¹⁷ 9^{12,13}.
- Visitation, Zad. 9^{2,10,11} (period of, 9¹⁰; of first, 9¹¹); = deliverance, Wisd. 3⁷; in good sense, Ass. Mos. 1¹⁸; = judgement, Wisd. 14¹¹ⁿ 19¹⁵; of the earth, by God, 2 Bar. 20²ⁿ.
- Visiting the sick, duty of, Sir. 7³⁵ⁿ.
- Voice, mysterious voice, a sign of the End, 4 Ez. 5⁷; of God proclaims the End, 6¹³⁻¹⁷. See Trumpet.
- Vows, P.A. 3¹⁸ 4²³. See Laws.
- Vretil, 2 En. 22^{11,12} 23(B).
- Vulgar, i.e. am-ha-aretz, P.A. 2⁶ 3¹⁶ 5¹³.
- Vultures = Graeco-Egyptians, 1 En. 90², cf. 90^{11,13n}.
- Wages, Tob. 4¹⁴ 5^{15sq.} 12³ Arist. 258, 259.
- Wajjissau. See Midrash.
- Walk, according to Law, Zad. 7¹ 9¹; in midrash of Law, 9³³; in perfection of holiness, 8²¹; uprightly, 1¹⁶ 3².
- Wall, built the, Zad. 6⁸ 9²¹; builders of, 7¹ 9²⁶. See Pharisees.
- War of Egyptians against Canaan, Jub. 46⁶⁻⁹ⁿ. T.S. 8² T.G. 8⁵ⁿ. T.B. 12^{3(β)}.
- Wars, civil, T.Jud. 22¹ T.Z. 9²⁻⁶.
- Watchers = (i) archangels, 1 En. 12^{2,3}, cf. 20¹ ('who watch'), also 39^{12,13} 40² 61¹² 71⁷ ('who sleep not'); = (ii) fallen angels, 1 En. 1⁶ 10^{9,13} 12⁴ 13¹⁰ 14^{1,3} 15² 16^{1,2} 91¹⁵ Jub. 4^{15,22} 7²¹ 8³ 10⁶; the, T.R. 5^{6,7} T.N. 3⁵; of heaven fell, Zad. 3⁴, see Inclination; punished, rebellious in second heaven, 2 En. 7¹⁻⁵, lustful beneath the earth, 2 En. 18⁷. See Children of, Grigori, Princes.
- Water, Zad. 5³ 9¹³ 12^{1,2} 13¹² 14¹⁴, see Cleansed; of judgement, 1 En. 67¹³, see Spring.
- Waters, above the heavens, 1 En. 54^{1,7}; beneath the earth, 54⁸ 66¹; earth upon, 69¹⁷, see Fountain, Spring; living, 1 En. 17⁴, cf. 22⁹; spring of, Zad. 9²⁸, see Well; of knowledge, i. e. of Torah, Sir. 15⁹ⁿ.
- Way = course of action, P.A. 2¹; good, right, evil, &c., 2^{1,12,13} 6⁴; of God, Zad. 9⁴²; of righteousness, 1 En. 82⁴; The Way, Zad. 1⁶⁻⁸ 2⁴.
- Ways, in 4 Ezra: of this world, narrow and sorrowful, 4 Ez. 7^{11,12}; of future world, broad and safe, 7¹³, see Path; of souls, seven, see Seven. In Zad. Frag.: of God, Zad. 5², 9⁴²; of kings of Gentiles, 9²⁰; of the people, 9²⁴; of traitors, 9¹⁵; of unclean woman, 5⁴; of wicked, 2¹ 9¹⁰;—the Two, 1 En. 91⁴ⁿ 19ⁿ. 2 En. 30¹⁵ⁿ. T.A. 13⁶.
- Wealth, Zad. 6¹¹ 9³³ 14⁸ 16⁴; and unjust gain, 9¹⁷ 13⁴, or gain, 13²⁵ 14⁷; duties of, 14³⁻¹⁹; less honoured than wisdom, Sir. 10³⁰⁻¹¹¹; of Sanctuary, Zad. 8¹²; of sins, 1 En. 103⁵, see Unrighteous; of wickedness, Zad. 6¹¹ 8¹² 9¹⁵; trust not in, Sir. 5^{1,2}, cf. 1 En. 94⁸; without sin, is good, Sir. 13²⁴. See Gains.
- Week, of world, 1 En. 93 91¹²⁻¹⁷; = seven millenniums, 4 Ez. 4³⁶⁻³⁷ⁿ 7^{30,43}.
- Weeks, Zad. 20¹; feast of, 2 Macc. 12³¹ Tob. 2¹ Jub. 15¹ⁿ, connected with Noah's covenant, Jub. 6^{17,18}, see Pentecost; (= year-weeks), Jub. Prologue, 1^{26,29}.
- Weighing, 1 En. 41¹ 43² 60¹² 61⁸; of sins of Israel and the nations, 4 Ez. 3³⁴.
- Well, is the Law, Zad. 8⁶; dug by nobles of people, 8⁹, penitents of Israel, 8⁶; of many waters, dig a (= restudy Law), Zad. 5³ 8⁴⁻⁶; of the Oath, Jub. 16^{11,15,20} 18¹⁷ 22¹ 24²⁶ 29^{17,18,19} 36¹² 44^{1,8}; of Vision, Jub. 24¹.
- West, 1 En. 67⁴ 70³. See Fire.
- White, symbolizes righteousness, 1 En. 83³ⁿ; men = angels. See Angels, Men.
- Whoredom, Tob. 4¹².
- Wicked, God's wrath against, Sir. 16⁶⁻¹⁴ 32(35)¹⁵; recompense of, 9²; sacrifice of, Zad. 14¹; snared by Law, Sir. 32(35)¹⁵; ways of, Zad. 2¹ 9¹⁹.
- Wickedness, of impurity, Sir. 23¹⁶⁻²⁷; of kings after Solomon, 47²³⁻²⁶; of people in Elisha's time, 48¹²⁻¹⁶; of tempting God, see Tempting; period of, Zad. 8^{9,12} 15⁴, see Israel; wealth of, see Wealth.
- Widows, Tob. 1⁸; care of, Sir. 4¹⁰.
- Wife, P.A. 1^{5,54}; avoid being jealous of, Sir. 9¹; blessing of a good, 26^{1-4,13-22}; curse of wicked, 26^{5-12,23-27}; duty to, Sir. 7^{19,26} 9¹; need of a good, 26¹⁹⁻²⁷; value of, 36^{24-26,29-31}.
- Will of God, T. Iss. 4³ T.D. 6⁶ T.N. 3¹ T.B. 11^{2(β)} P.A. 2⁴ 5²⁴ Zad. 3¹⁻² 5²; of man, of own spirit, 4²; own, 3⁷ 4¹⁰. see Free-will.
- Windows, 1 En. 72^{3,7} 75⁷ 83¹¹ 101².
- Windpipe, T.N. 2⁸.
- Winds, 1 En. 18¹⁻⁵ 34-36 41⁴ 60¹² 76; angels or spirits of, see Angels; portals of, 76¹; the twelve, 76¹. See Chambers, Treasuries.
- Wine, 2 Macc. 15³⁹ Tob. 4^{15,17}; makes heart lustful, Sir. 9⁹ 19²; new, a new friend is, 9¹⁰; use and abuse of, Sir. 31(34)²⁵⁻³¹; = ways of kins of Gentiles, Zad. 9¹⁹. See Dragons.
- Wisdom, Tob. 4^{18,19} 4 Macc. 1^{16sq.} P.A. 2⁸ 3^{12,13,21-23} 4¹ 5^{10,13} 6^{6,8}; and fear of God, 3^{21,22}; and Word, 2 En. 33⁴; assessor of God, 2 En. 30⁸ⁿ; awaits righteous in heaven, 4 Ez. 8⁵²; embodied in Law, praise of, 1 Bar. § 11, 3⁹⁻⁴⁴; God loveth, Zad. 2²; hidden at last times, 2 Bar. 48³⁶; hypostatized, 2 En. 30⁸ⁿ. 33³, cf. 1 En. 42^{1,2}. In Book of Wisdom: conceptions of—a breath of the power of God, a clear effluence of the glory of the Almighty, . . . from generation to generation passing into holy souls she maketh them friends of God and prophets, 7²⁵⁻²⁷; God's intermediary, sent into world, 9¹⁰; immortal, 8¹⁷ⁿ; not a person, but personified, § 9; omnipotent, 7^{21,27} 8⁸; omnipresent, 1⁷; omniscient, 8⁸ 9¹¹; spirit, 7²²; spouse of God, 8³; synonymous with Word, 9¹ⁿ. In Sirach: Sir. 1^{1,4,6,14,16,18,20,25,26,27} 4^{11,23,24} 6¹⁸ 7⁵ 10³⁰ 11¹⁵ 13²² 14²⁰ 15¹⁸ 16²⁴ 18²⁸ 19^{20,22} 20^{30,31} 21^{11,18,21} 22⁶ 23¹⁵ 24^{1,25} 25^{5,10} 27¹¹ 32⁴ 33^{8,11,17} 38^{24,34} 39¹ 40¹⁹ 41^{14,15} 42²¹ 51¹³⁻³⁰; applied to eating, 37²⁷⁻³¹; as seen in creation, 16²⁴⁻³⁰; blessedness of those who seek, 14²⁰⁻²⁷; comes from the Lord, 1¹ 11¹⁵; conception of in Sirach, § 9 iii;—divine, created before creation, eternal: = the fear of the Lord: the free gift of God; differs from craftiness, 19²⁰⁻³⁰; fear of Lord is true wisdom, 1¹¹⁻²⁰; how acquired by Ben-
- Sira, 51¹³⁻³⁰; how attained, 15¹⁻¹⁰; joy and crown of beauty to those who seek, 6¹⁸, 19, 23-31, but harsh to foolish, 6²⁰⁻²²; must not be hidden, 4²³ 20^{30,31} 4^{14,15}; need of in rulers, 9¹⁷⁻¹⁰⁵; not wealth, brings honour, 10³⁰⁻¹¹¹; of aged, beautiful, 25³⁻⁶; origin of, 1¹⁻¹⁰, from the Lord, 1¹ 11¹⁶; poured out on all God's works, 1⁹, on all flesh in measure, on to Israel without measure, 1¹⁰; practical value of true, 34⁹⁻¹⁷ (31⁹⁻²⁰); praise of, 24¹⁻³⁴; reward of those who seek, 4¹¹⁻¹⁹ 6³²⁻³⁷; shown in conduct, 18²⁶⁻²⁹, by patience, self-control, and humility, 1²²⁻³⁰; true and false, 37¹⁶⁻²⁶;—literature, § 1; praise of, Wisd. 6⁹⁻¹¹¹ T.L. 13 Test. App. II 88-95; soul so constituted as to receive, Arist. 236.
- Wisdom, Book of, Add. Esth. §§ 1, 5, F¹¹ⁿ; account of, short, Wisd. § 1; author, § 7, an Alexandrian Jew; bibliography, § 10; composite nature, § 6; date, § 5; language of, § 7; MSS., § 3; relation to O.T. and N.T. books, § 8; theology and philosophy, § 9; title, § 2; versions, § 4; vocabulary, § 6.
- Wisdom literature, Wisd. § 1 1 Bar. § 2 iii.
- Wisdom of Jesus Ben-Sira, Sir. § 2. See Wisdom, Book of.
- Wise, P.A. 1^{4,5a,11,17} 2^{11,14} 5¹⁸ 6^{1,6,9,10}; advice to learn from, Sir. 8⁸; class of, § 1; gifts blind the eyes of, 20²⁹; godly man is, 21¹¹; how differs from fool, 21^{12-17,18-28}; of the people to be taught the secret revelations of Ezra, 4 Ez. 12³⁸ 14²⁶ⁿ; reward of, Sir. 20^{27,28}; speech of, 20^{13,27} 27¹¹⁻¹³; = teachers, Rabbis, P.A. 1¹¹.
- Witchcraft, 1 En. 65⁶.
- Witness, heap of, Jub. 29⁸.
- Witnesses, P.A. 4²⁹; examination of, Sus. §§ 7, 8, 44-59, P.A. 1⁹, see Simon ben Shetach; false, law regarding, Pharisees and Sadducees differ in, Sus. 60-62n; law of, Zad. 10¹⁰⁻¹⁷.
- Witnesses (= prophets), Jub. 1¹².
- Wolves = Egyptians, 1 En. 89^{13-27,55}.
- Woman, Disconsolate, vision of, 4 Ez. 9³⁸⁻¹⁰²⁴; unclean, ways of, Zad. 5⁴; wicked, 25¹⁶⁻²⁶.
- Women, conduct to, Sir. 9¹⁻⁹ 19²; inferiority of, Arist. 250; to be shunned by men, T.R. 3¹⁰ 4¹ 6¹ T.Jud. 17¹ T. Iss. 4⁴; not to associate with men, T.R. 6²; value of, to man, Sir. 36²¹⁻²⁶⁽²⁶⁻³¹⁾.
- Wonders, P.A. 5^{6,8}.
- Woods, to be used in sacrifices, Jub. 21¹²⁻¹⁴ Test. App. II 23, 24.
- Word, the, of God, Sir. 33³; all-powerful, Wisd. 18¹⁶ⁿ, see

- 9¹ 16¹²; and wisdom, 2En. 33⁴; creation by, 2Bar. 21⁴; interpreter of God's powers, a seventh sense, Sir. 17⁵ crit. n.; = 'person' of God, Ass. Mos. 8⁵ n.; (= prophecy), 2Bar. 10¹ Zad. 9²³(A); written, 9².
- Words, careful in, P.A. 1^{9,11,17}, cf. 4¹⁶, see Fence; lying, Zad. 1¹⁰; of the holy angels, 1En. 93²; Holy One, 37² 104⁹; righteousness, 13¹⁰ 14¹ 104¹⁰; wisdom, 14³ 37² 99¹⁰.
- Work, P.A. 1¹⁰ 2^{2,18,20}; honourableness of, Sir. 7¹⁵.
- Works, doctrine of, 2Bar. 2^{1,2} n. 14⁷ n.; faith and, see Faith; good, T.R. 4¹ 2Bar. 14⁷ n. 12 4Ez. 7⁷⁷ Zad. 1⁷ P.A. 3¹⁶ 4^{13,22} 6¹⁰, no doctrine of in Ass. Mos. § 9, justification by, Sir. 16¹⁴ n., of righteous should have saved Zion, 2Bar. 14⁷ n., prepared for man by God, Test. App. I 10⁸, cf. 4Ez. 8⁵², store of preserved in treasuries, 2Bar. 14¹² 4Ez. 7⁷⁷; judgement by, Sir. 16¹⁴ (cf. 3^{14,31} 11²⁷ 17²² 29⁹ 31^{9,10}, contrast 5^{5,6} 34²⁶) 4Ez. 8³³ P.A. 3¹⁹; justification by, 2Bar. § 10, 10¹² 14¹² 51^{3,7} 63^{3,5} 67⁶ 85²; of Beliar, T.B. 6⁷; of deceit, T.Jud. 20³; of God, Zad. 1¹ 3¹ 16¹, of Israel, evil, 2⁶; of man preordained, see Man, works of; of righteousness and truth, 1En. 10¹⁶; of truth, T.Jud. 20³; salvation by, 4Ez. 8³³; treasure of, laid up with Most High, 7⁷⁷ n.; wealth of, 8³⁶.
- World-age, stages in, revealed to chosen men, e. g. Enoch, Moses, Jub. 1²⁶ 4Ez. 14⁵ n. Ass. Mos. 1¹⁶ sqq. 10¹² 11¹; beauty of, Wisd. 13⁵; beginning of, Zad. 2⁶; children of, 9⁵⁴; created on behalf of Israel, Ass. Mos. 1¹² 4Ez. 6^{55,59} 7¹¹ 2Bar. 14¹³ n.; for righteous in Israel, 2Bar. 14¹⁹ 15⁷ 21²⁴; for mankind, 2Bar. 14¹⁸ 4Ez. 81⁴⁴; empires, 2Bar. 39³⁻⁵; fights for the righteous, Wisd. 5¹⁷ 16¹⁷⁻²⁴ 18²⁴ 19⁶; new, 2Bar. 44¹², which does not die, 51³, which ages not those who come to it, 51¹⁶ 44¹²; now invisible, 51⁸; of corruption, 21¹⁹ n.; end of, 40³;—plan, place of successive generations in, 4Ez. 5⁴¹⁻⁵⁵; (future) promised to righteous after death, 2Bar. 14¹³; of incorruption, 21¹⁹ n. 57² n.;—soul, Wisd. 1⁷ n.; this, P.A. 1^{2,18} 2¹⁵ 3^{15,19,22} 4^{1,7,21,22,28} 5^{1,11,27} 6^{1,4,6,7,11,12}, Beliar ruler of, Mart. Is. 2⁴, life of, P.A. 4²²; to come, 1En. 71¹⁵ P.A. 2⁸ 3¹⁶ 4^{1,21,22} 6^{4,7,10}, inherit, 5²², life of, 2⁸, calmness of spirit in, 4²², portion in, 3¹⁶; whole, represented in high-priest's robe, Wisd. 18²⁴ n.
- Worldly occupation, P.A. 2² 3^{7,21}.
- Worship of animals, Wisd. 16¹; nature, 13²; serpents, 11¹⁵ 15¹⁸. See House of worship.
- Wrath of God, P.Man. 10, 13 1En. 55³ 62¹² 84⁴ 90¹⁸ 91^{7,9}; (= anger, 5⁹ 101³, cf. 18¹⁶ 99¹⁶) Zad. 1¹⁷ 3⁷ 4⁷ 7¹⁷ 9^{13,22,26} [40] 11⁴, see 2⁴⁻⁷; against wicked, Sir. 16⁶⁻¹⁴; came upon Israel, 1Macc. 1⁶⁴; certain though long delayed, Sir. 5^{6,7} 7¹⁶ 16⁶⁻¹³ 21¹⁰ 40¹⁰⁻¹⁷, see Retribution; day of, see Day; prayer that it may be stayed with the martyrs' sufferings, 2Macc. 7³⁸; turned away, 1Macc. 3⁸.
- Write down, censor to, a capital charge, Zad. 10¹⁰; to write in register of people, 9²⁹, see Written; (sins recorded in heaven), 1En. 89⁷⁰ 98⁸ 104⁷; for destruction, 1En. 91¹⁴, cf. 'Record', 1En. 89^{62,64}. See Names.
- Writing. See Characters.
- Written, it is, Zad. 13²⁷ 14¹; Law is, 7¹¹. See 9² 10³.
- Xanthicus, month, 2Macc. 11³⁰, 33, 38.
- Xenophon's Memorabilia, relation to, of Wisdom, Wisd. § 9, 8²⁻¹⁸ n.
- Xouis, Sib. 5⁸⁶.
- Year, 1En. 74¹⁰ 82⁶, see Lunar, Solar; four parts of, 1En. 82⁴⁻¹³.
- Years, during which Belial is let loose, Zad. 6⁵⁻⁹; forty, 9³⁹; seven, of excommunication, 14⁶.
- Yeshibah, i. e. circle of hearers, Sir. 51²⁹ n.
- Yetzer, Sir. 15¹⁴ 27⁶ 37³; God placed man at first in hand of his Yetzer, 15¹⁴, see Inclination, Tendency; good, Sir. 1¹⁴ n.; evil, P.A. 2¹⁵ 4¹, counteracts the Law, 4Ez. 3²², inherent in man's nature, 3²⁰⁻²², not created by God, Sir. 15¹¹ n. See Evil—germ, heart, principle, seed, thought.
- Yoke, of the Law, 2Bar. 41³ n. P.A. 3⁷ 6⁶; wisdom compared to, Sir. 6²⁵ n. 30.
- Yosippon. See Josephus 'the Hebrew'.
- Zabadeas, 1Esd. 9³⁵.
- Zabdens, 1Esd. 9²¹.
- Zabdiel the Arab, 1Macc. 11¹⁷.
- Zabulon. See Zebulon.
- Zacchaeus, a Maccabean leader, 2Macc. 10¹⁹.
- Zachariah, an elder, Arist. 47.
- Zachariah, an elder, Arist. 49.
- Zachariah, an elder, Arist. 50.
- Zacharias, a ruler of the temple, 1Esd. 1⁸.
- Zacharias, a singer, 1Esd. 1¹⁵.
- Zacharias, son of Phoros, 1Esd. 8³⁰.
- Zacharias, son of Bebai, 1Esd. 8³⁷.
- Zacharias, 1Esd. 8⁴⁴.
- Zacharias, 1Esd. 9²⁷.
- Zacharias, 1Esd. 9⁴⁴.
- Zacharias, i. e. Zechariah, the prophet, 1Esd. 6¹ 7³.
- Zadok, chief of works, Mart. Is. 2⁵.
- Zadok, Rabbi, P.A. 4⁷.
- Zadok, play on name, Zad. § 2; Book of Law hidden till Z. arose, 7⁶; sons of, Zad. 5⁷; are elect of Israel, 6²; chosen for priesthood, Sir. 51¹² n., cf. 50²⁴; pre-Maccabean high-priests, Sir. § 3iii, 51¹².
- Zadokite Fragments, bibliography, § 14; date of original, § 6; MSS., § 3; integrity of, § 7: (i) incomplete; (ii) in great disorder; (iii) based on earlier documents; sources of teaching of, § 7iii; teachings of, § 13; text, see Hebrew; title of work, Zad. § 2. See Zadokite Party.
- Zadokite Party (refs. to Zad. Frag.): belief in future life and angels, Zad. 9⁴⁰; connexion with Christian Church, § 10vi, Dositheans, § 10 end, Karaites, § 10vii; constitution, § 11, see Censor, Judges, Priest; depreciate David and Kings, and Judah, § 12, 7^{5,7}; expect Messiah from Aaron and Israel, not Judah, see Messiah; expectations of, 9⁴⁻⁹; foundation of, 9⁴⁻⁹; glorify Aaron, and priests, and Levites, § 12; head-quarters, Jerusalem, not Damascus permanently, § 10iii; history, principal phases in, § 10:—(i) breach with Sadducean priesthood; (ii) establishment of new covenant of repentance; subsequent breach with Pharisaic party; (iii) claim to be the true Israel; hence term Temple their sanctuary; Jerusalem their holy city, &c.; (iv) period of obedience to precepts of 'Lawgiver' ('Star') till coming of Teacher of Righteousness, thereafter called 'Sons of Zadok'; (v) period from death of Teacher till expected advent of Messiah—judges of, see Regulation; leader, see Leader; members of, in four orders, § 11, see Levites; migration to Damascus, temporary, § 10; name, play on, 1¹ 2¹⁰, see Zadok; nature and origin of—a party, not a sect, § 5; within Judaism, within priesthood, possessed genuine orders, § 5; had origin in priesthood (i. e. Sadducees), but was closely related to Pharisees, § 9; an attempt at reform from within the priesthood, § 9; included laity and priests = 'from Israel and Aaron', § 10; not Essenes, § 9²; not Pharisees, yet related to in many respects, § 9⁴⁰; not Sadducees, but a reformed Sadduceeism, § 9³⁰; not Samaritans, § 9¹⁰—; relation to Pharisees and Sadducees, § 9^{30,40}; sanctuary = Temple, § 10iii; rules for membership—faithfulness to New Covenant; penalty excommunica-
- tion and exclusion for seven years, 9²⁸⁻³⁸—; observance of Levitical and moral laws, 7⁹⁻¹¹ 9¹ 10⁷⁻¹⁷ 12-15 19-20; use of Old Testament, Prophets as well as Law, §§ 8, 9³⁰, 10.
- Zambri, 1Esd. 9³⁴.
- Zamoth, 1Esd. 9²⁸.
- Zaqiel, 1En. 6⁷.
- Zara, Jub. 38¹⁷.
- Zaraias, 1Esd. 5⁸.
- Zaraias, 1Esd. 8².
- Zaraias, 1Esd. 8³¹.
- Zaraias, 1Esd. 8³⁴.
- Zarakes, brother of Joakim, 1Esd. 1³⁸.
- Zardeus, 1Esd. 9²⁸.
- Zathoes, 1Esd. 8³².
- Zathui, 1Esd. 5¹².
- Zealot, Ass. Mos. § 8.
- Zeboim, Jub. 13²³ 16⁵.
- Zebulon, or Zabulon, Jub. 28²³ 33²² 34²⁰ 38⁷ 44¹⁷ T.Jud. 25² T.Z. 1¹⁻³ 10².
- Zechariah, the prophet, Zad. § 3, 9²(B). See Isaiah, Zacharias.
- Zechrias, 1Esd. 8¹.
- Zedekiah, king of Judah, 1Esd. 1⁴⁶ (see Sedekias) 2Bar. 8⁵.
- Zedekiah, an elder, Arist. 49.
- Zedekiah, son of Chenaanah, Mart. Is. 2^{12,13,15}.
- Zebebsel, 1En. 82¹⁷.
- Zephathite woman, Jub. 44¹³.
- Zerah, Jub. 41²¹ 44¹⁵.
- Zeredah, P.A. 1⁴.
- Zerubbabel, Sir. 49¹¹ 1En. 90⁷² n.; wins in contest of oratory, 1Esd. § 1, 3¹⁻⁵; overshadowed by Ezra, 1Esd. § 1; a Zerubbabel source of 1 Esdras, § 6(b). See Zorobabel.
- Zeus, Sib. 3¹⁴¹ 5^{7,87,131,140}; of Ammon, 5⁷; or Dis, Arist. 15; the planet, 2En. 30³ n.; Olympus, sanctuary at Jerusalem called after, 2Macc. 6², see Hellenizing; Xenius, sanctuary at Gerizim called after, 2Macc. 6².
- Zilpah, Jub. 28^{3,9,20} 33²² 44¹⁹ T.N. 1¹¹ T.G. 1⁶ T.Jos. 20³(β).
- Zimram, Jub. 19¹¹.
- Zimri, son of Salom, slain by Phinehas, 1Macc. 2²⁶.
- Zion, Jub. 1^{28,29} 4²⁶ 8¹⁹ Sir. 24^{10,13} 48^{18,24} 51^{12,11} 1En. 26² n. 2Bar. 5^{1,3} 7¹ 10^{7,10,12} 11¹ &c. Ps.Sol. 11¹; centre of earth, Jub. 8¹⁹; consolation of, 2Bar. 44⁷ 81²; God King on, Jub. 1²⁸; shall be holy, 1²⁸; Mount, scene of revelations in 2Bar. 13¹ 22-30 48-52. See Sion.
- Ziphion, Jub. 44²⁰.
- Zodiac, 2En. 30⁶; twelve signs of, 21⁶ 30³ n. See Signs.
- Zohar, son of Simeon, Jub. 44¹³.
- Zoma, ben, P.A. 4¹.
- Zoroastrianism, not in Tobit, Tob. § 8 v.
- Zorobabel, 1Esd. 4¹³ 5^{5,48,56}, 6^{8,70} 6^{2,18,27,29}. See Zerubbabel.
- Zorzelleus, 1Esd. 5³⁸.
- Zotiel (the angel), 1En. 32².
- Zugoth, i. e. pairs, P.A. 1⁴ n.

PRINTED IN GREAT BRITAIN
AT THE UNIVERSITY PRESS, OXFORD
BY VIVIAN RIDLER PRINTER TO THE UNIVERSITY

3 1197-00095 8634

